The attendants consist of a matron or housekeeper, a nurse, a kitchen-maid, and a servant of all work. They were all appointed at a general meeting of the subscribers, and are paid monthly by the treasurer. The matron receives 22*l.* 8*s.* a year, and the general servant 12*l.*; none are provided with diet. During the prevalence of cholera, two nurses died of that disease, but none have ever died of fever.

The various articles required for the consumption of the establishment are procured by the committee, nothing being ever purchased either from a subscriber or officer.

Twice a year a report is prepared and laid before the grand jury of the affairs of the fever hospital and dispensary combined; in addition to which a statement of the number of persons admitted to the fever hospital is submitted to the committee at the termination of each month. One only of the half-yearly reports is printed.

The institution has no other sources of income than voluntary subscriptions and an annual grant from the grand jury. There is but little disproportion among the sums given by the several contributors, who all belong to the richer classes of society. The income during each of the last three years was as follows:

	1831.			1832.			1833.
	£.	s.	d.	£.	s.	d.	£.	s.	d.
Subscriptions -	91	-	-	85	8	4	71	7	-
Presentments -	170	-	-	147	-	-	121	-	-

The treasurer takes upon himself the trouble of collecting the subscriptions; he issues notices to the individuals whose contributions may be due, and the money remains in his hands until required.

The principal heads of expenditure are, salaries to medical officers, wages to matron and servants, medicines, groceries, chandleries, repairs, &c.; and the following table shows what was actually expended on the fever hospital and dispensary combined during the last three years:—

			£.	s.	d.
Year ending June 30th, 1832	-	-	-	262	2 6
Ditto ditto 1833	-	-	-	241	14 2
Ditto ditto 1834	-	-	-	199	14 -

All bills presented for payment must have been examined by the committee before they can be discharged by the treasurer.

Although the accounts are made up at the conclusion of each month, as already mentioned, they are only forwarded to the grand jury twice in the year.

Fermoy
Fever Hospital and
Dispensary.

Population and
Extent of Country.

Persons who attended the Examination.
W. CAMPBELL, esq.—Mr. JOHN CARROLL.—THOMAS PERROTT, esq.—Rev. JAMES WHITE, curate.
One of the Physicians of the Institution.

THE Fermoy Fever Hospital and Dispensary is intended for the relief of a district which contains about 12,000 inhabitants. The surrounding country is, however, in the opinion of the witnesses, provided with rather more sources of medical assistance than the the wants of the population really require, and there are three dispensaries within four miles of the town of Fermoy, namely, at Rathcormac, Glanworth and Kilworth. It is considered that a dispensary might, under ordinary circumstances, be made available for a district of four, or even five miles in diameter, so far at least as extern relief is concerned. It were much to be desired that medical districts of judicious extent were generally formed, and that small hospitals for the reception of such patients were attached to each or to a certain number of them, varying of course according to the amount of population which they contained.

The hospital is a stone building two stories in height, and is advantageously situated on high ground. It is provided with good sewers, but it is extremely deficient in the supply of water. Besides a waiting-room and two apartments appropriated to the attendants, it contains six wards, holding 28 beds, of which eight are intended for surgical patients and the remainder for the reception of persons labouring under fever. There is a slipper-bath for the use of the patients, and the furniture is in general in a state of good repair. The building stands on a small plot of ground, and the entire premises are held in lieu of an annual subscription from the agent of Sir James Anderson, without any lease. This mode of tenure is liable to many objections, and it were certainly much better that this and all similar establishments were the property of the county which maintains them.

The medical staff of the institution consists of two physicians and two consulting physicians. The physicians in ordinary (whose respective ages are 33 and 50) discharge at the same time the duties of physician, surgeon and apothecary. The first is a graduate of the Edinburgh University, the second of the University of Glasgow, and is also a member of the Royal College of Surgeons in London. They were appointed to the situation in the year 1834, at a general meeting of the subscribers, and previous to that period they had been engaged in private practice in the town of Fermoy, and they still continue so. Both of them reside within a short distance of the hospital, at which they are obliged to attend daily from 12 until 2 o'clock. This they do in rotation, and when circumstances require the absence of either, his place is supplied by his colleague. They received their education in midwifery at the Dublin Lying-in Hospital. The senior physician is also the medical superintendent of the Glenville Dispensary; the junior does not hold any second appointment. The authority possessed over the medical officers by the committee is said to be quite sufficient for ensuring the regular discharge of their duties, and it is further stated that the poor have at all times the power to obtain redress for harshness or neglect manifested to them, by laying a complaint before one of the committee or of the subscribers. The medicines prescribed by the physicians are compounded in the establishment of Messrs. White & M'Namara, whose foreman is a licentiate apothecary. They are then administered to the patients by the matron.

Of the medical attendants two of the physicians alone receive any payment; their salary is 50*l.* per annum each. The apothecaries receive 20*l.* per annum.

It has been already intimated that the privilege of electing the physicians is possessed by the subscribers; it should, however, be added, that it is limited by the Act of Parliament to those whose contribution amounts to 1*l.* 1*s.* per annum. The qualifications which they require in candidates are the possession of a diploma from some university or college of surgeons, but without any restriction as to age. When a vacancy occurs in the situation an advertisement is usually inserted in the newspapers inviting candidates to come forward, and informing them of the day on which it is intended that the election shall be held. On occasion of the last vacancy five candidates presented themselves and the selection of the subscribers was final, no reference being made on the subject to the grand jury. This absence of a controlling power in making appointments is a defect which should certainly be remedied by vesting a discretionary veto on all elections in some superior authority. The Assistant Commissioners inquired as to the probability of any of the four or five medical gentlemen who, they were informed, resided in the district of Fermoy, being willing to undertake the charge of the hospital and dispensary gratuitously. It was stated that such was not by any means likely to be the case. Amongst the medical men connected with the institution no mortality has ever taken place. They are not entitled to any retiring allowances.

The room which is appropriated to the use of the apothecary is kept with much neatness. The pharmaceutical apparatus, the drawers and bottles, were all in good order, and there was an adequate supply, not only of the more ordinary medicines, but also of quinine, and some other more delicate and expensive preparations. Everything was supplied by the apothecaries of the institution, and in their absence was placed under the care of the matrons, being quite distinct from the general stock of those officers, which they kept for sale.

		£.	s.	d.
The cost of medicine in the year 1832 was	-	-	50	-
Ditto ditto	-	-	50	-
	1833	-	-	-

But it is expected that in the present year (1834) it will not exceed 35*l.*

The institution is very deficient in its stock of surgical instruments, which extends no further than a stomach pump. It is impossible that the objects of the charity can be fulfilled while such a want continues to exist. Leeches are occasionally made use of; they are procured, as needed, from the apothecaries. The arrangements which have been made for facilitating vaccination are worthy of credit. The children of the poor are gratuitously vaccinated whenever their parents present them, and it is stated by the medical attendants that the confidence of the public in the benefits of the practice is very materially on the increase. Their own opinion is very decidedly in favour of its preventive efficacy, and they represent the disease

FEVER
HOSPITALS.

Munster,
County Cork.

Examinations taken by
Cusack Roney, esq.
W.P. Borrett, esq., M.D.

Fermoy
Fever Hospital and
Dispensary.

Building, Furniture
and Grounds.

Medical Officers.

Payment.

Election.

Pharmacy.

FEVER HOSPITALS.

Munster.
County Cork.

Examinations taken by
Cusack Roney, esq.
W. P. Borrett, esq., M.D.

Fermoy
Fever Hospital and
Dispensary.

Who entitled to
Relief.

Extern Patients.

Nourishment.

Intern Patients.

Diet.

Clothing.

General Management.

Managing
Committee.

Officers not
medical.

Attendants.

Stores.

Rules.

of small pox as having become comparatively rare of late years. Inoculation with the matter of small pox is never performed by either of the medical attendants, although the rules of the institution allow them the exercise of their discretion on the subject.

The physicians keep a register of the number of patients who are admitted into the hospital, from which it appears that the number of admissions averages about one hundred in each year. A copy of the register is annually laid before the grand jury. At the time that the Assistant Commissioners visited the combined establishments the hospital contained but seven intern patients, but it was stated that five persons were under treatment at their own dwellings, and that nearly 30 patients were usually supplied with advice and medicine at the dispensary on each day that it was open for applicants.

All applications for extern relief are indiscriminately attended to, but with respect to those persons who seek admission into the hospital, it is expected that they shall have provided themselves with a recommendatory order from a subscriber. However, this regulation is not calculated to limit the sphere of relief in any material degree, inasmuch as the subscribers are at liberty to issue as many orders as they may think proper, and each order is rendered valid by a single signature. This facility renders them perfectly attainable, even by strangers or by persons unknown to the subscribers. It is, at the same time stated, that no individuals have been known to participate in the benefits of the charity, beyond those for whom its resources were originally intended, and whose circumstances justly entitled them to gratuitous assistance.

The attendance on extern patients is not restricted to the dispensary. If they be unable, from sickness, to come thither they are visited by one of the medical attendants at their own homes, and this attention is frequently repeated two or three times in the course of the day when the case requires it. The physician who was present at this examination gave it as his opinion that, "less than one visit a day was not likely to be productive of much good where the disorder was in an acute stage, occasional attendance being of little or no use except in chronic diseases." There is one class of patients on whom the physicians are not bound to attend, namely, women in their confinement. Such persons are not entitled to the gratuitous services of the medical attendants, unless their condition be one of difficulty or complication. In ordinary circumstances they are placed under the treatment of midwives, who are, in general, so grossly ignorant, that injury to both mother and child is far from being unfrequent. The Assistant Commissioners examined the prescription book; the remedies contained in it appeared judicious, and consisted entirely of what had been ordered by the medical attendants of the institution, no prescriptions being ever compounded with the drugs of the establishment except theirs.

Articles of food are only supplied to the intern patients. There is no charity within the district for furnishing wine, or, indeed, anything beyond medicine to the sick poor at their own dwellings.

Persons seeking admission into the hospital must come provided with a recommendation signed by two members of the committee, and if they be not, strictly speaking, in the class of absolute paupers, they are also required to pay to the funds of the institution the sum of 2s. 6d. a week during their stay in it. An intern patient is never allowed to go beyond the garden, and his friends are only permitted to visit him on producing an order from the attending physician. During the prevalence of the epidemic cholera the lower part of the house was appropriated to the reception of patients labouring under the disease. Every facility is afforded to ministers of the different sects, in approaching persons of their own religious persuasions who may happen to be in the hospital, and the inmates can, at all times, see their respective clergymen, by expressing a wish to that effect. It is stated that there has never been an instance of improper interference with the doctrinal opinions of the sick, on the part either of clergy or laity.

The diet of the intern patients is arranged according to a fixed schedule; but extras, such as wine, porter, &c., are freely allowed, whenever the physician in attendance represents them as necessary.

Before the admission into the wards, their own clothing is removed from the patients, and they are supplied with shirts, shifts and nightcaps so long as they remain in the establishment.

The supreme control over all the affairs of the combined charities, rests with the subscribers at large, of whom a general meeting is held every year, in the month of January. This meeting is usually very fully attended, and as the medical officers are not subscribers, they are, of course, excluded from taking any part in its proceedings.

The details of management are entrusted to a committee of management consisting of twelve members together with the several clergymen of the town, and the medical officers. The meetings of the committee take place monthly, and minutes of their proceedings are regularly kept. There is also a board of superintendence invested by the grand jury with authority to inspect the establishment, whenever they think proper.

The duties of the secretary and treasurer are discharged by the same gentleman, who gives his services without any remuneration. He has never been required to enter into any security.

The attendants are two, namely, a matron and a nurse. The former is paid 9s. a week, and the latter 6s; both reside in the hospital, and are provided with fuel and candles. They were appointed by the managing committee, but are paid by the treasurer.

The various articles required for the consumption of the institution are purchased by the committee.

The rules and regulations have not been yet printed.

A report on the extent to which relief has been granted is annually laid before the grand jury. This report contains a statement of the number of admissions, and of the nature of the disease under which each patient laboured, together with an account of the mode of its termination. The town of Fermoy contains a large number of intelligent persons, who are represented by the witnesses present at this examination as well disposed to co-operate in any investigation having for its object the becoming acquainted with the real condition of the poorer classes of the inhabitants and their wants.

The income of the combined charities is derived partly from annual subscriptions and partly from the grants presented by the grand jury of the county. The subscribers belong altogether to the richer classes, and there is but little disparity in the amount of their contributions.

The receipts during the last three years were as follow:

	1832.			1833.			1834.
	£.	s.	d.	£.	s.	d.	£.	s.	d.
Subscriptions - - - -	139	11	5	149	4	3	113	4	5
Presentments - - - -	140	-	-	130	-	-	220	-	-

The funds are paid into the hands of the treasurer, with whom they remain until wanted.

	£.	s.	d.
The total expenditure in the year 1832 amounted to	-	-	-
Ditto ditto 1833	-	-	-
For six months of 1834	-	-	-

Previous to any account against the institution being discharged it must have been examined by the committee, by whose order on the treasurer the money is then paid.

Persons who attended the Examination.

JOHN BROWNE, esq.—GEORGE BROWNE, esq.—MR. C. J. FRYER.—JOHN ISAAC HEARD, esq.—JEREMIAH M'DANIELL, esq.—Rev. Mr. M'NAMARA, P.P.—HENRY MASON, esq.—Rev. Mr. WALSH, C.C.—Dr. BISHOP.—Dr. JAGO.—Dr. WARREN; and the Apothecary of the Institution.

THE Kinsale Fever Hospital and Dispensary is the only institution for affording gratuitous medical assistance to the poorer classes of a population of nearly 14,000 souls, comprised in a district extending from three to five miles in all directions, and including the town. There are dispensaries at Oysterhaven and at Ballinspittle, the former place distant two, and the latter three miles; but the country in general is very inadequately provided with sources of medical aid, and the witnesses are of opinion that no one charity, in the circumstances of the present one, should be expected to extend its benefits to a greater distance than two miles. It is said that the inconvenience arises not so much from want of accommodation (no application for relief having been ever refused), as from the remoteness of the places to which the medical attendant may be called.

The institution is carried on in a building which had been a barrack, and which was appropriated by the Government, without charge, to its present use. It stands on an elevated situation, which secures the advantages of a pure air, while it is at the same time abundantly supplied with good water and an excellent system of sewerage: attached is a piece of ground half an acre in extent and occupied by the apothecary. The building itself is given up entirely to the patients and nurse-tenders, and is capable of accommodating with ease one hundred sick persons. At present it contains but fifty beds, in nine well ventilated and tolerably furnished wards. There is also a waiting room and an apartment containing a slipper-bath.

The medical staff consists of four gentlemen, who are all either surgeons or physicians possessed of the diplomas of their respective designations. They all reside in the neighbourhood, and, being engaged in private practice, they have made arrangements whereby they mutually take each other's place in the duty of attending the poor, if they have occasion to be absent. They are assisted by an apothecary (a Master of the Apothecaries' Hall in Dublin), who is required to attend every day from eleven until four, if necessary, and to compound all the medicines which may be prescribed by the physicians, visiting also such patients as he may be directed to examine. The authority of the Committee is said to be sufficient to insure regularity on the part of all the officers; and it is stated, that if the poor have any reason to complain of harshness or neglect, they can easily obtain redress by laying their complaints before that body through the intervention of a subscriber.

Of the medical officers, the apothecary alone receives a salary. He is paid 28*l.* 9*s.* 2*d.* a year on account of the dispensary, and 42*l.* per annum on account of his services at the fever hospital. The amount of remuneration granted rests almost entirely with the subscribers. The grand jury have no other mode of controlling it, if it were unreasonable, than by withholding their annual presentment.

In the election of medical officers, all the subscribers of a guinea a year and upwards are entitled to vote. Candidates for the situation of surgeon or physician, are required to possess a degree from a university or a college; and, for that of apothecary, the diploma of FEVER HOSPITALS.

Munster.
County Cork.

Examinations taken by
Cusack Roney, esq.
W.P. Borrett, esq., M.D.

Fermoy.
Fever Hospital and Dispensary.

Funds and Accounts.
Receipts.

Collection and Custody.

Expenditure.

Kinsale

Fever Hospital and
Dispensary.

Population and
Extent of Country.

Building, Furniture
and Grounds.

Medical Officers.

Payment.

Election.

FEVER
HOSPITALS.Minster.
County Cork.Examinations taken by
Cusack Roney, esq.
W.P. Borrett, esq., M.D.Kinsale
Fever Hospital and
Dispensary.

Pharmacy.

Patients' Registration.Who entitled to
Relief.

Extern Patients.

Nourishment.

Intern Patients.

Mallow
Fever Hospital.Population and Extent of Country.Diet.
Clothing.
General Management.Managing Committee.Officers, not
medical.

Master in the Apothecaries' Hall. The last vacancy was for an apothecary, and notices of the intention to fill it up were posted about the town; three competitors were induced to present themselves. There has not been any mortality among the medical men connected with these charities.

The apothecary's department is kept with tolerable neatness, and is furnished with a good stock of pharmaceutical apparatus, and with all necessary medicines, including quinine. The medicines had been supplied by Messrs. Leslie, druggists, in Cork, and had cost (as paid for by the treasurer) in 1834, 177*l.*, in 1833, 85*l.*, in 1832, 96*l.* They are kept altogether distinct from those which the apothecary makes use of in his private practice, and no part of them is ever sold. The institution possesses no surgical instruments whatsoever, nor are leeches ever adopted in the treatment of the patients. No provisions exist for the purpose of extending the practice of vaccination. This is the more to be regretted, as the public are said to manifest an increasing confidence in its preventive efficacy, and the sentiment is corroborated by the experience of the medical attendants. Those gentlemen state that small pox has ceased to be frequent in Kinsale. They are not forbidden to inoculate with the matter of that disease; but they never do so.

A register is kept of the patients who receive relief at the hospital; at the time of their admission the nature of the disease under which they labour is entered, and a note is also made of the mode in which their sickness terminates. A copy of this register is required to be lodged each year with the grand jury. When the Assistant Commissioners visited the institution, the number of patients in it were as follow:

3 Persons under fever.

1 under cholera.

2 Surgical cases.

No operation of any importance had been performed for the last three years.

No difficulties whatsoever are thrown in the way of those who, being sick and poor, wish to avail themselves of the benefits of this charity. The indigent are relieved on their mere application, and it very seldom happens that any apply except those whose circumstances justly give a claim for gratuitous assistance. The domestic servants of subscribers are sometimes, but not often, attended.

Besides the extern patients who receive advice and medicine at the institution, the sick who are unable to come for these are attended at their own dwellings, provided they be not farther distant than five miles. The physicians are also bound to give immediate assistance in cases of accident, but their utility on this point is somewhat limited by their not having it in their power to supply the necessary splints and bandages, with which the charity is totally unprovided. However, the sufferers are visited as often as circumstances may require. The females of the labouring classes in this district have no other professional aid during their confinements than what can be derived from midwives; these women are described by the witnesses as being extremely ignorant, and it is thought that they are the frequent cause of injury both to mother and child.

There are no means for supplying the extern sick with anything beyond medicine.

When a vacancy occurs in the hospital, the bed is given to any poor person, without conditions, labouring under accident or fever. The patient is then not allowed to go beyond the bounds of the institution until his final departure, and his friends are only allowed to visit him under strict restrictions and regulations, which extend to the enforcing good conduct among all the inmates of the charity. For an infraction of these rules, it is stated that a former apothecary was dismissed from his situation. No portion of the establishment is appropriated to the reception of lunatics; but when the cholera made its appearance in the town, it was deemed advisable to open the wards to those who were attacked by it. Large numbers of such patients have at different times been admitted, and at the date of this evidence one such case was under treatment in the fever wards. There are not any regular chaplains, but it is stated that the clergy of all religious persuasions are freely permitted to visit any patient who may have expressed a desire to avail himself of their services. The witnesses agree in saying that no attempts at proselytism, or at circulating controversial or offensive publications in the wards, have ever been made.

There is no regular schedule of diet.

The patients make use of their own clothing.

The general management is vested in the contributors to the funds of the charity. They amount to about 86; and at the general meeting, which takes place annually, all governors are equally privileged to attend, and vote, but not by proxy. Not more, however, than 10 or 12 are in the habit of being present; but the meetings are regularly held and minutes are kept of the proceedings, in which none of the officers have been allowed to participate.

The details of management are more particularly under the control of the managing committee, of which the members are annually elected, and are directed to meet every month for the transaction of the business of the establishment. The committee is further subject to the authority of a board of superintendence, selected by the grand jury.

The non-medical officers are the treasurer, the secretary, and two members of the committee, who discharge the duties of auditors of accounts. They are all elected annually by open voting, without reference to religious distinctions, and give their services without any remuneration, except the secretary, who is allowed a salary of 10*l.* a year, and is not required to enter into any security.

The

The two nurse-tenders, who are the only attendants, reside in the house, and receive 9s. a week wages between them. They are provided with diet, nor have they any perquisites.

Groceries, coals and wine are purchased by order of the committee from different members of that body, but it is stated that all articles are furnished at a very low rate.

The rules of the management of the institution have not been printed, but their operation has been found most conducive to its general welfare. At the same time, it is conceived that much injury has resulted from the want of some uniform system in all establishments of a similar nature.

Reports of the affairs of the charity are submitted to the members of the grand jury, twice in every year, and are printed occasionally for circulation among the subscribers.

Although no fixed source of income is attached to the institution under consideration, yet its receipts, derived partly from voluntary contributions, and partly from the county grand jury, are sufficiently definite to render its continuance certain. Several poor persons are subscribers, and sums, however small, are received in aid of the funds, and entitle the donors to medicine and advice gratuitously from the dispensary. The subscriptions to the combined charities amounted in the year

	£.	s.	d.
1832 to - - - - -	96	-	-
1833 - - - - -	85	-	-
1834 (by extraordinary exertion) - - - - -	177	-	-

The grand jury presentment for the two departments was in

1832 - - - - -	96	-	-
1833 - - - - -	85	-	-
In 1834 - - - - -	105	-	-

was granted for the fever hospital alone, but the amount allowed for the dispensary had not been made known at the date of this examination.

The funds are collected by the treasurer, and remain exclusively in the treasurer's hands until required for the purposes of current expenditure.

The money actually expended in the year

	£.	s.	d.
1832 did not exceed - - - - -	177	-	-
1833 it amounted to - - - - -	220	-	-

Previous to being paid, all bills are examined by the committee, who give an order on the treasurer for their discharge.

Although the accounts are made up at the end of every month, it appears that they are not submitted to the subscribers with the same degree of frequency. The Assistant Commissioners were unable to procure a detailed statement of the accounts during the last three years.

When a vacancy occurs in the hospital, the bed is given to any poor person, without conditions, labouring under a fever. The patient is then not allowed to go beyond the bounds of the institution until his final departure, and his friends are only allowed to visit him under the sanction of the committee. For an infraction of these rules, good conduct among all the inmates of the charity.

Persons who attended the Examination.

Rev. Mr. BALDWIN, curate.—JOHN BRADDELL, esq.—Rev. Mr. COLLINS, P.P.—Capt. DAVIS, R.N.—THOMAS HAYNES, esq.—OWEN MADDEN, esq.—Dr. LINAHAN.—Dr. JUSTICE.—Mr. JUSTICE.

THE population for which the present institution is intended does not exceed 7,000, and is confined to the distance of one mile from the court-house of the town. There is not another establishment of a similar description within a considerable distance of Mallow; so that the district in general is inadequately provided for, and the want of fitting accommodation for intern patients has made itself severely felt.

The building to which the name of fever hospital has been given is nothing more than a few sheds placed against the walls, and containing about 13 iron bedsteads; at the most it does not contain room for more than 20 patients.

At a general meeting of subscribers, held in the year 1832, two medical men were appointed to attend the charity. They both reside in the town, and are engaged in private practice as physicians, having taken out the degree of doctors in medicine at the University of Edinburgh. They are required to visit the hospital at least once a day, and are accustomed to act for each other when obliged to be absent. One of them is also the medical superintendent of the dispensary of Glantane, a village about six miles from Mallow. The medicines required by the patients are procured from the several apothecaries of the town in rotation.

Both the physicians act without any remuneration. Their appointment rests with the subscribers, who, as the offices are gratuitous, proceed to fill all vacancies as they occur, without going to the expense of advertisements inviting competition. It is merely required that the candidates who present themselves shall be graduates of some university. It would, doubtless, be desirable that some superior controlling power should exist in all elections. As to the conduct of the officers when appointed, it is said to be sufficiently under the control of the committee, to whom if a complaint be preferred, it is well known to the poor that redress would be obtained.

FEVER
HOSPITALS.

Munster,
County Cork.

Examinations taken by
Cusack Roney, esq.
W. P. Borrett, esq., M.D.

Kinsale
Fever Hospital and Dispensary.

Funds and Accounts.
Receipts.

Patients' Registers.

Who entitled to
Relief.

Collection and
Custody.

Expenditure.

Accounts.

Nourishment
Intern Patients.

Mallow
Fever Hospital.

Population and
Extent of Country.

Building.

Medical Officers.

Payment.

Election.

Officers, not Medical.

FEVER
HOSPITALS.

Munster.
County Cork.

Examinations taken by
Cusack Roney, esq.
W.P. Borrett, esq., M.D.

Mallow
Fever Hospital.

Nourishment.

Intern Patients.

Diet.
General
Management.

Managing
Committee.

Officers not
medical.

Attendants.

Stores.

Reports.

Funds and Accounts.
Receipts.

The annual cost of medicine, supplied in the manner which has been mentioned above, is about 13*l.*, and every thing (including leeches) ordered by the physicians can be had.
At the time that the Assistant Commissioners visited the hospital it contained 13 patients.

As the name of the establishment implies, none are admissible into it except those who labour under fever. All applications must, however, be supported by a recommendatory order from one of the subscribers, who are entitled to issue as many of them as they may think proper.

Strictly speaking, the treatment of extern patients cannot be said to come within the object of this fever hospital. Persons who are reported to be labouring under fever are merely visited by one of the medical attendants, in order to ascertain the real nature of the case previous to its being moved to the establishment.

Neither is there any source whence the sick poor can be supplied with food or extra nourishment at their own dwellings during the period of convalescence, when something more nutritious than their ordinary diet is so much needed.

The greatest precautions are used for preventing any communications between the intern patients and those outside. The friends of the sick are never allowed to visit them, and the sick themselves are not, under any circumstances, permitted to leave the hospital until they have been finally dismissed. At the time that the cholera prevailed in the town of Mallow, some cases of the disease manifested themselves in the hospital, although persons labouring under it were not considered entitled to admission. The clergy of all persuasions are freely admitted to the hospital at all times, and every facility is afforded to the patients who may be desirous of participating in their peculiar religious rites. There have not been any instances of improper interference with the patients, whether on the part of clergy or laity, and all controversial and offensive tracts have been carefully excluded from the wards.

The diet of the patients is regulated according to a fixed scale.

The governors of the charity amount to 33. A general meeting is held once in every year, but the number who annually attend does not exceed 12 or 14, although all are alike privileged to be present, and to vote, but not by proxy. Minutes are kept of the proceedings of these meetings, at which business may be transacted without reference to the number present. The medical officers are governors in right of their annual subscription, but they have hitherto declined taking any part in the management of the charity.

A managing committee is annually appointed, but the members of it are not accustomed to assemble, except when specially summoned. A book is kept for recording their proceedings. None of the governors have ever acted as visitors.

The treasurer is the only non-medical officer, and his appointment is annually renewed by the subscribers, who have the character of being quite uninfluenced by religious prejudices. The treasurer receives no remuneration for his services, but he is bound to lay his accounts periodically before the subscribers at large, and also before the grand jury.

There is but one attendant, namely, a nurse-tender, who resides in the house, and is paid 12*s.* a week as board-wages by the treasurer. She was appointed to her situation by the committee, by whom also she may be discharged whenever her conduct ceases to give satisfaction.

Everything required for the consumption of the establishment is procured under the sanction of the committee.

A general Report on the affairs of the institution is presented at fixed periods to the members of the grand jury, and also to the Board of Charitable Institutions which exists at Cork.

The real condition of the poor cannot anywhere be ascertained with more certainty than in the district surrounding the town of Mallow, owing to the large number of intelligent residents who would, according to the statement of several witnesses, willingly take a part in any investigation having for its object the knowledge of the wants of the class in question.

The income of the charity is derived chiefly from annual contributions, the subscriptions of the several supporters being nearly equal in amount. The sum received under this head

	£.	s.	d.
In the year 1832 was	48	11	6
1833	56	6	3
1834	34	3	0

The charity does not possess any property beyond its annual income, which is collected by the treasurer, and remains in his hands until required.

Collection.
Custody.

Expenditure.

	£.	s.	d.
The entire expenditure of the year 1832 amounted to	112	10	11
Ditto ditto 1833	103	9	2

Accounts.

Previous to any account being discharged, it must have been examined by the committee. The accounts of income and outlay are made up twice in the year, and copies are presented to the subscribers, and also laid before the grand jury.

Persons who attended the Examination.

JOHN CARDEN, esq.—JOSEPH COPPINGER, esq.—Rev. Mr. COPPINGER, roman catholic clergyman. JOSEPH DWYER, esq.—Rev. Mr. EAGER, roman catholic curate.—Rev. Mr. FREEMAN, protestant curate.—Mr. WILLIAM HUMPHREYS.—Capt. NANGLE.—Rev. Mr. WALSH, P.P.; and the Medical Attendant.

THE district attached to the Middleton Fever Hospital and Dispensary contains a population of nearly 25,000 souls, and extends in the farthest direction to about four miles. Many subscribers, however, reside at a still greater distance, and their recommendations are occasionally attended to. There are dispensaries at Cloyne and Castlemartyn, neither of which places are more than six miles from Middleton; but that at Castlemartyn is intended chiefly to afford medical assistance to the immediate tenantry of a nobleman whose property occupies that district. The witnesses were of opinion that the district of a dispensary should never exceed four miles in diameter, nor contain a greater population than that of Middleton. These proportions, it is observed, would be consistent with practical utility, and it was found that, even during the prevalence of cholera, there was no occasion to refuse relief to any of the numerous applicants who stood in need of it. With respect to the fever hospital, its destination is not altogether so restricted as its name would imply. The gentlemen of the neighbourhood have felt the necessity of making a few beds in it available for the treatment of accidents and other surgical cases. It does not appear that the infectious nature of fever has given rise to any apprehensions of evil consequences resulting from deviation from the original design.

A portion of an excellent house in which the medical attendant resides is appropriated to the purposes of the dispensary, namely, a waiting-room for patients and a commodious and well-arranged apartment for the keeping of medicines. The furniture is the private property of the physician. The fever hospital, which stands close by on an area of about two acres, is a building peculiarly well adapted for such an institution. It stands upon an open and airy elevation, and part of the grounds are set apart for the convalescents to exercise in. It is three stories high; the two upper stories, consisting of four rooms, each 16 feet by 14 feet, are for the reception of patients labouring under fever, and are capable of holding separately eight beds; they are lofty and well ventilated, and are supplied with iron bedsteads and bedding of the best description. At the date of this examination they contained but four patients, the smallest number that had been known since the establishment had been opened. The lower story is chiefly occupied by the matron and nurses. It comprises kitchen, laundry, bed-rooms and two small apartments, each containing one bed designed for the reception of surgical cases—an arrangement from which the greatest benefit has been experienced. There was a case of compound fracture of the leg in one of them, and a case of fracture of the thigh bone was in the other. The premises, of which the aspect is south-west, have the advantage of a copious supply of river water, and they contain a slipper-bath for the use of the patients. The ground on which the hospital and dispensary stand is a gift from the proprietor of the town, who also erected the latter building. The former was built partly by subscription and partly by the aid of presentments granted by the grand jury of the county.

The gentleman who acts as medical superintendent of both departments is a graduate of Trinity College, Dublin, and a licentiate of the Royal College of Surgeons in Ireland; he also possesses a diploma from the Lying-in Hospital, Dublin, which, together with his other testimonials, were submitted to the inspection of the Assistant Commissioners. He has held his present situation, as physician, surgeon and accoucheur, since the year 1825, when he was elected at a general meeting. Previous to that period he had resided as a practitioner in the city of Cork, and he still continues in private practice. Every morning, Sundays excepted, he is obliged to be at the institution from nine until eleven; but in case of necessary absence he is allowed to provide a substitute, subject, however, to the approbation of the committee, to whose control in the performance of his duties he is at all times subject. It is stated that complaints have occasionally been brought against him on the score of irregularity, but that they have never been substantiated. He has no assistant, and alone dispenses medicine.

The salary of the medical attendant is 80*l.* per annum, and he is also provided with a residence and with coals and candles; as to the amount of remuneration granted to him, it depends mainly on the discretion of the subscribers, and can only be regulated at a general meeting. The salary was at first only 60*l.*; but in the succeeding year it was raised to 80*l.* The grand jury possess a limited control in checking any tendency to extravagance, and have recently exercised it in withdrawing their usual annual presentment for the maintenance of the dispensary at Carrigtohill, a town about two miles from Middleton.

The privilege of appointing the medical officer is exercised by the subscribers in conformity with the provisions of the Act of Parliament. When a vacancy occurs, an advertisement is usually inserted in the newspapers inviting candidates to appear, and notice is at the same time given that certain qualifications will be expected in those who come forward. On the last occasion of the kind the candidates amounted to four, and the appointment was made without any reference to the authority of the grand jury. No retiring pension would be allowed to the physician. It is stated that the neighbourhood of Middleton contains a very considerable number of residents in independent circumstances, and that their patronage is quite adequate to the maintenance of a medical man without any salary from a public institution. There are two or three practitioners in the district.

FEVER
HOSPITALS.

Munster.
County Cork.

Examinations taken by
Cusack Roney, esq.
W.P. Borrett, esq., M.D.

Middleton
Fever Hospital and
Dispensary.

Population and
Extent of Country.

Building, Furniture
and Grounds.

Medical Officer.

Payment.

Election.

FEVER
HOSPITALS.

Munster.
County Cork.

Examinations taken by
Cusack Roney, esq.
W. P. Borrett, esq., M.P.

Middleton
Fever Hospital and Dispensary.

Pharmacy.

Patients' Registration.

The arrangements of the pharmacy, its drawers, bottles, &c., and its pharmaceutical apparatus, showed much neatness and regularity. There was an abundant supply of the best kinds of medicines, including quinine and morphia, all being under the care of the physician, and, during his absence, of the housekeeper; they were exclusively for the use of the establishment, the medical attendant not practising in private as an apothecary. Messrs. Warrington and Co., of Cork, supply all drugs, and their bills, during the last three years, as paid by the treasurer, have amounted on an average to about 45*l*. The surgical instruments for the use of the dispensary and hospital consist merely of a stomach pump and a cupping apparatus; when anything else is required the surgeon is obliged to have recourse to his private stock. Leeches are supplied to the fever patients alone. Vaccination is performed gratuitously on all persons who make application for it, and though its advantages to the community at large have been somewhat counteracted by spurious inoculation and by the practices of persons who go about the country inserting variolous matter, it still continues to be looked on with confidence by the public. Where it does not act as a complete preservative against small pock, it has been found to be a powerful alleviator of that disease. Small pock has been rather frequent of late years; the medical attendant is averse to inoculation.

The registration of patients is attended to with much regularity by the physician, and an abstract of the numbers treated is annually lodged with the grand jury, previous to the spring assizes. The number of patients admitted into the fever hospital during the year

1831 was	-	-	114	of whom	-	-	3	died.
1832	-	-	166	-	-	-	3
1833	-	-	168	-	-	-	8

The cases treated at the dispensary average about 1,500 per annum; and it is stated, that applications are never refused. The Assistant Commissioners found six patients in the fever hospital, and they were informed that 12 sick persons were in course of treatment at their homes, and that 40 patients had been prescribed for that day at the dispensary. The following operations had been performed during the last three years :

- Three amputations of the leg.
- Two cases of trephining.
- Six cases of hare-lip.
- Two excisions of cancerous lips.
- Three operations for fistula in ano.
- Diseased metacarpal bone of ring finger removed.

Upwards of 20 midwifery cases, in which it had been necessary to resort to the forceps or crotchet, had also occurred.

Who entitled to
Relief.

Every applicant for relief must have obtained the recommendation of a subscriber; but although this condition is somewhat strictly enforced, except under circumstances of emergency, it throws little or no difficulty in the way of the poor, owing to each subscriber being at liberty to issue as many orders as he thinks proper in his own name. The facility of procuring admission is, perhaps, too great, and many persons contrive to participate in the benefits of the charity, who by no means stand in need of gratuitous assistance; and, notwithstanding that the subscribers have, on several occasions, been requested to guard against such imposition. It is also to be regretted that, the tenants of many gentlemen possessed of landed property, and resident in the neighbourhood, and who contribute nothing to the funds of the institution, are yet in the constant habit of deriving advantages from it.

Extern Patients.

In addition to the relief afforded to extern patients at the dispensary, in advice and medicine, the physician is also bound to visit at their own dwellings (when within the bounds of the district) such indigent persons as are confined by sickness. It would appear, however, as well from the testimony of many of the gentlemen present at this examination, as from that of the medical attendant himself, that this portion of duty cannot be discharged as fully as might be wished. The district is so extensive, and the sick poor so numerous, as to render it impossible for one medical man to give a proper degree of attention, particularly in acute cases, without surrendering his entire time to the task. He is not, under any circumstances, required to attend to midwifery cases, unless on the receipt of 5*s*. each case, during the day, or 10*s*. when called upon in the night. The remuneration has never been insisted on from the poor, whom he has always attended gratuitously when asked. In ordinary cases, the females of the labouring class are assisted by midwives, who are said to be exceedingly ignorant, and of whose unskilfulness the most deplorable consequences were mentioned, as having come within the observation of the medical attendant. As all medicines that are required, are prescribed and compounded by the medical attendant, that gentleman has not been in the habit of entering them in any book.

Nourishment.

In those seasons, when distress has been more than ordinarily prevalent among the poor, means have usually been adopted for providing them with a certain quantity of nourishment; but at present there is no source in the district whence they can draw anything of the kind, or on which the physician of the dispensary can give an order.

Intern Patients.

Intern patients are not admitted without a recommendation; and after their admission they are not allowed to pass the bounds of the institution until their treatment has been completed, nor are their friends ever permitted to visit them. There are regulations for ensuring their good conduct, but they have not been printed, nor are they placed in a conspicuous situation. No work is demanded from them during their stay. The clergy of all religious persuasions are freely admitted into the hospital to see any patient who may be desirous of availing himself of their services; but there has not been any instance of improper interference, or tampering with the religious opinions of the inmates, either on the part of clergy or laity.

The table according to which the food of the patients is regulated, contains specifications of the articles which are allowed for middle, high and low diet; and, in addition, whatever extras are thought necessary, are always provided.

To all those who have not change of linen, shirts, chemises and night-caps are supplied during their stay in the hospital, and great pains are taken to purify and cleanse the clothing which they had brought with them.

The laws of the institution direct that a general meeting, at which all subscribers are equally entitled to attend and vote, (voting by proxy not being allowed,) shall take place annually. This has not been done with much regularity of late years, as appears from the book in which an account is kept of the proceedings of such assemblies. The medical officer has never taken any part in the general management of the establishment.

The affairs are chiefly directed by a managing committee, of which the members are elected annually, and who meet on the first Tuesday in each month, to examine accounts, and to issue orders for payment to the treasurer. Minutes are kept of their proceedings, and they are subject to the inspection of a board of superintendence, deriving its authority from the grand jury, and which has visited the several departments of the institution on two occasions within the last twelve months.

The non-medical officers are the treasurer, the secretary, and the collector. The collector receives 1*l.* for collecting the subscriptions, but neither of the others receives any remuneration for his services, nor is any security required from the treasurer. They are all appointed by ballot; and without reference to religious distinctions. The Act of Parliament provides against any undue accession to the number of the voters, with a view to influencing an election.

The attendants are in all things subject to the control of the medical attendant. They consist of

- 1st. The matron; salary, 10*l.* per annum.
- 2d. Three permanent nurses, at 5*s.* each per week.

(Others being engaged when necessary.)

There has not been any mortality amongst the attendants, even during the time of cholera.

Nothing intended for the consumption of the establishment is supplied by persons connected with it, either as governor or officer. The several articles are supplied by a kind of contract, by different tradesmen, who keep pass books, in which every thing is entered for the use of the institution. These tradesmen have been changed from time to time, in order that the greatest economy might be preserved; and they have in general been selected by the medical attendant, subject, however, to being afterwards approved of by the committee.

A printed report is annually presented to the subscribers of the numbers who have been relieved during the year, in the several departments of the institution. It is stated that a very accurate knowledge of the condition of the poor throughout the district might be obtained by forming a permanent board of health, composed of the gentry, clergy, and middle class of farmers. The number of qualified persons in these classes who would be willing to co-operate in any plan for the relief of the poor, is represented as being very considerable in the neighbourhood of Middleton.

As it possesses no fixed property, either in land or money, the institution depends entirely on the annual subscriptions, and on the grant from the grand jury. The former constitutes a very precarious source of income, as may be judged from the fact that, owing to a misunderstanding with the last medical attendant, one individual withdrew his usual contribution; which example being followed by others, led to the closing of the infirmary and of the dispensary during a period of six years. Two of the present contributors subscribe respectively for 20 and for 10 guineas, and until latterly no subscriptions were obtained except from the wealthier classes. During the course of the year which has just elapsed, however, a collection has been made among all classes of inhabitants, with a view to liquidating a debt for medicines, contracted through the diminution of the amount of the grand jury grant. The gross receipts, during each of the last three years, were as follow, viz:

	1831			1832			1833
	£.	s.	d.	£.	s.	d.	£.	s.	d.
Subscription - - - -	120	11	6	126	4	-	105	-	-
Presentments - - - -	150	-	-	140	-	-	170	3	-

The funds are left in the hands of the treasurer.

The general heads of expenditure are groceries, bread, fuel, soap and candles, wine and porter, milk, oatmeal and meal, &c.; salaries, medicine and wages. The disbursements for the last three years have been as follow:

0.5. R R On

FEVER HOSPITALS.

Munster. County Cork.

Examinations taken by Cusack Roney, esq. W.P. Borrett, esq., M.D.

Middleton Fever Hospital and Dispensary.

Managing Committee.

Officers not medical.

Attendants.

Stores.

Reports.

Funds and Accounts. Receipts.

Custody. Expenditure.

FEVER
HOSPITALS.Munster.
County Cork.Examinations taken by
Cusack Roney, esq.
W.P. Borrett, esq., M.D.Middleton
Fever Hospital and
Dispensary.

	1831			1832			1833
	£.	s.	d.	£.	s.	d.	£.	s.	d.
On the Fever Hospital -	184	6	9½	233	2	9	287	19	-
Dispensary - - - -	92	9	9½	93	1	3	93	8	6

Bills are discharged by the medical attendant, through an order on the treasurer, after they have been examined by the committee.

The accounts are made up every month, but they are only presented to the subscribers at the expiration of the year.

Persons who attended the Examination.

Mitchelstown
Fever Hospital and
Dispensary.

Rev. THOMAS FORREST, protestant curate.—Rev. Dr. GRAVES.—Rev. MICHAEL MOORE, roman catholic curate.—Mr. DENNIS O'BRIEN; The Medical Attendant.

Population and
Extent of Country.

A POPULATION of 6,000 in the town of Mitchelstown, and of nearly 13,000 in the district surrounding it, which extends to 12 miles in some directions, look to this charity for relief. There are distinct institutions of the same kind at Kilworth, Kildorrery and Glanworth, in the county Cork, as also at Ballyporeen in the county Tipperary. It is considered that these establishments, which are eligibly disposed within about six miles of each other, are abundantly capable of supplying the wants of their respective neighbourhoods. The internal accommodation afforded is so far sufficient for the object (fever) for which it is intended, that, except in the case of cholera, no instance has occurred of the refusal of an application for admittance. In the cases of the servants of small farmers it is usual to require the sum of 2s. 6d., which sum, trivial as it is, is endeavoured to be evaded in many instances, by the gross and inhuman practice of leaving the sick at the door of the surgeon, or even in the street or market-house, exposed to the weather. They calculate successfully on the humanity of the medical officer for the result.

Building, Furniture
and Grounds.

The dispensary is placed on the ground floor of the fever hospital. This building, which is of stone, and in an elevated and airy situation outside the town, where it possesses an abundant supply of wholesome water, was erected about 10 years ago, at the sole expense of a nobleman, who also assigned to the charity the ground on which the building stands. About six years ago an addition was made, for which assistance was obtained from the grand jury to the amount of 70*l*. There are two fever wards on the first floor, each 24 feet square, accommodating 16 patients, and a ward on the ground floor appropriated to surgical cases. The entire number of beds at present occupied is 20; it would, however, if necessary, be possible to introduce 30, and 24 could be filled with every attention to comfort. A store-room, bed-room and kitchen are allotted to the matron, and a sitting-room and bed-room are occupied by the surgeon's assistant. The whole place is perfectly well ventilated, and possesses a large portable and a slipper-bath. The grounds are about three-fourths of an acre, and about two-thirds of them are cultivated as a garden. The place, as may be collected from what is said above, is subject to no rent.

Medical Officers.

The present medical attendant was appointed to act as physician and surgeon to this institution in the year 1823, previous to which time he practised his profession in the town of Mitchelstown (where he continues to reside), and received annually from a noble lady 100*l*. for attending to the sick poor of the neighbourhood. He received the degree of M. D. at Edinburgh, where he also studied midwifery. He is not prevented acquiring private patients, but he is obliged to attend daily at the fever hospital, and to prescribe for externs at the dispensary on Mondays, Wednesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays. On the occasion of his going to England he found a substitute, with the approbation of the committee, and when unavoidably absent a proxy would be always provided under the same sanction. The committee are quite adequate to the checking any irregularity of which the physician might be guilty. He is assisted in the compounding and dispensing of medicines, and in performing the minor operations of surgery, by a person, who never has been appointed to any definite post, and whose only qualifications are a few years spent in an apothecary's shop and the having dispensed medicine at Watergrass Hill Dispensary, so that in truth he can be considered only in the light of the medical attendant's servant.

Payment.

The physician receives 60*l*. a year for attending the dispensary, and 40*l*. on account of the fever hospital. He is in no other way whatsoever remunerated by the institution.

Election.

The power of election resides with the subscribers, who have had but one opportunity of exercising their right, as the medical attendant has retained his appointment since the origin of the charity. He fulfils its duties to the satisfaction of the poor, who have been made aware of their right to prefer complaints against him upon occasion, which would certainly be attended to at the weekly meetings of the committee.

Pharmacy.

Of all the necessary medicines in general use a very abundant supply was found under the custody of the above-mentioned assistant, kept in a state of great neatness; and the committee are always willing to purchase any of the more unusual and expensive medicines which the physician may recommend. The apparatus for preparing decoctions, &c., was in good good order, and the requisite surgical instruments, with the exception of the amputating knives, were in efficient condition. No medicine is ever sold under any pretext, but the medical attendant is permitted to use the instruments of the institution when he pleases. Leeches are rarely had recourse to. A correct judgment is manifested by the individuals who manage this charity, in that they stipulate that their physician shall not inoculate with small pox, a practice to which he expresses himself quite opposed. He is bound to vaccinate all who apply, and in the present year has had 97 applications.

A very accurate register is kept by the physician of both extern and intern patients, in which he enters every thing relating to them at the time of its occurrence. The physician has the discretionary power of refusing both relief and admission to such persons as he deems able to pay; he is, however, held accountable to the committee on this point, and makes a memorandum in the register of the circumstance. The following is an abstract:—

Extern patients prescribed for in the year 1831	-	-	-	-	6,300
Ditto ditto 1832	-	-	-	-	8,400
Ditto ditto 1833	-	-	-	-	8,600
Interns in the year 1831	-	-	-	-	43
Ditto 1832	-	-	-	-	45
Ditto 1833	-	-	-	-	47

Fifteen cases of cholera were admitted into the house in the last year, and 63 were attended at their own houses. At the time we visited the establishment there were but two fever patients in the house. From 10 to 15 received attention at home, and about 50 sought it at the dispensary. In the last three years it has been necessary to amputate once and to trepan once. During that period aid has been afforded to upwards of 100 lying-in women.

At this charity a recommendation is not necessary for the procuring of assistance, which is freely extended in every shape to the indigent, and in the shape of advice to the poorer classes of subscribers (viz., of 10s.), who are, however, obliged to procure medicine elsewhere. The lower servants of subscribers are also relieved.

Extern patients are seen at the dispensary, which, as before stated, is under the same roof with the fever hospital; but should any poor person be unable to present himself, no matter what the distance at which he should reside, if within the limits of the Kingston estate, the physician considers himself obliged to visit him at any hour of the day or night; and, in acute diseases, even to repeat his visits two or three times a day, should the case be one of danger. (The prescriptions of authorized practitioners are sometimes made up for the poor.) Lying-in cases come within the scope of the charity; but many melancholy instances occur of considerable injury to both mother and child from the gross ignorance and unskilfulness of the midwives who attend them. The charity secures to itself an abundant supply of vaccine matter by the annual payment of a guinea to the cow-pock institution in Dublin. It has every reason to think well of the preventive efficacy of vaccination which it practises extensively and gratuitously. The public confidence in it is on the increase, which is decidedly proved by the gradual disappearance of those travelling propagators of disease who used formerly to inoculate with small pox, but who now, where they do exist, are frequently solicited to use vaccine matter.

Broth and wine are occasionally given to the poor, under urgent circumstances.

The recommendation of a subscriber, which it is not very difficult to obtain, is necessary for any person seeking admission into the house. The friends of the patients are allowed to visit them without any restriction, but the sick are never allowed to leave the hospital. It may be well to remark, that at the time cholera prevailed, fever ceased to exist in this district, a circumstance which permitted the appropriation of the hospital to those afflicted with the former disease. A right has always been recognised in the clergy of every sect to visit and administer their rites to patients who may require their consolations, but the charity never permits the ill-timed interference of those persons who would force on the disinclined the perusal of tracts inculcating particular religious doctrines.

It is to be regretted that a systematic formulary for diet does not here exist. The nature of the food of each patient rests with the discretion of the physician, who is empowered to order whatever extra comfort, such as wine, &c., may be required.

No clothes are given to the patients for hospital wear, but those that they have brought are washed and otherwise carefully purified.

There is a general meeting in January of all the subscribers, in which the medical attendant is not allowed to vote.

The expenses of the institution are under the immediate control of a managing committee, who meet for the most part monthly. The grand jury, for their own satisfaction, have further appointed a gentleman to act as general superintendent, but he has not visited the hospital since last March. However, the gentlemen of the vicinity take a most creditable interest in it, for, by a book which is kept for the purpose of recording their names and remarks, it appears that the establishment is almost daily inspected by some one or other of them.

The treasurer does not give the security required by Act of Parliament; and it may here be remarked, that in general, in the south of Ireland, we have found that the treasurers of charitable institutions are irregular in this regard, perhaps because they are seldom, if ever, paid officers. Religious prejudices would not here be a bar to the appointment of any man, nor has any individual ever so far lost the confidence of the subscribers as to require removal.

The matron receives 20*l.* per annum; the assistant nurses each 14*s.* a month, and the assistant

FEVER HOSPITALS.

Munster. County Cork.

Examinations taken by Cusack Roney, esq. W. P. Borrett, esq., M.D.

Mitchelstown Fever Hospital and Dispensary.

Patients.

Mitchelstown Fever Hospital and Dispensary.

Population and Extent of County.

Who entitled to Relief.

Extern Patients.

Building, Furniture and Grounds.

Nourishment.

Intern Patients.

Medical Officers.

Diet.

Clothing.

General Management.

Managing Committee.

Officers not medical.

Attendants.

FEVER
HOSPITALS.Munster.
County Cork.Examinations taken by
Cusack Roney, esq.
W.P. Borrett, esq., M.D.Mitchelstown
Fever Hospital and
Dispensary.Funds and Election
Accounts.
Receipts.
Collection and
Custody.
Expenditure.
Accounts.

Instruction.

assistant compounder of medicines is paid 25*l.* per annum. These all reside in the house, but are not dieted. They owe their appointments to the committee, subject to the sanction of the subscribers, who have also the power of discharging them. The illness of which the last assistant apothecary died was contracted during his attendance on cholera patients.

All the necessary articles of consumption, &c., are purchased by the committee from persons altogether unconnected with the charity.

A report is made half-yearly to the grand jury, detailing the affairs of the institution, but as it has never been printed, we were unable to procure a copy.

The average amount received in subscriptions has latterly been about 115*l.*, and the grand jury has generally allowed from 120*l.* to 130*l.* The subscription of one nobleman is 50*l.*, and that of another 10*l.* If these two noblemen were to withhold their support the charity would most certainly cease to exist, as its only certain income consists in a legacy left by a person of the name of Crone, for the benefit of the poor of the parish, amounting to 13*l.* English, which is generally handed over to this hospital.

The subscriptions are generally paid to the treasurer at the annual meeting, and are lodged in the provincial bank till wanted.

The expenditure is altogether ruled by the committee, through whose hands all bills must pass before given to the treasurer for payment.

The accounts are made up monthly, and every half year are submitted to the grand jury, and annually to the body of subscribers.

No medical instruction whatsoever is given at this institution.

Persons who attended the Examination.

Rev. Mr. ALWORTH.—Rev. Mr. BEECHINOR, P.P.—The Medical Attendant; and the Apothecary.

Newmarket
Fever Hospital and Dispensary.Population and
Extent of Country.

THE District of the Newmarket Dispensary extends from north to south about five miles, but has a medium length from east to west of nearly 15 miles. The population, which amounts to 9,000 souls, is entirely dependent for medical assistance on the one institution, although there are establishments of a similar character at Kanturk and at Freemount, places distant respectively four and six miles. It is, however, considered by the witnesses, that one surgeon would be fully able to attend properly to that number of persons, if they were not scattered over so great an extent of country, and they conceive that no dispensary district should have a greater diameter than about eight miles. The institution in question possesses intern accommodation for fifteen patients, but the beds are rarely, if ever, occupied, owing to the low state of the funds (no assistance to the fever hospital being granted by the grand jury): this deficiency has frequently been productive of very great inconvenience, and is the more to be regretted as the amount of accommodation is fully equal to the wants of the inhabitants, if sufficient resources could be obtained to bring it into activity. The witnesses observe that a small hospital, capable of accommodating a few fever patients and occasional accidents, should exist for the benefit of every two or three contiguous dispensary districts, more or less, according to their population and extent.

Building, Furniture
and Grounds.

The establishment consists of a brick-and-mortar house of two stories, situated on high ground and enjoying the advantages of a free circulation of air; it possesses also an abundant supply of pure water, and is furnished with excellent sewerage. A small garden is attached, of about half an acre. The apartments are in the best repair, and constructed so as to admit of perfect ventilation. There are four wards appropriated to the reception of patients, of whom about 20 could, if necessary, be accommodated. The furniture, the beds and bedding &c., were found to be in good condition. There is a convenient room for dispensing medicines, and also a waiting-room for patients, but there are not any baths. A portion of the lower story which is not appropriated to the purposes of the dispensary, is occupied by the nurse, who has the care of the premises. The premises are held at a ground rent of 2*l.* a year, from a person who is entirely unconnected with the institution. It were much to be desired that all buildings designed for medical charities were the property of the county.

Medical Officer.

The present medical attendant (a member of the Royal College of Surgeons in London, and of about 28 years of age) was appointed at a full meeting of the subscribers in the month of June 1832, to fill the vacancy which had arisen from the death of his predecessor. He discharges the duties of physician, surgeon and accoucheur, and resides at a distance of rather less than a mile from the institution. He had been in charge of the cholera hospital attached to the North Infirmary in the city of Cork, and had also acted as physician to the Castlemartyn and Donoughmore Dispensaries. At present, however, he does not hold any second appointment, but is permitted to act as a private practitioner. On Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays he is required to attend at the dispensary from 11 o'clock until all the patients who present themselves properly recommended, have been prescribed for. On these days he is assisted by the apothecary, who alone dispenses the medicines at all times, and is sometimes in the habit of acting as the substitute of the physician, when the latter has occasion to be absent from the scene of his duties. One or other of these gentlemen is always at hand to render assistance in cases of sudden emergency.

Other Medical Officer.

Payment.

The physician receives a salary of 80*l.* per annum; the apothecary receives 21*l.* Neither has any allowance for board and lodging or for the maintenance of a horse. The payment of of the medical officers is vested in the discretion of the subscribers. Although an annual grant towards the support of the charity is derived from the grand jury, that body has no power to interfere in its application. It may, if it be thought proper, withhold the presentment altogether or diminish it, but it cannot otherwise prevent the granting to medical men salaries much higher than the circumstances may properly call for. There are, it is said, instances where dispensaries have been set on foot for no other purpose than the giving an appointment to some medical man, and which have, though altogether superfluous, acquired a right to an allowance from the county equivalent to the amount of the subscriptions which, it was pretended, they had obtained. It is admitted that the control of the grand jury is quite inadequate to prevent an abuse of this kind.

The subscribers elect each of the medical officers, and when a vacancy occurs it is the practice to insert in the Cork newspapers an advertisement specifying the day on which it is proposed to proceed to a new election, and also the qualifications which each candidate will be required to produce, viz., testimonials of his having taken a degree in some university or college. There is, however, no limitation as to the age of the competitors, and the whole proceedings take place without any reference to, or interposition by, the members of the grand jury. This absence of any superior authority in the making of appointments, is an omission which should be remedied by giving a veto on all elections to some tribunal capable of exercising a professional judgment on the merits of all candidates. On the last election in this institution there were two candidates, and all persons who had paid up their annual subscription of one guinea or more were entitled to vote. The neighbourhood of Newmarket is very thinly inhabited by persons of wealth, and the salary of the attendant of the dispensary, is the principal inducement to a medical man to reside in the district, which contains no second regular practitioner. This charity does not grant retiring allowances to its officers. Regularity in the discharge of their respective duties by the physician and the apothecary is insured by the facility with which any person having cause to complain of neglect can obtain redress by stating his grievance to any of the subscribers. The poor, it is stated, are not slow to avail themselves of this mode of righting themselves. However, the clergy of both denominations concur in representing both the gentlemen in question to possess the confidence and general good will of the people.

The assistant commissioners observed much neatness in the arrangements of the pharmacy. They found it to contain an abundant supply of medicines, all of the best quality, including morphia and some other preparations, which are of a rather expensive and delicate nature. They were informed that tenders for furnishing medicines had been obtained from four druggists, but that the Messrs. Gosnell & Co., of Cork, had obtained the preference, as their estimate was the most moderate. Their account is annually paid by the treasurer by order of the committee. The medicines remain always under the care of the apothecary, who keeps them locked up, and is not permitted to sell any part, as they are quite distinct from those which are made use of in his private practice. The dispensary does not possess any surgical instruments, and leeches are never resorted to in its practice; they are considered to be much too expensive, and could not be procured. Much attention is paid to the regular performance of vaccination. The medical attendant entertains a high opinion of its efficacy as preventive of variola, and is accustomed to procure a fresh supply of lymph, (when necessary) through the means of a professional gentleman in Cork. Unfortunately the ideas of the poorer classes do not take the same direction, and they are far more disposed to put their trust in the effects of inoculation with variolous matter than in vaccination; smallpox is, in consequence, not unfrequent in the district.

A register of the extent to which the institution furnishes relief is kept either by the medical attendant or by the apothecary. It contains a statement of the name of the subscriber who recommends each patient, together with the name and age of the latter, and also of the nature of his disease, and of the treatment adopted for his cure. It does not however contain any mention of the number of occasions on which relief has been refused to persons applying for it. At the period of the present inquiry the physician was in attendance on six poor persons at their own homes; and the average number of individuals who came to the dispensary on public days was stated at about sixty. No capital operation had taken place for some years, but nearly fifty lying-in women were, it was said, attended each year. The grand jury do not receive a copy of the register.

Each subscriber is entitled to issue an unlimited number of recommendations, which only require his own signature to give them validity. Every person who seeks the aid of the institution must have provided himself with one of these orders, this condition being dispensed with only when the applicant is in evident distress. There is, however, but little difficulty in complying with the rule on this head, and strangers obtain the necessary ticket without any demur. None of the poorer subscribers receive relief from the institution, but the servants of subscribers are at all times entitled to call for the services of the medical attendant; and there is a considerable class of individuals who derive from the charity, without any return, a large proportion of those benefits which should be reserved for those whose circumstances really place them in need of gratuitous assistance. Wealthy and respectable farmers, for instance, apply with tickets in their hands for advice and medicine; and should the medical attendant think proper to refuse them, they threaten him with the displeasure of their landlord, who, it is feared, might in consequence withhold his usual yearly contribution.

Relief is given at the dispensary to those who are able to come there for it, and those whose illness renders them unable to do so are visited as often as their case requires it, both by day and night, at their own dwellings. It frequently happens that the physician is required to go on a call of this nature to a distance of 14 miles. That gentleman states that

FEVER
HOSPITALS.

Munster,
County Cork.

Examinations taken by
Cusack Roney, esq.
W. P. Borrett, esq., M.D.

Newmarket
Fever Hospital and
Dispensary.

Election. Funds and Accounts.
Receipts.
Collection and
Custody.
Expenditure.
Accounts.
Instruction.

Newmarket
Fever Hospital and
Dispensary.

Population and Extent of County.

Building, Furniture
and Grounds.
Patients Registration.

Who entitled to
Relief.

Medical Officer.

Other Medical Officer.

Extern Patients.

Payment.

FEVER
HOSPITALS.
Munster.
County Cork.

Examinations taken by
Cusack Roney, esq.
W.P. Borrett, esq., M.D.

Newmarket
Fever Hospital and
Dispensary.

Intern Patients.

Diet.
Clothing.
General Management.

Managing
Committee.

Officers not
medical.

Attendants.

Stores.

Rules.
Reports.

Funds and
Accounts.

Collection.
Custody.
Expenditure.

he considers daily attendance as absolutely indispensable in cases of acute disorder. He adds that occasional visits can not possibly be of any service, except when the affection is of a chronic character. The charity possesses all the bandages and splints necessary for the treatment of fractures and other accidents. The only prescriptions compounded with the medicines belonging to it, are those of the attending physician. In cases of difficulty and danger, the physician is bound to render his professional aid to lying-in women of the poorer classes. The midwives in whose hands this branch of practice is for the most part left, are, with two exceptions, possessed of very little skill or judgment, and are often the cause of much mischief.

The establishment does not supply any articles of nourishment to the sick poor, nor is there any other charity in the neighbourhood that does.

Patients seeking admission into the hospital department are obliged to obtain a recommendation to that effect; this, however, is easily done; once admitted they are not allowed to leave the institution during their illness, nor are their friends permitted to visit them except when symptoms of danger have manifested themselves. During their stay they never perform any kind of labour, and there is a code of regulations for the preservation of general order. When cholera prevailed some cases of it were admitted; but there is no ward for lunatics, of whom, it is observed, that the number occurring in this district is exceedingly small. There are no chaplains of any sect attached to the establishment, but the two clergymen, who were present at the examination, concurred in asserting that the clergy of all persuasions had on all occasions experienced the utmost facility in procuring access to those patients who expressed a desire for their ministration, and that they were considered to have a right to visit persons of their own persuasion. No instance of improper interference, or of the circulation of offensive tracts has ever occurred.

The diet of the patients is regulated in conformity with the orders of the medical attendant. Articles of clothing are not provided.

Once in a year a meeting of the subscribers takes place, at which there are usually about eight or ten members present; at the same time all governors are equally privileged to attend, and voting by proxy is permitted to those who remain absent. There are in all about twenty subscribers, and neither the surgeon nor the apothecary is to be found among them.

A managing committee exists, composed of eight gentlemen appointed at the annual meeting. This body meets regularly every quarter, and at whatever other periods they may be specially summoned; minutes are kept of their proceedings as well as of those of the general meeting. There is a board of superintendence, deriving its authority from the grand jury, and one of its members had inspected the establishment in the June previous to the holding of the present examination. There are no visiting governors, but one of them visits from time to time unofficially.

The treasurer and the secretary, the only non-medical officers are appointed by the subscribers. They both discharge the duties of their respective parts without salary, and the latter is not required to give any security. They are chosen by vivá voce voting; and, it is stated, that mode has been hitherto found advantageous, as religious prejudices have not interfered in the appointments. It is, however, considered that benefit would result from the vesting in some superior controlling power a veto to prevent all improper appointments. Hitherto there has never been occasion to cancel the election of any officer.

A nurse-tender resides in the house; she was chosen by the subscribers, receives her wages from the treasurer, and may be dismissed at the discretion of the committee.

None of the articles which are required for the purposes of the institution are procured from any person in connection with it; they are all, with the exception of medicines, purchased, as wanted, and without contract, from the shopkeepers of the village, and are never lent to any individual.

There are not any printed rules.

Reports relative to the number of admissions and discharges of the persons cured and relieved, and of the rate of mortality in the institution, are annually laid before the subscribers and presented to the grand jury. It is observed by the witnesses that the sanitary condition of the poor of the district ought to be the special care of a permanent board of health, consisting of a selection from the several classes of society, from the gentry, the clergy and from the upper order of farmers. There are, it is said, a great number of well qualified individuals who would willingly lend every assistance in their power to the conducting any system having for its object the relief of the necessities of the poor.

The income of this charity is composed of annual subscriptions, and a presentment allowed every year by the county. It possesses no fixed property of any kind, and the amount of its gross receipts is presented in the following table, extending to the three last years:

	£.	s.	d.
1831 - - - - -	141	3	6
1832 - - - - -	134	12	10 ½
1833 - - - - -	136	16	-

The subscribers belong, without exception, to the upper classes, and constitute the main support of the dispensary. If their usual contributions were withheld the existence of the charity would be terminated.

The funds are collected by the treasurer, and he is the only officer in whose hands money is allowed to remain.

The annual expenditure is fully equal to the income, and consists chiefly of the salaries of of the medical officers, medicine, rent and maintenance of intern patients. All bills are paid by the treasurer.

A statement of the income and expenditure is annually prepared for the grand jury, but has never hitherto been submitted to the subscribers.

Persons who attended the Examination.

W. ADAMS, esq.—HENRY BROWN, esq.—JOHN EUSTACE, esq.—WALTER GILES, esq.—THOMAS HARVEY, esq.—MATTHEW HAYMAN, esq.—THOMAS JOHN, esq. jun.—W. C. POOLE, esq.—RICHARD STANISTREET, esq.—Rev. Mr. VESLING, roman catholic curate.—P. WALSH, esq.—The Medical Attendant.

THE district attached to the Youghal Fever Hospital and Dispensary is about two miles in diameter, and contains a population of about 12,000 souls. There are also dispensaries at Killeagh and at Clashmore, within a few miles of the town, and these institutions are described by the witnesses as being amply sufficient for the wants of the poorer classes, except that they are somewhat impeded by the want of funds, which at present are very inadequate to their due support. However there has not been occasion to refuse any applications for relief, under any circumstances, as arrangements have been made for the reception and treatment of persons labouring under accidents and surgical disorders.

The dispensary and the surgical infirmary are carried on in the same building, and the fever hospital has been established at a short distance from them. The situation of the charities is exceedingly good, being on high ground, and standing on an open space beyond the precincts of the town, and yet at no inconvenient distance from it. The buildings, together with the small portion of land which they occupy, are the property of the charity itself, having been conveyed to it by a grant of the corporation of Youghal. The fever hospital was erected by means of voluntary subscriptions. All the premises are in a state of good repair, and the wards are clean, lofty and well ventilated. The fever hospital is two stories high. It contains five wards and 24 beds; but it could without difficulty be made to accommodate from 30 to 40 patients. The infirmary wards are three in number, and contain about a dozen beds; they are situated over the dispensary department; and three other apartments are given up to the use of the resident apothecary. A slipper-bath has been provided for the use of the patients. The out-offices consist of a wash-house, a coal-house, &c.

There are three medical officers; the first and second are Doctors of Medicine in the University of Edinburgh and members of the Royal College of Surgeons in London; the third is a licentiate apothecary of Dublin, and a full apothecary of London. The senior physician is also in possession of a diploma from the Lying-in Hospital, and both are engaged in private practice, having been practitioners in the town of Youghal at the time of their respective appointments, namely, in 1817 and in 1833. They are bound to give daily attendance at the hospital, but by a mutual agreement it has been arranged that they undertake the charge of the establishment during alternate months, each, however, continuing to have the care of such cases as have been admitted under him. In the event of the necessary absence of either physician, his duty is done by his colleague or by the resident apothecary. Any neglect on the part of the medical officers, any irregularity in their attendance, or harsh or improper conduct towards the patients comes immediately under the notice of the committee; but it is right to add, that great pains seem to be taken to give universal satisfaction, and to make the institution of the most extended utility to the public. The apothecary generally retains two assistants, and one of them at least is always on the spot to render assistance in case of emergency. They are also employed in dispensing the medicines.

Neither of the physicians receives any salary. The apothecary is paid 80*l.* per annum, and is provided with coals and candles, in addition to being allowed apartments in the house.

In the election of medical officers and of apothecary, the subscribers have delegated their authority to the members of the committee; and, on reference to the books, it appears that the practice has been for the committee to make the appointment in the first instance, and that the subscribers have reserved to themselves the power of a veto subsequently. With respect to the facilities afforded to professional men who may be anxious to fill the situations in question, it is stated, that on the occurrence of vacancies it has been customary to insert advertisements inviting competition only for the situation of apothecary. Any gentleman wishing to act as surgeon or physician has had to apply personally or by letter to the committee, who have always required that the candidates should be qualified as doctors of medicine, and as members of the College of Surgeons. No limitation has ever been made as to the age of the candidates, nor has the grand jury ever been referred to in the selection. At the last vacancy the gentleman who is now junior physician to the charity came forward to offer his gratuitous services to the charity, and his offer was accepted by the committee. The very considerable number of persons of independent means who reside in the town and vicinity of Youghal has been sufficient to maintain four or five practitioners. Hitherto there has not been any mortality among the medical men.

The arrangements in the apothecary's shop are very creditable to that officer. The drawers, bottles, &c., displayed much order and neatness, and there was a very adequate supply of medicine (including quinine) of the best quality. The medicines are usually procured from Messrs. Leslie and Co., druggists in Dublin; the lesser matters from the Messrs. Harrington and

FEVER
HOSPITALS.

Munster.
County Cork.

Examinations taken by
Cusack Roney, esq.
W.P. Borrett, esq., M.D.

Youghal
Fever Hospital and
Dispensary.

Population and
Extent of Country.

Building, Furniture
and Grounds.

Medical Officers.

Payment.

Election.

Pharmacy.

FEVER
HOSPITALS.Munster.
County Cork.Examinations taken by
Cusack Roney, esq.
W.P. Borrett, esq., M.D.Youghal
Fever Hospital and Dispensary.Patients' Registration.Who entitled to
Relief.

Extern Patients.

Nourishment.

Intern Patients.

and Co., druggists in Cork. The entire expenditure under the head of medicine averages about 50*l.* per annum, the various articles being procured by the treasurer, according to the orders of the committee. Every thing is placed under the care of the apothecary, or, in his absence, of his assistants, and nothing is allowed to be sold. The establishment possesses a tolerable stock of surgical instruments; a case of amputating instruments has been recently purchased, and there are also sets of trepanning instruments, a trephine, &c. Leeches are rarely, if ever, made use of, on account of the expense. The apothecary is in the habit of vaccinating gratuitously, and large numbers of persons avail themselves of the opportunity. The public are described as becoming more disposed to place confidence in the utility of the practice; but the medical officers, especially the senior physician, state, that of late their opinion as to its preservative qualities has been much weakened, and they are inclined to believe that the efficacy of the operation as a preventive is worn out before 13 years have elapsed. "At the same time," it is added, "small pox has ceased to be frequent throughout the district." It is forbidden by the rules of the charity to inoculate with variolous matter.

The registration of patients is conducted by the apothecary, who is obliged to enter the name of each patient admitted, together with the date of his admission, his place of abode, the nature of the disease under which he labours, the mode of its termination, the date of his discharge, and the name of the recommending subscriber. Whenever also it happens that there is reason to refuse any application for relief it is the duty of the apothecary to explain the circumstance to the individual recommending. At the time that the Assistant Commissioners visited the establishment the number of the patients in the fever hospital was three, in the infirmary (or surgical department), two. It was stated that about 21 persons were under treatment at their own homes, and that nearly 70 applications for external relief in advice and medicine were made daily at the dispensary. Within the last three years there had been two cases of amputation, one case in which the trephine had been used, and one operation for strangulated hernia.

No relief is granted unless the applicant have taken the precaution to provide himself with a letter of recommendation from a subscriber. This condition is not found by any means to secure the institution against imposition. Many persons contrive to participate in its benefits, whose circumstances would well enable them to procure medical assistance without having recourse to the means of a charitable establishment. The medical attendants use their best endeavours to prevent frauds of this kind, and are accustomed to bring every such case which occurs under the notice of the committee; but, owing to the facility with which recommendations can be obtained, their efforts have hitherto remained unsuccessful. Every person who contributes half-a-guinea annually to the funds of the institution is entitled to have one patient at all times on the extern list. Every subscriber of a guinea is entitled to have two, and so on in proportion. The domestic servants of subscribers receive advice and medicine in common with other persons supposed to belong to the poorer classes.

The boundaries of the parish of Youghal, are the limits within which extern relief is granted. The physicians receive the poor, and prescribe for them at stated periods in the dispensary, and the apothecary visits, at their own houses, those persons who may be confined by sickness. If their case be one requiring additional advice, the medical attendants are also bound to visit them; and the attendance when required, is repeated in the morning before noon, and in the evening. Daily attendance, at least, is considered absolutely indispensable in all cases of an acute nature. The treatment of fractures, and of accidents in general, forms also a part of the duties of the medical officers, who are empowered to supply the sufferers with splints and bandages. The institution does not profess to extend its aid to lying-in women, who are consequently thrown into the hands of common midwives, a class which is described as being possessed of no skill or qualifications for their employment. As the charity undertakes to supply the poor with all the medicines which their diseases may require, it very consistently refuses to compound the prescriptions of any practitioners, except its own medical officers.

The sick are freely supplied with wine and other extra articles of nourishment, when such are ordered by the physicians, but there is no second charity in the district to aid the institution in this matter, or on which the physician could give an order for such necessities.

The privilege of recommending patients for admission into the hospital is reserved for those who subscribe at least one guinea annually to its funds. However, this restriction does not, it is said, produce much difficulty in obtaining admittance. The friends of intern patients are not permitted to visit, except by express leave; and the patients themselves are never allowed to go beyond the bounds of the establishment, so long as they remain under treatment; neither are they called upon, even when in a state of convalescence, to join in the performance of any labour. Lunatics are not admissible into the hospital. When such patients present themselves, they are referred to the county lunatic asylum. During the prevalence of cholera in the town and neighbourhood of Youghal the entire of the fever hospital and of the infirmary was appropriated to the reception of those who were attacked by the epidemic: even still a small ward continues to be set apart for the treatment of such cases as occasionally occur. There are not any chaplains attached to the institution, but the clergy of all religious denominations are considered to possess a right of free entrance into the wards, for the purpose of visiting those inmates who belong to their respective communions, and who have expressed a wish to avail themselves of their spiritual services. At the same time, it is stated, that no instance of improper interference with the patients during during their illness has ever occurred; and that the circulation of controversial and other offensive tracts has never been permitted.

Three classes of diet are adopted in the hospital, for the different conditions of the patients; namely, full, half, and low diet. Whatever extra comforts the attending physician may think proper to order, are also provided.

The general direction of the affairs of the establishment is entrusted by the subscribers to a managing committee, consisting of twelve members, who are elected annually at a general meeting. The treasurer, the secretary, and the medical officers belong also to the committee. A public notice is usually issued on the approach of the period of the general meeting referred to, and the greater part of the subscribers are in the habit of attending it.

The meetings of the committee take place every month, and a fine is imposed on any of its members, who may be absent without satisfactory cause. One of them, in addition, visits the institution every week, and enters a note of his observations. The charity is further subject to the inspection of a board of superintendence appointed by the grand jury. Their last official visit took place about four months previous to that of the Assistant Commissioners.

The services of all the non-medical officers are obtained without any remuneration. They consist of a treasurer, a secretary, and two auditors. The treasurer has not been required to enter into any security, but his appointment, as well as that of the other officers is liable to be cancelled every year, at the annual election. At this election the voting is open, and it is said to be quite uninfluenced by religious bias.

At the date of this examination, owing to the small number of patients in the house, there was but one attendant engaged, namely, a nurse-tender; she resided in the hospital, and was paid at the rate of 10*l.* per annum, being also provided with board; she had been appointed by the committee, who also retained the power of discharging her, should her conduct cease to give satisfaction.

Every thing required for the consumption of the charity is procured by public contract, such as meat, bread, milk, coals, &c. The contract is opened every year, and the lowest tender is accepted.

The Assistant Commissioners examined the rules and regulations for the general conduct of those connected with the charity, and for the management of its affairs. They seemed to have been drawn up with judgment and prudence, and their tenor seemed well calculated to lead to practical advantage.

Reports relating to the number of persons relieved, and the expenses incurred, are annually prepared; and, after being printed, copies are circulated among the subscribers, and are also laid before the grand jury. There are but few obstacles to becoming acquainted with the real condition of the poor in the district of Youghal. There are a large number of intelligent persons, who are described as being willing to co-operate in any investigation likely to be productive of benefit to the indigent classes.

The principal sources of income to the charity are annual subscriptions and grand jury presentments. The private contributors belong exclusively to the richer classes, and considerable donations are also occasionally received from charitable individuals. The remainder of the income is made up of several miscellaneous sums, such as fines imposed on members of the committee for non-attendance at the monthly meetings; fees on the admission to the hospital of persons not in indigent circumstances; and fines levied by the magistrates. The gross income for the year ending 30th June, 1833, amounted to 293*l.* 10*s.* 6*d.* For the year 1834 the accounts are made up separately for the fever hospital, and for the dispensary, including the surgical infirmary. The receipts appropriated to the latter branch were 166*l.* 15*s.* 8*d.*; to the former, 163*l.* 7*s.* 2*d.*

The receipts are lodged by the treasurer in the savings bank, and the interest is brought to the credit of the institution.

In the year 1834 the expenditure on the dispensary and infirmary (combined) was 166*l.* 15*s.* 8*d.*, of which 12*l.* 12*s.* was for the purchase of a case of amputating instruments. In the same year was expended on the fever hospital the sum of 108*l.* 4*s.* 2½*d.*, leaving in the treasurer's hands a balance of 55*l.* 2*s.* 4½*d.* No bills are discharged until after they have been submitted to the committee, subsequently to their having been examined by the auditors. The treasurer is then authorized to pay the amount.

The accounts are made up yearly.

Persons who attended the Examination.

WILLIAM CRAWFORD, esq.—Rev. Mr. COLGUE, catholic curate.—JAMES DALY, esq.—Mr. JAMES DENNY.—Rev. Mr. ENGLAND, P.P., of Passage.—Rev. Mr. EGAN.—Mr. THOMAS HARVEY.—Rev. Mr. M'CLEOD, catholic curate.—JOHN LINDSEY, esq.—Rev. Mr. O'SHEE, P.P.—The three Physicians attached to the hospital.—The Resident Apothecary.

THE present institution is the only one for the express treatment of fever within the limits of the county of the city of Cork, containing a population of nearly 150,000 souls. Several parts of the district extend to a distance of at least ten miles, and are therefore too far removed to participate equally in the advantages of this, as well as of the other numerous

FEVER
HOSPITALS.

Munster.
County Cork.

Examinations taken by
Cusack Roney, esq.
W.P. Borrett, esq., M.D.

Youghal
Fever Hospital and Dispensary.

Managing
Committee.

Officers not
medical.

Attendants.

Stores.

Rules.

Reports.

Funds and Accounts.
Receipts.

Custody.

Expenditure.

Accounts.

City of Cork
Fever Hospital.

Population and
Extent of Country.

FEVER

HOSPITALS.

Munster.

County Cork.

Examinations taken by

Cusack Roney, esq.

W.P.Borrett, esq., M.D.

City of Cork

Fever Hospital.

Building, Furniture

and Grounds.

Medical Officers.

Payment.

Election.

Pharmacy.

Patients' Regis-

tration.

medical establishments, which exist in Cork. However, it is stated that no applications for admission have been refused at the fever hospital during the last three years, but it is suggested that the present too extensive dispensary districts throughout the country should be formed into divisions more commensurate with the amount of duty required, and that small hospitals for the reception not only of fever, but of accidents and surgical diseases should be placed within the reach of all.

The house is a well built structure of stone and brick, three stories in height. It stands within an enclosure, on an elevated position, with its principal aspect directed to the south-west. It is completely sheltered from the east, whilst at the same time there is a free circulation of air around it. There is an excellent supply of pure water, and good sewers have been constructed underneath the premises. The interior of the building, besides the apothecary's shop and some apartments appropriated to the officers and attendants, contains 11 wards, in which there are accommodations for about 200 patients. These wards are lofty and well ventilated, and the furniture of them, the beds and bedding, are in a good state of repair. The greater part of the ground on which the building stands is the property of the charity, and is held by a lease for ever. One small portion is held under a distinct tenure by a terminable lease, but of which a considerable period remains still unexpired.

The physicians of the institution are three, two attending and an extra physician: none of them reside in the house. The elder physician, whose age at present is 55, was appointed in the year 1812. The junior, aged 48, was appointed in 1817. They are all engaged in private practice, but none of them are attached to any other charitable establishment, one of the rules of the fever hospital declaring that its medical officers shall not be capable of holding additional appointments. They are bound to attend at the hospital daily, and whenever either of them is unable to comply with this regulation, from sickness or other unavoidable cause, his place is supplied by the physician extraordinary, who is also in possession of the diploma of a surgeon. The senior physician is a graduate of the University of Edinburgh, the junior is a bachelor of medicine of Trinity College Dublin. The apothecary resides in the hospital, and immediate assistance is thereby insured in cases of emergency; he also dispenses the medicines prescribed by the attending physician, and they are administered to the patients by the nurses.

The following annual salaries are paid to the under-mentioned officers out of the funds of the charity:—

	£.	s.	d.
Senior physician	-	-	-
Junior ditto	-	-	-
Apothecary	-	-	-

These salaries are arranged by the governors of the institution, independently of the control of the grand jury, whose authority in its affairs goes no further than the power of withholding their usual presentment in case they should disapprove of the manner in which it is likely to be expended.

All candidates for the medical situations are required to be fully qualified in their respective branches. The physicians must produce degrees from some recognised university, and the apothecary must be a master of the Apothecaries' Hall. Whenever a vacancy occurs in any of the situations, the privilege of electing a successor is exercised by all the subscribers who have paid up their subscription, without any reference being made to the grand jury. Advertisements are usually inserted in the newspapers for the purpose of inducing candidates to come forward, and on the last occasion of the kind a very extended competition took place, not less than eight individuals having presented themselves to the electors, who, directed by the committee, appear to have exercised their powers with much judgment. Notwithstanding the large number of well educated practitioners who reside in Cork, it is stated that no respectable medical man could be found willing to undertake the care of this hospital gratuitously. No superannuation allowances are made on the retirement of officers. Of the physicians who have been attached to the charity two have died in consequence, it is supposed, of infection received in the discharge of their duties. The committee reserve to themselves a perfect control over the conduct of the medical officers, and any poor person who has reason to complain of want of attention or of harshness on their part, is authorized to bring his case before that body. This has been done on one occasion, when the complaint was very accurately investigated.

The establishment of the apothecary was found by the Assistant Commissioners to be well arranged in all its departments. The physicians bore testimony to the excellent quality of the medicine, and there appeared to be an abundant supply of all kinds, including quinine, and some other of the more delicate preparations. The several articles are supplied by two druggists' houses in Cork, alternately, namely, the Messrs. Gosnell & Co., and the Messrs. Harrington. The annual expense has been latterly about 40*l.*, the bills being discharged monthly by the committee after having been signed by the apothecary. Nothing is allowed to be sold from the shop, and the apothecary is not in private practice. The charity does not possess any surgical instruments, but it is stated that leeches are very generally adopted in the practice of the hospital, whenever they are deemed likely to prove useful.

No persons are admitted as intern patients, except those who labour under fever, and an accurate register is kept by the apothecary of all the circumstances relating to such cases, of the date of their admission, and of their discharge. A statement of the entire number of patients treated is periodically submitted to the grand jury as a necessary preliminary to receiving the annual grant, and it would appear that there never has been, recently, occasion to refuse any application for relief. At the time that the Assistant Commissioners visited the institution it contained 40 patients. It was mentioned by one of the physicians that during the last three years there had occurred eight or nine midwifery cases among the females who had been admitted on account of fever. They had been attended by one of the nurses of the hospital without the occurrence of any accident attributable to her want of skill. In most instances the labour was premature, and several of the children died.

sion

No condition is required in those seeking admission into the hospital, except that they be at the time suffering under some form of fever. Every such case is at once admitted, and it is thought that the extreme facility thus afforded has allowed the benefits of the charity to be shared, in some instances, by persons who could have well afforded to procure adequate assistance at their own homes.

The utmost order and propriety are enforced throughout the wards, in conformity with certain regulations which have been framed for the purpose, and none of the patients are permitted to pass beyond the bounds of the institution until the period of their final discharge. In the mean time they are never required to join in any manual labour, and much precaution is used in admitting their friends to visit them, this indulgence being only granted when the inmate has been pronounced by the attending physician to be in a state of immediate danger. The patients are examined every day by the medical attendant, who is also frequently summoned to the hospital during the night. No regular chaplains are attached to the charity; but the clergymen of the different sects are considered to possess a right of entering the wards at all times. The patients are thus enabled to avail themselves of the services of their respective pastors whenever they think proper, and to participate in the administration of their different religious rites. It is further stated by the witnesses, that religious and controversial tracts have always been excluded from circulation among the sick.

There is a fixed schedule of diet for the different classes of patients, varying according to the stages of their disorders. Extra allowances are freely given to such as stand in need of them.

Two hundred subscribers and governors, all enjoying equal privileges, constitute the supreme authority over the affairs of the establishment. A general meeting takes place once in every year, which is usually attended by about twenty governors, and at which no proxies are received, except those of the female subscribers. None of the salaried officers are allowed to participate in the proceedings of these assemblies, of which minutes are carefully preserved.

All the internal details relating to the carrying on of the hospital and the control of the officers and servants are in the hands of the managing committee. This body, which is appointed at the annual general meeting, is accustomed to assemble for the dispatch of business once in each month.

The collector, the only non-medical officer, is appointed by the subscribers at large, by open voting, and, it is stated, without reference to religious distinctions. The bank acts as treasurer, and the committee fill the part of auditors of accounts. The collector is remunerated by an allowance of 5 per cent. on the amount which he receives. On occasion of one election there was a very considerable accession to the number of subscribers immediately previous to the day of voting.

The following list was given of the attendants and their wages:

Purveyor	-	-	-	40 l. per annum.
Matron	-	-	-	56 l. 17 s. 6 d. per annum.
1 washerwoman	-	-	-	} 5 s. per week, and 10 s. 6 d. per month, each.
6 nurses	-	-	-
2 female servants	-	-	-
2 chairmen at	-	-	-	8 s. per week, each.
1 porter, at	-	-	-	8 s. 6 d. —
1 whitewasher, at	-	-	-	6 s. —

With the exception of the two chairmen, all these persons reside in the establishment, but none of them are provided with diet. They are selected by the committee; but the physicians and the apothecary can remove them whenever their conduct merits it. They receive their pay from the treasurer. The mortality among the attendants has been limited—four porters and one nurse in the course of the last twelve years.

Every thing required for the internal consumption of the hospital is procured by open contract, and nothing is ever lent to or used by any of the officers.

The rules (which have been printed) appear to have been well and judiciously drawn up. They are eminently calculated to insure the well-being and prosperity of the institution.

A full report of the affairs of the charity is annually prepared and committed to press. A copy is then sent to each of the subscribers, and the document is placed in general circulation. From some calculations in the last report, it would appear that the average expense of each patient treated has been only 11*s.* 1*d.*, while the average in several other establishments throughout Ireland has varied from 1*l.* 1*d.* to 2*l.* 7*s.* 5½*d.*

The institution does not possess any property in money or otherwise. Its principal sources of income are the annual presentment from the grand jury and the contributions of annual subscribers. It also receives a considerable number of bequests from time to time. The proportions of these various heads of income will be seen in the following extract from the printed report for the year 1832:

0.5. s s 2 RECEIPTS

FEVER
HOSPITALS.

Munster.
County Cork.

Examinations taken by
Cusack Roney, esq.
W.P. Borrett, esq., M.D.

City of Cork
Fever Hospital.

Intern Patients.

Diet.

General Management.

Managing
Committee.

Officers not
medical.

Attendants.

Stores.

Rules.

Reports.

Funds and Accounts.
Receipts.

FEVER HOSPITALS. Munster. County Cork. Examinations taken by Cusack Roney, esq. W.P. Borrett, esq., M.D. City of Cork Fever Hospital. Building, Furniture and Grounds. Collection. Custody. Expenditure.	RECEIPTS for 1832.		£.	s.	d.
	Balance since last year		155	10	—
	Bequest of T. Rochfort, Esq.		500	—	—
	Ditto from Miss Sarsfield, by Rev. Dr. Quarry		30	—	—
	Ditto from Mr. James Courteney		10	—	—
	Presentment granted Summer assizes 1831		300	—	—
	Half of ditto — Spring		200	—	—
	Admission of a patient		1	—	—
	Found in a patient's pocket		—	16	8
	Subscriptions		331	3	00
Interest from bank		—	0	18	3
		£.	1,528	8	9
The amount of the individual subscriptions was very nearly equal. The much larger number of contributors gave one guinea each.
The funds are collected by the collector, and immediately deposited in the savings bank, where they remain until wanted. A sum of 40s. merely, is left in the hands of the purveyor, to meet any casual and unforeseen expenses.
The total expenditure in the year 1831 was		£.	1,078	—	6
Ditto ditto 1832		—	1,452	4	7
Ditto ditto 1833		—	1,228	14	10
The several items of expenditure are best shown in the creditor side of the account for 1832.
EXPENDITURE for 1832.
Provisions for 2,183 patients, including meat, bread, milk, tea, sugar		£.	352	15	3
Subsistence to nurses and servants		—	175	19	4
Wages to nurses and porters		—	165	10	5
Wine, spirits and porter		—	86	19	—
Medicine		—	39	13	9
Coals, carriage, &c.		—	55	12	7
Soap, candles and lamp oil		—	39	9	3
Clothing, blankets, sheets, shirts		—	62	—	4
Furniture		—	28	11	3
Straw for beds		—	16	2	9
Coffins and interment		—	7	3	0
Rent		—	13	16	5
Stationery		—	9	19	2
Insurance		—	—	11	3
Salaries		—	341	18	7
Repairs and alterations		—	39	14	1
Lodged in savings bank to meet rent		—	59	—	9
Collecting subscriptions		—	16	10	—
Legal expenses in T. Rochfort's bequest		—	3	13	7
Balance in bank		£.	1,515	1	9
		—	13	17	9
		£.	1,528	18	9
All payments are made by the purveyor, but not until the bills have been previously examined by the committee, and their order made.
The accounts of income and expenditure are balanced at the end of every month, but as before stated, they are not prepared for circulation amongst the subscribers until the termination of the year.

Persons who attended the Examination.

M. J. BARRY, esq.—THOMAS BEALE, esq.—PETER BESNARD, esq.—JOHN D. CROKER, esq.—Rev. Mr. EGAN, protestant curate.—H. HARDY, esq.—J. LYONS, esq., M. D.—THOMAS LYONS, esq.—Rev. R. O'CALLAGAN, protestant curate.—Very Rev. Archdeacon O'KEEFE, P.P.—ROBERT PEARCEY.—JOHN SWETE, esq.—The Medical Attendant of the Institution.—The Surgeon and Apothecary of the Institution.—The Matron of the Hospital.

Population and
Extent of Country.

THIS charity embraces within its circle the entire county and city of Cork, which, taken together, possess a population of upwards of 900,000, some of whom live at a distance of 80 miles. This great tract of country possesses no other institution of a similar kind, and it certainly appears to be in want of such establishments. No persons, however, have been refused admittance and relief here.

The building consists of stone, brick, and mortar, and occupies about an acre and a half of ground. There are 72 beds appropriated to medical cases, disposed in six wards, and 53 surgical beds in four wards; there are, besides, a midwifery ward and a lock ward. It could be made to accommodate about 125 patients. There are but five small rooms appropriated to the attendants. This charity has gradually become the largest surgical and medical hospital in Cork. It was at first solely intended for those persons who might become sick whilst in the House of Industry, but the want of sufficient means of relief in other places induced the poor, especially prostitutes, and those who had been discharged as incurable from the dispensaries, to adopt the expedient of gaining admission to the House of Industry as paupers, into whose hospital they were of course passed when found to be diseased. In order to separate the daily increasing number of sick from the healthy, the hospital was erected, about seven years ago. Since that time the undefined nature of the claims upon it has been productive of many inconveniences, which are detailed in the annexed statement of the members of the board. The ground on which it stands, laid out for the greater part in two gardens, is held on lease from a person totally unconnected with the institution. The House of Industry is held for lives renewable for ever, a mode of tenure not likely to induce any inconvenience. The supply of water at present is not sufficient, but steps have been taken by the board to insure a better. All the necessary out-buildings are to be found, and also hot and cold baths. The sewers, however, are in very bad order.

The first in point of rank is an Edinburgh physician, and a licentiate of the Royal College of Surgeons in Ireland; aged 34. He was appointed to this situation by the board in 1826. Previous to that time he was in the practice of his profession in Cork, and is still permitted to enlarge his private connection. He does not reside on the spot, but at a distance of about a quarter of a mile, so that immediate attention would be paid to any call upon him. If his affairs should require it the board would give him leave of absence, and permit him to find a substitute to fill his place. The second medical officer is possessed of a diploma from the College of Surgeons in London, and is, further, a master apothecary. The hours of attendance are daily from eight until eleven, but if assistance should be required at any other hour a messenger, who is always at hand, is immediately dispatched for it. Medicines are dispensed by the apothecary and his assistants, and the nurses have the charge of administering them to the patients. Should any irregularity occur in the attendance of the physician or surgeon the board would be able effectually to control them.

The chief medical officer receives 75*l.* per annum, and the second 31*l.* 10*s.* Neither of these gentlemen receive any further allowance for horses or lodging; and the grand jury could easily prevent, by refusing the presentment, any attempt to raise their salaries higher than the amount of a fair remuneration.

The election of medical officers is in the hands of the governors, who, by advertisement in the newspapers give due notice of any vacancy that may occur. The qualifications required from candidates, who on the last occasion for the situation of physician amounted to four, are, for physicians, a degree from some university; for surgeons, a license from some recognised college; and for apothecaries, a mastership in Apothecaries' Hall. No limitation is made with respect to age, nor is it usual to inform the grand jury on any part of the proceedings. Voting is restricted to those who are governors ex officio, or who have become so by the payment of 3*l.* per annum. There has not been any mortality among the medical attendants of this charity. The poor of Cork are very well acquainted with the claims which they have upon the attentions of the physician, and are quite aware that any well grounded complaint of his harshness or neglect would meet with prompt redress from the governors, who form a tribunal which has been more than once appealed to on such occasions.

The room in which the medicines are kept displays great neatness in every particular. All the usual preparations were blameless in quantity and quality, and a false economy never prevents the acquisition of the more costly whenever required. They are all procured from Mr. Harrington, the druggist, and it is contrary to rule that a governor or other officer should supply the establishment with any article. They are paid for by the treasurer, on an order of the board, signed by five governors, and remain always in the custody of the apothecary's apprentices, who are not permitted to sell them to any person under any circumstances. The hospital does not possess any surgical instruments, but leeches are used as often as required. Vaccine matter is not given here, nor are there any regulations concerning the inoculation with small pox, a practice, however, not followed by the medical gentleman attached.

A very accurate register is kept by the medical attendant, which particularises every thing that could be wished. At the time of the visit of the Assistant Commissioners there were about 140 patients in the hospital, exceeding by 15 the number which may be considered usual. During the last three years there had been but one capital operation. Within that time upwards of 100 midwifery cases had received every requisite attention.

It is not thought that any improper persons participate in the benefits of this charity, which are limited to the inmates of the House of Industry, into which admission is procured without much difficulty. Patients are never permitted, on any pretence, to leave the precincts of the institution, and their orderly conduct is otherwise secured by a code of regulations on the subject. Their friends, however, are admitted to see them on presentation of an order signed by the physician or surgeon. They never perform any kind of work whilst here. Cholera prevailed here to a considerable extent, and then, as always, the clergy of every religious persuasion found the utmost facility in seeing those persons who might have asked for their spiritual aid, which has never been forced on those who were disinclined to receive it.

FEVER
HOSPITALS.

Munster.
County Cork.

Examinations taken by
Cusack Roney, esq.
W.P. Borrett, esq. M.D.

Cork Hospital of the House of Industry.

Building, Furniture
and Grounds.

Medical Officers.

Payment.

Election.

Pharmacy.

Patients' Registration.

Who entitled to
Relief.
Intern Patients.

FEVER HOSPITALS.	There is a well-selected formulary of diet, calculated for the various states of health of the inmates. Every thing considered necessary, wine, &c., will be found to enter into it occasionally.
Munster. County Cork.	Shirts, shifts and night-caps are provided by the contributions of the charitable. The funds of the institution are not extensive enough for such objects.
Examinations taken by Cusack Roney, esq. W.P. Borrett, esq. M.D.	The managing committee consists of the governors, who meet every Tuesday, and keep minutes of their proceedings, which are subject to the directions of a board of superintendence appointed by the grand jury. No individual governor is ever permitted to assume control over the establishment, but some one or other of that body constantly directs a useful attention to the management of it, by inspecting the working of its various departments.
Cork Hospital of the House of Industry.
Attendants.	The attendants consist of the matron, three nurses, and six assistant nurses, all of whom necessarily reside in the hospital, and, except the matron, are provided with board. She is paid 20 l. per annum; the nurses receive 2 l. each, and their assistants but 1 l. per annum. They have no perquisites, are appointed by the board, who have also the power of discharging them. There has not been more than the usual mortality amongst them.
Stores.	It is expressly provided that no person in any way connected officially with the charity shall be permitted to supply any stores, which are always procured by public contract.
Reports.	Reports are made quarterly and presented to the board. It is not usual to print them. The Assistant Commissioners were supplied with a copy, containing a very well digested enumeration of the diseases met with.
Medical and Surgical Instruction.	The medical instruction afforded by this establishment is limited to the permission given to students to attend the physician in his daily visits to the sick in the hospital. Dissections are never performed, but it is usual to make post-mortem examinations when the friends of the deceased do not object to them; and in general the practice has no influence on their opinion of the charity.

Persons who attended the Examination.

County Kerry Fever Hospital.	Rev. Dr. M'ENNIRY, P. P.—The Medical Attendant; and the Apothecary.
Population and Extent of Country.	THE Kerry Fever Hospital is destined for the relief of fever cases occurring in all parts of the county, which may be said to possess no other institution of the kind, if we except one at Killarney, which is, however, always denominated a dispensary in the presentments that are laid before the grand jury for its assistance. The position of the establishment under consideration is tolerably convenient with respect to the district for which it is intended. Its accommodations are quite sufficient for its specified purposes, so much so that it never has been found necessary to refuse admission to any applicants on the score of want of room.
Building, Furniture and Grounds.	The building stands upon an acre of ground, which is used as a place of exercise for the patients. It has been erected about four years, is substantially and well built, and is capable, if proper arrangements were adopted, of accommodating at least a hundred persons. The elevation of the main building consists of two stories, on each of which there are four large wards and three smaller ones. In addition, there is a wing raised to the height of three stories; but in this the apartments are rather less in size, and are used as a pharmacy, and to lodge the nurses, &c. The wards are for the most part unfurnished and unoccupied, and even where they were occupied by patients the supply of furniture was scanty and bad; and, although there was no want of adequate ventilation, there was but little appearance of cleanliness or neatness. Externally the situation was good and rather elevated, enjoying the advantages of good water, and of a free circulation of pure air. The hospital does not possess any baths. The grounds, extending to about an acre, and the buildings above described (there are not any out-buildings), are occupied by the matron and other persons in connection with the institution. They are all the property of the county, being secured by a lease, which has been assigned to six magistrates, who act as trustees to the charity.
Medical Officers.	The physician, aged 40, was appointed to the hospital in 1822, at a meeting of the then governors and subscribers. He is a graduate of Edinburgh, and had, previous to his appointment, been engaged in practice in the town, where he still continues to reside at about the distance of ten minutes' walk from the establishment. The only other medical institution which he attends is the dispensary. For this he does not receive any remuneration, and he attends in rotation with other physicians, whose services are also gratuitous. When confined to his bed last year by fever his duties were performed by two medical gentlemen alternately. Nine o'clock in the forenoon of every day is the regular hour for attendance, but aid is given at all times if required; and if any irregularity were to occur an application for redress would, in the first instance, be made to the treasurer, who would, as there are now no governors, proceed to lay it before the grand jury. There is no student or pupil resident in the house. Medicines are dispensed by the apothecary to the nurses, who are charged to administer them in person to the sick.
	The salary of the medical attendant is 80 l. per annum, that of the apothecary 21 l. per annum. Neither of these individuals receives any other emoluments. They are neither allowed for a horse, nor provided with board or lodging.

The election of medical officers is vested in the magistrates of the county, as there are now neither governors nor subscribers. Notice of the period of election is posted up in the public places of the town, and it is required that all candidates shall produce those testimonials which are deemed indispensable in a regularly educated physician. On the last occasion the present surgeon was the only candidate. No limitation exists as to the age of candidates, either in electing or displacing them. The number of individuals in Tralee and its vicinity capable of paying for advice is quite sufficient to support a physician, independent of the dispensary emolument; and it was stated that there were six or seven medical gentlemen practising there who were qualified to be elected for the fever hospital. The mode of correcting any neglect or harshness on the part of the medical attendant has been already mentioned; it only remains to add, that the poor are quite aware of the existence of such a means of redress.

The pharmacy is well arranged and neatly kept. The medicines appeared to be of good quality, and though the stock was small, it was sufficient for the ends of a fever hospital. There was also the requisite supply of the more delicate and expensive medicines, such as quinine, morphia, &c. Every thing in this department was procured from Mr. Harrington, the druggist, of Cork; and his bill, which is discharged by the treasurer, has, on an average of the last three years, amounted to about 30*l.* per annum. The apothecary's stores are at present kept in a locked-up room, but this was left open until within the last few weeks. It is not permitted, on any account, to dispose of them by sale. Leeches are much used, and form an item of heavy expense. They are supplied by the apothecary of the institution at the price of 1*s.* each leech, being about the average charge in country districts. The following table will exhibit the amount of expenditure under this head:—

Year.	Cost of Leeches.			Number of Patients.
	£.	s.	d.
1831	-	-	-	36	19	5
1832	-	-	-	28	15	0
1833	-	-	-	70	2	0

Thus, in the last year, when the number of patients as compared with 1831 was reduced one-half, the cost of leeches was nearly doubled; the proportion used for each patient nearly quadrupled.

A register is very accurately kept by the physician, in which he particularises the various circumstances relating to each patient. Of this register it is usual to lodge a copy with the grand jury, and, from an inspection of it, it appears that an applicant has never been refused admission. At the period of the visit of the Assistant Commissioners there were 27 intern patients on the books.

All persons labouring under fever are considered to be entitled to immediate admission; no order or recommendation is ever demanded from them. On inquiring whether the servants of subscribers were frequently relieved it was stated that there were not any subscribers, and that the institution was wholly supported by the grand jury grant.

Extern patients are not attended to at this fever hospital, nor are the sick visited at their own dwellings, in connection with it. With respect to the persons under treatment within it, the medical attendant does not limit himself to one visit during the day, but repeats it as often as the case may demand, and even occasionally during the night. The only prescriptions compounded in this establishment are those of the medical attendant.

Whatever articles of extra nourishment are deemed necessary are given upon the order of the physician, but always at the expense of the hospital, as there are no charities in the neighbourhood to afford this aid. Patients are not allowed to receive visits from their friends, nor, before their final departure, are they permitted to leave the bounds of the institution. During their stay they are not employed in the performance of any kind of work. There are not any arrangements for the reception of lunatic patients. When cholera prevailed in the district it did not spare the inmates of this establishment, and many persons were also taken in whilst labouring under that disease. The clergy of every persuasion have a right to visit at all times persons of their own flock, and any sick inmate who expresses a wish to that effect can easily obtain the attendance of his own pastors. There has never been any improper interference on the part of the clergy with persons who differed from them in religious belief, and neither theological nor controversial tracts have ever been distributed in the wards. The hospital has not any chaplain attached.

There is no systematic dietary. The physician orders what he thinks most fitting for the condition of each patient.

There is no hospital clothing for the patients. Their own clothes are taken from them on their admission, and afterwards returned in the same state, without having undergone any purification or cleansing.

As there are no subscribers to constitute a committee the entire management is confided to the treasurer without either meetings of governors or of a board of superintendence. The institution is never visited by any person officially appointed for that purpose; and it is the opinion of gentlemen present that there are but few who would be willing to inspect the establishment, from the prevailing dread of infection.

The roman catholic clergyman of the parish, is the only non-medical officer. He acts as treasurer, and, after the grand jury have presented an adequate sum for the support of the institution, the entire management devolves upon him. He does not receive any salary, nor does he give the security required by Act of Parliament. There were no printed bye-laws;

FEVER
HOSPITALS.

Munster.
County Kerry.

Examinations taken by
Cusack Roney, esq.
W.P. Borrett, esq., M.D.

County Kerry
Fever Hospital.

Pharmacy.

Patients' Registration.

Who entitled to
Relief.

Extern Patients.

Nourishment.

Diet.

Clothing.

Officers not medical.

FEVER
HOSPITALS.Munster.
County Kerry.Examinations taken by
Cusack Roney, esq.
W.P. Borrett, esq., M.D.County Kerry
Fever Hospital.

Stores.

Rules.

Reports.

Funds and Accounts.Collection and
Custody.

Expenditure.

Accounts.

laws; but we were informed that religious belief is not allowed to have any influence in the election of officers. An instance has never occurred of an officer being suspended or removed for improper conduct.

The attendants consist of a matron, at a salary of 12*l.* per annum; of a clerk and accountant, at a salary of 10*l.*; two permanent nurses, receiving, one 18*l.* and the other 12*l.* per annum; and lastly, of other nurses, who are occasionally hired at salaries of 7*s.* a week. All these attendants are provided with lodging (but not with board) from the funds of the hospital. They are all appointed, paid, and, when necessary, discharged by the treasurer.

The stores required for the consumption of the institution are all procured by contracts, which have been in existence for some time. Nothing is ever diverted to the uses of any of the officers.

There was not any code of regulations.

Reports relative to admissions, cures, deaths and discharges are laid before the grand jury every half year previous to receiving the presentment. These reports are never printed.

Ten years have elapsed since the receipt of any subscriptions. During that time the charity has been entirely dependent on the funds received from the grand jury, which have been always sufficient for its maintenance, as it does not possess any capital stock in houses or land.

The grand jury grant is received half yearly, and it never happens that there remains any balance of it in hand, as it is immediately appropriated to the payment of all bills which have become due.

The expenditure is regulated by the treasurer. Bills are submitted to him previous to payment, and either to his order or through his hands all moneys are paid.

Accounts are made up every half year, and a statement of all expenses incurred, and money laid out, is submitted to the grand jury. The Assistant Commissioners were unable to procure a copy of the annual accounts for the last three years, as they had been all sent to that body.

As the present is strictly a fever hospital, the Assistant Commissioners had not occasion to enter into the details of many questions connected with medical and surgical instruction, &c.

Persons who attended the Examination.Killarney
Fever Hospital and
Dispensary.

Rev. Mr. BLAND, protestant curate.—Honourable Mr. BROWN.—Rev. THOMAS DUNN, roman catholic curate.—Right Rev. Dr. EGAN, roman catholic bishop.—Rev. G. FITZMAURICE, P. P.—Rev. Mr. HERBERT, rector of the parish.—Rev. Mr. ARTHUR HERBERT, rector of Castleisland.—JOHN O'CONNELL, esq.—The two Medical Attendants.—The Apothecary of the Institution.

Population and
Extent of Country.

THE Killarney Fever Hospital and Dispensary is the only medical establishment for affording gratuitous relief to the poor within a circuit of eleven miles. Many patients, however, apply to it from distances of 30 miles, and it is calculated that it is almost the exclusive source of assistance to a population of about 40,000 souls. The establishment is pronounced by the witnesses to be altogether inadequate to the wants of so extended a district, and it is said that, in consequence, not less than 50 applications for relief are refused in the course of each year. This state of things, it is suggested, would not be so well remedied by an increase of the existing charity, as by forming similar asylums throughout the country which is now deficient in them. Medical districts, of a judicious size, should in all instances be provided with a dispensary for granting external relief, and a certain number of such districts should possess a small hospital, in which arrangements should be made not only for the reception of patients labouring under fever, but also for the treatment of accidents, and of surgical diseases in general. A combination of objects, has been effected, somewhat in this manner, in the institution at present under consideration, and the results have induced the witnesses to think the diffusion of the plan as highly desirable.

Building, Furniture
and Grounds.

The building, which stands upon an inclosure of nearly one acre in extent, is constructed of brick, and is two stories in height. The situation being rather high, and apart from the town in an open place, affords all the advantages of a pure air. It is at the same time well supplied with wholesome water. The exterior contains five wards, and three wards for surgical cases, holding together 50 beds. The room used for the dispensing of medicines, though small, is kept in a good state. There is no waiting-room for patients. The portion of the house occupied by the attendants consists of the matron's room, and some servants' rooms. The wards are well ventilated, but very indifferently furnished, and the furniture in the house department is both deficient and bad. The premises are the property of the institution, and are held free from any payments. They are provided with the usual necessary out-offices.

Medical Officers.

There are two medical attendants. The first is in his 42d year, and is a graduate of the University of Edinburgh. He is also a member of the Royal College of Surgeons in London, and is entitled to become a licentiate of the Royal College of Surgeons in Ireland, having served an apprenticeship to one of its professors in Dublin. The second medical attendant likewise graduated in Edinburgh, and is a member of the London College of Surgeons. There is also an apothecary attached to the institution. He is a master of the Apothecaries' Hall in Dublin. The first-mentioned officer was elected in the year 1826, the two latter in the year 1831. None of them hold a second appointment, but they are all engaged in private practice. Their fixed duties consist in giving daily attendance at the institution institution between the hours of 10 and 12. This they do in rotation, and whenever one is obliged to absent himself his place is supplied by his colleague. Extern patients are only received at the dispensary on alternate days. The committee possess sufficient authority to ensure the regular discharge of their respective duties on the part of the several medical officers, and it is said that every facility is granted to the poor in redressing their complaints on the score of harshness or neglect. The hospital is never left without some person capable of giving assistance in cases of emergency, but medicines are never dispensed except by the apothecary. They are administered to the patients by the matron, or by the nurses.

Each of the physicians receives a salary of 50*l.* per annum. The apothecary receives 15*l.* without any further allowances.

The right of appointing the medical officers is possessed by the governors at large. It is the rule not to select any candidate unless he possess a degree from some university, or be a licentiate apothecary of Dublin; and on occasion of the last vacancy a notice of the intention of filling it up was posted in the reading-room of the town. However, only the successful candidate came forward, and it was stated that he had paid his predecessor a sum of 200*l.* on account of his resignation. The electors did not put forward any limitation as to age. Retiring pensions would not be allowed. There have not hitherto been any deaths among the medical men.

The arrangements in the apothecary's department, though perhaps somewhat deficient in order and neatness, were by no means so as respects the supply of good medicines. Every ordinary article had been provided, as well as the more delicate preparations, such as quinine, &c. They had all been procured by the treasurer from the house of Leslie & Co., druggists, in Dublin, and were designed exclusively for the use of the establishment, nothing being ever kept for sale. The usual and necessary pharmaceutical apparatus were also to be found, but there was a great deficiency of surgical instruments, which fell altogether short of the objects of the charity. It was also stated that leeches were seldom adopted in the practice of the hospital, in fact never, except when absolutely required. The medical officers are forbidden to inoculate with variolous matter, but they are bound to vaccinate gratuitously all persons who make proper application to them. The poor avail themselves of this regulation to a considerable extent, and the confidence of the people in general is represented to be very much on the increase, as regards the preservative qualities of the operation. The physicians speak also in favour of its preventive influence, and say that "where it fails to confer a total immunity it generally has the effect of mitigating the subsequent small-pock in a very perceptible degree."

The register of the amount of relief granted, which is kept by the apothecary, specifies the nature of the disease under which each patient applies, and the mode of its termination. That branch of it which refers to the internal patients is more in detail than that relating to the receivers of external relief, of whom it is considered sufficient to state the name, the residence, and the name of the subscriber whose ticket they have produced. An abstract of the register is annually lodged with the secretary of the grand jury of the county. At the time that the Assistant Commissioners visited the institution the patients in the house were:—

Fever cases	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	15
Surgical do.	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	12;

and they were informed that the number of externs applying for advice and medicine at the dispensary on the days of attendance varied between 45 and 50. It was stated that several amputations had been performed by the medical attendants during the course of the three preceding years.

Persons labouring under fever are always entitled to unconditional admission. The same privilege is extended to cases of accident; but those who seek admission as surgical patients are obliged to provide themselves with a recommendatory order from a subscriber. However, as the subscribers are not limited in the number of tickets which they are permitted to issue, and a single signature gives them the requisite validity, the condition in question does not cause much difficulty. As to the chances of improper persons participating in the benefits of the charity, it is not thought that much imposition is practised. The generality of patients belong to the class who really stand in need of gratuitous assistance. The lower order of domestics in the service of subscribers are always relieved free of expense.

It has been already mentioned that extern patients are received at the dispensary on three days in each week. The rules do not require the medical attendants to visit patients at their own houses, but they not unfrequently do attend, particularly in cases of accident and others requiring close superintendence. Neither are they liable to be called upon to render assistance to lying-in women, who are in consequence obliged to have recourse to the services of ordinary midwives; these latter are described as being grossly ignorant of their duties, and as having been the frequent cause of injury both to mother and child.

Not only fevers and accidents, but in general all forms of disease are admissible into the hospital. The conduct of the intern patients is regulated by certain fixed rules, and they are not permitted to go beyond the bounds of the institution until their final dismissal. Their friends are occasionally allowed to visit them, but only under certain restrictions, and in right of an express order from the attending physician. The patients are never asked to join in any manual labour. It has not been thought necessary to attach chaplains to the institution, but the clergy of all denominations are considered to possess a right of entrance to the wards whenever any of the inmates express a wish to avail themselves of their religious services, or to participate in the administration of their respective rites. Care has always been taken to prevent the circulation of controversial and offensive tracts among the sick

FEVER
HOSPITALS.

Munster.
County Kerry.

Examinations taken by
Cusack Roney, esq.
W.P. Borrett, esq., M.D.

Killarney
Fever Hospital and Dispensary.

Election.

Pharmacy.

Patients' Registration.

Who entitled to
Relief.

Extern Patients.

Intern Patients.

FEVER HOSPITALS.	sick, as well as to preserve them from any improper interference on the part of either clergy or laity. During the prevalence of cholera a few instances of that epidemic developed themselves in the house. There is no accommodation reserved for lunatics; when such patients present themselves, they are referred to the District Lunatic Asylum.
Munster. County Kerry.	No fixed schedule of diet has been arranged for regulating the allowance of food to the several classes of patients.
Examinations taken by Cusack Roney, esq. W.P.Borrett, esq., M.D.	During their stay in the house, the male patients are supplied with hospital shirts, and their own clothing is carefully cleansed before it is returned to them on their departure.
Killarney Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	The whole management of the institution is in the hands of the treasurer. Monthly meetings of the governors (all of whom are equally privileged to attend and vote) are appointed to be held, but the rule has not been complied with.
Managing Committee.	A number of gentlemen were elected to serve as a managing committee, with directions to meet every month. This it has not been found necessary to do, and the same individuals have been annually re-elected without interruption. The grand jury have never appointed a board of superintendence, nor have any of the governors ever acted as visitors.
Officers not medical.	The treasurer is the only non-medical officer. He is elected by the open voting of the subscribers, and without reference to religious distinctions. He has not been required to give any security, and he has always acted without receiving remuneration. To the question of "Whether there had been any accession of governors or governesses immediately previous to any election?" it was replied, that "such had not taken place with respect to the election of a non-medical officer; but that it did on the last election but one (of physician), when the medical men contesting were allowed to make subscribers up to the time of election, by which means the funds were enriched by some hundreds, and a determination was made to elect two physicians instead of one, as the matter could not otherwise be arranged.
Attendants.	The attendants consist of a matron at 15 l. per annum, and an allowance of fuel, candles, milk and potatoes; and of two nurses at 8 l. per annum each, who are also provided with board. The appointment and dismissal of these servants rests with the subscribers; no servant has died while attached to the hospital.
Stores.	Contracts have been entered into by the treasurer, according to tenders received, for the supply of the various articles required for the internal consumption of the establishment. The prices were examined into by the Assistant Commissioners, and, on comparison with the market, they were found to have been most advantageously concluded.
Reports.	A report of the general affairs of the charity is prepared at the termination of each year, and is laid before the grand jury. It is not usual to print the report as a separate document; but it is generally inserted in the columns of one of the county journals.
Funds and Accounts.	The income of the charity is chiefly derived from annual subscriptions, presentments granted by the grand jury, and from the interest of 1,400 l. capital stock. Some of the annual contributions are to a very considerable amount, and the utility of the charity is not a little dependent on their being continued. The noble proprietor of the town gives 40 guineas yearly, and the members of his family give 20 guineas. Trinity College (extensive landed proprietors in the neighbourhood of Killarney) gives 36 l. 18 s. 5½ d. yearly; and two other proprietors give respectively 10 l. 10 s. , and 9 l. 6 s. 7 d. All the subscribers belong to the richer classes.
	<table><tr><td></td><td></td><td></td><td></td><td></td><td>£.</td><td>s.</td><td>d.</td></tr><tr><td>The county grant in the year 1831 was</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>219</td><td>15</td><td>7</td></tr><tr><td>Ditto</td><td></td><td></td><td></td><td></td><td>181</td><td>18</td><td>1</td></tr><tr><td>Ditto</td><td></td><td></td><td></td><td></td><td>179</td><td>18</td><td>1</td></tr></table>						£.	s.	d.	The county grant in the year 1831 was	-	-	-	-	219	15	7	Ditto					181	18	1	Ditto					179	18	1
					£.	s.	d.
The county grant in the year 1831 was	-	-	-	-	219	15	7
Ditto					181	18	1
Ditto					179	18	1
Custody and Collection.	Of the 1,400 l. first mentioned 1,000 l. has been lent, by the directions of the committee, on the security of the estate of a nobleman resident in the vicinity, and the remaining 400 l. is invested in the saving's bank. The income is paid on application being made by the treasurer, in whose hands the money remains until it is wanted for current expenses.
Expenditure.	The chief heads of expenditure are salaries, medicine and maintenance of patients.
	<table><tr><td></td><td></td><td></td><td></td><td></td><td>£.</td><td>s.</td><td>d.</td></tr><tr><td>The total expenditure for the year 1831 amounted to</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>466</td><td>9</td><td>10½</td></tr><tr><td>Ditto ditto</td><td>1832</td><td>"</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>455</td><td>2</td><td>10½</td></tr><tr><td>Ditto ditto</td><td>1833</td><td>"</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>513</td><td>13</td><td>10½</td></tr></table>						£.	s.	d.	The total expenditure for the year 1831 amounted to	-	-	-	-	466	9	10½	Ditto ditto	1832	"	-	-	455	2	10½	Ditto ditto	1833	"	-	-	513	13	10½
					£.	s.	d.
The total expenditure for the year 1831 amounted to	-	-	-	-	466	9	10½
Ditto ditto	1832	"	-	-	455	2	10½
Ditto ditto	1833	"	-	-	513	13	10½
Accounts.	The payment of bills is intrusted to the discretion of the treasurer, by whom the general accounts are made up every month.
County and City of Limerick.	* THE building is old, connected with the ancient fortifications of the town. The wards, however, are as clean and as well ventilated as their antiquated construction would admit.
Examinations taken by Sir D. Barry, M.D. J. R. Corrie, esq. M.D.	The patients are well kept, the beds good and clean; there was not, however, a single clean sheet in store, and there was also a scarcity of blankets.
St. John's Fever and Lock Hospital.	There are two physicians, having salaries of 40 l. per annum each; one surgeon, who receives 10 l. per annum, and an apothecary, who receives 60 l. per annum, with apartments in the institution, fuel and candles, and the sole use of a tolerably large garden.
	The pharmacy appears to be neatly and carefully kept.
	The hospital is devoted to three specific diseases, viz., fever, venereal and dysentery.

* Names of the persons attending the Examination not stated.

The following is the morning report on 4th November 1834 :

	FEVER.		VENEREAL.		DYSENTERY.		Total in Hospital, remaining this Day.
	Men.	Women.	Men.	Women.	Men.	Women.
Remaining yesterday -	15	20	13	14	—	—	Men and Women - 62
Admitted this day -	2	—	—	—	—	—
TOTAL - - -	17	20	13	14	—	—	In active fever - 16
							Convalescent - 21
Cured and discharged -	—	—	—	2	—	—	Venereal - 25
Died - - -	—	—	—	—	—	—	Dysentery - 1
Remaining this day -	17	20	13	12	—	—	Total, as above - 62
TOTAL, as above -	17	20	13	14	—	—

FEVER
HOSPITALS.

Munster.
County and City of Limerick.

Examinations taken by
Sir D. Barry, M. D.
J. R. Corrie, esq., M. D.

St. John's Fever and Lock Hospital.

Intern Patients.

The deaths during the year 1833, one in every 22 patients, were in very moderate number, and less in proportion than in 1832.

MEDICAL REPORT.

For One Year, ending 5th January 1832.

Patients.
Remaining in Hospital the 6th Jan. 1831 - - - -	69
Number admitted to 5th Jan. 1832	1,207
	1,276
Discharged cured in one year -	1,133
Number of deaths last year, to 5th January 1832 - - -	66
Number remaining in hospital the 5th January 1832 - - -	77
	1,276

For One Year, ending 5th January 1833.

Patients.
Remaining in hospital 6th Jan. 1832 - - - -	74
Number admitted to 5th Jan. 1833	1,218
	1,292
Discharged cured in one year -	1,170
Number of deaths to 5th Jan. 1833	57
Number remaining in hospital, 5th Jan. 1833 - - -	65
	1,292

The venereal cases ever being mixed up with those of fever, no accurate estimate can be formed of the rate of mortality.

The nurses and other attendants have been generally healthy; one nurse has been in the institution two years, and has never had fever.

The receipts and expenditure for the years 1831, 1832 are stated in the annual printed reports as follows:

Attendants.

Funds and Accounts.

1831.

RECEIPTS:

	£.	s.	d.
Balance of last account, 5th Jan. 1831, in favour of the public -	727	10	—
One year and a half Parliamentary grant, due and ending 5th Jan. 1831 - - - -	132	15	11
County presentment, granted for Summer assizes 1830 - - -	300	—	—
Ditto - Spring 1831 - - -	300	—	—
Presentment of City Jury for Summer assizes 1830 - - -	46	3	1
Ditto - Spring 1831 - - -	46	3	1
From Daniel Barrington, Esq., for one year's interest on the late Sir Henry Hartstong's bond for 300 l. Irish, due 24th Dec. 1831	16	12	3
Received a fine from E. Morony, Esq., as foreman of a Record Jury - - - -	1	—	—
Received, as donations from sundry persons - - - -	8	—	—
Received, as a legacy from the late Alexander Blood, Esq., per the hands of Mr. Thomas Myles -	50	—	—
Received, as annual subscriptions -	84	—	—
„ as admission for ten patients - - - -	10	1	—
Received, as interest from the savings bank, due 20th Nov. 1831	19	15	11
Total charge - - -	£. 1,742	1	3

EXPENDITURE:

	£.	s.	d.
Provisions - - - -	505	12	3½
Medicines - - - -	87	15	1
Fuel, soap and candles - - -	93	12	8½
Furniture and repairs - - -	59	10	11½
Buildings - - - -	231	1	6
Rent - - - -	19	1	11
Funeral expenses - - - -	5	18	4
Stationery - - - -	7	15	—
Straw and hay - - - -	8	2	6
Incidents - - - -	58	10	8
Salaries and allowances - - -	346	2	—
Total expenditure - - -	£. 1,423	3	—
Balance in favour of the public -	318	18	3
Total charge - - -	£. 1,742	1	3

FEVER HOSPITALS.	1832.		1832.
	RECEIPTS:		EXPENDITURE:
Munster. County and City of Limerick. Examinations taken by Sir D. Barry, M. D. J. R. Corrie, Esq., M.D. St. John's Fever and Lock Hospital.	Balance of last account in favour of the public	£. s. d.	Provisions -	£. s. d.
	One year's Parliamentary grant	318 18 3	Medicines -	522 6 5½
	County presentment for	89 1 10	Fuel, soap, candles	77 13 -
	Summer assizes 1831	300 - -	Furniture and repairs	67 11 4½
	Ditto - Spring 1832	400 - -	Rent -	59 11 1
	Presentment of City	700 - -	Funeral expenses	19 1 11½
	Jury for Summer as-		Stationery -	6 15 8
	sizes 1831	46 3 1	Straw and hay	8 5 8
	Ditto - Spring 1832	46 3 1	Incidents -	7 14 9
	From D. Barrington, Esq., one	92 6 2	Salaries and allowances	64 4 1
	year's interest on the late Sir		Total expenditure	348 4 -
	Henry Hartstong's bond for 300 l.		Balance in favour of the public	£. 1,183 8 -½
	Irish -	16 12 3
	Received, a part of Mrs. Banks' bequest	34 2 -
	Received, a donation from Miss
	Ghent -	3 - 6
	Received, as annual subscriptions -	84 - -
	" as admission of patients -	17 - -
	" interest from savings bank, ending 30th July 1832 -	6 10 5½
	Total charge -	£. 1,361 11 5½	Total charge -	£. 1,361 11 5½

The state of the hospital appeared to the Assistant Commissioners creditable, as to cleanliness, sanitary arrangement and discipline, to those concerned in its administration.

Ulster.
County Antrim.

Belfast
Fever Hospital and
Dispensary.

Persons who attended this Examination.

Right Rev. Dr. CROLLY, roman catholic bishop.—Professor STEVELLY.—Dr. BRAX.—Dr. JOHNSON.—
Dr. M'DONNELL.—Dr. M'FEIR.—Dr. PURDON.—Dr. TENNANT.—Dr. THOMPSON.—Dr. WILSON.
—Mr. KENDALL.—Mr. M'BURNEY.—Mr. M'FEIR.—Mr. MOORE.—Mr. WALES.

Population and
Extent of Country.

THE two departments of this institution differ as to the extent to which they are the means of supplying medical assistance. The dispensary is intended more particularly for the town of Belfast, but the fever hospital is designed for the relief of patients from all parts of the county of Antrim. Its designation by no means implies the extent of its objects. It is in fact the only general hospital in Belfast, and far more deserves the name than any county infirmary in Ireland, for it takes in all descriptions of cases which those charities take in, and fever besides. It unites in itself all the advantages found to arise from a general hospital of the very best kind; from an extensive well regulated dispensary, from a female lock hospital, and from a cheap and admirably managed maison de santé or pay-hospital for the labouring classes. Being on the borders of the county Down it affords more accommodation to the persons attacked with fever in that district, than the two magnificent hospitals recently established in the town of Downpatrick. Within a radius of six miles several other medical charities occur. Four of them are included in the bounds of Belfast; namely the Chapel Lane Dispensary, the Lying in Hospital, the Lying in Charity for attending poor women at their own houses, and the Infirmary attached to the poor-house. The following are placed in different directions through the surrounding country; viz., the Whitehouse Dispensary, Hollymount Dispensary, Newtownbreda Dispensary, Ballymacarrett Dispensary. With respect to the degree in which these several charities correspond to the wants of the poorer classes, it is stated that the dispensaries for external relief are fully adequate to the ends in view both in the town and its vicinity, but that Belfast labours under a want of additional accommodation for intern patients. The population of the town is estimated at 60,000, and of that number it is calculated that one-sixth stand in need of occasional gratuitous assistance in advice and medicine. The town is divided into six medical districts, to each of which a surgeon and physician are attached. The Roman Catholic bishop of the diocese is of opinion that this arrangement has been found abundantly sufficient, and one of the physicians coincides in the expression of the same opinion; but, on the other hand, a clergyman who is officially connected with the parish of Belfast declares that "the medical attendance on the poor is very inadequate." It is admitted, however, on both sides, that in no instance have applications for relief been refused.

Building, Furniture
and Grounds.

The situation of the establishment is central, airy and salubrious. The Fever Hospital is a brick building, four stories in height, with a basement on which are eleven rooms used as kitchens, stores, offices, &c., and likewise containing hot, cold, vapour and medicated baths. The first story contains the apartments occupied by the apothecary and the housekeeper, and three surgical wards. Two of these are 40 feet by 20 each, and are pierced with five windows and contain respectively 12 beds. The third is of less dimensions, about 21 feet by by 16, and holds only five beds. The second and third floors are much on the same plan as the first, excepting that an operating theatre has been constructed in the centre. The wards are lofty, well ventilated, and display a most gratifying attention to cleanliness. During the last 15 years not more than three cases of fever have been known to occur among the general patients, and no reason existed for supposing that any of them had originated in contagion imparted by the inmates labouring under that disease. There is an abundant supply of good water. The sewers, are good and there are clean and well constructed water-closets. The premises are held under a long lease from the Marquis of Donegal, and include altogether about one English acre, of which a part is laid out as a garden, and serves to provide vegetables, and as a place for exercise for the convalescents. At the back of the hospital is another brick building which has been recently erected, and is at present used as a lock hospital; but it is designed to appropriate it to the reception of persons labouring under cholera, should that epidemic again visit the town. The bedsteads in the wards are of iron with cross-pieces of wood. They are simple in their make and can be easily kept clean. The bedding is good throughout, the mattresses being supplied with fresh straw on their being occupied by each successive patient. The dispensary is held in the gate-house, and is thereby quite detached from the main body of the building. Some of the gentlemen present speak of the advantage which would arise from the freehold of the property being vested in the county.

The medical attendants connected with the establishment are divided into five classes. There are at the present time four consulting physicians, four consulting surgeons, four attending physicians, four attending surgeons, one medical superintendent of the dispensary, and seven district medical attendants; the town being divided into six districts, to each of which, by the rules of the institution, should be attached two medical men. These district medical attendants see at their own private houses the sick poor of their respective districts, and likewise visit those who are unable to attend; the prescriptions are made up at the dispensary.

All these gentlemen reside in the town of Belfast, and are engaged more or less in private practice. It is almost unnecessary to add that, in the performance of their official duties, they are never obliged to have recourse to substitutes. The medicines are dispensed by an apothecary, who resides in the house, to the nurses, by whom they are given to the patients. The gentleman who fills the last-mentioned situation is a member of the Royal College of Surgeons in London, in addition to being possessed of a diploma from the Apothecaries' Hall in Dublin. He attends every day in the shop, between the hours of eleven and three, and he endeavours to be always present when medicines are being given to the out-patients. He is ready to attend at all hours in the hospital.

All the medical officers give their services without remuneration, the apothecary excepted, who receives a salary of 50*l.* per annum, and is provided with board and lodging. He is paid monthly by the treasurer from the general funds of the charity. Recently, however, some of the medical officers have put forward claims for some remuneration, and the step has been attended by a partial cessation of the harmony which formerly prevailed. The claim has been opposed by the committee as well as by the grand jury, which latter body possesses a full control and authority over any concessions that the former might feel disposed to make on the subject.

The medical officers who serve in the hospital are elected by the annual subscribers of one guinea; one physician and one surgeon being elected annually, and remaining in office four years. The appointment of the district attendants is vested in the committee. When a vacancy occurs it is usual to insert advertisements in the newspapers, inviting candidates to come forward, and announcing the conditions of eligibility, which are, for all, a residence of two years' date in the town of Belfast—the possession of the degree of doctor in medicine on the part of the physicians, and, on the part of the surgeons, the possession of such a degree as may meet the approbation of the members of the committee. At the last election there were only four candidates, namely, two physicians and two surgeons. It was not considered necessary to send any notice of the appointments made to the grand jury. Hitherto no death has occurred among the medical gentlemen attached to the charity. In reference to the security possessed by the poor against harshness or neglect from the attendants, it is stated that they are well acquainted with the fact of its being in their power to lodge any complaint which they may have to prefer before the committee.

The dispensary is well placed and arranged with much neatness. It contains an ample supply, not only of ordinary medicines but of quinine and other more delicate preparations. In compliance with a recent resolution of the grand jury it has become necessary to keep a twofold stock of medicines, one for the dispensary and the other for the patients of the fever hospital. Both stocks are placed under the care of the resident apothecary, and it is not permitted to sell any part of them. No governor or officer is in any way interested in the supplying of medicines, which are procured and paid for by a sub-committee appointed for the purpose. The institution is likewise supplied with the requisite pharmaceutical apparatus, and with a good stock of surgical instruments. The greater part, though sometimes borrowed by the attending surgeons, are in general strictly reserved for the use of the charity. The stomach-pump alone, and the apparatus for the recovery of persons apparently drowned, are sometimes lent out in cases of emergency. Leeches are not used as extensively as could be desired, on account of their high price. They are never supplied to patients at their own dwellings, being reserved for the inmates of the hospital.

Separate registers are kept for the hospital and for the dispensary. The former is under the care of the apothecary, the latter of the surgeon in attendance. Both contain

FEVER
HOSPITALS.

Ulster
County Antrim.

Examinations taken by
Sir D. Barry, M. D.
J. R. Currie, Esq., M. D.

Belfast
Fever Hospital and
Dispensary.

Medical Officers.

Ulster
County Antrim.

Belfast
Fever Hospital and
Dispensary.

Population and Extent of County.

Election.

Pharmacy.

FEVER
HOSPITALS.

Ulster.
County Antrim.

Examinations taken by
Sir D. Barry, M. D.
J. R. Corrie, esq., M.D.

Belfast
Fever Hospital and
Dispensary.

Patients' Registration.

Who entitled to
Relief.

Extern Patients.

Nourishment.
Intern Patients.

Diet.

Clothing.

General
Management.

Managing
Committee.

Attendants.

the particulars of the patient's disease and of his occupation, age and residence; also the name of the subscriber recommending, and the date of the patient's admission, together with the mode in which his illness has terminated. The register has been kept since the opening of the hospital in the year 1817, and each year an abstract has been submitted to the grand jury. At the date of the Assistant Commissioners' visit to the charity the number of intern patients amounted to 106.

All persons, without exception, labouring under fever, are entitled to admission, without the necessity of having provided themselves with any recommendation. Those who require attendance at their own houses in any part of the town are likewise entitled to receive both advice and medicine. This absence of restrictions on those who apply for relief is not unattended by imposition; and all the witnesses agree in stating that persons contrive to avail themselves of the benefits of the institution whose circumstances place them, more or less, above the necessity of gratuitous assistance.

The hospital dispensary, to which allusion has been already made, is open on five days in the week, and all persons who present themselves are prescribed for and receive proper medicine; but as the doors are closed from three in the afternoon of one day until eleven o'clock on the following, there is but little opportunity of affording aid during the afternoon and night. Lying-in cases are never attended; the women of the poorer classes are thrown entirely into the hands of midwives, who have the character of being possessed of but little skill. Their ignorance, however, has not been productive of much injury. The arrangements which have been made for the extension of vaccination are deserving of praise. The children of the poor are vaccinated daily, and a register which is kept of the results of the practice shows it to have been decidedly beneficial. The confidence of the public is said to be also on the increase with regard to its preventive efficacy against small-pock, which disease has diminished considerably in frequency, though a few cases have recently presented themselves.

No articles of food are, under any circumstances, supplied to the out-patients. All cases of fever, of serious accidents, and which require operation, are admitted on making application, but disorders of a chronic nature are only taken in once a week, on presenting a ticket of recommendation, signed by two subscribers and a medical man, to the committee. In addition, a resident of the counties of Antrim or of Down is entitled to be received on paying from 2s. 6d. to 5s. a week, according to the circumstances of the applicant and of his disease. The patients are placed under the charge of the nurses and of the matron as to their conduct; and, except under special circumstances of exception, the rule is, that they be never allowed to go beyond the bounds of the institution. Their friends are permitted to visit them on Mondays and Thursdays, and at other times on having obtained a written permission from the medical attendant. The convalescent patients are occasionally asked to render assistance in the domestic service of the house, but such labour is on their part perfectly voluntary. There are no chaplains attached, but the clergy of all religious denominations are considered to possess a right of ingress to the wards at all times; and there are some judicious rules to prevent them from disturbing the repose of the inmates, though there has not latterly been any occasion to apply them. Measures have also been taken for putting a stop to the circulation of offensive and controversial tracts.

There is a fixed schedule of diet calculated for the different classes of patients. Wine and other extras are freely given whenever deemed requisite by the medical attendant.

The necessary changes of linen are provided for the patients so long as they remain in the hospital.

The Marquis of Donegal is president for life of the institution. In him, and in the subscribers of one guinea and upwards annually, the general management of the charity is vested. The medical officers have been allowed no further share in the direction than what they are entitled to as contributors to its funds. A general meeting of the subscribers is appointed to be held once in every year, and it is generally attended by large numbers. Voting by proxy is not allowed, and minutes of the proceedings are always kept.

A managing committee also exists of 21 members, in addition to the president, the vice-president and the senior surgeon and physician for the time being. One-third of the number vacates office in rotation, but may be re-elected. The meetings are weekly, and an account is kept of the business transacted. The grand jury have not appointed a board of superintendence, but one of the committee is accustomed to visit the hospital, and to enter a report in a book kept for the purpose. The following sub-committees are detached from the committee of management, namely, (1), a sub-committee of economy and supply to provide matters of daily consumption to a small amount: this body receives 50*l.* at a time, and accounts for the disposal of it to the (2) sub-committee of accounts, whose duty consists in auditing once a month and passing the accounts, which it is intended to submit to the examination of the general committee; (3), the sub-committee of works and repairs.

The non-medical officers are as follow :

President, elected for life.
Two vice-presidents } elected annually.
One treasurer

The mode of election, which has been adopted with much advantage, is by ballot, and no religious distinctions are suffered to interfere. The treasurer acts without remuneration, and has not been called upon to give any security.

The attendants consist of one matron and nine nurses; the former has a salary of 20*l.* per annum besides board and lodging; the head nurse receives 10*l.* a year, and each of the others others 2s. 6d. a week; all have board and lodging in addition. At different times, but not recently, several of the attendants have taken the infection and died of it.

Every thing required for internal consumption is purchased by the sub-committee on the best terms they can arrange. The following are the prices given for the principal articles during the year ending August 1834:

	£.	s.	d.
Milk, sweet	-	-	-	1½ per quart.
Buttermilk	-	-	-	½ "
Bread, 7½ lbs.	-	-	-	1 "
Wine, port	-	-	-	1 5 - to 1l. 3s. per dozen.
Oatmeal	-	-	-	7 12 6 per cwt.
Potatoes	-	-	-	2 6 "
Butter	-	-	-	8½ per lb.
Oaten straw	-	-	-	10 per cwt.

FEVER
HOSPITALS.
Ulster.
County Antrim.
Examinations taken by
Sir D. Barry, M. D.
J. R. Corrie, esq., M. D.
Belfast
Fever Hospital and
Dispensary.
Stores.

Reports.

Funds and
Accounts.
Receipts.

Collection.
Custody.

Expenditure.

Accounts.

Medical Instruction.

Lisburn
Fever Hospital.

Population and
Extent of Country.

An annual report is printed concerning the amount of relief granted, and the expenses which have been incurred, including also other particulars connected with the establishment.

The following statements of income and expenditure were taken from the printed reports after they had been compared with the original documents in the hands of the treasurer. The principal sources of income appear to be subscriptions, grand jury presentments, and bequests.

	£.	s.	d.
The gross receipts in the year 1833 were	-	-	- 1,759 7 9
Ditto ditto 1834 "	-	-	- 1,342 17 9

The existence of the charity is considered to rest on tolerably secure grounds, and is not likely to be affected by any falling-off in the amount of annual contributions. The sum received from the so-called "pay patients" was inconsiderable in both years.

The funds are collected by the committee and lodged in the Belfast Commercial Bank by the treasurer. The title deeds of the premises remain in the hands of the trustees, to whom the Marquis of Donegal granted the lease.

The most considerable items in the accounts of annual expenditure are:

	£.	s.	d.
Bread	-	-	- 149 10 7
Milk	-	-	- 162 1 11
Beef	-	-	- 118 - 4½
Wine and spirits	-	-	- 105 4 7
Medical account	-	-	- 230 12 10½
Salaries	-	-	- 70 - -
Wages	-	-	- 100 19 10
The entire sum expended in the year 1833 was	-	-	- 1,443 19 10½
Ditto ditto 1834 "	-	-	- 1,511 12 9

The accounts are examined and audited by a sub-committee appointed for the purpose, who lay them before the committee of 21. The treasurer further submits his books to the inspection of the grand jury, and is sworn as to the accuracy of their contents.

Pupils are allowed to attend the practice of the hospital on the payment of 1l. 1s. for the twelve months, which sum is placed to the credit of the institution. These hospital pupils may assist in the apothecary's shop on the payment of 1l. 1s. for the first six months, and 10s. 6d. for any longer period.

The only lectures given are clinical.

The medical practitioners resident in the town can be admitted into the hospital at the discretion of the medical officers of the institution. The committee of management claimed this right, and gave an order that the district attendants should be admitted to be present at operations, &c. The medical officers do not recognize this right; and the fact now is, that the district medical men are refused admission, and an order which did exist, "that the apothecary should inform the district medical men when an operation was about to be performed," has been suspended.

Persons who attended the Examination.

Mr. COULSON.—Dean STANNIES.—Mr. WALKINGTON.—The Physican and Surgeon of the Institution

THE Lisburn Fever Hospital has been very recently established. It was not opened for the reception of patients until the 1st of January 1833. It was founded on the exclusive principle of admitting those only who were labouring under typhus fever, and who were inhabitants of the town of Lisburn. This very limited object has been very considerably extended, and it is at present contemplated so to enlarge its sphere of operation as to embrace all the tenantry on the estates of the Marquis of Hertford in and around Lisburn. This will include nine parishes, containing together about 75,000 acres. There are two other medical charities in the neighbourhood, namely, the dispensary at Hillsborough, and the dispensary and general County Infirmary at Lisburn.

The hospital under consideration is situated at the distance of about a quarter of a mile from FEVER HOSPITALS. Ulster. County Antrim.	from the town, and is advantageously placed on high and airy ground, unconnected with any other buildings. It has some ground attached to it, but hitherto no arrangements with respect to it have been entered into with either the Marquis of Hertford or his agent. Even for the space actually occupied by the house no deeds or writings securing the ownership have as yet been procured. The building is of brick, two stories in height, with a basement. It was erected by contract, and is quite new. The roof is in a good state, but the wood-work and plastering have commenced to give way. Each of the two upper stories is divided into two wards, with a passage between. Each ward is 30 feet long by 16 broad, and they are, taken together, fully capable of accommodating 32 patients. At present the house contains ten iron bedsteads for patients, and of that number only six possess the requisite bed-clothes and bedding. There are three ordinary windows in each ward, besides a round window at the end, and additional apertures for insuring a full degree of ventilation. There is no waiting-room, inasmuch as extern patients are not received. No baths have been provided. The basement story is occupied by the kitchens and servants' apartments, and also contains a small space intended to be used as a shop. None of the furniture on this story belongs to the establishment; it is exclusively the property of the nurse. There is a small additional building containing a wash-house and a room for drying clothes. The entire building cost about 700l. of which 200l. were granted by the county, with an express understanding that no future application should on any occasion be made to the grand jury for aid towards its maintenance. It can hardly, therefore, be considered in the light of a public charity, and it has been recently determined, at a court leet of the Marquis's tenantry, annually to present a sum, to be levied by voluntary contribution upon themselves, for the purpose of keeping up the charity.

Examinations taken by Sir D. Barry, M. D. J. R. Corrie, esq., M. D.	There are three medical officers; of these the senior is also the medical superintendent of the County Infirmary. The second is doctor of medicine in the University of Edinburgh, and a licentiate of the Royal College of Surgeons in Ireland; his age is 28. The third is a surgeon of the Edinburgh University, and a licentiate of the Apothecaries' Hall in Dublin. All three reside in the town of Lisburn, and are engaged in private practice; the last-mentioned officer is also in possession of a certificate from the Glasgow College, entitling him to practice midwifery. When the hospital contains any patients daily attendance is given by one or other of the medical men, and the duty is never performed by proxy. As for the means of affording immediate assistance in cases of emergency, the nurse is the only person always at hand, and no medicines are kept in the house.
Lisburn Fever Hospital. Building, Furniture and Grounds.	The three medical gentlemen give their services without any remuneration.
Medical Officers.	They were elected at a meeting of the members of the committee which took place at the establishment of the charity, but the appointments were made without regularity and in a very indefinite manner, so much so, that there seems to be some doubts as to precedence between the two junior officers. In the report which has been made by the Assistant Commissioners on the County Infirmary, will be found some details of the circumstances attending the election, and also respecting the medical practitioners in general of the district.
Payment. Election.	The small room in the basement story which has been mentioned as intended for the purposes of pharmacy, remains as yet unappropriated to those ends. All the medicines which have been hitherto required for the patients have been procured from the third medical officer, who keeps an apothecary's shop in the town. He also supplies leeches whenever they are ordered by the physician. No arrangements have been made for the diffusion of vaccination among the poor, but it is stated that the medical officers have always refrained from practising inoculation with variolous matter.
Pharmacy.	No register exists either of the number of patients who have been admitted or of the remedies which have been adopted in their treatment; a trifling exception to this statement is made by the account which the second physician has kept of five or six cases that have been under his immediate care. At the time that the Assistant Commissioners visited the hospital, it did not contain a single patient; it was, however, stated, that thirty-nine patients labouring under fever had been received since the opening of the wards; of this number two had died.
Patients' Regis- tration.	Although the house, as already intimated, was originally destined for the exclusive treatment of typhus fever, it has been recently resolved by those in authority under the Marquis of Hertford, to admit all persons labouring under epidemic cholera, should that disease again visit the town. No condition, except being in distress, is required from the sick who seek admission; but there is a want of rules for insuring their good conduct during their stay. Their friends are also permitted to visit them whenever they think proper. Chaplains are not attached to the charity, but the clergy of all religious denominations are considered to possess a right of free ingress to the wards at all times, and the patients experience every facility in availing themselves of the services of their respective pastors. At the same time there have been no instances of improper interference with their opinions, nor have any controversial or other offensive tracts been circulated through the wards.
Who entitled to Relief.	The allowance of food depends altogether on the discretion and judgment of the officers, as there is no fixed schedule of allowances or dietary.
Diet.	A committee, containing thirteen names, was appointed to superintend the progress of the building; a few of them have continued to yield their services since its termination, but no minutes have been kept of their proceedings.
General Manage- ment.	The apothecary discharges the duties of treasurer, and, in fact, the whole concern has already lapsed into his exclusive management. It is, however, but just to him to say, that without his attention to the affairs of the hospital it would in all probability have been closed against the admission of patients ere this. The institution is a very instructive example of the injury that results from devoting the resources of a public hospital to the treatment treatment of one form of disease. The country is now free from typhus, and the hospital remains empty and useless. The public takes no interest in its progress; and the close vicinity of the County Infirmary gives it the appearance of being unnecessary.
Officers not medical.

The number of attendants has hitherto never exceeded two. At present that there are no patients, there is but one, namely, a nurse, who also acts as housekeeper; she receives 6*l.* per annum, without any allowance for board. Two nurses have, at different periods, been attacked with fever while engaged in the service of the hospital; both of them, however, recovered.

No stores whatever are kept; articles required for immediate consumption are furnished by the apothecary, to whom the nurse is held accountable for their disposal.

No statement of the affairs of the charity has ever been given to the public; and so far as regarded its sources of income, the only one on which dependence could be placed was the grant of 100*l.* per annum derived from the manor court of the Marquis of Hertford's estate.

FEVER
HOSPITALS.

Ulster.

County Antrim.

Examinations taken by
J. R. Corrie, esq., M.D.
Sir D. Barry, M.D.

Lisburn

Fever Hospital.

County Armagh.

Armagh City
Fever Hospital.

Building, Furniture
and Grounds.

*THIS hospital is most judiciously constructed and very favourably situated. The house was erected and furnished by the present Lord Primate about seven years ago, and is now, and has been since its erection, supported at his Grace's sole expense, both as to the salaries of those employed, and incidental charges of every kind.

The wards are lofty and well ventilated, about 28 feet long by 20 wide, and, including the convalescent wards, capable of containing 30 beds. The furniture and floors are exquisitely clean; but we were much surprised at hearing from the matron that the wards and other rooms had been only twice white-washed since the period of the opening of the establishment, seven years ago. There are all the necessary offices attached, and, amongst others, a fumigating and purifying room, in which the Assistant-Commissioners saw the clothes of the patients hung up on rails and undergoing fumigation with heated sulphuric acid, salt and manganese.

The sole medical officer is also the apothecary and registrar of the County Infirmary. He is a licentiate of the College of Physicians of Dublin.

He receives a salary of 40*l.* per annum.

The medical officer supplies the medicine for the patients from his own shop, and charges for it as pills, powders, draughts, &c.

The expenses of diet and medicine for the three last years are nearly the same in each year:—

	1831.			1832.			1833.
	£.	s.	d.	£.	s.	d.	£.	s.	d.
Diet - - - -	45	9	3	43	13	1 ½	36	8	10
Medicine - - -	45	-	4	42	3	1 ½	33	10	11 ½

The following is a return of the number of individuals admitted, &c., for the year ending 30th April 1832:—

Remained in hospital, 30th April 1831	-	-	-	11
Admitted during the year	-	-	-	183
				194
Discharged cured	-	-	-	165
Died—Males, 7; females, 5	-	-	-	12
Remaining in hospital, 30th April 1832	-	-	-	17
				194

In the months of December 1831 and January 1832 two mild cases of cholera were admitted. Both cases recovered.

When the Assistant Commissioners visited the establishment they found in it eight patients, four male and four female.

All the diet arrangements seem to be conducted in a manner highly creditable to the medical attendant and his steward; whilst the excellence of the purely medical practice is attested by the low rates of mortality in the return furnished for the year 1831-2, being 1 in 15—3.

The following statement of the quantity of milk of different kinds, charged to a certain number of diets issued in this hospital and in the County Infirmary respectively is worthy of notice.

Fever Hospital.—In the month of August 1834 there were issued—

Spoon diets	-	-	-	-	-	46
Low diets	-	-	-	-	-	28
Full diets	-	-	-	-	-	89
Total	-	-	-	-	-	163

New milk charged one pint each diet, as allowed by the authorized scale of diet, 63 pints.

Buttermilk

* Names of persons attending the Examination not stated.

FEVER HOSPITALS. Ulster. County Armagh. Examinations taken by Sir D. Barry, M. D. J. R. Corrie, esq., M. D. Armagh City Fever Hospital.	Buttermilk—Two pints for each spoon diet to make two milk-whey; viz.	-	92
	„ One pint as food to each of the other diets	- - - -	117
	N. B. No extra butter-milk.		239
County Infirmary.—In June 1833 there were issued in one week—
	Low diets	- - - - -	211
	Full ditto	- - - - -	37
	Total	- - - - -	248

New milk charged 457 pints, or nearly two pints for each diet, independently of 70 pints of buttermilk, all given as food. Now if the 163 diets issued in the Fever Hospital had been charged with new milk in the same proportion as the diets are in the County Infirmary, and at the same price, viz., 2*d.* per Irish quart—

300 pints would have been paid for	- - - - -	£. 1 5 -
Whereas only 163 pints of new milk are charged at 1½ d. per quart		- 11 10¾
Thus the saving effected to its funds by the very laudable economy of the Fever Hospital diet as compared with that of the County Infirmary, on 163 diets, in the article of new milk alone , amounts to	- - - - -	£.- 13 1¼

The average expense of one diet in the month of August 1834, in the Fever Hospital, according to the statement already referred to, is - - - - - 4½*d.*
 In the County Infirmary for the whole year - - - - - 5½*d.*

The following is a copy of the diet table:—

FULL DIET.

Breakfast.—Four ounces oatmeal made into stirabout; one pint of good sweet milk.
Dinner.—Four ounces good beef or mutton; four ounces bread and half pint of broth.
Supper.—One quart of flummery and one pint of buttermilk.

LOW DIET.

Breakfast.—Two ounces oatmeal made into stirabout; one pint of sweet milk.
Dinner.—One pint of broth or flummery, as ordered; four ounces coarse bread.
Supper.—One pint of flummery and one pint of buttermilk.

SPOON DIET.

One pint of sweet milk and two pints of buttermilk in whey, barley water, solution of cream of tartar, apple tea, lemonade, &c., as much as may be necessary.
 Extra articles as ordered.

The only officers resident in the house are the steward, an old serjeant of artillery, and the matron his wife, who have resided in the hospital during the last seven years. The matron has had two attacks of typhus within that time, an interval of three years occurring between the attacks. Her daughter also has had one attack, and the nurse who preceded the present one was also attacked.

The following is a report for the year 1831-2-3 of the number of patients admitted, and the results, together with the expenses for the same period:—

	1831.	1832.	1833.
Admitted - - - - -	183	147	134
Died - - - - -	12	7	7
Rate of Mortality in 1831	- - - - -	- - - - -	1 in 15 — 3
„ „ 1832	- - - - -	- - - - -	1 in 21
„ „ 1833	- - - - -	- - - - -	1 in 19 — 1
Expense of Hospital in 1831	- - - - -	- - - - -	£. 185 8 8
„ „ 1832	- - - - -	- - - - -	195 3 1¾
„ „ 1833	- - - - -	- - - - -	163 14 7½
Total expense for the last three years	- - - - -	- - - - -	£. 544 6 5¼
Expense of each patient during the same period	- - - - -	- - - - -	£. 1 3 5½

The institution is very remarkable, as well for the excellent economy of its administration as for the important sanitary results which it has produced. All the medical men with whom the Assistant Commissioners have conversed in this city agree, that to the prompt refuge afforded by this hospital to isolated and incipient cases of fever is due the almost complete exemption from any thing like epidemic diseases of that class which Armagh has enjoyed since its establishment.

* THIS charity has been recently established by the trustees of the charities of the late Bishop Sterne.

The dispensary, which is held in the same house with the hospital, has been in operation since February 1834.

The fever hospital is a neatly built and well situated house, two stories high, containing two wards on each floor, each 18 feet by 15, with a fire-place and excellent ventilation. There is a water-closet, and all necessary rooms and offices.

The building has cost about 700*l.*, and contains at present six beds, with the requisite accommodation for as many fever patients.

The salary of the physician, as chief medical attendant, is fixed at 60*l.* per annum. There is a very commodious house now being erected for the medical attendant, about thirty yards from the hospital: the cost is estimated at 600*l.* to be paid from the funds of the charity. In this house, when completed, the dispensary will be placed.

The dispensary has, since its establishment, afforded advice and medicine to 564 poor persons, of whose names and diseases a most accurate register is kept.

No tickets of recommendation are required, as the terms of the donation define those entitled to relief.

It has not been found necessary to admit any fever patients since the opening of the hospital, as the parish has been particularly exempt from that disease during this period.

More than forty cholera patients were lodged and treated in the house during the local epidemic of 1833, when the charity was found to be of the most important service to the parish.

There is a housekeeper residing on the premises, who is paid 20*l.* per annum.

	£.	s.	d.
Salary of physician - - - - -	60	-	-
Ditto of housekeeper - - - - -	20	-	-
Medicine, estimated at, annually - - - - -	20	-	-
Contingent expenses at - - - - -	5	-	-
Total estimated expenditure for one year - - - - -	£. 105	-	-

This charity derives no assistance whatever from the county, nor from any other source than the bequests already alluded to; nor is it contemplated by the trustees ever to apply for a county grant, as the funds at their disposal for this and other charitable purposes amount to about 1,800*l.* per annum. Whenever it may be necessary to admit fever patients they are to be liberally supported; but at present the hospital is limited to the reception of that disease and cholera exclusively, and is therefore empty. The Assistant Commissioners have been particular in their inquiries into the circumstances of this establishment,—

1st. Because it is quite unconnected with the county rates, on which almost all the medical charities which we have hitherto examined depend for at least half their support.

2d. Because it affords a most judiciously managed example of what may be done in this country for a given sum, in the way of small, local hospital accommodation, and extern advice and medicine for the sick poor.

3d. Because some of the most humane, enlightened and public spirited men in the country, being trustees to a charitable bequest, have selected this mode of extending a portion of the funds entrusted to their administration, from a full conviction that they were thus conferring important benefit upon that class for whose advantage these funds had been bequeathed.

The Assistant Commissioners cannot help considering this charity as one founded upon principles worthy of imitation in every thing, except the exclusive devotion of this fever hospital to two diseases of rare occurrence. The situation of the medical attendant is made sufficiently desirable to become an object of ambition to men of good education and fair professional character. The little hospital is a plain well built house, large enough for the parish or district, whilst its wholesomeness and fitness to receive a patient at any time are insured by the residence of a respectable housekeeper, liberally but not prodigally paid. The sources of expense are well defined.

Persons who attended the Examination.

The Bishop of Kilmore.—The Rev. Mr. M'QUADE, catholic curate.—The Rev. Mr. ROBERTS, protestant curate.—Dr. ROE.—The Medical Attendant.—The Apothecary of the Hospital.

IN the evidence which was procured relative to the Cavan General Infirmary will be found many particulars relating to the population and circumstances of the district surrounding the town of Cavan, in which there are altogether three medical charities; namely, the Infirmary, the Dispensary and the institution at present under consideration. These establishments cannot but be considered as too numerous for a town of the size of Cavan; more particularly as they are all in great measure supported by the county, and all their officers are in the receipt of salaries.

The

Names of the Persons attending the Examination not stated.

FEVER
HOSPITALS.

Ulster.

County Armagh.

Examinations taken by
Sir D. Barry, M. D.
J. R. Corrie, esq., M.D.

Middleton
Fever Hospital and
Dispensary.

Patients' Registration.

Who entitled to
Relief.

Intern Patients.

Attendants.

Expenditure.

County Cavan.

Cavan

Fever Hospital.

Population and
Extent of Country.

FEVER
HOSPITALS.

Ulster.
County Cavan.

Examinations taken by
Sir D. Barry, M. D.
J. R. Corrie, esq., M. D.

Cavan
Fever Hospital.

Medical Officers.

Payment.

Election.

Pharmacy.

Patients' Registration.

Who entitled to Relief.

Diet.

Clothing.
General Management.
Managing
Committee.

Officers not
medical.

Attendants.

Stores.

Reports.
Funds and
Accounts.
Receipts.

The fever hospital is an exceedingly well built stone structure of three stories in height, and judiciously situated at a distance of about a quarter of a mile from the town. It has arrangements for the reception of 40 patients, but at present it does not (including convalescents) contain more than 13. There are four wards, of which two are for convalescents. Those on the ground and first floor are lofty; but that now used as the acute female ward on the second floor is low, not being more than nine feet in height. It contains 15 beds, of which three are placed along the middle line of the room. The ventilation is, however, as good as, under the circumstances, it can be. The premises are well supplied with water; but the sewerage is very deficient, and there are no water-closets. The place is held under the Earl of Farnham, at a ground rent of 2*l.* 19*s.* 5*d.* per annum.

There are two medical officers, the physician and the apothecary; both reside in the town. The former is a doctor of medicine of the Edinburgh University. He was appointed to the situation in the year 1817, there having been an old hospital previous to the erection of the present building. The second medical officer is a licensed apothecary, and is in his 25th year. It is stated that neither have ever had recourse to the services of a substitute.

The physician's salary is 40*l.* per annum; that of the apothecary 21*l.*; in both cases without any allowance for board or lodging.

There has not been an election of a medical officer for many years. The right of appointment is vested in the subscribers, and there are said to be a considerable number of opulent individuals in the district.

The medicines ordered for the patients are supplied by the apothecary, from his shop in the town. He charges certain prices for each draught, mixture, &c. The following table shows what has been the actual cost of medicine during the last three years.

	1831.	1832.	1833.
	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.
Expense of medicine	56 19 11½	35 17 11½	25 17 -½
Number of patients treated	282	270	275

These sums will give an average expense per head per annum of 2*s.* 7½*d.*, the cost of leeches probably included.

Since the year 1824 a register of all the cases admitted into the hospital has been kept, with much attention to particulars. It appears that the average annual mortality has been about one in 13.

Admission is always granted, without any conditions, to persons labouring under fever; and it has not been found that the absence of restrictions has led to any impositions on the charity. The patients have belonged exclusively to the poorer classes; and they are not required to engage in any labour during their stay in the hospital. No chaplains are attached, but the clergy of all religious persuasions are freely permitted to visit the inmates at all times. At the same time controversial tracts have never been circulated in the wards.

The diet of the patients is regulated according to a fixed table, and it is estimated by the apothecary that when the number of patients in the hospital exceeds 15 they are maintained for an average of about 6*d.* per diem; all extra articles of nourishment required in particular cases are supplied, when ordered by the physician.

There is no hospital clothing provided for the patients.

The general management of the affairs of the charity rests with the subscribers; and the Bishop of Kilmore takes the chair when present at their meetings.

The general committee of the Fever Hospital is accustomed to meet at the board room of the general hospital twice in the year for the purpose of inspecting the accounts. No record is, however, kept of the proceedings at these meetings. There is no sub or managing committee, and the regularity and care, with which the affairs of this hospital are now conducted, are mainly owing to the attention of the apothecary.

Strictly speaking there are not any non-medical officers, as the apothecary discharges the duties of secretary and treasurer, and the regularity and care with which the affairs of the establishment are conducted are chiefly owing to his attention.

The attendants are four in number; namely,—

	£. s. d.
Matron	21 - - per annum.
Porter	13 - - "
Nurse	9 - - "
Cook	9 - - "

They are all entitled to receive the full diet of the hospital.

The following articles are supplied, by contract, from individuals who are quite unconnected with the institution. Very little of any thing is kept in the house beyond that which is required for immediate consumption.

	£. s. d.
Turf, per box	9 - -
Meal, per cwt.	12 6 -
Oatmeal	9 - -
Straw	1 - -
Milk, sweet, per quart	1½ - -
Buttermilk, per quart	1 - -

Reports on the state of the charity are only occasionally prepared.

The principal sources of income are the contributions of annual subscribers, and the presentment granted by the grand jury. There is an invested sum of £.200, the legacy of the late Messrs. Burrows of Cavan.

	£.	s.	d.
In the year 1831 the amount of subscriptions was	122	5	2
1832	136	2	2
1833	99	2	2
In the year 1831 the amount of county presentment was	244	10	4
1832	272	4	4
1833	198	4	4
The total expenditure in the same years was—
1831	295	17	3
1832	205	10	1
1833	138	4	1

Persons who attended the Examination.

Two of the Physicians attached to the Hospital, and the Apothecary of the Institution.

THE present institution is intended to receive all diseases likely to become epidemic and occurring in any part of the county. The neighbouring County Infirmary affords no assistance in these circumstances, and the dispensaries generally throughout Down are considered as being far too few for the wants of the poorer classes of the inhabitants. The districts of Ballyhinch, Saintfield, Kerkcubbin and Ardglass are very remote from the sources of medical relief, and it is suggested by the gentlemen present that to all dispensaries a small hospital should be attached capable of accommodating fever cases and accidents of a serious description; and that a district of five miles English radius, with a rural population, was as much as one medical man could attend to. So far as concerns febrile diseases it is hoped that the institution at present under consideration will be found sufficient.

The hospital was erected at the same time and upon the same plan as the County Infirmary, being situated in the same enclosure, of about 2½ English acres, as that charity, and distant not many yards from it. It is a new stone building, two stories in height, and provided with wooden staircases. The ground floor in the front and centre is occupied by the shop and apartments of the apothecary and by the apartments of the matron. There are eight wards. Each physician has a male and female ward for acute diseases to himself, but the two convalescent wards are in common. Altogether the house is made to contain 40 beds, and it is well ventilated throughout. The bedsteads are of iron, and are provided with the necessary bedding, as sheets, blankets, rugs, &c. The sewerage is good, and there are baths and water-closets. The property of the premises is in the governors of the infirmary, the occupation only being vested in the governors of the Fever Hospital. The situation of the establishment is cheerful and salubrious, and there is some ground allotted for the convalescents to exercise in.

There are three medical attendants connected with the hospital. One of the number is also attached to the County Infirmary. The other two physicians reside in the town of Downpatrick and are engaged in private practice. They are both doctors of medicine in the University of Edinburgh, and their respective ages, at present, are 55 and 36. The medical duties of the hospital appear to be discharged in the most conscientious and efficient manner. As has been already intimated, each physician has a male and female ward under his separate charge, into which the patients are admitted by the apothecary in regular routine. Each of the medical men visits his own wards every day, and the resident apothecary is always on the spot to render assistance in cases of emergency, and to dispense the necessary medicines, which are administered to the patients by the nurses. In case of neglect or harshness on the part of any of the officers the poor have it in their power to obtain redress by laying their complaint before the committee.

The three physicians give their services to the charity without any remuneration. The apothecary alone receives a salary of 20*l.* per annum, and is further provided with board and lodging. It is stated that were the governors ever inclined to authorize unnecessary payments the grand jury have it in their power to check them by withholding or diminishing the usual presentment.

The privilege of appointing all medical officers is exercised by the subscribers of a guinea a year and upwards. Candidates are required to produce satisfactory testimonials of their professional qualifications, and although the rules do not impose any restrictions as to age, at the last election of an apothecary, at which the competitors were very numerous, one of them was deemed ineligible on account of his years. There is only one other qualified practitioner residing in the town than those actually in the service of this hospital, but the number of wealthy individuals of the neighbourhood is fully adequate to support them without the aid of a salary from the institution. Two of the medical officers strongly express their conviction that the duties of any medical charity, in a town of 5,000 inhabitants or upwards, would always be as actively and honestly discharged by unpaid medical men (with the assistance of a salaried apothecary) as those duties are at present executed for salaries of various amounts. It must be confessed that it is rather a curious circumstance to see the dangerous duties of a fever hospital quite as well performed gratis, as those of a county infirmary close by for a handsome salary and a most splendid house.

The arrangements of the apothecary's shop displayed much neatness and care. The stock

FEVER
HOSPITALS.

Ulster.
County Cavan.

Examinations taken by
Sir D. Barry, M. D.
J. R. Corrie, Esq., M. D.

Cavan
Fever Hospital.

County Down.

Downpatrick
Hospital for Fever and all diseases likely to become epidemic.

Population and
Extent of Country.

Building, Furniture
and Grounds.

Medical Officers.

Payment.

Election.

Pharmacy.

FEVER
HOSPITALS.Ulster.
County Down.Examinations taken by
Sir D. Barry, M. D.
J. R. Corrie, esq., M. D.Downpatrick
Hospital for Fever
and all diseases
likely to become epidemic.Who entitled to Relief.

Diet.

Clothing.

General Management.Managing Committee.Officers not
medical.

Attendants.

Stores.

stock of medicine (containing every thing that could be required in practice) was supplied from the County Infirmary, and no account for the cost is exhibited against the Fever Hospital. Leeches, however, are not to be had. One of the physicians states that on one occasion he ordered them to be applied to a patient, but they could not be procured. It is unnecessary to remark that in an institution like the present, it has not been deemed expedient to make any dispositions for encouraging vaccination.

A register is kept of all persons admitted into the house, which distinguishes the name and abode of each person, together with the nature, duration and termination of the disease under which each has laboured. In addition each medical attendant has a separate book in which he details the particulars of the several cases that fall under his immediate treatment. At the time that the institution was visited by the Assistant Commissioners it contained nine patients. Thirty-four had been admitted since the 1st of February, of whom 24 had been discharged cured, one had died leaving the above remainder.

All persons labouring under fever are entitled to immediate admission without any conditions. This absence of restrictions has not been found to lead to any inconvenience, nor have instances occurred in which the resources of the charity have been taken advantage of, except by those whose circumstances justly entitled them to gratuitous relief. No extern patients of any description are attended to in connection with the hospital. There is an arrangement whereby any person (rich or poor) can be received into the hospital, on paying 1 l. in advance, and 5 s. per week so long as he continues in the house. The intern patients are not allowed to go beyond the bounds of the establishment until their final dismissal, and their conduct on other points is regulated by a code of rules similar to those in force at the Infirmary, and to which reference is made in the evidence respecting that institution. Their friends are admitted to see them at the discretion of the attending physician. The case-books of the physicians constitute a regularly detailed history of the symptoms and treatment of every case, and would be really instructive records to any pupils, or young physicians who might attend the practice. These books were examined most minutely by the Assistant Commissioners, who had every reason to consider them highly creditable to the gentlemen alluded to, who certainly never expected that they would be so investigated. They also stated that their experience of the effects of vaccination has been most decidedly favourable to the general efficacy of that practice, and they observed that the confidence of the pauper population in it was very much on the increase, notwithstanding their carelessness. Small pox was frequent at the date of this evidence throughout the district, but it was found that where vaccination had preceded it, the disease was much modified, and that the patient suffered very slightly. Lunatics are not received into the hospital, they are sent to the district asylum at Belfast. Chaplains have not been appointed, but the clergy of all persuasions are considered to possess a right of visiting, at all times, the inmates who express a wish to avail themselves of their religious services. There has not been any circulation of controversial or offensive tracts in the wards, nor has any one, whether of the clergy or of the laity, been allowed to interfere with the doctrinal opinions of the sick.

No uniform table of diet has been hitherto established; each physician regulates, according to his judgment, the nature and quantity of the food required by his several patients.

The hospital does not furnish clothing to the patients during their detention, nor have any arrangements been made for cleansing and purifying the clothes which they have brought with them.

The general management of the affairs of the charity is vested in the body of the governors, which does not include any of the medical officers. A meeting of the governors is held every three months, and from six to ten of the number are in the habit of attending. A quorum consists of five, and voting by proxy is not permitted. No account is kept of the business transacted.

The details of the institution are superintended by a managing committee consisting of twelve members, in addition to the committee of the County Infirmary. They are appointed every year, and their meetings, which are monthly, are held in the board room of the last-named establishment. The grand jury does not claim any authority over their transactions.

The governors at large exercise the privilege of electing the only non-medical officer, namely, the treasurer. This gentleman acts without salary, and has never been called on to give any security. The mode of election, which has been found productive of the best results, is by open voting, and there have been no instances of religious prejudices operating to the exclusion of the candidates. One of the medical men is a Roman catholic, another is a member of the established church, and the third is a presbyterian. The apothecary is a protestant.

The number of attendants and their respective wages are as follow:—

	£.	s.	d.
Matron - - - - -	12	-	-	per annum.
Cook (who is also first nurse) - - - - -	6	-	-	"
Second Nurse - - - - -	6	-	-	"
Porter - - - - -	8	8	-	"

These were all appointed by the governors. The three latter are under the control of the matron who is subject to the orders of the apothecary; there are certain rules for their general conduct similar to those in force at the County Infirmary.

Every thing required for the consumption of the establishment is supplied by contract. There is no bye-law against a governor taking the contract, but hitherto no such case has occurred.

No specific report of the state of the charity has yet been presented to the public, but from the large proportion of intelligent and active individuals which the neighbourhood contains, there is every reason to suppose that the wants of the poor would be minutely attended to.

The charity possesses no source of permanent income. It is chiefly dependent for its support on annual subscriptions, and grants from the county. These form, however, an income on which a good deal of reliance may with justice be placed. Previous to the Summer assizes of 1833 the treasurer had received subscriptions to the amount of 71*l.* 8*s.*, and the grand jury accordingly presented for a similar sum.

The funds are collected by the treasurer and remain in his hands until wanted.

The expenditure is checked by the committee who are bound to examine all bills previous to their being paid (on their order) by the treasurer.

The institution dates but from the last half year, but it is intended that the accounts shall be made up and audited at the termination of each quarter.

FEVER
HOSPITALS.

Ulster.
County Down.

Examinations taken by
Sir D. Barry, M. D.
J. R. Corrie, esq., M. D.

Downpatrick
Hospital for Fever
and all diseases likely to become epidemic.

Persons who attended the Examination.

Rev. Dr. CAMPBELL, vicar.—Rev. Mr. MOFFATT, curate.—Mr. M'NAGHTIN.—The Medical Attendant of the Institution.

Newry
Fever Hospital and
Dispensary.

Population and
extent of country.

THE population of the district attached to the Newry Fever Hospital, extending to about one mile in all directions round the town, amounts to nearly 18,000. The following institutions, which are said to be judiciously placed with reference to the diffusion of medical relief occur in the country immediately adjoining, and at distances less than six miles, Warrenspoint Dispensary to the north-east; Forkhill Dispensary to the west; Mullaglass Dispensary to the north-west; and Moigh Dispensary.

There is also a private lying-in hospital in the town. These several charities are considered to correspond tolerably well to the objects which were more expressly held in view at their origin; but there is a considerable tract of country lying on the south, south-east and east of the Newry district, which is beyond the limits of any medical establishment.

The hospital is a poor structure, though in tolerable repair, and was formerly a corn-store. It is two stories in height; the upper story, which contains the fever wards, is lofty, being open to the roof and without a ceiling. It is divided into two wards capable of containing eight beds. Each of them is provided with a fire-place, and is well ventilated; but they are cold and cheerless, and have no other mode of approach than a wooden staircase constructed on the outside of the building. On the lower story is an unfloored kitchen, sufficiently well stocked with cooking utensils; a small ward for accidents, capable of containing four beds; a good sized dispensing shop, with a space used as a waiting-room for out-patients; and a small consulting-room and office. There is no wash-house or scullery, or other out-offices, nor any yard or garden. The situation of the premises is low and damp, and they labour under the disadvantage of being only held from year to year, and of the owner being entitled to resume possession on giving notice. This inconvenience can only be remedied by vesting the property of similar edifices in the county which maintains them. The bedsteads for the patients are of iron, and the bedding consists of a straw mat (destroyed on the dismissal of each patient), some loose straw, sheets, bankets and rugs. Of all these articles the supply is ample.

Building, Furniture
and Grounds.

There is but one medical officer, who resides in Hill Street, Newry, at a distance of about a quarter of a mile, where he is engaged in business as an apothecary. He is a member of the Royal College of Surgeons in London, and is also a licentiate of the Apothecaries' Hall in Dublin. He possesses a midwifery diploma from the Coombe Lying-in Hospital in the latter city. He had resided as a general practitioner in Newry previous to his appointment, which took place in the year 1829. He attends at the institution every day, Thursdays and Sundays excepted, from ten o'clock till half-past eleven; and he states that he has never performed the duty by proxy. He would, however, be permitted to avail himself of the services of a substitute, in case he should require to be temporarily absent, on giving due notice of his intention beforehand to the committee. That body forms a tribunal to whom the patients may with safety complain of harshness or neglect on his part. The medicines are dispensed either by the medical attendant or his apprentice.

Medical Officers.

A salary of 50*l.* per annum is allowed to the medical attendant, out of the general funds of the charity. The amount of payment is open to the control of the grand jury, who, by withholding altogether or diminishing their ordinary presentment, have it in their power to check any tendency to the granting undue remuneration by the subscribers or committee.

Payment.

The right to elect the medical officer is exercised by all persons subscribing a guinea a year and upwards. On this point the grand jury does not possess any authority, and it is not even necessary to send them notice of the intention to fill up a vacancy. The matter is however, generally made public by advertisements in the newspapers, and in this way competition is insured. On the occasion of the last election there were two candidates, from whom testimonials were required of their being duly qualified, but without any restriction as to their ages. The town of Newry is abundantly equal to the support of a medical man independent of a salary from a public establishment. In fact, it contains ten medical men every way qualified to fill the situation of superintendent of the institution at present under consideration. No regulations exist as to superannuation or retiring allowances, but the duties are not free from considerable danger, as it is stated that three of the medical gentlemen

Election.

FEVER
HOSPITALS.

Ulster.
County Down.

Examinations taken by
Sir D. Barry, M. D.
J. R. Corrie, esq., M. D.

Newry
Fever Hospital and
Dispensary.

men, who have at different times undertaken them, have died of fevers supposed to have been caught in the discharge of them.

The apothecary's shop is a good room, neatly kept, and containing a stock of excellent medicines. They are supplied by Jefferies of Dublin, to the order of the treasurer, and are always under the charge of the medical attendant, who keeps the key of the place. His character is quite sufficient guarantee that they are never applied to the purposes of his private practice.

									£.	s.	d.
The cost for the year	1832	was	-	-	-	-	-	-	52	0	11
Ditto	1833	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	45	9	11½
Ditto	1834	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	57	8	3

There is some little apparatus for preparing decoctions, and there are also a few surgical instruments belonging to the institution, such as a cupping-case, a stomach-pump, Read's transfusion apparatus, splints, &c., and pullies for reducing dislocations. It is not usual to lend any of these articles, nor are they ever used in private practice; but they form a stock altogether too limited for the ends of the charity. Leeches are not adopted in the treatment of the patients. No arrangements exist for the diffusion of vaccination. Neither that nor inoculation is practised by the medical attendant, who remarks that the confidence of the public in the utility of the former operation is great and increasing. Small pox has of late years ceased to be a frequent disease.

Patients' Registration.

A register is kept of the number of out-patients, and of the nature and mode of termination of their diseases; but circumstances will not allow of much reliance being placed on it. The registration of intern patients may be considered accurate. It is under the care of the medical attendant; and it appears from it that in the year 1832 the number of fever cases amounted to 211, but that in the following year they did not amount to more than 118. On the day that the Assistant Commissioners visited the hospital, it contained only six patients, of whom five were females. On the same day the number of persons who applied for external assistance was about 80, of whom five were new cases. During the last three years the surgeon has attended to 118 lying-in women, and he has been called upon to perform six capital operations, all of which have turned out favourably.

Who entitled to
Relief.

The aid of the charity is very narrowly restricted to those persons who have provided themselves with the recommendation of a subscriber, each of whom is only entitled to afford relief in the proportion of 12 tickets to one guinea contributed. The clergy alone have the privilege of recommending 24 poor persons for the same subscription. The effect of these limitations has been to exclude paupers, in many instances, from participating in the resources provided by the allowance from the county, while at the same time they have not been sufficient to prevent individuals from taking advantage of the benefits of the charity, whose circumstances by no means placed them in need of gratuitous relief.

Extern Patients.

The dispensary department is intended to supply advice and medicine to those patients whom it is considered unnecessary to receive into the house. Such of them, also, as are unable to present themselves at the dispensary are attended by the surgeon at their own dwellings (if included in the district) at all hours of the day or night. Cases of accident are also supplied with whatever aid may be required, and with splints, bandages, &c., from the stores of the institution. The surgeon is liable to be called on to visit lying-in women when they have obtained a ticket; but in general they are treated by midwives acting under the directions of the surgeon, who gives the benefit of his superior skill only when any unusual difficulties have been experienced. The midwives are said to possess but very little information, and have often been the cause of very serious mischief. With respect to the medicines supplied to extern patients, the Assistant Commissioners had not an opportunity of forming an opinion of the quality of the remedies. No prescription-book is kept; but it was stated that no other prescriptions were compounded than those of the medical attendant.

Intern Patients.

The conditions for obtaining admission into the hospital do not differ from those imposed generally on the applicants for relief, namely, the possession of a subscriber's ticket. The intern patients are subject to certain laws, designed for the enforcement of good conduct; and although they are never permitted to go beyond the bounds of the institution, their friends are at liberty to visit them on five days in each week, and they are never required to engage in any labour during their stay. Lunatics are not admissible. All that present themselves are sent to the District Lunatic Asylum, at Belfast. Cases of cholera were also excluded during the existence of that epidemic. The institution has not a regular chaplain, but the clergy of all sects are considered to possess a right of free entrance to the wards at all times. At the same time no tracts have ever been circulated among the patients, nor has any improper interference been attempted with regard to their religious opinions.

General Manage-
ment.

The general management of the affairs of the charity is vested in a committee of twelve, who appear to have discharged their duties with much regularity. Their meetings take place every quarter, and every subscriber of one guinea is entitled to vote in person. Minutes are kept of the proceedings at these meetings, at which five constitute a quorum. In the intervals some of the governors occasionally inspect the state of the establishment, but there is no visitors' book, nor have the grand jury appointed a board of superintendence.

Officers, not
medical.

The non-medical officers are elected by the subscribers, and their choice is not liable to the control of the grand jury. The electors give their votes openly, and, it is stated, without reference to sectarian prejudices. The present medical attendant is a protestant. The secretary and treasurer collect the subscriptions, but they have not given any security.

Attendants.

There is but one attendant resident in the hospital. She acts as matron, nurse and cook.

No governor or officer supplies any article to the institution. Whatever is required is purchased for the occasion on the best terms that the treasurer can make.

The reports, which are prepared by the surgeon, and usually printed by order of the governors, contain a statement of the average mortality among the patients treated, but do not give any information respecting the expense caused by each patient. The charity not being possessed of any fixed property, may be said to be principally dependent on the amount of the annual subscriptions, for, by the sum of these the extent of the county presentment is regulated. The existence of the institution as a whole does not, therefore, rest on grounds as secure as might be desired; but the dispensary branch is considered to be possessed of a greater degree of solidity. Some of the subscribers belong to the poorer classes, and opposite their names appear sums so small as 1 s., but there is one annual contributor to the amount of 10*l.* 10 s. The approach of an election has on one occasion added considerably to the ordinary receipts. In the year 1833 a gentleman, who at present gives only 10*l.* per annum, was induced to give 25*l.* The entire number of subscribers in the year 1831 amounted to 121, but in the past year it did not exceed 78.

FEVER
HOSPITALS.

Ulster.
County Down.

Examinations taken by
Sir D. Barry, M. D.
J. R. Corrie, esq., M. D.

Newry
Fever Hospital and Dispensary.

Funds and Accounts.
Receipts.

	£.	s.	d.
The amount subscribed in the year 1831 was	-	-	100 8 9
Ditto - - - - - 1832	-	-	97 9 5
Ditto - - - - - 1833	-	-	106 11 6

An equal sum was granted each year by the grand jury.

The principal heads of expenditure are medicine, surgeon's salary, rent of house, and food for patients. The entire sum expended in each of the last three years was as follows:

	£.	s.	d.
1831 - - - - -	-	-	284 16 5 1/2
1832 - - - - -	-	-	256 18 -
1833 - - - - -	-	-	230 14 7

All bills presented for payment are annually examined by the committee previous to being discharged by the treasurer.

The accounts, however, are made up and audited every six months, and each time they are laid before the members of the grand jury.

Accounts.

COUNTY INFIRMARIES.

Persons who attended the Examination.

Connaught.
County Galway.

WALTER JOYCE, esq.—P. M. LYNCH, esq., Kenmore Lodge.—ROBERT MARTIN, esq., Ross.—A. F. ST. GEORGE, esq., Tyrone House.—Dr. VEITCH, sen.—The Medical Attendant of the Institution.

Examinations taken by
Sir D. Barry, M. D.
J. R. Corrie, esq., M. D.

County Infirmary.

THE present Infirmary is the only medical institution for the reception of general disease within the limits of the county of Galway. There are two other charities for the relief of the sick poor in the town of Galway, namely, the Fever Hospital, and a dispensary. It was stated that the numerous dispensaries which at present exist in different parts of the county are well placed as regards the population of their respective districts, but there still remain very extensive tracts of country far removed from all sources of professional assistance. No dispensary, it is thought, should be connected with a district of a greater diameter than from 10 to 12 miles, and the opinion of the witnesses is, that small hospitals, containing a few beds for fevers, accidents and other urgent cases, should be established in judiciously selected situations in all parts of the county.

Population and
Extent of Country.

The Galway County Infirmary is a well built stone edifice, very advantageously placed on an elevated and dry site, and is in a state of perfect repair. It contains seven wards, and is capable of accommodating 36 patients. The wards appropriated to the males are spacious and well ventilated, whilst those occupied by the females are very much the reverse. One end of the building is devoted to the use of the surgeon, as a residence; and the entire of the ground floor is arranged as offices, kitchen, &c. The premises are the property of the governors.

Building, Furniture
and Grounds.

The surgeon, as has been already intimated, resides in the house. He is also surgeon to the town of Galway gaol; and, in that capacity, receives a salary of 55*l.* per annum. He is a member of the Royal College of Surgeons in Ireland, and a Doctor in Medicine of the University of Dublin, in which city he received his education in midwifery. His age at present is 27 years. Medicines are dispensed to the patients by him alone.

Medical Officers.,

The medical attendant receives from Government an annual salary of 89*l.* 1 s. 10 d. He has, in addition, the use of a garden, and of about one acre of ground, and for their cultivation he is allowed the sum of 5*l.* per annum, with an understanding that he is to supply the patients with whatever vegetables (excepting potatoes) may be necessary. The remainder of the produce is entirely at his own disposal. At the date of the Assistant Commissioners' visit five pigs were kept in a sty in the hospital yard, but no space had been laid out for the recreation of the convalescents. This defect would appear to be an

Payment.

COUNTY

INFIRMARIES.

Connaught.

County Galway.

Examinations taken by

Sir D. Barry, M.D.

J. R. Corrie, esq., M.D.

County Infirmary.

Election.

Pharmacy.

Patients' Registration.

Who entitled to

Relief.

almost invariable result of the chief medical officer of a county infirmary, being provided with apartments in those parts of the building to which the approach of the patients would not be desirable. The patients cannot appear in front of the house, for there are the surgeon's windows, and the members of his family. They cannot be permitted to avail themselves of the grounds in the rear of the hospital, for there are the surgeon's garden, and his coach-house. They must therefore, and, in point of fact, do generally spend the entire day in their wards, whatever be the state of their convalescence, or of the weather. This state of things does not obtain in any other nation of Europe, and ought not to be permitted to continue in this. These observations are not meant to apply exclusively to the infirmary at present under consideration. They are applicable, in a greater or less degree, to all similar institutions, when the medical officer resides in the establishment, so far as the experience of the Assistant Commissioners extends.

The number of medical men residing in the town of Galway, qualified to be appointed to the County Infirmary does not exceed three. It was therefore deemed expedient, in order to secure a more extensive competition, to insert on the occurrence of the last vacancy in the situation, an advertisement in the Dublin papers, inviting candidates to come forward; and, at the same time, announcing the qualifications which would be required from each. This took place just previous to the month of June 1833, when the governors elected the present medical officer.

The arrangements of the apartment in which the medicines were kept, displayed considerable neatness and regularity. The medicines had been purchased from Messrs. Leslie & Co., druggists, in Dublin, and consisted of all the usual articles, of a very good quality. A supply of quinine, morphia and of some other of the more delicate preparations was also observed. When medicines are required, it was stated to be the practice for the surgeon to transmit an order to the druggist, whose account is subsequently discharged by the treasurer. The cost of medicines during each of the last three years had been as follows:—

										£.	s.	d.
1832	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	40	8	0
1833	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	41	16	0
1834	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	32	4	7

The establishment possesses all the necessary surgical instruments. Leeches are used, but only in small numbers—they are purchased in the town, from time to time as circumstances demand, and do not in general cost more than a few shillings a year.

A register is kept which distinguishes in different columns; 1st, the number for the year; 2d, the name of the patient; 3d, his age; 4th, his occupation; 5th, his previous residence; 6th, the name of the governor on whose recommendation he had been admitted; 7th, his disease; 8th, the number of the bed in which he has been placed; 9th, the date of admission; 10th, the date of discharge; 11th, date of death; 12th, number of days that the patient has been in hospital; and 13th, result. For the extern patients the register merely distinguishes their numbers, the date on which their treatment has been commenced, the nature of the disease under which they labour together with the mode of treatment adopted, and its results.

				Interns.	Externs.	Total.
In the year ending January	1832	the numbers were		257	262	519
Ditto	1833	- - - -		209	160	369
Ditto	1834	- - - -		232	393	625

There are some circumstances which have been observed by the Assistant Commissioners to be common to several county infirmaries, to which they cannot avoid soliciting attention in the present place, inasmuch as they relate to the class of cases which they have found to have been admitted, and to the length of time which they have been under treatment. In the County of Galway Infirmary they noticed a very large proportion of indolent scrofulous ulcers, and sore legs. One of the patients, a reduced shopkeeper, who suffered under the latter disease, had been in the house during five months; the sore on his leg was still open, and had all the appearance of being likely to continue in that condition for some time to come. A young woman afflicted with chronic ophthalmia, the active stage of which was long past, had been in the house for the same length of time; others had been in three months, others two; yet with this extensive and commodious building so occupied and possessing so many capabilities, situated in a town containing between 30,000 and 40,000 inhabitants, an accident however severe and urgent occurring in the town, could not be taken in, and would be absolutely refused admission in this the only surgical hospital, in either the county or the town. The rule is, that with the exception of persons from the county labouring under accident, no patient can be admitted without a ticket of recommendation. This condition is indispensable, and the difficulties which it throws in the way of admission are only modified in a very slight degree by the circumstance of each governor being allowed to issue as many orders as he may think proper. The domestic servants of the latter can, at all times, have a ticket. Surely neither municipal etiquette nor personal influence ought to be permitted thus to reduce almost to nullity the only source of relief which the county has hitherto established, and intended exclusively as the means of restoring to usefulness and labour those of the producing classes who might, by accident or over exertion, be unable to support themselves or their families. There are so few subscribers

scribers to county hospitals, and the legal corporations of these establishments consist of so few persons, that the difficulty of obtaining recommendations is necessarily very considerable.

The foregoing remarks do not apply to the extern patients, who are relieved and provided with medicine without any recommendation being asked from them; whatever operation may be required is also performed without any charge. The institution possesses all the means of affording assistance in cases of accident.

The patients in the house are freely supplied with any article of extra nourishment which may be ordered by the surgeon, whatever wine may be required being always distributed under the special superintendence of that officer. There is no other charity in the district from which the sick poor can obtain relief in food, fuel or clothing.

It has been already intimated, that, strictly according to the regulations of the establishment, no other persons can be admitted to a participation in its benefits than the inhabitants of the county as contra-distinguished from the town of Galway. However, it frequently happens that the governors recommend for admission individuals belonging to the town, influenced by the consideration that no institution exists for the aid of the sick poor in the latter place, other than the Dispensary and Fever Hospital.

Whilst the patients remain in the house they never perform any labour. There is but one chaplain attached to the charity—a Roman catholic clergyman—but the clergy of all denominations are admitted to see the members of their respective communions whenever they think proper. No improper interference with respect to the opinions of the patients has ever taken place, nor has the circulation of controversial tracts been ever allowed in the wards. The salary of the chaplain is 10*l.* 10*s.* per annum.

The diet of the patients is arranged according to a schedule, which distinguishes the quantity of nourishment in reference to the state of health of each inmate.

The patients are not supplied with house-clothing.

The general management of the establishment is conducted by the governors, who are accustomed to hold occasional meetings for the transaction of business, in addition to the general assembly which takes place at the termination of the year for the passing of the accounts; of all these meetings minutes are kept.

The non-medical officers are the treasurer and the chaplain. There is no reason to suppose that religious prejudices operate in any degree to the exclusion of individuals from appointments in this institution. The medical officer is a Roman catholic.

The particulars of the following list of attendants and of their salaries are taken from the last annual report of the governors.

SALARIES.

	With Board.			Without Board.
	£.	s.	d.	£.	s.	d.
Barber - - - - -				9	4	7½
Porter and Gardener - - - - -				12	12	-
Purveyor - - - - -	11	1	6½
Matron - - - - -	10	10	-
First Nurse - - - - -	4	-	-
Second Nurse - - - - -	4	-	-
Third Nurse - - - - -	4	4	-

It is not the practice to contract for the several articles that are required for the internal consumption of the establishment, but certain printed forms have been prepared which appear well calculated to show at a glance the quantities of provisions which are supplied to the patients.

A code of very judicious regulations has been drawn up for the conduct of all connected with the establishment.

The Assistant Commissioners were supplied with copies of the reports which are annually drawn up respecting the extent to which the expenses of the charity have been carried, together with other particulars relating to its details. The following comparative statement of the number of patients admitted into and treated in the County Infirmary and the Galway Fever Hospital, respectively, in the year 1833, and of the average expense of one of these patients, is worthy of notice.

COUNTY INFIRMARY.

Patients admitted during the year 1833	-	-	-	232
				£. s. d.
Total expenditure during 1833	-	-	-	733 18 1
Deduct salaries and wages	-	-	-	215 17 8
Amount expended on patients	-	-	-	£. 517 - 5
Expense of each patient, exclusive of salaries	-	-	-	2 4 7½

COUNTY INFIRMARIES.

Connaught.
County Galway.

Examinations taken by
Sir D. Barry, M. D.
J. R. Corrie, Esq., M. D.

County Infirmary.

Intern Patients.

Diet.

Clothing.

General Management.

Officers not medical.

Attendants.

Stores.

Rules.

Reports.

COUNTY INFIRMARIES.

GALWAY FEVER HOSPITAL.

Patients admitted during the year 1833 - - - 253.

Connaught.
County Galway.

Examinations taken by
Sir D. Barry, M.D.
J. R. Corrie, esq., M.D.

County Infirmary.

Total expenditure	-	-	-	370	7	9
Deduct salaries and wages	-	-	-	156	7	6
Amount expended on patients	-	-	-	£.214	-	3

Expense of each patient, exclusive of salaries

When the relative size of the buildings and the comparative importance of the cases treated in both hospitals are considered, the conclusion is unavoidable that the sick and suffering poor might be made to derive much more good from county infirmaries than they do at present, and that certainly without any increase, and perhaps with a diminution of the actual expenses incurred by the counties. The town of Galway contains a very considerable number of persons both qualified and willing to take an active part in any system having for its object to become more minutely acquainted with the real condition of the labouring poor, and to render more extensively beneficial the resources destined for their relief.

The institution possesses some property in money, but to a very trifling extent when compared with its expenditure. The treasurer holds the bond of an individual indebted to the Infirmary for the amount of 500*l.* Irish, and there is also vested in the government 3½ per cent. stock the sum of 642*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* The chief support of the establishment is drawn from the county, which levies by presentment for its use, on an average, about 550*l.* per annum. A sum of between 80*l.* and 90*l.* is drawn from the Government, which, with life and annual subscriptions, makes up an average income of little more than 700*l.* a year. It deserves to be mentioned, that there is but one annual subscriber; he gives annually 3*l.* 3*s.* to the funds of the institution.

The funds which are vested in the government securities cannot be drawn but by a check signed by the treasurer and five governors.

The amount of income and expenditure of the infirmary was, in 1831.

	£.	s.	d.		£.	s.	d.
Income	731	16	3	Expenditure	711	19	11½
				Balance	19	16	3½
	£.731	16	3		£.731	16	3
1832.
	£.	s.	d.		£.	s.	d.
Balance from 1831	19	16	3½	Expenditure	713	18	1
Income	747	1	¾	Balance	52	19	3½
	£.766	17	4		£.766	17	4

And the following is a detailed account of the disbursements for the year ending 5th January 1834, as taken from the printed report for that period.

	£.	s.	d.		£.	s.	d.
Balance on 5th January 1833	52	19	3	Provisions, exclusive of wines, spirits and malt liquors	330	3	3
Vested balance	642	13	4	Wines, spirits and malt liquors	2	13	6
Interest thereon up to the 5th Jan. 1833	22	3	6	Medicines	34	8	9½
Life subscriptions for the year 1833	21	-	-	Surgical instruments	7	1	-
Annual subscriptions for the year 1833	3	3	-	Fuel, soap, candles and lamp oil	48	14	9
Parliamentary grant for the year 1833, ex pells and poundage	89	1	10	Repairs on furniture, bedding, &c.	5	19	-
Grand jury presentment	553	16	11	New articles of same	35	14	2
Petty sessions' fines	19	11	6	Repairs on building	64	15	6
				Salaries	215	-	-
				Contingent expenses, not included in the above	17	-	-
Total	£.1,404	9	4	Balance in favour of the public	642	19	4½
				Total	£.1,404	9	4

At the termination of the year the accounts are made up by the registrar, and are then examined, together with the vouchers, by the treasurer, who afterwards submits them to a meeting of at least five governors.

The institution affords neither medical nor surgical instruction, and it is only in secret and with much difficulty that even post-mortem examinations are effected.

Persons who attended the Examination.

JOHN CARSON, esq.—Rev. Mr. DAY.—Rev. JOHN FLANAGAN.—Mr. MICHAEL FLYNN.—ROBERT GOFF, esq.—Mr. HUSSEY, shopkeeper.—Mr. MORAN, deputy clerk of the peace.—Mr. TULLY, shopkeeper.—The Medical Attendant.—The apothecary of the Institution.

COUNTY INFIRMARIES.
Connaught.
Co. Roscommon.
Examinations taken by
Cusack Roney, esq.
W.P. Borrett, esq., M.D.

County Infirmary.

Population and
Extent of Country.

Building, Furniture
and Grounds.

Medical Officers.

Payment.

Election.

Pharmacy.

THIS is the only institution in the County Roscommon affording hospital accommodation for the sick, and it is by no means adequate to the wants of a population of nearly 200,000, some of whom live at a distance of more than 30 miles. It has a dispensary establishment attached, there being no dispensary within six miles. It is the custom here, when from want of room they cannot be admitted, to take lodgings for the patients in the town, where they are kept at the expense of the institution till there may be a vacancy. This procedure was said to be inconvenient, as well as a source of additional expense, and it was suggested, by way of remedy, that a small general hospital should be attached to a greater or less number, according to circumstances, of dispensary districts, and the whole placed under an active and impartial superintendence.

The hospital is advantageously situated at a short distance outside the town. It has an acre and a half of ground attached, with proper sewers, and is well supplied with good water. It consists of three stories and a basement, containing a kitchen, housekeeper's and store-room. Besides six wards containing 45 beds, it affords excellent accommodation for the residence of the surgeon. There is a large hall at the chief entrance, and on the left of it a spacious apartment, which is used as the pharmacy and surgery to the establishment. A very neat dispensary is also arranged in the lodge at the entrance-gate, quite apart from the hospital. The entire building and the furniture, together with beds, bedding, blankets, &c., in excellent order and neatly kept. It could with ease be made to accommodate about 50 patients. The out-buildings are devoted partly to the use of the medical attendant and partly to the purposes of the establishment. The entire is held from one of the governors by a lease of lives renewable for ever, at an annual rent of 7*l.* 1*s.* 1*d.*, and it is clear, that from the nature of the tenure no inconvenience can be experienced from a change of landlords or otherwise, and further, the lease being made to the treasurer for the time being, the premises may be deemed the property of the county.

The present medical attendant was appointed as surgeon of the establishment at a general meeting of governors in the year 1823; his qualifications are, his being a licentiate of the Royal College of Surgeons in Ireland, and possessing a diploma from the Lying-in Hospital, Dublin, in which city, previous to his election, he practised his profession. He is also surgeon to the county gaol, for which appointment he receives 75*l.* 18*s.* 6*d.* a year; but neither this nor his private practice, in which of course he is permitted to engage, ever interferes with his duties to the Infirmary, where, as he lives in the house, he is enabled to give assistance at all times. On one occasion only he was obliged to procure a proxy. In answer to the question, Whether the days and hours of attendance are found sufficient? the Assistant Commissioners were told that they were perfectly so in this instance, which however was not the case with other institutions. One gentleman remarked, that he was subscriber to some dispensaries where the attendance given was only one day in the week, which was quite absurd, when compared with the numbers of poor who required it. The physician of one of them resided at a distance of seven miles, and it was quite impossible his services could be of any account. He added, that he considered the only way to render medical charities really useful would be to invest the appointment of the medical officers in some authority capable of judging of their qualifications, and further to require constant attention, and, above all, residence on the spot. The medicines are dispensed by the apothecary, and given to the patients by the nurses.

The surgeon's salary is 115*l.* per annum, that of the apothecary 40*l.* Both these officers are provided with lodging. The Act of Parliament provides for the amount to be paid yearly to the medical officers of county infirmaries, but in other medical establishments which are often formed solely for the purpose of conferring an appointment on some individual, it is much to be regretted there is not any effectual check to such abuses, either in the powers possessed by the grand jury or elsewhere.

The late surgeon to the infirmary had held the office for more than 31 years, when he resigned with the permission of the governors, on condition of his receiving a sum of money from the present medical attendant who was then unanimously elected. The Act of Parliament requires that all candidates for the situation of surgeon to a county infirmary shall be either members or licentiates of the Royal College of Surgeons in Ireland, and there is not any restriction as to age. On occasion of the last election, although notice was given by advertisement in the newspapers, there were not any candidates besides the successful one as the circumstances above detailed were very generally known. It is not necessary that the grand jury should ever be informed of what takes place at their elections. A very efficient tribunal for checking any irregularity of attendance, or any harshness towards the poor on the part of the surgeon, is to be found in the subscribers, and of this the poor are well aware, and quite ready to avail themselves, indeed have occasionally done so. The Assistant Commissioners were informed that a medical attendant would not be retained if it were known that he was justly disliked by the poorer classes.

An abundant store of good medicine was to be found in the pharmacy room where every thing appeared in perfect order. The medicines were supplied by Messrs. Boileau & George,

COUNTY INFIRMARIES.

Connaught.
Co. Roscommon.

Examinations taken by
Cusack Roney, esq.
W.P.Borrett, esq., M.D.

County Infirmary,
and Dispensary.

Patients' Registration.

Who entitled to
Relief.

Patients.

Nourishment.

Intern Patients.

Diet.

Clothing.

George, of Dublin, who are annual subscribers of three guineas. Their bills for the last three years, which were discharged by the treasurer, were as follows:—

										£.	s.	d.
1831	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	109	8	8
1832	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	112	7	2
1833	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	116	5	10

The apothecary takes charge of the medicines, and is not allowed to sell them on any account. The Infirmary possesses the necessary apparatus for compounding medical pre- parations, with weights, scales, measures for dispensing them, and a stock of all the usual surgical instruments, besides two slipper-baths ; all of which are reserved for the use of the hospital; leeches, when required, are procured from the druggist.

The surgeon and apothecary, conjointly, keep a register in which they enter the name, residence, occupation, disease and result of treatment, of each patient, also the date of his admission, and the name of the subscriber recommending him. At the time of the visit of the Assistant Commissioners there were 45 intern patients, and from 150 to 200 were in the habit of attending the dispensary. About 15 capital operations had been per- formed during the last three years.

Sudden accidents are admitted at once and at all times, but on other occasions a recom- mendation is required, a condition not attended with any practical difficulty, as sub- scribers are not limited in the number of tickets they may issue, and one signature is suffi- cient. Servants of subscribers are never refused admittance, but otherwise the benefits of the charity are strictly reserved for those persons who stand really in need of gratuitous relief.

Mention has already been made of the dispensary for extern patients which had been established at the lodge attached to the Infirmary. It was stated that many persons come from remote parts of the country, passing on their way dispensaries nearer their homes, in order to avail themselves of the advice and medicine offered at this institution, the other medical attendants not possessing their confidence or not being found residing on the spot. The poor are attended at all hours, and as fre- quently as may be required. The prescription-book was examined by the Assistant Com- missioners who had reason to express their satisfaction with the formularies used. No prescriptions were made up except those of the medical attendant. Lying-in cases are not attended from the Infirmary, but it was said that two midwives resided in the town who had been educated at the Lying-in Hospital, Dublin, and that the moderate rate of their charges enabled the poor to have recourse very extensively to their services. The children of all who apply to the dispensary are gratuitously vaccinated on two days in the week. The opinions of the medical men are in favour of it, and the prejudices of the poor against the practice are giving way. There has, notwithstanding, been a good deal of small- pox of late years.

The extern department of this Infirmary is administered with great liberality, as at the surgeon's order food of all kinds and even wine is given to such poor as stand in need of nourishment when under medical treatment. There is no separate charity to relieve the funds of the Infirmary from this expense. The gentlemen present said they should be very glad if some measure could be introduced which would afford relief to the infirm through age as well as sickness, and the means of procuring employment for the able-bodied.

The mode of gaining admission having been already described, it remains to be stated that while in the house patients are treated with much kindness, and are permitted on each morning to receive the visits of their friends, but not to leave the hospital on any account. They assist in the cleaning of the wards, and, if females, occasionally spin for the use of the hospital. Cholera has never appeared here. No lunatic cases are admitted ; when such cases offer they are for the future to be sent to the District Lunatic Asylum. At present there are ten idiots, five of either sex, in the old county gaol which was converted into a temporary lunatic asylum, when the new gaol was opened. There is no chaplain attached, but the clergy of every persuasion have free access to the hospital, and are sent for whenever the patients express a wish for their services. The sub-treasurer reads the bible aloud every Sunday in the wards, in the presence of the patients, whether Protestant or Roman ca- tholic. He also has distributed religious tracts in the wards.

The subjoined is a copy of the dietary ; any extras deemed necessary are freely given, not only to those in the house, but also to those recommended to the dispensary.

FULL DIET.

Breakfast.—Half a pound of bread, one pint of milk.

Dinner.—Four pounds of potatoes, three quarters of a pound of meat and one pint of broth.

Supper. One quart of flummery and one pint of milk.

MIDDLE DIET.

Breakfast.—One pint of milk and one pint of meal.

Dinner. Half pound of meat, one pint of milk ; one pint of milk at night.

LOW DIET.

Breakfast.—Six ounces of meal, one pint of milk.

Dinner.—One quart of flummery, one pint of milk ; one pint of milk for night.

Wine, porter, tea and whey when particularly ordered.

The males are allowed half a pound of potatoes and two ounces of meal in the day more than females.

Hospital-clothes are not provided, and the patients being allowed to keep their own, hang them up about the walls, which gives to the wards a slovenly appearance.

There

There are about 20 life governors and 10 annual, in whom the management of the institution is vested; but the officers of the establishment have been in a great degree committed to the guidance of the surgeon and sub-treasurer. The vicar of the parish is a governor ex officio. General meetings are appointed to be held twice a year; scarcely, however, more attend than are sufficient to form a quorum, viz., five.

The governors do not direct any attention to the affairs of the charity, neither have they appointed a managing committee. There is not any board of superintendence fixed by the grand jury.

The treasurer, and the deputy treasurer are the only officers not medical. These were elected for an indefinite period by the subscribers, by open voting and without reference to their religious belief. The treasurer is merely nominal; the sub-treasurer accounts to the subscribers and the grand jury, he receives no pay, nor is he required to give any security. It appears that a registrar used to be retained till lately at the very great expense of 28 l. per annum. The salary was reduced the year before last to 11 l., and last year to 6 l.

All the attendants reside in the house and are provided with board, viz., the housekeeper 18 l. 10 s. per annum; the porter 8 l.; four nurses 4 l. 4 s. each, and one assistant 4 l. In addition, those among the nurses who have conducted themselves well receive a premium of five guineas every five years, a plan which has been found to answer exceedingly well. They are appointed by the governors, are paid by the sub-treasurer, and may be discharged by the housekeeper, with the consent of the sub-treasurer and surgeon. An allowance of ten guineas per annum is made to a superannuated matron.

There are not any stores; every thing is got by contract, tenders for which are annually invited by advertisement. The prices appear to be very moderate, viz., potatoes at 1 s. 6 d. per cwt., and milk at 1 d. per quart; the greatest economy is practised.

Reports and accounts are made up twice a year, and laid before the grand jury. The January report is printed and circulated amongst the subscribers.

The amounts of subscriptions received were, in 1831, 159 l. 8 s. 11 d.—1832, 298 l. 13 s. 4 d.—1833, 197 l. 11 s. 10 d.; but as the institution must be upheld by the county the amount of subscriptions and donations being small does not affect its existence. The only permanent property belonging to the institution is an annuity of 92 l. 6 s. 2 d. bequeathed by a lady, chargeable on the lands of Rockwood, in the county of Galway, and vested in the governors. None of the poorer classes subscribe.

The deputy treasurer collects the funds and keeps them; he also holds in his hands the lease of the premises. From 4 l. to 5 l. are given to the housekeeper to meet any incidental expenses, for which no security is required.

The following is a detailed account of the receipts and expenditure for the year ending 5th January 1834:

Dr.				Cr.
	£.	s.	d.		£.	s.	d.
To balance due on last account	51	11	1½	By pensions	380	6	½
Rent and rent charges	92	6	2	„ Wine and malt liquors	31	16	2
Annual subscriptions	37	16	—	„ Medicines	106	5	10½
Parliamentary grant, deducting				„ Fuel	42	4	—
pells and poundage	89	1	10	„ Soap and Candles	9	11	1
Grand jury presentments	553	16	11	„ Repairs, furniture & bedding	12	3	9
Petty sessions' fines	67	9	8	„ New articles of furniture	16	17	8½
Glass sold, &c.	2	10	6	„ Rent and insurance	16	13	8
Packages returned Messrs. Boileau				„ Salaries	223	9	2
and George	3	12	6	„ Contingencies	82	7	5½
Balance due to treasurer	23	10	2½
	£. 921	14	11		£. 921	14	11

The subjoined table exhibits the comparative amount of outlay for the three last with former years, and shows the number of intern patients in the same period.

YEARS.	Number of Intern Patients.	EXPENSE.
		£. s. d.
1831 - - -	492	964 11 4½	Average expense of each patient - - £1. 17 10.
1832 - - -	443	838 11 3
1833 - - -	503	921 14 11
Total - - -	1,438	2,724 17 6½
1823 - - -	288	649 5 7	Average expense of each patient - - - £2. 10 10
1824 - - -	310	802 11 4
1825 (not found) -
1826 - - -	313	864 19 -
Total - - -	911	2,316 15 11

COUNTY INFIRMARIES.

Connaught.
Co. Roscommon.

Leinster.
County Kildare.

Examinations taken by
Cusack Roney, esq.
W.P. Borrett, esq. M.D.

County Infirmary.

Population and
Extent of Country.

Building, Furniture
and Grounds

Medical Officer.

Payment.

Election.

Hence there is a saving of 13 s. effected upon each patient on comparing the present with the former cost. This difference is only to be accounted for by the contracts having been publicly advertised, and in consequence the expenses considerably lessened, and every economy being practised in the institution.

Persons who attended the Examination.

Col. BAGOT, J.P.—Rev. Mr. BOURN.—H. CASSIDY, esq.—Rev. WILLIAM COX.— — — — — DISNEY, esq.—WILLIAM DUNN, esq.—THOMAS MANGAN, esq.—PONSONBY MOORE, esq. J.P.—DOMINICK O'REILY, esq., J.P.—The Medical Attendant.—The Steward and Registrar.—The Matron.

THE Kildare Infirmary as its name implies, is intended to afford hospital accommodation to the poorer classes of the population of the entire county, which according to the enumeration of the year 1831 contained rather more than 108,000 inhabitants. The county does not possess any second institution of a similar character, but there are several dispensaries for providing external assistance, of which the following are within six miles of the town of Kildare, and in the directions indicated, namely, Rathangan, five miles to the north; Newbridge, four miles to the east; Monastereven, five miles to the west. These and other like charities are considered to be amply sufficient for the wants of those for whom they have been designed. The witnesses refer more particularly to the establishment at present under consideration, and they state that no instance has occurred where an application for admission has been refused when made under the proper conditions as to recommendation. It has, however, occasionally happened that a delay of one or two days has arisen in the reception of a patient, but whenever a case of an urgent nature has presented itself, it has been taken in under any circumstances, and temporary accommodation has been prepared until a vacancy has been made in the regular way. Judging from the number of beds which were occupied at the time of their visit, the Assistant Commissioners were disposed to think that the hospital was fully adequate to the necessities of the surrounding district attached to it, so far as regards diseases of a non-contagious character, but as its regulations forbid the admission of patients labouring under fever, the formation of an hospital for the treatment of such cases is loudly called for.

The situation which has been selected for the Kildare Infirmary, has the advantage of being open to a free circulation of air, and of admitting good sewerage. The building, which is three stories in height, and constructed of stone, stands upon about an acre of ground and has very commodious out-buildings attached to it. It contains altogether ten rooms, of which five are appropriated to the use of the surgeon and of the attendants, consisting of the housekeeper and nurses. The remainder are arranged as wards, each 16 feet by 14 feet, and containing together 32 beds. There is also a bath and a waiting-room for patients. The premises are the property of the county, being held rent free under a lease of lives renewable for ever.

The medical duties of the Infirmary are performed exclusively by the resident surgeon, who was appointed to the situation in the year 1818 at a meeting of the governors. He is a member of the Royal College of Surgeons in Ireland, and received his education in midwifery at Edinburgh. Previous to his connexion with the present institution he had been surgeon to the County of Kildare Militia. However, he does not any longer hold any second appointment, but is permitted to engage in private practice. He is bound to go round the wards every day at half-past nine o'clock, and he acts in the joint capacity of surgeon and physician. He is assisted in the dispensation of medicines by his apprentice, who has been engaged in professional studies for a period of three years and a half, and is sufficiently qualified to act in the absence of his master. In case the latter should have occasion to leave his post he would, subject to the sanction of the governors, be allowed to provide a substitute, but this, it is stated, he has never been obliged to do. As to the security possessed by the public for regularity in the discharge of his duties, it is observed by the witnesses, that the poor are well aware of their being able to obtain redress for any harshness or neglect shown to them, by laying their complaints in the hands of any of the subscribers to the charity, who would take measures for their being investigated by the committee. This has been done on more than one occasion, but the Assistant Commissioners were assured that the surgeon was nevertheless in the enjoyment of the general confidence of the poor.

The surgeon receives a salary of 89 l. 1 s. 10 d. from Government, to which the county makes an annual addition of 92 l. 6 s. 1 1/2 d., making a total of 181 l. 7 s. 11 1/2 d. per annum. He receives nothing towards the maintenance of a horse, but is entitled to an allowance for turf and candles. The apartments which he occupies in the institution have been furnished at his own expense. Whatever discretion the managers of dispensaries may have it in their power to exercise in the payments granted to their medical officers, there is no chance that the surgeon of the County Infirmary can ever receive a higher rate of remuneration than is deemed by the grand jury to be commensurate with his services. That body presents for his salary, and has entire control over its amount.

The choice of the medical attendant is placed altogether in the hands of the governors, without being liable to any interference on the part of the grand jury; their choice is no further restricted than that they are obliged to select an individual who has obtained the letters testimonial of the Royal College of Surgeons in Ireland. On the occurrence of the last

COUNTY INFIRMARIES.

Leinster.
County Kildare.

Examinations taken by
Cusack Roney, esq.
W. P. Borrett, esq.

County Infirmary.

Pharmacy.

last vacancy, an advertisement inviting candidates to come forward was inserted in the newspapers, but it was not successful in causing competition, as no one appeared except the gentleman who was appointed. It is stated that no allowance would be granted to the surgeon in case he should think proper to resign his situation. There has been no mortality among the medical men who have at different times been attached to the institution. The neighbourhood of Kildare does not contain many persons of wealth, at least not in sufficient numbers to support a medical man independent of the Infirmary. In point of fact no practitioners are established nearer than at Rathangan, and at Naas; and there is reason to suppose that none of them would be willing to attend upon the poor gratuitously.

The pharmacy was found by the Assistant Commissioners to be arranged with considerable neatness, and to contain a good stock of all necessary implements and pharmaceutical apparatus. The supply of medicine was of the best quality, and included all the more delicate preparations, such as quinine and morphia. They had been purchased under the sanction of the committee from the Messrs. Boileau & George, druggists, in Dublin, who are quite unconnected with the charity. It was stated the annual cost of medicine, as paid for by the treasurer, had averaged about 50*l.* during the last three years. The medicines are placed under the care of the surgeon, or, during the absence of that officer, under that of his apprentice, and no part of them is permitted to be sold. As the surgeon does not practice as an apothecary he does not retain any medicines for his private patients. There are not any surgical instruments provided by the establishment for the medical attendant, who is, in consequence, obliged to have recourse to his private stock, which is fortunately sufficient for all ordinary purposes. The patients are freely supplied with leeches, when circumstances render their application advisable; some attention is also paid to the diffusion of vaccination, and all persons who apply for the performance of the operation obtain it gratuitously. The number, however, of those who seek it is small, and as they are very irregular in their attendance they do not admit of the stock of matter being constantly kept up. At the same time the confidence of the public is said to be increasing in the efficacy of the practice; and the surgeon states that he looks upon it, if not, as wholly preventive of small-pock, at least as having the tendency to mitigate the intensity of its symptoms. The latter disease has been comparatively rare during the last few years in the district around Kildare, and the surgeon, though not prevented from so doing, has never been in the habit of inoculating with variolous matter.

The medical attendant keeps a register in which are entered the names of all patients, together with the date of their admission. The period of their discharge is also mentioned, as well as the number of deaths which take place. As for those who may happen to be refused admittance, the reasons for such refusals are always assigned on the back of the recommendation which the applicant has presented. At the termination of each year the grand jury are furnished with a statement of the extent to which the institution has granted relief. At the period of the Assistant Commissioners' visit there were 16 patients in the house, and it was stated that about 30 persons, on an average, received advice and medicine each day, as extern patients. No operation of any importance had taken place during the previous three years, nor had any lying-in women been attended during that time.

No persons are admitted as intern patients unless they have obtained the recommendation of a subscriber; but those poor persons who only seek for extern aid are freely prescribed for, without any restriction. The condition attached to admission is not, however, productive of any obstacle, as each subscriber is entitled to issue an unlimited number of orders in his own name, which can, without much difficulty, be procured even by those who are unknown to the subscribers. The servants of subscribers frequently take advantage of the benefits of the charity; but there is no reason to suppose that any individuals besides those whose circumstances really entitle them to gratuitous assistance, are ever relieved by it.

It has been already intimated that the poor receive advice and medicine at this institution; but as this is a county establishment, intended chiefly for the treatment of the sick in hospital, the medical attendant is not required to visit patients at their own houses. Professional aid would be granted on application at any hour of the day or night, as well as immediate assistance rendered in case of accidents.

All kinds of nourishment, such as circumstances may render necessary, are freely supplied to the patients in the house, under the superintendence of the surgeon and at the cost of the institution; there is no charity in the neighbourhood to afford its aid in this particular.

In cases of severe accident a deviation is made from the general rule of admitting no intern patients without a recommendation. When once a patient has entered, he is not permitted to leave the bounds of the institution so long as he remains under treatment, but his friends are at liberty to visit him once a week, subject to certain printed regulations which have been framed for the purpose of insuring order and good conduct in the establishment. When the patients have become convalescent they are sometimes called upon to assist in cleaning the wards. Lunatics are not admitted under any circumstances, nor would cholera patients be admitted. That disease did not appear in the institution.

Chaplains have never been attached to the Infirmary, but the clergy of all religious persuasions are considered to have a right of visiting in the hospital at all times, and more especially in cases which threaten danger to life, the members of their respective churches who may be confined in the house, so that a patient has every facility in seeing his clergyman if he expresses a wish to that effect. The several officers of the establishment were interrogated by the Assistant Commissioners as to whether any improper interference had ever taken place with the doctrinal opinions of the patients, either on the part of laity or of clergy.

Patients' Registration.

Who entitled to Relief.

Extern Patients.

Nourishment.

Intern Patients.

COUNTY INFIRMARIES.

Leinster.
County Kildare.

Examinations taken by
Cusack Roney, esq.
W. P. Borrett, esq.

County Infirmary.

General Management.

Managing
Committee.

Officers not
Medical.

Attendants.

Stores.

Reports.

Funds and
Accounts.

Collection and
Custody.
Expenditure.

Accounts.

Medical and Surgical Instruction.

County Louth.

Examinations taken by
Sir D. Barry, M. D.
J. R. Corrie, esq., M. D.

County Infirmary,
and Dispensary.

Population and
Extent of Country.

clergy. They replied that nothing of the kind had ever occurred, and that it would not be tolerated. It was also stated that neither theological nor controversial tracts had been ever circulated in the wards.

The diet of the patients is arranged in conformity with a printed schedule, which was submitted to the inspection of the Assistant Commissioners, who were informed that several extra comforts were afforded when required.

The institution does not supply its inmates with clothing.

The principal direction is constituted of about 14 governors, who all enjoy similar privileges. They hold meetings on fixed days, at which three members constitute a quorum, those attending in general not exceeding that number. Minutes are kept of the proceedings of these meetings, and votes are never taken by proxy.

The details of management are confided to a managing committee, who meet whenever there is occasion for their authority. There is no board of superintendence, nor have any visiting governors been appointed, although they are always at liberty to inspect the working of the establishment.

The only non-medical officer is the treasurer. He was appointed by the governors, without any reference to the authority of the grand jury. He receives no remuneration for his services, nor is he required to give any security, being expected to submit his accounts every year to the governors as well as to the grand jury. The mode of electing the treasurer is by open voting, and the witnesses consider it to be the most desirable way. There has been no ground for suspecting that religious prejudices have had any share in the selection of the present officer, who is a Roman catholic.

The attendants in the service of the charity are—the steward, salary 40*l.* per annum; the housekeeper, 20*l.* per annum; a porter, 13*l.* 16*s.* 9*d.* per annum; two nurses, at 15*l.* 15*s.* each per annum. These all reside in the house, with the exception of the steward. The housekeeper is allowed her board. Their appointment rests with the governors at large, by whom alone they can be discharged. They are paid by the treasurer.

Every thing required for the consumption of the institution is procured by contract, and the Assistant Commissioners were assured that although it sometimes happened that a governor became a contracting party, yet every thing was supplied at the very lowest rate.

Every year a report is presented to the governors and to the grand jury relative to the number of persons who have been relieved, and the expenses which have been incurred. Up to 1824 these reports were annually printed, but the Assistant Commissioners were unable to procure a copy of a later date than that year. The witnesses expressed an opinion strongly in favour of the formation of permanent boards of health for circumscribed districts. They stated that a large number of persons belonging to the upper and middle classes of society in this neighbourhood could be found, who would willingly co-operate in the duties of such an establishment, and who would be every way qualified to take a part in an investigation into the actual condition of the poor.

The income of the infirmary is made up of subscriptions, donations, fines, and a presentment granted by the county. Some of the subscribers contribute to the extent of 20 guineas a year, and none give less than three guineas. However, the existence of the charity is quite independent of any precarious mode of support, inasmuch as it must be upheld by the county. The gross annual income during the last three years has been as follows:—

1831.	1832.	1833.
£665 11 s. 10 d.	£856 19 s. 1½ d.	£654 6 s. 9½ d.

The funds are paid into the hands of the treasurer, with whom alone any property is allowed to remain.

No bill can be paid until it has been examined by the committee. By their order payments are made through the steward. The expenditure in—

	£.	s.	d.
1831 was	-	-	-
1832 -	-	-	-
1833 -	-	-	-
	708	18	0½
	747	13	3½
	654	6	9½

The accounts of the establishment are balanced every year, and are laid before the subscribers and the grand jury.

The instruction afforded by the present institution is limited to the education of the apprentice of the surgeon, who is permitted to assist his master.

Persons who attended the Examination.

Dr. GILLICHEN.—ALEXANDER SHEKLETON, Esq.;—and The Medical Attendant.

THE present institution is at the same time an infirmary and a dispensary. In the latter capacity it is considered by the witnesses to be fully adequate to supplying external relief to the poor of the district for which it is intended, but as an hospital it has been found to form a source of medical assistance altogether deficient. It has been necessary to refuse not less than 90 applications for admission, and, under such circumstances, the two medical gentlemen who were present at the examination gave their opinion that small district hospitals hospitals should be opened in different parts of the county, and that each should be arranged for the reception as well of surgical as of medical cases. The Louth Infirmary, as its name implies, is intended for the whole county in which it is situated; but there are some other medical charities in its neighbourhood; namely, the Ballymacscanlan Dispensary to the north, the Forkhill Dispensary to the north-west, the Castle Bellingham Dispensary to the south, and the Louth Dispensary to the west. A nobleman who resides in the neighbourhood has also formed a private establishment for affording advice and medicine to his own tenantry.

The house is built of stone, two stories in height, and stands upon an area of 50 feet by 45. No record has been kept of the expenses incurred in the construction. The surgery is about 15 feet by 14, in good repair, well kept and furnished, but the remainder of the building is old. The furniture for the house department is good. The number of beds for patients is 17, in two male and one female wards. They are at present occupied by 12 male patients and five females. These wards are as well ventilated as the construction of a house not originally intended for an hospital will admit, and they contain sleeping places for the porter and the nurse. One sitting room and one bed room are appropriated to the use of the matron; there is also a waiting-room for extern patients. Although the greater part of the town of Dundalk labours under the disadvantage of a low situation, the hospital is placed in a comparatively favourable position, yet without elevation, and with no particular shelter. There is a small garden of about the same area as the house. There are also the usual out-offices occupied for the purposes of the institution, and which have been recently erected at the expense of its own funds. The entire premises are held under the Earl of Roden at an annual rent of 2 s. 6 d. per acre, and by a tenure which precludes inconvenience from change of owners. The county of Louth is at present engaged in the construction of a new hospital upon an extensive scale, intended to contain 20 male and 12 female patients, with every necessary accommodation for house-surgeon, matron and servants, together with baths. The site has been judiciously selected, and the building is in rapid progress towards completion. It is thought that it will be ready for the objects of its design in the month of August 1835; and its cost is estimated at 3,000 l., which it is hoped to defray from the savings of the present establishment, and from the contributions of private individuals.

The surgeon of the Infirmary is a licentiate of the Royal College of Surgeons in Ireland, and a graduate of the Edinburgh University. His education in midwifery was received in Dublin, and he is now engaged in the practice of all the branches of the medical profession. He resides at a short distance from the hospital, to which he was appointed in the year 1832. For the six years previous to that year he had been medical superintendent of the Killucan Dispensary; at present he holds no second appointment. He is obliged to attend at the hospital daily between the hours of 10 and 12, and from the visitors' report book, as well as from the personal observation of the Assistant Commissioners, he appears to have discharged the duties of his office with great zeal and ability. He has never had recourse to the aid of a substitute, but he would be permitted to do so in case of circumstances requiring his temporary absence, by making timely application to the official authorities. There is but one other medical officer, namely, the apothecary. This gentleman is a member of the Apothecaries' Company in Dublin, and his duties are confined to the compounding and seeing administered the remedies which have been prescribed by the surgeon. His hours of attendance at the institution correspond with those of the last-named officer, and he is liable to be dismissed by the governors assembled as a board, if any charge of gross irregularity or neglect be established against him. It is understood by the poor that they are authorized to prefer their complaints to this board, and this privilege they exercise with perfect security.

The salary of the surgeon is 89 l. 1 s. 8 d.; that of the apothecary 44 l. per annum. The former is paid from the government grant, the latter from the general fund of the institution. There are no additional allowances of any description to either officer, and as has been before intimated, there is no accommodation provided for them in the hospital. The amount of their emoluments cannot be said to depend altogether on the discretion of the governors. The charity is not entitled to demand more than 600 l. annually, and, in point of fact, it has never been customary to apply for more than 500 l. a year, so that, there is not much room for extravagance in the emoluments secured to the officers.

The right of appointing the surgeon is vested in the governors, and the conditions for voting are regulated by the provisions of the Act of Parliament. The grand jury is not possessed of any control on the point. The electors are limited in their choice to members or licentiates of the Royal College of Surgeons in Ireland; but there is no restriction as to age. Whenever a vacancy has occurred notice of the intention to fill it has been inserted in the public journals, and there has in general been very considerable competition for the situation. At the last election of surgeon there were seven candidates. Notwithstanding that the numerous residents in independent circumstances, who are to be found in the town and neighbourhood of Dundalk, are amply sufficient to maintain a medical man without the aid of a salary from a public institution, there is but one practitioner in the district qualified to be elected to the Louth Infirmary. With respect to superannuations among the officers of that establishment no rule has hitherto been laid down, but it is stated that none of them would be considered entitled to a retiring allowance in case of resignation.

The pharmacy was visited by the Assistant Commissioners, and it was found to be in the best condition, and to have been very carefully kept. The list of medicines included

COUNTY INFIRMARIES.

Leinster.
County Louth.

Examinations taken by
Sir D. Barry, M. D.
J. R. Corrie, esq., M. D.

County Infirmary,
and Dispensary.

Building, Furniture
and Grounds.

Medical Officer.

Payment.

Election.

Pharmacy.

COUNTY INFIRMARIES.

Leinster.
County Louth.

Examinations taken by
Sir D. Barry, M.D.
J. R. Corrie, esq., M.D.

County Infirmary,
and Dispensary.

every thing that could be desired in general practice, and the drugs appeared to be of excellent quality. They had been procured, through the medium of the governors, from the house of Boileau and George, druggists, in Dublin. The expense during each of the three previous years had been as follows:

Year ending January 5th, 1832	£	s.	d.
Ditto 1833	29	18	7
Ditto 1834	27	18	7
	54	14	2

Messrs. Borleau and George are governors of the institution, and it may not be unnecessary to state, that invariably throughout Ireland, the firm which supplies drugs to a medical charity is a subscriber to the funds of the same. The medicines are placed under the charge of the two medical officers. The surgeon is not engaged in business as an apothecary, but the apothecary has an establishment in the town, in which, however, the medicines are kept totally unconnected with those of the Infirmary. The pharmaceutical apparatus consists of some cast-iron pots. There is a moderate stock of surgical instruments belonging to the hospital. They are occasionally used for other purposes than those, strictly speaking, of the charity, and are also sometimes used in private practice, but this may be done without any injury to the institution. Leeches are ordered as wanted from an apothecary; but the medical attendant prefers the application of cupping-glasses.

There are no regulations respecting the diffusion of vaccination. However, the surgeon has been in the habit of vaccinating gratuitously all who applied for it; he has the privilege of procuring vaccine matter from the Cow-pock Institution, in Dublin. Small-pock has not been a disease of much frequency of late years; and it is stated, that the confidence of the public in the preservative efficacy of vaccination, which was never great, has latterly shown some tendency to decrease. Inoculation with variolous matter is not prohibited by any definite bye-laws, but it has never been practiced by the medical attendant.

Patients' Registration.

A register is kept by the surgeon of all the cases which are treated by him in connexion with the Infirmary. The following abstract of the register for the year ending January 5th, 1834, will show the amount of relief granted in that time. It does not include the extern patients, who were treated at the dispensary attached to the Infirmary, and who were supplied with advice and medicine. Their number in the same period amounted to 4,098:

Designation of Diseases.	Remaining at the Close of 1832.	Admitted during 1833.	Total treated during the Year.	Discharged.	Died.	Remaining at the Close of 1833.	Rate of Mortality 1 in Continued fever - - -
Intermittent ditto - - -
Diarrhœa and dysentery - - -		1	1	1
Chronic cases - - -		77	77	74	3
Capital operations - - -	13	5	5	5
Wounds and ulcers - - -		71	71	67	4
Fractures and dislocations - - -		21	21	21
Total - - -	13	175	175	168	7	16	25

Who entitled to Relief.

A summary of the register is also periodically submitted to the grand jury. At the time that the Assistant Commissioners visited the Infirmary the number of patients in the house was 17. On the same day the number relieved at the dispensary amounted to 31.

Every person applying for assistance must have provided himself with the recommendation of a governor; and by a bye-law it is provided that each governor shall only be entitled to recommend two patients for external relief on each dispensary day. However, this rule is not attended to with much strictness, and, as before said, the condition which is enforced, is that of having a ticket, to which a single signature gives the requisite validity. An exception is made with reference to persons suffering from accidents, and to other urgent cases. Such are unconditionally relieved at all hours. The servants of subscribers are not exempted from the rule requiring a recommendation. There have been a few instances in which individuals not in need of gratuitous aid have, nevertheless, contrived to avail themselves of the benefits of the charity. None of the subscribers belong to the poorer classes.

Extern Patients.

With reference more particularly to the extern patients, they are, as has been already stated, received at the dispensary on certain fixed days, when they are provided with advice and medicine; but no poor are attended at their own dwellings. This is the less necessary, inasmuch as all accidents are taken into the hospital without delay. Midwifery cases are not attended, except when they present themselves in the wards of the house. The females of the poorer classes are attended during their confinement by midwives, who, as a body, are said to be possessed of little skill, and to be the not unfrequent causes of injury to those who are placed in their hands.

COUNTY INFIRMARIES.

Leinster.
County Louth.

Examinations taken by
Sir. D. Barry, M.D.
J. R. Cortie, esq., M.D.

County Infirmary,
and Dispensary.

Intern Patients.

Diet.

Clothing.

General Manage-
ment.

Managing Committee.

Officers not
medical.

Attendants.

Stores.

Reports.

Funds and
Accounts.
Receipts.

Extern Patients.

Articles of food are supplied to the intern patients alone. For the extern there is no source in the neighbourhood whence such things are in any mode to be obtained.

The bearer of a subscriber's recommendation is entitled to admission into the Hospital, provided that there be a vacancy, and that the surgeon consider him a proper object. The intern patients are occasionally allowed to leave the house, and their friends are permitted to visit them twice a week, between the hours of 12 and 2; but although, sometimes, when in a state of convalescence, required to assist the servants of the establishment in their duties, they are never called upon to do any work for the benefit of individuals connected with the charity. There are no chaplains, but the clergy of all religious denominations are considered to have a right of free access to the inmates at all hours, so that the sick can avail themselves of their services whenever they express a wish to that effect. It does not appear that improper interference has ever taken place with regard to the religious opinions of the patients. The Infirmary was not opened to persons labouring under cholera, during the prevalence of that epidemic.

The allowance of food to the patients is regulated by a fixed diet table, calculated according to their several states. Any extra comforts which may be recommended by the surgeon are also freely allowed.

Each patient is supplied with an hospital shirt on his entrance into the house. It is to be regretted that no arrangements have been made for storing and purifying the clothes which the sick bring with them.

The general management is in the hands of the governors, and is in no degree controlled by any of the officers. The governors attend to the interests of the institution with much assiduity, and are very regular in their quarterly meetings, at which five of their number constitute a quorum. They are all possessed of equal privileges as to voting, in which proxies are only taken from ladies. Minutes are always kept of the proceedings of the quarterly meetings, of which one was held on the day that the Assistant Commissioners happened to be at the charity. It was attended by nine gentlemen, including the treasurer.

No managing committee has ever been appointed, but the governors can at all times enter and inspect the details of the establishment, and there is a report-book kept for them in which to enter their remarks.

All officers are elected by the subscribers at large. The appointment of the treasurer, who also acts as secretary and collector, is permanent, and is made by open voting, and without reference to sectarian distinctions. The treasurer is allowed 13*l.* 16*s.* 11*d.* annually for managing the accounts, and they are transmitted by him to the Imprest Office in Dublin after he has sworn to them on being inspected by the governors. He has not entered into any security, nor has he ever been called on to do so.

The attendants are four in number, namely, a porter, a matron and two nurses. They all reside in the house, and, with the exception of the matron, are provided with board. Their wages are paid to them at the quarterly meetings, and are as follows, viz.,

	£.	s.	d.
Matron - - - - -	50	-	-	per annum.
Porter - - - - -	12	12	-	"
First Nurse - - - - -	8	8	-	"
Second Nurse - - - - -	7	7	-	"

All these servants are appointed by the governors, and may also be discharged by them. No deaths have occurred among the attendants.

The several articles required for the internal consumption of the hospital are supplied by contract, and it has sometimes happened that governors have been the contracting parties. With respect to the property belonging to the charity, it has never been usual to lend any portion of it, but the governors have the power of doing so if they think proper.

The reports are made in conformity with the Act of Parliament, but they have not in general been printed.

The charity possesses a capital of about 3,600*l.*, principally vested in 3 $\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. government securities, and affording a yearly return of 130*l.* The principal part of its income, however, is derived from grants annually allowed by the county and by the Government, and from the annual contributions and donations of private individuals. Some of the subscriptions are for 20*l.*, and the lowest is for 3*l.* 3*s.* The three former sources of income are those upon which the existence of the institution more especially depends. The following abstracts of the general accounts will show the gross annual income and expenditure for the years 1831, 1832, 1833. They are taken from the statement which is annually prepared by the treasurer, and which is, as has been already mentioned, audited by the governors assembled in board, and afterwards forwarded to the official authorities in Dublin. No payment can be made except through the treasurer, who always keeps a small balance in hand to meet contingencies.

1831.

RECEIPTS:				EXPENDITURE:
	£.	s.	d.		£.	s.	d.
County grant - - - - -	461	10	9	Salaries - - - - -	199	15	1
Government grant - - - - -	89	1	10	Provisions - - - - -	92	3	11
Fines at petty sessions - - - - -	71	11	-	Medicines - - - - -	67	16	1
Interest on funds - - - - -	77	-	3	Coals and soap, &c. - - - - -	24	18	-
Subscriptions and donations - - - - -	195	6	-	Contingencies - - - - -	102	16	4
	£.894	9	10		£.487	9	5

COUNTY INFIRMARIES.

Leinster.
County Louth.

Examinations taken by
Sir D. Barry, M.D.
J. R. Corrie, esq., M.D.

Drogheda
Infirmary and
Dispensary.

kept with much regularity, and some of the more important ones are instructively recorded in detail. On the day that the institution was visited by the Assistant Commissioners, the wards contained but six patients, all of them labouring under ulcers. It was, however, stated that, including 12 who remained in hospital on the 5th of January 1833, there had been admitted in the year subsequent to that date a total of 98 patients, of which number were—

Discharged	-	-	-	-	-	-	82
Died	-	-	-	-	-	-	6
Remained in hospital January 5th 1834	-	-	-	-	-	-	10
							98

During the same period the number of applicants, fit objects for the institution, who were nevertheless refused admittance from want of room, was not less than 50. Febrile affections are represented to constitute the most ordinary diseases of the district, but they have not presented themselves in an epidemic form since the year 1832. Smallpox has latterly manifested itself to a considerable extent among the poorer classes of the population, owing in great measure to the reprehensible conduct of some of the medical practitioners residing in the town of Drogheda, who have been in the habit of inoculating with variolous matter. They have been the cause of a great mortality, and the Assistant Commissioners were witnesses to five cases of inoculated smallpox, which were presented in one day at the dispensary. Vaccination is there performed gratuitously, but it has been found to afford but a doubtful security, and the confidence of the public in its efficacy is on the decline.

Patients seeking for medical relief must be provided with the recommendation of a governor, but the medical attendant is authorized to use his discretion in determining whether the applicant be a fit object for participation in the benefits of the charity or not.

The dispensary has been set on foot for the assistance of patients not requiring to be taken into the hospital. Besides those who are provided with advice and medicine at the institution on the public days, those of the sick poor who may be incapacitated from presenting themselves there are entitled to call for the attendance of the surgeon at their own dwellings, provided they be situated within a radius of one mile and a half. No charge for horse hire is ever made for such visits.

The intern patients are provided with every necessary during the course of their treatment except clothes. Their own clothes are, on their admission, sent back to their families in order to be washed.

Their diet is regulated according to a schedule, which contains two rates, namely, full diet and low diet. Those who are placed on full diet are allowed half a pound of boiled beef, without bone, on Sundays and Thursdays. Low diet consists, daily, of half a pound of bread, two quarts of new milk and one quart of buttermilk.

The general management of the establishment is under the direction of the governors, who at present are only five in number, of whom one, namely, the clergyman of the parish, acts in virtue of his office. A general meeting takes place every year, which is usually attended by a majority of the body, and of which the proceedings are regularly registered in a book kept for the purpose, which was exhibited to the Assistant Commissioners.

There is also a managing committee, of which the meetings are appointed to be held quarterly, and are in general attended by a sufficient number for the transaction of business.

The treasurer is the only non-medical officer.

One of the attendants, namely, the porter, is employed to act as collector. To this duty he was appointed by the medical attendant, and he receives 5*l.* per annum for his trouble. The other servants are, a matron and a nurse. The former, who is paid 21*l.* a year, was also appointed by the surgeon at the recommendation of the governors. She is provided with lodging, and with coals and candles. The nurse's wages are 4*l.* 4*s.* per annum, and in addition she is entitled to the full diet of the hospital.

The nature of the several sources of income on which the charity is dependent for its support, is best shown by the following table of receipts for the year ending January 5, 1834. It is necessary to premise that there are two classes of subscribers, and that no contributions are received lower than one guinea. Those who give the latter sum annually, or any thing less than 3*l.* 3*s.*, are only entitled to recommend patients for external relief at the dispensary. The other class, who give 3*l.* 3*s.* and upwards, may demand assistance for an unlimited number of patients, both in the hospital and as extern.

INCOME:							£.	s.	d.
Subscriptions	-	-	-	-	-	-	49	7	-
County presentment	-	-	-	-	-	-	92	6	1 ³ / ₄
Interest on stock	-	-	-	-	-	-	83	1	6
Fines from sessions	-	-	-	-	-	-	22	16	6
Parliamentary grant	-	-	-	-	-	-	92	6	1 ³ / ₄
Corporation - ditto	-	-	-	-	-	-	50	-	-
							£.389	17	3 ¹/₂

The funds of the institution lie until wanted with the treasurer.

0.5.

Y Y 4

EXPENDITURE

Who entitled to Relief.

Extern Patients.

Intern Patients.
Clothing.

Diet.

General Management.

Managing Committee.

Officers not medical.
Attendants.

Funds and Accounts.

Custody.

COUNTY INFIRMARIES.		EXPENDITURE for the Year ending January 5, 1834 :
		£. s. d.
Leinster. County Louth. Examinations taken by Sir D. Barry, M. D. J. R. Corrie, esq., M. D. Drogheda Infirmiary and Dispensary.	Surgeon's salary	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	92	6	1 ³ / ₄
	" " as apothecary	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	64	12	8 ³ / ₄
	Rent	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	20	-	-
	Fund for the hospital	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	15	15	-
	Stationery	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	4	11	-
	Medicines	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	46	6	4 ¹ / ₂
	Collector's fees	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	3	3	-
	Servant's wages	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	25	4	-
	Provisions	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	96	-	3 ¹ / ₂
	Repairs	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	12	15	2
Sundries	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	1	-	-
Expenditure.		£.381 13 8 ¹/₂

Accounts.

Three years' rent remain unpaid, and the treasurer is in advance 51 l. 12 s. 9 d. leaving the institution in debt 111 l. 1 s. 3 d., to meet which, application has been made for an increase of the usual presentment. All disbursements are made by the treasurer to the order of the governors.

County Meath.

The accounts are audited once a year, and a report submitted to the governors in full meeting. It appears, from an account kept during the last month, that the average daily expense of each patient has been exactly 8 ¹/₂ d.

County Infirmiary.

Population.

* THIS institution was established in the year 1754 by the county, the population of which, according to the census taken in 1831, was 177,023. The situation of the house is dry and airy, and the space immediately around and belonging to it is in extent about a quarter of an acre, which is laid out as a grass plot. The building stands nearly north and south. There are seven wards capable of containing 40 beds. The actual number of beds in the hospital was 26. Besides the sick wards there are two rooms for the dispensary, and two more for the porter. The nurse sleeps in one of the wards, there being no room particularly intended for her. There is no other similar institution within the county.

Building.

The house is built of stone, and is three stories high, with 20 windows in front, five of which are blind. The exact expense of the building could not be ascertained. The ground on which it stands is elevated, and near to the river Boyne. In consequence of the hospital being old and very inconveniently constructed, its state, in point of repair, cleanliness, &c., is by no means good. The drainage requires much improvement, and the ventilation of the wards should be more free.

Medical Officers.

The medical officer, who principally attends this institution, is a graduate of the university of Glasgow, and licentiate of the College of Surgeons of Dublin. He is 40 years of age and attached to the hospital eight years. The apothecary is a member of the Company of Apothecaries in Dublin, who acts also as secretary, at an additional salary of 12 l. 18 s. 8 d. per annum. He is provided with apartments in the hospital, and has fuel and candles allowed. The physician has an additional salary of 92 l. 4 s. 6 d. as chief medical superintendent of the dispensary attached to the hospital, making a total salary of 184 l. 12 s. He is a governor ex officio. The dispensary patients are not visited at their dwellings. The physician attends seven times a week at 10 o'clock, and prescriptions are dispensed to out-patients every day by the apothecary. Medical duties are never permanently performed by proxy, whether paid or unpaid. There is no visiting apothecary.

Election.

The treasurer was elected by the governors. He is permanent, but receives no payment. Both the physician and the apothecary were also elected by the governors. When a medical officer resigns he cannot influence the election of his successor. The election of physician is not restricted to graduates of particular universities, but that of surgeons is, to licentiates of the College of Surgeons of Dublin, and that of apothecaries, to licentiates of the Company of Apothecaries of the same city. When the last vacancy for surgeon occurred, which was in 1826, there were two candidates, and the like number for that which occurred in 1816. The number of individuals able to pay for medical advice in this district is sufficient to induce well educated practitioners to settle amongst them. The number of medical gentlemen residing in what may be called the neighbourhood of the infirmiary has not been ascertained.

Pharmacy.

The surgery, with the bottles and drawers, &c., are not very nicely kept; and the Assistant Commissioner regrets much that he cannot compliment the apothecary upon the cleanliness or good order of his pharmacy. None of the persons who supply any of the articles of medicine, &c., are members of the committee. The amount of the druggist's bill, from January 1833 to December 1833, was 54 l.

Patients' Registration.

A register of diseases, with the termination of cases, appears to be regularly kept, and all the more important cases are instructively recorded in detail. The number of sick now in the house is 25; viz.—

Acute

* Names of the persons who attended the Examination not stated.

Acute	-	-	-	-	-	-	18
Chronic	-	-	-	-	-	-	5
Capital operation	-	-	-	-	-	-	1
Fractures, wounds, &c.	-	-	-	-	-	-	1
							25

COUNTY
INFIRMARIES.
Leinster.
County Meath.

Examinations taken by
Sir D. Barry, M.D.

County Infirmary.

The chronic cases were as follows:—Abscess, six; dropsy, four; hepatitis, two; rheumatism, five; inflammations, seven. The operations performed were,—amputations, seven; hydrocele, (radical cure,) four; aneurism one; extirpation of lower jaw from articulation, one; extirpation of eye, one; for varix and ulcer, six; cataracts, three; polypus uteri, one; amputation of penis, one; removal of floating cartilages from knee joint, one; extirpation of hemorrhoids, two; paracentesis, three; removal of diseased testis, one; fistula lachrymalis, one.

GENERAL RETURN of DISEASES treated at the Meath Infirmary, during the year ending 1st January 1834.

Designation of Disease.	Remaining at the close of 1832.	Admitted during 1833.	Total treated during the Year.	Discharged.	Died.	Remained at the close of 1833.	Rate of Mortality.
Chronic cases	3	-	-	-	-	-	-
Capital operations	4	-	-	-	-	2	-
Fractures	1	-	22	-	1	1	-
Wounds	3	-	52	-	2	2	-
Ulcers and abscesses	2	-	33	-	-	-	-
Diseased joints	2	-	4	-	-	1	-
Sibbens	1	-	4	-	-	-	-
Herpes	-	-	3	-	-	-	-
Psoriasis	2	-	-	-	-	1	-
Syphilis and gonorrhœa	2	-	11	-	-	-	-
Burns	1	-	7	-	-	2	-
Inflammations	1	-	16	-	1	2	-
Poisons	1	-	4	-	-	1	-
Hemorrhoids	-	-	3	-	-	2	-
Carcinoma	-	-	3	-	2	1	-
Retention of urine	-	-	3	-	-	-	-
Phthisis	-	-	2	-	1	-	-
Hepatitis	-	-	6	-	-	1	-
Paralysis	-	-	6	-	-	-	-
Gangrene	-	-	3	-	-	1	-
Ophthalmia	-	-	5	-	-	1	-
Cataracts	-	-	3	-	-	1	-
Polypus uteri	-	-	1	-	-	-	-
Hydatids uterus	-	-	1	-	-	-	-
Hæmoptysis	-	-	5	-	-	2	-
Fistula lachrymalis	-	-	2	-	-	-	-
Necrosis	-	-	1	-	-	1	-
Hydrocele	-	-	4	-	-	1	-
Rheumatism	-	-	8	-	-	-	-
Paraphymosis	-	-	2	-	-	-	-
Obstipation	-	-	1	-	-	-	-
Dropsy	-	-	5	-	1	1	-
Burns and scalds	-	-	7	-	-	-	-
Hernia	-	-	1	-	-	-	-
Chorea	-	-	1	-	-	-	-
	23	241	229	209	9	23	About 4 per cent.

Those who are able to purchase medicines are not supplied from the charity, though they may be subscribers. In the course of the year there was a very considerable number of applicants, fit objects for the institution, refused admittance from want of room. Each annual subscriber of three guineas may recommend in-patients, besides an unlimited number of out-patients. Subscribers of one guinea may recommend to the dispensary only. Patients may be recommended for admission by governors only, except in cases of accident. Out-patients are received at the hospital dispensary, but none are visited at their own dwellings. At the time of the inspection there were 100 who occasionally received medical assistance, at the hospital dispensary. The same out-patient is never mentioned twice in the book, unless he appears with a new disease. The medical officers are paid for their attendance when called in to the family of a subscriber; but they receive no gratuity from charity patients, directly or indirectly. Vaccination is always performed gratuitously, and is found to be a good security against smallpox, which disease has been frequent during the last two years, owing chiefly to the practice of illicit inoculation by unlicensed practitioners. The public have strong confidence in vaccination.

Who entitled to
Relief.

COUNTY INFIRMARIES.

Leinster.
County Meath.

Examinations taken by
Sir D. Barry, M. D.

County Infirmary.

Attendants.

Expenditure.

Accounts.

Observations.

Articles of diet are never furnished to the out-patients from the funds of the charity. The matron buys the provisions.

	Price in the market.
Ox-beef at 4d. per lb.	4 pence.
Mutton 6d. „	6 „
New milk 7d. per gallon	3 „ per quart.

Tenders are received for milk only. The present contractors were appointed by the governors, and are paid by the treasurer. The daily expense for the maintenance of each patient has averaged during the last week 6½d. There are no charitable funds collected in the parish for the issuing of clothing, fuel, or nourishment to the helpless poor, upon which the dispensary surgeon may give an order or recommendation.

Lunatics are sent to the District Asylum in Dublin.

The general management of the establishment is under the direction of the governors. There is no managing committee.

There are general meetings of the governors four times every year, which are usually attended by one-third of that body; and the minutes of their proceedings are regularly registered in a book kept for that purpose. The directors and visitors, ex officio, are, the Lord Primate, the Lord Chancellor, the Lord Bishop of Meath, and the rector of the parish. The qualifications necessary to give the right of voting at the election of medical officers are defined by the Act of Parliament. Religious belief does not form a ground of objection to a candidate of any class.

The porter of the hospital is paid 16l. 2s. per annum, besides board and lodging. The matron or housekeeper 40l., with lodging and fuel. They are appointed by the governors, and are under the immediate orders of the governors and surgeon. The other attendants are, one nurse, at 10l.; one laundress, at 6l.; one maid, 6l.; and one carrier, 4l. 4s. per annum, paid by the deputy treasurer, and may be discharged by him. Their general conduct during the last year has been very good. One, the nurse, has served six years in the hospital, with a good character.

Reports of the progress of the charity are drawn up, and printed every year.

The amount of income for the year ending 24th June 1834, was as follows:—

	£.	s.	d.
Subscriptions	15	15	—
One life governor	21	—	—
County presentment	553	16	11½
Parliamentary grant	89	1	10
Annual bequest	9	4	7

The number of annual subscribers for the year was five at three guineas each, and one life governor at twenty guineas. The lowest rate of annual subscription accepted 1l. 1s. There are no medical charities in this barony which do not receive annual grants from the county rates.

The funds of the charity are lodged with the treasurer.

The amount of salaries for the year ending 24th June 1834, was as follows:—

	£.	s.	d.
Physicians' salary	92	7	6
Apothecary's	40	—	—

All disbursements are made by the Rev. Mr. Egan, for the honourable Archdeacon Packenham.

The accounts are audited four times a year, and a report submitted to the governors in full meeting, called for that purpose.

There is no medical instruction given at present. Courses of clinical lectures were given by the physician for three years, but are now discontinued. They were attended by ten pupils, each of whom paid 6l. 6s. per annum. The money thus received was the private emolument of the physician. There is one pupil now admitted to attend the practice, from whom no payment is received. Practitioners established in the neighbourhood are permitted to witness capital operations, and to see remarkable cases, when they occur. Post-mortem examinations are sometimes made.

There does not at present prevail any particular disease in this district.

The circumstances which appear to exercise the greatest influence on the sanitary condition of the inhabitants, are, poverty and the use of ardent spirits. The ordinary food of the poorer classes of this district is potatoes. Their clothing is but poor, and the state of their dwellings, in point of cleanliness, comfort and ventilation, is not good. Their bedding in general is nothing but loose straw. The wages of a field labourer per diem, without food, is 8d. through the year.

The use of ardent spirits is excessive.

The soil is very good, and the country is healthy.

This hospital is old and inconveniently divided. The ceilings are low, the wards small, and not well ventilated. Most of the bedsteads, as well as the bed coverings, are old, dirty looking, and worn out. The drainage requires great amendment. The floors are deeply sanded; and, in short, the whole interior does not look neat, owing, no doubt, to the age of the building.

There

COUNTY
INFIRMARIES.

Leinster.
County Meath.

Examinations taken by
Sir D. Barry, M. D.
J. R. Corrie, Esq., M. D.

Queen's County.

County Infirmary.

Medical Officers.

Patients.

Diet.

Clothes.

Funds and
Accounts.

Observations.

There is a private ladies' subscription society in this town, on a small scale, for the relief of the poor; perhaps 40*l.* per annum: much good is said to be done by this society.

The physician seems to devote great labour and attention to his duties, and stands deservedly high in the estimation of the whole of the resident gentry of the county. His dispensary patients are very numerous; there were crowds of them at the door.

Persons who attended the Examination.

The Medical Attendant.

THERE is but one medical officer attached to the Queen's County Infirmary, who is at the same time physician and apothecary to the institution, which is remarkable for the very superior tone of professional care devoted to the sick. Two of the surgeon's apprentices perform the duties of apothecary together, and each of the apprentices in turn, when of a certain standing, acts as physician's clerk, and writes at full length the prescriptions of the day, dictated, and afterwards revised, by the physician. Each of the apprentices is also charged with a certain number of patients, and every patient is in charge of some pupil who attends to and records his case. There is one pupil always on guard, who does not leave the hospital.

In addition to the patients who are taken into the house, extern relief is also granted to a very considerable extent: 7,690 out-patients were prescribed for and provided with medicine during the course of the year 1833, and the medical attendant has been accustomed to receive into the hospital whatever individuals from that number he deems most deserving of such assistance. He is at liberty to act thus without any ticket of recommendation being granted. Two hundred and fifty-eight applications for admission into the hospital are stated to have been refused owing to the want of funds. A record is always kept of such refusals. Sick persons are permitted to avail themselves of the advantages of the Infirmary, and to become inmates of it, on the principle of a maison de sant , by paying from 2*s.* 6*d.* to 10*s.* a week, according to their circumstances. At the date of the Assistant Commissioners' visit there were two persons of this class in the house, namely, one with a fractured thigh, and one labouring under amaurosis. The difference of price is said to make no difference as to food or lodging. The total number of beds occupied by the sick is 38, but 42 beds are at present standing, and ready for the occupation of patients.

There is no dietary nor diet-roll hung up in any of the wards, nor is there any source from which the patient can learn the quantity or the quality of the food to which he is entitled. There has been but little attention paid to the regulation of the patients' diet, the allowance of which is rather arbitrary than fixed, and left too much in the hands of the purveyor and matron. The former of these officers has been seriously indisposed for some time. It is, however, but just to add, that the surgeon has no interest whatever, direct or indirect, in any thing consumed in the hospital.

The patients are clothed in hospital dresses, consisting of a grey cloth jacket, with thick, warm, cotton-cloth trowsers, and list slippers. This gives them a clean and agreeable appearance. The articles of clothing are manufactured at the gaol, and procured at a very economical price indeed. There would appear, however, to be rather a scarcity of bed-clothes, the number of blankets in the house being, for patients 42 pairs, for the servants five pairs, and for the pupil on guard two pairs.

The total receipts on account of the Infirmary, during the last three years, were as follow:—

	£.	s.	d.
Year ending June, 24, 1831	-	-	-
1832	-	-	-
1833	-	-	-

The principal sources of income do not vary much from year to year. In 1833 the debtor side of the governor's account with the institution stood thus:—

	£.	s.	d.
To balance in favour of the public, 24th June, 1832	-	-	-
Received county grants at Lent and Summer assizes	-	-	-
Annual subscriptions during the period	-	-	-
Donations from Sir Charles H. Coote, Bart., for Election, 1832	-	-	-
Gosling money at Spring assizes	-	-	-
With and from patients	-	-	-
Individuals 6 s. ; Poor boxes 7 s. 6 d.	-	-	-

SUBSCRIPTIONS AND DONATIONS.

Medicine sold to Cholera Hospital, &c. &c.	13	13	9
Trusses 1 l. 7 s. ; packages returned 19 s. 4 d.	2	6	4
For glass measures 13 s. 5 d. ; vaccine forfeit 4 s.	0	17	5

(continued.)

* A sum of about 350*l.* appears as being brought forward on each year's account in favour of the public.

COUNTY INFIRMARIES.

Leinster. Queen's County.

Examinations taken by Sir D. Barry, M.D. J. R. Corrie, esq., M.D. County Infirmary.

Expenditure.

Medical and Surgical Instruction.

County Wicklow.

Examinations taken by Cusack Roney, esq.

County Infirmary.

Population and Extent of Country.

Medical Officer.

Lead 13s. 11d.; caps 8d.; delft. 3d.
Charles Maddox, arrears of rent due
Fines levied by Dr. Jacob on his servants	-	-	-	1	0	0
On servants of the institution				0	7	6
Treasurer of the county for presentments granted
Fines levied by magistrates at petty sessions, from June 25th, 1832, to June 24th, 1833, both days included
Total charge
In the year ending June 24, 1831, were expended
Ditto 1832, ditto
Ditto 1833, ditto

The expenditure is given at full length in the statement of accounts annually printed. The following is an abstract for the year 1833-4.

* Provisions	-	-	-	373	17	9
Medicines	-	-	-	169	13	7
Wine and whiskey	-	-	-	20	5	9
Surgical instruments	-	-	-	21	12	9
Sundries for medical purposes	-	-	-	17	11	1
Salaries and wages	-	-	-	283	11	6
Furniture and repairs	-	-	-	32	18	-
Fuel, soap and candles	-	-	-	98	15	8
Sundries, as calico, flannel, &c.	-	-	-	24	9	7
Rent	-	-	-	31	12	-
Stationery and stamps	-	-	-	7	6	-
Contingencies	-	-	-	8	2	2

Total discharge	-	-	-	1	096	15	10
Balance in favour of public, June 24, 1833	-	-	-	204	18	11	1
	-	-	-	1	301	14	10

This hospital is very remarkable for the high grade and striking importance of the medical instruction which it is made to afford under the direction of the attending surgeon. It is the only county infirmary in which the Assistant Commissioners have met with any organized system of education; and certainly the arrangements which have been here made reflect the highest credit on their author, and must tend to produce sound practical surgeons and physicians. It is much to be lamented that more extensive advantage is not taken of the educational facilities provided by the provincial hospitals throughout Ireland, by admitting a greater number, both of pupils and professors. For however zealous and scientific one man may be, it is the division of labour which multiplies produce, as well in the moral as in the physical world. In the Queen's County Infirmary there are nine pupils, all indented apprentices of the surgeon, and who have the appearance of being well educated, gentleman-like young men. Mention has been already made of the manner in which they participate in the medical superintendence of the patients. Their number is not limited, and they have access to the practice of the gaol and of the District Lunatic Asylum, of both of which the medical attendant of the present institution is also physician. Two subjects have been dissected in the anatomical theatre or dead-house of the Infirmary, under the provisions of the late Anatomy Bill.

There is no other medical charity within a considerable distance of the town, in which the Wicklow County Hospital is situated. The nearest are at Newtownmountkennedy and at Rathdrum, both of which places are about nine miles off. The medical superintendent of the County Infirmary is a licentiate of the Royal College of Surgeons in Ireland, and a graduate of the University of Edinburgh. He is at present in his 36th year, and was appointed to the situation in April 1832. He is engaged in private practice, and is required to visit the intern patients of the hospital daily, and to prescribe

* Bread, potatoes and milk are contracted for, the contract prices for the six months ending October 20, 1834, were as follows:—
Bread	-	-	-	-	1	$\frac{1}{2}$ d. per pound.
Potatoes (half cups, half lumpers)	-	-	-	-	2	$\frac{1}{2}$ d. per stone.
Milk	-	-	-	-	1	$\frac{1}{2}$ d. per Irish quart.

† Names of the persons who attended the examination not stated.

prescribe for applicants for external relief on three days in every week. These portions of his duty are occasionally performed by a substitute, (who is a licentiate of the Dublin College of Surgeons,) whenever professional engagements render his temporary absence unavoidable.

The Assistant Commissioners found the medicine that had been provided for the purposes of the charity to be of the best quality. It had been purchased from the Messrs. Boileau & George, druggists, in Dublin, and the average annual cost for the previous three years was stated to have been under 40*l*.

A very accurate register has been kept of the number of patients to whom assistance has been granted, together with memoranda of the result of the mode of treatment adopted in each case. From an examination of the register it would appear that the most usual diseases have been bowel complaints, inflammations, abscesses, ulcers and hernia. Of the latter some have been operated upon with success. There have also been some cases of amputation. The gross number of patients admitted during the year, amounts, upon an average, to 120.

Strictly speaking, no persons are entitled to relief except they have provided themselves with a ticket of recommendation from a governor, but this condition is not very rigidly enforced, and all persons who apply are attended to. This refers more particularly to extern patients, but it is stated that cases of accident are always taken into the hospital without delay. Attendance is not given by the medical attendant to the poor at their dwellings, except as a voluntary act of humanity on his part, neither is he liable to be called upon to visit lying-in women, a want the more sensibly felt as the nearest visiting dispensary is at least eight miles distant. As to the degree of attention paid to the intern patients, it is remarked by the surgeon that "certain forms of acute disease require to be seen by the medical attendant at least once and often two or three times in the day. It is only in disorders of a chronic character, that occasional attendance can be really of any use." No arrangements exist in the hospital for the reception of lunatics. The surgeon is accustomed to refer all such patients to the Richmond Lunatic Asylum in Dublin, and he states that he usually experiences considerable difficulty in procuring their admission into that institution. Long delays occur on every application, and some lunatics have remained in the county gaol for several years, although the lunatic asylum referred to has been since some years constructed into a district establishment.

The general management of the Infirmary is vested in the governors at large. Of these some have acquired their privileges, by having given a "life donation" of 20 guineas, and others by being annual subscribers of three guineas. Those who contribute two guineas annually (amongst whom is the apothecary of the establishment) are not entitled to participate in the direction of the charity, and are only allowed to recommend persons for relief. The governors assemble to the number of five or six on the second Friday in every month, and transact all the business of the charity; three form a quorum, and it is considered that these meetings render unnecessary the appointment of a managing committee. There are not any visiting governors expressly chosen, but some of the number who reside in the town or in its immediate neighbourhood are in the habit of inspecting from time to time, the condition of the hospital and of its inmates.

The only non-medical officer is the treasurer, who acts without any remuneration, and has not given any security. He was appointed by the subscribers according to the provisions of the Act of Parliament, but his election has not been renewed.

The sources of income on which the charity principally depends, are, the county presentment, the annual contributions of the subscribers, and donations. It receives usually a small sum from fines imposed by the magistrates, and it has also hitherto enjoyed the interest of some money which was vested in government security, but which is at present diverted to the construction of a new hospital.

The gross income during each of the last three years was as follows:—

	£.	s.	d.
1831.	520	18	9
1832.	661	16	1
1833.	700	13	5½

* THE Clare County Infirmary is situated in the town of Ennis, and is intended to afford medical aid to the population of the entire county. The Assistant Commissioners had abundant reason to pronounce it one of the best administered and best regulated hospitals, with which they had become acquainted in Ireland, both in point of financial economy, and in matters purely medical.

The wards, more especially the male wards, were in the very highest state of order, cleanliness and general wholesomeness of arrangement. The patients enjoyed an advantage, which is far from being general elsewhere; namely, a spacious well ventilated day-room allotted to each story, in which the convalescents are permitted to sit or walk about after the morning visit. These day-rooms also serve as operating theatres whenever capital operations are to be performed.

This

* Names of the persons who attended the Examination not stated.

COUNTY INFIRMARIES.

Leinster.

County Wicklow.

Examinations taken by Cnsack Roney, esq.

County Infirmary.

Pharmacy.

Patients' Registration.

Who entitled to Relief.

General Management.

Funds and Accounts.

Munster.
County Clare.

Examinations taken by Sir D. Barry, M.D.
J. R. Corrie, esq., M.D.

County Infirmary.

Population and Extent of Country.

Medical Officer.
Building, &c.

COUNTY
INFIRMARIES.Munster.
County Clare.Examinations taken by
Sir D. Barry, M.D.
J. R. Corrie, esq., M.D.

County Infirmary.

Medical Officers.

Payment.

Pharmacy.

Patients' Registration.

Extern Patients.

Intern Patients.

Diet.

Rules.

This hospital has been regenerated by the late change in its medical officers from a state of sad confusion, inefficiency and neglect. The large accession of funds, which the election brought, has been most wisely and creditably expended upon the premises. Monopoly and abuse have been banished, and the institution is no longer a close borough, maintained at the public expense for the benefit of one to the prejudice of the poor. The medical staff at present consists of two joint surgeons.

In addition to their salaries as surgeons of the Infirmary each of them receives an allowance of 50*l.* per annum, in consideration of their attendance at the dispensary.

The cost of medicines is included in the general charge for those articles; the average of which for the two years of 1832 and 1833 was 126*l.* The materials for making ointments and tinctures (which are prepared by the apothecary, with the exception of mercurial ointment) are presumed to be included.

The name of a patient is never entered on the register more than once in the course of the year, and yet 4,452 names appear on that book for the year 1833. The entire number of beds in the hospital is 60, of which four are for the nurses; but the average number of patients seldom falls below 58. This number was found in the wards on the day on which this evidence was furnished to the Assistant Commissioners. They were all individually examined, and not one was found to be an object which could be deemed improper for the institution, or who had been unnecessarily detained in the house. They were all interesting and curable cases, and bore the appearance of improvement under the judicious care of the medical attendants.

Extern patients are seen and prescribed for at the pharmacy, on stated days, which are painted in large letters over the entrance-door of the hospital.

The care of the intern patients is divided between the two surgeons, who share likewise the emoluments between them. This arrangement has the effect not only of protecting the charity from falling again into abuse, but also of giving an additional practical surgeon to the neighbourhood, and an additional advocate to the just claims of the poor. Whenever a necessity is supposed to exist for an operation of any importance, the medical practitioners of the town and surrounding country are invited to attend at the hospital. The more experienced of these gentlemen are always consulted, when the case admits of deliberation, as to the expediency of the proceeding.

The following is a copy of the dietary.—

LOW DIET.

Breakfast.—Four ounces of meal; one quart of milk.

Dinner.—Four ounces of meal; one quart of milk.

FULL DIET.

Breakfast.—Six ounces of meal, for stirabout; one pint of milk.

Dinner.—One pound of bread, or two pounds and three-quarters of potatoes; one quart of milk.

All other allowances, as tea, sugar, coffee, bread, &c., for breakfast, or meat for dinner, are to be put down as extras; also, meal for poultices.

Bread to be substituted for stirabout or potatoes, when such are found to disagree with the patient.

Much praise is due to the public spirited and charitable authorities of Ennis for the admirable state of efficiency to which they have brought all their institutions with which the lower orders are more particularly connected.

No person can be admitted a patient, except in cases of urgency or accident, without a ticket from a governor specifying his name.

No incurable shall be admitted, or when discovered to be incurable, shall be immediately discharged.

When there is not sufficient room for all the persons applying for admission the preference will be given—

1st. To the most sickly and distressed objects.

2d. To those who have longest applied for admission.

3d. To those who have come the greatest distance.

4th. To those sent by governors who have before sent the fewest number of patients.

No person shall be admitted a patient who is able to pay for subsistence and medical attendance.

The house to be thoroughly cleaned every day; the windows to be opened every fine day.

All fires and candles to be extinguished by nine o'clock at night in the wards.

No person, a stranger excepted, shall be admitted, unless coming on matters of business, without an order from the surgeon or a governor, and when admitted not suffered to remain more than ten minutes.

The servants will be responsible for their conduct and for the goods and furniture belonging to the house. Their taking any fees or presents from any patient or visitor will subject them to immediate dismissal.

Any patient going out of the infirmary, without leave from the surgeon or a governor, shall be discharged.

Any patient smoking, dirtying the floor or walls, shall be discharged.

Any patient guilty of swearing, blasphemy, drinking, gaming or filthy conversation, disobedience or impudence to the officers of the house shall be immediately discharged.

All

COUNTY
INFIRMARIES.

Munster.
County Clare.

Examinations taken by
Sir D. Barry, M.D.
J. R. Corrie, Esq., M.D.

County Infirmary.

Reports.

Extern Patients.

Intern Patients.

Stores.

Funds and
Accounts.
Receipts

Expenditure.

All patients are to assist in cleaning the yards or bringing turf and water for the house, if the surgeon thinks them capable of doing so.

Every patient to be up and dressed at eight o'clock in the morning in summer, and nine in winter, except from illness they are unable to do so.

No patients allowed to go into or lie on their beds in the day time without leave from the surgeon or nurse.

There is as yet some room for improvement in the construction of the diet table, and more economy could, no doubt, be introduced in the maintenance of each patient, as may be judged from the underneath averages.

One patient costs for diet per day	£.	s.	d.
" " " week	-	-	4 1 1/2
" " " year	-	-	2 10 3

In this calculation is included the consumption of meat, wine and groceries, which items are kept under the head of extras.

Cost of diet for one patient, not including extras—

Per day	£.	s.	d.
" week	-	-	4 1 1/2
" year	-	-	2 10 3

Cost of supporting one patient, including all expenses, except "extras"—

Per day	£.	s.	d.
" week	-	-	10 7 1/2
" year	-	-	6 10 10 1/2

Cost of supporting one patient, including extras,—

Per day	£.	s.	d.
" week	-	-	11 1 1/2
" year	-	-	6 6 10 14 7

It is deserving of remark, that eight quarts or a pottle of milk for the Infirmary cost 1s. 1d., whilst the same quantity for the House of Industry, under the same roof, costs only 11d.

The ordinary income of the institution is shown by an abstract from the treasurer's accounts for the year ending January 5th 1833.

Balance in favour of public, 5 January 1832	£.	s.	d.
Balance of a previous presentment	-	-	57 16 11
Presentment of the Spring assizes 1832	-	-	153 16 11
Parliamentary grant for the year 1832	-	-	553 16 11
Subscriptions for the year 1832	-	-	92 6 1 1/2
Fines levied at petty sessions	-	-	103 19 -
	-	-	54 6 3
	£.	1,016	2 1 1/2

The net income of the year ending January 5th 1834 was	£.	s.	d.
" " " " 1831	-	-	3,367 8 11*
" " " " 1831	-	-	904 10 - 3/4

The several items of expenditure in the year ending January 5th 1834, were—

Provisions,—meal, milk, bread, salt	£.	s.	d.
Spirits, wine and malt liquors	-	-	274 10 11 1/2
Medicines	-	-	5 -
Firing, soap and candles	-	-	129 2 10 1/2
Bedding and new furniture	-	-	23 15 - 1/2
Building and repairs	-	-	12 16 4 1/2
Rent	-	-	28 11 2 1/2
Salaries and wages	-	-	8 8 -
Contingencies	-	-	206 8 - 3/4
	-	-	5 - 10 1/2
	£.	688	18 4 1/2

† The expenditure in the following year was	£.	s.	d.
" " " " previous year was	-	-	2,569 4 5
	-	-	699 10 4 1/2

* The large surplus of this year's income over that of other years, arose from the contributions of 126 life governors and six annual governors, which were received previous to an election of medical officers.
† Of this 1,644l. 18s. 3d. were expended on new buildings and repairs of old. The unusual cost was defrayed by the unusual income of the preceding year, to which mention has been already made.

COUNTY
INFIRMARIES.Munster.
County Cork.Examinations taken by
Cusack Roney, esq.
W. P. Borrett, esq., M.D.

County Infirmary.

Population and Extent of District.Building, Furniture
and Grounds.

Medical Officers.

Payment.

Election.

Pharmacy.

Persons who attended the Examination.

Mr. BALDWIN, protestant curate.—J. BARRY, esq. secretary.—HENRY BRADDLE, esq. J. P.—
Mr. ROBERT CLAY, J. P.—Rev. Mr. COLLINS, roman catholic priest.—R. DELACOUR, esq., J. P.—
WILLIAM FRANKS, esq., J. P.—Rev. Mr. HAMILTON, protestant rector.—C. D. O. JEPHSON, esq.,
M. P.—Colonel LONGFIELD, J. P.—W. MADDEN, esq.—ADAM NEWMAN, esq., J. P.—Rev. Mr.
STOWEL.—The two Medical Attendants attached to the Institution.

THE County of Cork Infirmary is situate in the town of Mallow, and is the only institution for the treatment of surgical cases in the county, which is the largest in Ireland, and includes a population of 800,000. Some parts of the county for which it is intended are 60 miles off, where of course its benefits are never felt, nor do they extend half so far. It seldom occurs that patients are to be met with in it who have come from a greater distance than 15 or 20 miles, a circumstance clearly pointing out how totally inadequate must be the means of affording relief possessed by any one infirmary, when the extent of the county is taken into account. The gentlemen present were of opinion that at least three such institutions were required; they represented as the fittest localities for these establishments, the city of Cork for the eastern portion of the county, and Skibbereen, or somewhere in its direction, for the south-western; and they agreed in stating the institution under consideration to be most eligibly placed for the northern and north-west division. It was quite necessary, however, that it should be enlarged, upwards of 100 cases having been refused admittance in one year for want of room, as appears from a list kept by the medical officer; and it frequently occurs that patients who are convalescent and quite unfit to leave the hospital, are yet of necessity discharged to make room for bad accidents or other urgent cases.

The house, which is three stories high and built of stone in a substantial manner, possesses a commodious room for the dispensing of medicines, besides a large waiting-room. There are five wards, each 23 feet by 18, and ten feet in height, containing 25 beds, which, with the other furniture of the house, are in very good order; five additional beds could with ease be introduced, if the state of the funds would permit. One room is given to the matron, which is also used as a board-room. The matron has also a bed-room, a kitchen and a coal-store; there is further a store-room and a room used for dissections. The house is rather nearer to the town than could be desired, and the numerous surrounding buildings permit but an imperfect circulation of air. There are baths attached to the institution. The building, with a small yard in front and a garden in the rear, is held rent free under a lease of three lives renewable for ever, with a pepper-corn fine.

There are two surgeons attached, one as senior and consulting physician, and the other as surgeon in ordinary. The latter was appointed to act as surgeon to the infirmary at a meeting convened by the secretary in August 1833. He is at present 28 years of age, and previous to his appointment he had acted for three years as assistant to his father, with whom he continues to reside in the town, not far distant from the institution. He attends on every day in the week, except Sunday, at one o'clock, and in his absence the duty would be performed by the senior physician. He has a considerable share of private practice, and he received his education in midwifery at the Lying-in Hospital, Dublin. The apothecary, is the only other medical officer, and as he also resides in the town there is ample security that there would always be some qualified person on the spot in cases of sudden emergency. All medicines are administered to the patients by the matron or under her inspection, and the governors possess every necessary control over all the above-mentioned officers.

The Act of Parliament fixes the salary of the surgeon at 80*l.* 1*s.* 10*d.*, and the apothecary has 50*l.* per annum, and neither gentleman receives any other allowance from the funds of the charity.

When a vacancy in the list of officers occurs, notice is generally given in the newspapers of the intent to hold an election, at which all governors are entitled to vote. The age of the candidates does not form a subject of inquiry; but the Act of Parliament strictly requires that each candidate for the situation of surgeon should be either a member or licentiate of the College of Surgeons in Ireland, and that the candidate apothecaries should be masters of the Apothecaries' Hall, Dublin. It was not considered necessary, after the last election, at which there were but two candidates, that the grand jury should receive notice of what had been done. There are at Mallow and the surrounding country a considerable number of resident persons of independent means, and many medical men have in consequence been induced to settle in the town; but it is not thought that any of them would gratuitously undertake the charge of the infirmary, and, in point of fact, none besides the surgeons possess the legal qualification. The witnesses were unanimous in the expression of their approbation of the manner in which both the physicians have always discharged their duties; and though complaints against them have been laid before the committee on the part of the poor, who are quite ready to speak of their grievances, they have always been found, on investigation, to be groundless.

A good supply of all necessary medicines, including the recent French preparations, was found in the medicine room, where a spirit of great neatness prevailed. They are always under the care of the apothecary, and are never used but for the purposes of the charity. This latter remark may be also applied to a very sufficient stock of apparatus for preparing infusions, &c., and to a number of useful surgical instruments. Until lately, the prescriptions of the attending physician were sent to be made up by an apothecary in the town, a system found

COUNTY
INFIRMARIES.

Munster.
County Cork.

Examinations taken by
Cusack Roney, esq.
W.P. Borrett, esq., M.D.

County Infirmary
and Dispensary.

Patients' Registration.

Who entitled to
Relief.

Extern Patients.

Nourishment.

Intern Patients.

Diet.

Clothing.

General Management.

Managing
Committee.

Officers not
medical.

Attendants.

All

found to be very expensive, the sum disbursed in 1831 for drugs being 165*l.*, in 1832, 159*l.* in 1832, 152*l.* A change, however, has taken place recently. An apothecary has been engaged, and whatever is required is procured from druggists in Cork. The cost of medicine for the last year was under 40*l.* Leeches are always applied when judged expedient. The apothecary is supplied with vaccine matter from the institution, with which he gratuitously inoculates all applicants, and though none of the medical officers are prevented from inoculating with smallpock, their opinion on the subject prevents their so doing.

The physician keeps a register in which he enters the diseases for which patients have been admitted, the terminations of such diseases, and the instances in which admission to the hospital has been refused. He has been in the habit of lodging a copy of this register with the grand jury, and he has also furnished the Assistant Commissioners with a copy, extending to the last eight years. At the time of the Assistant Commissioners' visit there were 25 beds occupied, and about 25 extern patients were in regular attendance. In the course of the last three years, though there were many minor operations, there were but four capital, which were attended with success. The infirmary affords no relief to lying-in women.

The recommendation of a governor entitles any person to admission; yet but few instances offer where this recommendation is made use of by persons capable of paying for relief, within which class are not counted the servants of subscribers or others, who are always freely admitted. Subscribers never participate in any manner in the benefits of the charity, but they are not limited in the number of poor persons whom they may recommend, to all of which class the institution readily affords every necessary relief, never in any case refusing admission to accidents which require immediate succour, and for this latter purpose it possesses an adequate store of splints, bandages, &c.

Extern patients are daily prescribed for at the surgeon's house between the hours of 10 and 11, and the committee require that the apothecary shall visit in the town whatever sick persons the physicians may deem in want of such attention; but this is seldom done, as the surgical cases chiefly, if not entirely, come under their care. It constantly occurs that the surgeon's aid is called for during the night. The midwives of this district, by whom the women of the lower class are mostly attended, appear to be possessed of more skill than is generally to be met with in that description of persons in this part of the county. It has been before stated that vaccination is gratuitously performed, and it is gratifying to be enabled to add, that the confidence of the public in that operation is deservedly on the increase, as it is found, if not altogether preventive of, still to be a most efficient check, to the virulence of small pock, which is rather on the decline in this district of late years.

Wine and every other article of nourishment for the sick is afforded by the institution, and entrusted to the disposal of the matron.

The friends of patients are allowed to see them on every day except Sundays and fair days, but the patients themselves are not permitted to leave the charity, except with the express leave of the surgeon, and a set of rules is hung up in each ward for the maintenance of order. No work is required from any of the patients, except that they shall, when convalescent, occasionally assist in the cleaning of the house. No lunatics are admitted to the infirmary, and when such cases present themselves they are sent to the Lunatic Asylum in Cork. Although no chaplain is attached no difficulties are ever placed in the way of any religious minister whom a patient may wish to see; the clergyman whom he may wish to see is sent for, and no other is ever permitted to interfere in any manner.

There is a systematic dietary.

No clothes are provided for the patients, but those they may bring with them are carefully attended to and cleansed.

The general management is in the hands of about 28 governors, and from it are strictly excluded all paid officers. Minutes are kept of their fixed annual meetings which are usually attended by from five to nine, and at which the personal votes alone of the governors are taken; five constitute a quorum.

There is also a managing committee who appoint a sub-committee of three, who meet weekly to arrange the affairs of the establishment, subject to the control of a board of superintendence fixed by the grand jury. An account is kept of their proceedings. The governors are in the habit of visiting from time to time.

There are no non-medical paid officers. The treasurer, and the secretary, have retained their places since their first appointment, at a meeting of the governors by open voting, a mode of proceeding to which all the witnesses seemed partial. A copy of the bye-laws which regulate this and other meetings was submitted to the Assistant Commissioners, and no religious prejudice appears ever to have interfered. Though the treasurer does not give the required security, he, as well as the other unpaid officers, are considered accountable to the committee as well as to the grand jury, neither of which bodies have ever had reason to complain of their conduct in any particular.

The matron who resides in the house, and is appointed by the governors, who have alone the power of discharging her, receives 52*l.* per annum with coals and candles; for this sum she provides nurses and other necessary servants.

COUNTY
INFIRMARIES.

Munster.
County Cork.

Examinations taken by
Cusack Roney, esq.
W.P. Borrett, esq., M.D.

County Infirmary.

All articles of food are procured by public contracts, which are renewed monthly or annually under the direction of the sub-committee, who see that they are faithfully applied to the purposes of the institution alone, and a considerable saving is effected by the practice.

The general laws of the institution appeared to the witnesses in every way worthy of approval, and on enquiry no one could offer any suggestions for their alteration.

A report is annually made to the subscribers and to the grand jury, detailing every particular relating to the admission, cure, discharge, &c., of the patients. In general this report is not printed.

The amount of annual subscriptions for the last three years was —

	£.	s.	d.
1831	137	3	—
1832	97	13	8
1833	88	19	6

None of the witnesses offered any explanation of the very considerable falling off in this source of supply during the last two years. Subscriptions seldom are received from the poorer classes, and although they were entirely to cease the institution would yet be upheld by the county. It possesses no property of any kind, and whatever annual or other contributions it receives are given without any improper stipulation.

The funds are collected by a person who receives 4*l.* 4*s.* for so doing, and who immediately lodges them in the bank of Delacour & Co. to the credit of the institution whence it is drawn when required by the secretary, who, assisted by the treasurer and medical attendants, examines every bill before it is given for payment to the matron, whose correctness is secured by oath. The expenditure for the last three years is stated as follows:—

	£.	s.	d.
1831	640	14	7
1832	554	19	9
1833	606	—	4

Collection and
Custody.

Expenditure.

Accounts.

The accounts are made up monthly, and at the end of the year they are laid before the subscribers, and a copy is sent to the grand jury.

Instruction afforded.

No instruction is given at this infirmary, nor do any pupils attend its practice. The only dissections which take place are those which are made at the desire of the coroner, and such as are authorized by the consent of the friends of the deceased.

Boards of Health.

In the report furnished of the Fever Hospital, all the necessary information will be found with respect to the powers and nature of the board of health, and the hygienic measures which it is thought proper to adopt.

Persons who attended the Examination.

City of Cork.

North Charitable
Infirmary
and Dispensary.

JAMES CLARKE, esq.—W. CUMMINGS, esq.—WILLIAM FAGAN, esq.—Rev. JOHN FORSYTH, protestant curate.—Rev. Mr. HALLAN, Rev. Mr. M'CLOUD, roman catholic clergymen of the parish.—R. HOWE, esq.—JAMES LANE, esq.—Rev. D. QUARRY, rector.—The four Medical Attendants of the Institution.—The Apothecary and Stewards.

Population and
Extent of Country.

The North Infirmary of the city of Cork, (incorporated by Act of Parliament in the year 1744) was erected in the year 1720. It is situated in a part of the city chiefly inhabited by the poorer classes, and in the immediate vicinity of several distilleries, tan-yards and other manufactories. The site is elevated and salubrious, but the approaches to it are bad, and the Infirmary is surrounded on all sides by dwellings of the lowest description, abounding in filth and the worst nuisances. As to the extent to which it affords medical assistance to the poor, it is stated by the witnesses, that no limitation whatsoever exists with respect to the district from which patients are admitted. They are received from all places and from the shipping in the river. The number of medical charities in Cork and its immediate vicinity is very considerable; they may be arranged into those which are designed for intern patients, and into those which merely dispense advice and medicine. Of the first kind are the South Infirmary, the House of Recovery, the Fever Hospital, the Hospital of the House of Industry, the Lying-in Hospital, and the Lunatic Asylum; of the second kind, the following institutions occur in different directions within six miles of the city, namely, the Cork General Dispensary, and those of Blackrock, Douglas Glanmire, Strand Road, Blarney, Ballinhassig, Whitechurch and Dunbolloge. These several establishments, occupying distinct localities (the Cork General Dispensary being nearly in the centre of all) are considered dered amply sufficient for the wants of the labouring and indigent classes, and one of the witnesses goes so far as to say that they are needlessly or injudiciously multiplied, at least within the precincts of the city. It is, however, stated, that in general the amount of intern accommodation is by no means too great, but it is expected that, with reference to the institution at present under consideration, this defect will be remedied by the new hospital which has been commenced. The old Infirmary is about to be taken down and a large new building is in progress of completion on an ample space of ground in the vicinity. In this new hospital there are two wards 48 feet by 23 feet, capable of containing 20 beds each ward; and four wards, respectively 36 feet by 22 feet, intended to contain eight beds each, making a total of 72 beds. The lower part of the building is to be appropriated to the dispensary department, and is spacious and well arranged. In this building there are all the essential capabilities for forming a useful and efficient hospital, but, as mentioned before, the insulation is extremely imperfect, and the space between the external walls and the adjacent hovels is only 18 feet. The supply of furniture in the present infirmary consists of 40 iron bedsteads of the cheapest kind, sacks for straw bedding, sheets and blankets long in use, and never very good, and some earthenware. The whole stock of the institution seems to be very nearly worn out. Neither garden nor airing grounds are attached to the Infirmary, as the space on which the new erection is going forward was formerly devoted to those uses. The ground was held in fee by the establishment, but the patients never derived any advantage from it, the produce being, according to the evidence of some of the witnesses, always appropriated to the use of the apothecary and his family.

Two physicians and two surgeons, an apothecary and an assistant apothecary, compose the staff of the institution. The four medical gentlemen are doctors in medicine of the Edinburgh University, and have been connected with the charity for periods varying from 11 to four years. The nominal apothecary is a member of the Apothecaries' Hall in Dublin, and has held the situation for a period of about 42 years; the assistant apothecary, although returned as in the receipt of a salary of 37*l.* a year, and provided with apartments in the house, does not possess any professional qualifications whatsoever. He is merely the apprentice of the apothecary, and, on referring to the books of the institution, there is no record to be found of his having been appointed or elected either by the governors or trustees; he however resides in the house, the apothecary having ceased to occupy any apartments since the breaking out of the cholera in the year 1832, when the entire premises were cleared out, and devoted to the reception of patients labouring under that disease. The other medical officers derive their appointments from the trustees, in conformity with the provisions of the Act of Parliament, and with one exception, they do not hold any second appointment to other charities; the gentleman excepted is physician to the Lying-in Hospital, but does not receive any remuneration for his services in that capacity. One of the medical officers is obliged to attend at the dispensary on each day in the week, between the hours of eleven and one o'clock, and this duty they perform in succession, having made an arrangement, whereby the place of him whose turn it may be to attend and who may have occasion to absent himself, is supplied by one or other of his colleagues. From the circumstance of the assistant apothecary residing in the house, and being obliged at all times to send for one of the medical gentlemen when any circumstance calls for their aid, there is sufficient security for relief being quickly granted in all cases of emergency. The trustees also possess authority over the several officers, and have it in their power to control them in the regular discharge of their respective duties. The administration of medicine to the patients is entirely confided to the two senior nurses.

The two physicians and the senior surgeon receive 18*l.* 9*s.* 2*d.* each per annum. The apothecary receives 52*l.* 10*s.* yearly, and for the assistant apothecary is charged a salary of 27*l.* 13*s.* 10*d.* The junior surgeon receives no remuneration for his services. The assistant apothecary is provided with an apartment in the house, but he does not draw any allowance for maintenance. The amount of payment awarded to the several officers rests entirely at the discretion of the trustees.

It has been already intimated that the election of the medical officers rests in the hands of the trustees. It is, however, stated that whenever a vacancy occurs proper means for insuring competition for the situation, by advertisements inserted in the newspapers, are always adopted. The number of candidates who present themselves is usually very considerable, but on the last occasion not more than three (including the successful one) contested the election. The qualifications which were required were, (without any limitation as to age,) for the physicians, a degree from some university, for the surgeons, a diploma from some one of the colleges of surgeons, and for the apothecary, the diploma of the Apothecaries' Hall in Dublin. It is further stated that there are several qualified practitioners residing in the city, who would be very willing to undertake the medical service of the charity without any prospect of remuneration. Neither superannuation nor retiring pensions are ever granted. No instance of mortality has occurred among the medical officers for a period of several years. The Assistant Commissioners inquired as to the means possessed by the poor for obtaining redress in case of their being treated with harshness or neglect by either the physicians or surgeons. They were informed, that the class in question were well aware that any complaints laid by them before the trustees would meet with immediate attention. It was, at the same time, observed that no complaint had ever been preferred.

The apothecary's shop was found to contain an adequate supply of good medicines, including the generality of the recently adopted preparations; the arrangements, however,

COUNTY
INFIRMARIES.

Munster.
City of Cork.

Examinations taken by
Cusack Roney, esq.
W. P. Borrett, esq., M. D.

North Charitable
Infirmary
and Dispensary.

Building, Furniture
and Grounds.

Medical Officers.

Payment.

Election.

Pharmacy.

COUNTY
INFIRMARIES.Munster.
City of Cork.Examinations taken by
Cusack Roney, esq.
W. P. Borrett, esq., M.D.North Charitable Infirmary
and Dispensary,

Diet.

General ManagementPatients' Registration.Who entitled to
Relief.

Extern Patients.

Intern Patients.

of the shop were very far from what should characterize a similar place; they were slovenly, and evinced a total want of cleanliness and neatness. The pharmaceutical apparatus (which was of the best kind), as well as the medicines, were under the joint care of the apothecary and of his apprentice, or the assistant apothecary as he was called; the former person is the proprietor of an extensive apothecary's and druggist's shop in the city of Cork, and up to a very recent period he appears to have been permitted to supply the establishment, not only with medicine but with every other article required for its internal consumption, at his own discretion; he has been, in fact, not only the apothecary of the infirmary, but also the steward of the infirmary, the secretary of the infirmary, and, as far as could be learned, the board of the infirmary; as to the prices at which he has been accustomed to furnish medicine to the charity, it deserves to be mentioned that his account for the year which has just expired is much lower than those of previous years, notwithstanding that the number of patients relieved has very considerably increased. This discrepancy was, however, rendered intelligible to the Assistant Commissioners, when they learned, that in consequence of the South Infirmary, in another part of the city, having obtained a contract for medicine on reasonable terms, an arrangement was effected, whereby the individual referred to became bound to provide all the medicines necessary for the institution at present under consideration, at the same rates as those paid by the South Infirmary. Before this alteration the cost of medicine seems to have been very disproportionately high. It is stated that leeches are freely applied to those patients for whom the medical officers represent them to be expedient, and that they are supplied gratuitously by the apothecary. Nothing has been done for the diffusion of cow-pock in connexion with the present institution. Several of the witnesses, however, bear testimony to the advantages derived from the practice of vaccination among the poor, and it was observed by the clergymen and medical men who attended as witnesses, that "very generally, when the insertion of vaccine matter did not altogether confer an immunity from small-pox, it tended to mitigate the symptoms of that disease in a very remarkable manner." The medical officers represented themselves as decidedly adverse to the inoculation with variolous matter.

The registration of patients extends to no other particulars than the nature of the disease for which they have been admitted, and the name of the medical officer who happened to be in attendance at the date of admission. No entry is made of the cases in which admission is refused; it merely remains open to the subscriber whose recommendation has been declined, to write for an explanation of the motives to such refusal. At the date of the Assistant Commissioners' visit there were but 13 patients in the house, but it was stated that the number of those who daily attended for advice and medicine at the dispensary connected with the Infirmary did not fall much short of 100.

Medical relief is extended to all persons who apply as extern patients at the dispensary, but none are entitled to admission into the wards except those who have provided themselves with a proper recommendation. This condition is not calculated to restrict the utility of the institution in any sensible degree, because the subscribers and other privileged persons may issue as many recommendatory orders as they think proper, and frequently do so even in favour of strangers. There are many instances in which the servants of subscribers, and even domestics of the upper class, such as housekeepers and butlers, have been received into the house as intern patients, but the witnesses state that in general no other persons find admission than those whose circumstances of known distress may be considered as giving them a just claim to participation in the benefits of the charity by obtaining gratuitous relief.

With reference to extern patients more particularly, they are prescribed for and supplied with proper remedies by one or other of the attending physicians, on every day in the week except Sunday, between the hours of 11 and 12. Several of the sick poor are also attended at their own houses, and receive medical assistance whenever they require it. Fractures and other accidents are also frequently attended to out of doors, and treated by means of bandages and splints belonging to the charity. The physicians remark on the absolute necessity of daily attention to those labouring under acute diseases, and they observe that it can only be dispensed with where the disorder partakes of a chronic nature. The Infirmary does not provide any assistance for the poor lying-in women of its neighbourhood. They are consequently reduced to rely on midwives, who, by the united testimony of all the witnesses examined, are grossly ignorant of the duties which they undertake; they are not unfrequently the cause of much suffering and of positive injury to both mother and child.

It has been mentioned that the procuring admission as an intern patient is contingent on the possession of a recommendation. This rule is never departed from but in cases of sudden accident and of emergency. After admission, except under peculiar circumstances, a patient is not allowed to leave the institution so long as he continues under medical treatment; during that period he is never called upon to perform any work, except to render some trifling assistance in preserving cleanliness throughout the house; his friends are permitted to visit him upon obtaining permission to that effect, either from the attending physician or from the apothecary. There are no chaplains attached to the North Infirmary, but clergymen of all sects are considered to be in possession of a right to visit the members of their respective communions whenever the latter express a wish to see them, or to participate in the rites of their church. The several clergymen who were present at this examination coincide in stating, that "no illiberal or sectarian interference has ever occurred, whether

COUNTY
INFIRMARIES.

Munster.
City of Cork.

Examinations taken by
Cusack-Roney, esq.
W. P. Borrett, esq., M.D.

North Charitable
Infirmary
and Dispensary.

Diet.

General Manage-
ment.

Patients' Registration.

Who entitled to
Relief.

Extern Patients.

Intern Patients.

Managing
Committee.

Officers not
medical.

whether on the part of clergy or laity, with the patients in the wards, and they further add, that neither controversial nor theological tracts have ever been circulated among them. During the prevalence of cholera in the city the disease obtained a footing in this establishment, which after a time became restricted solely to the relief of those who were attacked by the epidemic. Restored, as it is at present, to its original purposes, it does not contain any ward for the reception of lunatics; such cases, whenever they present themselves, are sent to the Lunatic Asylum, where an order bearing the signatures of two magistrates, and which is easily procured, secures immediate admission for the patient.

The diet of the intern patients is represented by the witnesses as being deficient neither in quantity nor quality. It was stated to be usually regulated at the discretion of the physicians and surgeons, but owing to the absence of a systematic dietary (without which no hospital can possibly be well conducted) those gentlemen have to point out expressly what each separate patient shall receive as food on every day in the week. An antiquated form of diet was discovered to exist for the regulation of such matters, but it has long ceased to be made use of; and when it is considered by whom the several articles of the patients' food are supplied, the inferences to be drawn are too obvious to need mention. Wine is occasionally ordered for the sick, and this as well as every thing else, is supplied by the apothecary.

The patients make use of their own clothing while in the house. Such portions of it as they do not immediately require are placed aside, and resumed on their departure.

The general management of the North Cork Infirmary exhibits an almost incredible instance of culpable neglect and indifference on the part of the trustees. By referring to the book of proceedings the Assistant Commissioners ascertained that for the last 40 years there had scarcely been one regular meeting of the governors, although the Act of Parliament under which the institution is incorporated, requires that a succession of trustees, duly elected by the governors, should be kept up. The remissness of the governing body has placed the entire control of the establishment in the hands of the apothecary, who states, in his own justification, and with reference to the manner in which the annual meetings are observed by the governors, that, at the last yearly assembly, he was requested by the only two gentlemen who were present, to take upon himself the re-appointment as trustees, of the two persons who had acted as such in the preceding year. He has further been permitted to make his own son-in-law one of the trustees, a step of which the illegality is exposed to little or no doubt. The duty of attending the monthly meetings has been equally neglected. The number of governors attending them has seldom exceeded two or three, notwithstanding that the Act of Parliament declares that a quorum shall not consist of less than five members. The general effects of a want of proper authority are sufficiently manifest in the actual condition of the establishment, but the medical gentlemen mention as an instance of the evils resulting from the supineness of the trustees, that an opportunity which recently offered of purchasing, at an advantageous price, a lot of tenements which are in front of, and immediately adjoining the new hospital, and which would have secured a convenient approach to it, was allowed to pass by; as there was no meeting of the trustees, nothing could be done; the houses have since been put in a state of repair, and their value has been enhanced three-fold.

Subsequent to receiving the evidence contained in the foregoing statement the Assistant Commissioners learned that a meeting of the trustees of the North Cork Infirmary was to be held on a certain day. On that day, accordingly, they visited the establishment for the fourth time; after waiting for above an hour the son-in-law of the apothecary made his appearance; but with the exception of him, the meeting passed unattended by any trustee, and in this particular it might fairly be considered as a specimen of the generality of such assemblies. The abandonment of the interests of the Infirmary is the more remarkable from the great number, viz., 74, of those who constitute the principal direction. This number consists of the subscribers and several gentlemen who, in virtue of their office, as the rector of the parish, or on other grounds, have been endowed with a vote in all elections by Act of Parliament. On the first Monday in May they are directed to assemble for the purpose of selecting trustees, and enacting bye-laws, but this injunction has been altogether overlooked. There has been no regularity in issuing summons, (an advertisement to the effect has been merely inserted in the newspapers by the steward); and though the proceedings of the two or three individuals who attended the meetings have been in some measure registered, yet the mention of their names has been carefully avoided. In one contested election of a physician, voting by proxy was allowed.

The trustees are supposed to constitute the managing committee for the regulation of the details of the charity, but, with the exception of occasional visits from the rector of the parish (who is a parliamentary trustee), they act independent of control, as the board of superintendence appointed by the grand jury has never exercised its functions.

The only non-medical officer is the treasurer. He acts without any salary, and has never been required to give any security notwithstanding the very considerable sums of money which appear to have been in his hands. Neither can it be said that he is accountable to the trustees for the discharge of his office, inasmuch as they have seldom met for the dispatch of business. For the last few years the amount of annual subscriptions has been gradually diminishing, a circumstance apparently attributable to the withdrawal of the confidence of the public from the administration of the charity, which has been viewed as a

COUNTY
INFIRMARIES.Munster.
City of Cork.Examinations taken by
Cusack Roney, esq.
W.P. Borrett, esq., M.D.North Charitable Infirmary
and Dispensary.

family concern carried on for the benefit of an individual. At the present moment the number of subscribers resident in Cork scarcely exceeds the number of trustees appointed by the Act of Parliament, and the greater portion of them would seem to be personal friends of an individual, and actuated by a common wish to advance his exclusive interests. In the year 1829 a sum of about 3,300*l.* was collected for the purpose of replacing the old and inconvenient hospital by a new and better arranged structure. About 600*l.* was forthwith expended in procuring an Act of Parliament for incorporating the institution with the Cork South Infirmary, but the enactment was prepared with so much negligence that the intention could not be carried into effect, and the money was lost to the funds of the charity. Various sums of money belonging to the charity have at different times been lent to individuals for their uses; and, at the date of this evidence, a chancery suit was in progress respecting a bill filed against the trustees to obtain possession of a property mortgaged to them for a sum of money which they had lent to one of their own body. It is presumed that the expenses of litigation must, under any circumstances, fall heavily on the funds of the institution, but should the decision be unfavourable the establishment will be reduced almost to a state of insolvency, the trustees having entered into an engagement for completing the new hospital to an extent far exceeding the means actually at their disposal. This is not the only instance of trafficking in the funds of the Infirmary which has been reported to the Assistant Commissioners. It has come to light that another person has obtained possession of a sum of money belonging to the charity for the use of which he has not been charged with any interest for several years, whilst in endeavouring to recover it lately, an expense of some hundred pounds has been incurred. Again, in the year 1832 a legacy of 500*l.* was left to the institution, which the treasurer received directions to deposit in the savings bank. This he has neglected to do, and the money has remained in his own hands without bearing any interest, and without any security having been given for its safe custody, notwithstanding that he has been repeatedly applied to, either to lodge or fund the sum in question.

The preceding are a few of the many abuses connected with the funds of this ill managed charity. Matters have gone so far, that it is exceedingly doubtful whether, when the new hospital is ready for the reception of patients it can be opened to admit them.

	£.	s.	d.
The income is reduced to the government grant of	-	-	44
To grand jury presentment	-	-	230
Subscriptions, donations, &c. about	-	-	80
Making a total of	-	-	354

This sum would be barely adequate for the maintenance of the dispensary department, and is quite insufficient to clear off the present engagements, to defray legal expenses, and to purchase the necessary outfit. Whatever officers it may be deemed expedient to retain it is certain, that, under any circumstances, they ought to be placed on a very different footing from what they have been hitherto. The whole system should be remodelled, or better, a total change should be accomplished. The correctness with which the duties of the physicians and surgeons have been discharged forms the only exception to the corrupt disorder which pervades every branch of the establishment, and before it can henceforward be rendered either extensively available or useful to the poor it will be indispensable that the Act of Parliament, which has been so signally inoperative in the prevention of the worst abuses, be altogether cast aside.

Attendants.

The following list shows the number of hired attendants and their wages.

	£.	s.	d.
Housekeeper or matron at	-	-	15	per annum.
Doorkeeper	-	-	6	ditto
Nurses	-	-	12	ditto
Two kitchen-maids, each at	-	-	4	ditto
One assistant kitchen-maid, at	-	-	3	ditto

All these reside in the house, and with the exception of the housekeeper are allowed 3*s.* 3*d.* a week for board wages. The housekeeper receives 4*s.* 4*d.* They are hired, discharged and paid by the apothecary. It will at once be perceived that the catalogue of servants far exceeds what can be required for the purposes of the establishment. On making a minute examination the Assistant Commissioners ascertained that the female who acts as a washerwoman (and who must cost the charity on an average about 40*l.* or 50*l.* per annum) had never discharged any duty whatever for the charity during a period of at least 20 years. She has been solely and entirely occupied in the service of the apothecary, and has washed exclusively for his family, every thing required for their use being sent from his private residence in the town, to be done up at the hospital by this servant, who is paid and provided with all necessaries out of the funds of the charity, for which she was never allowed to perform any work. This statement is derived not only from the books of the institution, but from the the testimony of the woman in question, and of the housekeeper. Charges also occur of two other servants, who do not appear to have been ever employed by the charity, or if they have been in the house, to have been engaged in its service.

Every article of consumption is supplied by the apothecary (in his capacity of steward) at his own prices, and independent of any fixed contract. On examining his private books it was found that there was a very considerable difference in the average annual cost of many ordinary articles, whose charges ought to have been nearly constant, owing to the absence of variation in the number of patients. The sums alleged to have been expended on coals, soap and candles, appear from several items, of most unreasonable magnitude, which can only be explained by recollecting what has been already adduced respecting the family and servants of an officer having had their washing done at the expense of the charity.

The affairs of the charity are carried on arbitrarily, without reference to any code of rules.

The last official report was published in the year 1826. In the year 1832 a report was presented to the trustees, by the physicians and surgeons, recommending the appointment of a monthly committee, who, in conjunction with the trustees, should provide for the internal management and economy of the hospital, and urging the necessity of establishing a regular dietary, whereby a daily check would be afforded on the consumption and cost of provisions. It was also recommended that the supply of all articles should be by contract, open to public competition. These judicious suggestions passed unadopted, in consequence of an under influence which prevailed with the trustees. The recommendations were referred to a committee, who have never reported on them, and the course of things has remained unaltered.

The principal heads of income have been already enumerated; namely, Government grant, grand jury presentment, and subscriptions. The latter at one time yielded a very considerable annual amount, but they have been latterly decreasing, and are received exclusively from the wealthier classes. It is unnecessary to add to the account which has been already given of the fixed property of the institution, further than that the two plots of ground upon which the new and old hospitals stand are held in fee by the treasurer, into whose hands all the receipts of the charity pass.

With respect to expenditure and accounts, the Assistant Commissioners profess themselves unable to understand the balance sheet which was handed to them by the treasurer. At the monthly meeting of trustees, which they attended, no partial account whatsoever had been prepared to lay before them. The system of account keeping is slovenly and negligent in an extreme degree; and it is a matter of astonishment, if not of suspicion, that a clear, explicit and satisfactory statement of the expenditure of public money should never at any time have been demanded by those who were appointed trustees to the charity for the express purpose of being watchful guardians of the public purse. The heaviest charges, frequently exceeding 50*l.*, and occasionally amounting to 100*l.*, have been entered on the books under the very vague and general head of "Sundries." Many bills which should have been settled yearly, have remained unpaid from year to year, so that at last their accumulation has become enormous; as, for instance, one payment for printing amounting to 31*l.*

The North Cork Infirmary is unattended by medical pupils. It affords no kind of instruction to students, and though the practitioners of the city are admitted to any operation that may take place, yet it is only in case of a coroner's inquest, or by special permission of the friends of the deceased, that recourse is had to examinations "post mortem."

In taking a general survey of the establishment of which the details have been set forth, the Assistant Commissioners cannot avoid repeating that, it requires to be thoroughly renovated in every department, and that measures must be promptly taken if it be desired to prolong even its existence. Its income is small, and is still diminishing; it is loaded with debt, involved in litigation, and the remnant of its property is most insecurely placed. On this latter point it may be allowed to remark that, the lending of several sums of money by the treasurer, have not been acts of the corporation, but merely of an individual, and that many of the debts and costs at present charged to the funds of the charity are properly the debts of the treasurer, for which his private property may fairly be considered accountable. Previous to their departure from Cork the Assistant Commissioners were supplied with the "balance sheet" of the accounts, which showed that the sum of money before alluded to as having been retained by the treasurer after he had received repeated orders to deposit it in the savings' bank, was still in the hands of that officer. The document also sets forth two sums of money as having been lent by a former treasurer without any directions so to do from the board of trustees. One of the sums, amounting to 646*l.* 3*s.* 1*d.*, was lent to a brewer in the city of Cork, a trader, and exposed to all the contingencies of trade. The other amounted originally to 369*l.* 4*s.* 7*d.*, but the interest which has been allowed to accumulate on it, viz., 409*l.* 16*s.* 11*d.* already exceeds the original debt. Much expense has been incurred in the endeavour to recover both these sums; but the recovery of the latter debt can never be effected, as no bond can more than double its original amount by interest. One part of the funded property of the institution is at present vested in the names of only two trustees, instead of being lodged to the credit of the corporation. Both of the trustees are old, and in the event of either of them dying, the other acquires a complete control over the money; as, unless the surviving trustee of funded property thinks proper to declare the trust, it becomes solely vested in him.

COUNTY
INFIRMARIES.

Examinations taken by
Cusack Roney, esq.
W. P. Borrett, esq., M.D.

Munster.
City of Cork.

North Charitable
Infirmary
and Dispensary.

Rules.

Reports.

Funds and
Accounts.

Expenditure and
Accounts.

Medical and Surgical Instruction.

COUNTY

INFIRMARIES.

Munster.

City of Cork.

Examinations taken by

Cusack Roney, esq.

W. P. Borrett, esq., M.D.

South Infirmary.

Population and

Extent of Country.

Persons who attended the Examination.

ROGER ADAMS, esq.—C. BULL, esq.—JOSHUA BULL, esq.—THOMAS BULKLEY, esq.—WILLIAM CRAWFURD, esq.—JAMES DRURY, esq.—THOMAS HARVEY, esq.—Rev. Mr. MATTHEW.—Rev. Mr. O'CALLAGHAN, protestant curate.—Rev. Mr. O'CONNER, catholic curate.—JOHN SWETE, esq.—Rev. Mr. TUTHILL.—the two Physicians.—The two Surgeons.

THE South Infirmary is intended to relieve the medical wants of the labouring population in the city and the district immediately surrounding it, a population calculated to amount to nearly 200,000 souls. Its benefits are by no means, however, confined within these limits, as patients from all parts of the county are frequently admitted, and there is at present in one of the wards a patient from the county of Waterford. There are several other medical charities included in, and within a few miles of the city of Cork, of which a list is subjoined, namely—

- | | |
|--|----------------------|
| The North Cork Infirmary. | Lying-in Hospital. |
| The Cork General Dispensary. | Douglas Dispensary. |
| The Hospital of the House of Industry. | Black Rock Ditto. |
| The Fever Hospital. | Glanmire Ditto. |
| | Glanmire Road Ditto. |

Notwithstanding these numerous institutions, the witnesses concur in stating that the wants of the sick poor are very inadequately provided for, and, with respect to the hospital at present under consideration, it is asserted that nearly three-fourths of the entire number of applicants for admission are obliged to be refused, merely from want of room. The Roman catholic Clergyman of the parish observes, that “he is frequently obliged, owing to the want of accommodation in the hospital, to pass sick persons as paupers into the House of Industry, that they may there obtain some kind of medical assistance,” and he adds that he meets with many individuals, who being unwilling to avail themselves of such an expedient, or to assume the character of absolute paupers, prefer returning to their homes, without having received any relief, where many of them have subsequently died.

Building, Furniture

and Grounds.

The hospital is situated on high ground, enjoying the advantages of a pure air, and affording a good supply of water, whilst at the same time it is provided with excellent sewerage, and is sheltered on all sides from cold and inclement winds. It is constructed of stone, and is three stories in height. It contains a large and well regulated apartment appropriated to the dispensing of medicines, and there are two rooms used for the reception of patients whilst waiting for relief, one for males, the other for females. The wards are eight in number, all of a good size and well ventilated, but at present only seven of them are open. The eighth is undergoing repairs which will soon be concluded. However, the state of the funds of the charity is such, that much doubt is expressed, whether it can, when ready, be again devoted to its original purpose. Taken together, the wards could, with every attention to convenience, easily accommodate sixty patients. The institution contains baths, and possesses about a quarter of an acre of ground, which is laid out as a garden. The furniture is old but good, and the entire premises seemed to be in a condition of tolerable repair. They are held by a lease for ever, and are occupied exclusively by the officers of the establishment and patients, the ground floor being assigned to the former.

Medical Officers.

The medical officers consist of two physicians, a surgeon and a consulting surgeon. The latter gentleman, who is nearly 80 years of age, was educated at Rheims; the other surgeon is a member of the Royal College of Surgeons in Ireland, and both the physicians are doctors in medicine of the University of Edinburgh. None of them reside at the hospital, and they are all engaged in private practice more or less extensively, one of the physicians being also the medical attendant of the Lying-in Hospital of the city of Cork. One or other of them, in turn, attends at the institution on every day in the week, and they are accustomed to act for each other during any temporary absence. Previous to a more prolonged absence they are obliged to obtain the sanction of the trustees to their duties being performed by substitute. The apothecary is a resident officer, and either he or his apprentice is expected to be at all times on the spot, that in case of accidents or other emergencies immediate assistance may be had. The medicines are dispensed by the apothecary, and administered to the patients by the nurses. All the officers are subject to the strict control of the trustees, who are authorized to investigate any complaints which may be made against them for harshness or neglect of duty towards the patients. The poor in general are represented to be well aware of this mode of obtaining redress, and it is stated that they have in some instances resorted to it. However no medical officer would be retained in his situation if he were known to have forfeited their confidence and good will.

Payment.

The several medical attendants render their services without any remuneration. The apothecary alone is paid a salary amounting to 70*l.* a year, and is provided with apartments in the house, without being entitled to any further allowance.

Election.

All appointments are made by the trustees, in whom the provisions of the Act of Parliament vest large powers for the management of all the departments of the institution. Whenever a vacancy occurs in the medical department, an advertisement inviting competition is usually usually inserted in the newspapers, and a selection is made from the several candidates who may happen to present themselves, without any reference to the grand jury or other superior authority. The trustees who attended this examination are of opinion that any external control is not wanting, as the number of qualified persons who are constantly on the watch to obtain any appointment when vacant is very great; and as all candidates are required to be possessed of adequate qualifications, such as that of the degree of M. D. for the medical attendants, and of the diploma of master of Apothecaries' Hall for the apothecary. The number of medical men who are anxious to yield their services gratuitously is very great; and there has been no remarkable mortality among those who have been connected with the charity.

The apothecary's shop was remarkably neat, and appeared to be very well arranged for its purposes. It contained all the medicines which are resorted to in ordinary practice, besides many of the more delicate preparations, such as quinine and morphia. They were stated to be solely for the use of the institution; were under the charge of the apothecary, or, in his absence, of his two apprentices. He practises in private as a surgeon, but does not supply medicine. An apothecary and druggist, in the city of Cork, furnishes the drugs that are required, and his account is paid by an order of the treasurer. His accounts for the last three years have been as follow:—

	£.	s.	d.
1831	153	6	1
1832	149	8	6
1833	147	-	-

There is a good stock of pharmaceutical apparatus, but as the hospital does not possess any surgical instruments the surgeons are obliged to make use of their own. Leeches are occasionally applied when ordered by the medical officers, but only to the intern patients. No provision has been made for the diffusion of vaccination, notwithstanding that the confidence of the public in the utility of the practice remains unshaken, and that the medical officers profess their opinions to be strongly in favour, if not of its preservative, at least of its mitigative qualities. The smallpox has ceased to be frequent of late years, and inoculation with variolous matter is discouraged at the infirmary, though no express resolution of the trustees has been passed in condemnation of it.

The resident apothecary keeps a tolerably accurate account of the number of patients, and of the most important circumstances connected with each; a copy of it is annually presented to the grand jury, and another to the commissioners of impressed accounts. No mention is, however, made of those persons who are refused admittance, and it is stated in explanation that their numbers are too great. The Assistant Commissioners did not obtain a return of the amount of relief granted in the present year, but the following table, extracted from the printed statement of the affairs of the charity for the year ending January 5th 1832, will exhibit to what extent the institution was made available during that period.

Patients,—medical and surgical. Thirty-two beds.

Description.	Cured.	Relieved.	Left the House without Leave.	Died.	In the House January 5th 1832.	Total.
In-Patients:
Medical	37	34	-	17	7	95
Surgical	145	61	8	5	25	244
Total	182	95	8	22	32	339
Out-Patients:
Medical, cured or relieved	-	-	-	-	3,335
Surgical, - - ditto	-	-	-	-	6,669
					10,004
TOTAL	-	-	-	-	10,343

Each applicant for admission into the hospital must be possessed of a recommendation; and this condition is never dispensed with except in cases of accident. The signature of one subscriber is sufficient to each order; and a person who subscribes 10 guineas a year can always command a bed for the accommodation of any proper case. There is no limitation to the number of orders which each subscriber is entitled to issue, and it is thought that the necessity of obtaining them, while it has prevented the benefits of the charity being abused by persons not standing in need of gratuitous assistance, has at the same time not thrown any obstacle in the way of proper objects.

Who entitled to Relief.

COUNTY INFIRMARIES.

Leinster. Queen's County.

Examinations taken by Sir D. Barry, M.D. J. R. Corrie, esq., M.D.

South Infirmary and Dispensary.

Pharmacy.

COUNTY INFIRMARIES.	A dispensary is attached to the hospital, at which extern patients receive advice and medicine, but none are visited at their dwellings. They are however provided with splints and bandages, and immediate aid is rendered when accidents occur. Lying-in women are not attended, nor could any information be obtained as to the degree of skill possessed by the midwives, to whose services the females of the poorer classes are obliged to have recourse. The Assistant Commissioners examined the prescription-book, and had reason to be satisfied with the character of the remedies which appeared to have been adopted. It was stated that no other prescriptions were compounded than those of the medical attendants attached to the institution.
Munster. City of Cork.
Examinations taken by Cusack Roney, esq. W. P. Borrett, esq., &c.
South Infirmary, and Dispensary.	The number of those who seek admission is far greater than can possibly be received. After a patient has been admitted he is not allowed to go beyond the bounds of the establishment, without special leave, until his final departure; but he is never at any time required to perform any work. His friends are permitted to visit him daily between the hours of 11 and 3, during which interval the orderly conduct of all is secured by regulations, which especially forbid the introduction of spirituous liquors or other improper articles. There is no lunatic ward, cases of lunacy being always sent to the Lunatic Asylum. No case of cholera occurred in the hospital during the prevalence of that epidemic in Cork. There is not any chaplain attached to the hospital, but clergymen of all religious persuasions are considered to possess a right of visiting those patients who express a wish to avail themselves of their religious services. It was also stated by the several gentlemen and officers of the charity that no sectarian interference has ever taken place with the opinions of the patients, and that controversial tracts have never been circulated among them.
Intern Patients.
Diet.	The diet of the patients is arranged each day in conformity with a schedule which points the rations to be allowed to those who may be on "full, middle and low diet," at breakfast, dinner and supper. Whatever extras may be required are also given, when a special order to the effect is made.
Clothing.	The patients are obliged to make use of their own clothing while in the hospital; and it is to be regretted that no attention is paid to the cleansing or purifying them before their departure from the hospital.
General Management.	The general management of the infirmary is vested in 18 Parliamentary trustees, and in 15 others who are annually elected from among the subscribers. A general meeting is held every year on the first Wednesday in July, at which all governors are alike privileged to attend; usually, however, not more than 12 persons assemble, although voting by proxy is not allowed. No fixed number is required to constitute a quorum; but the proceedings are always registered, and none of the medical officers have for many years been permitted to take any part in them.
Officers not medical.	The trustees discharge the duties of a managing committee, and for that purpose they assemble once in every month, and their proceedings are always committed to writing. The grand jury have appointed a board of superintendence, but there is no instance of their having acted. There are not any visiting governors.
Attendants.	The non-medical officers, namely, the treasurer and collector, are annually appointed by the trustees, who give their votes openly, and, it was stated, without any reference to religious distinctions. The collector receives 6 d. in the pound on the gross amount of subscriptions, which he obtains; but the treasurer acts without any direct remuneration, and is not required to enter into any security for the funds which may happen to be in his possession. This is a defect which, it will be readily admitted, is incompatible with good management in any institution; but certain circumstances have rendered it peculiarly liable to objections in the one under consideration. At the date of this examination the funds of the charity were deposited in the savings bank, but merely to the credit of the treasurer. A still less defensible disposition, however, of its property existed under the management of the late treasurer; although for some time a resident of Dublin, he continued to retain the entire management of the funds, and his accounts set forth the sale of some government stock to meet the engagements of the establishment, which, nevertheless, appear to have been in reality discharged by bills passed in his own name; and, again, certain sums were charged which it appeared were not paid at the time indicated. These facts are sufficient to show that the uncontrolled position in which treasurers of charitable institutions stand should be altered; but the Assistant Commissioners beg also to remark that the supineness of the trustees has not a little contributed to this reprehensible management.
	The following list was given of servants and attendants, and their respective wages:—
	One matron, at £. s. d. 40 — — per annum.
	Two chief nurses, at 16 l. each — — 32 — —
	Two assistant nurses, at 10 l. each — — 20 — —
	Kitchen maid — — 4 — —
	One porter — — 8 — —
	All reside in the house, and, with the exception of the matron, are provided with diet.

COUNTY INFIRMARIES.

Munster.
City of Cork.

Examinations taken by
Cusack Roney, esq.
W.P. Borrett, esq., M.D.

South Infirmary,
and Dispensary.

Funds and
Accounts.
Receipts.

Collection and
Custody.

Expenditure.

Accounts.

Medical and Surgical Instruction.

General Manage-
ment.

County Kerry.

County Infirmary.

Population and
Extent of Country.

Medical Officer.

Attendants.

Every thing of any importance is procured by contract from individuals unconnected with the charity. The prices appeared reasonable, and an efficient check appeared to be kept over all articles furnished. The matron and the apothecary are in the habit of procuring sundry miscellaneous matters not exceeding in value about 1*l.* 10*s.* a month.

The regulations for the conduct of those connected with the establishment are useful and judicious, and calculated to secure its efficiency.

A report is drawn out quarterly of the expenditure of the infirmary and of the number of patients who have been relieved. They are laid before the annual meeting; but they are not regularly printed owing to the low state of the funds.

The fixed property of the institution is limited to the ground upon which the adjoining House of Industry and Lunatic Asylum are built. For the former a ground rent of 22*l.* 3*s.* 1*d.* is paid; for the latter a ground rent of 11*l.* 1*s.* 7*d.* With these exceptions, the receipts consist of subscriptions, donations, legacies, grand jury grants and sundries, such as fines, &c. The subscriptions are all derived from the richer classes; but the sources of income taken together are very inadequate to the demands for relief, and the defect has been further increased by the total withdrawal of the Parliamentary grant, which was appropriated more especially to the expenses of the lock-ward.

It has been already stated that the funds of the charity are at present deposited in the savings bank. No part of them is ever allowed to remain in the hands of any officer, except the treasurer.

The expenditure is controlled by the trustees, through whom alone payments are made.

The accounts are made up annually and published; copies are then sent to the grand jury.

Students are permitted to attend the practice of the medical attendants after their names have been submitted to the consideration of the trustees. For this privilege they are charged eight guineas a year, and they can also avail themselves of the lectures on medicine and surgery delivered by the physicians and surgeons. Dissections, however, are not carried on, except in cases of coroners' inquests, or when special leave has been obtained from the friends of the deceased.

Persons who attended the Examination.

Rowland Blennerhassett, esq.—Rev. Mr. Hurley, protestant clergyman.—Augustus Goulding, esq.—Rev. Dr. McEniry.—The Medical Attendant.—The Apothecary.

The County Infirmary, as its name implies, is intended to afford medical assistance to the poor of the entire county of Kerry. It is situated in the town of Tralee, which also contains two other charitable institutions for the relief of the sick, namely, the Tralee Dispensary and the Tralee Fever Hospital. There is also a dispensary at Ardfert, but at a distance of five miles. The infirmary is considered by the witnesses to be perfectly adequate to its object, and there has not been an instance of the refusing an application for aid during the last three years.

The house is two stories in height and built of stone. It stands in an inclosure of about half an acre, on an elevated position, but is at the same time well sheltered from cold winds and enjoys a southern exposure. It is well supplied with water, but is extremely deficient in sewers. The interior of the building contains an ample hall, used as a waiting-room for patients, nine well-ventilated wards containing 23 beds, but which could be easily made to hold 30, and three apartments appropriated to the attendants. There are baths in the house, but the furniture throughout is of a very indifferent description and rather out of repair. The premises are held by the county, on a lease for ever, subject to a yearly rent of 47*l.* 8*s.* 6*d.*

The medical attendant of the infirmary acts as surgeon and physician. He is a licentiate of the Royal College of Surgeons in Ireland, and is a graduate of the Edinburgh University. He is engaged in private practice and is also physician to the county gaol at a salary of 73*l.* 6*s.* 10*d.* per annum. He was appointed in the year 1820 and resides within a short distance of the hospital, which he is obliged to attend daily. It is understood, however, that if illness or an urgent professional engagement should prevent his performing this duty, he is authorized to avail himself of the services of one of the medical practitioners of the town, being a member or licentiate of the Dublin College of Surgeons. This he has never had occasion to do. An apothecary is also engaged, whose ordinary duties are limited to compounding and dispensing the remedies that have been prescribed by the surgeon. Although the latter officer does not, as has been mentioned, reside in the hospital, yet the vicinity of his residence renders unlikely any inconvenience resulting from the want of professional aid in cases of emergency. The medicines are administered to the patients by the nurses.

COUNTY
INFIRMARIES.Munster.
County Kerry.Examinations taken by
Cusack Roney, esq.
W.P. Borrett, esq., M.D.

County Infirmary.

Election.

Pharmacy.

Patients' Registration.

The payments made to the two medical officers are regulated by Act of Parliament. The surgeon has a salary of 89*l.* per annum; the apothecary receives only 21*l.* Neither of them is entitled to any further allowance.

The right of appointing the medical officers is vested in the governors of the charity. The candidates are not limited as to age, but it is necessary that they should belong to the Royal College of Surgeons in Ireland. Whenever a vacancy occurs it is endeavoured to secure an extensive competition by inserting advertisements in the Dublin and provincial newspapers, inviting properly qualified persons to come forward. The voting at the election (which is quite uncontrolled by the grand jury) is liable to the legal conditions. The town of Tralee contains three medical men possessed of the required qualifications, but none of them would be willing to undertake the charge of the infirmary without remuneration. The conduct of the medical officers, so far as regards punctuality in the discharge of their duties, is subject to the authority of the governors, before whom the poor are authorized to bring any complaint which they may have to make of harshness or neglect shown towards them. It is but right to add, that the present surgeon is allowed to possess the full confidence of that portion of the population for whose service he is more particularly retained.

The apothecary's department was found to be conducted with much neatness and regularity. There was an ample stock of medicine of the best quality, and none of the more recently introduced preparations were deficient. They had been procured by the treasurer from the Messrs Harrington, druggists, in Cork. The pharmaceutical apparatus was very complete. A good many surgical instruments had also been procured, such as trepanning and amputating instruments, stomach-pump, catheters and trocars, &c., and whenever any are wanted they are procured. The surgeon is allowed to make use of them in his private practice, but he has seldom occasion to do so. Leeches are very freely adopted in the practice of the infirmary. They are supplied by the apothecary at the rate of one shilling for each, and their cost usually amounts to about 25*l.* in the course of the year. Vaccination is not practised at the infirmary, as there are no applicants for the performance of it. It is, however, stated, that generally the confidence of the public is increasing in its utility, and the medical attendant observes that "although it certainly cannot be considered as a positive specific against small-pock, it certainly has the effect of mitigating any subsequent attack of that disease. Small-pock has not been frequent of late years in the neighbourhood of Tralee; the surgeon is not prevented from inoculating with the matter of it, but he has not been in the habit of so doing.

A very accurate register of all the particulars connected with the patients is kept by the surgeon, who enters the nature of their diseases and the termination thereof at the proper times. The following abstract refers to the amount of medical assistance granted in connection with the infirmary during the last three years:

Total number of intern patients during the years 1831, 1832, 1833 - - 783

Of which were capital and severe operations - - - - -	46
Minor operations - - - - -	108
Simple fracture of the limbs - - - - -	74
Compound and comminuted ditto - - - - -	12
Simple and compound dislocation - - - - -	11
Skull, simple fracture of - - - - -	9
Depressed and compound ditto - - - - -	8
Brain, concussion of - - - - -	3
Wounds on the head without fracture - - - - -	13
Extensive and severe wounds - - - - -	70
Cataract and other diseases of the eye - - - - -	69
Died; cases in which capital operations were resorted to - - - - -	4

At the time that the Assistant Commissioners received the present evidence the number of patients in the house was 24.

Persons seeking admission into the hospital must be provided with the recommendation of a governor. This rule is only relaxed in cases of accident, which are always taken in without delay. This is not, however, productive of much difficulty to any class of patients, inasmuch as each subscriber is entitled to issue as many recommendatory tickets as he thinks proper, and to each ticket his own signature is alone sufficient; care is at the same time taken that the benefits of the charity shall only be extended to those whose circumstances really place them in need of gratuitous assistance.

Extern Patients.

An important part of the duty of the surgeon consists in attending to the extern patients who come to the institution for advice and medicine, with which they are provided without distinction as to whence they come. Many cases of accident are treated in this manner without its being necessary to take them into the hospital, and the patients are freely supplied with whatever bandages and splints may be necessary. The surgeon is not liable to be called on to visit any class of patients at their own dwellings. Nevertheless he gives it

COUNTY INFIRMARIES.

Munster, County Kerry,

Examinations taken by Cusack Roney, esq. W.P. Borrett, esq., M.D.

County Infirmary, and Dispensary.

Intern Patients.

it as his opinion that daily attendance on the sick is absolutely indispensable in cases of an acute nature, and that it is only where the disease partakes of a chronic character, that a less amount of attention can be productive of benefit.

Articles of food, though so frequently capable of being substituted with advantage for medicine, are not attainable by the sick poor, so long as they remain in their own dwellings, from any institution in Tralee or the vicinity.

Mention has been already made of the circumstances which entitle a patient to admission into the infirmary. After admission he is not allowed to pass beyond the bounds of the institution until his treatment has been concluded, and his friends are not allowed to visit him except under the control of the medical attendant. It is to be regretted that no regulations have been prepared for ensuring the orderly conduct of the intern patients; they are never required to perform any kind of manual labour. There are no chaplains attached to the institution, but the clergy of all religious denominations are considered to possess a right of free ingress to the wards at all times, so that the sick have it in their power to avail themselves of the religious services of their respective pastors whenever they feel disposed. This liberty, conceded with the best intentions to the clergy, has not been unattended with some inconvenience. A preacher of the methodist connexion has taken advantage of it to inculcate his peculiar tenets on the sick, who have been forced to prefer complaints on the subject. The interference has ceased during the last twelve months, and it is but right to add that it was not countenanced by any persons connected with the establishment. During the prevalence of the epidemic cholera the house remained perfectly free from the disease. No arrangements have been made for the accommodation of lunatics. When patients of that description occur they are placed in a temporary depôt in the town, where they remain until they can be admitted into the District Lunatic Asylum at Limerick.

The diet of the patients is regulated according to a fixed money rate, varying with the condition as to health. To those who are placed on full diet 5½ d. per diem is allowed, to be laid out on bread 4 d., milk 1½ d. Middle diet consists of fourpence-worth of milk and twopence-worth of bread. Low diet is composed of sixpence-worth of milk, any thing extra which may be required is also given without difficulty.

Diet.

The general management of the affairs of the charity is vested in nine governors, of whom two act "ex officio," namely, the bishop of the diocese, and the rector of the parish. In point of fact, however, the direction of the institution has been left very much in the hands of the surgeon, as there has not been a meeting of the governors since the year 1823, nor is there any fixed period appointed for their assembling. As governors, they are all possessed of similar privileges, and whenever they have met minutes have been kept of their proceedings. Voting by proxy was never permitted.

General Management.

There is neither a managing committee, nor any visiting governors. The grand jury have never appointed a board of superintendence.

Managing Committee.

The non-medical officers were elected by the governors, and by open voting without reference to religious distinctions. They are two in number, namely, the secretary and the treasurer. Both act without remuneration, and the latter has not been required to enter into any security. He is, however, bound to present his accounts periodically to the grand jury, and to transmit them to the Imprest Office in Dublin.

Officers not medical.

The right of appointing the attendants is exercised by the board, treasurer or medical attendant. At present there are four servants in the receipt of wages from the treasurer, namely, the matron, one nurse-tender, one servant woman and one porter; they are all supplied with lodging, with the exception of the porter.

Attendants.

The matron receives 30 guineas per annum.

	£.	s.	d.		s.	d.
The nurse-tender	8	—	—	per annum, and	4	7
The servant	5	15	4	"	4	6½
The porter	9	4	7	"	7	—

There have not occurred any deaths among them.

The medical attendant is in the habit of purchasing all the articles of internal consumption. In this he is subject to the control of the treasurer, who is in the habit of examining all his vouchers, in order to see that the prices given correspond with the market prices of the day.

Stores.

No rules or regulations whatever exist for the conduct of the establishment.

Rules.

Twice in the year a report is prepared upon the general affairs. One of them accompanies the impressed account. The witnesses coincide in speaking of the utility to which a permanent board of health might be applied if it were made to consist of the clergy, medical men, gentry and middle class of farmers. They state that the district around Tralee contains a considerable number of active and intelligent individuals who would cheerfully co-operate in any investigation having for its object the becoming acquainted with the wants and actual condition of the poorer classes of the population.

COUNTY INFIRMARIES.
Munster.
County Kerry.

The principal source of income is the grand jury presentment, increased materially by the fines levied at the petty sessions. There is but one life governor whose subscription was received previous to the last assizes. There are no annual subscribers. The following sums were received from the county during the last three years :—

		£.	s.	d.
Examinations taken by Cusack Roney, esq.	1831	400	—	—
W.P. Borrett, esq., M.D.	1832	450	—	—
County Infirmary.	1833	500	—	—

Expenditure.

The funds remain in the hands of the treasurer until required to meet the current expenditure.

The entire of the expenditure is conducted by the treasurer, through whose hands all payments are made. The gross sums expended in the spring and summer six months of the under-mentioned years were—

	1831	1832	1833
	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.
Spring	192 3 4	314 — ½	197 4 5
Summer	311 13 3½	358 17 11½	230 18 10½

Accounts.
County Limerick.
Examinations taken by Sir D. Barry, M.D.
J. R. Corrie, esq., M.D.
County Infirmary.

The accounts are periodically submitted to the inspection of the grand jury.

* OWING to certain circumstances over which they had no command the Assistant Commissioners were not able to devote that degree of attention to the medical charities of Limerick which it would, under other circumstances, have been their duty to do. Nevertheless, they obtained a knowledge of several particulars relating to those establishments which had not a little novelty. For instance, in the County Infirmary, up to 1832, there had been two physicians, three surgeons, one apothecary, the effort being progressive on the part of the public to correct the monstrous abuse of permitting one man to monopolize all the skill and fame resulting from the whole public practice of a large county and a populous city. It would appear that this charity had been gradually falling into a state of neglect and mismanagement for a considerable time. It had lost its supporters and subscribers. Even its purely medical concerns had ceased to be looked after with that conscientious attention which society had a right to expect from the profession.

From the information received by the Assistant Commissioners they had reason to conclude that the institution, as it now exists, has been considerably improved; it is certainly to all appearances in a most creditable state at present, and this improvement is owing in a great measure, if not exclusively, to the activity and zeal of the medical members of the committee. It is, however, necessary to observe, that as matters now stand the whole management of the affairs of the charity seems to be thrown into the hands of two or three of the medical officers and their brothers or immediate connexions, who are also of the committee. The crying wants of the county and of the city of Limerick have far outgrown, in the way of hospital accommodation, the capabilities of the infirmary, if they were ever commensurate. There are now about 30 patients in the house, 20 males and 10 females; but there is room for 30 more beds, whilst the applications for admission are quite overpowering. The patient (Hussey) noted for admission on the 28th of August, has but just arrived at the top of the list of candidates. He comes in on the day subsequent to the date of this account (November 6th). Yet, as stated in one of the reports, not all who ought to be provided with hospital accommodation, nor nearly all, apply for admission, knowing the almost interminable time that those who do apply may have to wait before being received. When, in addition to this melancholy fact, it is stated that typhus fever and all diseases reputed to be contagious are utterly inadmissible, and that a small hospital of 30 beds is the only general hospital for a population of 233,500, besides one-fourth of 65,000, (the number of inhabitants in the city,) how pitiable must be the state of destitution of the sick poor of that community! The rules adopted for the management of this charity, in the month of August of the current year, appear to have been wisely constructed in most instances; but it is rather remarkable that there is nothing said as to an airing ground for convalescents, although the hospital is built on a considerable area. There is in fact no spot for the patients to walk in, all the space not occupied by building being, as is always the case, turned to the private use of the resident officers, who in the present establishment are—

- 1st. The apothecary, with his wife and family.
- 2d. The matron, mother of the apothecary.

There is a garden and two walled courts or yards, one of the latter occupied by rabbits, the other by fowls. The very unfavourable influence which the residence of married officers within

* Names of the persons who attended the Examination not stated.

within the walls of medical charities never fails to exercise upon their management, cannot too strongly be noticed nor too rigorously watched, if the source itself of the evil cannot be removed. The following subscribers. There are no annual subscribers. —

COUNTY INFIRMARIES.

Munster.
County Limerick.

Examinations taken by
Sir D. Barry, M.D.
J. R. Corrie, Esq., M.D.

County and City of Limerick.

Barrington's
Hospital and City of Limerick Infirmary.

Building, Furniture
and Grounds.

Medical Officers.

Accounts.

County Limerick.

Examinations taken by

Sir D. Barry, M.D.

J. R. Corrie, Esq., M.D.

County Infirmary.

Pharmacy.

Intern Patients.

Managing
Committee.

Funds and
Accounts.

* This institution is the only medical and surgical hospital for the city of Limerick, with the exception of one-fourth of the County Infirmary, to which the inhabitants of the city have access.

The ground on which the establishment stands, and the extensive commodious stone building of which the hospital consists, were presented by Sir Joseph Barrington and his sons to the city of Limerick, and the whole was erected into the Corporation of the City of Limerick Infirmary, by Act of Parliament, in 1830. The Assistant Commissioners were informed, at the period of their visit, that some members of the same family were about purchasing several tenements contiguous to the hospital, for the purpose of enlarging its accommodation and having a free space around it.

Every thing within the house is in excellent order, whilst the building is admirably constructed for comfort, security and most healthful ventilation. There is an operating theatre lighted from the roof.

There are at present two physicians and three surgeons attached to this hospital, all serving without salaries.

This hospital, compared with the other city and county hospitals which the Assistant Commissioners have seen, presents some very peculiar and most important features relating to its medical officers.

1. The class and number of medical officers to be appointed to the hospital are left by the Act of Parliament to the discretion of the committee, who are authorized "to elect such and so many physicians and surgeons for the said hospital as they may think proper."

2. The medical officers are to continue in office but five years from the date of their election.

3. "Such physicians and surgeons, nevertheless, to attend and serve at the said hospital without fee, salary or reward, unless the committee shall be unable to procure the attendance of efficient physicians and surgeons upon those terms."

4. "All such elections shall be from the members or licentiates of one of the royal colleges of physicians, or of chartered universities, or one of the royal colleges of surgeons."

Here there is an Act of Parliament striking at the very root of medical monopoly in hospitals, and throwing open the advantages which these institutions offer to the profession at large when the candidates are properly educated.

The prescriptions are made up and dispensed at the Limerick Dispensary.

Tuesday is the admission day for intern patients. There are from 20 to 30 applicants refused every week, not so much, however, from want of room as that of means, for there is space for 60 beds, although at the time of the Assistant Commissioners' visit to the institution there were but 30 patients in the house. Cases of accident are never refused admission.

The following is an abstract of the Report for the eight months ending 1st June 1834—

Remaining in hospital on 1st October 1833, medical and surgical cases -	26
Admitted from that period to 1st June 1834 -	336
Intern patients -	362
Discharged cured -	236
Very much relieved -	69
Died -	25
Incurable -	3
Remaining under treatment -	29
	362

In addition to the above numbers admitted into hospital, patients have daily received advice in the surgery, and have had their wounds dressed. Of this class there were relieved as externs 12,245.

The committee of the corporation of this charity hold meetings every 15 days. The medical officers are not members.

The grand jury of this city granted 200*l.* last assizes in aid of the charity, and the same sum is expected to be obtained half yearly.

The very unfavourable influence which the residence of married officers within

* Names of the persons who attended the Examination not stated.

† 11 Geo. IV. Sess. 1830.

right is the dining-room for convalescents and an excellent bath-room, containing warm, cold, vapour and medicated baths. On the first floor, to the right, is the board-room, to the left, the porter's room, housekeeper's room and bed-room. On the second floor, to the right, is a long ward for male patients, containing 10 beds, and on the left-hand side are two small rooms, one of which is used as an operating-room. Underneath the front are cellars for coals. In a yard to the rear are a wash-house and drying-house, store-room for potatoes and a loft for hay; also a cow-house for five cows. There is also a small garden for convalescents. The usual uniformity in the details of county infirmaries is interrupted by some particulars in the history of the present one, which appear deserving of notice. There are some fields near the town, the property of the Marquis of Hertford, which are actually hired and occupied by the establishment as a small dairy farm. Five milch cows are kept, which afford an abundant supply of milk to the patients and servants, besides a considerable quantity of fresh butter for sale, the proceeds of which are handed over by the matron to the treasurer. The milk prepared for the patients was tasted by the Assistant Commissioners and appeared to be of an excellent quality. The matron, who has held her situation somewhat more than three years, has during that period fattened 17 pigs, three of which remain still undisposed of, on the produce of the dairy and of the garden, and on the garbage of the house. The sale of these animals produced a handsome addition to the funds. Nothing can be imagined in more perfect order and neatness than her department of the establishment.

The principal medical officer has been attached to the institution since the year 1794; previous to which time he had been surgeon to the Warwickshire militia. He is an M. D. of the Edinburgh University, and a member of the Royal College of Surgeons in Ireland. He is engaged in private practice, and resides close to the hospital. His periods of duty are 11 o'clock daily for intern patients, and twice a week for extern patients. He holds no other appointment, and is obliged to demand leave when he has occasion to be absent. He has recently obtained the concurrence of the committee in appointing as his assistant a gentleman who is possessed of the same qualifications as himself, and to whom he makes an allowance of 50 l. per annum. The apothecary does not reside in the hospital owing to want of proper accommodation, but his house is close at hand, and he is accustomed to sit up all night after any accident or operation of importance has occurred. He is possessed of a surgeon's diploma.

The salary of the surgeon consists of 89 l. 1 s. 10 d. from Government, to which the county makes an addition of 92 l. 6 s. 2 d.; total 181 l. 8 s. The apothecary receives 29 l. 13 s. 10 d. per annum. Neither is allowed for house-rent or other expenses.

Both of the medical officers are elected by the governors, that is, by those who contribute three guineas a year, or give a life donation of 20 guineas to the funds of the charity. There has not been an election of surgeon since the year 1794; and at present there is but one practitioner in Lisburn qualified to fill the situation.

The arrangements of the apothecary's shop were good, except that the fittings were very old. The medicines included everything required in practice, and were good in their kind. The surgeon is at liberty to procure whatever he thinks necessary; and the bills are discharged by the treasurer, on its being certified by the former that the articles have been received. The gross expenditure for medicine in the year—

	£.	s.	d.
1832 was	-	-	129 18 8 ¹ / ₂
1833	-	-	47 3 10 ¹ / ₂
1834	-	-	146 15 1 ¹ / ₂

The shop is furnished with the usual pharmaceutical apparatus, and contains no drugs except those which belong to the institution. The stock of surgical instruments is altogether inadequate to the wants of the charity, and the medical men are in consequence obliged to have recourse to their own. No rules have been established with respect to the practice of vaccination, but it has been the habit to vaccinate gratuitously all persons making application. The results, as to the efficacy of the operation, have been very favourable, and the public place much confidence in its utility. Small-pock has ceased to be frequent; the medical men declare themselves averse from using variolous matter for inoculation.

The registration of the intern patients is conducted with much accuracy; it distinguishes the name, residence and date of admission, together with the nature of the disease of each patient, and the date of his final discharge. The name of the recommending governor is also given. A statement of the numbers who have been treated is annually laid before the grand jury, and the following abstract will show the entire amount of relief granted during each of the last three years.

Patients treated in the year ending	Interns.	Externs.
	—	—
January 5th 1832	339	1,356
1833	292	1,624
1834	234	1,596

On the day that the Assistant Commissioner visited the hospital it did not contain more than 36 patients; but it was explained that this occurred not from want of room, but from the inadequacy of the funds to maintain a larger number. The register of the out-patients is a document kept separately from the other. It is accurate as to the numbers treated, but cannot be relied on as supplying information relative to the termination of diseases. With respect to the instances in which applications for relief have been refused, it is necessary to remark that the statement applies solely to intern patients.

COUNTY INFIRMARIES.

Ulster.

County Antrim.

Examinations taken by
Sir D. Barry, M. D.
J. R. Corrie, esq., M.D.

County Infirmary.

Medical Officer.

Payment.

Election.

Pharmacy.

Patients' Registration.

COUNTY
INFIRMARIES.Ulster.
County Antrim.Examinations taken by
Sir D. Barry, M. D.
J. R. Corrie, esq., M. D.

County Infirmary.

Extern Patients.

Intern Patients.

Diet.

Clothing.

General Management.Managing Committee.Officers not
medical.

Attendants.

Stores.

Reports.

Funds and Accounts.
Receipts.

No person is entitled to demand relief unless he have provided himself with the recommendation of a subscriber. This condition is not productive of any obstacle, as, although the governors are limited in the number of tickets which they may issue, yet the number is abundantly sufficient for the district, and no person is likely to be unable to procure one; on the contrary, there is some ground for supposing that not a few individuals contrive to participate in the benefits of the charity whose circumstances by no means give them a just claim to gratuitous relief.

The aid afforded to extern patients does not go beyond the supplying them with advice and medicine. At Lisburn, as at other towns containing county infirmaries, there is little or no attendance on the sick poor at their own homes. Lying-in cases are never attended. The women of the poorer classes are obliged to avail themselves of the assistance of midwives, through whom, and through practitioners of an inferior grade, a great deal of mischief has frequently occurred.

The general conditions for obtaining admission are the same as those exacted from applicants for external aid, but it is attended with much more difficulty owing to the want of room. The friends of the intern patients are admitted to visit them on Sundays and Tuesdays; and they are sometimes allowed to go out on obtaining express permission to do so. They are never required to engage in any manual labour beyond the rendering occasional assistance to the nurses and others in the domestic services of the establishment. Chaplains are not attached to the institution; but it has been the custom to circulate controversial tracts through the wards, and extracts from the bible, pasted on boards, are hung up in different places. It is, however, stated that the clergy of all persuasions are at liberty to visit the inmates whenever they please; and it is also said that neither clergy or laity have exercised any improper interference with the patients during their periods of stay in the hospital. The cases of lunacy which present themselves are always sent to the Lunatic Asylum at Belfast. No instance of cholera occurred in the house during the prevalence of that epidemic.

The following written table regulates the diet:—"Beef and broth on Sundays and Thursdays; milk the rest of the week; stirabout and milk for breakfast and supper every day, except ordered otherwise by the surgeon." Any thing extra which the circumstances of a patient may render necessary or advisable is given, when prescribed by the medical attendant.

The hospital does not supply clothing, nor are there any arrangements for purifying the clothes of the patients.

The general management, from which the medical and salaried officers are altogether excluded rests in the hands of the governors, who hold a meeting every quarter, at which five constitute a quorum, and voting by proxy is not allowed. Minutes are always kept of the proceedings.

A managing committee was formerly selected, but of the members who were appointed only one, a clergyman, continues to devote any attention to the affairs of the charity. This gentleman is accustomed with the knowledge of the governors, to go through the wards every week, and to note his observations in a book kept for the purpose.

The non-medical officers are the treasurer and his clerk. The former receives no remuneration for his services, but the latter is allowed 12*l.* 12*s.* per annum. No collector has ever been appointed, and great irregularity prevails in the collection of subscriptions. It sometimes happens that two and three years remain unpaid by the same individual. The non-medical officers are elected by a system of open voting, and without reference to sectarian distinctions. The duties of auditors are performed by the governors at their quarterly meetings, when they examine and settle the accounts.

The housekeeper, who is provided with board and lodging, receives 22*l.* per annum. Four female servants receive each 1*l.* 1*s.* per quarter, and 10*d.* per week, besides a loaf of bread costing ninepence. One porter receives 9*l.* 9*s.* per annum, and is allowed one pair of shoes.

In the present year no other article has been contracted for excepting beef, which is supplied at 5*d.* per pound.

A report is prepared at the termination of the year relating to the general affairs of the establishment, and the extent to which it has been the means of affording medical relief to the labouring classes. It has not been usual to print these reports, but copies of them are always submitted to the inspection of the members of the grand jury. There are but few obstacles to the becoming acquainted with the wants of the poor in this district, which contains a considerable number of individuals both able and willing to take a part in a minute investigation into their real condition.

The only fixed source of income which the charity possesses, is the interest on 300*l.* Irish, vested in the 3½ per cents. There is also an annuity of 20*l.* Irish, but the payment of it has been recently contested. Its main dependence is on the grants annually presented by the grand jury, on a sum allowed by the government, (which goes to meet the salary of the surgeon), and on the subscriptions and donations of private individuals; a considerable sum is also annually derived from the profit remaining after the sale and consumption of the animals kept by the matron, and to which reference has been already made. A table is given of the several sources of income in the year ending January 5th 1832.

Balance

	£.	s.	d.
Balance in hands	84	5	9½
County Presentment	461	10	10
Marquis of Hertford's annual donation	46	3	1
Rev. James Agar, as governor for life	21	-	-
Annual subscriptions	25	4	-
Annual Parliamentary grant	89	10	9
Donation from Glasgow Apothecaries' Company	1	11	-
Fines inflicted at petty sessions	39	13	11
Two years' interest on 300 l. Irish, new 4 per cents.	22	1	-
Cows, pigs, butter, manure, sold	34	17	7
	£825	17	11½

	£.	s.	d.
The gross income of 1832 was	641	2	9½
" " 1833	808	13	10

The funds remain in the hands of the treasurer until wanted. The title deeds are kept by the housekeeper. Neither of these persons have been required to enter into security. Custody.

The following is the debtor side of the accounts for the year ending January 5th 1832 : Expenditure.

	£.	s.	d.
For provisions	247	17	6½
Cattle and provender	103	3	9
Coals	27	-	-
Soap and candles	12	16	9
Rent	2	13	11
Medicines	129	18	8½
Wine and spirits	7	3	11½
Furniture and repairs	50	14	-
Wages and allowances	181	12	2
Contingencies	27	6	2
Balance in hands, January 5, 1832	35	11	3
	£825	17	11

The total expenditure for the years ending January 5th was in

	£.	s.	d.
1833	641	2	9½
1834	808	13	10

The accounts of income and expenditure are made up quarterly for the governors, half-yearly for the grand jury, and at the termination of the year for the Imprest Office in Dublin. Accounts.

Two students are at present in attendance on the practice of the surgeon, who is in the habit of delivering clinical observations for their instruction. Examinations of the bodies of the patients who die in the hospital are seldom omitted, and hitherto but little opposition has been experienced from the surviving friends. Medical Instruction.

Persons who attended the Examination.

Rev. Dr. BLACKER.—Rev. JAMES JONES.—Rev. CORNELIUS LYNE, curate of Grange.—Rev. COXLY MANGAN, curate of Armagh.—The Medical Attendant.—The Apothecary and Register. County Armagh. County Infirmary.

THIS infirmary is intended for the whole county of Armagh, but there are several other medical institutions within a radius of six miles round the town in which it is situated ; viz., the Armagh Fever and Cholera Hospitals, and the Dispensaries of Keady, Markethill, watertown, Loughgall, Richhill and Benburb. These several charities are neither too numerous, nor ineligibly placed as regards population, and it is thought by the gentlemen present that no one medical man can be expected to extend adequate attention to a greater distance than six miles. It is also suggested that some accommodation for cases of fever and accident should be attached to all county dispensaries. The infirmary at present under consideration has connected with it a branch for the supplying of external relief, but the surgeon has not been accustomed to visit the sick at their own homes, and this deficiency has at length made itself so sensibly felt, that a dispensary to supply the want has been set on foot by a number of the inhabitants residing in the country parts of the parish of Armagh. Population and Extent of Country.

The hospital is a well and strongly constructed erection, of three stories in height, including the basement. It is held from Mr. Whalley at an annual rent of 10l. 3s. ; but no information could be obtained as to the title deeds. On the basement story are, for the infirmary, a kitchen, housekeeper's pantry, potato and meal store, matron's sitting-room, washhouse and scullery ; for the surgeon, butler's pantry, two other pantries, kitchen and scullery. On the first floor, for infirmary, a female ward for 12 beds, a new ward empty from defect of funds, but capable of containing six or eight beds, and a surgery ; for the surgeon, study, drawing- Building, Furniture and Grounds.

COUNTY INFIRMARIES.

Ulster.

County Armagh.

Examinations taken by Sir D. Barry, M.D. J. R. Corrie, esq., M.D.

County Infirmary.

drawing-room and board-room. On the second floor are, for infirmary, men's ward containing 13 beds, a second men's ward containing eight beds, nurse's room, and matron's sleeping room; for the surgeon, five bed-rooms and a garret containing two rooms. The out-buildings for the use of the charity consist of a dead house, barn and straw-house, coal-house and shed for carts; for the use of the surgeon, there are a turf-house, old and new, stables, cowhouse and piggeries. With respect to the land belonging to the establishment, there is a kitchen garden for the purposes of the hospital, and a walled garden, and upwards of three acres of land devoted to the use of the surgeon. At the date of this evidence there were but 32 patients in the house, 20 males and 12 females, and with the exception of seven, they were all found in bed at the hour of one in the afternoon. The wards (three only occupied) were clean, lofty and well ventilated, and every thing looked neat and orderly, nevertheless it cannot be denied that it would have been better to have placed some of the patients in the wards on the ground floor, which is allowed to remain unoccupied. The surgeon's apartments (including the board-room which he also uses) occupy five-twelfths of the whole house, and the land has been entirely surrendered to his benefit by an express resolution of the board, "so long as he shall hold the same in his own hands."

Notwithstanding the elevated situation of the hospital and the loftiness of its wards, it has been twice severely infested with malignant erysipelas, viz., in 1823 and again in 1826, which, after destroying in the latter year all whom it attacked, could only be arrested by the total evacuation of the building, and the burning of the bedding and clothes.

The medical attendant is a graduate of the Royal College of Surgeons in Ireland, and a doctor of medicine. He is likewise in possession of a certificate entitling him to practice midwifery. He has been attached to the charity since the year 1827, previous to which time he had been surgeon to the County of Leitrim Infirmary. He is engaged in private practice. As to his duties, it is a rule that he shall not be absent for more than four days at a time without informing the governors, but at the same time, it is stated that he is always in attendance, and that his duty has never been performed by proxy. The apothecary, by whom the medicines are dispensed, is a licentiate of the Dublin Apothecaries' Hall, and a licentiate of the King's and Queen's College of Physicians in the same city. He is also a member of the London College of Surgeons.

The surgeon receives an allowance of 89*l.* 1*s.* 10*d.* from the Government, and is paid an annual sum of 50*l.* from the general funds of the charity, in consideration of his attendance on out patients. The apothecary receives 30*l.* Irish, and is further allowed 20*l.* of the same currency for discharging the duties of registrar. The amount of payments to both officers is completely within the control of the grand jury, who have it in their power at any time to diminish their ordinary grant.

The right of appointing the medical officers belongs to the governors, subject to the possession of certain qualifications on the part of the candidates for the offices, and the giving due notice in the public journals of the intention to proceed to an appointment. Although there are eight or ten medical men resident in the town of Armagh, which affords abundant scope for the obtaining an independence, without the support of a salary from a public institution, yet none of them are legally entitled to fill the situations in question.

The dispensing room is neatly and conveniently contrived, and contains a good supply of excellent medicine, including many of the more delicate preparations. They are all exclusively designed for the uses of the establishment, as the surgeon does not practice as an apothecary. Boileau & George, of Dublin, supply all the drugs that are required, and their accounts are paid by the treasurer. The cost of medicines for the three last years was as follows:

	£.	s.	d.
1832	78	16	2 1/2
1833	104	7	9
1834	85	19	3

There is a stock of surgical instruments, which are represented by the surgeon to be sufficient, and of which a list was furnished to the Assistant Commissioners. These instruments are occasionally used in private practice, but, with the exception of the stomach-pump, none of them are ever lent. Leeches are sometimes adopted in the practice of the infirmary, and they are purchased in small quantities, as required. Arrangements have been established for the facilitating vaccination, and the surgeon is bound to vaccinate all applicants. He states that his experience is in favour of the utility of the practice, and the public reposes much confidence in its preservative efficacy. Small-pock has become frequent during the last three years, but the surgeon declares strongly against inoculation with variolous matter.

The registration of intern and extern patients is conducted separately. - With respect to the former class, it embraces the number admitted, the date of admission, the names and age of each patient, and the name of the recommender; together with the name of the proprietor from whose estate the sick person comes. It also gives the nature of the diseases treated, the numbers cured, relieved, and of deaths; also the number of days which each patient remains in hospital, and the date of discharge. The register of extern patients is confined to the date on which treatment commences, name of the recommending governor, and the number which he had previously recommended. Each patient brings with him a ticket, which is filed, and on which are stated his age and disease. These tickets are laid on the table at the annual meeting. The following table shows the number who received medical assistance in those years:—

1832

COUNTY INFIRMARIES.

Ulster.

County Armagh.

Examinations taken by Sir D. Barry, M.D., J. R. Corrie, esq., M.D.

County Infirmary.

Who entitled to Relief.

Extern Patients.

Intern Patients.

Medical Officers.

Payment.

Diet.

Election.

Pharmacy.

General Management.

Managing Committee.

Officers not medical.

Attendants.

Patients' Registration.

Stores.

	INTERNS.	EXTERNS.
1832	388	2,657
1833	438	2,289
1834	482	2,682

On the day that the Assistant Commissioners visited the hospital it contained, as already intimated, 32 intern patients.

Each subscriber has the privilege of issuing an unlimited number of tickets entitling the bearer to receive relief at the hospital, subject to the opinion of the medical attendant whether it be a proper case for admission. Although the condition of being provided with a recommendation is never dispensed with, it has not been found sufficient to prevent many persons from obtaining assistance in advice and medicine who are by no means in circumstances to render them fit objects for the benefits of the charity.

The aid afforded to extern patients is limited to what they receive at the dispensary, as none of the sick poor are visited at their dwellings. Tuesdays and Saturdays, between the hours of eleven and twelve, are the periods for prescribing for the poor at the dispensary, and no prescriptions are there compounded except those of the attending medical man. The lying-in women of the labouring classes are principally attended by midwives, who are said to possess but little skill, and to be the cause of frequent mischief.

It seldom happens that there is much difficulty in obtaining admission, after which patients are not allowed to go beyond the bounds of the institution until their final discharge. Their friends are permitted to visit them on Thursdays, and when danger is present a friend or relation is sometimes requested to remain altogether in the house. No kind of labour is demanded from the interns at any time, further than cleaning the wards and rendering assistance to the nurses. Chaplains have not been formally attached to the establishment, but it is considered that the clergy of all sects have a right of free approach to the patients of their respective creeds. It is also stated by the witnesses that there has never been any instance of improper interference with the religious opinions of the inmates, but they add that controversial tracts have been circulated in the wards; and that the curate of Armagh has been in the habit of attending on one day in each week for the purpose of reading prayers in the open wards. The house does not contain a ward for the reception of lunatics, nor did any case of cholera occur in it during the existence of that distemper.

Two very remarkable circumstances appeared in the course of an examination into the diet-rolls and provision accounts of the hospital; 1st. The very striking excess of the low diets over the full diets (the only other variety allowed by the dietary adopted in the institution), as compared with the diet-rolls of the early part of 1832; 2d. The large and increasing portion which milk has formed from that period to the present, both of full and low diets, but particularly of the latter. The new milk is paid for from the funds of the Infirmary at the rate of 2d. per Irish quart. The same article is supplied to the Armagh Fever Hospital for 1½d. per quart. The medical attendant of the Infirmary supplies all the milk required, and receives the amount from the treasurer through the hands of the matron, giving his receipt as a voucher for that disbursement. He is in fact the contractor for that article. However liberally and honourably this contract for milk may be discharged, and it is not meant to convey any insinuation to the contrary, still the principle of the transaction is highly objectionable, coupled as it is with some circumstances peculiar to the case. Such are the following: he, the medical attendant, framed the dietary of the hospital, and proposed it for adoption to the governors, by whom, accordingly, it was adopted in the year 1831; he orders and regulates all extra allowances of milk to the patients; he holds in his possession, and cultivates for his own profit, all the land belonging to the Infirmary. It is, in short, his interest to augment the consumption of an article of diet, which he alone can order to be given to the sick, and in any quantity he may choose to sanction. This is a position in which the chief medical officer of a public charity never ought to have been permitted to place himself.

The general management of the affairs of the charity is conducted by the governors at their general meetings, which have been held once during each of the last three years. At these assemblies five constitute a quorum, and all governors enjoy a similar right of voting. Minutes have been always kept of the business transacted. A very large share of the principal direction has been allowed to pass into the hands of the treasurer.

There is a managing committee constituted of all the governors who happen to reside within the boundaries of the old corporation, but it never discharges any duties.

The only non-medical officer is the gentleman who acts as treasurer, and takes care of the funds. He has not been called on to enter into any security.

The following is the list of the attendants, and their cost to the charity:—

Matron	£. 31 10	+ per annum, coals, candles and apartments.
Porter	18 9 3	per annum, coals and dwelling-house.
Cook	5 5	per annum.
Male nurse	5 5	— and extra guinea for good conduct, and diet, coals, candles and apartment.
Female nurse	same	allowance.
Assistant ditto	4 4	— diet, coals, candles and lodging.

The diet allowed to the above servants is always entered on the weekly diet-roll.

The only articles contracted for are—beef, at 4d. per lb.; bread, 1½d. per lb.; milk, (sweet) 2d. per quart; buttermilk, ½d. per quart; potatoes, 1s. 9d. per cwt.

The connexion of the medical attendant with the contract for milk has been already mentioned

COUNTY
INFIRMARIES.

Ulster.
County Armagh.

Examinations taken by
Sir D. Barry, M.D.
J. R. Corrie, esq., M.D.

County Infirmary.

Reports.

mentioned. The Assistant Commissioners were also informed by the porter that the brother of the surgeon was the person who had contracted for the supply of potatoes, which he gave at the same price as they were supplied to the gaol.

The annual reports of the Infirmary exhibit some remarkable facts. It appears that, although the annual county grants have risen during the last three years from 400*l.* for 1831 to 500*l.* for 1833, and the annual subscriptions from 92*l.* to 131*l.*, and although during the same period 183*l.* have been expended upon building and repairs, 86*l.* 11*s.* 11*d.* upon new articles of furniture and repairs of old, yet one large ward has been suffered to remain unoccupied from want of furniture. The building erected in 1831 and 1832, there is reason to believe, was not directly connected with the accommodation of the patients, though it cost 154*l.* 10*s.* 10*d.* and left the institution in debt 170*l.* for which interest has been paid to the amount of 55*l.* "Contingent expenses," also, it will be seen, form a very large item, being 59*l.* in 1831, and 122*l.* in 1834. The average expense of one patient, for one day, for provisions alone is 5½*d.* and a fraction, or 5 ⁹⁸¹⁸/₁₃₅₁₅*d.* The average expense of one patient for one day, including salaries, medicine, fuel, provisions, &c., is 1*s.* 3 ⁵¹⁶⁵/₁₃₅₁₅*d.* But taking the number of patients treated in this hospital during the year 1833 to be 514, as returned, and the number of diets issued during the same time, 13,515, as also returned, it will appear that each patient consumed 26 ¹⁵¹/₅₁₄ diets, and cost each 2 ¹⁰/₂₅₇*l.*, no deduction being made from the total expenditure of the funds of the Infirmary for that year, viz., 1,048*l.* 1*s.* 1*d.

If the average number of patients treated in the infirmary during the last three years, (viz., 486) and the average expenditure from the funds for the same time (1,047*l.* 14*s.* 9*d.*) be taken, the expense of each patient will be found to have reached the sum of 2*l.* 8*s.* ½*d.* It may be observed, that some of the items charged under the head of contingencies, are certainly higher than strict hospital economy would authorize.

The fixed property of the charity is limited to 1,000*l.* bank stock, which yields a variable interest of about 69*l.* 15*s.* 8*d.* The other sources of income are best shown by a copy of the treasurer's receipts for the year 1831 :

Funds and Accounts.
Receipts.

	£.	s.	d.
Dividend on 1,000 l. bank stock	-	-	77 10 10
Annual subscriptions for the year 1832	-	-	92 8 -
Arrears of ditto for the year 1831	-	-	15 15 -
Parliamentary grant	-	-	89 1 10
Grand jury presentments	-	-	400 -
Donation from Bishop Sterne's charity	-	-	92 6 2
Ditto Boileau and George	-	-	2 2 -
Amount of fines from petty sessions	-	-	87 15 6
Ditto trusses sold	-	-	3 10 6
Fine paid through H. Barton, Esq.	-	-	5 - -
Life subscription from Miss M'Gough	-	-	21 - -
Entry omitted last year	-	-	- 10 -
Balance against the institution	-	-	170 2 4½
	£.	1,057	2 2½

	£.	s.	d.
The total receipts in 1832 amounted to	-	-	1,038 1 1
Ditto ditto 1833 "	-	-	1,048 1 1

Collection and
Custody.
Expenditure.

The funds are collected by the treasurer, and are allowed to remain in his hands until wanted. The debenture of the bank stock is in the possession of the agent to the primate. The following abstract of expenditure for the year 1832 shows the principal heads of outlay.

	£.	s.	d.
Balance due last settlement	-	-	170 2 4½
Provisions, exclusive of wine, &c.	-	-	315 17 2
Wine, spirits and malt liquors	-	-	4 14 5
Medicines	-	-	99 12 5
Fuel, soap, candles, &c.	-	-	77 16 1½
New furniture	-	-	17 4 2
Repairs on building	-	-	36 8 6
Rent, half year	-	-	5 1 6
Taxes	-	-	6 7 5½
Salaries	-	-	254 8 8
Contingent expenses	-	-	50 18 2½
	£.	1,034	11 1

	£.	s.	d.
The total expenditure in the year 1831 was	-	-	1,057 2 2½
Ditto ditto 1833 "	-	-	1,048 1 1

Accounts.

All bills are examined by the treasurer from time to time, and are annually submitted to the inspection of the governors. The treasurer's books are subject to be periodically called for by the grand jury.

* The expense of the medicine given to the out-patient, calculated at one-half of the charge for medicine for the year, or 42*l.* 10*s.* ought perhaps to be deducted from the general expenditure in making this calculation.

Persons who attended the Examination.

The Bishop of Kilmore.—Major BURROWS.—WILLIAM BURROWS, esq.—W. H. KREUSE, esq.—
GEORGE L'ESTRANGE, esq.—SAMUEL MOORE, esq.—Rev. Mr. ROBERTS.—The Medical Attendant.

THE Cavan Infirmary is the only asylum for general diseases not contagious within the county of that name. It is intended more especially for the reception of acute disorders, and patients labouring under accidents or surgical diseases have always a preference. There are several other medical charities within six miles of the present, such as the Cavan Fever Hospital and Dispensary and the Stradone, Crosdoney and Ballymaght Dispensaries. These latter charities, from the exclusive nature with respect to disease of this institution, were much demanded; in the opinion however of the Bishop of Kilmore, they are too numerous in the county. There is no example known of a dispensary being placed in a locality not containing any population. There is also a private dispensary at Farnham; but the moral agent of Lord Farnham refused to permit the Assistant Commissioners to inspect it. The want of local or district hospitals has made itself severely felt on several occasions, and the gentlemen present express a desire that such could be introduced more generally. It is thought that a district of three or four miles' radius is as much as one medical man can be expected to attend to, that is if it be designed that he shall visit the sick at their own dwellings, with a rural population located as that of the county Cavan.

The hospital is three stories in height, and is capable of containing with ease 34 beds; that number is now actually accommodated in the wards, namely, 24 males and 10 females. The ceilings of some of the wards are too low, and though there is a thorough ventilation when the windows are open, the volume of air is at other times too small. It is to be regretted that the sewerage is not good. There is no garden. There is no other out-office than a turf-house in good repair. Notwithstanding certain disadvantages, nothing can exceed the cleanliness and order in which the whole house is kept. Hospital gangrene showed itself in two small wards in the centre of the building in the year 1829; but these have been since enlarged, and an addition has been made to the building, which, when completed, will afford accommodation to 16 beds, and will bring the total number of beds to 50.

The surgeon is the sole medical officer attached to the charity; he is a Doctor of Medicine and a member of the Royal College of Surgeons in Ireland. He is also possessed of the diploma of licentiate apothecary. He was appointed to the situation in the year 1816 and resides close to the institution. In addition to his private practice he is also surgeon to the gaol. The duties of the infirmary require his attendance in the wards every morning at eight o'clock, and he has never availed himself of the assistance of a substitute. Medicines are made up and dispensed by him alone.

He receives a salary from Government of 92*l.* a year for his services at the infirmary and is allowed a like sum for his attendance on the sick of the gaol by the grand jury, who have it in their power to diminish their usual presentment if they disapprove of the scale of allowances. There has been no occasion to exercise this control in the present case, but instances in which it has been done have been heard of in distant counties.

The election of the surgeon is the privilege of the governors, and it is not in any degree subject to the interference of the grand jury. Certain testimonials are required from all the candidates, (of whom there were 15 on the last occasion,) and advertisements are usually inserted in the newspapers for the purpose of inviting competition.

The room in which the medicines are kept is properly and neatly arranged; the drawers and bottles are in good order, and there is a very adequate supply, not only of the ordinary medicines, but also of several of the more delicate preparations. It is all designed for the exclusive use of the patients, as the surgeon does not supply medicines to his private patients. There are some surgical instruments belonging to the charity, and they are, in the opinion of the surgeon, sufficient. They are sometimes lent and, are occasionally used in private practice. Medicines are procured from the house of Boileau & George, druggists, in Dublin, by the medical attendant, but they are paid for by the registrar. Their cost during each of the last three years was as follows,—

	£.	s.	d.
1832 - - - - -	32	1	7 ¹ / ₂
1833 - - - - -	47	2	9
1834 - - - - -	46	14	4

In the same years the number of patients admitted were—

1832 - - - - -	337
1833 - - - - -	362
1834 - - - - -	331

So that the average expense per head, per annum, for medicine alone has been 3*s.* 7 ¹/₂*d.*

The number of beds occupied has been on an average 31, giving the expense of medicine per bed to be 1*l.* 7*s.* 1*d.* Leeches are never made use of in the hospital, and it is the opinion of the medical attendant that their adoption is not productive of much benefit. No arrangements have been made for the diffusion of vaccination, but it has been the custom to provide vaccine matter for the surgeons of the surrounding districts. The surgeon of the infirmary speaks favourably of the utility of the operation, but he says that the confidence of the poor in its efficacy has begun to waver. Small-pock has appeared but

COUNTY
INFIRMARIES.
Ulster.
County Cavan.

Examinations taken by
Sir D. Barry, M. D.
J. R. Corrie, esq, M.D.

County Infirmary.

Population and
Extent of Country.

Building, Furniture
and Grounds.

Medical Officer.

Payment.

Election.

Pharmacy.

COUNTY
INFIRMARIES.Ulster.
County Cavan.Examinations taken by
Sir D. Barry, M.D.
J. R. Corrie, esq., M.D.

County Infirmary.

Extern Patients.

Intern Patients.

Diet.

General
Management.Officers not
medical.

seldom of late years, but inoculation is not altogether discouraged, as the medical attendant professes himself an advocate of testing with small-pock virus.

In the register which is kept of the patients by the surgeon several headings occur, such as—Name of Recommender, Name and Disease of Patient, Date of his Admission and of his Discharge, and Miscellaneous Remarks. An abstract from it, containing the results of the mode of practice adopted, is sent periodically to the grand jury.

An open committee (at which the surgeon attends) is held every Tuesday for the purpose of deciding on the claims of those who seek to be received into the house. All applicants are obliged to be provided with a ticket of recommendation, except in cases of emergency, which are admitted at all times and without any conditions.

This hospital does not serve the purposes of a dispensary. Extern patients do, however, attend the pharmacy in considerable numbers, but they consist of those who had been recently recommended for admission as interns, and who have either been pronounced unfit objects, or who cannot be received from want of room. No medicine is given to these externs, the funds not being considered sufficiently ample to afford that relief; but the surgeon prescribes for all who have been recommended by governors, or operates in case of necessity. It is doubtless a great error that an institution so admirably managed should not be enabled to do all the good it might so easily effect, and thus save the county the expense of a dispensary which it has been deemed expedient to establish almost next door. As to the defect of not supplying attendance to lying-in women of the poorer classes, it is fortunately not so sensibly felt in this district as in some others, as the midwives are usually women possessed of some skill in their business, and their practice is rarely marked by culpable injuries.

Owing to want of accommodation, there is frequently no little difficulty in obtaining admission as an intern patient. There are printed regulations suspended in the wards for the conduct of those who are received, and they are not allowed to go beyond the bounds of the institution, except by special permission. They are never called upon to engage in any labour unless their state of health permit it and they be willing to yield it. The female convalescents are sometimes asked to assist in mending shirts and in cleaning the wards. Chaplains are not attached to the charity, but the clergy of all religious persuasions are entitled to visit the wards whenever they think proper. At the same time, and although until lately theological and controversial tracts have been circulated to some extent, there has not, it is stated, been any instance of improper interference with the opinions of the sick, either on the part of the laity or of the clergy. No ward is set apart for the treatment of lunatics. The cases of lunacy which occur are sent to Armagh. During the prevalence of the epidemic cholera the hospital was fortunate enough to remain entirely free from the disease.

It is the opinion of the Bishop of Kilmore, that wards should be provided for persons in moderate circumstances, who should pay a certain sum.

ORDINARY OR FULL DIET.

Breakfast.—One pint of new milk, six ounces of meal, four ounces of bread.

Dinner.—(A.) Meat days four in the week.—One quart of soup,* three pounds and a half of potatoes.

Dinner.—(B.) Vegetable days, three in the week.—One pint and a half of new milk, three pounds and a half of potatoes.

LOW DIET.

One quart of flummery, one pint and a half of sweet milk, one pint and a half of butter-milk.

The very strictest economy prevails in every thing connected with the supply of food to the patients. Solid meat forms no part of the ordinary diet of the patients, but the surgeon has the power of ordering a few ounces as extra food whenever he thinks such an addition to be absolutely necessary. The exclusion of flesh-meat from the ordinary diet of sick persons, who in their most perfect state of health, and under the severest labour, seldom or never taste animal food, is founded upon just physiological reasonings, the correctness of which has been most fully proved by practical experience on a very extensive scale indeed in all the county gaols in Ireland. In all those prisons which have been examined by the Assistant Commissioners, the health of the prisoners has been very remarkably good. In many instances it was stated that the health of individuals had improved considerably after admission. Yet flesh meat never forms an item of the prisoner's support, under any circumstances, excepting very rare cases of disease, in which it may have been expressly prescribed by the surgeon.

The general management of affairs is vested in the governors, of whom the Bishop of Kilmore is one in virtue of his office. No salaried officer (with the exception of the registrar) is in the principal direction. The general governors meet every Tuesday, and the weekly committees are attended by two or three, of whom the bishop is always one. The business of this committee is to inspect the house and its concerns, as to cleanliness, economy and regularity. They decide, under the advice of the surgeon, upon the claims of the applicants for admission, and regularly enter their proceedings, and report, signed by the chairman, in a minute book-kept for that especial purpose.

The curate of the parish of Cavan, who acts as registrar, secretary and treasurer is the only non-medical officer. He receives for his services a salary of 20*l.* per annum.

The

* The soup is made from four ounces of meat, thickened with peas and meal, for each person.

COUNTY INFIRMARIES.

Ulster.

County Cavan.

Examinations taken by
Sir D. Barry, M.D.
J. R. Corrie, esq., M.D.

County Infirmary.

The attendants are—

	£.	s.	d.
1 Matron at	30	13	9	per annum.
1 Porter	16	—	—	"
1 Upper nurse	14	—	—	"
1 Under nurse	2	—	—	"
1 Cook	6	—	—	"

The following list shows the prices at which those articles, for which contracts have been taken, are supplied :—

	s.	d.
Turf	—	6	a box.
Bread	—	2	per lb.
Straw	—	10	per cwt.
Milk, sweet	—	1 3/4	per quart.
Milk, butter	—	— 3/4	per quart.
Potatoes	—	2 1/2	per stons.
Oatmeal	12	6	per cwt.
Candles, dipped	5	9	per doz. lb.
Meat	—	3 3/4	per lb., raw with bone.

This list refers to the year ending January 5, 1835.

The results furnished by an accurate examination of the accounts of the institution convinced the Assistant Commissioners that nothing was wanting in the zeal of the officers and governors for its interest and prosperity. In the year ending January 5th, 1834, 355 patients has been treated, lodged and supported in the charity, for an outlay of 790 l. 18 s. 9 1/2 d. But as 200 l. of that sum was expended in the erection of the new building, the sum actually expended on the 355 including salaries, medicines and every other charge was 590 l. 18 s. 9 1/2 d. The number of diets or days' support issued to these patients was 11,402, viz.; full diets 5,194; low diets, 6,208; 11,402. The average daily number of diets, therefore, or, in other words, the average number of beds occupied each day throughout the year was 31, which gives an expense of one shilling and one half-penny per bed per diem, or about 19 l. 1 s 3 d. per annum for each bed constantly occupied. The average number of diets issued to each individual was 32, which corresponds to the average number of days, which each patient was kept in the hospital. The cost of each patient was therefore 1 l. 12 s. 3 1/2 d.

The charity is possessed of 22 government debentures yielding an interest of 71 l. 1 s. 5 d., and also of 727 l. 13 s. 10 d., of which the interest is 25 l. 9 s. 8 d. These two investments form the only two sources of fixed income. The following were the total receipts in the year ending January 5th, 1834 :—

	£.	s.	d.
Ordinary county presentment	500	—	—
Extra	100	—	—
Interest on 22 debentures	71	1	5
Interest on 727 l. 13 s. 10 d.	25	9	8
Surgeon's salary for one year	92	6	1 1/2
Rent of surgeon's house	50	—	—
W. H. Kram's subscription	3	3	—
Fines from sessions	34	8	—
	£.876	8	2 1/2

Some portion of the funds usually remains in the hands of the county treasurer, and some also in those of the treasurer of the charity.

The principal heads of expenditure in the year ending January 5th, 1834, were as follows :—

	£.	s.	d.
Provisions	187	10	4 1/2
Fuel	48	12	11
Medicines, trusses, &c.	78	14	4 1/2
Furniture and repairs	221	1	6 1/2
Incidental expenses	44	—	11 1/2
Salaries	210	19	9 1/2
	£.790	19	11 1/2

The accounts are made up and arranged at the termination of the year, and are sent to the Imprest office, London.

The instruction afforded by the practice of the hospital is limited to the clinical observations which the medical attendant delivers to two private pupils. Post-mortem examinations are made only when leave can be obtained from the friends of the deceased, and this is procured but seldom, and with much difficulty.

Stores.

Reports.

Funds and
Accounts.
Receipts.

Collection and
Custody.

Expenditure.

Accounts.

Medical and Surgical Instruction.

COUNTY INFIRMARIES.

Ulster.
County Down.

Examinations taken by
Sir D. Barry, M. D.
J. R. Corrie, esq., M.D.

County Infirmary.

Population and
Extent of Country.

Building, Furniture
and Grounds.

Medical Officers.

Payment.

Election.

Persons who attended the Examination.

JOHN HASTINGS, esq.—ALEXANDER MILLAR, esq., chief magistrate of the town.—AINSWORTH, PILSON, esq.—The Medical Attendant.

THE Down Infirmary is intended to receive patients from all parts of the county of the same name. The Downpatrick Fever Hospital adjoins it, being situated in the same inclosure, but, with that exception, no medical charity is to be found within a radius of six miles; and it is stated by the medical attendant that there is a great deficiency of dispensaries in several parts of the county: he instances Portaferry and Ballyhinch. He (the medical attendant) was formerly attached to the Warrenpoint Dispensary, but the duties of the situation were so laborious, that he at length gave it up. He is disposed to give it as his opinion that no single medical officer should be called upon to undertake the charge of a district extending beyond a diameter of six miles; and he is joined by the other witnesses in suggesting the propriety of attaching to each dispensary a building on a small scale for the purpose of treating persons labouring under accidents and fever.

The Infirmary has been but very recently erected, and is a very handsome building to look at, but unfortunately every consideration seems to have been sacrificed to that of making a superb and spacious residence for the surgeon. The front of the edifice is 135 feet long, 90 of which, viz., the whole of the centre front, having 13 windows on two stories, and a hall-door, are occupied by the surgeon's house and the board-room, which is on the ground-floor. The wings, which are each three stories high, are the only parts of the structure allotted to the reception of patients. They present each five blind windows to the same front as the centre, viz., four ranging with those in the surgeon's house, and one on the third story, all handsomely glazed, but walled up on the inside. The wards are eleven in number, five for females, containing 16 beds, and six for males, containing 24 beds. They are small and very imperfectly ventilated, being hermetically sealed on two sides, and the window or windows (in none more than two or three) being placed high in the wall. In one of the wards, occupied by four male patients, the air was so oppressively loaded with cutaneous effluvia that one of the Assistant Commissioners could not without difficulty remain long enough in the room to measure its extent, which did not exceed 20 feet square. It is much to be lamented that, for an outlay of 5,000*l.* so little wholesome accommodation should have been provided for those to whose exclusive benefit the establishment should have been appropriated. The yards, too, of both the male and female ends of this hospital, to which the patients have access, are confined and inclosed by high dead walls, apparently for the purpose of affording a commodious stable-yard and out-offices to the surgeon's dwelling, which should not be overlooked nor interfered with in the slightest degree by the sick. Ten of the largest windows deducted from the ventilation and look out of about 20 patients, is too great a sacrifice to mere appearance, and to the seclusion of one apartment.

The principal medical officer is a gentleman in his 35th year, and who has occupied his present situation since the year 1829, previous to which period he had been attached to the Warrenpoint and Rostrever Dispensaries. He is a licenciate of the Royal College of Surgeons in Ireland, and a doctor of medicine of the Edinburgh University. He is engaged in private practice, but it is expected that he shall give constant attendance at the hospital; and in case of neglect or harshness the poor have it in their power to complain to the governors, with a certainty of their complaints being listened to. In case a necessity should arise for his temporary absence it is expected that an approved substitute shall be provided to act in his place, but his duty is never done by proxy. The medical attendant is also surgeon to the county gaol, at a salary of 100*l.* per annum, and physician to the Fever Hospital, where he gives his services gratuitously. The second medical officer is the apothecary, whose duties consist in compounding the medicines and attending to the patients under the directions of the surgeon. He resides in the Fever Hospital, which is a part of the same premises as the present institution, but forms a distinct building.

The salary of the surgeon is 89*l.* 1*s.* 10*d.* payable from the treasurer's office in Dublin. The apothecary receives as—

	£.	s.	d.
Apothecary to the Fever Hospital	23	1	6
Ditto - to the County Infirmary	20	-	-
Registrar to both Institutions	10	10	-
	£. 53	11	6

He is in addition provided with maintenance and lodging in the Fever Hospital. The amount of these payments cannot be increased, but the grand jury are at liberty to diminish their annual grant, from which they are all drawn.

Both medical officers are elected by the governors, after three weeks' notice, which it is incumbent on the treasurer to give by advertisements inserted in the public papers. There does not appear to be any want of a superior or controlling authority in the making of these appointments, in which the possession of adequate qualifications is always expected from the competitors; and although there is no express limitation with regard to age, either on the electing or displacing of officers, yet at the last election of apothecary, one of the candidates (of whom there were six) was objected to as being too far advanced in life. At the last election of a surgeon the number of candidates amounted to 12, of whom the greater part must have been from a distance, as the town does not contain more than two medical men eligible to the situation. The neighbourhood, is quite sufficient to maintain a medical man independent

COUNTY INFIRMARIES.

Ulster.
County Down.

Examinations taken by
Sir D. Barry, M.D.
J. R. Corrie, esq., M.D.

County Infirmary.

Pharmacy.

Patients' Registration.

Who entitled to Relief.

Extern Patients.

Nourishment.

Intern Patients.

Diet.

Clothing.

General Management.

of a salary. In this institution there are no regulations for superannuations or retiring allowances, and no mortality has ever been experienced among the officers.

The pharmacy was in good order, and it had the appearance of much neatness and regularity. The medicines were of the best kind and in abundance, including several of the more delicate and expensive preparations. They were supplied by the house of Boileau & George, druggists, in Dublin, and the cost in the last three years has been as follows:

	£.	s.	d.
1832	30	14	11
1833	60	3	3
1834	68	12	2

It is expected that the future average cost will amount to 70*l.* as the Fever Hospital is to be supplied from the stock of this institution. None of the medicines are ever sold. The institution possesses all proper apparatus for preparing decoctions, infusions, &c. The physician attached to the charity does not keep any private stock of medicines, and does not supply any in his private practice. The stock of surgical instruments consists only of enema syringes, bougies, bandages, splints, trusses and lancets. Whenever found necessary, leeches are supplied to the intern patients, and are bought as required from a leech doctor in Belfast.

A register is kept by the medical officer, which distinguishes the disease and the termination of each case. The cases are entered as they occur, and a summary is sent each year to the grand jury. It was stated that no persons are ever refused admittance. At the period of the Assistant Commissioners' visit there were 21 patients in the house. There have been 48 cases of capital operation within the three preceding years, all of which did well.

A recommendation, signed by one governor, entitles any person to relief. Cases of accident are admitted at once without recommendation. No persons, except those in circumstances to require gratuitous assistance, ever attempt to participate in the benefits of the intern accommodation, but such attempts at imposition have been made on the part of extern patients. There is no limit to the number of recommendations which a subscriber may issue. It is supposed that no person standing in need of relief has ever been excluded from the benefits of the charity.

Extern patients are seen at the institution; and the sick poor are attended by the medical attendant at their own dwellings within the limits of the town, but not beyond. If attendance is required at night it is frequently given. The Assistant Commissioners found the institution provided with all necessary apparatus, &c., in case of accident. It was stated that no prescriptions of other medical men are ever made up at the pharmacy of the institution. It forms no part of the duty of the medical attendant to visit cases of pauper lying-in women, who are generally attended by midwives, stated to be possessed of very little skill, and from whose ignorance injury is known often to arise. Vaccination is performed at the institution two days in each week, but there are no particular rules on the point; it is found generally efficacious. At the period of the visit of the Assistant Commissioners small-pock was prevalent to a greater degree than for the preceding five years. It was stated that the confidence of the public in vaccination continued unshaken, and the applications were numerous.

Wine and other extras, when found necessary, are furnished, by the medical attendant's directions; of these the housekeeper preserves an account.

There is no charity on which the medical attendant is entitled to give an order, but he can recommend poor persons suffering from disease for relief on the poor fund of the town.

A recommendation from a governor entitles a poor person to be admitted into the hospital. The old building did not afford sufficient accommodation, but it is hoped that the 40 beds in the new establishment will be sufficient for the wants of the county. The friends of the patients are allowed to visit them on two days of the week, and in cases of danger more frequently, and they are permitted sometimes to remain in the house. There are printed regulations to preserve order among the patients, nurses, porter and housekeeper. The patients are not allowed to go beyond the walks of the premises. The convalescent patients sometimes assist the nurses, but not for the benefit of any individual. There is no ward set apart for lunatics, who are always sent to the District Lunatic Asylum at Belfast. During the prevalence of cholera cases of that disease were not admissible, consequently there were no cases in this establishment. There is free access to the clergy of all persuasions to visit members of their own flocks; and there have occurred no cases of religious interference on the part of any one; tracts, however, have been distributed among the patients. There are no chaplains attached to the institution.

There is a regular diet table for the institution. Any extra comforts, recommended by the medical attendant, are allowed to all in-door patients.

Clothing is not found for the patients. There is a room for storing the clothes of patients confined to bed; and all clothes requiring it are purified and cleansed.

The principal management is vested in the entire body of governors, among whom there is no salaried officer of the house. The institution is not essentially under the management of the surgeon. No person is ex officio in the general direction. Meetings of the governors are held once in every three months; five constitute a quorum, but six or seven governors regularly attend the meetings. All governors are equally entitled to vote, but voting by proxy is not allowed. Minutes are kept of the proceedings.

COUNTY

INFIRMARIES.

Ulster.

County Down.

Examinations taken by

Sir D. Barry, M.D.

J. R. Corrie, esq., M.D.

County Infirmary.

Officers, not

medical.

Attendants.

Stores.

Rules.

Reports.

Funds and

Accounts.

Receipts.

There is a managing committee of 12, who meet once a month, or more frequently if necessary. Three constitute a quorum, and minutes are kept of their proceeding. This committee has no connexion with the grand jury. There are no visitors appointed to act during the intervals of the committee meetings; but governors frequently go through the establishment.

The only non-medical officer is the treasurer, who is elected permanently by a meeting of governors convened for the purpose; the election is regulated by Act of Parliament. The treasurer receives all the money collected, which he disburses only on the order of the committee. Voting is open, and this mode of election has been found beneficial. It was stated that no particular religious belief excludes any person from being an officer, though the treasurer, the physician and the apothecary are protestants. It has occurred that an increase in the number of governors has suddenly taken place previous to an election.

The treasurer receives no salary, and is not required to give security. No instance has ever occurred of an officer being either suspended or removed.

The attendants are, a housekeeper, porter, cook, and two female nurses; they are all lodged and boarded in the house, but have not any perquisites; the wages paid to them are as follows:—

	£.	s.	d.
Matron	13	16	11
Porter	7	7	—
Cook	4	4	—
Each nurse	4	4	—

These wages are paid by the treasurer to the order of the committee, which appoints them. The committee holds the power of discharging them, but in extreme cases the medical attendant is permitted to do so. There are printed rules for their general conduct. There has been no mortality among the nurses.

No governor or officer ever supplies any article for the institution; but the committee have purchased articles from shopkeepers in the town who are governors. Stores are generally purchased by contract.

There are printed rules for the general management; but there are bye-laws in the book of proceedings which are not printed.

Printed reports containing the income and expenditure are annually made by the governors, and copies are sent to the Public Account Office, Dublin, to the grand jury, and to each individual governor. The Assistant Commissioners, however, were not able to procure a copy. It was stated that the neighbourhood afforded a sufficient number of persons qualified and willing to look after the wants of the poor if the relief afforded by medical charities were to be extended.

The income and expenditure for the years ending January 5th 1832, 1833, 1834 were as follows:—

INCOME:				EXPENDITURE:
		£.	s.	d.
1831.	County Grant	-	-	-	461	10	9½
	Subscriptions	-	-	-	26	17	2
					£.488	7	11½
1832.	County Grant	-	-	-	461	10	9½
	Subscriptions	-	-	-	5	5	-
					£.466	15	9½
1833.	County Grant	-	-	-	461	10	9½
	Subscriptions	-	-	-	46	5	-
					£.507	15	9½
					£.555.	3.	10.
					£.529.	19.	5.
					£.483.	7.	7.

The principal items of expenditure are,—1. Necessaries for establishment, amounting to about 360 l. per annum. 2. Salaries, amounting to 156 l. 9s. 3d.

In the year ending January 5th 1832 there was subscribed towards the erection of a new infirmary and fever hospital 1,382 l. 10s.; in the year ending January 5th 1833, 722 l. were collected; in 1833, 134 l. were collected for the same purpose.

The continuance of this charity does not depend upon the bounty of any particular individual and its existence is not precarious. Subscriptions are not attended with any stipulations from the subscribers, as to them or their families obtaining medical aid gratis.

The funds are collected by the treasurer, and remain in his hands until wanted.

The title deeds of the building, &c., remain in the hands of one of the building commissioners appointed by the grand jury. No money is ever confided to the care of the salaried officers. The hospital did possess 2,000 l. at interest, but that entire sum and additional funds have been laid out in the erection of the new buildings. No security is given by the treasurer.

The bills are examined and certified by the committee, and paid to their order through the treasurer. The accounts are made out and balanced in the treasurer's books every three months, Collection.

Accounts.

COUNTY INFIRMARIES.

Ulster.
County Down.

Examinations taken by
Sir D. Barry, M.D.
J. R. Corrie, esq., M.D.

Co. Londonderry.

County Infirmary.

Population and
Extent of Country.

Building and
Furniture.

Medical Officers.

Payment.

Election.

months, and are presented annually to a full body of governors, and copies sent to the grand jury.

There is no instruction given at this hospital. Post-mortem examinations are permitted with the consent of the friends of the deceased; this consent, however, it is generally difficult to obtain.

Persons who attended the Examination.

Sir ROBERT FERGUSON, M.P.—WILLIAM HASLITT, esq.—Rev. GEORGE HAY.—JOHN KELSO, esq.
Rev. WILLIAM M'CLURE, treasurer.—THOMAS SCOTT, esq.—ROSS J. SMYTH, esq.—The two Physicians attached to the Institution.

THE present institution is designed to receive only those sick persons who belong to the county or city of Derry. It affords no extern aid to the poor, and it has therefore been deemed necessary to establish a dispensary in the district, in addition to several charities of a more or less similar nature existing in the neighbourhood and within a distance of six miles, such as the District Lunatic Asylum, the Muff, Glendermot, Faughboyne, Faughanvale, Cumber, Donagheady and Upper Cumber Dispensaries. These institutions are not considered in any degree too numerous for the wants of the inhabitants; on the contrary the want of sufficient funds alone prevents the accommodations of the County Infirmary from being more fully made use of, and it is suggested by the witnesses that to each dispensary should be attached a small building capable of receiving bad cases of fever and of accident. The institution at present under consideration was originally engrafted upon, and for a considerable time remained united with, an old establishment in this city, which, in itself performed the offices of house of correction, poor house, lunatic asylum and infirmary. In the year 1811 the present hospital was substituted for the old charity, became possessed of its funds and privileges, but still retains something of the compound character of its predecessor, having been obliged to take into the new house where they now are, the impotent paupers, lunatics and idiots then remaining in the other establishment. There are now 11 aged paupers and 11 lunatics and idiots, not patients, fed and lodged in the present. Since the period mentioned, however, paupers and idiots have ceased to be admitted, but lunatics are not excluded, particularly such as are considered curable and capable of assisting in the cultivation of the garden and grounds belonging to the hospital. All the labour of a very fine potato field, about half an acre of a well cropped garden and of some ornamental grounds is performed by the lunatic inmates. The female inmates spin and sew &c.

This is a handsome stone building, consisting of three stories and a basement. It has 20 windows in front and a hall door. It appears to be in a state of thorough repair. It is well constructed, and derives no small advantage from its accommodations not having been cramped, or perhaps sacrificed by the unwise and reprehensible practice of uniting a splendid residence for the medical man with an asylum for the poor. Here there is merely an apartment for the resident apothecary. The wards are spacious and well ventilated. In the centre of the house there is a large octagonal lobby open from the basement to the cupola, the latter of which has permanently open venetians at its sides. This excellent arrangement tends to preserve the whole building fresh and sweet. There are cold and movable warm baths, together with an apparatus for giving medicated baths. The situation is high, airy and well drained, but at the same time the supply of water is deficient during some of the summer months. The premises are held under a lease for ever from the Bishop of Derry with the consent of the dean and chapter.

The principal medical officer is a gentleman aged 47 years. He is a doctor of medicine of the Edinburgh University, and a licentiate of the Royal College of Surgeons in Ireland. He was appointed in the year 1827, previous to which period he had been engaged in private practice in the city of Londonderry where he still continues to reside. His duties at the infirmary require his attendance there every day, and if he had occasion for a prolonged absence, he would be obliged to communicate his intentions to the committee. He has never hitherto performed his duty by proxy as there is always a resident medical man in the hospital, namely, the apothecary, who is a doctor of medicine in the Edinburgh University, and a member of the College of Surgeons of the same city. By him medicines are always dispensed. The chief medical officer holds two other lucrative appointments. He is surgeon to the county gaol at a salary of 92*l.* 6*s.* 2*d.* a year, and he is physician to the lunatic asylum at a salary of 100*l.*

His salary from the infirmary is 100*l.* per annum without any extra allowance. The apothecary receives only 30*l.* per annum, in addition to board and lodging. The latter accommodation is limited to a small bed-room and the use of the board-room as a sitting-room. As to the opinion entertained of the different rates of remuneration, it is stated by the witnesses that the grand jury have a perfect control over their several amounts by means of the authority which they possess, either to diminish or withhold their usual presentment.

The governors enjoy the privilege of electing the surgeon, who is afterwards allowed to appoint the apothecary, subject to the approval of the governors. The grand jury cannot interfere in these arrangements, neither is there any limitation as to age either in appointing or dismissing the medical men; but testimonials of being properly qualified are strictly required from all the candidates who present themselves. On occasion of the last vacancy there

COUNTY
INFIRMARIES.

Ulster.
Co. Londonderry.

Examinations taken by
Sir D. Barry, M.D.
J. R. Corrie, esq., M.D.

County Infirmary.

Pharmacy.

Patients' Registration.

there was not any opposition offered to the choice of the present surgeon. The conduct o the medical officers is subject at all times to the authority of the governors, and if any poor person has reason to complain of neglect or harshness on their part, they are at liberty (and are well aware of the fact) to lay their complaints before one of that number.

The apothecary's shop is kept with much neatness and good order. It contains a very adequate supply of medicines exclusively for the use of the charity, and including several of the more delicate modern preparations. The Glasgow Apothecaries' Company supply all the medicines, which are ordered by the surgeon under the sanction of the visiting committee, and are subsequently paid for by the treasurer. They are placed under the immediate care of the apothecary, who is provided with all the necessary apparatus for making decoctions, &c. There are also some few surgical instruments, but their number is altogether insufficient for the wants of the hospital, and the surgeon is in consequence often obliged to have recourse to his own. Leeches are occasionally adopted in the practice of the infirmary, and they are purchased from time to time either at Glasgow or at Belfast. Vaccination is not performed, the surgeon is, however, averse from inoculation with small-pock matter.

A register is kept by the house surgeon,—1st. The number of patients received in the current year. 2d. The number received since September 1824. 3d. The name of the patient. 4th. The residence of same. 5th. The name of the recommending governor. 6th. The date of admission. 7th. The nature of the disease. 8th. The result of the mode of treat- ment adopted. 9th. The date of his discharge. 10th. The date of death. 11th. General remarks. The following is an abstract of that portion of the register which relates to the year terminating January 5th, 1834 :—

Remained in the house, 6th January 1833.—Hospital Patients	-	48
" " " Lunatic ditto	-	11
		59
Admitted since	-	401
		460
Of these were Cured	-	331
" Relieved	-	45
" Incurable	-	9
" Died	-	20
Remaining in the house, 5th January 1834	-	44
		449
Lunatics remaining in the house, 5th January 1834	-	11
		460
Aged and infirm remaining in the house, 5th January 1834	-	10
		470
Total	-	470

All paupers resident in the county of Londonderry, who have provided themselves with the recommendatory ticket of a governor, are entitled to be admitted. The domestic servants of subscribers are also admissible, but in all cases the condition of having obtained an order is indispensable, except with regard to persons labouring under fever or accidents, which are received at all times. Each governor is also limited as to the number of tickets which he is at liberty to issue. It is understood that he shall not have more than three patients on the books at the same time.

No species of aid is extended to the poor beyond those who are received into the house. The surgeon cannot be called on to attend lying-in women gratuitously; such persons are therefore usually attended by midwives, who are accustomed to apply to medical men whenever any difficulties are encountered.

The remarks, therefore, which have been given respecting the rights of admission, apply solely to intern patients, and it is only necessary to add that the only obstacles in the way arise from the want of funds to increase the capabilities of the institution. The patients are never on any account allowed to go beyond its bounds, and printed copies of rules are suspended, by which they are required to regulate their conduct. The convalescents are alone liable to be called on to perform work; whatever they do is entirely for the benefit of the charity; but, in general, the amount of labour performed by them is very incon- siderable.

The dietary of the hospital embraces several scales, such as full and low diet, full and low diet with tea, bread and milk diet, diet for the lunatics, and so on.

The patients continue to use their own clothes after admission, when they are purified and cleansed.

The general management rests with the governors, of whom five constitute a quorum at the general meetings. These take place once a quarter, but the principal one is that held on the 25th of January, at which the accounts are examined and audited. The average number of persons present is about eight, and minutes of the proceedings are kept with regularity. The bishop is chairman ex officio, but he does not enjoy any other privilege. The secretary is also a governor.

At the quarterly meetings a committee is appointed, called the visiting committee, and consisting usually of three members, whose duties are to visit the house every week and to attend to the accounts.

The only non-medical officer is a clergyman who acts as secretary and treasurer, and who, though he receives a salary of 18*l*, 19*s*. 2½*d*. per annum, has never been required to enter into any security.

Who entitled to
Relief.

Extern Patients.

Intern Patients.

Diet.
Clothing.

General Management.

Managing
Committee.

Officers not
medical.

The attendants are—

A house-steward and registrar, at	-	-	-	£.	s.	d.
A matron, at	-	-	-	30	-	-
A gate-keeper	-	-	-	14	-	-
	-	-	-	14	10	-

and 13 servants, at salaries varying from 8*l.* to 4*l.* per annum. All mentioned are provided with board and lodging, excepting the gate-keeper, who is only allowed lodging.

Whatever articles are required for the consumption of the establishment are procured by the steward in the following manner: He keeps a book, termed a regulation book, in which he makes an entry of every thing demanded for the institution; this is laid before the committee at its weekly meeting, and they sanction at their discretion the application. No account of the steward is passable unless it has been incurred by this mode of proceeding. There is no instance of any articles being purchased from a governor or an officer.

The printed reports which are periodically made to the governors contain, besides the statement of the amount of relief granted during the year (as given under the head of registration), an account of the income and expenditure, and some general remarks. Besides being presented to the governors, it is also customary to have them inserted in the newspapers.

The principal portion of the income of the charity is derived from the presentments granted by the grand jury at the Spring and Summer assizes; these grants constitute more than one half of the entire income. The remainder is made up chiefly of annual subscriptions and a Parliamentary grant. Underneath is a copy of the debtor side of the treasurer's account for the year ending January 5th, 1834:—

Dr.				£.	s.	d.
By balance of last account in favour of the public	-	-	-	58	-	7½
Received from county treasurer, at summer assizes	-	-	-	461	10	9
„ Parliamentary grant for 1833	-	-	-	92	6	2
„ Subscriptions of governors and governesses	-	-	-	227	5	-
„ from magistrates, fines levied at Moneymore petty sessions	-	-	-	29	5	-
„ Ditto Maghera ditto	-	-	-	23	16	6
„ Ditto Magherafelt ditto	-	-	-	14	15	-
„ Ditto Kilrea ditto	-	-	-	9	16	6
„ Ditto Newtownlimavady ditto	-	-	-	7	19	6
„ Ditto Londonderry ditto	-	-	-	2	1	6
„ Ditto Muff ditto	-	-	-	1	12	6
„ from sheriffs of the city and county of Londonderry, recognizances forfeited	-	-	-	9	15	6
„ from the governor of the gaol, for assaults	-	-	-	7	-	-
„ from the Board of Health, for loss of field of potatoes	-	-	-	20	-	-
„ from William Kearney, for manure, to 5th January 1831	-	-	-	3	-	-
„ for hay sold	-	-	-	1	9	9
„ from Mr. James Pegley, for board of two sailors	-	-	-	-	18	-
„ Ditto, fines on servants	-	-	-	-	11	2
Balance against the public	-	-	-	291	3	5
				£. 1,262	6	10½

In the two previous years the receipts had been as follows:

	£.	s.	d.
1832	1,776	16	1½
1833	1,650	1	-

The funds are paid into the hands of the treasurer, where they remain until wanted. The title deeds are also placed in his custody. The steward is permitted to retain some small sum to meet unforeseen and incidental expenses.

The following is a copy of the sums expended in the year ending January 5th, 1834:—

Cr.				£.	s.	d.
To beef account	-	-	-	91	13	8
Milk ditto	-	-	-	109	19	4
Bread ditto	-	-	-	103	12	4
Oatmeal ditto	-	-	-	84	10	1
Potatoes ditto	-	-	-	39	6	10
Butter ditto	-	-	-	9	16	11
Fish ditto	-	-	-	7	1	5
Groceries ditto	-	-	-	79	18	2
Wine, spirits and ale ditto	-	-	-	20	13	7
Fuel ditto	-	-	-	93	9	4
Soap, candle, oil and gas ditto	-	-	-	50	15	10
Furniture ditto	-	-	-	8	15	6½
Clothing, calico and flannel ditto	-	-	-	34	3	4

COUNTY INFIRMARIES.

Ulster.

Co. Londonderry.

Examinations taken by Sir D. Barry, M.D. J. R. Corrie, esq., M.D.

County Infirmary.

Stores.

Reports.

Funds and Accounts. Receipts.

COUNTY		£.	s.	d.
INFIRMARIES.	Repairs ditto - - - - -	82	4	4½
	Burial expenses ditto - - - - -	2	10	6
Ulster.	Straw ditto - - - - -	8	12	-½
Co. Londouderry.	Medicines and surgical instruments ditto - - - - -	88	10	5
	Advertising, printing and stationery ditto - - - - -	15	-	2
Examinations taken by Sir D. Barry, M.D. J. R. Corrie, esq., M.D.	Salaries and wages ditto - - - - -	272	13	4½
	Rent and assurance - - - - -	22	14	2
County Infirmary.	Contingent expenses and petty disbursements - - - - -	36	5	5½
		£. 1,262	6	10½

	£.	s.	d.
In the year 1832 the expenditure was - - -	1,592	-	4½
„ 1831 „ „ - - -	1,776	16	1½

Accounts. The accounts are inspected monthly by the committee, by whose authority the bills that fall due are discharged ; at the termination of the year they are submitted to the inspection of the governors, and copies of them are also forwarded to the commissioners of public accounts in London.

Persons who attended the Examination.

County Monaghan. The Rev. Mr. EVATT, rector.—The Roman Catholic Clergyman.—Mr. LITTLE, registrar.—
County Infirmary. Dr. MOFFIT.—Dr. TEMPLE.—The Surgeon and the Apothecary.

Population and Extent of Country. THE population of the county Monaghan, for which this infirmary is intended, amounts to nearly 200,000. The dispensaries within six miles are those at Scottstown, Castleshane and Glaslough ; and, with the exception of Castleblaney, there is no place in the county possessing a considerable population which is unprovided with a similar charity. Though this institution affords extensive relief, yet it would be felt as a material benefit if another hospital were erected for those parts of the county which are farthest removed, for instance, the district about Carrickmacross. A tract of country six miles in diameter and possessing as many inhabitants as this, would be as much as one man could efficiently attend to.

Building, Furniture and Grounds. The house is a plain stone building of three stories, including the basement, affording accommodation for 40 patients, and at present containing 33 ; namely, 23 males and 10 females. The wards are clean, spacious and well ventilated ; each patient has a separate bed ; the lower story comprises the kitchen, wash-house and shop ; above are two rooms for the matron ; the only out-building is the turf-house. All was found in pretty good repair, except the water-closets, which were originally badly constructed, but are to be put in complete order immediately. Attached is a small garden well supplied with the common vegetables. It cost last year but 14s. 2d. for labour, and 9s. 5d. for seeds, and, though but half an English acre in extent, supplied all the garden stuff required for the hospital kitchen. The principal medical officer, aged 62, is an M. A. of Edinburgh, and M. R. C. S. E. He was appointed to this situation in the year 1795, and holds no other appointment, but is allowed private practice. He resides in the town of Monaghan and visits the intern patients every day, besides attending on Tuesday and Friday from 12 to 2 for the extern applicants. In case of intended absence he is bound to give notice to the governors.

Other Medical Officers. The apothecary does not reside in the house but attends every day at 10 o'clock. In case of immediate assistance being necessary recourse would be had either to him or the principal medical officer, who lives close to the infirmary. Medicines are dispensed by both the above officers.

Payment. The chief medical attendant receives 92l. 6s. 2d. per annum ; the apothecary 20l. per annum, and neither receives any allowance for lodging, &c.

Election. The surgeon is elected at a meeting of the governors, as is also the apothecary ; but no details of election could be obtained, as there had been no vacancy for many years. There is but one medical man resident in Monaghan eligible to the office of surgeon to the infirmary. Any patient treated with harshness or neglect by either of the medical officers knows that he can complain to the governor who recommended him, or to any other governor of the institution.

Pharmacy. The room in which the medicines are kept is neatly and very conveniently arranged. The medicines appear to be sufficient in quantity and of good quality, including all the more delicate preparations such as morphia, &c. They are supplied by the apothecary, at wholesale prices, and compounded in the institution. His character is the only guarantee for their quality. His account is annually inspected by the chief medical officer, and when signed by him is discharged by the treasurer. His bill for the last three years respectively was—

	£.	s.	d.
1831 - - - - -	48	7	-½
1832 - - - - -	49	15	5
1833 - - - - -	44	14	11

In the years ending January the 5th, for the same period, there were relieved —

	1832.	1833.	1834.
Out-patients - - -	1,177	1,011	706
In-patients - - -	233	256	228
	1,410	1,267	934

COUNTY INFIRMARIES.

Ulster.

County Monaghan.

Examinations taken by
Sir D. Barry, M.D.
J. R. Corrie, esq., M.D.

County Infirmary.

These numbers show, on calculation, that the average cost of medicine per head was nearly 1s. 1½d. The charges for pint mixtures are from 1s. to 1s. 7d.; for leeches 6d. each; for sarsaparilla and jalap each 6s. 6d. per pound; chalk-mixture per pint 1s. 4d.; box of pills 3d. The above items are from the apothecary's own book, and are presented as specimens of the rate of charging.

Whatever the amount may be as compared with other county infirmaries, it is questionable whether a salaried officer ought ever to be a contractor for any article. The chief medical officer does not keep any medicines for private practice, and none are sold at the institution. The supply of surgical instruments seemed to be sufficient for the wants of the institution.

An accurate register is kept, which distinguishes the name of every patient, the day of admission, his age, parish, and disease, his state when discharged, and the time, also the name of the recommender. The same register is kept of out-patients, but the result is not mentioned; and in neither instance is an account kept of those who may have been refused. An account is kept of all capital operations.

Patients' Registration.

Those only are entitled to relief or admission who have procured the recommendation of a governor, and belong to the county of Monaghan. One signature suffices to a ticket, and the number of such tickets is unlimited. Persons whose circumstances do not require gratuitous relief have attempted to participate in the benefits of the charity, but this abuse is guarded against as much as possible.

Who entitled to Relief.

Extern patients are seen at the institution, but the surgeon is not bound to visit them at their homes, though he does so occasionally, without receiving any allowance for his visits. In case of accident the institution does possess the means of affording immediate relief. Lying-in cases are not attended at the infirmary. The very poorest women apply to midwives, who call in the doctor when difficulty exists; and accidents are rarely heard of. No prescription-book is kept here, nor are any prescriptions of neighbouring practitioners made up. The medical officer has formed a very good opinion of vaccination, though he has known of several instances of modified small pock occurring after it, but none were fatal; he will not inoculate with small pock. The confidence of the public in vaccination is on the increase.

Extern Patients.

Wine and other extras are furnished under the immediate care of the surgeon and apothecary, but there is no charity in the town upon which an order can be given for food, clothes or fuel.

Nourishment.

Any person belonging to the county and having the order of a governor is entitled to admission; these tickets are easily obtained, and there are some beds vacant at present. The only work performed by the patients consists in keeping clean the wards and passages, and they are at all times permitted to see their friends. Lunatics are not admitted; the cases which occur are sent to Armagh. Cholera has never at any time prevailed here. The clergy of every religious persuasion are admitted, but there are no chaplains attached. Religious tracts are not distributed.

Intern Patients.

THE FULL DIETARY.

Breakfast.—One pint of sweet milk, five ounces of meal made into stirabout.

Diet.

Dinner.—Half a pound of beef, three pounds of potatoes, one pint of broth.

Supper.—One pint of sweet milk, three ounces of meal in stirabout.

THE LOW DIETARY. This is the only diet in use.

Breakfast.—Two ounces of oatmeal, half a pint of sweet milk, half a pint of gruel, one quarter of a pound of bread.

Dinner.—One quarter of a pound of beef made into broth, two pounds of potatoes.

Supper.—Same as breakfast.

The dietary to be uniform, and no extras to be allowed those on the full dietary, but the surgeon to have power to order as extras whatsoever may be necessary for the patients who may be on the low dietary; one pound of meal to be allowed to each ward per day, to make gruel.

For the housekeeper per day, one quart of sweet milk, half a pound of bread, three quarters of a pound of beef, three pounds of potatoes, two ounces of butter.

COUNTY

INFIRMARIES.

Ulster.

County Monaghan.

Examinations taken by

Sir D. Barry, M.D.

J. R. Corrie, esq., M.D.

County

Infirmary.

SERVANTS: one man and two women each per day.

Breakfast.—Half a pound of meal for stirabout, one pint of sweet milk.

Dinner.—Four days, three quarters of a pound of beef, three pounds of potatoes; three days, two ounces of butter, four pounds of potatoes.

Supper.—Same as breakfast.

Although the institution is fairly and economically conducted, still there is a want of precision, and an avoiding of trouble in the manner of apportioning their respective diets to the patients. Thus 1st: All the patients in the house are kept always on low diet, and the motive assigned is, that it is the only diet on which extras can be ordered. 2d: The number of patients on the diet-roll on Saturday, is taken as the number of diets for each day of the following week. The flesh-meat is laid in on Mondays, and if any patients should die or be discharged during the week the daily total of meat continues the same, and the newly admitted have no meat for the week of admission (this rule is said not to obtain as to the daily issue of bread, potatoes, milk, meal, &c.) 3d: There is no daily diet-roll filled up, and therefore the patients cannot by any direct means ascertain the quantity of food to which they may be entitled on any day, nor can the number of diets paid for annually by the hospital be correctly calculated. 4th: When any extra article of food is ordered, the order continues in force for the remainder of the week. This mode of regulating such a point of hospital discipline is so very loose and inaccurate, both in a medical and fiscal point of view, that it ought to be corrected. Of 33 patients on the diet-roll, on the day of the visit of the Assistant Commissioners, all on low diet, one only had extra milk. Taking 12,775 as the number of diets issued last year, made out by striking a daily average of the number of patients on the diet-roll of each week, or 12,661 diets made out by multiplying the number of pounds of meat issued by four, a quarter of a pound being the daily allowance of each patient on low diet (and all being considered on low diet), the expense of one diet is between 4½*d.* and 4¾*d.*, as calculated by a gentleman present. When it is recollected that by the Monaghan dietary system, each patient has some flesh-meat every day, whilst by that of Armagh no patient on low diet has any flesh-meat, and that a very large majority of the latter patients are on low diet, the difference of expense between the daily diets of these two institutions will appear the more striking. But the daily number of patients supported throughout the year by each hospital respectively, and the amounts of their respective annual expenditure when compared together, seem very extraordinary indeed.

Clothing.

General Manage-

ment.

No clothing is provided for the inmates.

The general management rests in the governors, of whom the medical officer is not one, nor any governor ex officio. The fixed meetings are annual on the 5th of June, but the attendance at them is irregular, and voting by proxy is permitted. Minutes of the proceedings are kept.

Managing Body.

There is no committee of management nor any board of inspection, nor monthly or quarterly meetings. The rector of the parish frequently comes in, but there are no appointed visitors.

Officers not

medical.

The officers not medical are, 1st, [the treasurer, without a salary; 2d, the registrar, who is likewise secretary, with a salary of 20*l.* per annum. The latter situation is permanent.

Attendants.

The attendants are,

	£.	s.	d.
The matron, salary	-	-	-
Two maid servants, each at	-	-	-
Porter	-	-	-
	31	10	-
	3	13	10
	7	7	8

Stores.

All are allowed board and lodging, and there are printed rules for their conduct.

All stores are procured through contract by public advertisement, and no contractor has any thing to do with the hospital or its governors. The contract prices for the following articles were:

	£.	s.	d.
Workington coal, per ton, delivered	-	-	-
Potatoes, per stone	-	-	-
Meal, per cwt.	-	-	-
Bread, per lb.	-	-	-
Soap, per cwt.	-	-	-
Candles, per dozen lbs., moulds	-	-	-
Ditto ditto dips	-	-	-
Straw, per cwt.	-	-	-
Sweet milk, per imp. gallon	-	-	-
Turf, per cwt.	-	-	-
	1	2	6
	-	-	3
	-	10	5
	-	-	1½
	1	16	-
	-	-	8
	-	-	6
	-	1	1
	-	-	5½
	1	12	-

Reports.

No other article is contracted for; meat is bought every week in the market by the registrar.

Funds and Accounts.

Receipts.

Printed annual reports are made. This district possesses a considerable number of persons able and willing to assist in investigating the wants of the poor.

The principal sources of income of this charity are the interest on stock, and the grand jury jury presentment. The total receipts for the last three years were, respectively, including balance in hands :

				£.	s.	d.		£.	s.	d.
1832	-	-	-	Receipts	852	-	7	Expenditure	714	1	2
1833	-	-	-	"	814	-	6	"	603	6	7½
1834	-	-	-	"	838	1	5½	"	614	8	5

The capital stock vested in government securities, yielding 135*l.* 13*s.* 10*d.* per annum, is not vested in the hands of the governors, but in those of trustees. The annual funds are kept by the treasurer. Check-books are kept with each of the contractors, and the registrar keeps a day-book for all transactions, which he afterwards posts into a ledger.

No medical or surgical instruction of any kind is given here.

COUNTY INFIRMARIES.

Ulster.

County Monaghan.

Sir D. Barry, M.D.
J. R. Corrie, esq., M.D.
Examinations taken by

County Infirmary.

Persons who attended the Examination.

DANIEL AUCHINLECK, esq.—The Rev. CHARLES C. BERESFORD.—JONES CRAWFORD, esq.—SAMUEL GALBRAITH, esq.—A. W. COLE HAMILTON, esq.—Dr. MAXWELL.—ALEXANDER M'CAUSLAND, esq.—Rev. W. G. STACK.—Sir HUGH STEWART, M.P.—The Surgeon and the Apothecary.

County Tyrone.

County Infirmary.

THE Tyrone Infirmary is the only hospital for the general reception of disease within the limits of the county, which contains a population of about 300,000 souls. The Omagh Dispensary, which is connected with the present institution, is the only establishment of the kind within a distance of six miles. Such charities are, however, very judiciously diffused throughout most parts of the county, and are usually well situated with reference to the population, which they are more expressly designed to relieve. Some districts are, however, mentioned, of which the inhabitants are not less than 10 or 12 miles from all sources of professional assistance. Another point to which the gentlemen present advert, is the total want of hospital accommodation in several small and remote towns. This is a deficiency which they describe as having often been very sensibly felt, and they suggest that a building on a limited scale should be connected with a certain number of the rural dispensaries, and that it should have for its objects the reception and treatment of persons labouring under fever and accidents.

Population and Extent of Country.

Building, Furniture and Grounds.

The Infirmary is a long, low building, two stories in height, with an attic in the roof, and a basement containing seven small wards. The roof is in a bad condition, but the remaining portions of the house are in a very fair state of repair. The wards contain altogether 29 beds. The number of patients in the house amounts, however, to 39. Of these, 30 sleep two in a bed, and eight are disposed in four beds placed in a cockloft, 18 feet by 15. Sixteen of the beds are for males and nine for females, but no vacant bed is reserved for accidents. The attic referred to is without a ceiling, and the slate is the only division from the external atmosphere, which readily imparts to the ward its heat in summer and its cold in winter. As to ventilation, it is on the whole as perfect as, under the circumstances, it can be. The supply of water is good, but it does not extend to the upper stories. The title to the premises is defective; they are considered to be the property of the governors of the institution, but the lease cannot be found. It has been long in contemplation to erect a new County Hospital, but in addition to the want of funds, and the difficulty of procuring an eligible site for the building, the bad title reduces the selling price of the present building.

Medical Officers.

The surgeon to the institution is a gentleman in his 55th year, who was formerly a surgeon in the Royal Artillery. He was appointed as general medical attendant in the year 1808. He is bound to attend daily in the wards of the hospital, and his duty has never been performed by proxy. It is stated that he has never been absent from his post but on one occasion, when he was sent by the governors to a district visited by cholera, in order to render himself acquainted with the nature of that epidemic. He holds two other appointments, namely, that of surgeon to the County Gaol, and that of medical superintendent of the Omagh Dispensary. In the former capacity he receives a salary of 80*l.* late currency; in the latter his emoluments have not been fixed; and the highly objectionable practice is adopted and sanctioned by recorded resolutions of the committee entrusted with the affairs of the charity, of handing over to him, as salary, the whole of the balance remaining at the annual settlement of accounts, after paying the outlay. This balance, in every case since the establishment of the dispensary in 1831, has exceeded the whole amount of the county grant, whilst the outlay has been invariably comprehended under two heads, viz., stationery and medicine. For three years' medicine is charged 93*l.* 17*s.* 2*d.* In that time the surgeon has received 185*l.* 13*s.* 7*d.*; the whole income of the institution having amounted to 288*l.* 11*s.*

	£.	s.	d.
In 1831 he received	67	3	7
1832	60	-	-
1833	58	10	-

The second medical officer of the County Infirmary is the apothecary. He resides opposite the establishment, but does not receive any allowance towards the expenses of a residence. The surgeon is provided with apartments in the Infirmary to the number of four rooms and a kitchen.

COUNTY INFIRMARIES.

Ulster.
County Tyrone.

Examinations taken by
Sir D. Barry, M.D.
J. R. Corrie, esq., M.D.

County Infirmary.

Pharmacy.

His remuneration as attendant of the hospital is drawn from the treasury, and amounts to 100*l.* per annum, late Irish currency. The apothecary receives 27*l.* 13*s.* 10*d.* per annum.

The governors possess the right of electing the medical officers, but there has not been an opportunity of exercising the privilege since the year 1808.

The stock of medicines for the County Infirmary, and that for the use of the Omagh Dispensary, are kept in the same place, namely, one of the apartments occupied by the surgeon, in which he also keeps those medicines which are intended for his private patients. It is stated that this arrangement has not been productive of any confusion, and that the medicines belonging to the establishment are never sold. The drugs for the two charities are purchased from different houses. Those required for the infirmary from Boileau & George, those for the dispensary from Leckey & More, both Dublin houses. For the former institution the cost was in the years—

	£.	s.	d.
1830	139	9	4
1831	141	4	3
1832	139	11	10

The surgeon is accustomed to issue each day to the apothecary as much as the occasion is likely to demand. No pharmaceutical apparatus whatsoever has been provided, but there does not appear to be any deficiency of surgical instruments for the purposes of the hospital. These are occasionally lent. Leeches are adopted in the practice of the infirmary, and they are supplied by the Dublin druggists. Very little has been done towards the diffusion of vaccination. It is found extremely difficult to obtain the regular attendance of those on whom it has been performed, and the poor do not appear to be impressed with much confidence in the utility of the measure, owing a good deal to the results of their own inattention and carelessness. Small-pock exists periodically in the neighbourhood of the town, but the surgeon of the infirmary expresses himself as strongly averse from the inoculation with variolous matter.

Patients' Registration.

The registration of the patients admitted into the house is carried on under the following heads, namely, name of patient and of the governor who recommended him, date of patients, admission and nature of his disease, date of discharge or of death, and general remarks on the nature and circumstances of the case. Of this document an abstract is periodically laid before the members of the grand jury. It is sometimes necessary to refuse application for admission owing to want of room. At the date of the Assistant-Commissioner's visit to the charity the number of patients in the house was, as has been already intimated, 39, of whom 30 were in double, and nine in single beds.

Who entitled to Relief.

Each governor is entitled to issue an unlimited number of tickets, recommending the bearer to be admitted into the infirmary. It is understood, however, that these recommendations are not to be issued in favour of any persons, except of the residents of the county of Tyrone, neither is it usual that the domestic servants of governors should avail themselves of them. Accidents alone are entitled to unconditional admission. The patients in the house appeared to the Assistant-Commissioners to be of the most indigent class, squalid and in rags, with a very large proportion of scrofulous cases; and there is no reason to suppose that any individuals have been in the habit of availing themselves of the benefits of the charity, except those whose circumstances and poverty rendered them fit objects for gratuitous relief.

Extern.

It is unnecessary to refer to the details connected with the affording of aid by the dispensary. Those subjects have been exhibited in the evidence given in reference to that institution.*

Intern Patients.

What has just been said may be considered to relate to those who are received into the hospital; the treatment of these latter does not require any remarks, and the prescription-book was found to contain the remedies usually adopted by the profession. Those who have attained the convalescent stage are occasionally called upon to render assistance to the other patients, and to help the servants to clean the premises. It has not been considered necessary to attach chaplains to the establishment, but permission is given to the clergy of all sects to hold communion at all times with the members of their respective creeds who may happen to be inmates of the house. At the same time there has not been any improper interference with the religious opinions of the sick, either on the part of clergy or laity, and the circulation of controversial tracts has never taken place. The hospital does not contain any ward appropriated to the reception of lunatics. The county of Tyrone is included in the district of the Londonderry Lunatic Asylum, and as that institution is at present full, it has been found expedient to place some lunatic patients in the gaol, as a temporary resource. When the epidemic cholera made its appearance in the town and neighbourhood of Omagh two cases of the disease manifested themselves in the infirmary.

Diet.

The diet of the patients is fixed by an established dietary, from which few deviations are made. It will be perceived that the allowance of meat is very liberal.

GENERAL DIET.

Breakfast.—One quart of stirabout, with one pint of sweet milk.

Dinner.—On Sundays and Thursdays, eight ounces of meat, with one quart of broth, three and a half pound of potatoes. On other days, three and a half pound of potatoes, one pint of sweet milk.

BREAD

* See Omagh Dispensary.

COUNTY INFIRMARIES.

Ulster.
County Tyrone.

Examinations taken by
Sir D. Barry, M.D.
J. R. Corrie, Esq., M.D.

County Infirmary.

General Manage-
ment.

Managing
Committee.

Officers not Medical.

Stores.

Patients' Registration.

Reports.

Who entitled to
Relief.
Funds and
Accounts.

Expenditure.

Collection and
Custody.

Expenditure.

The BREAD DIET.

Breakfast.—One pound of bread, with one pint of sweet milk.
Dinner.—One pound of bread, with one pint of sweet milk. Meat and broth as above.

HALF-BREAD DIET.
Breakfast.—Eight ounces of bread, one pint of sweet milk.
Dinner.—Eight ounces of bread, one pint of sweet milk; meat and broth as above.
Tea, &c. &c. are only ordered when absolutely necessary.

The general management of the affairs of the institution is strictly confined to the governors, and the medical attendant has been excluded from all participation in it. The meetings of the governors are by no means regular, but it is stated that they are in the habit of assembling generally about twice in the course of the year. At these meetings from six to eight governors constitute the ordinary attendance. They examine and pass the accounts, and minutes are always kept of their proceedings. The voting is always personal, but it is mentioned by one of the witnesses, that, on this point, the practice is different at dispensaries, and the instance of a recent election at the Dungannon Dispensary is adduced.

No managing committee has ever been appointed, and its place is but imperfectly supplied by the Board of Superintendence, which has been selected by the grand jury to attend to all the charities throughout the county.

The treasurer is the only non-medical officer. He is elected by open voting, and without reference to religious distinctions. He acts without any remuneration.

A large proportion of the articles required for the consumption of the establishment are procured by public contract of which printed notices are circulated. The following are the prices of some of the principal stores.

	s.	d.
Beef, without bone	3	$\frac{3}{4}$ per lb.
Oatmeal	13	4 per 120 lb.
Potatoes	2	$\frac{1}{2}$ per stone.
New milk	2	per lb.
Straw	1	4 per 120 lb.
Fuel (turf)	4	per box. (This measure is equal to the military box, being 4 feet wide, 6 feet long and 5 feet high.)

No printed reports exist from which to derive any accurate information as to the affairs of the charity in previous years. It is, however, stated that, so far as the wants of the poor are concerned, the district contains a large number of intelligent individuals, who are both able and willing to participate in any investigation which may be made into the real condition of the indigent classes of the population.

The institution possesses a small fixed income, derived from the interest payable on 2,681*l.* 14*s.* 2*d.* vested in the government 3*½* per cents. By far the greater portion of its receipts are, however, made up of the following items, as shown in the treasurer's account for the year ending 5th January 1834:—

	£.	s.	d.
Interest on vested stock	108	5	6
Parliamentary grant	89	1	9
Grand jury presentment	387	10	5
Subscriptions and fines from petty sessions	64	17	1
	£.649	14	9

The funds are collected by the treasurer, and remain in his hands until wanted. No other officer is allowed to hold any money belonging to the charity in his possession.

The nature of the charges incurred to meet the objects of the infirmary is best shown by the following abstract of the details of expenditure for the year ending January 5, 1834:—

	£.	s.	d.
Paid for provisions	317	13	6 $\frac{1}{2}$
Wine	7	8	7
Medicines on account	8	1	7
Fuel	38	3	6
Soap	5	7	7
Candles	3	18	9
Furniture	7	9	10
Repairs	30	5	8
Rent	7	7	8
Salaries	105	9	5
Contingencies	51	9	10 $\frac{1}{2}$
	£.638	16	1

The accounts are in the first instance certified by the medical attendant, and afterwards laid before the governors for a final examination, without which they cannot be discharged.

The opportunities afforded for medical and surgical education by the practice of the hospital are quite neglected.

Post-mortem examinations are rarely made, in consequence of the difficulty with which the deceased's friends are in general induced to consent to the practice.

LUNATIC
ASYLUMS.

LUNATIC ASYLUMS.

Connaught.
County Galway.

Persons who attended the Examination.

The Medical Attendant.—The Manager.

Examinations taken by
Sir D. Barry, M. D.
J. R. Corrie, esq., M. D.

District
Lunatic Asylum
at Ballinasloe.

Population and
Extent of Country.
Building, Furniture
and Grounds.

THE Connaught District Lunatic Asylum is intended for the reception of lunatics from all parts of the province of Connaught. For this extensive design it is certainly inadequate, and the inefficiency has latterly made itself so sensible, that it is in contemplation to make an addition to the edifice, or rather so to re-arrange the present internal dispositions, that accommodation may be obtained for an increased number of patients.

The building is perfectly new, twelve months not having elapsed since it was opened. It is laid out for the reception of 152 lunatics, but it might be made to hold 166. It has been proposed by one of the Inspectors-General of Prisons, that place should be provided for fifty incurables or epileptics, and in compliance with this suggestion the directors have made preparations for 18 of the two classes. The boundary wall of the institution includes about $10\frac{1}{2}$ acres of land, the purchase of which, together with the cost of the entire building, furnished as it now stands, amounted to about 27,000*l.* The situation has been very unhappily chosen, and is in some degree the cause of many inconveniences. The ground is low, and the surrounding fields are subject to frequent inundations. From the want of a sufficient fall, the premises are very imperfectly drained; there are no water-closets, and the privies in the yard are without a current of water passing through them; add to this, that as there is no special place into which to throw the filth and dirty straw, the privies are used for that purpose. Neither is there any store for the day's supply of turf, which is usually brought from the chief depôt through the centre of the building. The accommodation for the servants is also said to be very restricted, a defect which will be very much felt when the asylum becomes full. The general state of this establishment as to cleanliness, arrangement and classification is certainly very inferior to that of the similar institution in Belfast. The Assistant Commissioners saw 31 male lunatics and idiots at dinner, crowded around two tables joined together at the ends, neither of which could separately accommodate more than 12 persons. The poor creatures were so closely placed on the benches that many of them were obliged to lean either forwards or backwards in order to obtain sitting room, and to ease their uncomfortable position. There was at the same time a large dining-room vacant. Of the $10\frac{1}{2}$ acres mentioned as being contained within the walls, the entire is devoted to the raising of potatoes and oats, no portion of it being laid out for improvement or ornamental gardening, so as to afford a source of wholesome recreation to the convalescent patients. Notwithstanding the alleged want of proper depositories for refuse and dirt, a walled-in space, having the appearance of being intended for such an end, was observed in a recess at the back of the building. It was, however, found, on examination, to have been converted into a pigsty, and to be occupied by five large pigs.

Medical Officer.

There is but one medical officer, a gentleman who is not exclusively attached to the institution, but is also engaged in private practice. Each patient is presented to him on his admission, and he then decides on the line of treatment which is to be pursued. He also visits the sick daily.

Payment.

His salary is 100*l.* per annum.

Pharmacy.

The state of the pharmacy displayed considerable neatness, and every thing in it seemed to be in good order. The orders for medicines (which are procured from the Apothecaries' Company) are drawn in the name of the manager, and are always countersigned by the physician, to whose inspection, and to that of the board, the druggist's bills are likewise submitted previous to their being discharged.

Patients' Registration.

The registration of the patients is conducted with much accuracy, and shows at a glance the portions of the province to which each lunatic belongs. The gross number of cases admitted between the 16th November 1833, and the 30th September 1834 was 139, of whom only 21 were discharged cured, three were taken away by their friends, and one died. Of those admitted 45 were from the county Galway, 37 from the county Mayo, 39 from the county Roscommon, 16 from the county Leitrim, and two from the county Sligo; the latter county is at the greatest distance from Ballinasloe. Of males there were 84, of females 55. On the day that the Assistant Commissioners visited the asylum the number of patients in the house amounted to 114, of whom 74 were males and 40 females. There were but four individuals under medical treatment. The entire consisted of —

	Males.	Females.	Total.
Cases of Epilepsy - - -	16	4	20
„ Mania - - -	40	20	60
„ Monomania - - -	6	-	6
„ Amentia - - -	21	7	28
	83	31	114

It was melancholy to be informed by the physician, that although the asylum had not been open quite one year, yet of the above 114 cases not less than 84 were to be considered as utterly utterly incurable. It thus appears too clearly that, whilst the government and the country thought they were founding establishments into which the curable pauper lunatic might be received, and thence be returned, restored by proper treatment to usefulness, they have in truth been erecting palaces for the permanent accommodation of slaving and worthless idiots, and have surrounded these unconscious beings with an expensive train of officers, servants and other machinery, whilst the hard working useful peasant is either refused admittance from want of room, or does not seek it owing to the distance at which he may reside. This state of things constitutes a most pressing evil, and requires correction. Surely a plain and cheaply built house, with a more economical staff, would be quite good enough to lodge the helpless and unconscious idiot; and one or two such houses in every county or city would be productive of more real relief to the community than one palace for each district. As to the classification of the patients with a view to keeping separate those who labour under different forms of mental disease, it was stated that the male patients were divided into four classes, and the females into two. The Assistant Commissioners were, however, unable to understand the principles on which the classification had been made. None of the males were seen engaged in any employment. A few of the females were observed spinning, netting, and rendering assistance in the domestic services of the house, such as washing, &c.

The entire establishment is placed under the authority of a certain number of directors appointed by Government, but as they live in various and distant parts of the province, their meetings have been irregular and at long intervals. Even during this, the first year that the asylum has been open, considerable inconvenience has been experienced from the delays which have occurred. During the last three months no meeting whatsoever has been held, but it is hoped that one will soon take place, as the approaching October fair of Ballinasloe is likely to assemble many of the directing body.

The principal and most responsible officer of the asylum is the manager. He receives a salary of 200*l.* per annum; there is also a matron at 60*l.* per annum. Both of these officers reside in the institution.

From a return of the actual number of inmates of the establishment on the 2d of October, it appears that the number of attendants engaged in its service amounts to 26.

The articles required for the consumption of the house are procured by contract. As to the prices paid, the following list will enable a tolerably accurate judgment to be formed of their justness:—

	£.	s.	d.
Turf, per statute box	-	-	5
Potatoes, per cwt. (4 d. per stone)	-	-	2 8
Oaten straw, per cwt.	-	-	1 3
White bread, per 4 lbs.	-	-	6 ½
Whitehaven coal, per ton	-	12	-
Sweet milk, per imperial gallon	-	-	5 ½
Oatmeal, per cwt.	-	11	6
White soap, per stone	-	4	8
Yellow, ditto	-	3	6
Candles (dips and moulds), per lb.	-	-	7
Beer, per barrel	-	19	-
Beef, including bone, per lb.	-	-	3 ¾
Men's shoes, per pair	-	7	-
Women's ditto	-	4	10
Repairing men's shoes, per pair	-	2	-
Ditto - women's ditto	-	1	8

No benefit is derived from the facilities which an institution like the present affords for education. No plan exists by which a person can be instructed in the mode of taking care of lunatics.

Person who attended the Examination.

The Medical Attendant.—The Manager.

THE Carlow District Lunatic Asylum is intended for the admission of lunatics from the counties of Carlow, Kildare, Kilkenny and Wexford.

At the period of the visit of the Assistant Commissioners there were 97 patients in the asylum; 51 males, 46 females, not one of whom was under medical treatment for insanity, and only four for physical maladies, which did not appear to be of serious importance.

The curative management of the inmates of this asylum, so far as regards their peculiar disease, insanity, has been hitherto conducted upon the purest principles of moral treatment, and in this respect presents a marked contrast with that adopted in the Maryborough Asylum. There the surgeon is invested, by the standing rules of the institution, with the entire control of "the treatment, both physical and moral," of all the patients, 41 of whom were taking various kinds of medicine for the cure of insanity at the period of the Assistant Commissioners' visit. The manager could be looked upon in no other light than as an upper keeper. Here, on the contrary, the very first rule of the establishment states, that "the manager is expressly to be considered the chief officer of the institution." The 14th rule adds, that "he is to make himself acquainted with the cases of the patients, and to main-

LUNATIC
ASYLUMS.

Connaught.
County Galway.

Examinations taken by
Sir D. Barry, M.D.
J. R. Corrie, esq., M.D.

District
Lunatic Asylum
at Ballinasloe.

General Manage-
ment.

Officers not
medical.

Attendants.

Stores.

Medical Instruction.

Leinster
County Carlow.

District
Lunatic Asylum at Carlow.

Intern Patients.

LUNATIC
ASYLUMS.

Leinster.
County Carlow.

Examinations taken by
S. D. Barry, M.D.
J. R. Corrie, esq., M. D.

District
Lunatic Asylum at Carlow.

tain such intercourse with them as will enable him at all times to satisfy the Board of Directors as to the character and mode of moral treatment applicable to each case." "The medical attendant" is merely required "to visit the asylum twice a week, and to attend when sent for to prescribe for such of the inmates as may require medical care." Here no patient ever takes medicine unless it be for some indisposition which would call for medical treatment even if he were in his sound mind.

The results of these two opposite modes of treating the insane, adopted by the two asylums respectively, stand recorded in their printed reports for the period therein stated, as follows; viz.

MARYBOROUGH.		CARLOW:
Number of Patients treated from 14 May 1833 to 30 June 1834:		Number of Patients treated from 7 May 1832 to 31 December 1833:
Total	112	Total	121
Discharged cured	21	Recovered and discharged	26
Died	8	Died	7
Time, 13 months,—		Time, 20 months.
The number considered curable of the 80 remaining at the above period - not stated.		Of the 86 remaining at the above period, there are stated to be
Convalescent	ditto.	Convalescent	13
Incurable	ditto.	Considered curable	19
		Ditto - incurable	54
			86

It is almost unnecessary to remark, after this statement, that there is a manifest want of uniformity and precision in the systems of management of the insane poor now in operation in the lunatic asylums visited by the Assistant Commissioners.

The economical department of this asylum is deserving of notice, more particularly as compared with some others.

The extent of farm ground and garden attached to the institution is 10 ½ Irish acres, on a portion of which the late manager planted potatoes, barley and vegetables, after making an outlay of 10*l.* 16*s.* 6*d.* The produce of this outlay, collected by the present manager, appointed in September 1834, has been,

	£.	s.	d.
Potatoes, 120 barrels, valued at 6 s. per barrel	36	—	—
Barley sold	8	7	3
Pigs, fed and sold for the benefit of the institution	13	8	9
Pigs now feeding, and expected to sell for	12	—	—
Vegetables sold	2	—	—
	£. 71	16	—

There are a dozen pigs now kept on the offal of the house and farm; two of which for the profit of the manager as a perquisite, one for that of the matron.

The expenses of this institution are efficiently controlled, whilst the inmates are looked after with a degree of well-directed attention, by the physician, the manager and the matron, which the Assistant Commissioners have no where seen excelled. There is a good deal of nursery and ornamental horticulture going on, which enlarges and varies the sphere of employment for the insane males.

Medical and other Officers. There is one physician, who receives a salary of 100*l.*; one manager, 220*l.*, who does the duties of secretary and clerk, without additional salary, by express stipulation.

By the rules of the asylum, the physician attends two days in the week, and on all particular occasions when called on. There is a standard dietary, which he is bound to follow, except under peculiar circumstances, when he is authorized to order tea, wine, or mutton broth. He is bound to keep a register, in which are entered the names of the inmates, the nature of their distempers, the date of being placed under medical treatment, and the duration of the disease, &c.

Pharmacy. The medicines are compounded in the house by an apothecary, at a salary of 15*l.* per annum. The druggist's invoice for the eight months previous to the visit of the Assistant Commissioners, amounted to

A previous account was shown of	£. 18	12	5
	25	3	3
	£. 43	15	8

General Management There is a board of directors, who, by the rules of the institution, are to meet the first Thursday in each month. Minutes are kept of their proceedings.

The

LUNATIC ASYLUMS.

Leinster.
County Carlow.

Examinations taken by
Sir D. Barry, M.D.
J. R. Corrie, esq., M.D.

District
Lunatic Asylum at Carlow.

Queen's County.

District Lunatic
Asylum at Maryborough.

Population and
Extent of Country.

Medical Officers.

Payment.

Pharmacy.

Patients' Registration.

The following is the account of the receipts and expenditure of the asylum from the 6th January 1833 to the 31st March 1834 :

RECEIPTS :				EXPENDITURE :
	£.	s.	d.		£.	s.	d.
Balance of last account in favour of the public - - - -	419	15	3½	Provisions - - - -	841	15	7½
Amount overcharged for fees and paid at the Treasury - - -	-	11	8	Clothing and bedding - - -	181	11	5½
Oats, barley, vegetables sold - -	37	16	4	Coals, soap and candles - -	235	10	9
Profit on pigs - - - -	4	17	9	Furniture - - - -	71	15	10½
Weaving by patients - - - -	1	-	8	Building and repairs - - -	105	9	11
Fines levied on the servants - -	-	10	-	Farming and garden expenses -	10	16	6½
Received from Lords Commission-ers of His Majesty's Treasury -	3,000	-	-	Medicines - - - -	77	3	9
				Manufactures - - - -	21	18	4
				Tithes and taxes - - - -	6	9	5
				Salaries and wages - - - -	680	14	4
				Incidents - - - -	32	16	6
					2,265	12	6½
				Balance in favour of the public	1,198	19	2
	£. 3,464	11	8½		£. 3,464	11	8½

Persons who attended the Examination.

The Medical Attendant.—The Manager.

THIS asylum is intended for the reception of patients from the counties of Longford, Westmeath, King's County and Queen's County. The population of these counties was in 1831, 539,506.

The asylum was opened for the reception of patients on the 14th May 1833, and has 14 acres, plantation measure, attached to it, in the tillage of which the male patients, such as can be encouraged, are employed.

The surgeon is, by the rules of the establishment, the chief director, not only "of the physical but also of the moral treatment of every patient," the manager being bound in every particular to follow his written instructions. By the rules of the asylum he is bound to visit the inmates three days in each week, independently of his occasional attendance on such cases of illness as may require it. There is also an apothecary attached to the institution.

	£.	s.	d.
The physician receives a salary of - - -	100	-	-	per annum.
The apothecary - - - -	30	-	-	"
The other officers are the manager and the matron, his wife, who receive together -	250	-	-	"
The clerk and store-keeper - - - -	30	-	-	"

The outlay for medicines from the 3d October 1832 to 25th January 1834 amounted to 59l. 14s. 11d. There appeared to be a good stock on hand at the period of the visit of the Assistant Commissioners.

The following is the report of the state of the institution from its opening for the reception of patients, May 14, 1833, to June 14, 1834 :—

ADMITTED WITHIN THE ABOVE PERIOD.

M A L E S.		Total admitted.	Discharged cured.	Relieved and on Trial	Unrelieved and withdrawn by Friends.	Died.	Eloped and re-admitted.	Remain.
Maniacal	-	41	9	1	- - -	4	1	26
Melancholic	-	5	- - -	- - -	- - -	1	- - -	4
Imbecile	-	4	- - -	- - -	- - -	-	- - -	4
Fatuous	-	7	- - -	- - -	- - -	1	- - -	6
		1	As criminal lunatic for formeract of insanity, not now insane.						1
Total males	-	58	9	1	-	6	1	41
F E M A L E S.
Maniacal	-	32	10	- - -	- - -	1	- - -	21
Melancholic	-	10	2	- - -	1	1	- - -	6
Imbecile	-	10	- - -	- - -	- - -	-	- - -	10
Fatuous	-	2	- - -	- - -	- - -	-	- - -	2
Total females		54	12	- - -	1	2	- - -	39
Total males and females.	}	112	21	1	1	8	1	80

LUNATIC
ASYLUMS.Leinster.
Queen's County.Examinations taken by
Sir D. Barry, M. D.
J. R. Corrie, esq., M. D.District Lunatic
Asylum at Maryborough.

Intern Patients.

Diet.

General Management.Managing Committee.Officers not
medical.

The lunatic paupers of the four counties for which the asylum was erected are alone entitled to participate in its benefits. All applicants must be provided with certain certificates and affidavits, which are submitted to the board of governors, and, on being approved of by them, admission is granted. The patient must be provided with a good strong suit of clothes, change of linen, &c., and be accompanied by an intelligent relative who can afford the best information on all subjects connected with his case. In cases, however, of emergency the manager and surgeon are authorized to receive the patient at once, and the necessary documents are afterwards laid before the board, in order that the admission may be confirmed.

The patients on their reception are washed in a tepid or cold bath, according to the circumstances of the case, their hair is cut, and they are clothed in the dress of the institution, their own clothes being carefully preserved for them till their discharge, except in particular cases, at the discretion of the manager or surgeon.

The relatives of patients are allowed to visit them on Mondays, between the hours of ten and half-past one o'clock, unless the manager finds it inexpedient to admit them.

Clergymen of all persuasions are allowed to visit, professionally, any patient, unless directions to the contrary are given by the surgeon or manager.

The male patients, when practicable, are employed in digging, weeding, making mats, &c.; the female patients are engaged in all kinds of household work, viz., needle-work, washing, spinning, knitting, cleaning the house, &c.

The following is the dietary:—

Breakfast for every Day.—One quart of stirabout, made of eight ounces of oatmeal.

Dinner for Mondays, Wednesdays, Fridays and Saturdays.—Three and a half pounds of potatoes, one pint of new milk or buttermilk.

Dinner for Tuesdays and Thursdays.—One quart of soup, three pounds of potatoes, or half a pound of bread.

Dinner for Sundays.—Twelve ounces of beef with cabbage, two and a half pounds of potatoes.

Supper for every Day.—Eight ounces of bread, one pint of new milk.

FULL DIET.

Breakfast and Supper.—Same as ordinary diet.

Dinner.—One pound of meat, two and a half pounds of potatoes, and one pint of beer.

LOW DIET.

To be regulated by the surgeon.

The surgeon is authorized to order such diet for any patient as he may consider necessary, including wine, spirits, tea, &c.; such order for extra or change of diets shall be renewed at least once a week; otherwise the patient shall be placed on the ordinary diet.

The manager is also authorized to give twelve ounces of beef on Thursdays, as a premium to the working patients.

The Assistant Commissioners remark, that this dietary is by no means explicit, inasmuch as, 1st. Two measures or quantities of food are set down for breakfast for every day, viz., "one quart of stirabout made of eight ounces of oatmeal." In this rule the weight of the oatmeal is the important object to the patient, and not the measure of the water.

2d. "Full Diet.—Dinner, one pound of meat;" but there is no previous mention made of ordinary diet, although that class is referred; nor is it stated whether the pound of meat is to be given every day, nor whether it is meant to be a pound of raw meat, or to weigh a pound when cooked, nor whether bone is or is not to be included in the pound before or after cooking.

Two general meetings of the governors, five to constitute a quorum, are held at the asylum in each year, in February and July. Before these meetings is submitted a general statement of the affairs of the establishment, its expenditure, &c. All medical statements relative to the patients, under the authority of the surgeon, are also submitted for approval.

Copies of these statements and accounts are printed for general circulation, and 24 copies are forwarded to the secretary of the grand jury for each county within the district.

There is also a meeting of the governors held at the asylum once a month, to regulate the admission and discharge of patients, examine and warrant accounts, inspect and control the establishment, &c.

The proceedings of both these meetings are recorded in a book kept for that purpose.

Excepting the manager and registrar, there are no non-medical officers; the Governor and Company of the Bank of Ireland acting as the treasurers of the asylum.

The following is an abstract of the account of the establishment from the 31st October 1832 to the 31st March 1835:—

RECEIPTS:			EXPENDITURE:
	£.	s. d.		£.	s. d.
From the Lords Commissioners of His Majesty's Treasury	- 3,000	- -	Furniture and other requisites for an outfit	- 719	8 3
On account of expenses for two patients	- 12	9 9	Building turf-houses and other out-offices	- 319	5 2
For articles sold	- -	9 6	Clothing for patients	- 197	12 1
Fines levied on servants	- -	16 -	Coal and turf	- 143	9 1
			Medicines	- 59	14 11
			Provisions	- 450	17 7
			Soap and candles	- 37	1 4
			Straw	- 13	1 6
			Stable expenses	- 8	12 8
			Tobacco and snuff	- 12	2 -
			Taxes	- 7	5 1
			Salaries	- 546	18 9
			Wages	- 158	5 10
			Stamp-duty and postage	- -	11 -
				£. 2,674	5 3
			Balance in favour of the public	- 339	10 -
				£. 3,013	15 3

LUNATIC ASYLUMS.

Leinster.

Queen's County.

Examinations taken by Sir D. Barry, M. D. J. R. Corrie, esq., M. D.

District Lunatic Asylum at Maryborough.

Funds and Accounts. Receipts.

The current expenses of the month of March 1834, remaining unpaid, amounted to 101*l.* 16*s.* 10*d.*

The economical department of this institution seemed to be well managed. No potatoes are charged to the public whilst those produced by the farm hold out, and this year they are expected to yield a sufficient supply for at least six months. There will be no charge whatever for vegetables. On a reference to the account, in detail, of the governor and directors of this asylum, from 31 October 1832 to 31 March 1834, it appeared that, although there is no separate charge for farm and garden expenses, yet the cultivation of potatoes and vegetables, seed potatoes and garden seeds, manure, &c., cost a considerable portion of 719*l.* 8*s.* 3*d.* charged under the head of "Furniture, &c." As the amount stands at present, it is impossible to ascertain what amount of outlay is to be set down to the production of potatoes and other vegetables.

As usual, in most of the lunatic asylums visited by the Assistant Commissioners, the manager feeds pigs for his own private emolument. He stated, however, that he made a proposition to feed pigs for the benefit of the institution, which the governors declined.

Persons who attended the Examination.

ROGER ADAMS, esq.—Rev. Mr. ARMSTRONG.—M. J. BARRY, esq.—R. DELACOUR BEAMISH, esq.—BEAMISH, esq.—Alderman BESNARD.—Dr. CÉSAR.—WILLIAM CRAWFORD, esq.—JOHN D. CROKER, esq.—Sir THOMAS DEANE.—P. J. O'BRIEN, esq.—Rev Mr. O'CONNOR, roman catholic clergyman.—Rev. Archdeacon ST. LAWRENCE.—JOHN SWETE, esq.—Dr. TOWNSHEND.—Dr. WOODROFFE.—The Medical Attendant.—The Moral Governor.—The Apothecary.—The Steward.—The Accountant.

Munster. County Cork.

Examinations taken by Cusack Roney, esq. W.P. Borrett, esq., M.D.

Cork County and City Lunatic Asylum.

Population and Extent of Country.

THE Lunatic Asylum is intended for the City and County of Cork, the population of which is about one million. The most distant point of the district is about 70 miles off. The similar medical institutions within 50 miles are, one attached to the Clonmel House of Industry, distant 42 Irish miles, and two private ones, in neither of which paupers are admitted. The district is considered too large and the institutions too few. The number of persons refused medical relief from the want of means of accommodation, on an average of three years, is about seven each year. Many are obliged to be refused for a short time, who are afterwards admitted. It appears, however, that persons who pay fair sums for their support, as well as epileptic cases, (not suited for a lunatic asylum), and even cases of delirium tremens are admitted. The extent of assistance is considered not equal to the wants of the sick poor of the district. The Act of Parliament under which the asylum is said to be regulated is 27th Geo. 3d, c. 39; it regulates public gaols and prisons, and directs that they shall be accounted for by "surgeon of said County Infirmary."

There is no intern hospital set apart for the sick or for surgical cases. The sick always remain with the others. During the prevalence of cholera a ward was got up, and when the disease increased a neighbouring house was taken, but in all other cases the sick are in the same wards or corridors with the others, let the complaint be what it may. On the first visit of the Commissioners they found the body of a person, who had died on the previous day, shut up in the cell with the other patients. There is a plentiful supply of water, but it is hard. The sewers are good, but require some alteration. The institution has a slipper-bath and shower-baths. There is a garden, and the grounds contain 4½ acres.

LUNATIC
ASYLUMS.

County Cork.

Examinations taken by
Cusack Roney, esq.
W.P. Borrett, esq., M.D.Cork County and
City Lunatic
Asylum.Building and Furniture.

The buildings and grounds are occupied by the governor, officers, secretary, and patients. The building and grounds are rented by the institution, on a lease of lives renewable for ever. The terms are 152*l.* per annum.

The following is a statement of the wards, distribution of the beds, patients, &c.

	Cells.	Rooms containing.	Cribs containing.	Rooms in which are accommodated.	Total.
Male division, 1.	22	Two containing 30 beds	-	-	52
Ditto 2.	35	One containing 6 do.	-	-	41
Ditto 3.	{ 22 12 }	One containing 14 do.	One conts 8 beds	29 in one room	56
Female division, 1.	22	Five containing 29 do.	-	-	51
Ditto 2.	{ 33 17 }	One containing 6 do.	-	-	56
Ditto 3.	26	One containing 14 do.	-	27 patients	40
	189	99	8	56	296

Cells - - - - - 189

Crib beds - - - - - 8

Eleven rooms, containing beds - - - 99

Sleeping in two rooms - - - 56

296 beds.

532 inmates.

PLAN of the WARDS.

No. 1. Male, day-room, 30 by 16, one sleeping, 50 by 20, accommodates 19.	one ditto 32, " 20, ditto 11.	20 ditto 10, " 6, ditto 20 total 50 full.
No. 2. Ditto, ditto 30 by 16, 1 ditto 12, " 12, ditto 16.	35 ditto 10, " 6, ditto 35.	1 ditto 14, " 14, ditto 14.
No. 3. Ditto, ditto 30 by 16, 1 ditto 51, " 22, ditto 14.	1 ditto 14, " 14, ditto 14.	42 ditto 10, " 6, ditto 42.
No. 1. Female, ditto 30 by 16, 6 ditto 14, " 12, ditto 34.	20 ditto 10, " 6, ditto 20.	50 ditto 10, " 6, ditto 50.
No. 2. Ditto, ditto 30 by 16, 1 ditto 14, " 14, ditto 10.	50 ditto 10, " 6, ditto 50.	41 ditto 17, " 3, ditto 25.
No. 3. Ditto, ditto 30 by 16, 1 ditto 41, " 18, ditto 14.	1 ditto 17, " 3, ditto 25.	26 ditto 10, " 6, ditto 26.

	Keepers' Day-Rooms.	Keepers' Bed-Rooms.	Small Bed-Rooms.
Male Division, No. 1.	1	1	1
Ditto 2.	1	1	1
Ditto 3.	1	1	1
Female Division, 1.	1	1	1
Ditto 2.	1	1	1
Ditto 3.	1	1	1
Men servants.	1	1	1
Women ditto.	1	1	1
Total	6	10	2

6 Keepers' day-rooms. 10 Keepers' bed-rooms. 2 Rooms for servants. The moral governor has three apartments. The matron has a small house, containing four apartments. The principal medical officer is a graduate of Edinburgh, aged 46, who resides at a distance of less than a mile from the institution. He was appointed, by election of the governors at large, in February 1826. He was a practising physician in Cork. He attends no similar public institution, but has a private lunatic asylum. He was appointed as physician. Should it be requisite for him to be absent, leave would be asked of the committee. He is allowed

LUNATIC
ASYLUMS.

Munster.
County Cork.

Examinations taken by
Cusack Roney, esq.
W.P. Borrett, esq., M.D.

Cork County and City Lunatic
Asylum.

Payment.

Election.

Pharmacy.

Patients' Registration.

Who entitled to
Relief.

Nourishment.

allowed private practice, and has, as mentioned above, a similar private establishment. He attends daily before one o'clock. The duty is never done by proxy, except in cases of dangerous illness.

There is also a surgeon apothecary attached to the asylum; he is a member of the London College of Surgeons, and attends when sent for by the moral governor or physician. There are no fixed hours of attendance, he being only "permitted" to attend when an accident occurs, or when the physician "thinks proper" to send for him. If the medical officers are irregular in attendance, the controlling power is said to be with the committee. There is a book in which it is ordered that the attendance of each medical officer should be marked, but the regulation has not been complied with, having been neglected by the physician without any authority for so doing. The surgeon and physician live close to the institution, so that immediate relief would be afforded in cases of sudden accident or illness. Medicines are dispensed by the apothecary or his apprentices, and administered to the patients by the nurse tenders of the establishment.

The physician and apothecary are paid, the former 175*l.* per annum, the latter 30 guineas for acting both as surgeon and apothecary. Neither are provided from the funds with board or lodging. If the committee authorize too high salaries the grand jury can withhold the presentment. With them, indeed, appears to lie the whole power; the committee cannot either increase or diminish the salary of an officer according to his merits. Thus the physician has obtained, without any order or resolution of the board, an increase of 75*l.*, (making a total of 175*l.* annually), while the surgeon and apothecary gets for both duties but 30 guineas. The Commissioners were informed by a wealthy and influential member of the grand jury that the increase above mentioned was obtained at length by the doctor by "constant and incessant canvassing" after having been refused three or four times by different juries.

The medical officers are always elected by the governors at large. Advertisements are published to create the largest possible competition for the employment. It would certainly be desirable that there should be a controlling power over the elections. Candidates for the office of physician and surgeon are obliged to produce a degree from some university. The governor ought by rule to be a married man, and forty years of age, but the regulation is not attended to. The number of candidates at the last vacancy for the office of physician was four. There was no contest for the situation of surgeon or apothecary. Governors alone vote at the election of medical officers. All the physicians of Cork are qualified to be elected to the institution: none would be willing to serve gratuitously. There are no retiring allowances.

The medicine is sent from the House of Industry, where it is made up. It appears of good quality, and sufficient in quantity. A very young man, and sometimes the manager, orders the medicine, under the direction, it is said, of the medical attendant. This young man, as a medical pupil, has access at all times to every ward or cell in the asylum. There is a good supply of every medicine considered necessary. The medicines are supplied by Messrs. Harrington, druggists, in Cork. They are paid for by the board, and have cost for the last three years about 10*l.* annually, and are placed under the care of the apothecary and his assistants when the medical attendant is absent.

A register is kept, which particularizes the disease of each patient, and its termination. Whenever there is a vacancy any person sent in by two magistrates is admitted, and if not considered insane by the medical attendant, is discharged. On examining a great number of the admission papers, not many appear to have been signed by the medical attendants of the establishment. Many cases of sudden death appear in the register of the last three years; some of dysentery, and some of cholera.

All destitute paupers of the city and county of Cork are entitled to relief. The signature of two magistrates is all that is required. Many are admitted who pay a small sum for their support; but a few years since there were persons who had paid for their support to some of the officers. The highest sum paid was about 55*l.* per annum. Others, as appeared by the book, were admitted, and thence transferred to the private lunatic asylum of the physician; these could not, of course, have been paupers. The manager was paid for the support of five persons; the highest sum paid was 20*l.* This ceased in May 1832, with respect to those persons, but there are some in the establishment at present, four persons paying, one 20*l.*, the second 15*l.*, the third 12*l.*, and the fourth 7*l.* per annum, evidently taking up the place of the paupers, for whom solely the institution was intended. A poor person could not be excluded because unknown to or disliked by the subscribers. Two or three visits in the day would be paid, and attendance in the night given, if required. No surgical instruments belong to the institution. The surgeon does not attend daily, but only when ordered by the physician or manager; he did not think he would be prevented from visiting each cell; he does not think he has a right to do so, and therefore does not. Inquests are held only in cases of suicides, and where the physician thinks it necessary or proper. There have been 204 deaths in the last eight years (28 being cases of cholera), and no inquest has been held during that time.

Wine and other extras are furnished to the sick by the matron, by order of the physician or surgeon.

The friends of the patients are allowed to visit them under the sanction of the physician. Patients are never, under any circumstances, permitted to go beyond the walls of the institution. The females do the needle-work of the establishment, clean the house, &c.; the males work in the garden, in painting, cleaning, &c., make beds, strait waistcoats, &c.

LUNATIC
ASYLUMS.Munster.
County Cork.Examinations taken by
Cusack Roney, esq.
W.P. Borrett, esq., M.D.Cork County and City Lunatic
Asylum.

Intern Patients.

Diet.

Clothing.

General
Management.Managing
Committee.

Attendants.

Expenditure.

The money thus made is placed at the disposal of the medical attendant for the benefit of the patients. There is a ward for each sex of violent lunatics. A book is kept where the name of every person under restraint, the nature of the restraint to be used, and the regulation for it are entered. The restraints are of four kinds; 1st, confinement to the room; 2d, strait waistcoat; 3d, handcuffs; 4th, fastening to the bed with iron chain. The handcuffs and chain, when produced, appeared old and not sufficiently in order. The clergy of every persuasion have a right, at all times, to visit at the institution persons of their own persuasion, and administer their respective rites. A patient can see his own clergyman whenever he requires. Neither clergy nor laity of a different persuasion have interfered with any of the patients during their illness, nor have any tracts been circulated among the patients. No chaplains are attached to the institution.

On the first visit of the Assistant Commissioners they saw a man under restraint, No. 3, with one arm bent, the handcuff having slipped out of its proper place: he was hitting his arm against the wall. Two keepers having been called, and having in vain endeavoured to set the matter right, they were obliged to send for a smith to cut the handcuff. This occurred on the 1st of July. On the 5th of September, the Assistant Commissioners having asked about the man, were informed by one keeper that he was discharged well, by another that he was removed up stairs; and on examining the books, it was found that he had died of dysentery on the 11th of August, having not had the handcuff on again after the 31st of July. No inquest was held in this case. Medicines had been ordered for him from the apothecary.

There is a regular diet for the institution: it varies in particular cases. Extra comforts are allowed when necessary.

All clothing is found for the patients; some is given by friends for individuals.

The principal direction is vested in a body of 200. Medical or salaried officers are not governors of the institution. The physician, however, always attends the meetings of the governors. The institution is essentially under the management of the physician, who seems to be absolute, and to unite in himself the offices of governor, committee, and physician. This appears a decidedly injurious practice. Regular meetings of the direction are held every Tuesday; five constitute a quorum. The meetings are regularly attended by from 12 to 30 persons. All governors are equally entitled to attend and vote; proxies are not allowed; and minutes are kept of their proceedings.

There is a managing committee, which meets every fortnight, and once annually. Those who are nominated on it appear to be the friends and supporters of the physician. Minutes are kept of their proceedings. There is a board of superintendence, but no visiting governor, acting during the intervals of meetings of governors or committee.

All officers are appointed by the subscribers at large. The voting is open. It is said that no particular religious belief excludes a person from becoming an officer, but there is no Roman catholic officer. The meeting of governors previous to the election of any officer is much larger than usual.

The following is a list of the attendants:—One matron, seven male keepers, one assistant male keeper, six female keepers, two female assistant keepers, six nurses, four porters, four kitchen servants, one matron's servant, four laundry women, two barbers, two men scavengers and two messengers.

The following estimate of expense for food and clothing for the patients and attendants was handed to the Assistant Commissioners by the manager:—

	£.	s.	d.
Cost of food for patients per day per head	-	-	2 3
Ditto of extra nourishment per day per head	-	-	5 6
Cost per year for clothing each patient	-	1 11	1
Annual amount of clothing for patients	-	543 7	11
Cost of food for keepers per day per head	-	-	2 3
Ditto of extra nourishment per day per head	-	-	5 6
Cost per year for clothes for each keeper	-	4 18	7
Annual amount of clothing for keepers	-	73 19	9

Munster.
County Kerry.
Lunatic Asylum at Tralee.

*A SMALL house at a little distance from the town constitutes this establishment. It contains two persons, both appearing to be idiots. It was reported to the Assistant Commissioners as merely a depôt for lunatics until sent to the District Lunatic Asylum. It appeared to be quite an unnecessary expense to the county, if not an unmeaning one. The house is a substantial building, and appears used only by the persons who are supposed to take charge of the lunatics in transitu, and the two that are in it might as well be at once sent to Limerick without the expense to the county of keeping this establishment, which the Assistant Commissioners consider as totally unnecessary for either the comforts or accommodation of the very occasional case that occurs, and which case might as well be sent at once

* Names of the persons who attended the Examination not stated.

once to Limerick, or for a few days, if absolutely necessary, put into the County Infirmary, which is in the town. The establishment costs, on an average, near 100*l.* per annum; viz.

Servant and attendant	-	-	-	-	-	£. 20
Rent	-	-	-	-	-	16
Fuel	-	-	-	-	-	7
Apothecary, surgeon and diet, about	-	-	-	-	-	50
						£. 93

LUNATIC
ASYLUMS.

Munster.
County Kerry.

Examinations taken by
Cusack Roney, esq.
W.P. Borrett, esq., M.D.

County Limerick.

Examinations taken by
Sir D. Barry, M. D.
J. R. Corrie, esq., M.D.

District Lunatic
Asylum at Limerick.

Population and
Extent of Country.
Building, Furniture
and Grounds.
Intern Patients.

Person who attended the Examination.

The Manager.

THIS asylum for pauper lunatics, opened in the year 1827 in the city of Limerick, is intended for the reception of patients from the counties of Clare, Kerry, Limerick, and city of Limerick, the population of the district amounting to 836,803.

There are nearly 12 acres attached to the asylum, on a portion of which are grown potatoes and some cabbages.

At the period of the visit of the Assistant Commissioners there were 99 male and 102 female patients in the asylum, of whom only one male and two females were under coercion.

The following RETURN shows the State of the Asylum on the 4th day of November 1834.

	Servants.	PATIENTS.		Total.	Distribution by Counties.	Male.	Female.	Total.
		Male.	Female.
In the asylum -	36	99	102	237	City Limerick -	17	17	34
Admitted this day -					County Limerick -	25	32	57
					County Clare -	34	27	61
Total -		201			County Kerry -	23	26	49
Convalescent -		6	6	12		99	102	201
Under medical treat- ment -		1	3	4
Under restraint -		1	2	3
Patients employed -		30	80	110

There appeared to be a great want of in-door employment for the men; they were wandering about in their day rooms and yards perfectly unoccupied; their chief occupation consisted in planting potatoes and cultivating cabbages in the ground attached to the asylum, assisting in the kitchen, laundry and farm yard, and tending 12 full grown pigs, the private property of the manager. The only employment for males which seems ever to be thought of in any of the asylums visited by the Assistant Commissioners, is agriculture, and that applied chiefly, if not exclusively, to potatoes, a plant which when committed to the earth, requires no further tending, and which, of all other plants, seems to offer the least varied, and the shortest occupation to the lunatic. The female patients, 102, were satisfactorily arranged under the admirable superintendence of the matron. They were judiciously classed, clean, comfortable in their appearance, and all usefully and happily occupied spinning, knitting, sewing, carding, &c. All the bed linen, personal linen, coverlids, bedticks, flannel petticoats, waistcoating, had been spun from the raw material by the female patients for both males and females; all the clothes washed, mended, and stockings made in the house. Such is the contrast between the condition and usefulness of the male and female lunatic under the present system. It is a matter of considerable doubt whether any productive agriculture ought to be permitted, and whether nursery, ornamental and experimental culture ought not to be exclusively substituted for the present brief, coarse, potato-farming, pig-feeding system.

Another lunatic asylum is being erected, contiguous to the existing one, for the accommodation of 140 incurable lunatics, although ordered for only 100. It is to cost by contract 4,900*l.* and 11 additional acres of land are to be purchased, which will cost about 500*l.* more.

This, in addition to what has been very recently expended upon a few of the most helpless, and certainly the least valuable of the producing classes, those who have contributed the smallest fraction to the public stock from which they are themselves now lodged and fed in palaces, is too remarkable to be passed unnoticed by the Assistant Commissioners when thousands of the really useful and productive poor of the country are at this moment perishing from disease added to or brought on by unnatural food, want of a dry spot to lie on, or clothing to protect them against the cold and wet of the climate.

There was not time sufficient during the visit of the Assistant Commissioners to have a copy of the accounts made out in the usual manner; but the following returns of the saving made to the funds of the institution by the manufactures carried on in the establishment, and the crops raised on the land, are worthy of notice.

LUNATIC
ASYLUMS.Munster.
County Limerick.Examinations taken by
Sir D. Barry, M. D.
J. R. Corrie, esq., M. D.District Lunatic
Asylum at Limerick.

The produce of the farm is not made an item in the yearly accounts, although the expense of cultivation is; it goes, however, to diminish the expenses of the institution by the excess of the value of that portion of it which is consumed by the patients or servants over the charge made.

Present cost of shoes for patients, the leather being bought and worked in the house:

1834.	£.	s.	d.
Paid for leather this year	-	-	55 7 2
Paid a shoemaker for one year	-	-	14 2 -
Total cost for the year	-	-	69 9 2

Which on an average of 200 patients makes the cost of each for the year amount to - - - - - 6 11

Note.—There are hemp, wax and other materials to be added to the above, but as they are more than paid for by the repairs only of list shoes and the small pieces on the strong shoes, not taken into account at the other side, they are not charged here, the amount being so small.

Cost of shoes if purchased by contract:

	£.	s.	d.
100 men at 1½ pairs each, equal to 150 pairs at 8s. per pair	-	-	60 - -
100 women at 1 pair each, equal to 100 pairs at 6s. 6d. per pair	-	-	32 10 -
250 (say) once soled and heeled, at 2s. 6d. per pair	-	-	31 5 -
100 pairs of list shoes soled in the year, at 1s. 6d. per pair	-	-	7 10 -
Total for the year	-	-	131 5 -

Which on an average of 200 patients will be for each - - - 13s. 1½d.

Note.—The above average, though double the present cost, is underrated, as there are several patients who wear from three to four pairs each in the year, and there is scarcely one who has not to get his shoes soled, &c., more than once (some three times), not to speak of minor repairs, which, were we dependent on outside work, would considerably raise the average cost, besides the inconvenience resulting from delays, &c.

MALE CLOTHING.

	s.	d.	£.	s.	d.
Jacket, 1½ yard frieze at 4s. 6d.	-	-	5	7½	-
Making and lining, &c.	-	-	3	-	-
Vest, ½ yard ditto	-	-	2	3	-
Making and lining	-	-	1	6	-
Trowsers, 2¼ yards duck	-	-	2	-	-
Making and lining	-	-	1	4	-
Total cost of jacket, vest and trowsers	-	-	15	8½	-

Shoes, allowing extra for the men	-	-	7	4	-
Cap	-	-	1	-	-
Shirts, 1½ each per year (home made) at 2s. each	-	-	3	-	-
Stockings, 2 pairs each per year (made here) say	-	-	1	-	-

Full clothing for one year - - - £. 1 8 -½

Note.—Our first jackets, vests and trowsers were bought by contract at 15s. per suit, but were made of such flimsy materials as not to have lasted more than half a year, and even that by mending, but our present being made of good strong frieze and of duck, manufactured in the house in all cases, last a full year, and in several instances considerably longer.

FEMALE CLOTHING.

	£.	s.	d.
Gowns (strong blue cotton)	-	-	3 2
Day-caps, 2 each year, at 2½d. each	-	-	4
Stockings, 1 pair each	-	-	8
Shifts, 1 each	-	-	2
Night-caps, 2 each at 1½ each	-	-	2½
Flannel petticoat	-	-	4 9
Shoes	-	-	6 6

Full clothing for one year - - - £. - 17 8½

Note.

Note.—The materials for petticoats, stockings and shifts are purchased in the raw state, and carded, hackled, spun and manufactured in the house, which, independent of a great saving in price, affords us better articles than we could purchase elsewhere, while (a greater advantage still) the patients have constant employment; the gowns, caps, &c., are also made by them.

DIETARY for One Week including Meat as allowed by the Board.

	£.	s.	d.
Meat, 349 lbs. beef at 3 d. per lb. and 75 lbs. mutton at 4 d. per lb.	5	12	3
Bread, say 100 loaves per day	6	15	—
Milk, 1,540 quarts (new), at 1½ d. per quart	11	4	—
Cutlins, 560 lbs. at 13 s. per cwt.	3	5	—
Potatoes, 420 stones at 2½ d. per stone	4	16	3
Total for one week	£. 31	12	6

Which, for 37 servants and 205 patients, averages for each weekly (less by a fraction)

Or per day	2	7½	4½
------------	---	----	----

DIETARY for One Week without Meat as originally settled.

SERVANTS.	£.	s.	d.
1 loaf each day (7 weekly)	10	4	—
1 quarts of milk for four days, five quarts	8	—	—
¾ quart for three days, at 2½ per quart	4	—	—
½ stone of potatoes per day, at 1½ d. per week	5	—	—
Meat, 3 lbs. beef, at 3 d. per lb.	9	—	—
Weekly amount	£. —	3	6½

PATIENTS.	£.	s.	d.
Cutlins, 3½ lb.	4	—	—
Milk, 8½ quarts	1	3½	—
Potatoes, 1½ stone	5½	—	—
Bread, 2½ loaves	5½	—	—

Cost of patients per week £. — 2 6½

37 Servants, at 3 s. 6½ d. per week	6	10	—
205 Patients, at 2 s. 6½ d. ditto	26	5	4

Total cost of 242 persons £. 32 15 4

Weekly average 2*s.* 8½*d.*, being a weekly saving by a meat diet of 1*l.* 2*s.* 10*d.* or over one penny per head per week.

Garden produce for the last three years, viz., 1832, 1833 and 1834. £. s. d.

350 Barrels of potatoes, which may be estimated at 14*s.* per barrel — 245 — —

This may be considered as rather under the average price, as potatoes are always dearer when new than at any other season.

The produce in roots and vegetables being used for the establishment three times a week, may be fairly estimated at 6*s.* 8*d.* per week, which makes the entire produce equal to 300*l.* or about 100*l.* per annum.

(signed,) John Jackson, Manager.
P. M'Donnell, Secretary.

Nov. 11th, 1834.

Persons who attended this Examination.

The Bishop of Down.—Rev. THOMAS HINCKS.—JOHN M'CANCE, Esq.—Rev. ARTHUR M'CARTNEY.
—Hon. Colonel PACKENHAM.—The Physician.—The Manager.

THE Belfast Lunatic Asylum is intended for the reception of the pauper lunatics of a very considerable district, embracing the counties of Down, Antrim and the county of the town of Carrickfergus. Its accommodations have been found altogether inadequate to such an extent of country, and, after much deliberation, it has been resolved to enlarge the building according to an improved plan, so as to form arrangements for the admission of about 70 additional quiet incurable lunatics. No application for admission has ever been altogether

LUNATIC ASYLUMS.

Munster.
County Limerick.

Examinations taken by
Sir D. Barry, M. D.
J. R. Corrie, esq., M. D.

District Lunatic
Asylum at Limerick.

Diet.

Ulster.

County Antrim.

District Lunatic
Asylum at Belfast.

Population and
Extent of Country.

LUNATIC
ASYLUMS.

Ulster.

County Antrim.

Examinations taken by
Sir D. Barry, M. D.
J. R. Corrie, Esq., M.D.District Lunatic
Asylum at Belfast.

Medical Officers.

altogether refused, but great delays and inconvenience have been experienced, and at the present moment not less than nine patients are awaiting their turn to be taken in.

The grounds connected with the asylum contain 21 English acres. They are designed to afford to the patients that cheerful employment which has everywhere been found so indispensable in restoring the insane to health; but they have not been found sufficiently extensive for that object. The class of lunatics for whom it is in contemplation to open additional accommodation stand no less than others in need of out-door occupation, and accordingly the governors have turned their attention to the acquisition by purchase of eight or ten acres of adjoining land.

At the commencement of the institution the Government appointed as physician, a gentleman who still fills that situation, being at the same time engaged in private practice, and one of the consulting physicians and district attendants to the Belfast Fever Hospital and Dispensary; he resides in the town of Belfast at the distance of about one mile from the asylum; his age at present is 72 years; he is a doctor of medicine in the Edinburgh University; it is his duty to examine accurately, into the condition of each new patient on his arrival, but if insanity be the only form of disease under which he labours, the individual is not placed under his care, but handed over to the superintendence of the manager. The physician is not permitted to omit the regular performance of his duty, or to be absent from his post without having inserted a notice to that effect in the daily statement, and made provision accordingly; his duty is never performed by proxy, and the manager has directions to send immediately for the medical attendant whenever his assistance is required by sickness or accident.* At the date of this examination the number of patients under medical treatment did not exceed four or five. The office of manager is of more importance in the constitution of the charity than that of the medical attendants. Under ordinary circumstances the curative treatment of the lunatics devolves entirely on him; he and his wife (who discharges the duties of a matron), occupy furnished apartments in the house.

Payment.

They receive a joint salary of 250 l. per annum, paid quarterly, and they are provided with coals and candles. They are also entitled to receive so much of the produce of the lands attached to the asylum (of which produce no part is sold), as is sufficient for their private use and for the maintenance of a cow and a horse. The salary of the physician is 100 l. a-year, paid by the Government. The surgeon receives 5s. for every visit which he has occasion to pay to the inmates, and the apothecary is paid according to the medicines which he has furnished. The rate of remuneration of these several officers is completely withdrawn from the control and authority of the grand jury. It rests solely with the Government. The grand jury are merely empowered to send inspectors to the establishment whenever they think proper, and any observations which they may have to make can be embodied in a memorial.

Election.

It has been already mentioned that the Government exercise the right of selecting the physician. The privilege of choosing the apothecary and surgeon is possessed by the board, who are accustomed to invite competition by public advertisement whenever either of the situations becomes vacant. At the last election there were three or four candidates, and they were all required to produce proper qualifications. The appointments were made without any reference to the grand jury. It is understood that the officers do not become entitled to pensions or allowances on retirement, or on becoming superannuated.

Pharmacy.

It has been considered more judicious and less expensive to purchase medicine as it is prescribed by the physician, from a respectable apothecary in the town, than to form, unnecessarily, extensive arrangements for an apothecary's shop in the establishment: all medicines required are paid for by the board.

Patients' Registration.

A list of all applications for admission is kept by the manager, who is bound to register the most important circumstances connected with each applicant. The following table will give a clear idea of the extent to which the resources of the asylum have been made available, and of the manner in which the registration is conducted.

General Return of Patients treated at the Belfast District Lunatic Asylum, for the following Periods:

Admitted from 2 June 1829, to close of 1830.	Discharged.	Died.	Remaining at close of 1830.	Admitted during 1831.	Total treated during 1831.	Discharged.	Died.	Remaining at close of 1831.	Admitted during 1832.	Total treated during 1832.	Discharged.	Died.	Remaining at close of 1832.	Admitted during 1833.	Total treated during 1833.	Discharged.	Died.	Remaining at close of 1833.
174	52	9	113	100	213	56	15	142	73	215	67	23	125	76	201	50	11	140

* In addition to the physician appointed by the Government, the board have deemed it expedient to appoint a surgeon and apothecary to the establishment.

LUNATIC
ASYLUMS.

Ulster.

County Antrim.

Examinations taken by
Sir D. Barry, M. D.
J. R. Corrie, Esq., M. D.

District Lunatic
Asylum at Belfast.

Medical Officers

Number admitted from 2d June 1829 to close of 1833	-	-	-	385
„ Re-admitted in above period	-	-	-	38
				423
Discharged in - ditto viz.:-
Recovered	-	-	-	179
Relieved and on trial	-	-	-	26
Taken out by their friends	-	-	-	17
Transferred to Derry Asylum	-	-	-	1
Transferred to St. Patrick's Hospital, Dublin	-	-	-	1
Transferred to Cholera Hospital, Belfast	-	-	-	1
Died	-	-	-	58
Of cholera	-	-	-	12
Other diseases	-	-	-	46
				283
Remaining in asylum at close of 1833	-	-	-	140

In the year 1830 the rate of mortality was	-	-	-	as 1 to 19 ³ / ₁₃
„ 1831	-	-	-	1 to 14 ³ / ₁₃
„ 1832	-	-	-	1 to 19 ⁶ / ₁₁
„ 1833	-	-	-	1 to 18 ³ / ₁₁

At the date of the Assistant Commissioners' visit to the asylum it contained 156 patients, of whom 72 were males and 84 females; of the entire number not one was placed under personal restraint.

The description of patients admissible into the asylum, is confined to those cases which come strictly under the denomination of lunatics. The class of idiots so born, and persons subject to epilepsy, are by the printed code of rules expressly excluded from admission, and no patient is on any account received except from one of the counties, which have been already enumerated as constituting the Belfast district, namely, Down, Antrim and the county of the town of Carrickfergus. It is also necessary that certain forms be complied with, namely, three certificates, one from a magistrate, one from a medical man, and a joint one from a magistrate and from the minister and churchwarden of the parish in which the lunatic had resided. After admission the patient is not permitted to go beyond the bounds of the institution until his final discharge. Employment to a very great extent is provided for both males and females either in agricultural and domestic labour, or in the trades to which they had been brought up, and the product of their labour is for the most part applied to the use of the establishment. During the last three years the average number of persons employed has varied between 109 and 118, and there has generally been a slight excess of females employed over males in the proportion of 11 to 10.

The following articles were manufactured by the patients during the year ending January 5th 1834:—

1,376	hanks of linen yarn have been spun.
162	„ thread have been made.
46	pieces of linen wove, 1,242 yards.
4	„ twill calico, 429 „
3	„ plain „ 475 „
2	„ camlet, 123 „
1	„ cord, 67 „
248	pairs of stockings knit.
81	„ leather shoes made.
24	„ list shoes soled.
43	„ sheets made; linen manufactured by the patients.
42	quilts „ calico „ - „
117	shirts „ linen „ - „
103	shifts „ „ - „
20	aprons „ „ - „
22	„ „ chequer „ - „
26	petticoats „ camlet „ - „
22	„ „ - „
72	wrappers „ - „
104	caps „ - „
8	gowns „ - „
32	bed-ticks „ - „
7	pairs of trowsers „ - „
31	waistcoats „ - „

In the year 1832 the institution suffered under an attack of the epidemic cholera, and the following extract from a minute of the board, bearing date September 3d of the same year, contains some interesting particulars connected with the progress of the disorder, “Dr. M'Donnell (the medical attendant of the asylum) read a very interesting and satisfactory medical report of the whole proceedings since cholera manifested itself in the asylum, continued to the present time, from which it appears that there have been 36 cases, viz., 24 lunatics, and 12 nurses, attendants and keepers. There have been 11 deaths out of 147 lunatics confined in the asylum, and no death among the keepers, nurses and attendants, amounting to 32, although a far greater number in proportion have been attacked.

LUNATIC
ASYLUMS.

Ulster.
County Antrim.

Examinations taken by
Sir D. Barry, M. D.
J. R. Corrie, Esq., M. D.

District Lunatic
Asylum at Belfast.

Diet.

attacked. The clergy of all religious denominations are freely admitted to visit the inmates of the establishment, under the restriction of certain necessary regulations. No chaplains are attached, but there have been some attempts on the part of laymen to interfere with the opinions of the patients. Controversial tracts have, however, been always excluded from circulation in the wards.

It has been deemed expedient to make a difference in the usual diet of the male and female patients, and, under ordinary circumstances, no class of lunatics is entitled to meat.

Breakfast.—Males: one quart of stirabout and one third ditto of new milk. Females: one and a half pint of stirabout and one half ditto of new milk.

Dinner.—(Sunday, Tuesday and Thursday.) Males: three pounds of potatoes and one quart of soup. Females: three pounds of potatoes and one and a half pints of soup. (Monday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday.) Males: three and a half pounds of potatoes and one pint of buttermilk or soup. Females: three pounds of potatoes and one pint of buttermilk or soup.

Supper.—(Sunday, Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.) Males: one quart of flummery and one third ditto of new milk. Females: one pint of flummery and one half ditto of new milk. (Monday, Wednesday and Friday.) Males: one-half pound of bread and one-third quart of new milk. Females: one-half pound of bread and one-half pint of new milk.

P.S. Those of the convalescent patients who are actively employed get four ounces of meat, in addition to the soup, three days in the week. When the state of the patient's health requires it, the physician may alter the diet to any other that may be necessary, such as tea, wine, mutton broth, &c.

Clothing.

All the patients are provided with clothing during their detention, and a very large portion of the articles used are manufactured and made up by themselves.

General Manage-
ment.

The general management of the establishment is vested in the hands of 20 governors, of whom meetings are appointed to be held on the first Monday in every month. Not more than three are, however, accustomed to attend, but voting by proxy is not permitted. Three members belong to the board of governors in virtue of their office, namely, the sovereign of Belfast, the Bishop of Dromore, and the Bishop of Down and Connor. Whenever any subject requires special attention or investigation a sub-committee is appointed, with directions to report to the board. None of the members have been selected to act officially as visitors, but two of the number are in the constant habit of visiting the several departments of the charity.

Attendants.

The attendants amount to 28, and their respective duties are accurately defined by a code of printed regulations. They are all amenable, in respect to their conduct, to the manager or the matron. The following list shows the annual cost of attendance:

LIST of ATTENDANTS, with their respective WAGES per Annum.

	£.	s.	d.
One gardener - - - - -	21	-	-
One keeper - - - - -	15	-	-
Four ditto - - - - -	12	12	-
One nurse - - - - -	8	8	-
Four ditto - - - - -	6	6	-
Nine assistant-nurses - - - - -	4	4	-
One cook - - - - -	8	8	-
One assistant - - - - -	4	4	-
One office and room servant - - - - -	4	4	-
One laundress - - - - -	6	6	-
Two assistant ditto - - - - -	4	4	-
One hall porter - - - - -	10	-	-
One gate keeper - - - - -	6	6	-

These servants have all board and lodging and one suit of clothes annually, and to those who have the immediate charge of the patients 1l. 1s. extra is presented, if they have conducted themselves properly.

The purchase of the various articles required for the consumption of the asylum is entrusted to the judgment of the manager.

A very full report is annually prepared by the manager, and submitted to the board of governors. It embraces a large number of topics, and is usually committed to the press but not published.

The charge for the year ending 5th January 1833, was as follows:

	£.	s.	d.	£.	s.	d.
Received from the Lords Commissioners of His Majesty's Treasury - - - - -	3,000	-	-
Deduct fees at Treasury - - - - -	18	6	-
Balance of last account in favour of the asylum - - - - -				2,999	1	6
Received for vegetables sold - - - - -				255	7	2
Ditto for sundry fines inflicted on servants for misconduct - - - - -	2	3	-
Total charge - - - - -				3,257	4	8

The amount of expenditure for the same year is taken from the printed report above referred to, and is given underneath.

	£.	s.	d.	£.	s.	d.
Provisions	1,007	4	-
Clothing	175	11	6
Bedding	86	4	1
Furniture	67	2	1
Stationery, advertising and printing	16	5	8
Coals, candles, soap, &c.	181	10	9
Medicines, wine and surgical attendance	68	15	2
Tobacco and snuff	25	1	6
Buildings and repairs	595	19	11
Garden expenses	58	19	-
Incidents	53	8	7
Insurance	16	16	8
Salaries and servants' wages	582	-	6
				2,935	-	2
Expenses incurred in consequence of cholera				116	19	7
Total discharge				£.	3,051	19 9
Balance in favour of the asylum, 5th January 1833					205	4 11
				£.	3,257	4 8

LUNATIC
ASYLUMS.
Ulster.
County Armagh.
Examinations taken by
Sir D. Barry, M.D.
J. R. Corrie, esq., M.D.
District Lunatic
Asylum at Belfast.
Expenditure.

Accounts
General Manager
Medical Instruction.

District Lunatic
Asylum at Armagh.
Population and
Extent of Country.

Building, &c.

Medical Officers.

Payment.

Pharmacy.

At the close of each month the accounts are made up and audited at the meeting of the board. A statement of the expenditure, certified by the board, is likewise transmitted every six months to the Council Office, Dublin Castle, and every year to the Audit Office in London.

Very little benefit as to medical instruction is derived from the advantages possessed by the asylum. It is stated that a person who is intended to undertake the control of the insane may, by application to the manager, obtain permission to observe the mode of treatment which is adopted in the establishment; but the matter does not come under the cognizance of the board. Post-mortem examinations are forbidden.

Persons who attended the Examination.

W. W. ALDJO, esq.—Dean JACKSON.—Rev. JAMES JONES.—A. J. KELLY, esq.—Rev. CORNELIUS LYNE.—Major THORNTON.—The Physician.—The Manager.

THE Armagh Lunatic Asylum is intended for the reception of lunatics from four counties in the province of Ulster, namely, Fermanagh with a population of 149,763.

Armagh	220,134
Monaghan	195,536
Cavan	227,933
Total population of the district	793,366

It is the oldest of the district lunatic asylums in Ireland.

There is much room for blame in many of the arrangements of this institution; and the original design seems to have been faulty in no small degree. The house contains no privies, and the privies which are placed in the yard are so miserably constructed that the water-courses, which have been led under the premises, are insufficient to remove the filth, which is allowed to accumulate to a most offensive degree. The distribution of the rooms intended for the different inmates of the hospital is also far from being well managed; for instance, four female nurses sleep in a small room, merely boarded off, and inside a ward in which eight convalescent male lunatics are lodged; the women having to pass through the men's room in going to or from their beds, and being separated by that room from where their assistance must be more particularly needed. Again, there is no apartment set apart for the purposes of an infirmary for those who are placed under medical treatment.

The physician to the asylum was appointed by the Government. He is at present in his 49th year, and served for some time as a surgeon in the Royal Navy. He is a doctor of medicine of the Edinburgh University, and a member of the Royal College of Surgeons in London. He is also possessed of a license to practice midwifery, and of a license from the Apothecaries' Hall. He is not provided with apartments in the institution, but resides in the town. He holds the appointment of local inspector of the gaol, for which he receives a salary of 80*l.* per annum. The chief care of the diseased inmates of the asylum is entrusted to the manager, who is the oldest officer of his class now in the superintendence of the similar establishments throughout Ireland.

The physician's salary is 100*l.* per annum. The manager is allowed for his own services and those of his wife (who acts as matron) an annual salary of 250*l.* He occupies a residence in the asylum.

In an institution of the present kind the pharmacy needs to be on but a very small scale. The entire cost of medicine is stated not to average more than 12*l.* a year, and the physician

LUNATIC
ASYLUMS.

Ulster.

County Armagh.

Examinations taken by
Sir D. Barry, M. D.
J. R. Corrie, Esq., M. D.District Lunatic
Asylum at Armagh.Patients' Registration.

is accustomed to send his prescriptions for the sick inmates to be made up at an apothecary's shop in Armagh.

The asylum was opened on the 14th of July 1825; and according to a return furnished to the Assistant Commissioners by the manager, the following is an account of the admissions, &c., since that period up to the 1st of January 1834.

Patients admitted from the 14th of July 1825, up to the 1st of January 1834:—

	Males.	Females.	Total.
Discharged recovered in the same period	153	118	271
Ditto relieved	57	43	100
Ditto unrelieved	40	18	58
Died	41	28	69
Transferred to Derry Asylum	11	5	16
Remaining in asylum on the 1st of January, 1834	60	58	118
Total as above	362	270	632

Distribution by Counties of the Patients remaining in Asylum on January 12, 1834:—

Armagh	18	31	49
Monaghan	23	17	40
Fermanagh	6	3	9
Cavan	13	7	20
Total	60	58	118

Average yearly expenditure during the before-mentioned period - £1,961 18s. 8d.

Number of patients on the 8th of September, 1834:—

	Males.	Females.	Total.
Belonging to Armagh County	16	34	50
Ditto Monaghan	23	17	40
Ditto Fermanagh	5	4	9
Ditto Cavan	16	5	21
Total	60	60	120

State of the above Cases.
Considered curable	7	10	17
Ditto incurable	53	50	103
Total	60	60	120

The hospital has accommodations for 120 patients, and each of the above counties is entitled to send according to its population, but is only chargeable with the number actually admitted.—The only recommendation necessary to those seeking to be taken in is a compliance with the form of admission, which embraces an affidavit of poverty, a medical certificate of insanity, and a certificate of the minister and churchwardens of the parish in which the applicant resided. The manager stated that the basis of his classification of the patients, in their different day-rooms, was their respective tranquillity of manner. The Assistant Commissioners, however, found the quiet, reserved, decently-mannered young female, in the same room and under the same superintendence with the turbulent, chaffering idiots, the grinning, restless maniacs bound in strait waistcoats, and the disgusting, helpless wretches who had survived the loss of almost every sense and every faculty. Two persons were observed in their beds, bound hand and foot and secured to the bedsteads, with the door locked. There was, however, a nurse in the corridor. These, and two females in strait waistcoats, in the female day-room, were the only persons whom the Assistant Commissioners had seen under similar restraint in the three asylums in the North of Ireland. They remarked a very striking want of employment, especially among the male patients. They sat or moped about in their day-rooms (in one of which there were 12, in another 17, and in another 15) in every stage of muttering, restless idiotcy, isolated melancholy, and raving, unquiet lunacy, without a single object being present to attract attention or bring into exercise any gleam of reason, which might be returning to the diseased mind of the individual. It is true that the state of the weather prevented these wretched persons from being employed on the farm. But surely in a disease in which occupation is found to be far above all other plans the most essential, such employment should be provided for lunatics, both without and within doors, as would engage their attention and assist them in combining their ideas. There are few, if any, lunatics not requiring personal restraint who are not capable of performing some work more or less profitable. It was stated that the only employments provided for males in the asylum were garden or field labour, weaving (for

LUNATIC
ASYLUMS.

Ulster.
County Armagh.

Examinations taken by
Sir D. Barry, M.D.
J. R. Corrie, esq., M. D.

District Lunatic
Asylum at Armagh.

six or eight) and stone-breaking; but no recent traces could be discovered of the latter kind of work. That these are the opinions of the resident manager is shown by the following observations, which occur in a paper written by him and given to the Assistant Commissioners. He states that "he is so fully convinced of the importance of employment or occupation of time (not only in a curative point of view, but as a means of alleviating and rendering confinement less irksome), that he considers no system of treatment is perfect where these are absent. There are 13 acres of ground attached to the asylum, which afford a tolerable scope in gardening and agriculture; and all the linen cloth for the use of the establishment and the clothing of the females is woven by the male patients. As a means of recreation, he (the manager) has recently established gymnastic exercises and a ball court."

Of the 120 lunatics which it has been seen that the institution contained at the date of this evidence, the manager considered only 17 to be curable cases. For the remainder little, if any, prospect of restoration to sanity existed. There were but two beds vacant; the late occupant of one had just died under an attack of the epidemic cholera, which prevailed to some extent in the town of Armagh. If this state of things be not remedied the asylum is likely to become, within a very short time, utterly useless, as far as regards the objects for which it was originally established, namely, the treatment and restoration to sanity of curable pauper lunatics. Either hospitals for incurable cases of lunacy must be established, or the present class of asylums will inevitably become devoted to that class alone, if the manager's statement (assented to by the governors who attended this examination) be correct, that the engagements entered into by the friends of the lunatic to take him away when required, are, in most cases, found to be of no avail.

The institution is under the direction and control of a board of governors appointed by the Act of Parliament, and who are accustomed to meet on the first Monday in every month. The Archbishop of Armagh for the time being is one of the number in virtue of his office.

General Management.

It has been already stated the principal non-medical officer is the manager under whose superintendence the patients are more immediately placed. The manager's wife fills the situation of matron.

Officers not medical.

The number of attendants in the pay of the establishment and their respective salaries are as follow:—

Attendants.

	£.	s.	d.
1 Gardener, whose wife acts as gate-keeper, at per annum	27	6	—
1 Store-keeper - - - - -	15	—	—
4 Keepers, each at 12 l. - - - - -	48	—	—
1 Master-weaver - - - - -	10	—	—
1 Cook - - - - -	10	—	—
5 Nurses at 6 l. 6 s. each - - - - -	30	10	—
8 Assistant nurses at 4 l. 4 s. each - - - - -	33	12	—
2 Laundry maids at 4 l. 4 s. each - - - - -	8	8	—
1 Housemaid - - - - -	4	4	—
1 Store and office maid - - - - -	4	4	—
26	£. 191	4	—

Contracts have been procured for the supply of the under-mentioned articles:—

Stores.

New milk, at 2½*d.* per quart, or 9*d.* per gallon.

Buttermilk, at 2½*d.* per gallon.

Beef, at 4*d.* per lb.

Heads of beef, at 10*d.* each.

Soap, at 35*s.* per cwt.

Dip candles, at 5*s.* 6*d.* per 12 lb.

Mould candles, at 7*s.* 6*d.* per 12 lb.

With respect to the other articles which enter into the consumption of the establishment, it was stated to the Assistant Commissioners by the manager, that a contract for coal never could be procured, and that contracts for potatoes have not taken place, owing to the circumstance of not a single person being found willing to undertake to furnish the whole quantity required. The manager further observed, "that in country places no competition existed, and that consequently there was sometimes a positive disadvantage to the charity in accepting a contract, and that as the governors had always ready money, they were sure to command the most favourable prices."

The duties of the several subordinate officers connected with the institution is regulated by a code of printed rules.

Rules.

The money necessary for the maintenance of the asylum is in the first instance derived from the Government, which advances the sums likely to be required for the annual expenditure. Repayment is afterwards obtained from the several counties for which the asylum was erected, in proportion to the number of patients from each county, who have been inmates during the period of outlay, a certified return of which, and of the total number of patients treated, is annually transmitted to the council office, Dublin Castle, previous to the recurrence of each assizes.

Funds and Accounts.
Receipts.

LUNATIC ASYLUMS.

Ulster.

County Armagh.

Examinations taken by
Sir D. Barry, M. D.
J. R. Corrie, esq., M.D.

District Lunatic
Asylum at Armagh.

Accounts.

Medical Instruction.

Co. Londonderry.

District
Lunatic Asylum
at Londonderry.

Population and
Extent of Country.

Building, &c.

Medical Officers.

The total expenditure for each of the three years preceding the present was as follows:—

	£.	s.	d.			£.	s.	d.
1831	-	1,964	18	7	-	Average cost of each patient	-	21 16 6
1832	-	2,093	13	1	-	"	-	20 18 8
1833	-	2,196	9	11	-	"	-	21 10 6

Average cost of each patient

The manner in which the expenses of this establishment and the specific application of its resources are accounted for cannot be considered as satisfactory. It is true that an account of the charge and discharge is rendered every year up to the 31st of March at the Public Account Office, Somerset House, but no credit is given for, nor is any account submitted to the board of directors, of the produce of the labour of the lunatics, unless some portion of that produce shall have been sold. The only account furnished on these matters is the charge for raw material, for garden and agricultural seeds and implements, &c. To the apparent public expense therefore, of feeding and clothing these persons must be added the amount which the articles manufactured by themselves, and the produce of the garden and farm, which they exclusively cultivate, would fetch, if sold in the market. The grounds belonging to the institution consist of three acres of grass lawn, two acres of walled garden, richly cropped with vegetables and fruit, eight acres of farm, producing potatoes, corn, &c., with an extensive yard and piggery, containing nine large pigs, a cow, horse, geese, turkeys, &c., the private property of the manager. The yard looks upon the centre back-front of the building, although the whole has very much the air of a farm cultivated at the public expense for the benefit of an individual, yet the Assistant Commissioners had reason to believe that the manager (who seemed to enjoy the full confidence of the governors), applied a fair proportion of the produce to the support of the lunatics; however, this should appear in his accounts with the board, and the fact that it does not was calculated to excite the more surprise, as he kept a book relating to the farm and garden, from which some of the items might have been collected. The manager keeps all the accounts of the asylum himself, and is the only clerk in the employment of the establishment; writing, alone, must therefore occupy much of his time.

It cannot be viewed but as a subject of regret that the assemblage of so many lunatics within the same walls is not made, in some degree, subservient to the education of those who are destined to take charge of persons labouring under a similar form of disease. It is not even customary to make examinations post mortem.

Persons who attended the Examination.

Rev. E. BROWNE.—Rev. FRANCIS BROWNLOW.—Sir ROBERT FERGUSON.—Rev. GEORGE HAY.—THOMAS SCOTT, esq.—The Physician.—The Manager.

THE Londonderry District Asylum is intended for the reception of the curable pauper lunatics belonging to the counties of Tyrone, Donegal and Derry. According to the census of 1831 the population of Tyrone was 302,934; Donegal, 298,104; Derry, 222,416.

This building is exactly similar to that which the Assistant Commissioners have had occasion to describe in speaking of the Belfast Lunatic Asylum. It was erected under the directions of an architect employed by Government, and was opened on the 4th of June, 1829. It was originally designed that the number of lunatics to be admitted should not exceed 105, but on the 7th of December 1830 the local directors received a communication from Government, authorizing them to make such alterations in the building as would enable them to lodge 45 additional patients. This alteration was accordingly made, and it cost the sum of 160*l.* 10*s.* 11*d.*; namely, 44*l.* 9*s.* 11*d.* for the expenses of construction, and 116*l.* 10*s.* for furniture and bedding. The asylum contains at present—

Male patients	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	75
Female patients	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	69
Servants—male, 6; female 19	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	25
								169

The medical attendant and the manager agree in stating that the above is the very largest number which the house is capable of accommodating, and that the departure from the original arrangements has not been unattended with inconvenience. The basement story is dark, unventilated and damp, divided into useless and ill devised arched cells, utterly unfit for the confinement of patients of any class.

The physician, who is appointed by the Government, is a gentleman in his 47th year. He is a licentiate of the Royal College of Surgeons in Ireland, and doctor of medicine in the University of Edinburgh. He is also medical attendant of the Derry County Infirmary. An apothecary is likewise attached to the asylum, who does not visit it except when specially sent for. The apothecary was selected by the directors. Of the same class as the medical officers may be considered the manager, under whose immediate care the lunatics generally are. This officer, previous to his present appointment, which he received from Government,

LUNATIC
ASYLUMS.

Ulster.
Co. Londonderry.

Examinations taken by
Sir D. Barry, M. D.
J. R. Corrie, esq., M. D.

District Lunatic
Asylum at Londonderry.

Attendants.

and three and a half pounds of potatoes. (Thursday): ox-head soup, and three and a half pounds of potatoes. (Friday): one pint of buttermilk and three and a half pounds of potatoes. (Saturday): one pint of buttermilk and three and a half pounds of potatoes.

Supper.—Five ounces of oatmeal made into stirabout and one-third quart of buttermilk.

The general management of the affairs of the charity is vested in the hands of a limited number of governors appointed immediately by Government. They are directed to assemble on the second Friday in each month for the dispatch of business, and three are considered to constitute a quorum. Minutes are regularly kept of the proceedings of these meetings. There is no managing committee.

Excepting the manager there is but one non-medical officer, namely, the treasurer, who is also agent to the Bank of Ireland. He is not authorized to pay any check on account of the establishment, unless it bear the signatures of three of the directors.

The number of sub-officers and attendants, together with their respective salaries is as follows:—

	£.	s.	d.
1 Clerk and storekeeper	30	—	—	per annum
1 Gardener	15	—	—	"
5 Keepers at 12 l. 12 s. each	63	—	—	"
1 Hall porter	10	—	—	"
5 Nurses at 6 l. 6 s. each	31	10	—	"
10 Assistant-nurses at 4 l. 4 s. each	42	—	—	"
1 Cook	6	6	—	"
1 Laundress	6	6	—	"
1 Assistant-laundress	4	4	—	"
1 Office and store maid	4	4	6	"
47	£.212	10	6

The above are all provided with board and lodging.

Stores.

No governor is in any way interested in the supply of the various articles which enter into the consumption of the institution.

Reports.

Of the reports which have been hitherto drawn up none have been printed, but from the detached documents which have been supplied to the Assistant Commissioners they were enabled to collect that, at the existing rate of contracts for provisions, and taking an average of the week, the daily cost of each patient, for food only, is, as near as may be, 3*d.* per diem. The average daily cost of each patient, taking into account all items of expenditure, is about 9½*d.*

Medical and Surgical Instruction.

There is no instruction of any kind given for the management of lunatics. Post-mortem examinations are performed without inconvenience, and no unpleasant circumstance has ever occurred in consequence.

Leinster.
City of Dublin.

Examinations taken by
Sir D. Barry, M. D.
Thomas Osler, esq.

St. Patrick's or
Swift's Hospital for
Lunatics.

Wards.

THE Assistant Commissioners commenced their examination by inspecting the wards in which the patients are lodged.

These were six in number, besides the upper floor of the front or cross building called the gallery, and destined for boarders of the first and second classes. The six wards, or rather floors, are perfectly uniform in their construction and internal distribution. They are situated in, and constitute the whole of, the interior of two parallel buildings, which have been lengthened at two different periods, running north and south; each being three stories high, and of equal length, separated by a damp-looking, low, level space of about 12 yards broad. These two buildings are connected at their southern extremities by a cross building (forming the front of the hospital) running east and west, and uniform, as to the height and width of its floors, with those of the other two buildings.

The wards are denominated the lower, middle, and upper male and female wards, from the stories which they occupy. They are each about 360 feet long by about 20 feet broad, and about 12 feet high, and are each divided into two state rooms for boarders of the first class, when there are such patients to occupy them; one similar room for the ward-keeper; 22 pauper patients' rooms, or cells, (twelve feet by eight,) one of which is occupied by the ward-keeper's servant; one scullery, or washing-room, and a water-closet; all except the latter opening upon the same corridor, which runs the whole length of the floor or ward, and is about 16 feet wide. An offset has been lately added to the east side of one and the west side of the other parallel building about the middle, affording a day-room to each ward, (32 feet by 21.) These day-rooms have been converted, in two instances, into sleeping-rooms, or wards, of 10 beds each, for pauper or free patients, and are furnished with iron bedsteads of a modern construction. There are three fire-places in each corridor, and two in each day-room.

Day-rooms.

The gallery is the upper floor of the front or cross building, and consists of six rooms for first-class boarders, and a corridor, similar to the corresponding class of apartments in the other wards. (See Table No. 1.)

Front of Hospital.

The present front was also that of the original St. Patrick's Hospital, built in the year 1757, for the reception of lunatics and idiots, under the will of the founder, Dean Swift. This house, and the two parallel buildings already mentioned, which were at first but one-third of their present length, form three sides of a parallelogram, open at its north end. Third after

LUNATIC
ASYLUMS.

Leinster.
City of Dublin.

Examinations taken by
Sir D. Barry, M.D.
Thomas Osler, esq.

St Patrick's or
Swift's Hospital for
Lunatics.

after third has been added to the length of the sides, as the funds of the institution have been able to afford the expense, agreeably to the will of the founder; and, as the corporation has been accumulating property for some years past, further additions may still be made. But it is to be hoped that an improved plan of construction will be adopted; for the lower wards, or floors, of the present hospital are very little better than vaults or cellars, except perhaps at their northern ends, where the air and light have rather a more free admission than towards their centre or southern extremities. The ceilings are groined arches; the floors are flagged. The cross building is separated only by a narrow area from the walled face of the hill in front, which is at least 12 feet higher than the basement floors or wards. The length and the height, and the contiguity of the two parallel buildings obstruct the ventilation and the sunning of the inner faces of both; whilst the high walls of the five airing-yards, one side of each of which is formed by one or other of the parallel houses, obstruct the airing and sunning of a large portion of the outer faces, more particularly as regards the lower wards.

The Assistant Commissioners found two of these airing-yards in a very filthy state, occupied by poultry, which had soiled the benches under the sheds, and the seats of the privies, so extensively as to render them absolutely unfit for use. The fowls appeared to be permanently established in these yards. We were informed by the master that they were the property of two male ward-keepers, one of whom is also rated as servant to a first-class boarder, and is paid separately for each appointment.

Airing Yards.

The front building faces the south, and consists of six rooms on each of its three floors. Those on the basement floor are occupied as—1. cook's room; 2. beer cellar; 3. meat store; 4. bath room; 5. bath boiler room; 6. laundress's room. At the west end of the basement story is the house kitchen, with the clothing and bedding store above it; at the east end the laundry, with the master's private kitchen above it. These small end buildings are uniform when seen in front, and are one story lower than the other buildings.

Occupation of Front
Building.

The six rooms and corridor composing the middle floor, or that on a level with the ground in front, are occupied by the master, and by the matron, his wife. One is used as an office or counting-house; and one room is used, on board days, as a board room. The upper floor, as already stated, is called the gallery, and is divided into six rooms for the boarder lunatics, and a corridor. (See Table No. 1.)

There is no specific plan in operation for the ventilation, nor for the warming of the corridors or cells, though such might be easily and effectually adopted. There are no tubes to convey hot water or steam through the building; nor is there any apparatus in use for the circulation of heated air. The windows of the rooms and cells are high up in the walls, and though there is a small radiated opening above each door, yet as there is no inlet for fresh air at a lower level, the circulation must be impeded and the atmosphere of the cells close and oppressive, when the doors are shut for any time, as at night. The corridors, the Assistant Commissioners learned from the medical gentlemen, are very cold in the winter.

Ventilation and Warming.

The cleanliness and order, more especially of the lower female ward, were not in the most satisfactory state at the time of inspection. The inmates, 24 in number, were all of the class of pauper or free patients, and all, except one or two, seemed to be cases of long standing, and to have assumed the chronic, or more tranquil form of lunacy. This and the lower male ward are under stone arches, and at least 12 feet below the level of the hall-door, or ground in front of the hospital. White-washing appears to be practised but very seldom, and that excellent rule which ought to be enforced in all public institutions, where many persons are collected together, "that nothing is clean which can be made cleaner," seems to be altogether lost sight of.

Cleanliness.

Each patient being permitted to bring his or her own bedding into the hospital, that article is of too motley a description to be spoken of as a whole. In some cells the original low, bare, short-posted bedstead with strong iron staples for restraint, of the early days of the institution, is still to be seen; in others, the more modern tent-roofed or four-posted bedstead, with sufficiently good curtains.

Bedding.

The drainage is good, and the general repair of the building seems to be excellent, nor were there bad smells in any other ward than that just mentioned, neither was there elsewhere such striking neglect of cleanliness and order, although the disposition of the cells and corridors, and the circumstance of the patients having constant access to both these classes of apartments, are by no means favourable to neatness in either. The total absence of all employment, and of the means of exclusion by day from the rooms to be occupied at night, are manifest everywhere.

Out-buildings.

The out-buildings consist of:

A coach-house.

A house at front gate, three stories high, the lower occupied as a porter's lodge, the other two consisting of two rooms, each occupied by lumber; the whole called an infirmary, but not used as such.

A piggery for six or eight pigs, now containing four.

A straw house, mangle room, and dust deposit.

Six covered sheds for the lunatics.

A porter's lodge at the back, or garden entrance.

A stable, two stalls.

A stable, four stalls.

A poultry-house.

A harness-room.

A ball court, detached privies, &c.

LUNATIC
ASYLUMS.Leinster.
(City of Dublin.)Examinations taken by
Sir. D. Barry, M. D.
Thomas Osler, esq.St. Patrick's or
Swift's Hospital for
Lunatics.

Patients.

Pauper Patients.

Boarders.

Boarders' Servants.

Boarders' Furniture.

Of domestic animals there were a horse, a mule, four pigs, peacocks, turkeys, fowls, ducks.

The gardens belonging to the hospital, and the space occupied by the house, the out-buildings and the yards, contain about five or five and a half acres, Irish. Abundant crops of culinary vegetables (but no potatoes) are annually raised for the use of the establishment and for sale. Some young fruit trees are also cultivated and sold for the benefit of the funds, and stones found in a gravel pit on the premises are broken by hired labourers and sold to the paving board. But as the Assistant Commissioners have not been able to ascertain with precision the expense of production for the last two years, they must refer to the accompanying copy of the accounts, extracted from copies of the general accounts of income and expenditure furnished to the office of the Accountant-General for the years 1830, 1831 and 1832. (See Table, No. 2).

There are now 130 lunatics and idiots in the house, composed of boarders of all classes, and paupers, or free patients. (See Tables, Nos. 3, 4.) Only two of the whole number of inmates are under medical treatment, and these are not dangerously ill. The lodging, attendance and allowance of food of the third and fourth classes of boarders and of the pauper lunatics are precisely the same. Since the establishment of district pauper lunatic asylums, the governors of this hospital, in their admission of patients, are stated to give a preference to those who had been in better circumstances, and happened to become distressed, over the applicant who had never been above the poorer classes.

The denomination, therefore, of "pauper patient" has been changed, and that of "free patient" substituted, to denote a lunatic kept in the institution free of expense. Inmates, therefore, of the labouring classes have diminished in number. Those also of the richer and middle classes are fewer since private asylums for persons of the latter ranks in life have become more abundant and more carefully and efficiently superintended.* At present more than one half of the inmates denominated in this hospital free patients belong to the labouring classes.

These are lunatics who are taken into this hospital upon their friends agreeing to pay for their accommodation, to the funds of the institution, 105*l.* per annum if of the first class, 63*l.* if of the second class, 31*l.* 10*s.* if of the third class, and any stipulated sum if of the fourth class. (See Table, No. 4.)

A first class boarder is supposed to have a servant to attend upon him or her only, and an apartment consisting of a sitting-room and sleeping-room, if he lives in a ward, but of one apartment only if he lives in the gallery. The servant in two cases at present is also ward-keeper, (See Table, No. 5); that is to say, he has charge of all the patients of a whole ward besides, and is moreover obliged to assist in the general work of the house, garden, grounds, &c. This servant ward-keeper is not fed by the institution, and is therefore exposed to the temptation of appropriating a portion of the daily allowance of food, which he receives in the kitchen, and carries to his lunatic master at meal times. The Assistant Commissioners cannot refrain from connecting with this consideration the very low wages of the ward-keepers, each of whom is obliged to maintain a female servant at his own expense. As to the apartment, it either opens into the corridor common to all the patients of the ward, or consists of a room in the gallery. (See Table, No. 1.) In the case of one first class boarder now in the house, the whole furniture in his room consists of a bed, a small table and a night-stool; but he merely sleeps there, and passes the day with his servant ward-keeper, who lives on the floor below him, having charge also of the middle male ward.

Notwithstanding this inadequacy of the accommodation afforded for 100 guineas a year, there is one advantage in living as boarder in this hospital, for if the lunatic become a pauper, or his friends unable to pay for him, he is seldom turned out, but merely transferred to the class of pauper or free patients.† Boarders are obliged to find their own furniture, clothing and personal comforts.

The accommodation of boarders or pay patients does not seem to have been contemplated in the will of the founder of this hospital; nor can the master, who has held his present situation during the last 22 years, inform the Assistant Commissioners at what period the practice began.‡ It is pretty certain, however, that it originated in a wish on the part of the governors to extend a portion of the benefits of the institution to the upper and middle classes, by relieving families from the care of their lunatic relations, and at the same time to enable the hospital to be more extensively useful to the lower classes of lunatics; a wish

* During the year 1815, there were treated in St. Patrick's, according to a list then drawn up by Surgeon Cusack, 63 1st and 2d class boarders.

On the 5th January 1819 there were in the house, as nearly as could be ascertained, 15 first and second class boarders. There are at present 7 boarders of the first and 20 of the second class.

† Although there is a standing regulation that persons admitted as boarders are not to be continued as paupers when they cease to pay.

‡ The Assistant Commissioners have discovered since writing the above, that boarders are mentioned in the minutes of the governors, so early as the year 1758, the year after the hospital was built, when "a room was ordered to be furnished for boarders out of the money granted by Parliament." In 1759, "four rooms were ordered to be prepared for boarders." That class of patients appears to have been a very important financial object of attention to the governors for many years after the opening of the establishment. Their admission, even now, is not noticed in the minutes, every thing that concerns them, being exclusively confided to the master, who alone admits them, as stated elsewhere.

wish also, perhaps, to be enabled to increase the number and the emoluments of certain officers and attendants, without violating the terms of the will, which directs, that salaries and wages shall never exceed one-fifth of the whole income of the estate, may have had some influence in the adoption of that practice. The highest annual pension paid by boarder lunatics, up to the time of the present master's appointment, was 63 l.; but it was shortly after raised to 105 l. per annum for the first class, and 63 l. for the second class, as already stated. That financial measure, suggested by the master, the Assistant Commissioners have every reason to believe, contributed largely to raise the funds of the hospital to their present flourishing condition; and with the general excellent fiscal management of the board, long and steadily persevered in, perhaps to save the establishment from the necessity of narrowing, instead of extending, the sphere of its usefulness.

There were as many as 60 boarder-lunatics in this establishment 22 years ago, when some of them were lodged in the lower wards; but at present there are no patients of that class residing in the basement story.

There is no record, either printed or written, of the dietary of this hospital, indeed it appears to be purely traditional. The matron's private assistant, and the master of the hospital, state, that the daily diet of a boarder of the 1st and 2d classes has been at all times, and is still, as follows:—

1st and 2d CLASS BOARDERS.

Breakfast.—Bread half a pound, butter half a pound per week, tea, with milk and sugar, one pint, (stirabout and milk also, if wished for by patients.)

Dinner.—Mutton one and a quarter pounds, (weighed raw with bone,) small beer one quart, bread half a pound, potatoes two or three in number.

Supper.—Bread half a pound, new milk one imperial quart per diem.

3d and 4th CLASS BOARDERS and FREE PATIENTS or PAUPERS.

Breakfast every day in the week.—Stirabout one imperial pint, new milk one imperial pint.

Dinner (previously to December 1833.) Sundays, Tuesdays, and Thursdays.—Meat, (beef), one pound weighed raw without bone, bread six ounces, beer one pint.

Supper on same days.—Bread six ounces, soup one pint, (made from bones purchased at one penny per pound.)

Dinner on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays.—Calecannon (ad libitum), made of potatoes, cabbage and other garden-stuff, with pepper and some butter, bruised into a mass.

On Saturdays.—Bread half a pound, milk one pint.

Supper on these days.—Bread six ounces, beer one pint.

DAILY DIET OF RICHMOND DISTRICT LUNATIC ASYLUM.

Day.	Breakfast.		Dinner.	Supper.
	New milk.	Stirabout.		Potatoes.	Brown bread.	Buttermilk.
	Pint.	Quart.		lbs.	8 oz. cuts.	Pint.
Monday	1	1	1 quart of soup.	3	1	1
Tuesday	1	1	$\frac{3}{4}$ lb. of beef.*	2	1	1
Wednesday	1	1	1 quart of soup.	3	1	1
Thursday	1	1	$\frac{3}{4}$ lb. of beef.	2	1	1
Friday	1	1	1 pint of new milk.	3	1	1
Saturday	1	1	1 ditto.	3	1	1
Sunday	1	1	$\frac{3}{4}$ lb. of beef.	2	1	1

This diet is altered as the medical officers may think necessary.

Since December 1833, one pound of beef for dinner, (said to be of better joints of that meat than before, and at 4 d. per pound instead of 3½ d. per pound, as previously charged), has been allowed to each pauper patient, and to each third and fourth class boarder, on three additional days in the week, in lieu of the calecannon, which, up to that period, they had on these days for dinner, as already stated. Since August 1834 seven days' meat are allowed. No alteration, however, has been made in the diet of the 1st and 2d class boarders, except what may have taken place in consequence of the joint representation of the medical officers of the establishment, who recommended, (at the same time that they urged the above change in the food of the 3d and 4th class boarders and pauper patients), that prime pieces or joints only, of mutton and beef should be served to the 1st and 2d class boarders; having observed, as they state in the presence of the master, that pieces or joints of an inferior kind were sometimes served to these persons, whose payments to the institution entitle them to expect the better parts of the animal.

The Assistant Commissioners saw dinner served to some pauper patients twice. The allowance seemed ample, and the beef and potatoes of good quality. The Assistant Commissioners also saw dinner going up to a 1st class boarder; there were greens, mutton, potatoes

* The beef is always received without any bone, being previously boned by the butcher.

LUNATIC
ASYLUMS.

Leinster.
City of Dublin.

Examinations taken by
Sir D. Barry, M.D.
Thomas Osler, esq.

St. Patrick's or
Swift's Hospital for
Lunatics.

Diet.

Pauper Patients.

Boarders.

Boarders, Servants.

Boarders, Furniture.

Meals.

LUNATIC
ASYLUMS.Leinster.
City of Dublin.Examinations taken by
Sir D. Barry, M. D.
Thomas Osler, esq.St. Patrick's or
Swift's Hospital for Lunatics.Admission of Patients.Provisions.
Contracts.

Bread.

Meat.

Milk.

Potatoes.

Oatmeal.

potatoes and bread, all of excellent quality, and certainly in sufficient quantity for one person.

When the increased meat diet, and of meat of higher price (which still continues), was adopted for free patients, and lower boarders in 1833, diarrhoea and cholera are stated by the medical gentlemen to have prevailed amongst the lunatics. The master states, that calecannon is again ordered to be given for dinner on Saturdays to the free patients.

It would appear that the master possesses the power of admitting pay patients without reference to the board, if there be a vacancy in what he calls the pay wards, upon a certificate from a member of the college of physicians or surgeons; certain it is, that the admission of pay patients is not noticed in the minute-book of the board, whilst that of pauper patients is, who can only be admitted through the board of governors upon a certificate of disease and poverty, and after their friends have given certain guarantees to remove the patient when reported convalescent. The master states, that there are four pauper wards containing 79 patients, and two pay wards capable of containing 48 patients, but not full; but the gallery is also devoted to boarders, and is capable of containing six. He further states, that the vacancies in the pay wards cannot be converted into accommodation for paupers, owing to the state of the building; but this is difficult to understand.

The middle male and female wards and the gallery are kept sacred for 1st and 2d class boarders; nor are pauper patients ever admitted into these wards, whatever vacancies they may present; they are called pay wards.

In each of the four pauper wards the two best rooms would be given to boarders, if there were applicants of that class in sufficient number to require them.

All pay patients who are not of the 1st or 2d class boarders, and who, therefore, do not pay the physician or surgeon, are placed in the pauper wards, and classed and fed as paupers.

Competition for furnishing provisions to this hospital, whether as to price or quality, does not seem to be sufficiently encouraged, if indeed it be even wished.

There is no written contract for bread, nor has any existed within the master's memory for the 22 years that he has acted as such.

There is no contract for potatoes, nor is the master aware of any having existed.

There is no written contract for flesh-meat produced, except one offered by a butcher, in November 1833, to supply for one year from that date, as he had done for the 10 or 12 previous years, boarders' meat, mutton, at $5\frac{1}{2}d.$ per lb., as it comes usually from the butcher with bone; and beef, for the pauper patients, at $3\frac{1}{2}d.$ per lb., without bone, bones for soup being engaged to be taken at $1d.$ per lb., yet the same butcher's last bill for meat (January 1835), is, for mutton $5\frac{1}{2}d.$ per lb., and for beef $4d.$ per lb.

In explanation of the fact of a higher price being charged for pauper's beef than the butcher had proposed to supply it at in his tender of contract for 1834; and of there being no written contract recorded, nor minute of the board authorizing the increase of $\frac{1}{2}d.$ per lb. on the beef, the master states, that the alteration of the dietary mentioned in the minutes of 2d December 1833, and already alluded to in this report, under the head of Diet, contemplates "a superior quality of beef and nothing else," though not so stated in the minutes.* There is, however, no record of a contract for flesh-meat for the year 1834 or 1835, either at the old or at the increased price.

There has been no fresh contract for milk since 1830, when it cost, and still costs, $6\frac{1}{4}d.$ per imperial gallon for new milk, which has been supplied by the same person for 10 or 12 years.

There is no contract for potatoes, nor is the manager aware of any having existed. These have been supplied, and are still supplied, of the best quality of cups, at the market price of the day. Last price, 9th February, $2s. 5d.$ per cwt.

There is no contract for oatmeal, which continues to be supplied of the best quality, at the current price. Last price, (13th January 1835,) $12l.$ per ton.

The Assistant Commissioners cannot doubt that the managing committee of the governors of this institution, and the master of the hospital, adopt their present mode of purchasing provisions for the lunatics, purely because they conceive that they are most likely to obtain by that mode the best articles, and those of the fairest weight and measure. But in order to show the advantage of encouraging competition amongst provision-sellers by public and impartial contracts, the Assistant Commissioners give in the comparative table, No. 8., the prices of the principal articles of provisions, as supplied to St. Patrick's Hospital and to the Richmond Lunatic Asylum respectively, both in this city. The prices at the latter institution were ascertained this day, 4th March; those at the former yesterday.

With the view also of showing the great utility of establishing a system of public responsibility and official surveillance, more especially in the institutions founded for the benefit of the poor, the Assistant Commissioners give the comparative table, No. 9, showing the average annual income and expenditure of both establishments for the last three years,

* The words of the minute relating to the change of dietary are the following;

"December 2d 1833.—A change of the dietary having been suggested by the medical gentlemen, and that of Simpson's Hospital proposed for experiment for one month.

"Ordered, That the master obtain the particulars. Contract for meat deferred until the master report."

years, the number of lunatics treated in each during that time, with some of the results of their respective plans of management.

From these two tables it would appear that the excess of the prices actually charged at St. Patrick's Hospital for certain articles of provision of daily consumption for the lunatics, over the prices charged at the Richmond Lunatic Asylum for similar articles for the daily consumption of patients similarly affected, is as follows :

Excess in the price of—

						£.	s.	d.
* Beef without bone, at the respective prices of the two institutions, in 120 pounds weight	-	-	-	-	-	15	5
Milk, per imperial gallon	-	-	-	-	-		1	½
Bread in 100 l. value, assize price	-	-	-	-	-	11	-	-
Or in bread value 9 l.	-	-	-	-	-	1	-	-
Potatoes per cwt.	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	3
Soap, per cwt.	-	-	-	-	-	-	4	-
Candles, dipped, per dozen pounds	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	6
„ mould „ „	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	6
Straw, per cwt.	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	2
Beer, small, per barrel	-	-	-	-	-	2	5	½

Although proper manual occupation may be looked upon as the very soul of a well-regulated lunatic asylum, so far as regards the restoration of the mental faculties of the inmates to a healthy state, yet there is here absolutely no employment of any kind for either sex, except the occasional occupation of a few of the male lunatics in the garden. By far the greater number of female lunatics are always capable, if kindly attended to, of being made to do some sort of work. All who are not paralyzed or sunk into total idiocy can spin, or knit, or sew, or plat straw, or make lace. Indeed, in all the lunatic asylums we have lately seen, except this alone, the women particularly have been most busily and profitably employed. Here they are absolutely unemployed, excepting a very few engaged in the laundry or the kitchen. This is a defect which, for the credit of humanity and of the institution, ought to be corrected. In this department of lunatic establishments much depends upon the activity and intelligence of the matron.

The Assistant Commissioners have had no precise statement of the cost of an outfit for one individual of either sex, nor of the average annual expense of clothing one lunatic in this hospital, laid before them; nor do they think that such an estimate could be accurately made out where the inmates are supplied so partially and from so many sources as they are here. There is one thing, however, very remarkable, that the lunatics of the Richmond Asylum manufacture articles of clothing to a considerable amount for those of St. Patrick's, (see Document No. 10,) who are not taught to manufacture any for themselves. For the annual expense of the clothing of the lunatics at the Richmond Asylum—see Table No. 8.

This institution is attended by a physician and a surgeon. One or other of these gentlemen visits the house every day, but neither has a fixed salary, nor indeed any remuneration under the title of salary. The physician receives 1 l. 1 s. at the end of each quarter, except the first, for every boarder of the first and second class, and 2 l. 3 s., no longer given on certificate of lunacy as heretofore, but, since 1825, as an admission-fee for each patient of these classes.†

The surgeon receives 10 s. 6 d. per quarter for each boarder as above, but is not called upon to give certificates. Neither of these officers is consulted as to the admission of patients; that privilege rests solely with the master as to boarders, and as to paupers with the board of governors, who determine with the master after consideration of the memorial presented by the friends of the applicant.

There is no such officer attached to this hospital, the prescriptions of the medical gentlemen being sent to be compounded at the shop of an apothecary in the neighbourhood, who has been employed for many years.

A few remedies made up into doses, known by the designation of house-pills, powders, topical applications, aperients, sudorifics, &c., are always kept in the house. In ordinary cases these are verbally ordered to be given by either of the medical officers, as may be required. But in more serious cases prescriptions are entered in a book kept for that purpose, which book is sent to the apothecary to have them compounded. As the particular complaint, however, under which the patient labours is not specified in this book, and as there is no other medical register, there is, strictly speaking, no record of disease kept in this institution.

The medical officers are seldom called to visit a patient unless for such indisposition as would require medical advice, even if the patient were in a sound state of mind. At present there

* The allowance of one-sixth of bone taken at the Richmond for soup, is valued at 1 d. per pound, and therefore convertible into beef at the expense of 1 ¼ d. per pound.

N. B.—No addition is made to the price of the St. Patrick's beef, although it is allowed to contain the round bones.

† In 1775, Dr. Emmet, then state physician, and ex-officio governor of the charity, was elected physician to the establishment; and it was ordered at the same time in full meeting of the governors, that he should be allowed two guineas per quarter, or 8 l. 8 s. per annum for each boarder, for his medical services, a condition being added, "that he should draw up a yearly report of the state of the hospital."

LUNATIC
ASYLUMS.

Leinster.
City of Dublin.

Examinations taken by
Sir D. Barry, esq., M.D.
Thomas Osler, esq.

St. Patrick's or
Swift's Hospital for
Lunatics.

Employment of Patients.

Clothing.

Medical Depart-
ment.

Apothecary.

Medicines and Medical Treatment.

LUNATIC
ASYLUMS.

Leinster.
City of Dublin.

Examinations taken by
Sir D. Barry, esq., M.D.
Thomas Osler, esq.

St. Patrick's or
Swift's Hospital for
Lunatics.

Records, Reports,
Checks.

there are but two lunatics under treatment purely medical, one for ophthalmia and one for a feverish attack. As the inmates are all considered incurable, with the exception of five, who afford some hope of ultimate recovery, little or no medical administration is attempted with the view of restoring the mental functions to a healthy state. The treatment adopted is exclusively moral, if that word can be properly applied to lax discipline, confinement within a certain space, and the total absence of all occupation for either sex, which might tend to recall to something like arrangement and activity the wandering unemployed faculties of the miserable moping lunatic. The distinguished medical officers at present attached to this hospital are in no wise connected with the internal discipline of the house, and will not therefore, the Assistant Commissioners trust, conceive that the most remote shadow of blame is imputed to them in what is here stated.

There is a total deficiency of statistic records in this establishment, as must, almost inevitably, be the case where no report is ever made nor required, no system of check established except as regards mere money matters. The only written notice of boarder lunatics' names occurs in reference to the quarterly, half-yearly or annual payments of their pensions, and in a collection of certificates of lunacy signed by the physician on admission, from 1799 to 1825, but discontinued since that period. The names of the pauper patients are only to be found scattered through the minutes of the board, as admitted by the sanction of an ordinary meeting. From such documents it is impossible to deduce any satisfactory inferences even as to the economy of insane establishments.

The basis of all correct knowledge as to the internal movement of an hospital, is a tabular registry of the class of diet issued each day to each individual in the establishment, agreeably to a fixed dietary. This table, if carefully kept and filled daily, will show for any given time the number of patients present, and, at the end of the month or year, the number of days' support given, the quantity and kind of food consumed, and, therefore, the exact expense incurred for feeding one patient per diem or per annum. It will also check the lists of admissions, discharges, deaths, the disbursements for provisions, the nominal lists, the occupation of wards, &c. It will correct or affirm alleged facts, whether of a statistic or economical nature. But where there is no written record, even of the dietary, every thing coming under the present heads must be vague and indeterminate.

A list of the names of persons admitted, discharged, cured, dead, with a few of the more important data connected with their admission, must have been at all times of such obvious necessity in a lunatic asylum, that the absence of such a registry in the oldest establishment of that kind in Ireland excites astonishment.

There are 16 servants paid by the institution, who may be classed as follows, viz.,

Personal attendants to the lunatics composed of

Ward-keepers, male	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	2
Ditto - female	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	4
Servants to boarders, male	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	3
Ditto ditto female	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	2

Personal attendants, total 11

House servants composed of

Laundress	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	1
Cook	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	1
Porters	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	2
Barber	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	1

Total, servants paid by the institution 16

There are, besides the above, two male servants to sixty-guinea boarders, who are paid and fed by the friends of their lunatic masters.

The ward-keepers have each one female servant paid and fed by themselves; but these six domestics having to attend to their respective employers' ménage, and to prepare the food of the little family, cannot be reckoned amongst the personal servants of the lunatics.

Now as two of the ward-keepers and five of the nine remaining paid servants are returned as servants to boarders; (see Table, No. 5.) it follows that four persons only, viz., one male and three females constitute the whole of the servants paid by the institution as personal attendants upon 121* lunatics, 84 of whom consist of pauper, or free patients, and 37 of second, third and fourth class boarders. Even allowing the two ward-keepers (returned as boarders' servants also) to count as common personal attendants, the proportion of servants to lunatic patients, within their wards, would be one to 20; but by excluding the two ward-keepers, the proportion of servants to patients would be one servant to 30 patients, relatively to personal superintendence.

It is important to remark that none of the servants are either fed, clothed, or washed for in this establishment, although they are all lodged in the house, excepting the barber. This plan we conceive to be mistaken economy; for, independently of the temptation to which the servants are thus exposed, as already stated, much of their time must be occupied in providing their own meals.

The ward-keepers are paid, as such, 26*l.* 5*s.* per annum each; but when they have boarders under their charge they are paid 21*l.* each, in addition; making the yearly wages of a ward-keeper,

* Two sixty guinea boarders are attended by their own private servants, and are therefore left out of this calculation.

ward-keeper, who is also rated as a boarder's servant, 47*l.* 5*s.* Both sums are paid by the institution. The pure boarders' servant's yearly wages are 21*l.*, without food, clothing or washing.

The whole amount of the yearly (board) wages of the personal attendants of the lunatics of all classes paid by the institution is 304*l.* 10*s.*, 105*l.* only of which are paid for the services of the four persons who are not attached to boarders: that is to say, two-thirds of the expense of personal attendance upon 128 lunatics are devoted to one-eighteenth of the whole number, whilst only one-third of the expense is devoted to the other seventeen-eightieths. The two sixty-guinea boarders, who are attended by their private servants, are not taken into this account.

The Assistant Commissioners were informed by the master, that all the personal servants are obliged to assist in cultivating the garden, and in such other domestic occupations as may occur, suited to their different capacities. That arrangement must diminish considerably the amount of superintendence of the patients; but although the personal attendants were three times their present number, they could not watch their charge with due effect, whilst the lunatics are permitted to ramble through corridors 360 feet in length, and to lounge into their cells or dormitories, with little or no restraint, when they are not out of doors. In fine, we are convinced that the present system of personal superintendence of the insane at Swift's Hospital is utterly inadequate to maintain that degree of physical and moral discipline most likely to promote either their immediate well-being or their prospective recovery.

The Assistant Commissioners are enabled to give only the gross items of income and expenditure, for the year ended on 5th January 1831, as furnished to the Accountant-General's office, and for all information upon these heads for the years ended in January 1834 and 1835, they refer to Table, No. 9.

The sources of income of this charity, are, at present, and have been for many years past, the three following, viz.,

1. Property in lands and houses.
2. Property in the funds.
3. Sums annually received for the care of lunatics taken into the charity as pay patients, or boarders.

The first description of property is managed by two land-agents. The nett sums received from both those gentlemen in 1832 was 2,327*l.* 15*s.* 6*d.*

The funded property is managed by the Bank of Ireland, the treasurer of the corporation, and produced in 1834, 568*l.* 3*s.* 6*d.

The pensions paid by the boarders have been received, and accounted for to the board, by the master, for the last 22 years. The average annual amount of that income [for the last three years, has been 3,276*l.* 4*s.* 6*d.* There are some debentures which produce about 10*l.* per annum.

The actual amount of the present income of the charity (as far as the Assistant Commissioners have been able to ascertain by an examination of detached documents of the latest date to which they have had access) is as follows, viz.

	£.	s.	d.
From land and houses in 1833†	2,327	15	6
- funded property in 1834	568	3	6
- income from boarders, average for last three years	3276	4	6½
- debentures	9	13	10
- garden produce uncertain, say	50	-	-
	£6,231	17	4½

The Lord Primate had, for several years, given 92*l.* 6*s.* 2*d.* per annum to the funds of St. Patrick's Hospital, from Archbishop Sterne's charity, but has withdrawn that annuity within the last two or three years.

Payments of every description, connected with the affairs of this institution, are made by the master alone, who produces receipts for the same, on the audit days of the board, when he has his accounts passed. All moneys received by him are paid into the bank, and entered in a pass book, which is also produced to the board; and all drafts by the board upon the bank are drawn in his favour. This arrangement simplifies the transaction, and diminishes the labour of the board.

From an inspection of the minute-book, the meetings of the governors seem to have been generally attended for some time back by the same individuals, whose names are for the most part to be found rather amongst the elected than amongst the charter members of the corporation. But the fact of the former being chosen from those who generally reside in or near Dublin, and may have no official employment, sufficiently accounts for this.

There are, we believe, no written rules nor bye-laws upon the subject of meetings, nor have the Assistant Commissioners seen any other code of laws connected with this charity than the printed copy of the charter.

Changes which may occur in the medical, and which must take place in the ecclesiastical ranks,

* In the present year (1835) this will amount to 585*l.* 11*s.* on the present investment.

† In addition to this sum, there are occasional receipts from renewal fines; the last (officially notified in 1831) amounted to 165*l.* 2*s.* 1*d.*

LUNATIC
ASYLUMS.

Leinster.
City of Dublin.

Examinations taken by
Sir D. Barry, M.D.
Thomas Osler, esq.

St. Patrick's or
Swift's Hospital for
Lunatics.

Accounts, Income and Expenditure.

Property. Sources of Income.

Meetings of Governors.
Bye-laws, &c.

LUNATIC
ASYLUMS.Leinster,
City of Dublin.Examinations taken by
Sir D. Barry, M. D.
Thomas Osler, esq.St. Patrick's or
Swift's Hospital for Lunatics.General Observations.

ranks, conferring charter governorships upon the holders of these ranks, may cause a diminution in the number of the corporation unfavourable to the interests of the charity.

After a careful investigation of the actual state and general management of this hospital, the Assistant Commissioners feel bound to conclude that it affords a striking example of the want of energy and gradual crippling of utility, which are but too apt to creep into the details of public charitable institutions, even where, as in the present case, the general financial administration appears to be prudently and conscientiously conducted, but where there is no public responsibility, no official control, no inquiry into the minor arrangements more immediately connected with the objects of the charity.

It is more than probable that the founder of this asylum never contemplated its being converted into a maison de santé for lunatics of the better classes, to the exclusion of those less able to provide private accommodation. If he had intended that such proceeding should be adopted, he would probably have recommended that for boarders paying from 63*l.* to 105*l.* per annum, besides providing their own bedding, furniture, clothing and other personal comforts, a system of social treatment should be observed towards such persons far superior to that at present in use in this hospital. Some of the more ordinary elegancies of that sphere of life, in which these persons had been accustomed to move, might surely be provided, and with much advantage to the moral curative treatment of these patients. A drawing-room, a few books, drawings and drawing materials, musical instruments,* innocent games of skill, ornamental needle work, billiards, and a regulated occasional intercourse with each other, and with sane persons, as at Charenton, under that restraint which the etiquette of formal society imposes, and under the superintendence of intelligent, professional attendants might be afforded, where persons accustomed to these refinements are entertained, and a large income derived from their pensions. But no such moral curative means appear to be thought of here. The furniture of a first class boarder's room has been already described, whilst in every case but that of two persons living in the gallery, their apartments open into the corridor, common to all the patients.

With regard to the treatment and accommodation of the pauper class of patients, the Assistant Commissioners are anxious to have it understood, that they do not select the Richmond Asylum as an object of direct comparison with Swift's Hospital, because they consider the former to have attained the highest point of economy desirable in the accommodation of pauper lunatics, (for such is not their opinion), but merely because both institutions are situated in the same city; and because, although many of the circumstances of both are analogous, yet their respective plans of management are strikingly different.

Looking, then, at the Richmond Lunatic Asylum as an establishment in which 315 adults of both sexes, viz., 271 lunatics, and 44 servants have been boarded, lodged, clothed and washed for, every day during the year 1834, at an expense, for the whole, of 4,666*l.* 14*s.* 10*d.*, including every charge,† the Assistant Commissioners find the actual cost of each of these individuals to have been 14*l.* 16*s.* 3½*d.*

The above charge includes the salaries of the officers who keep the whole establishment and its accounts in order; of the physician, surgeon and apothecary, who take care of the health of the inmates; of the two chaplains who afford them religious instruction;‡ besides the wages of 44 servants, 37 of whom, or one to seven and a half, lunatics, are in constant attendance upon the insane, and perform, or direct, all the menial duties necessary for the well-being and health of themselves and the other inmates.

If St. Patrick's Hospital be viewed in the same light, we find that there, only 130 lunatics of both sexes have been boarded, lodged, washed for, but only partially supplied with bedding and clothes during that year; and that 16 servants have been kept on board wages, but not clothed nor washed for, at an expense, for the whole, of 4,195*l.* 1*s.* 6*d.*, excluding every charge not strictly referable to the patients; and that the actual cost of each of these 146 individuals for the year had been 28*l.* 14*s.* 8*d.*

But there is no chaplain to afford the patients religious instruction; no apothecary; and four servants only are paid to perform or direct all the menial offices necessary for 121 lunatics, and to be their exclusive personal attendants. In fact there is but one superintendent to every 30 lunatics. Yet we find this very partial support, and very inefficient management, of 130 lunatics during the year, to have cost nearly as much in one of the establishments as the full accommodation and most efficient management of 271 insane patients have cost in the other, and, estimated per head, nearly twice as much; the expense per patient in St. Patrick's for the year being 32*l.* 5*s.* 4½*d.*, in the Richmond Asylum 17*l.* 2*s.* 6*d.*, or very little more than one-half.

It may, perhaps, be urged that at St. Patrick's meat was given to all the patients on six days in the week, from December 1833, and on seven days in the week ever since August 1834,

* The Assistant Commissioners are aware that the private, and domestic apartment of the master contains, amongst other articles belonging to himself, a piano-forte, to which he has occasionally and kindly given access to some of the boarders; but this is far from affording that perfect facility of agreeable and interesting occupation, the frequent recurrence to which might gradually introduce such a habit of application as may often be said, in some degree, to "do the work of reason," and conduce to that satisfaction of feeling, which can scarcely fail to be propitious to mental tranquillity.

† 700*l.* are charged for building sheds in the airing yards during the last three years.

‡ The moral manager of the Richmond Asylum, states it, as the result of his observation, that the lunatics under his care, as soon as convalescence begins, derive considerable benefit from the spiritual consolations of their clergyman, carefully administered.

LUNATIC
ASYLUMS.
Leinster.
City of Dublin.

Examinations taken by
Sir D. Barry, M. D.
Thomas Osler, esq.

St. Patrick's or
Swift's Hospital for
Lunatics.

1834, and, therefore, that we have selected a year of the highest expense to contrast with one of ordinary expense at the Richmond. But if the year between the 5th of January 1832 and the 5th of January 1833 be taken, during which, at St. Patrick's, meat (coarse pieces of beef, as already allowed by the master,) was given to the pauper-lunatics only three times a week, and mutton, not the prime pieces, to the boarders, as stated before, the comparison will still show a very remarkable difference of expense, although the dietaries of the two establishments approach so much more nearly in the quantity and quality of food allowed by each respectively.

In that year the number of days' support given at St. Patrick's to boarders, was 12,179; to pauper patients 37,676=49,855, making the average number of patients each day in the year 136. The charge for every thing strictly referable to patients, made out by the clerk of the establishment, is 3,957*l.* 3*s.* 6*d.* The cost of each patient, therefore, was 29*l.* 1*s.* 11½*d.* in that year.

But notwithstanding these very striking differences as to economy between the two institutions, and notwithstanding the proportional excess of expense incurred at St. Patrick's over that incurred at the Richmond Asylum, the results, whether in a mental or physical sanatory point of view, have been much less actively beneficial in the former, than in the latter establishment, as appears by the following statement:

In the Richmond Asylum during the whole of the last three years, the number treated has been 702, the recoveries 208, or one in three $\frac{29}{104}$ or about 30 per cent. The deaths during that period were 73, or one in nine $\frac{45}{9}$ or less than 11 per cent.

In St. Patrick's Hospital during the whole of the same three years, the number treated was 206, the recoveries 36, or one in five $\frac{13}{8}$ or about 17½ per cent.

The deaths during that period were 25, or one in eight $\frac{6}{25}$ of the number treated,* or 12 per cent.

There can be but very little doubt that this institution by having persevered so long in its present plan of administration, would (had private asylums not started up as rivals) be ultimately and wholly converted into a maison de santé for lunatics, where paying patients only would be received. As matters now stand, and have stood for many years back, it has been made the direct interest of all the officers and servants more immediately connected with the management of the patients, that boarder lunatics should be admitted in preference to paupers. The yearly salaries or capitation fees, of the physician and surgeon to the institution, are derived solely from the first and second class boarders, and increase or decrease with their numbers and frequency of admission, as already explained. Boarders also by providing their own personal comforts give less trouble to the master and matron than paupers, and, by requiring exclusive servants, save trouble to the ward-keepers, or afford them a handsome addition to their wages, as in the case of those now rated as boarder servants.

With regard to the effect of the boarding system upon the funds of the charity, it is quite clear, that if but a few additional boarders were to become inmates, the income derived from them alone, would preclude the necessity of any portion of the fixed revenue of the institution being applied to the charitable purposes intended by the founder, unless the accommodations of the house were enlarged. As it is, not above one-sixth of that revenue is directly employed in that way, at present.†

It is rather a remarkable fact, and strongly illustrative of the foregoing view of the ease, that of seventy lunatics admitted during the last three years, sixty-five were boarders, whilst only five were paupers. (See Table No. 7.)

Having in the course of this inquiry been kindly permitted to visit the Richmond District Lunatic Asylum, and to derive from its records all the information required, the Assistant Commissioners feel pleasure in bearing testimony to the discipline, cleanliness and well ordered occupation, which seemed to us conspicuous in that establishment. (See Table No. 10.)

The Assistant Commissioners sincerely regret being obliged to place on record, that they should not consider themselves justified in speaking favourably of the internal management of St. Patrick's Hospital. It must not, however, be forgotten, that under the administration of the present master, during the last 22 years, the means of the charity have been much increased, and that funds are now established which will enable the corporation, and perhaps at no very distant period, to receive all their patients free, or at least for a very small remuneration, and to afford to all whom they may receive whatever advantages are desirable from adequate personal attendance, cleanliness, mild, well ordered discipline, and useful, daily, manual occupation.

Dublin, 21 March 1835.

* The absolute number admitted during the three years, and the average number dieted during the first year, give the number treated.

	£.	s.	d.
† Average yearly expenditure on patients in the years 1832, 1833 and 1834	3,784	—	9
Average yearly receipts from patients during the same period	3,276	4	6
Amount annually appropriated to the uses of the founders will, from the } permanent income of the Hospital	507	16	3

LUNATIC
ASYLUMS.

Leinster.
City of Dublin.

Examinations taken by
Sir D. Barry, M.D.
Thomas Osler, Esq.

St. Patrick's or
Swift's Hospital for
Lunatics.

TABLE, No. 1.

DESIGNATION of WARDS, with their present occupation by the Lunatic Patients and Servants.—Dublin, 10 March 1835.

DESIGNATION of WARDS.	OCCUPIED BY						Ward Keepers.		* Ward-keepers' Servants.		* Boarders' Servants.		Boarders' Rooms.		Pauper Patients' Cells.		GENERAL OBSERVATIONS.
	First Class Boarders, paying 100 Guineas annually.	Second Class Boarders, paying 60 Guineas annually.	Third Class Boarders, paying 30 Guineas annually.	Fourth Class Boarders, paying indefinite Sums.	Paupers, or Free Patients.	Male.	Female.	Male.	Female.	Male.	Female.	Occu- pied.	Vacant.	Occu- pied.	Vacant.
Lower :
Male Ward	-	1	-	1	20	-	1	-	1	-	2 ⁽¹⁾	-	1	1	21	-	(¹) Apart from their masters, and occu- pying the room of two pauper lu- natics.
Female Ward	-	-	-	1	23	-	1	-	1	-	-	-	-	2	22	-
Middle :
Male Ward	-	7	-	3	-	1 ⁽²⁾	-	-	1	-	1	-	2	-	9	13	(²) The ward-keeper of this ward is a female, and is rated as a boarder's servant also.
Female Ward	-	11	1	-	5	-	1	-	-	-	-	-	1	1	17	5
Upper :
Male Ward ⁽²⁾	-	-	4	1	20	-	-	-	-	1	-	-	-	1	11	10	(²) The day rooms of these two wards have been converted into dormi- tories of 10 beds each.
Female Ward ⁽²⁾	-	-	8	-	16	-	1	-	-	-	-	1	3	1	16	5
Gallery	-	-	-	6	84	-	-	-	-	1	-	-	9	3	-	33

* Neither the ward-keepers, their servants, nor the boarders' servants are all female, and are all paid and fed by the respective ward-keepers, and may be considered, therefore, their private servants. Five of the seven purely boarders' servants only are paid by the institution.

TABLE No. 2.

TABLE, No. 2.

INCOME and EXPENDITURE of ST. PATRICK'S HOSPITAL for three Years, ending 5th January 1833.

Year ended 5th January 1831:				EXPENDITURE:
Dr.	INCOME:				Cr.
	£.	s.	d.		£.	s.	d.
Balance of account, 5 Jan. 1830, as per imprest account - - -	2,361	14	2½	By provisions paid for this year -	1,780	2	6½
Net receipts of Wexford estates to 5 Jan. 1831 - - -	673	3	3	Garden expenses - - -	64	13	7
Net receipts of Saggard, Golden Bridge and Dublin estates - -	1,899	-	4½	Medicines - - -	38	3	9½
Half-year's interest on 11,314 l. 5 s. 4 d. 3½ p. cent. stock, to 5 July 1830	198	-	-	Coals, soap and candles, &c. -	269	15	9½
One year's interest on Dunleer debentures - - -	4	12	4	Straw - - -	26	14	9
Half ditto - on Kinnegad - ditto -	7	12	3½	Clothing and bedding - - -	99	18	8½
One year's grant per trustee (Primate) Sterne's charities - - -	92	6	2	Tobacco and snuff - - -	11	8	8
Received for fruit-trees and vegetables sold - - -	84	6	6	Repairs and furniture - - -	271	5	4½
Received for board and admission of patients - - -	2,832	17	4	Stationery - - -	3	8	10
Interest on 11,700 l., 3½ per cent. stock, to 5 July 1830 - -	204	15	-	Salaries and wages - - -	1,107	13	-
	£.	8,358	7 5½	Rents - - -	154	2	4
				Advertisements - - -	15	9	-
				Returned pensions - - -	26	5	-
				Law expenses - - -	256	10	6
				Incidents - - -	28	4	4
				Renewal fine - - -	141	16	10
				Buildings - - -	2,910	10	6
				Purchase of 385 l. 14 s. 8 d., 3½ per cent. stock - -	384	-	8
					£.	7,590	4 2½

Year ended 5th January 1832.				EXPENDITURE:
	£.	s.	d.		£.	s.	d.
Net receipts of Wexford estate, as per imprest account - - -	881	18	10	By provisions paid for this year -	1,804	11	8
Net receipts of Saggard, Golden Bridge and Dublin estates - -	2,198	2	9½	Garden expenses - - -	88	2	4
Half-year's interest on 11,700 l., 3½ p. cent. stock, to 5 Jan. 1831	204	15	-	Medicines - - -	35	3	6
Ditto on 12,500 l. d° to 5 July 1831	218	15	-	Soap, coals and candles - -	294	4	7
One year's interest on Dunleer debentures - - -	4	12	4	Straw - - -	20	7	8
Ditto - on Kinnegad - ditto -	5	1	6	Clothing and bedding - - -	261	-	-
Received from trustee (Primate) of Sterne's charities - - -	92	6	2	Tobacco and snuff - - -	11	1	7
Received from fruit-trees and vegetables sold - - -	35	9	5½	Repairs and furniture - - -	615	1	7
Received for board and admission of patients - - -	2,667	2	1	Stationery - - -	5	6	4
Received from sundry tenants of houses, Nos. 34 & 39, Bow-lane	52	-	6	Salaries and wages - - -	1,087	13	10½
Received for broken stones sold -	27	18	3	Rents - - -	146	17	6½
	£.	6,388	1 11	Returned pension - - -	2	12	6
				Law expenses - - -	123	4	9
				Incidents - - -	42	4	6
				Renewal fine - - -	141	16	10
				Purchase of 1,650 l., 3½ per cent. government stock -	1,491	1	1
					£.	6,170	9 9

Year ended 5th January 1833.				EXPENDITURE:
	£.	s.	d.		£.	s.	d.
Net receipts of the Wexford estates	744	17	1	By provisions paid for this year	1,757	3	7½
Net receipts of the Saggard, Golden Bridge and Dublin estates - -	1,582	18	5	Garden expenses - - -	22	7	3½
Half-year's interest on 13,350 l., 3½ p. cent. stock, to 5 Jan. 1832	233	12	6	Medicines - - -	38	13	6
Ditto on 13,900 l. d° to 5 July 1832	243	5	-	Soap, coals and candles - -	362	3	3½
One year's interest on Dunleer debentures - - -	4	12	4	Straw - - -	17	13	4½
Ditto - on Kinnegad - ditto -	5	1	6	Clothing and bedding - - -	178	15	2
Received from trustee (Primate) of Sterne's charities - - -	92	6	2	Tobacco and snuff - - -	10	5	8
Received for fruit-trees and vegetables sold - - -	34	11	7½	Repairs and furniture - - -	481	10	8½
Received for entertainment of patients	2,995	9	-½	Stationery and stamps - - -	10	3	6
Received from tenants of Nos. 34 and 39, Bow-lane - - -	32	14	4	Salaries and wages - - -	1,055	6	4½
Received for broken stones sold -	36	19	5½	Rents - - -	167	9	4½
Received for old pewter sold -	10	4	2	Returned pensions - - -	7	17	6
Received for expense of attendant on Mr. Singleton - - -	16	15	4½	Incidents - - -	23	1	3
	£.	6,033	7 -	Renewal fine - - -	141	16	10
				Purchase of 1,150 l., 3½ per cent. stock - - -	1,033	16	4
					£.	5,308	3 8½

LUNATIC ASYLUMS.

Leinster, City of Dublin.

Examinations taken by Sir D. Barry, M.D. Thomas Osler, esq.

St. Patrick's or Swift's Hospital for Lunatics.

TABLE No. 3.

LUNATIC
ASYLUMS.

Leinster.
City of Dublin.

Examinations taken by
Sir D. Barry, M. D.
Thomas Osler, Esq.

St. Patrick's or
Swift's Hospital for
Lunatics.

TABLE, No. 3.

RETURN of PATIENTS treated in this Hospital from 1st March 1834 to the 28th February 1835, both days included.

CLASS OF PATIENTS.	Sex of Patients.		In the Hospital on the 1st March 1834.	Admitted up to Feb. 28th 1835.	Total treated during the Year, both days included.	Discharged Cured.	Removed Incurable.	Transferred to	Died.	Remaining this day.	Of these are considered		Total Amount paid by each Class.	GENERAL OBSERVATIONS.
											Curable.	Incurable.
First class boarders, paying 100 guineas per annum - {	Males	3	3	2	5	1	-	-	-	4	-	4	£. s. d.	The 130 lunatics now remaining have been all admitted within the last 55 years as under :
	Females	3	3	-	3	-	-	-	-	3	-	3	- - -
		6	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	735 - -
Second class boarders, paying 60 guineas per annum {	Males	8	8	7	15	4	-	3d class 1	2	8	1	7	-	From the year 1780 to 1790 - 1
	Females	10	10	7	17	2	-	5th class 2	1	12	3	9	-
		18	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-
Third class boarders, paying 30 guineas per annum {	Males	5	5	2	7	2	-	-	3	3	-	3	1,260 - -	1790 to 1800 - 6
	Females	11	11	2	13	3	1	-	-	9	-	9	-
		16	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-
Fourth class boarders, paying indefinite sums - {	Males	5	5	-	5	-	-	-	-	6	-	6	-	1800 to 1810 - 28
	Females	1	1	-	1	-	-	-	-	1	-	1	-
		6	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-
Fifth class, paupers - {	Males	42	42	-	42	-	-	4th class 1	1	40	-	40	-	1810 to 1820 - 27
	Females	42	43	1	42	1	-	-	-	44	1	43	-
		84	131	21	150	13	1	4	7	130	5	125	-
													378 - -	1820 to 1830 - 28
													-	1830 to 1835 - 40
													189 19 11½	Total - - 130
													2,562 19 11½

TABLE No. 4.

RETURN of the Names, Ages, Date of Admission and Class of each Patient at present an Inmate of St. Patrick's Hospital, Dublin, 1 March 1835.

LUNATIC
ASYLUMS.Leinster.
City of Dublin.Examinations taken
Sir D. Barry, M.D.
Thomas Osler, Esq.St. Patrick's or
Swift's Hospital for
Lunatics.

No.	NAME.	Age, Years.	Class.	Date of Admission.	Annual Sum paid.			OBSERVATIONS.
					£.	s.	d.
1	Mr. H. - - -	73	1st	6 Jan. 1799	105	-	-	Though recently admitted, incurable.
2	Mrs. M. - - -	64	1st	29 Feb. 1804	105	-	-
3	Mr. R. - - -	78	1st	9 Sep. 1806	105	-	-
4	Miss B. - - -	76	1st	3 May 1810	105	-	-
5	Mr. W. - - -	53	1st	30 July 1812	105	-	-
6	Mrs. S. - - -	44	1st	23 Feb. 1812	105	-	-
7	Mr. S. - - -	32	1st	23 Dec. 1834	105	-	-
					735	-	-
1	Mr. C. - - -	61	2d	12 May 1801	63	-	-	Admitted 25th January 1817, recovered and relapsed.
2	Mr. M. - - -	55	2d	18 Feb. 1805	63	-	-
3	Mrs. D. - - -	70	2d	19 Sep. 1807	63	-	-
4	Mrs. L. - - -	72	2d	29 Nov. 1809	63	-	-
5	Mr. H. - - -	65	2d	13 Dec. 1812	63	-	-
6	Mr. W. - - -	48	2d	18 June 1816	63	-	-
7	Miss L. - - -	52	2d	5 April 1818	63	-	-
8	Mrs. B. - - -	46	2d	24 June 1820	63	-	-	In a private asylum before admission. Paralytic.
9	Mrs. L. - - -	58	2d	2 Jan. 1821	63	-	-
10	Miss G. - - -	31	2d	3 July 1827	63	-	-
11	Miss C. - - -	52	2d	15 July 1830	63	-	-
12	Mr. S. - - -	24	2d	23 Nov. 1831	63	-	-
13	Mr. C. - - -	23	2d	12 Feb. 1834	63	-	-
14	Mr. T. - - -	61	2d	3 July 1834	63	-	-	An idiot. Was ill a long period pre- vious to admission.
15	Miss B. - - -	25	2d	3 July 1834	63	-	-
16	Mr. M. - - -	30	2d	4 July 1834	63	-	-
17	Mrs. A. - - -	34	2d	26 Nov. 1834	63	-	-
18	Miss A. - - -	47	2d	24 Feb. 1835	63	-	-
19	Mrs. M. - - -	31	2d	24 Feb. 1835	63	-	-
20	Mrs. L. - - -	47	2d	17 Feb. 1835	63	-	-
					1260	-	-
1	Miss H. - - -	40	3d	26 July 1830	31	10	-	Ill 4 years previous to admission; Admitted from a private asylum; ill three years previous to admission. Admitted from a private asylum where she had been for 3 years. From a private asylum. Her second admission, having previously recovered.
2	Miss C. - - -	38	3d	24 June 1831	31	10	-
3	Mr. S. - - -	40	3d	16 Sep. 1831	31	10	-
4	Miss P. - - -	34	3d	20 Nov. 1832	31	10	-
5	Mr. L. - - -	32	3d	4 Dec. 1832	31	10	-
6	Mrs. B. - - -	70	3d	7 May 1832	31	10	-
7	Miss M. - - -	41	3d	25 April 1833	31	10	-
8	Miss M. - - -	22	3d	5 June 1833	31	10	-	Returned ill from the East Indies. Ill 8 years previous to admission; Was in a private asylum, reco- vered in this institution, and was re-admitted.
9	Mrs. B. - - -	44	3d	30 Nov. 1833	31	10	-
10	Mr. R. - - -	26	3d	10 Feb. 1834	31	10	-
11	Mrs. C. - - -	66	3d	17 Feb. 1834	31	10	-
12	Miss D. - - -	35	3d	11 April 1834	31	10	-
					378	-	-
1	Richard B. - -	65	4th	3 Mar. 1812	42	-	-	Half-pay officer, sent home ill from Portugal. A half-pay Ensign. On half-pay, the house not yet in receipt of his pension: A pensioner, Galway Militia. A nun from George's Hill convent. A pensioner.
2	James M. - -	61	4th	12 July 1812	53	10	7
3	Laurence D. - -	55	4th	8 May 1815	-	-	-
4	William B. - -	42	4th	27 July 1818	13	-	-
5	Catherine K. - -	60	4th	7 May 1819	14	15	4
6	David J. - -	45	4th	1 July 1826	12	18	8
7	Francis C. - -	50	4th	18 Jan. 1828	53	15	4
					189	19	11½
1	John Adams - -	70	5th	4 May 1788	-	-	-	An idiot from birth.
2	Mark Kerr - -	68	5th	2 May 1795	-	-	-
3	Thomas Mills - -	66	5th	7 Sep. 1795	-	-	-
4	Anne Caiset - -	65	5th	1 Dec. 1796	-	-	-
5	Catherine Foran -	41	5th	14 Aug. 1797	-	-	-
6	Robert Kearney -	54	5th	29 May 1799	-	-	-
7	James Hughes -	56	5th	4 May 1800	-	-	-
8	Samuel Ross - -	64	5th	5 May 1800	-	-	-	An idiot from birth. Ditto ditto.
9	Ann Bowen - -	51	5th	2 Feb. 1801	-	-	-
10	James Coyle - -	47	5th	28 May 1802	-	-	-
11	Robert M'Clean -	53	5th	2 Aug. 1802	-	-	-

LUNATIC ASYLUMS.	No.	NAME.	Age, Year.	Class.	Date of Admission.	Annual Sum paid.	OBSERVATIONS.
Leinster.	12	William Taaffe -	60	5th	4 Dec. 1802	- - -
City of Dublin.	13	Kitty Norton -	46	5th	5 Dec. 1802	- - -
	14	T. Warmingham	56	5th	31 Jan. 1804	- - -
Examinations taken Sir D. Barry, M.D. Thomas Osler, esq.	-5	M. Bickerton -	68	5th	4 Feb. 1805	- - -
	16	Garret Dempsy -	62	5th	4 Mar. 1805	- - -
	17	Ann Foley -	65	5th	25 Mar. 1805	- - -
St. Patrick's or Swift's Hospital for Lunatics.	18	Michael Money -	50	5th	4 Nov. 1805	- - -	An idiot from birth.
	19	George Gough -	58	5th	4 May 1805	- - -
	20	Charlotte Hays -	46	5th	" 1806	- - -	A congenital idiot.
	21	Ann Hyland -	54	5th	3 Oct. 1806	- - -
	22	Mary Dempsy -	58	5th	11 Dec. 1806	- - -	A congenital idiot, paralytic of left lower limb.
	23	Ann Starkey -	60	5th	7 Feb. 1807	- - -	An idiot.
	24	John Crook -	65	5th	2 Feb. 1807	- - -
	25	Ann Tandy -	89	5th	23 Mar. 1807	- - -
	26	Charlotte Maw -	40	5th	25 Mar. 1808	- - -	A congenital idiot.
	27	Edward Hughes -	60	5th	19 Feb. 1809	- - -	An idiot.
	28	Patrick Cooney -	59	5th	7 Aug. 1809	- - -
	29	Francis Brunton	50	5th	Mar. 1810	- - -	An idiot.
	30	Thos. O'Brien -	50	5th	4 Feb. 1811	- - -	Ditto.
	31	Stephen Baird -	45	5th	9 May 1811	- - -	Ditto.
	32	Ann Carleton -	40	5th	13 Jan. 1812	- - -	Idiot from birth.
	33	Mrs. Bamber -	52	5th	5 May 1812	- - -
	34	Francis Sutton -	50	5th	July 1812	- - -
	35	Mary M'Nally -	36	5th	5 Dec. 1812	- - -	An idiot.
	36	George Homan -	45	5th	7 Nov. 1814	- - -	Ditto.
	37	Rosanna Bray -	40	5th	15 Mar. 1815	- - -
	38	M. Keary -	45	5th	1815	- - -	Recovered in the institution and re-admitted.
	39	John Shaw -	54	5th	27 June 1816	- - -	An idiot.
	40	Ellen Lennon -	40	5th	22 Oct. 1817	- - -	Recovered, relapsed and re- admitted.
	41	Mrs. Smith -	65	5th	" 1818	- - -	Hereditary.
	42	Sarah Rudd -	63	5th	" 1818	- - -	An idiot.
	43	Jos. M'Alister -	48	5th	23 Feb. 1819	- - -
	44	Ann Carroll -	60	5th	1819	- - -	An idiot.
	45	Ann Wild -	48	5th	7 Aug. 1820	- - -	Ditto.
	46	Patrick Crosby -	37	5th	2 Nov. 1820	- - -
	47	M. Murphy -	58	5th	16 Dec. 1820	- - -	Recovered and discharged, her third admission.
	48	Cath. Nowlan -	33	5th	1821	- - -	Admitted a cripple, paralytic of lower extremities.
	49	Ann Caulfield -	47	5th	1821	- - -
	50	Rich. Mortimer -	42	5th	" 1822	- - -	An idiot from birth.
	51	Thos. Francis -	42	5th	13 Mar. 1822	- - -	Ditto.
	52	Richard Egan -	33	5th	8 June 1822	- - -
	53	Robt. Ruddock -	47	5th	25 June 1822	- - -
	54	Thos. Reilly -	40	5th	1824	- - -
	55	Wm. Fleming -	31	5th	1824	- - -
	56	Cath. O'Brien -	44	5th	1824	- - -
	57	Maurice Foster -	36	5th	3 May 1824	- - -
	58	M. Dwyer -	38	5th	2 Aug. 1824	- - -	An idiot.
	59	Mary M'Little -	38	5th	2 Aug. 1824	- - -
	60	Ann Shaw -	54	5th	1825	- - -
	61	M. Seville -	50	5th	1825	- - -
	62	Mary Stoker -	40	5th	3 Nov. 1828	- - -	From the Richmond Asylum.
	63	Jos. Peacock -	30	5th	4 April 1829	- - -	Twice in a private asylum.
	64	Thos. Fitzgerald	37	5th	3 Aug. 1829	- - -
	65	Patrick Kelly -	40	5th	11 June 1829	- - -	Recovered and re-admitted.
	66	Lucy Herbert -	41	5th	28 Nov. 1829	- - -
	67	Bridget Keogh -	40	5th	3 Jan. 1830	- - -	Diseased brain from injury.
	68	Joshua Wilson -	25	5th	4 Mar. 1830	- - -
	69	Alicia Mooney -	32	5th	1 June 1830	- - -
	70	Henry Cronhelin	50	5th	4 Feb. 1831	- - -
	71	Jas. Finnegan -	35	5th	1 Aug. 1831	- - -
	72	Sarah Lynam -	26	5th	1 Aug. 1831	- - -
	73	Ann Rudd -	65	5th	17 Nov. 1831	- - -	Sister of Sarah Rudd. An idiot from birth.
	74	Ellen Brennan -	23	5th	7 May 1832	- - -
	75	Hannah Ball -	30	5th	7 Nov. 1831	- - -	From a private asylum.
	76	Henry Keane -	32	5th	7 May 1832	- - -	Brother of Lucy Herbert.
	77	Henry Herbert -	35	5th	19 May 1832	- - -	An idiot from birth.
	78	Miss Baily -	32	5th	22 Aug. 1832	- - -	A congenital idiot.
	79	Miss Davis -	31	5th	17 May, 1833	- - -	Paralytic.
	80	Joseph Hines -	63	5th	8 June 1833	- - -
	81	Miss Nicholson -	26	5th	20 Dec. 1833	- - -
	82	Robert Dyas -	22	5th	6 Nov. 1826	- - -	An idiot and epileptic.
	83	Westley Harris -	23	5th	3 Feb. 1834	- - -	An idiot from a private asylum.
	84	Miss Irwin -	19	5th	3 Nov. 1834	- - -	Convalescent, but not fit to be dismissed; an intermittent case.

TABLE No. 5.

TABLE No. 5.

RETURN of SERVANTS now actually employed and paid in this Institution.

No.	NAMES.	NATURE of DUTIES.	Age.	Number of Years employed.	Emoluments derived from the Establishment :
					Average Amount of Perquisites (if any) per Annum.	Amount of Wages.	Total Amount of Emoluments per Annum.
						£. s. d.	£. s. d.
1	Thomas Noble -	Ward-keeper & servant to boarder	45	20	-	47 5 -	47 5 -
2	Susan Wilson -	ditto - - -	44	8	-	47 5 -	47 5 -
3	Sylvester Skelly -	Ward-keepe - - -	45	20	-	26 5 -	26 5 -
4	Catherine Moore -	ditto - - -	40	16	-	26 5 -	26 5 -
5	Mary Neill -	ditto - - -	56	22	-	26 5 -	26 5 -
6	Margaret Tyrrell -	ditto - - -	40	19	-	26 5 -	26 5 -
7	Henry May -	Servant to boarder - - -	43	9 $\frac{3}{4}$	-	21 - -	21 - -
8	James Bowen -	ditto - - -	35	13 $\frac{3}{4}$	-	21 - -	21 - -
9	Richard Mullin -	ditto - - -	29	5	-	21 - -	21 - -
10	Jane Noble -	ditto - - -	40	17	-	21 - -	21 - -
11	Harriet Dunwell -	ditto - - -	40	8	-	21 - -	21 - -
12	Ann Devlin -	Laundress - - -	56	9 $\frac{3}{4}$	-	63 - -	63 - -
13	Andrew O'Neill -	Front gate porter - - -	40	2	-	21 - -	21 - -
14	John Hopewell -	Garden gate ditto - - -	44	1 $\frac{1}{2}$	-	21 - -	21 - -
15	Mary Hickey -	Cook - - -	40	1 $\frac{1}{2}$	-	18 18 -	18 18 -
16	John Byrne -	Barber - - -	33	18	-	12 12 -	12 12 -
17	Patrick Castles -	} Servants to 60-guinea boarders, } not paid by the institution. }
18	Barnaby Archbold -
					£.	441 - -	441 - -

TABLE No. 6.

NOMINAL RETURN of OFFICERS now actually employed and paid, or acting gratuitously, in this Institution.

No.	NAMES.	NATURE of DUTIES.	Age.	Number of Years employed.	Emoluments derived from the Establishment
					Average Amount of Fees or other Emoluments per Annum.	Amount of Fixed Salary.	Average Total Amount of Fees, Salaries, or other Emoluments per Annum.
					£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.
1	Rev. T. Russell Cradock	Secretary - - -	55	15	-	-	-
2	Doctor Crampton -	Physician - - -	60	9	129 17 -	-	129 17 -
3	James W. Cusack, esq.	Surgeon - - -	40	21	68 19 -	-	68 19 -
4	Patrick Campbell -	Master of the hospital - - -	67	22	-	138 9 4	138 9 4
5	Sarah Campbell -	Matron - - -	67	10	-	92 6 2	92 6 2
6	John & James Ver- schoyle, esquires -	{ Agents to the Saggard, } { Golden Bridge & Dublin estates }	81 & 31	9	{ 5 per cent. on money rec ^d	-	-
7	Sandham Symes, esq.	Agent to the Wexford estate	45	-	-	-	-
8	Henry Rooke -	Law agent - - -	35	11	5 p'cent. on do.	-	-
9	V. Dillon Cole -	Assistant clerk & collector	35	6	-	50 - -	50 - -

These are averaged for the last three years.

TABLE No. 7.

RETURN of the Number of Patients of all Classes admitted, discharged, cured, removed by friends and died in the following Years:

1st Class, 100-Guinea Boarders.	2d Class, 60-Guinea Boarders.	3d Class, 30-Guinea Boarders.	4th Class, Indefinite Sums.	5th Class, Paupers.	Removed, Cured.	Removed, Incurable.	Died.
From 5th January 1832 to 5th January 1833 :
2	3	17	-	3	10	7	8
From 5th January 1833 to 5th January 1834 :
1	8	11	-	-	14	9	9
From 5th January 1834 to 5th January 1835 :
2	13	8	-	2	12	1 Epileptic	8
Total	5	24	36	-	5	36	17
							25

TABLE No. 8.—Showing the PRICES of the principal Articles of Provisions purchased for the Use of the Lunatics of St. Patrick's or Swift's Hospital for Lunatics and for the Inmates of the Richmond District Lunatic Asylum respectively, with the respective Expenses incurred for the yearly Feeding, Clothing, Medicine, and all other Expenses of one Inmate, Servants included.

Names of Institutions.	Mutton, per lb. with Bone.	Beef, per lb. $\frac{1}{2}$ Bone.	Bones, per lb.	New Milk, per Imperial Gallon.	Bread at per Cent. under assize price.	Potatoes per cwt.	Coals per ton.	Soap, best white, per cwt.	Yellow ditto, ditto.	Candles, dips, per dozen lbs.	Candles, mould, per dozen lbs.	Straw per cwt.	Beer, small, per Barrel.	Expense of One Patient every thing included.	Daily Expense of One Inmate for Diet only.	Annual Expense for Clothing One Patient.	Annual Expense for Medicine for One Patient, Drs' Salaries not included.
St. Patrick's, or Swift's Hospital.	Mutton for boarders, with bone, $5\frac{1}{2}$ per lb.	Beef for pauper patients, with round bones only, 4d. per lb., previously to Dec. 1833. 3 $\frac{1}{2}$ d. ditto.	Bones, equal to $\frac{1}{2}$ weight of beef, previously to Dec. 1833. being taken at 1d. per lb., for soup.	6 $\frac{1}{2}$ d. per imperial gallon.	10 per cent. under the Lord Mayor's assize.	2s. 5d. per cwt.	15s. 4d. per ton, delivered.	3s. per cwt.	Not used here.	6s. per dozen lbs.	7s. per dozen lbs.	1s. 8d. per cwt.	18s. 5 $\frac{1}{2}$ d. table beer.	For the year 1832, £29. 1. 11 $\frac{1}{2}$. For the year 1834, £32. 5. 4.	8 $\frac{1}{2}$ d. for the year 1832, meat diet being then given but three times a week as in the Richmond at present.		2s. 8s.
Richmond Lunatic Asylum.	None used here. ²	£1. 2. 6. per cwt. or 2d. $\frac{1}{12}$ per lb.	20 lbs. bone the same price as beef, that allowance to every 100 lbs. weight of beef boned.	5 $\frac{1}{2}$ d. per imperial gallon.	3 21 per cent. under the Lord Mayor's assize.	2s. 2d. per cwt.	15s. 3d. per ton, delivered.	28s. per cwt.	20s. per cwt.	5s. 6d. per dozen lbs.	6s. 6d. per dozen lbs.	1s. 6d. per cwt.	16s. per barrel.	£17. 2. 6. last year, 1834.	About 4 $\frac{1}{2}$ d. per day for the year 1834.	Outfit of a female patient 16s. 4 $\frac{1}{2}$ d. Outfit of a male patient, £1. 7. 7. ⁴	About 2s. 9 $\frac{1}{2}$ d. per head.

ST. PATRICK'S HOSPITAL.

Mr. Goodwin, the butcher, has supplied all the meat to St. Patrick's for the last 10 or 12 years. The same coal merchant has supplied the coals for the last five years. The same chandler, soap and candles for the last nine or ten years. The same milkman, milk for as many years. In fact, competition is not invited for the supply of any article. The same individual at present furnishes potatoes, milk, butter and straw.

¹ This calculation is made upon 49,855 days' support issued at St. Patrick's in 1832, and upon 1,757l. 3s. 7d. charged in that year for provisions, the accounts for neither 1833 nor 1834 being yet made out.

Notes added at the RICHMOND.

² The contract price of mutton at present at Simpson's Hospital, is 4 $\frac{1}{2}$ d. per pound for legs of wether mutton, and laps and rounds of ox beef.

³ Great competition for the contract.

⁴ The male patient's clothing, with repairing, lasts upwards of a year. Most of the female clothing, with repairing, lasts from a year and a half to two years.

TABLE No. 9.—TABLE showing the average Annual INCOME and EXPENDITURE of both Establishments for the last Three Years, the number of Lunatics and Servants maintained by each during that time, and some of the results of their respective Plans of Management.

Names of Institutions.	Yearly Income averaged for the last Three Years.	Yearly Expenditure averaged for the last Three Years.	Average Number of Lunatics maintained each day during that time.	Absolute Numbers.			Now Remaining.		Attendants.		Average number of days' Support given in One Year by each Institution, Servants included.	Total Amount of Salaries for One Year (average).	Total Amount of Wages for One Year, 1834.	Amount received from Boarder Lunatics or Pay Patients annually, averaged on the last Three Years.	Amount Received Yearly, or saved to the Institution by Work done by the Lunatics; such as Weaving, Spinning, Knitting, Tailoring, &c.
				Admitted during the Three Years.	Discharged Cured.	Removed not Cured.	Considered Curable.	Total Remaining this day.	Number of Officers.	Number of Servants.
St. Patrick's, or Swift's Hospital for Lunatics.	Income for 1834, £6,231. 17. 4 $\frac{1}{2}$. Years ending in Jan. 1833, £3957. 3. 4 $\frac{1}{2}$. 1834, 3199. 17. 1. 1835, 4195. 1. 6. average, £3784. - 8. ¹	Years ending in Jan. 1833, £2957. 3. 4 $\frac{1}{2}$. 1834, 3199. 17. 1. 1835, 4195. 1. 6. average, £3784. - 8. ¹	In 1832, 136. 1833, 131. 1834, 130. average 132 $\frac{1}{2}$.	70	36	17	5	125	5 ² .	16 ³ not clothed, fed or washed for.	49,855 ⁴ in the year 1832.	£614. 6. 4. for the year 1832.	£441. - -	£3276. 4. 6 $\frac{1}{2}$.	Nothing whatever received for, nor saved to the institution by work done by the lunatics.
Richmond Lunatic Asylum.	Years ending 24th January in 1832, 1833, 1834. ¹	£4947. 5. 2. In the above sum is included near £700. for erecting sheds in the airing grounds of the asylum.	Jan. 24, 1833, 233 patients, ditto 1834, 253 patients, ditto 1835, 271 patients.	449	208	4	170	102	9 ² .	44 servants all clothed, fed and washed for.	114,975 ³ in the year 1834.	£703 1. -	£373. 14. 3.	£111. 8. 1.	£1. 1. 3. per head has been saved during the last year, as compared with the former year, which may be classed under the above head, as also in coals, laundry, &c. &c. ⁴

ST. PATRICK'S HOSPITAL.

¹ Every charge not strictly referable to the inmates being excluded.

² Neither the secretary to the board, nor the two land agents, nor the law agent are included.

³ None of the servants are fed, clothed or washed for at St. Patrick's.

⁴ The average number of days' support is calculated upon 136 patients only, no diet being given to servants.

Notes added at the RICHMOND.

¹ The income is received through advances made by the treasury, which the respective counties comprising the district allotted to this asylum afterwards repay.

² Viz. Moral Manager 1; Matron 1; Physician 1; Surgeon 1; Chaplains 2; Accountant 1; Apothecary 1; Clerk and Storekeeper 1; Total 9.

³ The number of days' support is calculated upon 271 patients and 44 servants, fed, clothed and washed for during the three years.

DOCUMENT, No. 10.

RICHMOND DISTRICT LUNATIC ASYLUM, 1st January 1835.

Gentlemen,—I HAVE the honour to submit to you the following report of this asylum, from 1st January 1834 to 1st January 1835:—

LUNATIC
ASYLUMS.

Leinster.

City of Dublin.

Examinations taken by
Sir D. Barry, M.D.
Thomas Osler, esq.St. Patrick's or
Swift's Hospital for
Lunatics.

	Males.	Females.	Total.
In the asylum, 1st January 1834 - - - - -	118	146	264
Admitted from 1st January 1834 to 1st January 1835 - - - - -	74	58	132
TOTAL under treatment during the year - - - - -	192	204	396
Discharged recovered from 1st January 1834 to 1st January 1835 -	33	41	74
Ditto - relieved in the above period - - - - -	14	11	25
Ditto - unrelieved, and taken by friends - - - - -	1	-	1
Ditto - to the Richmond Surgical Hospital, his leg amputated by surgeon Adams - - - - -	1	-	1
Transferred to House of Industry - - - - -	1	2	3
Died - - - - -	14	6	20
	64	60	124
Remaining in the asylum, 1st January 1835 - - - - -	128	144	272
DISTRIBUTION by COUNTIES:
City of Dublin - - - - -	66	79	145
County - ditto - - - - -	30	40	70
Ditto - Louth - - - - -	3	6	9
Ditto - Meath - - - - -	15	10	25
Ditto - Wicklow - - - - -	11	6	17
Ditto - Town of Drogheda - - - - -	1	-	1
Strangers from other counties - - - - -	2	3	5
	128	144	272

State of the cases remaining—

Convalescent - - - - -	17
Cases that may be considered curable - - - - -	153
Cases that may be considered incurable - - - - -	102
Total - - - - -	272

WORK ACCOUNT.

Weaving by Male Patients.

1,325 yards of linen.
1,045 yards of twilled calico.
770 yards of plain - ditto.
40 yards of lindsey.

Total - - 3,180 yards of all descriptions.

Tailoring by Male Patients.

36 jackets.
53 pair of cloth trowsers.
29 vests.

House-work by Female Patients.

369 pairs of stockings for the asylum.
144 - - ditto - - for House of Recovery, Cork-street, to order.
68 - - ditto - - for St. Patrick's Hospital, to order.
48 - - ditto - - for Richmond Institution for blind, to order.

Shirts - - - - -	144
Servants' shirts - - - - -	12
Shifts - - - - -	92
Lindsey petticoats - - - - -	91
Blue lindsey ditto - - - - -	85
Quilts - - - - -	113
Day-caps - - - - -	266
Sheets - - - - -	162

LUNATIC
ASYLUMS.
Birmingham
Leinster
City of Dublin.
Examinations taken by
Sir D. Barry, M.D.
Thomas Osler, esq.
St. Patrick's or
Swift's Hospital for
Lunatics.

Pillow cases	-	-	-	65
Bed-ticks	-	-	-	33
Strait-vests	-	-	-	10
Wrappers	-	-	-	100
Hanks of yarn spun	-	-	-	727
Ditto fine ditto	-	-	-	43
Shoes repaired for servants	-	-	-	22 pairs.
Gowns for patients	-	-	-	7
Gravel broken for roads and walks	-	-	-	1,400 bushels.

Besides keeping the entire of the clothing and bedding, &c. &c., in good repair during the past year.

I beg leave to mention, that whatever could be effected for the employment of the patients has been adopted, and am happy to say with success. The premium the governor kindly allows them for their work enables them to procure a few additional comforts, which makes them comparatively happy, and is attended with the best effects as to their recovery.

Our discharges for the past year have (although our accommodation has been more limited in consequence of the increase of incurables) exceeded the former year by seven patients, three-fourths having been discharged as compared with the admissions.

I have also to add, that a considerable saving has been effected in the expenditure last year, without at all abridging the comforts of the patients.

I would beg leave to refer the governors to the letter of Mr. Wm. Murray, the architect, as to the plan generally adopted for procuring additional ground for district asylums, and beg to impress on the minds of the board the great want of employment for the male patients, in consequence of not having a sufficiency of ground.

I once more beg leave to offer my humble meed of thankfulness to the governors for their kindness in allowing, at my suggestion, any improvement that they found necessary for the general management and comfort of the patients.

I have the honour to be, Gentlemen,

Your most obedient, humble servant,

(signed) Saml. Wrigley, Manager.

Medical Officers. The medical officers-in-chief consist of six surgeons, elected by ballot, by the guardians and overseers. The town is divided into a similar number of districts, one allotted to each surgeon. Each surgeon likewise attends at the infirmary two days in the week to see his out-patients. For the out-patients there is a waiting-room and surgeon's room. Those sick who are in the infirmary or at their own homes are visited by their surgeon on such days, and as often as the case requires. These surgeons reside at their own private houses in the parish, and receive a salary of 80*l*. per annum each, and have no perquisites of any sort or kind. There is one house-surgeon or apothecary, who is unmarried, and boards and lodges in the house; his salary is fixed at 70*l*. per annum; it is his duty to visit each ward twice a day, and to attend to the minor cases in the house; he has nothing whatever to do with out-patients; he has two assistants in the apothecary's shop, one paid 80*l*. per annum, the other 1*l*. 5*s*. per week; one of these is provided with lodgings. The house-surgeon is not allowed to attend to private practice; the surgeons-in-chief of course do. The medicines are purchased by contract from a rate-payer, and a six months' supply is bought at a time. There is no distinction between medicines for out or in-patients; all are served from one shop. Leeches are procured monthly from London, and are placed under individuals whose sole duty it is to take care of them and apply them to both out and in-patients. About 3,000 are consumed monthly. Surgical instruments are provided for the surgeons by the parish, which likewise procures any medicines the surgeon desires, who can likewise order wine for both in and out-patients. Vaccination is performed only on the parish children; inoculation is never mentioned or thought of. Each in-patient, on admission, has entered in a book, his name, age, disease, date of admission, ward, name of his surgeon, and eventually the result. This is part of the duty of the house-surgeon. The in-patients average about 900 per annum. There are midwives appointed by the guardians to attend the labour cases; they send to Midwifery. Any poor person, provided he either resides in, or belongs to the parish, applies either personally or through some friend, at the workhouse for what is termed a doctor's note; obtained. he is never refused, and he thus becomes an out-patient. The note so procured is taken to the surgeon of the district, and, if presented before 10 A.M., the patient is visited the same day, otherwise the next; accidents form, of course, exceptions, and are immediately attended to. The out-patients average 18,000 per annum. Any guardian or overseer can give an in-patient a ticket, but by far the greater number of in-patients are admitted by a note from one of the surgeons-in-chief, and the urgency and nature of the case or destitution of the individual are the circumstances which determine the

COMMUNICATIONS.

SOME ACCOUNT of the PLAN adopted at BIRMINGHAM for affording MEDICAL RELIEF to the PARISH SICK POOR, by John R. Corrie, Esq. M.D., Assistant Commissioner.

THE Birmingham Parish Infirmary is an irregular building attached to the parish work-house, and is under the management of the guardians and overseers of the poor. It contains 10 wards of different sizes, built at various times, and not according to any preconcerted plan. For the males there are 40 beds; viz., in one ward 25 for miscellaneous cases; in another 11 for fevers; in a third 4 for the decrepit. For the females there is a ward containing 24 beds for miscellaneous cases, and another containing 11 for fevers; there are 11 beds for midwifery cases,* distributed in three small wards, to which is attached a small day-room or kitchen. There is a male venereal ward containing five beds, and a female one containing 11.

For insane males there are 33 beds in several cells or rooms, and 25 for insane females. The whole number of beds thus distributed amounts to 160, and it occasionally happens that two sick patients occupy one bed, and this is unavoidably the case at present, in many instances, in the female insane ward. In addition to the above-stated number there are three rooms appropriated to the infirm or convalescent women, visited daily by the house-surgeon, containing 25 beds; and there are at present 36 persons in this part of the establishment. The fever wards are approached by the same staircase as the wards for miscellaneous cases, and, as there is now very little fever in the town, the beds in them are occupied by persons suffering from general disease; should a case of fever or small-pox occur, it would be placed in one of them, but the present occupants would not be removed. Fever has never been known to spread through the house, and little or no apprehension of such an occurrence is entertained by the medical officers. The accommodation for the parish insane is confined, and the space for air and exercise very limited. The only classification is into the more or less cleanly; the former sleep up-stairs in cells containing two beds each, the latter on the ground-floor in cells containing only one bed each. The occupations for the males are pumping, and grinding corn; for the females, knitting, sewing, and assisting in the laundry. Violent or dangerous cases of insanity, both acute and chronic, are sent to the Stafford Asylum, the parish paying a fixed sum for each patient; and such likewise as are deemed curable, but more quickly and certainly so by the superior accommodation there than at Birmingham.

The medical officers-in-chief consist of six surgeons, elected by ballot, by the guardians and overseers. The town is divided into a similar number of districts, one allotted to each surgeon. Each surgeon likewise attends at the infirmary two days in the week to see his out-patients. For the out-patients there is a waiting-room and surgeon's room. Those sick who are in the infirmary or at their own homes, are visited by their surgeon on such days, and as often as the case requires. These surgeons reside at their own private houses in the parish, and receive a salary of 30*l.* per annum each, and have no perquisites of any sort or kind. There is one house-surgeon or apothecary, who is unmarried, and boards and lodges in the house; his salary is fixed at 70*l.* per annum; it is his duty to visit each ward twice a day, and to attend to the minor cases in the house; he has nothing whatever to do with out-patients; he has two assistants in the apothecary's shop, one paid 80*l.* per annum, the other 1*l.* 5*s.* per week; one of these is provided with lodgings. The house-surgeon is not allowed to attend to private practice; the surgeons-in-chief of course do.

The medicines are purchased by contract from a rate-payer, and a six months' supply is bought at a time. There is no distinction between medicines for out or in-patients; all are served from one shop. Leeches are procured, monthly, from London, and are placed under individuals whose sole duty it is to take care of them and apply them to both out and in-patients. About 3,000 are consumed monthly. Surgical instruments are provided for the surgeons by the parish, which likewise procures any medicines the surgeon desires, who can likewise order wine for both in and out-patients. Vaccination is performed only on the parish children; inoculation is never mentioned or thought of.

Each in-patient, on admission, has entered in a book, his name, age, disease, date of admission, ward, name of his surgeon, and eventually the result. This is part of the duty of the house-surgeon. The in-patients average about 900 per annum.

There are midwives appointed by the guardians to attend the labour cases; they send to the surgeons-in-chief in cases of difficulty.

Any poor person, provided he either resides in, or belongs to the parish, applies either personally or through some friend, at the workhouse for what is termed a doctor's note; he is never refused, and he thus becomes an out-patient. The note so procured is taken to the surgeon of the district, and, if presented before 10 A.M., the patient is visited the same day, otherwise the next; accidents form, of course, exceptions, and are immediately attended to. The out-patients average 18,000 per annum.

Any guardian or overseer can give an in-patient a ticket, but by far the greater number of in-patients are admitted by a note from one of the surgeons-in-chief, and the urgency and nature of the case or destitution of the individual are the circumstances which determine the

COMMUNICATIONS.

Birmingham Parish Infirmary.

J. R. Corrie, esq., M.D.

Building, Wards, &c. &c.

Medical Officers.

Pharmacy.

Registration.

Midwifery.

Medical Relief, how obtained.

Out Patients.

In-patients.

* Seven of these beds are occupied by the nurses.

COMMUNICATIONS.

Birmingham
Parish Infirmary.

J. R. Corrie, esq., M. D.

the selection. Non-parishioners are constantly admitted by the surgeons. When an out-patient cannot or does not choose to go into the infirmary a day-nurse to attend him at home is provided at the desire of the surgeon; in this case the patient must be a resident parishioner.

Table of Diet for the In-poor of the Birmingham Workhouse.

ORDINARY DIET.

	Breakfast.	Dinner.	Supper.
Sunday -	Rice milk - - -	Beef, vegetables and beer -	Broth with bread cut in it.
Monday -	Milk-porridge and bread	Bread, cheese and beer -	Milk-porridge and bread.
Tuesday -	As Monday - - -	As Sunday - - -	As Sunday.
Wednesday	As Monday - - -	{ Peas-soup, or Irish stew, with an allowance of bread - }	As Monday.
Thursday -	As Sunday - - -	As Sunday - - -	As Sunday.
Friday -	As Monday - - -	As Monday - - -	As Monday.
Saturday -	As Monday - - -	As Wednesday - - -	As Monday.

SICK DIET.

The same as the ordinary diet, only that mutton is allowed for dinner in the place of beef, and rice-pudding instead of bread and cheese or soup.

LOW DIET.

	Breakfast.	Dinner.	Supper.
Every day in } the Week - }	Milk-porridge and bread	{ Bread, broth and } pudding - - }	{ Gruel, or milk-porridge and bread.

Barley-water or imperial, as a beverage, ad libitum. Wine, &c., as prescribed by the surgeons.

Management.

The guardians and overseers of the poor have formed committees, at which five are a quorum, and of which each guardian and overseer, if he chooses, is a member. The name of the committee rather distinguishes the nature of the business to be transacted than the individuals upon it. Before a medical committee of this description, and on which there is no medical man, all matters relating to the medical department are brought. It meets monthly; the house-surgeon attends and gives in a list of the medicines, surgical instruments, &c., wanted. The surgeons-in-chief have nothing whatever to do with ordering or purchasing any article whatsoever; if they want any particular instrument or medicine, they desire the house-surgeon to see that it is procured. Of course no medical article of any kind, which is not the property of the workhouse, is kept there. If any patient conceives himself neglected, he informs any guardian, and the case is sure to be inquired into.

Reports.

A numerical report is made quarterly to the guardians, and a weekly one is published in the newspapers. The following is a report for the week ending March 10, 1835:

	Men.	Women.	Boys.	Girls.	INFANTS.		Total.
					Male.	Female.
In the house on Monday } night last week - - }	171	181	12	11	10	4	389
Admitted since - - -	7	8	-	-	3	1	19
Born in the house - -	-	-	-	-	-	-	-
Subtract as below * - -	178 7	189 5	12 1	11 3	13 -	5 -	408 16
Total of each - -	171	184	11	8	13	5	392
Discharged and absconded -	3	3	1	2
Deaths - - - -	5	2	-	1
* Total - -	7	5	1	3

T. Alcock, Governor.

Number of out-poor cases relieved last week - - - - 3,611
Number of children in the asylum - - - - 230

W. W. Bynner, Vestry Clerk.
There

There is no separate account kept of the whole expenses attending the medical department. The only medical items mentioned in the printed annual statement of the parish expenditure for the year ending Lady-day 1834, are:

	£.	s.	d.
By drugs, leeches and sundry surgical expenses - - - - -	1,047	14	8½
Surgeons' salaries - - - - -	180	-	-
House-apothecary's salary, with board and lodging - - - - -	70	-	-
Assistants in surgery - - - - -	130	16	-
	£. 1,428	10	8½

COMMUNICATIONS.

Birmingham
Parish Infirmary.

J. R. Corrie, esq., M.D.

Accounts.

AN ACCOUNT of the STAFFORDSHIRE GENERAL LUNATIC ASYLUM, by John R. Corrie, Esq., M.D., Assistant Commissioner, April 1835.

Staffordshire
General Lunatic
Asylum.

Building, &c.

THIS asylum is situated close to the town of Stafford on a slightly elevated piece of ground, and fronts towards the south. It is a long, red brick building four stories high, each story nearly similarly disposed. The annexed plan will give some idea of the distribution of the wards, offices, &c. In the centre, marked A., are the superintendent's and matron's apartments; they extend the whole height of the building. The chief entrance and principal staircase are likewise here, the latter gives direct access to each floor. In the basement towards the centre are the kitchens, sculleries, store-room, &c., having immediately behind the brewhouse [5] and wash-house [6]. To the right hand, on entering, are the wards for the females, to the left, those for males. In the basement are the wards for the more violent and uncleanly of the patients, separated however into two classes by the partition O, so that the very worst are placed by themselves in their respective extremes of the building. On the first floor are the rooms for the first and second divisions of the first class patients; on the third and fourth stories the third division of the first class, and the second and third class patients are accommodated.* The corridors, marked B, are extremely well ventilated and warmed, having two open fire-places as well as an ample supply of hot air. These corridors are used as day-rooms, and by the partition O, form two each. The cells C, are thoroughly aired by holes in the doors, which open on the warm corridors, and by having large windows; each cell contains one bed only. The rooms marked E, contain six or eight beds, occupied by the most harmless and quiet of the patients.† On each floor is a bath-room, D, a nurse's or keeper's room, F, and a water-closet, K. In the basement is a cockle which supplies hot water and hot air to each floor. The drainage has been most carefully attended to; not only is the situation such as to afford a rapid fall of several feet, there is likewise a tank which is pumped full by the patients and let off about once a week to thoroughly cleanse every sewer. Great attention is paid to ventilation, and some improvements in this respect, introduced at the suggestion of the physician to the asylum have been most decidedly beneficial. Previously, the patients in the basement were liable to dysentery, a complaint which has since scarcely occurred.

That a lunatic asylum should be a building several stories high is objected to, especially by the French authorities, but no practical inconvenience is found to arise from such an arrangement at Stafford§.

Attached are about 30 acres of land, 15 laid out in useful and ornamental gardens, and 15 in pasturage for cows. This asylum was intended for 60 males and 60 females, but alterations have been effected which enable it to accommodate 193, by converting day-rooms, E, into sleeping-rooms, and by placing movable partitions in the corridors which divide them into single-bedded sleeping cells in the night, and leave them free for day-rooms in the day-time.

Incurables accumulate, but not rapidly.

The patients, according to the terms on which they are admitted, are divided into three classes. Patients.

First class patients are those who pay more than sufficient to meet their own expenditure; of this class there are three divisions. Classification.

1st division, those who pay 2*l.* 2*s.*, or 1*l.* 10*s.* 6*d.* per week.

2d. Those who pay 1*l.* 1*s.* per week. These two divisions are lodged on the first or principal floor.

3d. Division

* The number now in the asylum is 191, viz.;

38	First class patients.
25	Second class (on the Charitable Fund.)
28	Paupers not belonging to the county.
100	Belonging to the county.

Total - - 191

† The rooms E, originally day rooms, were converted into sleeping rooms to meet the demand for increased accommodation; by this and other alterations the building intended for 120 now contains 193.

‡ See Report on the Asylums in England and France by Mons. Ferrus, M.D., Paris 1834.

COMMUNICATIONS.

Staffordshire
General Lunatic
Asylum.

J. R. Corrie, esq., M.D.

3d. Division, those paying 12 s. or 15 s. per week ; these are placed in some of the other corridors, according to the nature of their disease.

Second class patients are those, who, paying 10 s. 6 d. to 2 s. 6 d. themselves, are likewise assisted by the charitable fund *.

Third class patients are the paupers, or those depending entirely on the county or parish rate. These are placed anywhere but on the first floor ; they may be sub-divided into

Pauper lunatics, Vagrant lunatics, Criminal lunatics, Dangerous idiots,	}	sent to the asylum by order of the justices, under the authority of the Act.
--	---	--

The county paupers are received at 5 s. per week ; the paupers from other counties 12 s. per week.

The patients (exclusive of those on the first floor) are further classed and lodged according to the variety of their disease, viz., the most noisy, violent and uncleanly, in the basement ; those only a little better, likewise in the basement, but separate. The more cleanly and quiet are placed in the upper wards. As each floor is divided into four compartments, by the partitions O, two for male and 2 for female, there are altogether 16 ; deducting, however, the four on the first floor, there remain 12 in which the bulk of the patients are distributed, so that not more than from 12 to 15 patients are in any one compartment. The resident medical superintendent is of opinion that a large number cannot advantageously be classed together.

Occupation of Patients.

For the first and second divisions of the first-class patients, there is a billiard table, piano, books, a very neatly laid-out airing ground, marked No. 1, a bowling-green and pleasure grounds to walk in. For the other patients, there is gardening, both useful and ornamental, some farming, brewing, pumping water for the use of the house, and they have three airing courts, 2, 3 and 4 in the place. The females are much occupied in sewing, knitting, assisting in the kitchen, wash-house and laundry. Something is found to be done by almost all but the utterly incapable. No trade has hitherto been attempted ; it is intended, however, when a vacancy occurs among the keepers to give the preference to a person understanding some business ; a tailor for example.

Treatment of Patients.

The treatment is extremely mild ; a few straps for the arms or hands, with liberty to walk about ; muffles, and occasionally the safety chair, are almost the only restraint resorted to. About 60 per annum are discharged cured or relieved.

Medical Officers.

The medical officers consist of one first physician, whose duties and authority are strictly defined by printed rules, so that no misunderstanding can well arise between him and the resident superintendent.—The physician does not reside in the establishment ; his salary is fixed at 150 l. per annum, and an annual fee from the first-floor patients) —and 2d. of one resident superintendent, who must be a member of the College of Surgeons. He, with his wife and family, occupies the principal part of the centre, marked A. ; he has a distinct establishment of servants, &c. ; his salary is 400 l. per annum, of course without board, coals, or candles ; he is likewise secretary and accountant ; the printed rules annexed accurately define his duty ; he is not allowed private practice. The situation of superintendent corresponds with that of manager in the Irish Asylums ; but here he must be a medical man, which cannot but be considered as a most wise regulation.

Registration.

It is most important to mention, that not only is the name, residence, age, &c., of every patient regularly entered on his admission, but it is a part of the physician's and superintendent's express duty to keep a case-book, in which is given a medical history of each patient, with the treatment and result. This book is the property of the asylum, and is never seen by any but authorized persons ; this, as it contains an account of every patient admitted since the opening of the institution in 1818, is now become a most valuable document. A similar one is kept, I believe, in every county asylum in England, and thus the good or bad effects of any particular mode of treatment that may have been adopted can be accurately ascertained.

Medical Instruction.

There is not, nor has there ever been, any medical instruction ; no pupils have ever attended the practice at the asylum, but both the physician and the superintendent are of opinion that pupils, under proper regulations, might attend without any inconvenience. Though post-mortem examinations have not been frequent, the physician omits no opportunity, and will, in future, he trusts, be able to inspect most who die within the walls. It is most important that he should do so, as thus only can be obtained a sure foundation for sound principles of, and sure improvements in, practice.

Attendants.

The matron, under whose care the housekeeping is placed, lodges and boards in the house ; salary 100 l. per annum.

Sub-officers and servants are five male keepers ; three assistant male keepers at from 20 l. to 30 l. per annum ; seven female keepers at from 12 l. to 15 l. per annum ; two house-maids, one cook, one laundry-maid, one errand-girl, one kitchen-maid.

The

* "The Subscription Fund" or "Charitable Fund," is a fund raised by voluntary subscriptions and contribution, and expressly designed for individuals resident in the county, who, being in reduced or needy circumstances, are unable to defray the whole charge, and not for parish paupers or the poorest classes.

- A. House Surgeon's Apartments
Committee room, Matron's room,
Principal Staircase, &c.
B. Corridors.
C. Single bedded cells
D. Bath rooms
E. Sleeping room for 8 beds.
F. Nurses & Keepers rooms
G. Staircases.
K. Water Closets.

1. Airing grounds or yards for 1st floor Patients.
2. Airing yards for the
3. other Patients.
4. other Patients.
5. Brewhouse.
6. Washhouse & Laundry.
7. Drying ground.
8. Out-Offices.

Height of Cells and Sleeping Rooms 10' 9".

The following is the diet table :—

PATIENTS' TABLE OF DIET.—MEN AND WOMEN.—1818.

	Breakfast.	Dinner.	Supper.
Monday - -	Gruel and oatmeal, with milk and 8 oz. of bread.	Eight oz. of meat (mutton or veal) when dressed; 4 oz. of bread. with vegetables and beer.	Eight oz. of bread, with 2 oz. of cheese or butter.
Tuesday - -	Ditto	Broth, or rice milk, or frumenty, pudding, vegetables and bread.	Ditto.
Wednesday - -	Ditto	Meat dinner as above.	Ditto.
Thursday - -	Ditto	Not a meat dinner.	Ditto.
Friday - -	Ditto	Meat dinner.	Ditto.
Saturday - -	Ditto	Not a meat dinner.	Ditto.
Sunday - -	Ditto	Meat dinner.	Ditto.

EXTRA FOR SICK.—Fish, mutton and broth, beef-tea, pudding, eggs, wine, porter, milk, &c.

The servants and keepers will have the same quantities of bread for breakfast and supper, and a meat dinner as above mentioned, to be sent every day from the kitchen, dressed, to the keepers' respective apartments, and a weekly ration of tea, sugar, butter and cheese, in the proportion of about 3 oz. of tea, $\frac{3}{4}$ lb. of sugar, $\frac{3}{4}$ lb. of butter, and $\frac{1}{2}$ lb. of cheese, by which means the keepers will be enabled to have their meals in their respective apartments, without neglecting their patients or interfering with the business of the kitchen.

The female pauper patients are allowed tea twice a day.

The allowance is ample and excellent; meat four times a week; tea twice a day for the females.

The first-floor patients occasionally dine at, and are always served from, the matron's table, and have every variety of plain food, such as they enjoyed when at home. It was not formerly the custom to allow tea to the pauper patients; but there was no quiet or comfort, (especially among the females,) till both it and tobacco were provided, and the withdrawal of both or either is a punishment much dreaded by the patients, and is a powerful means of control.

The management is vested by Act of Parliament, in the county magistrates, or such of them as they select from among themselves; there are weekly, quarterly, and annual meetings, at which orders are given and vouchers inspected.

The income, with the exception of the small sum obtained from the land, is derived from the patients, on the terms stated under the head "Classification of Patients." The income thus procured is sufficient, not only to maintain the lunatics, but likewise to provide additional furniture, linen, bedding, fixtures, and pay workmen's wages, at the expense, in 1834, of 850*l.* 2*s.* 8*d.*, which items must otherwise have been paid for by a county rate, as is the case in those asylums into which paupers only are received.

See annexed report which contains likewise an annual medical report, and a statistical résumé of the numbers of the patients admitted since the opening of the asylum in 1818. Such reports ought to be made by every asylum in the united kingdoms.

The annual expense per head per annum may be taken at 25*l.*, which somewhat exceeds that of the district lunatic asylums in Ireland, but the salaries here are higher and the diet much more expensive, not to mention the large items of tea, 123*l.*; malt and hops, 329*l.*, in 1834, and the extra expense attending the first-floor patients.

The Sixteenth Annual Report of the Visitors of the STAFFORDSHIRE GENERAL LUNATIC ASYLUM, from December 26, 1833, to December 25, 1834.

General Cash Account.

Receipts.	£.	s.	d.	Expenditure.	£.	s.	d.
To balance in the treasurer's hands, January 1, 1834 - - -	374	4	5	By the year's expenditure as specified below - - - - -	4,910	4	1
To receipts for care, maintenance and reimbursements for clothing and other expenses of patients -	5,351	12	2	By clothing and extra expenses of patients, charged in their respective accounts, and reimbursed, or to be reimbursed to the institution	637	16	7
To receipts for sale of barm -	14	11	1	By balance in the treasurer's hands	598	12	0
To receipts from money boxes -	7	8	6
* To receipts from the Subscription Fund - - - - -	398	16	6
	£. 6,146	12	8		£. 6,146	12	8

Abstract

* This excellent charity is expressly designed for the relief of individuals resident in the county, who, being in reduced or needy circumstances, are unable to defray the whole of the weekly charge made by the establishment for the care and maintenance of private patients.

COMMUNICATIONS.

Staffordshire
General Lunatic
Asylum.

J. R. Corrie, esq., M.D.

COMMUNICATIONS.

Staffordshire
General Lunatic
Asylum.

J. R. Corrie, esq., M.D.

Abstract of the Year's Expenditure.

	£.	s.	d.		£.	s.	d.
Bread, 4,888 stone	473	13	11	Brought forward	2,311	12	2
Butter, 1,785 pounds	96	17	3	Rates, taxes and insurance	39	7	5
Candles and lamp oil	24	19	8	Rice, 2,742 pounds	34	8	9
Cheese, 2 ton, 17 cwt. 3 qrs. 4 lbs.	146	5	10	Salaries, wages and occasional hire	1,158	7	5
Coal	197	7	10	Stationery, printing, advertisements,
Coffee, currants and raisins	40	10	11	stamps, expenses of letters and
Expenses in the grounds and gar-				parcels	63	18	-
dens, seeds, tools, &c.	59	13	5	Salt, pepper, mustard, vinegar, &c.	26	16	11
Fruit	1	17	7	Soap, starch, blue, &c.	43	13	3
Fish	4	6	3	Sugar, 3,333 pounds	96	11	11
Flour, 409 stone	38	16	-	Straw	51	3	-
Meat, 32,889 pounds	744	18	3	Tea, 493 pounds	123	6	-
Medicines, instruments, &c.	50	4	4	Tobacco and snuff	41	6	2
Malt, hops, &c.	329	2	8	Vegetables	6	8	-
Purchase of cows and pigs, and rent				Wine and spirits	28	1	8
of land	66	7	5	Mops, brooms, &c.	34	10	3
Oatmeal, barley flour, &c.	28	2	6	Furniture, linen and bedding	326	2	-
Poultry, eggs, &c.	8	8	4	Workmen's bills, fixtures, &c.	524	-	8
Carried forward	£. 2,311	12	2	Sundries and incidentals	-	10	6
					£. 4,910	4	1

Cash Account of the Subscription Fund.

Receipts.	£.	s.	d.	Expenditure.	£.	s.	d.
To balance in the treasurer's hands,				By transfer to the general cash ac-
January 1, 1834	263	3	5	count, for part maintenance of
To Christmas dividend on				patients who are admitted on this
2,898 l. 1 s. 10 d. 3 per cent. cons.	43	3	5	fund	398	16	6
To Midsummer dividend on				By purchase of 380 l. 13 s. 10 d.
3,278 l. 15 s. 8 d. 3 per cent. cons.	49	3	7	3 per cent. consols	345	-	-
To the executors of the late John				By balance in treasurer's hands	104	7	11
Bourne, Esq., of Great Fenton	200	-	-
To subscriptions during the year	291	8	-
To donations	1	-	-
	£. 848	4	5		£. 848	4	5

Cash Account of the Contingent Fund.

Receipts.	£.	s.	d.	Expenditure.	£.	s.	d.
To Christmas dividend on				By purchase of 40 l. 13 s. 3 per cent.
2,418 l. 10 s. 1 d. 3 per cent. cons.	36	5	6	consols	36	5	6
To Midsummer dividend on				By purchase of 40 l. 10 s. 9 d. 3 per
2,459 l. 3 s. 1 d. 3 per cent. cons.	36	17	9	cent. consols.	36	17	9
	£. 73	3	3		£. 73	3	3

 The income of the establishment has been adequate to meet every branch of its expenditure, during the past year, without the appropriation of any sum from the county rate for that purpose; the sum of 9 l. 16 s. 6 d. has been paid for the maintenance and clothing of a vagrant lunatic, now discharged, whose legal settlement could not be ascertained, and who became consequently, by law, chargeable to the county rate.

Charles Clarke,
Richard Beech,
W. E. Coldwell, } Auditors.

Annual Report of the Staffordshire General Lunatic Asylum, December 25, 1834.

Patients on the Books, December 26, 1833	-	-	-	183	} 316
Since admitted	-	-	-	133
Discharged recovered	-	-	-	51	} 115
Ditto relieved	-	-	-	16
Ditto by desire	-	-	-	15
Ditto as harmless and incurable	-	-	-	14
Died	-	-	-	19	} 201
Remaining in the House, December 25, 1834	-	-	-	-

Return of Patients admitted on, and discharged from, the Second Class, or Charitable Subscription Fund.

COMMUNICATIONS.

Staffordshire
General Lunatic
Asylum.

J. R. Corrie, esq., M.D.

Remaining on the books, December 26, 1833	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	23	} 42
Since admitted	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	19
Discharged recovered	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	8	} 14
Ditto relieved	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	5
Died	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	1
Remaining in the house, December 25, 1834	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	28

Statement of Patients in the House, December 25, 1834.

First class	-	-	-	-	Males 21	-	-	Females 18	-	Total 39	} 201
Second class	-	-	-	-	Do. 17	-	-	Do. 11	-	Do. 28
Third (or pauper) class	-	-	-	-	Do. 76	-	-	Do. 58	-	Do. 134
					114			87

Average number of patients throughout the year - - - - - 193

Medical Report of One Hundred and Thirty-three Patients admitted into the Lunatic Asylum during the year, showing the state of those who have left the House, and those who still remain, distinguishing recent from old cases.

General State of Patients when admitted.	HOW DISCHARGED.				State of those remaining.			Total.
	Recovered.	Relieved.	Incurable.	Died.	Improved.	Convalescent.	Remaining the same.
Recent Cases.
Maniacal	21	7	-	3	6	5	6	48
Melancholic	18	4	-	3	8	1	6	40
Old Cases.
Maniacal	-	1	-	2	4	-	7	14
Melancholic	1	1	2	-	1	-	5	10
Imbecile and idiotic	-	-	-	3	-	-	11	14
Epileptic & paralytic	-	-	-	1	-	-	6	7
	40	13	2	12	19	6	41	133

General Statement of Patients admitted, discharged, and now on the Books, from the opening of the Asylum, October 1, 1818, to December 25, 1834.

Total number of Admissions	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	1858
Discharged recovered	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	811	} 1657
Ditto relieved	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	232
Ditto by desire	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	108
Removed, being harmless and incurable	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	210
Died	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	296
Remaining under cure	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	60	} 201
Ditto incurable	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	126
Ditto ditto, epileptic and paralytic	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	15

General Statement of Patients.

YEARS ending December 25.	Number in the Asylum.	Number admitted during the Year.	Average during the Year.	Discharged cured.	Discharged relieved.	DEAD.
1831 - -	174	121	179	55	19	24
1832 - -	177	128	182	55	20	18
1833 - -	189	121	189	67	26	18
1834 - -	183	133	193	51	16	19
Total - -	-	303	-	208	81	79

Hence in round numbers it may be stated, that, in the course of the last four years three-fifths, or 60 per annum have been discharged cured or relieved, and one-sixth or 16 per annum have died. The same proportion seems to have been obtained since the opening of the asylum in 1818.

The grand total stands thus --

Admitted since 1818	-	-	-	-	-	-	1,858
Discharged cured or relieved	-	-	-	-	-	-	1,043
Died	-	-	-	-	-	-	296

0.5.

3 L 2

TABLE

COMMUNICATIONS.

TABLE of the EXPENDITURE at the STAFFORDSHIRE LUNATIC ASYLUM during the Years 1831-32-33-34.

Years ending Dec. 25.	1. Total Annual Expense in Salaries and Wages only.	2. Total Annual Expense in Food only.	3. Total Annual Expense in Furniture, Linen, and Bedding.	4. Workmen's Bills, Fixtures.	5. Total Expenditure including various sundries not in the foregoing items.	6. Average Ex- pense per Head per Annum, including every thing.	7. Cost pr Head per Annum, in Salaries only.	8. Cost pr Head per Annum in Food only.	9. Cost per Head per Week.	10. Cost per Head per Diem.
	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	s. d.	d.
1831	1,042 15 -	2,231 19 3	178 3 3	322 5 1	4,445 18 8½	24 16 9	5 16 5½	12 8 5	4 9½	8½
*1832	1,122 - 5	2,071 2 7½	259 10 6	1,257 9 6	5,372 7 11	28 13 10½	6 3 3½	11 7 7	4 2 ⅓	7½
*1833	1,135 6 3	2,317 12 8	151 1 1	1,093 13 4	5,497 15 9	29 1 9	6 - -¼	12 5 3	4 8½	nearly. 8½
1834	1,158 7 5	2,228 12 9	326 2 -	524 - 8	4,910 4 1	25 8 10	6 - -¼	11 10 11½	4 3	nearly. 7½

* In the Years 1832 and 1833 large sums were expended in providing increased accommodation, and in improving the Ventilation and Drainage. About 25*l.* per head per annum may be taken as a fair average, but it is diminishing.

Cork Street
Fever Hospital,
Dublin.

A REPORT on the CORK STREET FEVER HOSPITAL, Dublin, compiled from Replies made by William Stoker, esq., M.D. to Medical Queries.*

W. Stoker, esq., M.D.

Population and
Extent of Country.

THE population of the Liberty, the district to which the advantages of the Cork-street Fever Hospital and House of Recovery were for some years limited, has, I think, decreased to a degree quite unparalleled since Dr. Whitelaw's census in 1798, and many of the houses there have since fallen into ruin.† In the other parts of the city, however, all of which within the Circular Road, have, for several years, been included in the Cork-street Fever Hospital district, the number both of the inhabitants and houses has greatly increased, but, still it may be fairly inferred, that no other city in the British empire has had its population less increased with relation to its area, than the Irish metropolis. Dr. Whitelaw's Essay on the Population of Dublin greatly enhances the importance of observations on the decrease of inhabitants in the ancient parts, and their increase in the modern parts of the Irish metropolis. In that essay it is stated, and I believe correctly, that in 1798 the total population was 172,091, but in 1804 the population was 167,899 showing a reduction of 4192 in the interval. It is further to be remarked on the rapid decay of the old town, and the increase of the new, that the number of inhabitants of each house in the former appears triple, sometimes quadruple, the number of those in each house of the latter; and therefore, although the area of the new town may have greatly increased, yet, I am persuaded, the population of the whole has not increased in the similar rate it has done with that of other large towns of the empire.

Dr. Whitelaw's essay, if viewed in connection with bills of mortality in other cities, and with the annual reports of the Cork-street Hospital, (the only bills of mortality kept in Dublin,) will be found to have further claims on philanthropists and political economists, and lead them to consider the causes with a view to their abatement: e. g.—the slow advance of population in Dublin compared with other places, large towns in Great Britain; and though to some heartless calculators such manifest checks to the multiplication of human beings might not excite much commiseration, yet none, I think, with any feelings of humanity, can contemplate the agents, such as poverty and its accompanying train of diseases, demoralization, and death, without an effort to counteract them. The extent of the Cork-street district is between two and three miles in every direction from the hospital.

There are many other medical institutions within the district, i. e. in the county of the city of Dublin, most of which (especially those that admit fever patients), have been established since 1803, the date at which Cork-street Hospital was founded. These institutions were established to check the rise and growth of epidemic and pestilential diseases, and originated in the idea that the increase of disease depends mainly or wholly upon contagion; and were, on this principle, unnecessarily enlarged upon emergencies, and upon occasionally alarming influxes on the more ordinary course of disease. In ordinary times it is certain that genuine cases of contagious fever could not be found to occupy a sixth of the beds, which must therefore have remained vacant had not these hospitals been made, as they were, asylums for the houseless and famishing poor, and for those labouring under diseases, often the consequences of misery solely, and amongst them frequently may be classed low fever, dropsy, melancholy, or even mania. During the last three years such beds in the Cork-street Hospital as were not occupied in the manner just adverted to, were mostly vacant, under a fallacy which has since become manifest; viz., "That it would be dangerous to the inmates, and injurious to the character of an institution expressly provided to check the growth of epidemic and pestilential diseases, to admit those labouring under the aggravated form of the prevalent malady." Proofs of the fallacy of that hypothesis are abundantly supplied by the reports from the fever and cholera hospitals in the chief cities of Europe, which have been published within the last three years. From my experience of nearly 40 years in dispensary and fever hospital practice, I have no hesitation in giving it as

* The Report referred to throughout this Report, is that which was laid before Parliament.
† See Dr. Whitelaw's Essay on the Population of Dublin in 1798, published in 1805.

as my opinion, that the formation of medical districts, to each of which a dispensary, fever hospital, cow-pock institution, with surgical beds to the number of six in each were attached, would be a very decided improvement; and I have no doubt, that under such an arrangement, the fever hospital and dispensary would be found sufficient for the sick poor during the fiercest outbreaks of epidemic disease, and that when these extraordinary calamitous visitations shall have passed away, the beds in such hospitals, whether surgical or medical, might be most advantageously occupied by those labouring under parturition, accidents or chronic disease, and, if no better accommodation should remain and no other legislative provision in the meantime for them, by the houseless, and unemployed tradesmen who are often through misery, predisposed to mental and bodily disease. As physician to the chief dispensaries of Dublin at the close of the last and beginning of this century, to the Cork-street Hospital from its formation to July last, and as one of the officers of health in St. Peter's parish during the prevalence of the epidemic of 1817-18 and 19, I have had opportunities of collecting data on this subject, wholly apart from hypothesis, from which I have drawn the conclusion I have founded, and the opinions I have now expressed.

In times of great urgency, as in 1818-19 and 26, nearly 500 patients have been accommodated in the Fever Hospital and House of Recovery in Cork-street, by the aid of tents pitched in the grounds; but the wards themselves can accommodate from 240 to 280 patients. The apartments of the registrar, of two apothecaries, two housekeepers, and head nurse, together with those of the nurse's assistant, or ward, take up perhaps a tenth of the whole. Great pains have been taken for the ventilation of the wards effectually. There are both fixed and movable baths. The out-buildings consist of a laundry, with steam-engine and washing machine. Lodges are provided for the porters, one at each gate; besides which there are stables, coach-houses and other offices occupied by the servants engaged in the laundry, &c. The grounds are partly meadow and partly culture, for the use of the resident officers. All the above-mentioned premises and houses belong to the institution.

Though I cannot now any longer call myself one of the medical officers of the Cork-street Fever Hospital, having been removed, as stated in my accompanying memorial herewith sent; yet, as my removal is a circumstance connected with this hospital that seems to call for investigation, perhaps it is proper to state of myself that I was one of the physicians to this hospital from the year 1803, when was it founded, until the month of July 1834; that I am now in my 57th or 58th year; that I graduated in medicine at Edinburgh in the year 1798, and obtained my license in Dublin in the following year; that in the year 1803 I was elected to the Cork-street Fever Hospital, by the managing committee, (by whom all elections and appointments to that hospital are made;) that I was annually elected until the present year, according to the provisions of the bye-laws, and removed in July last, contrary to those provisions.*

The apothecary and his assistant are the only medical officers who reside in the hospital. In case of absence it is necessary for the attendant physician to give notice to the apothecary; one of the supernumerary physicians acts during this absence. All the hospital physicians are allowed private practice. The intern or extern duty rarely occupies more than two hours. Latterly the apothecary has acted as accoucheur.

All the medical officers are graduates of the colleges after which they are respectively denominated, but I believe they are not all licentiates. The medical duty is extern and intern, i. e. visiting the applicants at their abodes to see if they are proper objects for admission, and attending the patient when received into the wards of the hospital. Of the physicians three attend at the dwellings of the applicants, and three attend at the ward of the hospital. The intern and extern duty is changed every two alternate months. The hour of attendance is 11 A.M. and 7 o'clock P.M., and I think sufficient time is generally allowed. I am not aware of any appeal having been made by the poor to the controlling power. A nurse-tender is always in attendance, and administers the medicines to the patients; the apothecary dispenses them.

I cannot recollect for how many years after the opening of the Cork-street Fever Hospital no salary was allowed to the physicians, but a salary has since been allowed to them, at first 20*l.* per annum; this has been gradually increased to 100*l.* late Irish currency, the maximum, at which it has stood for several years. This is the only allowance to the physicians. The grand jury has never exercised any control, neither does it appear that it possesses any; but I believe a control is vested in Government, through whom, and by whose sufferance alone, the presentments pass for the Parliamentary grants, on which the institution mainly depends for support.

The medical and all other officers are appointed by the committee, who consist of the trustees and six other persons elected annually by the governors. When a vacancy occurs it is made known through the newspapers. It would be highly desirable that these appointments should be subject to the approval of the Lord Lieutenant and College of Physicians. It is necessary that the candidate physicians should be doctors or bachelors of medicine. A diploma from the College of Surgeons is required from the surgeon; a diploma from a school of midwifery is required from the accoucheur; and letters testimonial from the Apothecaries' Hall are required of the apothecaries or dispensers. There is not any limitation as to the officer's age. There is not any retiring allowance. Of the three physicians and surgeons first elected all are living, except Dr. Mills, who died of chronic disease long after he had resigned his office at Cork-street Hospital, which he only held for two years. Dr. Barker was

COMMUNICATIONS.

Cork-Street
Fever Hospital,
Dublin.

W. Stoker, esq., M.P.

Furniture and Grounds.

Medical Officers.

Other Officers not medical.

Payment.

Election.

COMMUNICATIONS.

Cork-Street
Fever Hospital,
Dublin.

W. Stoker, esq., M.D.

was connected with the hospital 20 years; Dr. A. B. Collis, as surgeon, about three years: and myself 31 years. All the medical officers, however, who have been connected with the Cork-street Fever Hospital, either on the first opening for the reception of patients or subsequently added, were attacked with fever, more or less severely, after the commencement of their duties there, or their attendance at the houses of the sick poor. It was in this way that Dr. Lee and Dr. Lynch contracted the malignant typhoid disease, of which both died a few weeks after their election. They were the only physicians in the Cork-street Fever Hospital who died of disease so contracted. Dr. George Hogan died, I think, of chronic disease, which was the result of long continued exertions as physician to the Cork-street Fever Hospital, aggravated by the baneful influence of contaminated atmosphere in the dwellings of the sick poor. The patients in the Cork-street Fever Hospital are invited, by placards posted through the wards, to refer any complaint of ill treatment by the medical officers to the managing committee or monthly visitors; but I am not aware of any such complaint having ever been made; neither am I aware of any influence or circumstances to deter the patients from complaining.

Pharmacy.

The medicines are of good quality and in sufficient quantity. Delicate and expensive medicines are kept, and are purchased from a druggist of established repute. The room in which they are dispensed is neatly kept. Surgical instruments are provided in the institution at the desire of the surgeon, and they are used solely for the purposes of the hospital; leeches are supplied, and there are arrangements for securing a supply of them. I do not think that those arrangements could be much improved. The medical officer is not bound to give vaccine matter gratis. I think a dispensary for such a purpose might be advantageously attached to each fever hospital, which should contain two or three beds for patients or accidents requiring particular attention. The medical officer has not been in the habit of inoculating for small-pock.

Patients' Registration.

A registry is regularly kept containing the number of patients annually admitted, but the disease of each patient or its termination is not particularized, an omission greatly to be deplored at all times, especially in the last five years. At all times such an insertion in the register as that omitted would have been a valuable desideratum to practical physicians and medical analysts; it would make them acquainted with the most general form of endemics and pestilential diseases in antecedent years, and also with the adventitious circumstances and symptoms, which gave to it a designatory epithet (e. g.) small-pox, measles, scarlet fever, influenza, cholera, &c. I suggested this improvement to the managing committee many years ago, and lately, at the instance of the able and humane chairman of the Committee of Parliamentary Inquiry (Mr. Warburton), I proposed to have a column in the registry on which the name of the disease should be inserted opposite to that of the patient. This would have prevented, in a great measure, or wholly, the public embarrassment that ensued, first, by showing that the epidemic though it became at later periods more malignant, was then present under a milder form. Pathological and therapeutical instruction, then derived, might have been practically applied, afterwards, to the prevention and cure of the more malignant kinds, as well as other information to assist the correction of those abuses which, under misnamed sanatory codes and burial regulations, so grievously trenched on the lives and liberties of the people. This omission in the registry of the Cork-street Fever Hospital, I hope cannot fail to obtain the consideration it merits from the Commissioners appointed to inquire into the state of the sick poor in Ireland.

According to the Report from the Cork-street Fever Hospital, 1831, "the number of patients admitted was 3,602; the aggregate number of days in hospital were, 66,637, and the average number of days of each patient $18\frac{1}{2}$."

Thus the average number of days of each patient in the hospital was nearly the same in 1831 as in the preceding year, and in both as in the years 1823-4 and 5, when, as may be seen by reference to the reports of these three years, that pestilence prevailed; many of the characteristics of disease in 1831 have since been manifest in each succeeding year.

The correspondence, however, between the average mortality in the several years of pestilence just adverted to, is perhaps as remarkable as the corresponding length of time the patients remained in hospital; this may be shown by comparing the report for 1828, page 8, with the following extract from the Committee's report for 1831. Those discharged, relieved or cured in 1831, were 3,317; died 307; remaining 3,806.

The mortality of 307 deaths to 3,317 recoveries, or 1 to $10\frac{147}{307}$ exceeds that of any other year from the opening of the hospital, and is nearly the same as that in the three years 1823-4 and 5, when pestilence of the same characteristics, as already intimated, prevailed.

Who entitled to Relief.

None but those who require gratuitous relief obtain assistance from this institution. The sick person sends notice to the hospital, which is served on one of the physicians on extern duty, who visits the applicant, and gives an order for admission if it be a proper case and not opposed to any order of the managing committee. The order must be signed by the visiting physician, at the residence of the patient. This restriction, intended originally for the exclusion of persons not labouring under infectious fevers, has totally failed, from the acknowledged difficulty of distinguishing between fever produced by contagion (at least at the commencement). It has besides been found very injurious, rejecting many who seek admission at the hospital gate, or lie in the neighbouring streets, perhaps turned out of their lodgings, either from non-payment of rent, or being thought sources of contagion. Hence, in some instances, patients in fever have died neglected and unsheltered, whilst numerous beds in the hospital, where they were refused admission, were vacant. This abuse abuse should be speedily corrected, otherwise much further mischief may arise from it. There is no limitation whatever, in the rules and regulations of the hospital, to the objects of the charity, except that the disease be such as the hospital is intended to provide for, and that the sufferer lived within the Circular Road, that is, in Dublin. The objects of the charity, however, have been wholly lost sight of since malignant cholera prevailed, and, in a greater or less degree, supervened on almost all contemporary diseases; for whatever appeared to the theory or the alarm of the visitor to be Asiatic cholera was rejected; and at a time when the hospital was most needed it was least in operation. This appears to me a serious abuse, and directly at variance with the original principles of the institution. The limitation of admission to patients whose residence is within the Circular Road also requires to be considered. It has been fatal to many who were rejected, after being removed from the country to seek admission.

The Cork-street Fever Hospital makes no provision for extern patients, but if a dispensary provision supply was connected, as already proposed, great advantages to the poor might be thus derived, more especially in those outbreaks of epidemics obviously produced by famine, such as occurred in 1817-18-19 and 20, when, as officer of health in Peter's parish, I saw the great advantages of supplying the sick, at their own houses, with the necessities of life, and administering such remedies as actual disease demanded. The fever hospital does not receive any case which may not come under the head of "Febrile Disease," according to the opinions of the Committee, which unfortunately they have not been able to define with any degree of accuracy. The physician's, surgeon's and accoucheurs prescriptions are the only ones made up in the institution. No lying-in case is admitted, excepting the woman labours under fever, and then the patient is attended by the physicians, assisted by the resident accoucheur. In the intervals between outbreaks of epidemics, beds might be, advantageously for the poor, provided in the vacant wards of the hospital, for the accommodation of the lying-in women of the neighbourhood, whose homes are often comfortless in the extreme, and unprovided with sufficient bed-clothes and other necessities. The proportion of deaths in child-birth, amongst women labouring under common fever, but more especially of those labouring under typhoid disease, as remarked in my reports from the hospital, and which often assume the characteristics of puerperal fever, is very considerable, but not having noted the exact proportion of the mortality I cannot state it more precisely. Daily attendance upon the sick is considered absolutely necessary, but patients are not attended at their own houses, unless to ascertain their fitness for admission. Vaccination is not performed in the institution; under the circumstances I proposed elsewhere in this report it might be performed with great advantage to the poor of the neighbourhood. My opinion of vaccination, and how far preventive of small-pox, &c., is the same which I expressed in my Observations on the Varioloid Disease, which I published at Dublin in 1820, and accorded, very generally, with the candid and intelligent reports of several respectable medical observers at that time throughout the United Kingdom; I shall therefore, quote here the same words; "Small-pox appears, after vaccination, in but a small proportion to the number that enjoy perfect immunity from that antidote, and even in this small proportion, the supervening disease is so mitigated as in general to cause slight sickness only on the seventh or ninth day, and very rarely consecutive fever." My objects, however, in that publication were to show, that cases of eruption after vaccination, which had been confounded with chicken-pock, swine-pock, &c., were genuine cases of small-pox, an opinion which has since been fully corroborated; but small-pox after vaccination having afterwards occurred in many urgent, some of them fatal, cases, the efficacy of the antidote has been questioned by the families who have suffered from it; still I believe the confidence of the public in the efficacy of vaccination is rather increasing than diminishing. How far it would be advisable to prevent those who still doubt the efficacy of vaccination from inoculating with small-pox, I do not feel authorized to say. Wine is given on the order of the physician. For the last five years the quantity ordered by me has been very small, owing to my substitution of dandelion coffee. This may be seen by comparing my diet tables together for the years 1829-30-31-32-33-34, where the wine is entered with those of previous years. There were institutions in the neighbourhood of the fever hospital which advantageously supplied rations of food to those who were dismissed convalescent, but they have been latterly discontinued.

The bye-laws direct, that applications for admission shall be forwarded to the extern physicians at half past nine o'clock; the applicants shall then be visited as soon as possible, and if the physician finds their diseases to be such as are admissible into the hospital, he shall fill up and sign a printed order for admission, which he shall direct the patient's friends to take immediately to the hospital.

No lunatic patients, as such, are admitted into the Cork-street hospital; when mania supervenes on fevers, as not unfrequently happens, the patient is removed from the fever wards to those in the under-ground floor of the buildings, and which is generally unoccupied. This floor might at all times, (more especially in the intervals of epidemics,) be advantageously employed for the relief of the poor, labouring under mental diseases, monomania, melancholy, &c. &c. Cholera cases supervening on other forms of disease, have been admitted into the Cork-street Fever Hospital: e.g., Anne Murray, aged 49, was admitted on 13th December 1832, with severe dyspnoea and general anasaria, symptoms which she stated to have succeeded to violent vomiting, accompanied with acute spasmodic pains of the belly and limbs, and she stated this attack to have commenced nearly three weeks before; this, together with other cases which may be found in my Comparative View of Cholera, published in 1832, compared with the registry at the Cork-street Fever Hospital, and with the reports

COMMUNICATIONS.

Cork-Street
Fever Hospital,
Dublin.

W. Stoker, esq., M.D.

Extern Relief.

Intern Patients.

COMMUNICATIONS.

Cork-Street
Fever Hospital,
Dublin.

W. Stoker, esq., M.D.

Diet.

Clothing.

General Management.

Managing
Committee.

Officers not medical.

Reports.

Funds and
Accounts.
Receipts.

Medical and Surgical Instruction.

published in 1823 and 1828, clearly proves, that cholera did prevail in the institution, notwithstanding the restrictions to its admission in the last three years.

The clergy of all persuasions have free ingress and egress; but no chaplain of any creed has been appointed. Patients, even in dangerous cases, cannot always see their own clergymen when they require them: this I have known in several cases to cause great distress of mind, and sometimes to interfere with the recovery of the patients. I am not aware, for several years at least, of either clergy or laity obtrusively interfering with the patients, or of any theological or controversial tracts having been circulated amongst them.

There is a regular diet, divided into low, middle and full diet, but there is none for particular diseases. Some extra comforts are allowed, such as arrow-root for the new-born children of mothers affected with bad fevers or pestilential disease, the suck being then either deficient or depraved; I have sometimes found it fatal to the infant. There are other extra comforts, however, such as tea, dandelion coffee and sugar, which are not allowed, although I think they ought to be.

An accurate account is kept, by the head-nurse and housekeeper, of the clothes brought to the hospital by the patients, which are immediately immersed in cold water and given to the laundry-maid. Each patient is provided with an hospital dress previous to being removed into any of the wards.

The management of the Cork-street Fever Hospital is vested in a committee, consisting of the trustees and six other persons, elected annually by the governors.

A donation of twenty guineas, paid in any one year, makes the donor a governor or life, and annual subscribers of two guineas or upwards are also governors, provided that no such annual subscriber shall vote at the election of members of the managing committee, unless his name shall have been on the books of the institution for one whole year previous to such election, and unless he shall have paid his subscription for the year in which he shall tender his vote, together with all arrears thereof. The managing committee may (at any meeting specially summoned for the purpose) enlarge the sum necessary to constitute a governor.

Dr. Renny, who is director-general of hospitals in Ireland, and physician to the Royal Hospital, Kilmainham, is the only salaried officer who partakes in the management of this institution, neither is there any person ex officio in the principal direction. All governors are equally entitled to attend and vote. For several years past the meetings have been regularly attended only by a few; I believe the governors cannot vote by proxy. There are minutes secretly kept of their proceedings, even from the physicians, though on a medical subject, and this, but particularly of late years, I found very prejudicial to the institution.

The managing committee meet every Thursday, at eight o'clock in the morning, during the months of November, December, January and February. Their minutes are kept in secret; their duties are set forth in their rules and regulations attached to their annual report. There is not a board of superintendence fixed by the grand jury; visitors are appointed monthly from the committee, who occasionally visit in the intervals of their weekly meetings. I believe the governors very rarely, if at all, visit the patients officially: I have invited them often of late years in vain.

There are six resident officers, all of whom are appointed by the board, viz., the registrar, apothecary, assistant apothecary, housekeeper, assistant housekeeper and head-nurse. Servants usually employed, who are increased or decreased according to circumstances, are, three porters, two white-washers, twenty nurses, ten female servants, besides one engineer attendant on the washing apparatus, and an assistant, who acts as messenger and inspects the white-washing of the apartments from whence patients are removed to the hospital.

There are reports as to admissions, discharges, cures, deaths, &c.: they are printed and made to the public in general. The clergy, medical men, gentry, &c., might be formed into a board of health in every district, which affords persons qualified and willing to assist in a more minute investigation of the wants of the poor.

The continuance of the institution does not depend upon the bounty of a few, but partly upon the interest of bequests, and chiefly on Parliamentary grants. Subscriptions are not accompanied by any stipulation. I should suppose the existence of the institution depends upon the original rules and regulations, on the faith of which these bequests and grants have been made. The average annual receipts for the last three years ending 31st March 1834 have been 5,230*l.* 4*s.* The average expenditure for the same period amounted to 4,759*l.* 19*s.* 3*d.* There are not any sums of money left in the hands of the salaried officers.

The Cork-street Fever Hospital is one of the largest fever hospitals perhaps in Europe, and if under a more liberal direction might, with the greatest advantage to the objects of the institution, be made a most effective school for medical and surgical instruction. The extensive wretchedness and poverty of the district in which the hospital is situated always furnishes to its wards an abundant supply of every prevailing epidemic. Few are the cases which would not afford abundant subject matter for a clinical lecture; and I may add, that very many are the cases to be met with in that hospital for which a more watchful and intelligent attendant than the common hospital nurse-tender must be required; nor would the advantage to the immediate objects of the institution by the admission of students stop even here; for it is my conviction that the pupils would give to the physicians, as in the Meath, Stephens', Mercers', and Sir Patrick Dunn's Hospitals, very much more than an equivalent for the salaries they now receive; and thus a very important saving would be effected, or, in other words, a new fund would be created for extending the benefits of the institution.

COMMUNICATIONS.

Cork Street
Fever Hospital,
Dublin.

W. Stoker, esq., M.D.

institution. Lectures are not given, neither were dissections or post-mortem examinations permitted before the Anatomy Bill in 1834, not even in cases in which the friends of the deceased have anxiously desired such examination, and where it might have afforded the most important assistance to the cause of science and humanity. There is no provision for admitting medical men to witness surgical operations. As a matter of favour, the surgeon might perhaps bring a few friends. However, in this institution the greater surgical operations are of rare occurrence.

In most if not all of the hospitals, except the Cork-street, dissections and post-mortem examinations were always allowed in such cases as call for such dissection or examination, provided always that the friends of the deceased did not object. I do not believe that such allowance has deterred the working classes from availing themselves of the benefits of these institutions.

In midsummer pestilential diseases prevail; in autumn dysentery and cholera; pectoral disease in winter; epidemic influenza in spring; typhus disease or malignant cholera in summer and autumn. Fevers and epidemics have assumed the typhoid type since 1823; fevers, properly so called, have decreased as typhus disease became more prevalent; typhus disease has declined as malignant, or, as some will have it, Asiatic cholera, prevailed. Between fever, properly so called, and malignant cholera, there is scarcely one common symptom.

Nature of Disease.

There thus appears to have been a gradual change in disease towards that called Asiatic cholera, produced, in my opinion, by changes, however subtle, in the constitution of the air, assisted in their operation by the local miseries of the country, particularly in Ireland.

Generally speaking potatoes, and potatoes without any thing else, are the food of the Irish poor, and even these are most deficient in quantity, and of a coarse quality. I do not think the full-grown potato unfit for food at any season of the year, at least till it has been exhausted by its vegetation, which commences in the spring. The unripe potato, or the exhausted potato, which happens about the same period, I believe to be a common cause of disease among the poor. I am sure the use of them at such periods has been a fruitful source of disease at all times, but more especially since our epidemics have assumed the characteristics of malignant cholera. That a potato, in its perfect state, is as wholesome food for the human species as any other article, either animal or vegetable, I am induced to believe; but taken alone, as it is by perhaps seven-tenths of the poor of Ireland, through the entire year, it predisposes or actually excites disease, especially in the season of its immaturity or decay, to a greater extent than in any other country not so dieted. The greater prevalence in Ireland of malignant cholera, and other pestilential diseases, is chiefly referable, I think, to that cause. But whether the greater prevalence of such pestilential diseases in Ireland is rightly to be considered the cause of dropsy to a greater extent, amongst all ages, in Ireland than in England, or should be traced back to the causes of these pestilential diseases themselves, it cannot be denied that whilst dropsy in England is confined either to the intemperate or the aged, numbers of young persons living entirely on potatoes sink, attacked by this disease, every day, in Ireland, prematurely into their graves.*

Causes of Disease.
Food.

In the famine of 1817-18-19, the poor were driven to the use of all green vegetables they found within their reach; and the succeeding epidemic, greatly enhanced as it had been by that circumstance, assumed forms of peculiar virulence. From the use of some of these unwholesome vegetables, more noxious than the rest, grew cholera and other forms of bowel complaints. A mixture of fresh animal and vegetable food, in generous allowance, appears now, by the universal consent of medical practitioners and writers of reports on the epidemics of this country, to have been not only preventive, but curative, when judiciously administered. In the epidemic of the last four years, fruit and some vegetables, especially the potato in its exhausted or unripe state, have been found to predispose to an attack of cholera, and often deemed the chief cause of a fatal one. The most prevalent cause of actual disease amongst the poor of Ireland is, I believe, want of sufficient sustenance, and the use of noxious inješta, whether bad food or ardent spirits, to blunt the feelings of hunger and of misery.

The excessive use of ardent spirits still prevails, but happily seems on the decrease. Lunacy and idiotcy are often the result of the abuse of spirituous liquors, but the disease denominated delirium tremens, is the well known consequence of the abuse of spirituous liquors, and has of late years become much more frequent than in my previous recollection; I have seen some cases of it, too, where fermented rather than spirituous liquors seemed the Drink.

* Having lately, during a month's residence in London, compared the average ages of the parents of families, on the tombs in the public cemeteries, with those in the vicinity of Dublin, I am enabled to state that the average duration of human life appears to be much longer in the former than in the latter city, and in a ratio which, I am persuaded, would greatly surprise those who have never instituted a similar comparison. In revising the manuscript of this Report, as to the greater prevalence of some mortal diseases, particularly the dropsy, amongst the young in Ireland than elsewhere, I feel it my duty, with a similar view, to state my more recent observations also on England.—London, June 11, 1836. I would further observe, that in comparing the register of deaths which occur in the work-houses in England, with those that take place in the only institutions in Ireland that resemble them, a similar result is obtained as to the average length of life amongst the poor of both countries. It seems to me a matter of much importance that this inquiry should be pursued further, more especially at the present period, when a legislative provision for the Irish poor is in actual contemplation.

See my observations on Dropsy, part 1st Dublin, 1823, page 48 to 108, also part 2d Dublin, 1829, page 209 to 238.

COMMUNICATIONS.

Cork Street
Fever Hospital.
Dublin.

W. Stoker, esq., M.D.

cause, at least where the quantity of spirits drank was small in proportion to the quantity of beer or porter. Delirium tremens, often fatal, sometimes terminates in paralysis of body or mind, or both. Whether these cases of idiocy or palsy be directly or indirectly produced by the use of ardent and fermented or other liquors, I can state that the habitual abuse which led to them is very generally incurable. Fermented liquors, even in the abuse of them, are less pernicious than ardent spirits; but a substitution for both in the beverage of the poor, must be, I think, a grand desideratum in ameliorating the condition of the Irish poor, I have no doubt that ardent spirits are frequently resorted to by the poor (according to their own well known phrase) "to drown grief," or in other words to gain by inebriation a respite from the painful sense of the want of every thing. I do not doubt that it would much conduce to the health of the poorer classes, if beer could be substituted for spirits; but until the condition of the poor shall have been ameliorated, I fear, for the reason immediately preceding, that the possibility of such substitution would be very doubtful.

Although I think that the cold and damp of this climate, and the ardent character of the Irish, and the wretchedness of the poorer classes have produced a common and excessive use of ardent spirits, which it would be extremely difficult to check, I am certain that the production of any cheering and nutritious beverage within the means of the poor, would be most desirable, and that very many who now leave their reason with their pence in the whisky-shop, would gladly mend their ways, if they could bring home a comfortable supper for themselves and their families. But I fear that it would be scarcely possible to reduce the price of tea, coffee, or cocoa so very low as to bring it within the reach of the Irish poor; it is therefore with infinite pleasure I suggest a preparation of dandelion, which, in appearance and flavour, is very like coffee, and which might be produced so cheaply, that even the most wretched could easily procure it. Of the benefit of the root of the red stemmed dandelion (taraxacum) prepared as it may be very cheaply for the poor in the greatest abundance in autumn, to provide against the periodical famine of the succeeding year, I can now speak with full confidence from very extensive experience of its use under the form of coffee; I have prescribed it extensively both for preventing and curing not only cholera, but also other stomach and bowel complaints, which in the seasons of famine are the harbingers of dropsy and marasmus to an extent unknown in England, or in any other countries where such visitations of famine do not occur.*

Causes of Disease
peculiar to Towns.

Further particulars of its preparation may be seen in my pathological observations, part 2d, Dublin, 1829, and part 3d, 1830. As to its utility see Dr. Paris's Pharmacologia.

The want of work causes much more mental and corporeal disease amongst the poor operatives of Dublin than the manner or materials in which they have been employed; this has been evident in the rise and growth of all our epidemical and pestilential diseases, almost as much so as even deficiency of food, and of the other necessities of life. In the famine of 1827, which was clearly the result of want of employment, the prevailing sickness was excited most remarkably by it amongst the English and Scotch operatives, and when forced of necessity to work on the roads for food, and leave their looms and other modes of manufacture, they relinquished with them all their previous hopes and habits. The rise and growth of pestilence in Dublin for the last thirty-seven years is, I believe, attributable to similar causes. There is of late much less ground of complaint of imperfection of the pavement of lanes, alleys, stagnant water, &c., than has been generally supposed. In my report for the years 1820 and 21 I pointed to numerous sources of noxious effluvia which then did, but do not now, exist.

The improvements in Dublin, and draining its neighbourhood, during the last twenty years, have removed those marshes and large pools of stagnant water which had been productive of agues, intermittent fevers. Hence those paroxysmal cycles, which were before so remarkable even in continued fevers, have greatly abated.

This is partly attributable to the correction of malaria, but, as stated in my report, No. 5, 1828, other causes, namely, moral and physical ones have produced pestilence, and in the same degree have obliterated the distinctions between intermittent and remittent fevers.

Causes of Disease peculiar to Rural Districts.

With the causes of disease peculiar to rural districts I am little acquainted, but I believe poverty is the chief of them as well as in the metropolis; its attendant evils too are in most cases not dissimilar. The want of good bedding, the damp of the floors on which the poor lie, the want of windows to give light by day, or exclude the cold by night, and the want of chimneys or other sufficient vent for smoke and foul air, all are common to the poor of Dublin, and all are productive of mental and bodily disease.

Boards of Health.

There have been boards of health with reference to cholera, which possessed powers to compel the adoption of sanatory measures, not only in Dublin, where they sat, but over Ireland in general.

(signed) W. Stoker, M.D.,
21, York-street.

10th April 1835.

* Sir James Murray, M.D. and Messrs. Price, Kinslagh and Evans, apothecaries of Dublin, bear testimony to the salutary effects consequent on the use of dandelion, and of an extensive sale of the root effected by them annually.

SUPPLEMENT

TO

APPENDIX (B.)

ANSWERS to QUESTIONS circulated by the COMMISSIONERS relative to the Relief of the DESTITUTE CLASSES in Ireland.

own Dispensary.

ly, Esq., Surgeon.

dispensary. There is but one care.

onadown and Kilcoony, both of Galway.

ldford only, being within eight dispensary or hospital in this one dispensary, which I do on cannot attend the dispensary, aided by a subscriber, I consider cept; but some trivial cases are h no note is taken.

attend average about 25 each give 2,600 per annum; but as I hs in attendance, and the former come to my hands, I cannot al number of applications. The stomach complaints, diseases of dropsy, and affections of parti-, &c.

pay seldom apply to us; not so what is required to the treasurer, from the Dublin druggists.

tate, for the reason mentioned in, but as the county grant for last, and the subscriptions must be expended, the receipt and expen- amount to 167l. 10s.

and presentment; the latter from way only.

were a portion of the funds ex- dresses for the wretched poor, at present, expended on the phy- it would add to the comforts of n the number of invalids, particu- s class of rheumatic and dyspeptic

CONNAUGHT—GALWAY.

Ballygar Dispensary.	Claranbridge and Kilcolgan Dispensary.	Clifden Dispensary.
Medical Officer and Committee.	—	Martin A. Evans, Esq., M.D., Surgeon.
Ballygar Dispensary, established in 1826.	Claranbridge and Kilcolgan Dispensary, which is one, the object of which is to supply the poor with medicines, having tickets from subscribers; established 26 July 1833.	Clifden Dispensary, established in the year 1819, for the purpose of affording medicine and advice to the sick poor in this neighbourhood.
Athleague, Kilroran, and parts of Killyan, county Galway; and part of Tisrara, county Roscommon.	Eleven, all in the same county.	Five parishes; four of them in county of Galway, and one, namely, Boffin Island, county Mayo.
Roscommon Infirmary, eight miles distant to the north; Ahascragh Dispensary, eight miles distant to the south; Mount Bellew Dispensary, eight miles distant to the west.	In the town of Galway (which is about ten miles from Claranbridge), there is an hospital, infirmary, and one or two dispensaries.	From the prevalence of epidemic fever in this district, the inhabitants are now struggling to erect a small fever hospital; the foundation is merely laid, and it is to be feared that the present funds will not half finish it; and this is the more to be deplored, as the county infirmary and fever hospital are forty Irish miles from Clifden.
No hospital or dispensary.	There is no other hospital, infirmary or dispensary within my district.	There is not any dispensary nearer than that of Westport, thirty-five Irish miles to the north; and that of Outerard, twenty-six miles to the south.
I attend only the Ballygar Dispensary. I reside at Roscommon, eight miles distant, and attend every Wednesday, and on other days, if occasionally required.	I only attend one, the Claranbridge and Kilcolgan; it being a new dispensary, salary is not yet fixed. Two in the week, Monday and Friday. I am obliged to attend any day in case of urgency.	I do not. The salary paid me is 100 l. per annum, and I attend three days weekly, but urgent cases at any time.
Yes.	I consider it my duty to attend personally where medical or surgical aid is necessary.	It would be quite impracticable to give my personal attendance in all such cases, from the extent of district, but always do so in serious cases, as there is not another medical man in the whole of Cunnemara.
Yes.	All applications, cases and results are duly registered.	There is.
In 1831, relieved 1,050; in 1832, 1,300; in 1833, 1,400. Principal diseases treated: fever, dyspepsia, bowel complaints, measles, small-pox, accidents, dropsy.	The dispensary being but five months established, from the variety of diseases that come under my care, it would be impossible at present to make a statement. A book of the natural treatment of cases will be produced at the end of the year, according to rule.	In the years 1830 and 1831 upwards of 3,000 have been attended annually; since that time there has been a diminution, from a fear of the doctors and medicine, to whom the peasantry attribute the propagation of cholera. The diseases treated generally have been fever, dysentery, cholera, scarlatina, small-pox, diseases of skin, dyspepsia.
No.	Seldom or never.	It does so happen.
By the committee, who purchase from Messrs. Glenton & Co., Dublin.	The medicines are supplied by Boileau & George, Druggists, 88, Bride-street, Dublin, by an order from the committee.	They are paid for out of the general fund, and supplied by Dublin druggists.
<table><tr><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - £. 78 13 3</td><td>£. 54 5 2½</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - 76 18 0½</td><td>53 9 3½</td></tr><tr><td>1833 - 73 18 9</td><td>67 3 4</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td><td>1833.</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine, &c. £. 21 3 0½</td><td>20 18 9½</td><td>32 12 6</td></tr><tr><td>Salary - - 30 0 0</td><td>30 0 0</td><td>30 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Rent, Repairs, } 3 2 2</td><td>2 10 6</td><td>4 10 10</td></tr><tr><td>&c. - - }</td><td></td><td></td></tr></table>	Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831 - £. 78 13 3	£. 54 5 2½	1832 - 76 18 0½	53 9 3½	1833 - 73 18 9	67 3 4	1831.	1832.	1833.	Medicine, &c. £. 21 3 0½	20 18 9½	32 12 6	Salary - - 30 0 0	30 0 0	30 0 0	Rent, Repairs, } 3 2 2	2 10 6	4 10 10	&c. - - }			As the dispensary is of so short a date, the questions cannot be answered.	Amount of funds received for 1831 - £. 204 0 0 Ditto - - - 1832 - 164 0 0 Ditto - - - 1833 - 160 0 0 The above sums have not alone been entirely expended in each successive year, but the establishment is now in debt.
Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831 - £. 78 13 3	£. 54 5 2½
1832 - 76 18 0½	53 9 3½
1833 - 73 18 9	67 3 4
1831.	1832.	1833.
Medicine, &c. £. 21 3 0½	20 18 9½	32 12 6
Salary - - 30 0 0	30 0 0	30 0 0
Rent, Repairs, } 3 2 2	2 10 6	4 10 10
&c. - - }
By subscriptions and presentment off county of Galway.	Supported by subscriptions from the neighbouring gentry, a presentment being granted for an equal sum, payable off county Galway.	By voluntary subscriptions, and also by a grand jury presentment from one county alone.
I cannot.	I cannot suggest any alteration in the distribution of the funds that could be of any benefit. I think, if some of the non-residents of the neighbourhood and absentees were obliged to contribute, the poor would benefit.	The gentry here bear a very small proportion to the poor; and as the funds are dependent on the former, the latter are left in a precarious state. Where the greatest comparative number of poor is, there gratuitous medical aid from the cause above stated), of course the poor will suffer from insufficient care. Now, in order to meet this, I would suggest, that the whole fund should be derived from the sums levied on the county at large, the amount of which should be fixed immutably, proportioned to the number relieved, the poverty, extent of the district, or the like. I have used the word immutably, because I have known certain districts suffer by the act of a grand jury, from the hue of its politics. By this means a certain, and not a fluctuating fund would be established, commensurate with the wants of each particular district, whether rich or poor; whereas, according to the present plan, the rich district only, where it is least wanted, is secure. Here the greatest difficulty is experienced in collecting subscriptions, several of which are given rather as personal favours than as charitable donations.

CONNAUGHT—GALWAY.

Dunmore Dispensary.	Eyre court Dispensary.	Glanamadda Dispensary.
J. Prendergast, Esq., M.D., M.R.C.S.L.	—	Michael Kelly, Esq., Medical Attendant.
Dunmore Dispensary, established in the year 1818.	Eyre court Dispensary, March 1832.	The dispensary to which I am appointed medical superintendent is called Glanamadda Dispensary; I am not connected with any other: said dispensary was established in the year 1826.
Ten parishes, same in the county Galway, same in the county Mayo, and one in the county Roscommon.	Six parishes, all in same county.	—
Tuam, Glanamadda and Miltown Dispensaries.	Ballinasloe and Portumna Dispensaries.	There is a dispensary in Dunmore, but no infirmary or hospital nearer than Roscommon, which is very far distant.
There is no hospital or infirmary within my district; but there are three dispensaries, two of them within seven miles of this, the third within nine miles. Cannot say what salary or other emoluments derived by the medical gentlemen for attending them.	There is none of either in my district.	I am not aware of any other dispensary, hospital or infirmary within my district.
I attend only the Dunmore Dispensary, for which I am allowed 100 l. a year for attending two days in the week; it is eight miles from Tuam, which is my residence, but is attended every day in the week by my assistant.	Not more than one dispensary; I attend this two days in the week, and the sick at any time when required, for which I receive 80 l. per annum.	I do not attend more than one dispensary, infirmary or hospital; I am obliged to give constant attendance; I am allowed 70 l. yearly for attending same.
I do not think it necessary, in all cases, to give my personal attendance; but I do when the cases differ from the ordinary run of diseases.	Most certainly, at all times and all hours when required, and at their own houses.	Certainly.
There is a register kept of all the cases and applications for relief, and of their results.	There is a registry of all the cases, which is laid before the local committee, and afterwards before the grand jury of the county previous to the renewal of the presentment.	There is a register kept of all cases, and presented to the grand jury for inspection at the spring assizes.
Number relieved in 1831 - - 2,236 Ditto - - 1832 - - 2,250 Ditto - - 1833 - - 2,372 6,858	The number from March 1832 to the present date (1st December 1833) amount to 1,970. To give a general statement would be impossible, they partake of such variety.	There have been upwards of 15,000 persons relieved within the last three years. An account of all the diseases treated would occupy more space than I have room for.
We close our year every 30th of June.
We are sometimes imposed upon.	None.	Never; because it is a rule on my books, that none shall receive medicine who are able to pay for it.
The medicines are paid for out of the general fund, and supplied by Leslie & Co., 40, Bride-street, Dublin.	Purchased out of the dispensary fund from Messrs Boileau & George, Druggists, Dublin.	By my druggist, who sends the medicine direct.
The amount of receipt for the last three years was 220 l. each year, including subscriptions, county grants, and some fines received from Ballymoe and Miltown petit sessions. The expenditure the two years before the last, which ended on the 30th June last, was under the amount received by 11 l. and 12 l. ; but the last year the expenditure exceeded the receipts by 3 l. 11 s. Physician's and apothecary's salaries, house-rent, medicines, carriage of same, fuel, &c., are the general heads of expenditure.	<table><tr><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>1833 - £.107 0 0</td><td>£.114 7 0½</td></tr><tr><td colspan="2">GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.</td></tr><tr><td colspan="2">1833.</td></tr><tr><td>Salaries, Rent, &c. - - -</td><td>£.85 0 5</td></tr><tr><td>Medicines - - -</td><td>23 17 7</td></tr><tr><td>Sundries - - -</td><td>5 9 5½</td></tr></table>	Receipt.	Expenditure.	1833 - £.107 0 0	£.114 7 0½	GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.		1833.		Salaries, Rent, &c. - - -	£.85 0 5	Medicines - - -	23 17 7	Sundries - - -	5 9 5½	The amount of receipts, including subscriptions and presentment for the last three years, amounted to 365 l. ; 160 l. of which I have received; my assistant, 45 l. ; druggist, 120 l. ; house-rent, 30 l. ; printing circulars, &c., 10 l. ; repairs, &c.
Receipt.	Expenditure.
1833 - £.107 0 0	£.114 7 0½
GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.
1833.
Salaries, Rent, &c. - - -	£.85 0 5
Medicines - - -	23 17 7
Sundries - - -	5 9 5½
Half by subscription and half by presentment, and entirely off the county Galway.	By subscription and presentment off this county only.	By voluntary contribution or subscription, and by presentment from the grand jury of the county.
The present funds are merely sufficient to provide medicines, pay house-rent, horse-hire for visiting patients, supporting those in the town upon whom surgical operations are performed, and paying the medical officers. I do not see how they could be more efficiently laid out for the relief of the poor.	I cannot.	In my opinion there ought to be a small hospital or infirmary in each district, and funds for the supply of food, clothing and medical attendance for those who have no suitable accommodation for themselves at home.

CONNAUGHT—GALWAY.

Glanamadda Dispensary.	Headford Dispensary.	Killane Dispensary.
Michael Kelly, Esq. Medical Attendant.	A. Hackett, Esq., Surgeon.	F. Harrison, Esq., Surgeon.
The name of the dispensary under my care is the Glanamadda Dispensary; only one, established four years.	Headford Dispensary, established 1st February 1833.	The Killane Dispensary, established in the year 1822, for the relief of the sick poor.
The number of parishes in the neighbourhood of the dispensary are about five or six, in the county of Galway.	There are seven parishes in the union of Headford; but we do not confine ourselves to any particular district, but give medical aid to all cases of distress that comes from any of the adjoining ones, and even in the county of Mayo.	Six parishes, all in the same county.
There are dispensaries at the following places: Dunmore, Mount Bellew, Ballygar; each place has a dispensary.	Annadown village dispensary, within eight miles of here.	Ballinasloe dispensary, Ahascragh dispensary and the Loughrea dispensary.
I do not know of the salaries or other regulations belonging to any hospital or dispensary except the one under my care.	There is no infirmary, hospital or dispensary within eight miles of this; the infirmary 16 miles distant.	Not any.
I do not attend more than one dispensary two days in the week; but it is open every day, and a person to dispense medicine there: my salary is from sixty to seventy pounds per year.	One dispensary, where I reside; attendance three days in the week, and every day in case of accident.	I attend only one, and reside on the premises. Salary, 90 l. per annum. I attend the dispensary three days in each week; acute diseases and accidents at all times.
Whenever any case occurs requiring medical or surgical aid, I always attend to them personally.	Yes, in all cases where the poor require it.	Certainly I do.
There is always a case-book in the dispensary, in which is kept a registry of all the cases applying, together with the treatment and result, which book is submitted to a committee of the grand jury every year.	Yes, a registry of every day's attendance is kept, which is sent before the grand jury of the county of Galway every assizes.	Such a register is kept of all serious cases.
The number of persons relieved for the last three years has been about 1,300 each year; fevers, eruptive diseases, accidents of every kind, rheumatic complaints, and some bad cases of midwifery.	9,760 persons have been attended and treated for the year commencing 1st February 1833, and ending 1st February 1834, of which 7,126 have been relieved.	Relieved in 1830, 1,099; in 1831, 1,087; in 1832, 1,236. At least as many more cases have been treated, but were not considered of sufficient consequence for registry. The diseases generally treated are, fevers, general inflammatory diseases, dyspepsia, dropsies, jaundice, scrofula, small pox, measles, &c. &c. &c. Pulmonary diseases and rheumatism prevail very much in this district.
The persons recommending objects to dispensary, are in a few instances imposed on; but, generally speaking, almost every creature in that district is too poor to pay for medicine or medical advice.	Never.	It seldom occurs.
The medicines are supplied by the treasurer out of the funds of the dispensary.	By A. F. & C. Leslie, Druggists, Bride-street, Dublin, and paid for by the treasurer of the dispensary.	The medicines are supplied by Messrs. Boileau & George, Druggists, Dublin, and paid for by the local treasurer from the funds of the dispensary.
The amount of receipts for the last three years has been, between subscriptions and county grant, 120 l. or 130 l. : my salary, druggist's bill, assistant's salary, house-rent, stationery, printer's bill, stamps, fuel, linen, calico, &c. &c. &c.	<table> <tr> <th></th><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr> <tr> <td>1833 -</td><td>£. 205 0 0</td><td>- about * £. 200 0 0</td></tr> </table> * The account not having been yet laid before the Committee, I cannot state the exact sum.		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1833 -	£. 205 0 0	- about * £. 200 0 0	<table> <tr> <th></th><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr> <tr> <td>1830 -</td><td>£. 140 11 5</td><td>£. 134 6 7½</td></tr> <tr> <td>1831 -</td><td>150 2 6½</td><td>141 9 8</td></tr> <tr> <td>1832 -</td><td>138 3 10½</td><td>135 6 11</td></tr> </table>		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1830 -	£. 140 11 5	£. 134 6 7½	1831 -	150 2 6½	141 9 8	1832 -	138 3 10½	135 6 11
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1833 -	£. 205 0 0	- about * £. 200 0 0
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1830 -	£. 140 11 5	£. 134 6 7½
1831 -	150 2 6½	141 9 8
1832 -	138 3 10½	135 6 11
It is supported by subscriptions, and the grand jury grant a similar sum off the county; only obtained from the county of Galway.	By subscriptions, and aided by presentment on the county of Galway.	It is supported by private subscription and county presentment off the county of Galway alone.
I think the funds of the dispensary are distributed to the very best advantage under the present regulations.	I do not know any better way than our present mode of distribution.	I cannot suggest how our very limited funds could be more judiciously applied than they are at present.

CONNAUGHT—GALWAY.

Killian Dispensary.	Kiltolla Dispensary.	Loughrea Dispensary.
John F. Butler, Esq. M. D.	W. Donnell, Esq., M. P.	Thomas Shadwell, Esq. M. D.
There are under my medical superintendence two dispensaries (one a branch of the other), called, from the barony they are situated in, the " Killian Dispensaries;" the object of each is to afford advice and medicine to the sick poor of the district gratis. I took charge of them in April 1831.	Kiltolla Dispensary only. In the year 1821.	Loughrea Dispensary, for the relief of the sick poor of the town and neighbourhood; instituted and established 1st March 1821.
My district includes part of six parishes, all in the same county.	Cannot say, as the subscribers are in different parts of the county.	Not parochial; comprising, in its medical practice, the numerous poor of the town of Loughrea, which contains 7,000 inhabitants; the extensive estates of the Marquis Clanricard, Earl Clancarty, and many others in the neighbourhood.
The nearest institution of the description is Ahascragh Dispensary, which is a distance of eight Irish miles; the next is Ballygar Dispensary, which is nine Irish miles; any others are above ten. My district is about ten miles in length, and about the same in breadth.	There is one in the town of Loughrea, and one at Monivea.	The Kiltolla.
There is no dispensary (save those I attend), or other medical charitable institution within my district.	There are none.	No.
I attend only the two diepensaries above stated; one of which is situated in Mount Bellew Bridge, the town where I reside; the other (the branch dispensary) is about two miles distant from me. I am paid 100 l. per annum for attending both. I am bound to attend two days in each week at Mount Bellew Bridge, and one in each week at the branch dispensary, and at all times in case of urgent necessity.	I only attend Kiltolla dispensary, five miles from my residence; salary casual, from 60 l. to 80 l. ; attend two days in each week.	I do not.
Decidedly, upon the receipt of a ticket to that effect from a subscriber; in cases of accident I am bound to attend without a ticket.	I do.	I do.
A registry is kept of all cases, how disposed of, and the result.	There is a book, in which the names, ages, diseases and treatment are kept.	Yes, from the nature of the practice, not of all. Advice, attendance and medicine are given. The result (as may be given in internal hospital practice) cannot be accurately ascertained, from the irregularity of patients' attendance, distance of residence, and other causes.
Since April 1831 there have been upwards of 7,000 persons relieved. The diseases most common are those of the chest, liver and fever; latterly malignant cholera is very brief.	From 1,500 to 2,000 each year; it is impossible, in so limited a space, to give the diseases; but generally fevers, dropsies, dyspepsia, coughs, and a variety of other diseases.	4,712 persons have been treated with various success; we know of many relieved, many recovered, and we have heard of 20 deaths. The diseases treated are almost every variety of chronic and acute; dyspepsia most prevalent.
Very frequently.	Sometimes, as the medical officer is obliged to attend to the recommendation of the subscriber.	Not to my knowledge.
A list of the medicines required is supplied by me, and purchased from the druggist by the treasurer.	By a druggist from Dublin, and paid for by the treasurer of the establishment.	By druggists.
<table><tr><td></td><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1832 -</td><td>£.124 0 0</td><td>£.133 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>1833 -</td><td>162 0 0</td><td>163 0 0</td></tr></table>		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1832 -	£.124 0 0	£.133 0 0	1833 -	162 0 0	163 0 0	<table><tr><td></td><td>Receipt.</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - - - - -</td><td>£.157 16 0</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - - - - -</td><td>160 4 0</td></tr><tr><td>1833 - - - - -</td><td>141 16 0</td></tr></table> Expenditure the same as the receipts.		Receipt.	1831 - - - - -	£.157 16 0	1832 - - - - -	160 4 0	1833 - - - - -	141 16 0	<table><tr><td></td><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1831 -</td><td>£.207 0 0</td><td>£.207 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>1832 -</td><td>197 16 0</td><td>197 16 0</td></tr><tr><td>1833 -</td><td>181 18 0</td><td>181 18 0</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><td></td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td><td>1833.</td></tr><tr><td>Medical } Depart- } ment }</td><td>£.177 18 4</td><td>167 13 7</td><td>157 19 6</td></tr><tr><td>Contingencies</td><td>29 1 4</td><td>30 2 5</td><td>23 18 6</td></tr></table>		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831 -	£.207 0 0	£.207 0 0	1832 -	197 16 0	197 16 0	1833 -	181 18 0	181 18 0		1831.	1832.	1833.	Medical } Depart- } ment }	£.177 18 4	167 13 7	157 19 6	Contingencies	29 1 4	30 2 5	23 18 6
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1832 -	£.124 0 0	£.133 0 0
1833 -	162 0 0	163 0 0
	Receipt.
1831 - - - - -	£.157 16 0
1832 - - - - -	160 4 0
1833 - - - - -	141 16 0
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831 -	£.207 0 0	£.207 0 0
1832 -	197 16 0	197 16 0
1833 -	181 18 0	181 18 0
	1831.	1832.	1833.
Medical } Depart- } ment }	£.177 18 4	167 13 7	157 19 6
Contingencies	29 1 4	30 2 5	23 18 6
Supported one-half by voluntary subscription, the other by presentments obtained from the county of Galway only.	By private subscription, and county presentment only from the county of Galway.	By subscriptions, and by county presentment only on this county.
I know of no alteration in the distribution of the funds that would render the establishment more efficient for the relief of the poor. I beg to suggest, that a small fever hospital attached to each dispensary would be the means of very much checking the extension of that disease in the county.	The funds of the institution are subject to constant changes, owing to subscribers not continuing their subscriptions.	The committee consider the funds not sufficient, and would not bear diminution, but suggest that it would render this establishment more efficient for the relief of the sick poor if some provision was added to supply the sick and valetudinarian with nourishment.

CONNAUGHT—GALWAY.

Milltown Dispensary.	Monivea Dispensary.	Oranmore and Ballinacourty Dispensary.
James Blake, Esq. Medical Attendant.	Digby French, Esq., Surgeon.	Geo. Heathcote, Esq., M. D.
The Milltown Dispensary opened May 15th, 1833.	Monivea Dispensary, established these 17 years, ending next January.	The Oranmore and Ballinacourty Dispensary has been abandoned by the subscribers, having been established only since January 1832.
It is difficult to define my district, it being determined by the locality of subscribers. I am in the habit of receiving patients from ten parishes, some of which are in Mayo.	Seven parishes, all in said county.	—
The dispensaries of Tuam and Dunmore.	None.	—
There is no other dispensary within the above limits; nor has the committee determined my salary for this year, which, being the first of the institution, is more expensive in fixtures, instruments, &c. After all incident expenses, there may be a balance of between 30 l. and 40 l.	None.	There is an hospital and dispensary in Galway, about seven miles from Oranmore. I am not acquainted with the officers' salaries.
I attend the Milltown Dispensary alone, on Tuesdays and Fridays, and reside on the spot.	None; except the above-mentioned one, which is open every day at 12 o'clock, and two entire days in each week, devoted to such cases as present themselves for relief.	I only attended the Oranmore Dispensary.
Yes, I am in the habit of doing so on the requisition of a subscriber, stating the patient's inability to attend personally at the dispensary.	I do.	Besides the regular attendance at the dispensary, the subscribers usually sent for the physician upon urgent cases; the personal visits, however, were, with the exception of six or seven, all voluntary.
Yes, a most accurate register of all cases; and the result, so far as practicable.	A register is kept of the occurrences of the dispensary. from the prescriptions of the physician, to the judgments of the old women famous for cures, or to their own imaginations, or even to the size, smell and taste of the medicines administered to them. In one case a man, a patient of mine, with a diseased knee, travelled some distance to see "the priest who married him," and who read what is called "a Gospel over him."	With respect to the result of the application of remedies (I presume), such is the character of the people, that it is almost impossible to state this result with any accuracy. In most cases they appeal
The number of original cases on the books, is 600 and odd. The institution has only been open since May last.— Vide answer 1st.	<table><thead><tr><th></th><th>Ad-mitted.</th><th>Cured.</th><th>Re-lieved.</th><th>Dead.</th><th>In-curable.</th></tr></thead><tbody><tr><td>1830 -</td><td>2,035</td><td>1,801</td><td>190</td><td>31</td><td>13</td></tr><tr><td>1831 -</td><td>1,922</td><td>1,789</td><td>78</td><td>22</td><td>12</td></tr><tr><td>1832 -</td><td>1,455</td><td>1,290</td><td>87</td><td>20</td><td>14</td></tr></tbody></table>		Ad-mitted.	Cured.	Re-lieved.	Dead.	In-curable.	1830 -	2,035	1,801	190	31	13	1831 -	1,922	1,789	78	22	12	1832 -	1,455	1,290	87	20	14	—
	Ad-mitted.	Cured.	Re-lieved.	Dead.	In-curable.
1830 -	2,035	1,801	190	31	13
1831 -	1,922	1,789	78	22	12
1832 -	1,455	1,290	87	20	14
Persons whose circumstances are known to their respective landlords to be above actual pauperism occasionally apply to a distant subscriber.	Not knowingly.	—
By Messrs. Leslie & Co., Bride-street, Dublin, on the application of the treasurer.	By the druggist in Dublin, Messrs. Jeffris & Co., Merrion-row.	—
Private subscriptions, 72 l. ; county presentment, 52 l. Expenditure as yet unknown.	<table><thead><tr><th></th><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr></thead><tbody><tr><td>1830 -</td><td>£. 125 8 0</td><td>£. 140 12 6</td></tr><tr><td>1831 -</td><td>126 0 0</td><td>131 1 4</td></tr><tr><td>1832 -</td><td>132 1 2</td><td>125 8 0½</td></tr></tbody></table> * GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table><thead><tr><th></th><th>1830.</th><th>1831.</th><th>1832.</th></tr></thead><tbody><tr><td>Balance -</td><td>£. 14 17 10</td><td>-</td><td>5 1 4½</td></tr><tr><td>Salary -</td><td>70 0 0</td><td>70 0 0</td><td>70 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine -</td><td>43 3 1</td><td>35 0 10½</td><td>37 4 3</td></tr><tr><td>Rent -</td><td>0 18 7</td><td>0 18 5½</td><td>5 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Incidents -</td><td>7 13 0</td><td>9 7 6</td><td>8 2 5½</td></tr><tr><td>Balance -</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>6 12 0</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>140 12 6</td><td>131 1 4</td><td>132 1 2</td></tr></tbody></table> * N. B.—True copy.		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1830 -	£. 125 8 0	£. 140 12 6	1831 -	126 0 0	131 1 4	1832 -	132 1 2	125 8 0½		1830.	1831.	1832.	Balance -	£. 14 17 10	-	5 1 4½	Salary -	70 0 0	70 0 0	70 0 0	Medicine -	43 3 1	35 0 10½	37 4 3	Rent -	0 18 7	0 18 5½	5 0 0	Incidents -	7 13 0	9 7 6	8 2 5½	Balance -	-	-	6 12 0		140 12 6	131 1 4	132 1 2	ACCOUNT of Receipt and Expenditure from January 1832 to October 1833: Receipt, £. 246. 2. 0. Expenditure, £. 258. 11. 5½. GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE:—First year. Furnishing house as dispensary, £. s. d. firing, &c. - - - - 26 15 6 Medicines - - - - 36 3 1 Salary, Physician - - - 100 - - From January to Oct. 1832: Medicines - - - - 16 6 2½ Dispensary boy - - - - 4 6 8 Proportion of Physician's salary - 75 - -
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1830 -	£. 125 8 0	£. 140 12 6
1831 -	126 0 0	131 1 4
1832 -	132 1 2	125 8 0½
	1830.	1831.	1832.
Balance -	£. 14 17 10	-	5 1 4½
Salary -	70 0 0	70 0 0	70 0 0
Medicine -	43 3 1	35 0 10½	37 4 3
Rent -	0 18 7	0 18 5½	5 0 0
Incidents -	7 13 0	9 7 6	8 2 5½
Balance -	-	-	6 12 0
	140 12 6	131 1 4	132 1 2
By subscriptions from Galway and Mayo residents, and presentment off Galway alone.	Supported by voluntary subscription, and assisted by county grant.	—
The funds of the institution are too low to be extended to any object beyond the purchase and distribution of medicines.	I cannot consider any better manner to apply the funds.	Perhaps the alteration of the thatched cabins to slated ones would raise the condition of these poor people to greater comfort and cleanliness than could be done by any other means. It would save their straw for manure, and improve their crops; it would enable them to have clean rain-water at command for washing and cleaning, &c.; it would save them the time and expense of thatching; it would remove (supposing a chimney built with the slated roof) all smoke from the interior of their dwellings, which now causes ophthalmia, and prevents the ready curing of diseases of the lungs, &c.; it would enable them to preserve the interior of their house white-washed and dry, which at present is so difficult, owing to the imperfect thatching which they can only afford to bestow upon their houses.

CONNAUGHT—GALWAY and LEITRIM.

Outerarde Dispensary.	Portumna Dispensary.	Ballinamore and Kiltubride Dispensary.
	John Heron, Esq., M. D.	Wm. W. Irvine, Esq., Surgeon. John Lawder, Esq., Treasurer and Secretary.
The Outerarde Dispensary, and the only institution under my superintendence. It is situated at Outerarde, and was established at the spring assizes of 1831.	Portumna Dispensary, established in 1821.	The Ballinamore Dispensary and the Kiltubride Dispensary, both were established in January 1829, for the relief of the poor.
The entire of one, and part of the second parish of the Established Church, and two entire and part of two other parishes of the Roman Catholic church, all in the county of Galway.	Four parishes. In the same county.	Six parishes, part of one (Drumreilly), is in the county of Cavan.
There is none of either nearer than Galway, a distance of 14 Irish miles; or Clifden, 27 Irish miles.	One dispensary in county of Galway, and two in the adjoining county of Tipperary.	None.
There is no other medical or surgical institution whatever in my district.	No. £. 66 per annum, with five shillings for each midwifery case; paid by the subscriber who gives the recommendation.	None.
I attend the Outerarde Dispensary only. The amount of my salary fluctuates according to the funds of the institution, and I attend three days in each week, to dispense and compound medicines, and visit the sick poor at their habitations, when required, on the alternate days.	I attend only the one, for which my salary is 66 l. per annum, and which is open two days in each week.	I attend two (Kiltubride and Ballinamore); Kiltubride is seven miles from Ballinamore, where I reside, and which I attend only one day in the week, the other, two days; for the former I receive 28 l., and the latter 62 l. a year.
I do, except to persons who are not deemed worthy objects of charity, and who can afford to employ a professional person.	I do.	In all cases where they are unable to attend at the dispensaries, they are visited in their own houses.
There is, and how they have been disposed of; and in very many cases the result; but in some, it is impossible to ascertain the result.	The applications for medical aid, and a register of the cases, with the results, are kept by me; the result, in comparison with the number, favourable.	A correct registry is kept of all cases recommended to the dispensaries.
In 1831, total 3,154. Not having the book for this year just now here, I cannot give a detailed account of the results accurately. In 1832, admissions, 1,692; repetitions, 911; cured, 1,356; relieved, 287; dead, 49; total, 2,603.	2,366 persons have received medical aid within the last three years; the principal diseases being dyspepsia, inflammatory affections of the organs situated in the chest and abdomen, diseases of the skin, diseases of the eye, and fevers.	I have been only superintendent of the dispensaries since the 26th June 1833; within that period, 1,300 persons have received medicine and advice.
There may very possibly, but not with my knowledge; as my district (the largest I believe in the county) is so extensive, I must, in many instances, rely on the recommendation of the subscribers; others there are who subscribe small sums in order to obtain relief, who could not afford to employ professional advice or medicines.	It does occasionally, but by no means often.	Occasionally.
Out of the general fund, and procured by the Treasurer.	The medicines are compounded and supplied by me, on two days in the week, to those externs who are able to attend at the dispensary; and at all hours, as occasion may require, to those who may be very ill and unable to attend.	Any medicines ordered by me, are supplied by druggists in Dublin; Boileau & George supply the Ballinamore, and Todd & Stanly the Kiltubride.
Receipt. 1831 - - - £. 63 0 0 1832 - - - 90 0 0 1833 - - - 106 0 0	Receipt. Expenditure. 1831 - £. 100 13 7 ½ £. 94 5 1 ½ 1832 - 102 14 5 ½ 101 9 3 ½ 1833 - 102 15 2 101 0 0 GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. Medical superintendence - - £. 66 0 0 Rent and contingencies - - 9 0 0 Balance for Medicines, Carriage, and Postage - - - - -	There has been subscribed this year, for both dispensaries, 136 l., and the county give 100 l.; I am unable to state what has been the receipts or expenditure heretofore.
The expenditure, time does not at present permit me to draw out, as my duties oblige me to be in constant attendance; I shall, however, as soon as I can obtain sufficient time, forward it.
It is supported by private local subscription, and a presentment (equal in amount to the sum subscribed), granted by the grand jury, by virtue of an Act of Parliament, and only from the county of Galway.	By subscriptions and presentment from one county, viz. county of Galway.	By subscription and presentment from the county of Leitrim.
I really cannot at this moment; for although it may appear like egotism, I do not think the small funds by which this charity is supported, could be more prudently, more usefully, or more satisfactorily distributed.	I cannot suggest any improvement in the distribution of the small funds of this establishment.

CONNAUGHT—LEITRIM.

Dromod and Cloone Dispensaries.	Drumahaire Dispensary.	Manor Hamilton Dispensary.
Thomas William Burke, Esq., Surgeon, and J. Nesbitt, jun., Esq., Secretary.	—	Surgeon Durdas and Committee.
The Dromod and Cloone Dispensaries; Dromod, established 27th November 1829; Cloone, established in the year 1830, to afford further relief.	Drumahaire Dispensary.	Manor Hamilton Dispensary.
Seven parishes; in county Roscommon, Kilmon, Kilglass, Jannon; county Leitrim, Annaduff, Mohill, Cloone, Fenagh.	Three and a half; all in Leitrim, except the half parish, which is in the county Sligo.	Seven; one in the county of Cavan.
Leitrim Infirmary, nine miles; Longford Infirmary, ten miles, with dispensaries attached; and Mohill Dispensary, five miles.	Manor Hamilton, Drumahaire and Sligo.	A dispensary at Drumahaire, seven miles distant.
There is not.	None.	None.
I attend Dromod on each Friday, six miles, and Cloone each Tuesday, nine miles, from residence; salary 50 l. per annum.	Only one.	I attend but the one dispensary.
By a regulation of the committee, when patients are unable to attend the dispensary, on their getting a certificate to that effect from a subscriber, I am bound to attend at their houses, at 5 s. each visit.	Yes.	Certainly.
Yes, there is a registry kept. All persons recommended by subscribers are attended to, generally with success.	Yes.	A correct registry is kept; all applications have been attended to; the various results cannot here be enumerated.
1831 - - - 4,400 1832 - - - 4,220 1833 - - - 4,347 Fever, pleurisy, asthma, diarrhoea, dysentery; those are the general diseases.	Five hundred cases, since the institution was intrusted to me three months ago.	From 1830 to 1831 - - - 4,279 1831 - 1832 - - - 5,371 1832 - 1833 - - - 3,488
It does but very seldom; if known to be such, they are not attended to.	Yes.	It may occur that persons should participate in the benefits of the charity, whose means would enable them to provide for their own wants; but every precaution is taken against such contingencies.
Purchased by the committee, and supplied to the patients by the surgeon through an assistant, who is paid by the committee 10 l. a year, including house-rent.	Out of the fund subscribed, and by Messrs. Pollock, Figges & Co.	Purchased from druggists in Dublin.
<table> <tr> <th></th><th>Subscriptions & Presentments.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr> <tr> <td>1831 -</td><td>£. 105 0 0</td><td>£. 100 0 0</td></tr> <tr> <td>1832 -</td><td>100 0 0</td><td>93 10 0</td></tr> <tr> <td>1833 -</td><td>104 0 0</td><td>101 0 0</td></tr> <tr> <td></td><td>£. 309 0 0</td><td>£. 294 10 0</td></tr> </table>		Subscriptions & Presentments.	Expenditure.	1831 -	£. 105 0 0	£. 100 0 0	1832 -	100 0 0	93 10 0	1833 -	104 0 0	101 0 0		£. 309 0 0	£. 294 10 0	Institution established only in July 1832. Expenses up to July 1833, 130 l.	<table> <tr> <th></th><th>Receipts, including Balances in Treasurer's hands.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr> <tr> <td>1831 -</td><td>£. 179 1 3</td><td>£. 148 3 9</td></tr> <tr> <td>1832 -</td><td>153 6 8</td><td>132 7 10</td></tr> <tr> <td>1833 -</td><td>187 14 6 $\frac{1}{2}$</td><td>151 14 5</td></tr> </table>		Receipts, including Balances in Treasurer's hands.	Expenditure.	1831 -	£. 179 1 3	£. 148 3 9	1832 -	153 6 8	132 7 10	1833 -	187 14 6 $\frac{1}{2}$	151 14 5
	Subscriptions & Presentments.	Expenditure.
1831 -	£. 105 0 0	£. 100 0 0
1832 -	100 0 0	93 10 0
1833 -	104 0 0	101 0 0
	£. 309 0 0	£. 294 10 0
	Receipts, including Balances in Treasurer's hands.	Expenditure.
1831 -	£. 179 1 3	£. 148 3 9
1832 -	153 6 8	132 7 10
1833 -	187 14 6 $\frac{1}{2}$	151 14 5
By subscriptions and presentments off county Leitrim only.	Private subscription.	By subscription and presentment from county Leitrim alone.
The funds of the institution, in proportion to the number of persons requiring assistance, are so limited, that any thing further than medical relief could not possibly be afforded.	The funds of the institution under my charge are barely sufficient to meet its present demands.	Hitherto the funds of the Manor Hamilton Dispensary have been most efficiently managed, and we cannot suggest any alteration for the benefit of the poor, save an increase of funds.

CONNAUGHT—LEITRIM, MAYO and ROSCOMMON.

Mohill and Drumsna Dispensary.	Erris Dispensary.	Ballyleague Dispensary.
	Matthew Bourns, Esq., Surgeon and Accoucheur.	B ^{ro} G. O'Connor, Esq., Surgeon.
Mohill Dispensary, and Drumsna branch of same, established in the year 1817, to give medical and surgical advice and medicines to the poor; recommended by subscribers.	The Erris Dispensary, established 17th Sept. 1830.	Ballyleague Dispensary, established in the year 1827. No more than one exclusively for the relief of the sick poor.
Six parishes, or rather the greater part of the poor of six parishes; one parish in Roscommon.	Two parishes, both in this county.	Five parishes, all in the same county; but many come from other parishes, if recommended by subscribers.
There is a dispensary in Dromod; one in Elphin; one in Strokeston, within ten miles of this town.	There is no other dispensary, infirmary or public hospital within ten miles.	Only those already mentioned.
There is a dispensary attached to the County Hospital, within three miles of Drumsna, and eight from Mohill; 200 l. Irish currency allowed the surgeon of the infirmary, and 50 l. for dispensary in this county, with rooms.	There is no dispensary, hospital or infirmary in my district, but the one above set forth. My salary for attending it is 75 l. per annum.	Only one dispensary within ten miles, and the county infirmary; cannot say what emoluments the medical attendants derive.
I attend only one dispensary, five miles from my residence; and the dispensary in this town allowed a salary of 92 l. a year for every thing, including apothecary's salary, two days each week.	Only one, and that I attend on two days in the week.	Only one; twice weekly; the salary varies, some years 45 l. and some 55 l. , regulated by the number of subscribers.
I do not consider it my duty to attend any cases where the person is able to pay, without being paid.	I do, subject, however, to the regulations of this dispensary, a recommendation from a subscriber being necessary for each applicant.	I invariably attend the poor when recommended (or my own knowledge), by subscribers, without any emolument.
There is a registry kept, with very little good, as the poor do not attend regularly.	There is a register kept of all cases, setting forth the number, name, age, residence, date of admission, by whom recommended, diseases, treatment, result of such treatment, remarks, of every applicant.	There is a register kept; the applicants have been almost cured when relief was solicited in time.
The average numbers in attendance for the last three years, 9,200. Dyspepsia, fevers, variola, measles, inflammation, &c. &c.	Applications, 2,134; out of which died about 50; fever, diarrhoea, dysentery and scorbutic affections prevail here.	There have been at least 3,000; fever, generally of typhoid class, worms, dentition, dyspepsia, small pox, measles, scrofula, scurvy, wounds and ulcers of various kinds.
Very often.	I cannot take it upon myself to answer in the affirmative.	Seldom, unless recommended by a subscriber.
By a druggist.	By me, a sum of from 20 l. to 25 l. being annually granted by the committee for this purpose; the medicine account and medicines to be submitted for the approval of said committee, as also every account pertaining to this dispensary.	By the treasurer's order, who accounts on his oath to the grand jury.
200 l. a year is about the expenditure.	<table><tr><td></td><td>£.</td><td>s.</td><td>d.</td></tr><tr><td>My salary for first year, 1830-31,</td><td>75</td><td>0</td><td>0</td></tr><tr><td>For medicines - - - - -</td><td>25</td><td>0</td><td>0</td></tr><tr><td>For year 1831-32, Salary - - -</td><td>75</td><td>0</td><td>0</td></tr><tr><td> Medicines - - -</td><td>25</td><td>0</td><td>0</td></tr><tr><td>Salary for year 1832-33 - - -</td><td>75</td><td>0</td><td>0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicines - - - - -</td><td>19</td><td>5</td><td>6</td></tr><tr><td>Total for three years -</td><td>£.294</td><td>5</td><td>6</td></tr></table>		£.	s.	d.	My salary for first year, 1830-31,	75	0	0	For medicines - - - - -	25	0	0	For year 1831-32, Salary - - -	75	0	0	Medicines - - -	25	0	0	Salary for year 1832-33 - - -	75	0	0	Medicines - - - - -	19	5	6	Total for three years -	£.294	5	6	The amount of receipt for the last three years, 315 l. The expenditure, exclusive of my salary, amounted to something more than half that sum.
	£.	s.	d.
My salary for first year, 1830-31,	75	0	0
For medicines - - - - -	25	0	0
For year 1831-32, Salary - - -	75	0	0
Medicines - - -	25	0	0
Salary for year 1832-33 - - -	75	0	0
Medicines - - - - -	19	5	6
Total for three years -	£.294	5	6
By subscriptions, and by presentment from only one county.	By subscriptions, donations and by presentments obtained from the county of Mayo, and none but from that county.	By private subscription and presentments, and only from one county.
I think there is great abuse of all the charitable institutions in the country; there are many abuses that might be changed and done away with.	By reason of the very limited funds of the Erris Dispensary, I cannot suggest any alteration that could be made in the regulations of this dispensary, more likely to be productive of benefit than the present; there are many things advisable, but nothing could be accomplished without an increase of funds.	I cannot, save if it were imperative on the medical officer to reside near his dispensary to afford relief in cases of great emergency at any time, as well as the stated days of attendance.

CONNAUGHT—ROSCOMMON.

Boyle Dispensary.	Castlerea County Dispensary.	Croghan Dispensary.
The Committee.	Luke Kelly, Esq., M. D.	The Committee.
Boyle Dispensary.	The Castlerea County Dispensary, established in the year 1814.	Croghan Dispensary.
Portions of seven parishes in the counties Roscommon and Sligo.	Four large parishes in the county of Roscommon.	Five parishes in the county Roscommon.
At Elphin, nine miles from Boyle; French Park, seven miles; and Croghan, four miles and a half Irish.	There are three other dispensaries within ten miles of Castlerea; viz. Loughlin, French Park and Tulsk dispensaries.	Elphin, four miles and a half; Boyle, five miles; French Park, seven; and Carrick, in the county Leitrim, five miles.
None.	There is no other dispensary, hospital or infirmary in my district. I receive but 60 l. per annum as a salary for my professional attendance.	None.
Only one.	I attend but the Castlerea Dispensary. I am required to attend it two days in each week, from 11 o'clock A.M. to 3 o'clock P.M.; besides, I give my attendance on the intermediate days in any case of emergency.	Croghan, five miles from Boyle, where I reside, and also Boyle.
Yes.	I always give my personal attendance whenever medical or surgical aid is required; both my assistant and myself visit patients at their respective houses, when unable to attend.	When recommended by subscribers.
A register kept, and all applications attended to.	A register is kept of the persons recommended for advice and medicine; and their diseases, treatment, &c. &c. entered, and yearly report made by the physician to the committee.	Yes.
About 17,000 applications attended to for the last three years, embracing every description of disease, medical and surgical.	It does not appear that any register of the patients was kept by my predecessor; but since I have been elected to the charge of the institution, I have carefully registered the names of the patients, places of abode, diseases, subscribers' name, date of recommendation, visits, results and observations; the last report published embraces from 1st of October 1832 to the 20th of June 1833, and contains a clear registry of 4,486 distinct cases; 98 persons visited at their own houses, and eight patients supplied with patent trusses. The diseases were of a varied character, depending very much on changes of weather, seasons and other causes; the more common and frequent being those arising from bad food, bad clothing, damp and privation.	About 2,000 last year, and 1,700 this present year; I have not been in the dispensary for a longer time.
Occasionally, when recommended by subscribers.	Many persons are recommended to the institution for a participation in the benefits of the charity, which is an abuse, they not being proper objects for gratuitous relief.	None.
Purchased from Messrs. Leslie & Co., Dublin, from the dispensary funds.	The medicine is purchased of the best quality, from Dublin druggists, and paid for by the treasurer out of the yearly funds; it is compounded and dispensed by my assistant, under my direction.	Stanley & Co., Bride-street, Dublin.
<table><tr><td>Income.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>£. s. d.</td><td>£. s. d.</td></tr><tr><td>1830 - 130 12 8</td><td>140 17 8</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - 128 10 9</td><td>146 11 0½</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - 138 5 6</td><td>156 7 10½</td></tr></table> General heads of Expenditure:—Salaries to physicians and surgeons, 60l. per annum; to apothecary, 25l. per annum; medicines average about 40l. per annum; all other incidental charges nearly 30l.	Income.	Expenditure.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	1830 - 130 12 8	140 17 8	1831 - 128 10 9	146 11 0½	1832 - 138 5 6	156 7 10½	I cannot give any statement as to the receipts and disbursements during the years that my predecessor was in office. In the year 1832, the receipts were, by private subscription, 85l. 9s.; county presentment, 85l. 9s.; making a total of 170l. 18s. The expenditure for medicine, house-rent, physician, assistant and porter (including a balance of 28l. 3s. 1d. due for medicines supplied in the former year of my predecessor) amounted to 175l. 18s. 3d. The subscription and county presentment for the current year amounts to 166l. 14s. The expenditure cannot be stated properly until the close of the year, but it is confidently expected that it will be less than last year, although the applications at the dispensary for relief have been much on the increase.	I cannot give the amount of expenditure and receipt, as the treasurer is on government duty in the north of Ireland, he having the books.
Income.	Expenditure.
£. s. d.	£. s. d.
1830 - 130 12 8	140 17 8
1831 - 128 10 9	146 11 0½
1832 - 138 5 6	156 7 10½
Subscriptions and presentment on county Roscommon.	By private subscriptions, and presentment off the county of Roscommon.	By subscription and presentments from the county of Roscommon.
None.	So long as the present system exists of establishing dis-	None.

CONNAUGHT—ROSCOMMON.

Elphin Dispensary.	Tarmonbarry and Kilglass Dispensary.	French-park Dispensary.
Henry Lynch, Esq., M.R.C.S. Michael Dillon, Esq., M.D.	Terence Shanly, Esq. Medical Attendant.	Alexander O'Ferrall, Esq., M.D.
The Elphin Dispensary, established on its present plan in 1820.	Tarmonbarry and Kilglass Dispensary, established November 1829, at Ruskey, for giving medicine and attendance to sick poor.	I attend the French-park Dispensary at present. This has been, I believe, established upwards of 17 years; its object to give gratuitous advice and medicine to the neighbouring poor.
Six parishes; namely, Elphin, Shankill, Kilmacumsey, Aughrim, Creeve and Cloonaff.	Kilglass and Tarmonbarry, county Roscommon, Anaduff and Bornacoola, Leitrim, Cloongesh, Longford; part of the last three parishes is in the neighbourhood of Ruskey, and their poor come to my dispensary.	About seven or eight parishes are included in the French-park Dispensary district, all in the same county.
A dispensary at Croughan, four miles distant; one at Tulsk, five miles; one at Strokestown, five miles and a half; one at French-park, eight miles; at Boyle, nine miles; and at Carrick, seven miles.	Longford Infirmary, eight miles; Carrick-on-Shannon, ten; Dromod Dispensary, two; Drumsna, six; Mohill, six; (the above dispensaries are in the county Leitrim); Strokestown, eight; Elphin, ten, county Roscommon.	The Elphin Dispensary within eight miles; the Castlereagh within eight; the County Hospital is eighteen miles distant.
There is no dispensary nearer than four Irish miles distant. The salary for medical attendance on dispensaries in this county has been limited, by a resolution of the grand jury, to 60 l. per annum.	There is no hospital or infirmary within my district.	In this district there is no hospital or infirmary (French-park Dispensary excepted); the salary 50 l. per annum.
I attend but one dispensary in Elphin, where I reside, open two days in each week; a physician and surgeon are attached to it, whose salary has been reduced, in consequence of the grand jury resolution, from 50 l. to 30 l. a year each.	One dispensary, no infirmary or hospital; residence, Strokestown, distance eight miles; amount of salary, 50 l. annually; attendance two days in each week, Mondays and Thursdays.	The French-park Dispensary is attended two days in the week; I attend no other.
In severe illness the patients are visited at their residences, particularly when so recommended by a subscriber; domiciliary visits are required to an unusual extent.	The committee, consisting of seven members, have reserved a power of giving house-tickets wherever medical or surgical aid is required.	If the case is urgent and dangerous, I consider it incumbent on the medical attendant to give his personal assistance; independent of duty, the feelings of humanity and religion should prompt every person to do good.
Such a register is kept.	A regular registry is kept of all the applicants at the dispensary, and a separate one for visiting-tickets. The treatment of the different diseases in general successful, and the patients are perfectly satisfied with the attention paid them.	—
The most frequent disorders of adults are the varieties of dyspepsia and consequent visceral diseases, occasionally typhus, particularly in seasons of scarcity; and in the winter pulmonary complaints prevail to a great extent.	Total number of applicants for the last three years, 10,264; visited at their own houses, 150. I cannot give an exact return of the persons relieved, as their friends have not furnished me with a list of the recoveries or deaths. Fevers of almost every type, affections of the chest, rheumatism, small-pox, measles, whooping-cough, croup, dysentery, diarrhoea, cholera, epilepsy, dropsy, diseases of the skin very prevalent, and frequent attendance on puerperal cases.	—
It does so occur very frequently, as almost all the applicants receive tickets of admission from a few subscribers residing near the institution, who cannot know their circumstances; but the medical officers	It frequently happens that persons able to pay get medicine from my dispensary, particularly, when sudden or dangerous illness occurs.	Many persons, in comfortable circumstances, and middle ranks of life, apply for relief, and thus participate in the benefits of the charity, which is solely intended for the poor.
A list of the medicines required is given by the medical attendants to the treasurer, who thereupon orders them from a druggist.	I give a list of the medicines required to the treasurer, Rev. Thomas Lloyd, rector, Kilglass-gebe, and he orders them from Messrs. Leslie and Co., 40, Bride-street.	The medicines of French-park are supplied by Messrs. Leslie & Co., Bride-street, Dublin.
<table><tr><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>1830 - £.178 15 10½</td><td>£.170 17 7</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - 182 7 4½</td><td>173 9 11</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - 171 13 5½</td><td>166 11 7½</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><th>1830.</th><th>1831.</th><th>1832.</th></tr><tr><td>Salaries - £.79 18 0</td><td>74 15 8</td><td>86 19 4</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine, &c. 77 19 3</td><td>83 10 4½</td><td>62 8 5½</td></tr><tr><td>Carriage of do. 3 15 8½</td><td>4 7 2½</td><td>4 16 5½</td></tr><tr><td>Fuel, Lard, &c. 3 5 0</td><td>4 14 9</td><td>4 13 6</td></tr><tr><td>Repairs, Postage, &c. - } 5 19 7½</td><td>6 1 11</td><td>7 13 10½</td></tr></table>	Receipt.	Expenditure.	1830 - £.178 15 10½	£.170 17 7	1831 - 182 7 4½	173 9 11	1832 - 171 13 5½	166 11 7½	1830.	1831.	1832.	Salaries - £.79 18 0	74 15 8	86 19 4	Medicine, &c. 77 19 3	83 10 4½	62 8 5½	Carriage of do. 3 15 8½	4 7 2½	4 16 5½	Fuel, Lard, &c. 3 5 0	4 14 9	4 13 6	Repairs, Postage, &c. - } 5 19 7½	6 1 11	7 13 10½	Between presentments and private donations, 400 l. for three years; expenditure 378 l. 19 s. 9 d. , for same period. Medical attendance, medicine, house-rent, fuel, and clerk, comprise the general items of expenditure.	The funds for the last three years average 90 l. per annum, that is, 45 l. from subscription, and 45 l. from the county.
Receipt.	Expenditure.
1830 - £.178 15 10½	£.170 17 7
1831 - 182 7 4½	173 9 11
1832 - 171 13 5½	166 11 7½
1830.	1831.	1832.
Salaries - £.79 18 0	74 15 8	86 19 4
Medicine, &c. 77 19 3	83 10 4½	62 8 5½
Carriage of do. 3 15 8½	4 7 2½	4 16 5½
Fuel, Lard, &c. 3 5 0	4 14 9	4 13 6
Repairs, Postage, &c. - } 5 19 7½	6 1 11	7 13 10½
By private subscriptions and presentments from the county of Roscommon, which generally equal in amount the sum subscribed.	By private subscription and presentment; there is a presentment got off the county annually, equal to the amount of private subscription. The river Shannon divides Leitrim and Longford from Roscommon, at Ruskey, but they get no presentment from either.	Supported by the subscriptions of private individuals, and by the presentment of an equal sum from the county Roscommon.
The funds of the institution, in our opinion, are managed with great judgment and economy.	I cannot suggest any change in the distribution of the funds that support the dispensary which I attend that could be of greater advantage to the poor. If our funds were more ample, there is nothing I would recommend before the distribution of blankets and rugs to all householders not keeping nor able to keep a cow.	—

CONNAUGHT—ROSCOMMON.

Keadue Dispensary.	Lecarrow Dispensary.	Loughglynn Dispensary.
George Munns, Esq., Surgeon.	Treasurer and Medical Attendant.	Edmund Kelly, Esq. Medical Attendant.
Keadue Dispensary, for the relief of the sick poor of the neighbourhood; established March 6th, 1819.	Lecarrow Dispensary.	The Loughglynn Dispensary, established in 1819. I do not attend any other dispensary, and there is no infirmary but the County Infirmary at Roscommon.
Parish of Kilronan, ditto of Croosna, part of Kilmactrany, and part of Toomna, all in the county Roscommon, and part of Kiltoghart, county Leitrim.	The five constituting the union of Killenvoy, and all in same county.	There are five parishes in the district I attend, densely inhabited by very poor people.
A dispensary in Boyle, county Roscommon, near ten miles; ditto in Kiltubride, about seven miles; an infirmary and dispensary in Carrick-on-Shannon, seven miles distant; both county of Leitrim.	There is an infirmary, with a dispensary attached, at Roscommon, distant seven miles; a dispensary at Athlone, distant seven miles; and one at Brideswell, distant seven miles.	There are two other dispensaries within ten miles of Loughglynn, Castlereagh and French-park dispensaries.
None within the district above-mentioned, but there is in Carrick-on-Shannon.	No.	There is no other dispensary, hospital or infirmary in my district: the salary I am allowed is 60 £. per annum.
I attend only the Keadue Dispensary, which is seven miles distant from my residence (at Carrick-on-Shannon); the salary is 60 £. per annum; 40 £. for professional attendance, and 20 £. for compounding; I attend two days in the week, Tuesdays and Saturdays.	The physician attends the Lecarrow Dispensary only, the salary for which was 50 guineas per annum; but, in consequence of the great consumption of medicine, he has got but 40 £. the last year.	I attend but one dispensary, Loughglynn; I have attended it two days in each week. Since it was established in 1819, and when required, I give my attendance on the intermediate days at the dispensary, and to any of the poor who may require it at their houses.
It is not obligatory on me, but I consider it my duty, and do so in particular cases; I now allude to patients in their own houses.	The physician is not required to attend external patients but in certain cases, when called upon by one of the subscribers.	I give my personal attendance whenever medical or surgical aid is required: my assistant and myself visit persons at their houses who are unable to attend at the dispensary.
There is a register kept of each individual case; the name, age, disease, by whom recommended, and treatment.	Yes.	A register is kept of all the persons recommended for advice and medicines, their names and mode of treatment entered, and a report made to the committee.
The number of persons treated in the year 1831 were 1,365, and there were 5,126 distinct prescriptions or attendances; for the year 1832 there were 1,727 cases, and 5,991 prescriptions; and in the present year, 1833, up to 16th November, there were 1,855 cases, and about 6,000 prescriptions.	1831, 2,900 patients relieved; 1832, 4,750; and in 1833, to 2d July, 3,330; all sorts of diseases, from cutaneous eruptions to fevers. medicine, whose names were not registered. The diseases were of various kinds, such as I have met among the poor people for upwards of 40 years in this country, induced generally by bad food, bad clothing, bad lodgings, changes of weather, exposed to cold and wet, fevers, affections of the lungs, bowels and skin, scrofula, dropsy, rheumatism, &c. &c.	From February 1831 to 1832 - - 6,602 — 1832 to 1833 - - 4,972 — 1833 to 1834 - - 4,065 all distinct cases; several were attended and received
I consider it the case in some instances.	Yes, on some few occasions, when the subscriber recommending has been imposed upon.	Several persons in good circumstances, well able to provide medical advice and medicines, are recommended to dispensaries by the subscribers, and receive what should be only given to the poor; this is an abuse not in the power of the medical attendants entirely to correct, as subscribers would feel offended if their recommendations were not attended to; I have frequently complained of it.
The medicines are supplied by a druggist in Dublin, and paid for out of the general funds of the institution.	By Dublin druggists; formerly by Clifford & Co., now by Boileau & George.	The medicine is procured of the best quality from Dublin druggists, and paid for out of the yearly funds; it is compounded and dispensed by me and my assistant.
The answer to this query I have received from Colonel Tenison, the manager of the dispensary, as near as he can come to it, for the principal part of the expense comes on him. <table><tr><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1830 - £.76 18 10</td><td>£.82 12 6</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - 88 10 0</td><td>93 13 6</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - 68 0 0</td><td>71 15 0</td></tr><tr><td>£.233 8 10</td><td>£.248 1 0</td></tr></table>	Receipt.	Expenditure.	1830 - £.76 18 10	£.82 12 6	1831 - 88 10 0	93 13 6	1832 - 68 0 0	71 15 0	£.233 8 10	£.248 1 0	<table><tr><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - £.101 0 0</td><td>£.87 19 7</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - 82 15 0½</td><td>82 10 0</td></tr><tr><td>1833 - 89 8 10</td><td>80 6 0</td></tr></table> <table><tr><th colspan="3">GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.</th></tr><tr><th>1831.</th><th>1832.</th><th>1833.</th></tr><tr><td>Salaries - £.52 10 0</td><td>52 10 0</td><td>40 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine 35 9 6</td><td>30 0 0</td><td>40 6 0</td></tr></table> Note.—The principal items only are here set down, from want of room. balance due to the ensuing year; the expenditure for this year cannot be made out until the end of the year, which will be in February 1835. The receipts and expenditure most commonly agree.	Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831 - £.101 0 0	£.87 19 7	1832 - 82 15 0½	82 10 0	1833 - 89 8 10	80 6 0	GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.			1831.	1832.	1833.	Salaries - £.52 10 0	52 10 0	40 0 0	Medicine 35 9 6	30 0 0	40 6 0	County presentment, in year 1832 - £.65 14 4½ Subscriptions - " 1832 - 65 14 4½ £.131 8 9 Presentment off the county - - £.58 6 4 Subscriptions - - - - 58 6 4 £.116 12 8 Subscriptions for 1834 - £.57 3 4 } £.114 6 8 Presentment for 1834 - 57 3 4 } The expenditure varies, leaving sometimes a
Receipt.	Expenditure.
1830 - £.76 18 10	£.82 12 6
1831 - 88 10 0	93 13 6
1832 - 68 0 0	71 15 0
£.233 8 10	£.248 1 0
Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831 - £.101 0 0	£.87 19 7
1832 - 82 15 0½	82 10 0
1833 - 89 8 10	80 6 0
GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.
1831.	1832.	1833.
Salaries - £.52 10 0	52 10 0	40 0 0
Medicine 35 9 6	30 0 0	40 6 0
By subscription and presentment from the county Roscommon alone.	By subscriptions and a grand jury presentment, equal in amount to that of the subscriptions.	By presentments off the county of Roscommon, and by private subscriptions.
I am not able to suggest any alteration in the distribution of the funds better than how they exist at present; but had we sufficient funds, the establishment of two beds for accidents would be necessary, as many such occur among the colliers, and the workmen of the Arigna Iron-works in the neighbourhood.	An increase of funds, to enable us to have a resident physician, would certainly render the institution more efficient.	I cannot suggest any alteration in the distribution of the funds, or in the management of the dispensary, which could render an institution so limited in funds more efficient or useful to the poor; every economy is observed, and all the assistance that such an institution can afford is given to the poor.

CONNAUGHT—ROSCOMMON and SLIGO.

Tulsk Dispensary.	Ballymote Dispensary.	Castleconnor and Kilglass Dispensary.
H. O'Ferrall, Esq., M. D.	Joseph Loughheed, Esq., M.R.C.S.L.	W. Whittaker, Esq., M. D.
Tulsk Dispensary; its object, to give gratuitous advice and medicine to the very poor. Established in or about the year 1818.	The Ballymote Dispensary, established in the year 1818.	Castleconnor and Kilglass Dispensary. I am physician only to the above institution; it was established for the relief of the poor in the year 1828.
In the Tulsk district are included, I think, three or four parishes, all in the same county.	There are about nine parishes, all in this county.	The parishes of Castleconnor, Kilglass, Killmoremoy and part of Easkey, in the county Sligo, Attymass and Kilgarvon in Mayo.
The Roscommon County Hospital, within ten miles; Elphin Dispensary, within six miles; Strokestown Dispensary, within six miles; all Irish miles.	There are three dispensaries within ten miles, the Coolany, the Riverstown and Tubbercurry.	One only, Dromore West Dispensary; it is about nine miles and a half distant.
No other hospital or infirmary in the district; salary from 50 l. to 55 l.	There is no infirmary in this district.	The above dispensary is the only medical institution in my district.
I attend the Tulsk Dispensary now solely, distant from my residence (Bloomfield) about two miles, on two days each week; I attended two dispensaries some time since, one of which I gave up.	I do not attend any other dispensary; and my salary is 50 l. per annum. I attend two days in the week, and when any urgent case presents itself.	I attend only the above dispensary; it is four miles from my residence; salary 50 l. per annum; attend twice a week, on Wednesdays and Saturdays.
I consider it my duty to personally visit cases of danger, where a prompt and quick remedy appears essential (though I get no pecuniary consideration for this extra duty.)	I do think it indispensably necessary to give my personal attendance when required, which is almost every day in the year, at their own houses, rather huts.	I consider my attendance on the above days comprises my duty as dispensary physician and surgeon; however, I do not hesitate to attend urgent cases when they happen to occur in my district generally.
I have kept no register of cases for two years back, the crowds of patients scarcely allowing me time; but the previous years I kept one.	There is a register kept, and the applications attended to in every instance with very good effects.	No register kept of my attendance on incidental extern cases above alluded to.
The principal diseases were dyspepsia, &c. typhus, dropsy (ascites), catarrh, bronchites, dysuria, rheumatism (acute), hepatitis, hydrocephalus, pleuritis, pneumonia, &c.; the pneumonia typhoid often presents itself.	The number relieved amounts to 3,500. Diseases: dyspepsia, catarrh, chronic affections of the lungs, diseases of the bones and joints, cephalalgia and gastrodymie.	<table><tr><th>Periods of Admission.</th><th>Number of Patients for each year.</th><th>Discharged, cured or relieved.</th><th>Died.</th><th>Remaining.</th><th>Total.</th></tr><tr><td>March 31, 1831</td><td>934</td><td>698</td><td>10</td><td>226</td><td>934</td></tr><tr><td>" 1832</td><td>1,582</td><td>1,273</td><td>13</td><td>296</td><td>1,582</td></tr><tr><td>" 1833</td><td>986</td><td>810</td><td>18</td><td>158</td><td>986</td></tr></table>	Periods of Admission.	Number of Patients for each year.	Discharged, cured or relieved.	Died.	Remaining.	Total.	March 31, 1831	934	698	10	226	934	" 1832	1,582	1,273	13	296	1,582	" 1833	986	810	18	158	986
Periods of Admission.	Number of Patients for each year.	Discharged, cured or relieved.	Died.	Remaining.	Total.
March 31, 1831	934	698	10	226	934
" 1832	1,582	1,273	13	296	1,582
" 1833	986	810	18	158	986
Many comfortable people and farmers share in the benefit of this charity when more convenient than a shop. Many surgical cases are treated here, the County Hospital being so far off.	Scarcely ever; where the people have the comforts of life, they do not generally require medicines in this very healthy district.	I have had some such applications; instances of this nature, however, occur rarely.
The Tulsk Dispensary medicines are supplied by Messrs. Leslie & Co., Bride-street, Dublin.	The medicines are supplied by Messrs. Boileau, George & Co., Bride-street, Dublin; they are druggists.	Supplied by committee from the house of Messrs. Pollock, Figges & Co., Dublin.
I cannot just now state particulars as to a certainty, but I should think the average receipt of funds for the last three years about 90 l. to 100 l. The expenditure on medicine from 40 l. to 50 l.	<table><tr><th></th><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>1830 -</td><td>£.160 0 0</td><td>£.160 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>1831 -</td><td>160 0 0</td><td>160 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>1832 -</td><td>122 0 0</td><td>120 0 0</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><th></th><th>1830.</th><th>1831.</th><th>1832.</th></tr><tr><td>Salaries -</td><td>£.112 10 0</td><td>112 10 0</td><td>75 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine, &c.</td><td>47 10 0</td><td>47 10 0</td><td>45 0 0</td></tr></table>		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1830 -	£.160 0 0	£.160 0 0	1831 -	160 0 0	160 0 0	1832 -	122 0 0	120 0 0		1830.	1831.	1832.	Salaries -	£.112 10 0	112 10 0	75 0 0	Medicine, &c.	47 10 0	47 10 0	45 0 0	The Rev. Mr. Borrows, treasurer and secretary to this institution, being at present absent in Dublin, it is not in my power to answer this query.
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1830 -	£.160 0 0	£.160 0 0
1831 -	160 0 0	160 0 0
1832 -	122 0 0	120 0 0
	1830.	1831.	1832.
Salaries -	£.112 10 0	112 10 0	75 0 0
Medicine, &c.	47 10 0	47 10 0	45 0 0
Supported by one county presentment, and private subscriptions in same county.	By subscriptions and an equal amount of presentment, and only from one county.	Supported by private subscription and presentments off the county of Sligo only.
Should the subscribers bind themselves to give dispensary admission tickets to none unless the poor, this would render the funds more efficient and more ample.	I cannot, the funds being limited at present; but that some more efficient means are required is certain. The poor are absolutely in a most heart-rending condition. I cannot fully describe the wretchedness of the poor.	I think it would be judicious to give the medical superintendent such an increase of salary as would enable him to attend the poor at their houses, when required in this extensive district, who are utterly unable to pay for advice, the salary of 50 l. per annum being an inadequate remuneration for this attendance.

CONNAUGHT—SLIGO.

Collooney Dispensary.	Drumcliff Dispensary.	Dromore West Dispensary.
	J. Powell, Esq., Surgeon.	Travers Homan, Esq. M. D.
Collooney Dispensary, established July 1832; and St. John's Dispensary, established about a year previously; both intended for the relief of the destitute sick.	Drumcliff and Chamlish Dispensary, established in 1822.	Dromore West Dispensary, established in 1822.
Principally Ballysodare and parts of two or three other parishes, all in the same county.	Two extensive parishes, containing a population of more than 24,000 inhabitants in the county Sligo.	Five extensive parishes in the same county.
Sligo Dispensaries, Hospital and Infirmary; Riverstown, Ballymote, Collaney and Drumahair, in the county Leitrim.	The Sligo hospitals only; distance from Corney and Grange, where the dispensaries are held for the accommodation of the poor, upwards of six and ten miles.	None.
There is no other dispensary or hospital within my district.	None.	None.
I attend St. John's Dispensary, Sligo, two days in the week, and Collooney one day; the salary for Collooney, 50 l. St. John's depends on the amount of the funds, being 31 l. 10 s. last year.	I attend only the above dispensary; salary 50 l. per annum. No medical practitioner in that extensive district. I reside in Sligo; attendance two days in each week. required. I receive 46 l.	I attend the Sligo Fever Hospital daily, and reside in the town of Sligo. I attend the dispensary two days in the week; it is twelve miles distant, nearly midway between Sligo and Ballina, in which line there is no medical practitioner; there is a resident apothecary attached to the dispensary, who visits the sick at all times when per annum for Fever Hospital, and 56 l. for dispensary.
I do.	In case of accidents, fevers, severe inflammatory affections, &c. &c.	In all serious cases.
There is a register kept of the applicants, and the names of those that recommend them, with their cases, treatment, termination, &c. the result being satisfactory.	There is.	There is.
Since the establishment of this dispensary, July 1832 to the present time, there have been 1,900 relieved; a general statement of their diseases would be tedious; suffice it to say, that the principal are inflammatory diseases of the chest and abdomen, with fevers and dyspepsia.	3,877 patients were admitted to the dispensary for the last three years, out of which number between 500 and 600 were visited by me at their own residences. The diseases treated were fevers, inflammations, accidents, dropsy, &c.	Upwards of 600 patients have been visited at their own houses during the last three years by me, exclusive of many external visits made by the resident apothecary. The diseases treated were injuries, accidents, fevers, inflammations, dropsy, &c. &c.
Persons so circumstanced have frequently applied, but have as frequently been rejected on that account; in urgent cases persons of that description get advice, but must purchase medicines.	A few persons have got medicines who were in tolerable circumstances; but the distance from Sligo being great, and the cases urgent, induced me to give them.	Sometimes, not frequently.
By the treasurer.	By Stanley & Co., druggists, and a few from Murray, apothecary, Sligo.	By druggists.
The amount of expenditure for each year is generally between 55 l. and 60 l.	Receipts averaging each year about 110 l. ; expenditure nearly the same. My salary 50 l. , rent of two houses and register 13 l. per annum, the remainder for medicines.	Receipts about 130 l. annually; expenditure nearly the same. Physician's salary, 55 l. 7 s. 8 d. ; apothecary's salary, 26 l. 6 s. 7 d. ; the balance, for medicines, &c.
By subscriptions, and presentments from the county Sligo.	By subscriptions, charity sermons, petty sessions, fines and presentments off the county of Sligo.	Equally by subscription and presentment from one county.
No; I think it is as efficient as it possibly can be from the amount of the funds.	I feel confident had we more ample funds, the institution would be rendered more efficient, as there might be a resident apothecary; but the limited funds there are, I believe to be managed with the greatest economy.	Such small funds for so extensive a district have been managed with the greatest economy, and to the most advantage.

CONNAUGHT—SLIGO.

Riverstown and Sligo Dispensaries.	Sligo Dispensary.	Saint John's Dispensary.
Thomas Burrows, Esq., M.D.	Mr. J. Murray, Reg. and Apoth.	James Kenny, Esq., Surgeon. Thomas Armstrong, Esq., Physician.
Riverstown Dispensary and Sligo Dispensary, both having for their object the relief of the poor. Riverstown Dispensary established June 1822.	The Sligo Dispensary, established in the town of Sligo about 30 years, for the general treatment of disease, attended by Dr. Irwin, who also attends the Coolany Dispensary, established about 18 years, for the Riverstown Dispensary, which has been established	The Saint John's Dispensary, under the care of Dr. James Kenny, senior physician, Dr. Thomas Armstrong, physician and surgeon, and the apothecary, was opened on the 19th December 1831; the object of which was, of having a dispensary open daily, and of making it imperative on the medical officers to visit the sick poor at their own houses, when unable to attend personally, and also to no lying-in hospital has yet been established for their relief.
similar purposes, and by Dr. Burrows, the physician to about 10 years.	attend the lying-in poor within the corporation, as
Sixteen; some in Roscommon.	Persons recommended by subscribers attend the Sligo Dispensary from every part of the county of Sligo, and often from the neighbouring counties.	No certain number of parishes within the county. We receive patients from different parts of the county, and also from the adjoining parts of the county of Leitrim, distant from Sligo seven or eight miles, the subscribers being scattered over the country.
Ballymote and Collooney Dispensaries.	The St. John's, in the town of Sligo; Coolany, within seven miles of Sligo; Collooney, six miles from Sligo; Riverstown, nine miles from Sligo; Carney, five miles from Sligo; Grange, a branch of the Carney, about ten miles from Sligo; the Sligo Fever Hospital, in the town of Sligo; County Infirmary, in the town of Sligo; and Dromehaire Dispensary, eight miles from Sligo, in the county of Leitrim.	1. Dromehaire Dispensary, county of Leitrim, seven miles distant; 2. Riverstown Dispensary, county of Sligo, nine miles; 3. Collooney Dispensary, county of Sligo, five miles; 4. Coolany Dispensary, county of Sligo, nine miles; 5. Ahamlash and Carney Dispensaries, county of Sligo, seven and four miles distant.
None.	None.	There is an infirmary, a fever hospital and dispensary, all situate in the parish of Calry, being one of the parishes of the Union of St. John, Sligo, unattached, as far as we know. The emoluments derived by the medical officers of these intitutions we could not well ascertain.
I attend the Riverstown Dispensary, distant from my residence upwards of ten miles, once a week, at a salary of 60 l. a year; and Sligo Dispensary at 50 l. a year; attendance two days in the week, being in the town of Sligo, in which I reside.	This interrogatory is partly answered in the replies to questions 1 and 3, both physicians residing in the town of Sligo. Besides the Sligo Dispensary and Coolany Dispensary, Dr. Irwin also attends the Fever Hospital, which requires daily attendance. The attendance at the Sligo Dispensary is two days in the week, and patients are visited on the intermediate days, when the cases are of such a nature as to require it. Each physician receives a salary of 60 l. of the late Irish currency for attending the Sligo Dispensary.	Dr. Kenny attends only the St. John's Dispensary; Dr. Armstrong attends the St. John's and the Collooney Dispensaries, five miles off. The united salary of the medical officers of the St. John's is only 100 l. per annum. The principal days are Mondays and Thursdays for those who are able to attend personally.
When called upon I always attend.	The physicians consider it their duty to give their personal attendance when called on.	Certainly; we are obliged by the rules of the institution to attend the poor confined by illness at their own houses, and the lying-in women within the corporation, that is, a mile all round the town; but we often go three or four miles to objects in distress, on the recommendation of subscribers.
A medical register is kept at each institution of every application; each patient remains on the books till discharged cured, with the result of satisfaction to the patients and subscribers.	A register is kept of all cases recommended, and a medical register of the diseases and treatment.	A registry is kept of the names, ages and residence of the patients, also the names and residence of the subscribers recommending them, besides physicians' books, where the history of their diseases are carefully taken down; the remedies employed, and the result given at the close, whether cured, relived or died.
The account of the dispensary begins and ends annually in June. The number of patients, from June 1830 to June 1833, have been 1,985; the diseases generally are chronic, dyspeptic, cutaneous, injuries of all sorts, and pyrexia, &c. &c.	The number treated in the Sligo Dispensary for the last three years was 7,527; the greater number of cases consisted of the pyrexia, disorders which the labouring poor are usually subject to, and pulmonary and visceral diseases, dyspeptic complaints, surgical cases, especially affections of the skin, and midwifery cases.	The number of patients admitted since its opening, on the 19th December 1831 to the 26th June 1833, the date of last report, not including two months of cholera, were 2,625, of whom 2,306 were cured, or relieved, 16 died, and 303 remained in attendance; and of the above number, 576 sick poor, including 23 laborious midwifery cases, were regularly visited at their own houses, and had medicines dispensed to them daily. The general statement of diseases would be too numerous to state here.
It does, as it would appear, from either their clothing or mode of living.	Frequently, but the medical officers have no power to control them.	Seldom, or never.
They are sent by a druggist from Dublin, and compounded at each institution by the attendant apothecary.	The medicines are procured from Messrs. Leslie, Druggists, in Dublin, and compounded at the dispensary by an apothecary.	By an order from the treasurer, the Rev. James Donlevy, on the Dublin druggists; namely, Pollock & Co., Capel-street, and Leslie & Co., Bride-street, to whom we beg leave to refer.
The expenditure for the year ending June 1831, cannot be given with accuracy, as the present officer and committee were appointed after that year; for the year 1832 the receipt was 107 l. 14 s. ; expenditure—salaries, viz. doctor, apothecary, registrar, 73 l. ; medicine, house-rent and sundries, 26 l. 12 s. 5 d. ; 1833 the receipts were 101 l. 0 s. 6 d. ; the expenditure, as above, 97 l. 7 s. 10½ d.	The receipts for the last three years was 1,206 l. 17 s. 8½ d. ; and the expenditure was 1,169 l. 7 s. 1½ d. The expenditure consists entirely of medicine and surgical necessities, such as trusses, &c. for the patients; the salaries of the physicians, apothecary and porter; fuel and stationery.	<table> <tr> <th></th><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr> <tr> <td>1833 -</td><td>£. 199 3 3</td><td>£. 242 8 2½</td></tr> <tr> <td colspan="3">GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.</td></tr> <tr> <td>Salaries -</td><td>-</td><td>£. 128 10 0</td></tr> <tr> <td>Sundries -</td><td>-</td><td>69 17 10½</td></tr> <tr> <td>Medicine -</td><td>-</td><td>84 0 4</td></tr> <tr> <td>Rent -</td><td>-</td><td>10 0 0</td></tr> </table>		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1833 -	£. 199 3 3	£. 242 8 2½	GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.			Salaries -	-	£. 128 10 0	Sundries -	-	69 17 10½	Medicine -	-	84 0 4	Rent -	-	10 0 0
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1833 -	£. 199 3 3	£. 242 8 2½
GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.
Salaries -	-	£. 128 10 0
Sundries -	-	69 17 10½
Medicine -	-	84 0 4
Rent -	-	10 0 0
By private subscriptions and presentment from the county of Sligo only.	Supported by private subscriptions and presentments off the county of Sligo.	By subscriptions, donations and presentments off the county of Sligo only.
I can offer no suggestion, it being so often and deliberately considered.	We can suggest no alteration by which the funds of our establishment could be more beneficially applied to the relief of the poor.	The present funds are scarcely adequate to meet the urgent demands for medicine, &c., as you may perceive in the answer to No. 11; we therefore cannot suggest any alteration in the distribution of the funds now at our disposal; but, if constant employment, or some other means, could be adopted, to enable them to procure good food, good clothing, fuel, &c., we have no hesitation in asserting, that in proportion as you add to the comforts of the poor, in the same ratio will disease be diminished, and consequently the application for medicine lessened.

CONNAUGHT—SLIGO.		LEINSTER—CARLOW.
Tubbercurry Dispensary.	Borris Dispensary.	Carlow Dispensary.
William Powell, Esq., M.D. L.R.C.S.E.	Medical Officer and Committee.	James Porter, Esq., Surgeon.
Tubbercurry Dispensary; its object is to give advice and medicine to the sick poor, and, if required by a subscriber, to attend in their own houses such individuals as are rendered incapable, by disease or injury, from coming to the institution. It was established on the 16th of July 1833.	The Borris Charitable Dispensary; I have the charge of no other.	The Carlow Dispensary; but one in the town; its object, the relief of the sick poor; established in the year 1805.
Two very extensive parishes, viz. Achonry and Kilmatigue, both situated in the county of Sligo.	There are six parishes in my district, all in the county of Carlow. The district attached to this institution is indeed very large, extending in three directions for seven miles.	Cannot say the number of parishes; the district extends three or four miles around Carlow, and goes into the Queen's County and county Kildare.
Two, Ballymote and Coolany, both of which are situated about eight or nine Irish miles from my dispensary.	Bagnalstown and Leighlinbridge.	Carlow Infirmary, Carlow Fever Hospital, Tul-low Fever Hospital and Dispensary; also a dispensary in the following places: Castle Dermot, Athy, Baltinglass, Myshall, Bagnalstown, Leighlin Bridge, Ballickmoyler.
None.	None in my district. I have never inquired as to the salary of any medical gentleman. There is a dispensary attached to the fever hospital in Bagnalstown, which is not in my district.	There is not.
I attend but one dispensary, where I reside; the salary 40 l. yearly; and one day in each week exclusively devoted to the poor.	I only attend the Borris Dispensary, which is every Monday, Wednesday and Friday, from 9 A.M. to 12 o'clock noon.	But one, Carlow Dispensary, every day; distance from dispensary a few yards; salary 63 l. annually.
Certainly.	I do conscientiously feel myself obliged to attend on every case requiring medical and surgical relief.	Yes.
Yes, a book is kept, in which is recorded the name, age, disease, treatment and the final result, which appears to me to have been in general the conferring of important benefit on the poor applicants.	There is, and a list is published once a year, for the consideration and information of the governors and committee.	Yes.
From the 29th of August 1833, the day on which the dispensary was first opened, to the 12th of December 1833, 200 patients have been admitted; 113 of whom were cured, 24 relieved, 3 died, and 60 remain under treatment.	<table><tr><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td><td>1833.</td></tr><tr><td>—</td><td>—</td><td>—</td></tr><tr><td>2,166</td><td>2,229</td><td>1,874</td></tr></table>	1831.	1832.	1833.	—	—	—	2,166	2,229	1,874	Nineteen thousand within the last three years; every description of disease treated.
1831.	1832.	1833.
—	—	—
2,166	2,229	1,874
Sometimes I have found this to be the case, owing, I suppose, to the subscriber not being acquainted with the circumstances of the patient he recommends.	As much as possible I avoid doing so, since my appointment in December last to the institution; but I believe it was almost indiscriminately the case previously.	None but paupers are admissible to the institution.
The medicines are purchased from a Dublin druggist, and the debt liquidated by the grand jury donation.	They are supplied by Messrs. Boileau & George, druggists of Dublin, and paid for from the funds, ordered under my direction.	By a druggist from Dublin.
The institution has not been sufficiently long founded to reply to this interrogatory.	<table><tr><td colspan="2">Receipt.</td><td colspan="2">Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>- £.161 9 4</td><td>£.</td><td>164 5 5</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>- 155 9 4</td><td></td><td>154 15 4</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>- 167 2 6½</td><td></td><td>167 2 4½</td></tr></table>	Receipt.		Expenditure.		1831	- £.161 9 4	£.	164 5 5	1832	- 155 9 4		154 15 4	1833	- 167 2 6½		167 2 4½	<table><tr><td colspan="2">Receipt.</td><td colspan="2">Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1830</td><td>- £.190 9 0</td><td>£.</td><td>153 14 8</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>- 164 4 0</td><td></td><td>170 11 4</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>- 146 4 0</td><td></td><td>164 18 0</td></tr></table>	Receipt.		Expenditure.		1830	- £.190 9 0	£.	153 14 8	1831	- 164 4 0		170 11 4	1832	- 146 4 0		164 18 0
Receipt.		Expenditure.
1831	- £.161 9 4	£.	164 5 5
1832	- 155 9 4		154 15 4
1833	- 167 2 6½		167 2 4½
Receipt.		Expenditure.
1830	- £.190 9 0	£.	153 14 8
1831	- 164 4 0		170 11 4
1832	- 146 4 0		164 18 0
One-half the support is obtained by subscription; the other half is a grant obtained from the Sligo grand jury.	By voluntary contributions and a county grant, but principally by Thomas Kavanagh, esq.	By subscription and presentments; the presentments obtained from the county Carlow.
I am not aware of any change that would tend to confer more relief on the poor in the distribution of the funds.	I am of opinion the funds could not be better applied than they are at present.	I cannot.

LEINSTER—CARLOW.

Clonegal Dispensary.	Hacketstown Dispensary.	Myshall Dispensary.
Wm. Durdin, Esq. M.D.	Henry W. Morton, Esq.	R. Boyce, Esq. M.D.
The Clonegal Dispensary, established in March 1822, for giving advice and medicine gratis to the poor.	Hacketstown Dispensary, established in the year 1830.	The Myshall Dispensary was established the 1st May 1827.
The district comprises the parish of Clonegal; but any poor person applying at the dispensary obtains advice and medicine.	Three, viz. Hacketstown, Clonmore, in the county Carlow, and Mayne, in the county Wicklow.	Four parishes: Myshall, Banagh, Finagh and Ballon, all in the county of Carlow.
The Newtownbarry Dispensary; the Myshall Dispensary; the Tullow Dispensary, and Carnew Dispensary.	Dispensaries: Kiltegan, Aughrim, Tinahely, Carnew and Shillelagh, in the county Wicklow and Tullow, county Carlow: one in Baltinglass; Infirmary and Fever Hospital in Stradford, Wicklow.	At Tullow, county of Carlow, eight miles from Myshall, a dispensary and fever hospital; at Baginbally, county of Carlow, eight miles and a half from Myshall, a dispensary; at Newtown Barry, county of Wexford, six miles from Myshall, a dispensary.
There is no hospital or infirmary within the district. The medical attendant of the Clonegal Dispensary receives about 20 l. per annum.	No dispensary in my district but the one I attend; salary 60 l. per annum.	There is no hospital or infirmary within my district.
The medical attendant of the Clonegal Dispensary attends no other; the dispensary is situate about twenty yards from his house.	Hacketstown Dispensary; days of attendance, Monday, Wednesday and Friday.	I only attend one dispensary two days each week, for which I am paid 40 l. per year.
Personal attendance is given by the medical attendant when medical or surgical aid is required.	I do, where the patients or invalids are incapable of attending at the dispensary.	I consider it my duty to attend when called on by a subscriber.
A registry of the patients is kept, stating the disease, prescription, cures and deaths.	There is a register kept of all cases, let the result be good or unfavourable.	A register is kept of all cases where advice and medicine are required.
Number of patients, 5,409. Cured, 4,320; relieved, 1,068; died, 21. The diseases are such as may be expected to occur in a country district purely agricultural. The parish is remarkably healthy, the proportion of deaths to the number of inhabitants being about 1 in 91 per annum.	Persons relieved, 5,053. Diseases treated according to the remote and proximate symptoms that appeared.	The number of persons relieved from 1st July 1830 to 1st July 1833, 5,034; number visited at their own houses, 166. The most prevalent diseases are, fevers, indigestion, coughs and eruption.
Persons often obtain advice and medicine at the dispensary who might be able to pay for medicines, but not for advice.	None apply but those recommended by subscribers.	It has occurred in some few instances, when medicine could not be procured nearer than eight miles.
The medicines are procured from the druggist, paid for by the treasurer out of the subscriptions and presentments, and dispensed by the medical attendant.	By an order from the treasurer on Boileau & George, druggists, Dublin.	The medicines are supplied out of the dispensary funds.
<table><tr><td></td><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1830</td><td>£.36 0 0</td><td>£.36 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>- 17 0 0</td><td>17 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>- 42 0 0</td><td>42 0 0</td></tr></table>		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1830	£.36 0 0	£.36 0 0	1831	- 17 0 0	17 0 0	1832	- 42 0 0	42 0 0	The average receipts for the last three years, by subscription, 60 l. ; the same amount by presentment; the total, 120 l. ; principally expended on my salary, and drugs, with house-rent.	<table><tr><td>By subscription for three years</td><td>£.83 4 0</td></tr><tr><td>By grant from the County</td><td>- 83 4 0</td></tr><tr><td>Cash in Treasurer's hands</td><td>- 23 16 8½</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>£.190 4 8½</td></tr></table>	By subscription for three years	£.83 4 0	By grant from the County	- 83 4 0	Cash in Treasurer's hands	- 23 16 8½		£.190 4 8½
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1830	£.36 0 0	£.36 0 0
1831	- 17 0 0	17 0 0
1832	- 42 0 0	42 0 0
By subscription for three years	£.83 4 0
By grant from the County	- 83 4 0
Cash in Treasurer's hands	- 23 16 8½
	£.190 4 8½
GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.		Expended for three years—
<table><tr><td>1830.</td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td></tr><tr><td>Salaries</td><td>£.24 0 0</td><td>7 0 0</td><td>20 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine</td><td>- 12 0 0</td><td>10 0 0</td><td>22 0 0</td></tr></table>	1830.	1831.	1832.	Salaries	£.24 0 0	7 0 0	20 0 0	Medicine	- 12 0 0	10 0 0	22 0 0		<table><tr><td>Doctor's salary</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>£.120 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>- 44 14 0</td></tr><tr><td>House-rent, housekeeper's salary</td><td></td><td></td><td>30 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Cowpock Institution, fuel, &c.</td><td></td><td></td><td>- 4 16 2</td></tr><tr><td></td><td></td><td></td><td>£.199 10 2</td></tr></table>	Doctor's salary	-	-	£.120 0 0	Medicine	-	-	- 44 14 0	House-rent, housekeeper's salary			30 0 0	Cowpock Institution, fuel, &c.			- 4 16 2				£.199 10 2
1830.	1831.	1832.
Salaries	£.24 0 0	7 0 0	20 0 0
Medicine	- 12 0 0	10 0 0	22 0 0
Doctor's salary	-	-	£.120 0 0
Medicine	-	-	- 44 14 0
House-rent, housekeeper's salary			30 0 0
Cowpock Institution, fuel, &c.			- 4 16 2
			£.199 10 2
Supported by subscriptions and by presentment from the county Carlow.	By subscription and presentment on county Carlow.	By subscription and presentment, obtained from county of Carlow.
The funds are small, but distributed with economy, and cannot suggest any change to render them more efficient.	The funds being so small, are easily distributed.	From the very limited means at the disposal of the dispensary committee, I could not suggest any better appropriation of the funds for the better relief of the poor.

LEINSTER—CARLOW—DUBLIN.

Tullow Dispensary.	Balbriggan and Stamullen Dispensaries.	Booterstown Dispensary.
	Medical Attendant and Committee.	Medical Attendant and Governors.
The Tullow Dispensary, established in the year 1822.	Balbriggan Dispensary, established in 1810; my appointment 1819; Stamullan, opened privately in 1828; as a county dispensary 1830, to afford advice, medicine and surgical assistance at the dispensaries on particular days, and visits when required by note.	Booterstown Dispensary, established in 1827. There is no other dispensary or hospital in connexion.
Four: Tullow, Rathvilly, Ballen and Clonmore; the three first in county Carlow, the last in the county Wicklow.	Four in county Dublin; two in county Meath.	In my district there is one parish, and portions of three others in the county of Dublin, and a portion of another in the city of Dublin.
The County Infirmary, Carlow, seven miles; the Bagnalstown Dispensary, nine miles; the Myshall Dispensary, eight miles; and the Hacketstown, nine miles.	Skerries, three miles from Balbriggan, formerly a branch; Rush, six miles; in town of Swords, two, eight miles; Julianstown, five miles; Duleek, nine miles; Hospital and Dispensary in Drogheda, eight miles; Old Town, eight miles.	To the best of my knowledge, the following are within ten miles; viz. County Infirmary and Dispensaries at Rathdown, Stillorgan, Clondalkin, Drum, Lucan, Rahany, Glasnevin, Killiney, Oldtown, Howth, Castleknock, Santry, Swords, Rathfarnham, Tallagh, Newcastle, Rush, Skerries, Malahide, Chapelizod.
There is a dispensary in the immediate neighbourhood of Tullow; but being recently established, the salary is not ascertained.	Not one.	There is no other dispensary or hospital, in my district.
I attend the Tullow Dispensary only, and am obliged to attend two days in the week.	Balbriggan, my residence; open three days each week; salary about 90 £. Stamullan, three miles distant; dispensary aid, three days, one at dispensary and two at my house. Salary, 52 £., with private visits for both when required by note.	I attend no other dispensary, infirmary or hospital.
I do consider it my duty to attend when required.	Certainly, and to visit at their houses when they are prevented by illness from attending the dispensaries, when required by note.	Certainly, I consider it my duty to give personal attendance whenever it is required.
There is a regular registry of all the cases admitted; the third quarter of the present dispensary year, 789 applicants have been registered.	It has always been kept, and advice, medicines, surgical and midwifery operations afforded as required.	Yes.
The prevailing diseases are dyspepsia, pectoral disease and typhus fever.	<table><tr><td>For Balbriggan, from Oct. 1830 to Oct. 1831 -</td><td>Persons.</td></tr><tr><td>" " 1831 to - 1832 -</td><td>- 3,980</td></tr><tr><td>" " 1832 to - 1833 -</td><td>- 7,873</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>- 3,573</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>15,426</td></tr><tr><td>For Stamullan, from July 1830 to 1831 -</td><td>- 327</td></tr><tr><td>" " 1831 to 1832 -</td><td>- 579</td></tr><tr><td>" " 1832 to 1833 -</td><td>- 479</td></tr><tr><td>Total for three years -</td><td>- 1,385</td></tr></table>	For Balbriggan, from Oct. 1830 to Oct. 1831 -	Persons.	" " 1831 to - 1832 -	- 3,980	" " 1832 to - 1833 -	- 7,873		- 3,573		15,426	For Stamullan, from July 1830 to 1831 -	- 327	" " 1831 to 1832 -	- 579	" " 1832 to 1833 -	- 479	Total for three years -	- 1,385	2,104 cases attended within last three years, which were chiefly accidents, inflammations, bowel complaints, rheumatism, venereal, ulcers, consumption, cholera, midwifery, dentition and fevers.
For Balbriggan, from Oct. 1830 to Oct. 1831 -	Persons.
" " 1831 to - 1832 -	- 3,980
" " 1832 to - 1833 -	- 7,873
	- 3,573
	15,426
For Stamullan, from July 1830 to 1831 -	- 327
" " 1831 to 1832 -	- 579
" " 1832 to 1833 -	- 479
Total for three years -	- 1,385
Seldom.	By regulations of dispensary, if any such obtain admittance, they can be struck off the list of patients.	Never.
By the committee appointed to manage the affairs of the dispensary, and have been always procured from Boileau & George, Bride-street, Dublin.	By my order, at Messrs. Boileau & George, Bride-street; paid for by treasurer, after account being approved by committee; I compound and distribute them myself.	By a wholesale druggist in Dublin.
The amount of voluntary subscriptions for the last year is 71 £. 4s.	<table><tr><td></td><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1830 -</td><td>£. 144 12 0</td><td>£. 144 12 0</td></tr><tr><td>1831 -</td><td>164 14 0</td><td>161 9 5</td></tr><tr><td>1832 -</td><td>135 19 3</td><td>135 19 3</td></tr></table> <table><tr><td colspan="4">GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>1830.</td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td></tr><tr><td>Salary to Surgeon, }</td><td>£. 81 3 10½</td><td>100 0 0</td><td>90 0 2</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine -</td><td>52 12 6½</td><td>47 1 2</td><td>38 12 1</td></tr><tr><td>Sundries -</td><td>10 15 7</td><td>14 8 3</td><td>7 7 0</td></tr></table>		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1830 -	£. 144 12 0	£. 144 12 0	1831 -	164 14 0	161 9 5	1832 -	135 19 3	135 19 3	GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.					1830.	1831.	1832.	Salary to Surgeon, }	£. 81 3 10½	100 0 0	90 0 2	Medicine -	52 12 6½	47 1 2	38 12 1	Sundries -	10 15 7	14 8 3	7 7 0	<table><tr><td></td><td>£.</td><td>s.</td><td>d.</td></tr><tr><td>Total receipt of 1831 -</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>103 4 0</td></tr><tr><td>Ditto - 1832 -</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>103 4 0</td></tr><tr><td>Ditto - 1833 -</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>120 0 0</td></tr></table> The expenditure is for drugs, rent of dispensary, and surgeon's salary.		£.	s.	d.	Total receipt of 1831 -	-	-	103 4 0	Ditto - 1832 -	-	-	103 4 0	Ditto - 1833 -	-	-	120 0 0
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1830 -	£. 144 12 0	£. 144 12 0
1831 -	164 14 0	161 9 5
1832 -	135 19 3	135 19 3
GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.
	1830.	1831.	1832.
Salary to Surgeon, }	£. 81 3 10½	100 0 0	90 0 2
Medicine -	52 12 6½	47 1 2	38 12 1
Sundries -	10 15 7	14 8 3	7 7 0
	£.	s.	d.
Total receipt of 1831 -	-	-	103 4 0
Ditto - 1832 -	-	-	103 4 0
Ditto - 1833 -	-	-	120 0 0
It has been supported since its establishment both by county aid and voluntary subscriptions; but, owing to the politics of the subscribers, the grand jury have refused to present at the last assizes, and have presented for another, established within the last year in the immediate neighbourhood of Tullow, so that now the old dispensary is merely supported by voluntary contributions.	Supported by private subscription, and a grant for each dispensary.	By subscriptions and presentments from the grand jury of the county of Dublin alone.
The funds in this dispensary are now so limited, that I could not suggest any useful alteration.	Not of the present funds; but if an hospital, with a few beds, were attached to each large dispensary, it would do more service in keeping down disease than the present plan of one county hospital, where this district is populous.	I cannot; but all dispensaries assisted by grand juries should be made to give daily attendance to the poor, as sickness does not admit of delay.

LEINSTER—DUBLIN.

Castleknock Dispensary.	Chapelizod Dispensary.	Clondalkin Dispensary.
Medical Attendant and Committee.	Medical Attendant and Committee.	Medical Attendant and Committee.
Castleknock Dispensary.	Dispensary for the united parishes of Chapelizod, Ballyfermot and Palmerstown; established in the year 1819.	The Clondalkin Parochial Dispensary.
Five; namely, Castleknock, Clonsilla, Mulhuddart, Ward and, Cloghran, all in the county of Dublin.	The above-named united parishes, county of Dublin.	The Unions of Clondalkin, and all in the county of Dublin.
Dublin, Dunboyne, Lucan, Chapelizod.	Dublin, within three miles, where there are many; Castleknock, about the same distance.	There is a dispensary in Lucan, Chapelizod, Castleknock, Dunboyne, Leixlip, Maynooth, Celbridge Hospital and Dispensary; Newcastle, Tallaght, Rathfarnham, Rathcool; several hospitals and dispensaries in Dublin.
No.	None.	No.
No.	I am assistant surgeon to the Royal Hospital, Kilmmainham, where I reside, and which is two miles from this dispensary, and for which I receive 10 s. per diem. Chapelizod Dispensary 40l. per annum. Attendance daily.	My attendance is given to Clondalkin alone.
Yes.	Unquestionably.	I do.
Yes.	A register is kept.	There is a registry kept.
1831 1,287 1832 1,023 1833 1,020 3,330	3,074 persons were attended at the dispensary and at their own dwellings. Deaths very few; principally aged persons and young infants.	From the 1st December 1830 to 1st December 1833, there have been visits at their own houses, 3,662; applications at the dispensary, 9,053, and vaccinated, 77. The epidemics were, cholera, influenza, scarletina, whooping-cough, measles, with the various kinds of fever; there were also inflammation of lungs, liver, bowels and throat, and diseases of the eye, &c. &c.
Not to our knowledge.	The parishes being extremely poor, it does not often happen.	The medicines are not given to any but the poor.
Ordered from Messrs. Boileau and George, druggists, Bride-street.	By order to the Governor and Company of Apothecaries Hall, Dublin	By an order from the chairman, signed by the treasurer, and supplied by Messrs. Boileau and George, druggists.
<table><tr><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - £.170 17 6½</td><td>£.169 15 4</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - 174 3 0</td><td>174 8 10</td></tr><tr><td>1833 - 184 4 6</td><td>171 15 6½</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><td></td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td><td>1833.</td></tr><tr><td>Salary to Med. Attendant</td><td>£.105 5 0</td><td>105 5 0</td><td>105 5 0</td></tr><tr><td>Lodging Money to ditto</td><td>31 10 0</td><td>31 10 0</td><td>31 10 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine</td><td>25 0 0</td><td>25 0 0</td><td>25 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Contingencies</td><td>8 0 4</td><td>12 13 10</td><td>10 0 6½</td></tr></table>	Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831 - £.170 17 6½	£.169 15 4	1832 - 174 3 0	174 8 10	1833 - 184 4 6	171 15 6½		1831.	1832.	1833.	Salary to Med. Attendant	£.105 5 0	105 5 0	105 5 0	Lodging Money to ditto	31 10 0	31 10 0	31 10 0	Medicine	25 0 0	25 0 0	25 0 0	Contingencies	8 0 4	12 13 10	10 0 6½	Received from March 1830 to February 1831 - - - £.86 11 - Expended for Medicines, Rent of Rooms, contingencies, such as Stationery, Coals, Printing, &c. } 34 11 2 Received 1831 to 1832 £.82 9 0 - Expended £.42 9 0 " 1832 to 1833 - 86 16 0 - Expended - 33 2 10½	<table><tr><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - Subscriptions £.51 3 0</td><td>Med. Attendant - £.33 0 0 Medicine - - - 7 16 7½ Contingencies - - 10 6 4½ 51 3 0</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - Subscription and presentment - £.102 6 0</td><td>Med. Attendant - £.75 0 0 Medicine - - - 13 12 11 Contingencies - - 13 13 1 102 6 0</td></tr><tr><td>1833 - Subscription and presentment - - - £.87 7 0</td><td>Med. Attendant - £.80 7 4½ Medicine - - - 6 13 2 Contingencies - - 0 6 5½ 87 7 0</td></tr></table>	Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831 - Subscriptions £.51 3 0	Med. Attendant - £.33 0 0 Medicine - - - 7 16 7½ Contingencies - - 10 6 4½ 51 3 0	1832 - Subscription and presentment - £.102 6 0	Med. Attendant - £.75 0 0 Medicine - - - 13 12 11 Contingencies - - 13 13 1 102 6 0	1833 - Subscription and presentment - - - £.87 7 0	Med. Attendant - £.80 7 4½ Medicine - - - 6 13 2 Contingencies - - 0 6 5½ 87 7 0
Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831 - £.170 17 6½	£.169 15 4
1832 - 174 3 0	174 8 10
1833 - 184 4 6	171 15 6½
	1831.	1832.	1833.
Salary to Med. Attendant	£.105 5 0	105 5 0	105 5 0
Lodging Money to ditto	31 10 0	31 10 0	31 10 0
Medicine	25 0 0	25 0 0	25 0 0
Contingencies	8 0 4	12 13 10	10 0 6½
Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831 - Subscriptions £.51 3 0	Med. Attendant - £.33 0 0 Medicine - - - 7 16 7½ Contingencies - - 10 6 4½ 51 3 0
1832 - Subscription and presentment - £.102 6 0	Med. Attendant - £.75 0 0 Medicine - - - 13 12 11 Contingencies - - 13 13 1 102 6 0
1833 - Subscription and presentment - - - £.87 7 0	Med. Attendant - £.80 7 4½ Medicine - - - 6 13 2 Contingencies - - 0 6 5½ 87 7 0
Subscriptions and presentments from county of Dublin.	By subscriptions, and a presentment from the grand jury, county of Dublin.	By subscriptions and presentment of the county Dublin Grand Jury.
No.	I cannot.	We cannot suggest any alteration whereby the funds of this institution could be better or more advantageously employed, inasmuch as they are barely sufficient for the purposes of our dispensary.

LEINSTER—DUBLIN.

Dublin General Dispensary.	Dublin South-eastern General Dispensary.	Dundrum Dispensary.
Charles M'Carthy, Esq., M.D.	John Thwaites, Esq., M.D.	William Burke, Esq., M.D.
The Dublin General Dispensary, established in 1782, extends its aid to the sick poor in all parts of this city within the Circular Road; it is attended by six ordinary physicians, and three supernumerary ones; a consulting physician, and a physician accoucheur, for dangerous cases of parturition; also	South-eastern General Dispensary, established January 1st, 1829. It affords medical and surgical aid to the sick poor of an extensive district. Such persons as are able to attend are received from all parts of the town; those who require to be visited must reside within a certain district of the city.	The Dundrum Dispensary, established the 1st January 1816 as an independent dispensary, had been a branch of the Rathdown Dispensary hitherto.
	The entire of St. Mark's, part of St. Peter's, and part of St. Anne's, all in the city of Dublin.	It provides medicine, and medical advice and assistance, and occasionally obstetric aid gratuitously for the poor of an extensive and mountainous district in the barony of Rathdown, comprehending the parishes of Tamo, Kilgobbin, Kiltaman, and parts of adjoining parishes, all in same county.
	We presume that this query refers only to country dispensaries.	There is a dispensary and hospital at Enniskerry, a dispensary at Rathfarnham; one between Kingstown and the Black Rock, called the Rathdown Dispensary; and a small one at Stillorgan.
	There is a dispensary attached to the Hospital of St. Mark's, and another to the hospital in Baggott-street. The medical officers in either institution receive no salary.	There is no hospital nor infirmary in the district. My salary has been 90 l. , 110 l. , 100 l. per annum in different years, and this year it is 80 l. Profitable practice exceedingly limited.
By a bye-law of the Dispensary, physicians and surgeons attached to this institution vacate their situations on being appointed to other similar charities. A physician and surgeon attend every day, Sunday excepted, in monthly rotation, at the institution, to prescribe for such patients as are able to go out, and all the medical officers are in constant daily attendance on the sick	This dispensary is attended by six medical gentlemen; only two of them are connected with hospitals in the city of Dublin, which they visit every day, and receive no salary.	I attend only one dispensary; it is accessible for the poor at all times, but particularly on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. I reside in the village where the dispensary is situated.
It is the duty and uniform practice of the physicians and surgeons to give their personal attendance in every case, and they receive no compensation whatever for their laborious duties.	The physicians and surgeons of the dispensary consider it their duty to give their personal attendance to all cases recommended by subscribers and to urgent cases without recommendation.	It is my duty to give my own personal attendance whenever medical or surgical aid is required.
A register is kept of the name, residence, recommender, medical attendant, and whether intern or extern, of every patient; but no regular account of the diseases or their terminations.	A registry of the kind alluded to is kept.	Annual Reports are published and circulated of the number of cases where applications have been made for aid, of the way generally in which they have been disposed of, and with what results, as far as these can become cognisable under the circumstances of cases, situated as these have been, scattered over a district of such extent.
In the year 1831, 11,090 patients; in 1832, 12,797; in 1833, 11,663; of whom 3,208 were attended at their homes; of the patients, more than one-fourth are attended at their own homes.	For the year 1830, the total number of patients has been 5,314; for 1831, the number has been 5,714; for 1832, 5,730. Diseases of every kind present themselves at the dispensary; the most usual are fevers of all types, pulmonary and abdominal diseases, affections of brain (occasional), injuries from surrounding public establishments, venereal (largely), and scrofula.	The Report of 1830 records 1,214 applications; it says, that no severe epidemic visited the district during the year; that measles and whooping-cough prevailed a good deal among children, but with few fatal results; and that, of some cases of scarletina, one proved fatal. Small-pox attacked one child in an infant school, but did not affect others, manifesting the efficacy of vaccination. Fevers were symptomatic, viz. catarrha or pleuritic. Little occasion for application to hospitals. Exposure to cold, want of domestic comfort, and constitutional taint, considered as leading causes of the diseases of the year. The applications for 1831 averaged 100 per month; the cases presented the usual variety. The same number are recorded for 1832. Cholera was the chief object of attention, though but few cases occurred.
It very rarely occurs.	The system of recommendation in a great measure prevents abuse of the benefits of the institution. If any cases of the kind referred to do occur, they are rare.	Advice and medicine have been unavoidably given, sometimes gratuitously, to persons who are not in circumstances requiring it.
The medicines are supplied by a wholesale druggist, and are compounded and dispensed by a resident apothecary.	They are supplied gratuitously, upon the prescription of the attending physician or surgeon, by a resident licentiate apothecary; they are purchased at a wholesale price from the Apothecaries' Hall.	Medicines have been supplied by Messrs. Leslie, Bride-street.
<table><tr><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>1831 - £. 356 17 1</td><td>£. 353 8 11½</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - 349 12 2½</td><td>338 10 11</td></tr><tr><td>1833 - 330 5 7½</td><td>330 10 1½</td></tr></table> <table><tr><th colspan="4">GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.</th></tr><tr><th></th><th>1831.</th><th>1832.</th><th>1833.</th></tr><tr><th>£. s. d.</th><th>£. s. d.</th><th>£. s. d.</th><th>£. s. d.</th></tr><tr><td>Balance due Treasurer</td><td>18 2 11½</td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Salaries</td><td>120 9 8</td><td>120 9 8</td><td>120 9 8</td></tr><tr><td>Medicines</td><td>105 0 0</td><td>122 2 0</td><td>142 2 0</td></tr><tr><td>House-rent, Coals, Candles, &c.</td><td>51 5 4</td><td>74 3 4½</td><td>50 6 9</td></tr><tr><td>Contingencies</td><td>58 11 0</td><td>21 15 10½</td><td>17 11 8½</td></tr></table>	Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831 - £. 356 17 1	£. 353 8 11½	1832 - 349 12 2½	338 10 11	1833 - 330 5 7½	330 10 1½	GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.					1831.	1832.	1833.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	Balance due Treasurer	18 2 11½			Salaries	120 9 8	120 9 8	120 9 8	Medicines	105 0 0	122 2 0	142 2 0	House-rent, Coals, Candles, &c.	51 5 4	74 3 4½	50 6 9	Contingencies	58 11 0	21 15 10½	17 11 8½	<table><tr><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>1830 - £. 296 12 2½</td><td>£. 268 2 11</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - 389 14 6</td><td>408 17 0</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - 243 10 0</td><td>235 10 7</td></tr></table> <table><tr><th colspan="4">GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.</th></tr><tr><th></th><th>1830.</th><th>1831.</th><th>1832.</th></tr><tr><th>£. s. d.</th><th>£. s. d.</th><th>£. s. d.</th><th>£. s. d.</th></tr><tr><td>Salaries</td><td>40 10 3</td><td>51 18 8</td><td>55 16 2</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine</td><td>155 10 8</td><td>163 3 2</td><td>51 1 5</td></tr><tr><td>Rent and Furniture</td><td>36 14 7</td><td>73 15 0</td><td>53 18 6</td></tr><tr><td>Vested in 3½ per Cents.</td><td></td><td>50 0 0</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Miscellaneous</td><td>35 7 5</td><td>70 0 2</td><td>74 14 6</td></tr></table> * This sum was vested as security to the Trustees for rent of new house, being part payment of 100l. required by them for that purpose.	Receipt.	Expenditure.	1830 - £. 296 12 2½	£. 268 2 11	1831 - 389 14 6	408 17 0	1832 - 243 10 0	235 10 7	GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.					1830.	1831.	1832.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	Salaries	40 10 3	51 18 8	55 16 2	Medicine	155 10 8	163 3 2	51 1 5	Rent and Furniture	36 14 7	73 15 0	53 18 6	Vested in 3½ per Cents.		50 0 0		Miscellaneous	35 7 5	70 0 2	74 14 6	<table><tr><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>1830 - £. 123 18 0</td><td>£. 115 6 11</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - 117 17 0</td><td>121 2 7</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - 117 1 0</td><td>127 11 0</td></tr></table> <table><tr><th colspan="4">GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.</th></tr><tr><th></th><th>1830.</th><th>1831.</th><th>1832.</th></tr><tr><th>£. s. d.</th><th>£. s. d.</th><th>£. s. d.</th><th>£. s. d.</th></tr><tr><td>Salary to Physician</td><td>£. 100 0 0</td><td>100 0 0</td><td>100 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicines</td><td>13 10 0</td><td>19 6 4</td><td>21 14 11</td></tr><tr><td>Contingencies</td><td>1 16 11</td><td>1 16 3</td><td>5 16 1</td></tr></table>	Receipt.	Expenditure.	1830 - £. 123 18 0	£. 115 6 11	1831 - 117 17 0	121 2 7	1832 - 117 1 0	127 11 0	GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.					1830.	1831.	1832.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	Salary to Physician	£. 100 0 0	100 0 0	100 0 0	Medicines	13 10 0	19 6 4	21 14 11	Contingencies	1 16 11	1 16 3	5 16 1
Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831 - £. 356 17 1	£. 353 8 11½
1832 - 349 12 2½	338 10 11
1833 - 330 5 7½	330 10 1½
GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.
	1831.	1832.	1833.
£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.
Balance due Treasurer	18 2 11½
Salaries	120 9 8	120 9 8	120 9 8
Medicines	105 0 0	122 2 0	142 2 0
House-rent, Coals, Candles, &c.	51 5 4	74 3 4½	50 6 9
Contingencies	58 11 0	21 15 10½	17 11 8½
Receipt.	Expenditure.
1830 - £. 296 12 2½	£. 268 2 11
1831 - 389 14 6	408 17 0
1832 - 243 10 0	235 10 7
GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.
	1830.	1831.	1832.
£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.
Salaries	40 10 3	51 18 8	55 16 2
Medicine	155 10 8	163 3 2	51 1 5
Rent and Furniture	36 14 7	73 15 0	53 18 6
Vested in 3½ per Cents.		50 0 0
Miscellaneous	35 7 5	70 0 2	74 14 6
Receipt.	Expenditure.
1830 - £. 123 18 0	£. 115 6 11
1831 - 117 17 0	121 2 7
1832 - 117 1 0	127 11 0
GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.
	1830.	1831.	1832.
£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.
Salary to Physician	£. 100 0 0	100 0 0	100 0 0
Medicines	13 10 0	19 6 4	21 14 11
Contingencies	1 16 11	1 16 3	5 16 1
It is supported by voluntary subscriptions; by two bequests, amounting to 1,200 l. , the interest of which, 49 l. 12 s. 2 d. yearly, can alone be used for its support; and by presentments from the grand jury of the city of Dublin.	By voluntary subscriptions principally; occasional presentments have been received from the city of Dublin grand jury.	Supported by subscription, and county grants from county of Dublin.
As the funds are managed with every possible economy, more effectual aid could not be rendered with the present amount of income; but if the funds were greater, it could be rendered more effectual. At present many expensive medicines are obliged to be excluded, and the committee very much regret their inability to give remuneration to the medical attendants for their laborious duties.	It is conceived that the funds of the institution have been applied in the most efficient manner. The dispensary is at present upwards of 70 l. in debt, which was partly caused by expenses incurred in removing the institution to the building at present occupied, partly by the execution of deeds, vesting money for trustees, as security, &c. The removal of this debt would tend much to increase the utility of the institution.	The statement I have given of the funds will show how very limited they are, not admitting of any alteration in their distribution that would involve increased expense. If increased or additional funds would afford the establishment of a poor-house, with an hospital attached, for the reception of properly selected objects, it would certainly be a great desideratum.

LEINSTER—DUBLIN.

Lucan Dispensary.	Malahide Dispensary.	Newcastle Dispensary.
The Committee and Medical Attendant.	Hans Lloyd, Esq., M.D.	Mr. Charles Madden, Apothecary.
Lucan Dispensary, established 1st January 1824.	Malahide Charitable Dispensary, for the relief of sick poor, established since May 1817.	Newcastle Dispensary and Celbridge Dispensary, the latter attached to an hospital for the relief of the sick poor, the former established in the year 1811, and latter 1819.
Four; namely, Lucan, Esker, Aghderrig and Clonsilla, all in the same county.	Four parishes; viz. Malahide, Portmarnock, St. Dolough and Kinsealy, in the Union of Swords, all in the county Dublin.	One parish.
Rathfarnham, Tallaght, Clondalkin, Rathcoole, Newcastle, Celbridge, Clane, Maynooth, Kilcock, Dunboyne, Castleknock, Chapelizod, and all the public hospitals and medical institutions within the metropolis.	The Hospitals, &c. of Dublin, the dispensaries of Swords, that of Howth and Baldoyle, that of Coolock, that of Raheny.	Rathcoole, Clondalkin and Lucan, in the county Dublin.
There is no other medical institution connected with the Lucan Dispensary.	No dispensary attached to an hospital. An hospital was opened for cholera patients, but only one patient has been admitted; it is in the village of Malahide, has no establishment attached to it, is about being closed.	No, not within this district. 20 l. annually for attendance, and the same sum for medicine.
I have no connexion with any other than the Lucan Dispensary; and being resident in said dispensary, attend when called on, particularly in urgent cases, without reference to the stated days regulated by the committee. The salary I receive varies according to the funds, viz. from 38 l. to 40 l. per annum.	I attend only Malahide Dispensary; I reside in the village, attend three days each week, and at all times required. If the funds permit, my salary is 100 l. per year, or the balance, after paying all charges.	I do; Newcastle and Celbridge; the former two miles distant, the latter adjoining my residence; 20 l. annually for the former, and 80 l. for the latter; three days in the week to each.
In cases only where the subjects of them are considered fit objects by the subscriber who recommends them.	Certainly.	Whenever the nature of the case demands it.
A registry is kept of all cases recommended to the institution, stating the name and complaint of the patient, medicine prescribed, &c.	There is.	There is.
The number of single applications, within the last three years, deriving relief from the institution, averaged annually 3,000. The diseases generally treated within the same period were fevers, chronic and acute rheumatism, varied forms of stomach and bowel affections, catarrha and pulmonic complaints, measles, &c.; also some bad cases of midwifery, accidents, &c. I must also add, scrofulous, syphilitic, cutaneous and nervous diseases.	Patients reported during three years past, up to May 1833, 3,039, of whom 43 died. It would be difficult to give a general statement of the numerous diseases reported, but can forward the Report published annually.	3,800. As patients labouring under diseases of all kinds have applied for relief, it would be impossible to enter into the particular treatment.
Such circumstances occasionally occur, but are not countenanced by the committee.	It seldom has happened. I find it difficult to prevent some persons from imposing.	Very rarely, as in case of accidents or sudden illness.
The medicines are supplied by an eminent druggist in town, and compounded and dispensed by the resident medical officer.	I order them from the druggist, compound and dispense them, not being limited to any sum by the governors.	By myself.
The income annually, for the last three years, averaged 102 l. ; the druggist's bill, 14 l. , which, when paid, with other incidental matters, the surplus went to the medical attendants. It must be here observed, that the institution is conducted by two medical officers.	<table><tr><th>Receipt.</th><th>£. s. d.</th><th>Expenditure.</th><th>£. s. d.</th></tr><tr><td>1831:</td><td></td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Subscription</td><td>- 72 17 0</td><td>Salary for 3 years</td><td>300 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Presentment</td><td>- 56 0 0</td><td>Medicine, ditto</td><td>- 51 14 7</td></tr><tr><td>1832:</td><td></td><td>Rent - ditto</td><td>- 37 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Subscription</td><td>- 71 13 0</td><td>Printing and</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Presentment</td><td>- 57 0 0</td><td>Stamps</td><td>- 6 15 11</td></tr><tr><td>1833:</td><td></td><td>Balance</td><td>- 0 4 6</td></tr><tr><td>Subscription</td><td>- 71 15 0</td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Presentment</td><td>- 66 10 0</td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td></td><td>£. 395 15 0</td><td></td><td>£. 395 15 0</td></tr></table>	Receipt.	£. s. d.	Expenditure.	£. s. d.	1831:				Subscription	- 72 17 0	Salary for 3 years	300 0 0	Presentment	- 56 0 0	Medicine, ditto	- 51 14 7	1832:		Rent - ditto	- 37 0 0	Subscription	- 71 13 0	Printing and		Presentment	- 57 0 0	Stamps	- 6 15 11	1833:		Balance	- 0 4 6	Subscription	- 71 15 0			Presentment	- 66 10 0				£. 395 15 0		£. 395 15 0	On an average, 56 l. ; out of which sum a physician and apothecary were paid, and medicines supplied.
Receipt.	£. s. d.	Expenditure.	£. s. d.
1831:
Subscription	- 72 17 0	Salary for 3 years	300 0 0
Presentment	- 56 0 0	Medicine, ditto	- 51 14 7
1832:		Rent - ditto	- 37 0 0
Subscription	- 71 13 0	Printing and
Presentment	- 57 0 0	Stamps	- 6 15 11
1833:		Balance	- 0 4 6
Subscription	- 71 15 0
Presentment	- 66 10 0
	£. 395 15 0		£. 395 15 0
By voluntary subscription and presentment levied off the county.	By subscription and presentment from the county of Dublin.	By private subscriptions, and a grant from the county Dublin grand jury.
In reply to this question, I must say that the funds of this institution have of late been so limited, that to alter or allocate any portion of them to any purpose save to what they are at present applied, could not be effected. The medicines (which are dispensed with the strictest view to economy), when paid for, leave afterwards but a trifling stipend for the medical attendants.	I am quite satisfied with the present, and the poor are grateful for my services.	As the emoluments of this dispensary are so small at present, on account of one being established at Rathcoole lately, it would be impossible to make any alteration.

LEINSTER—DUBLIN.

Raheny Dispensary.	Rathdown Dispensary.	Rathfarnham Dispensary.
G. A. Owen, Esq., M. D.	H. Plant, Esq., M. D.	The Committee and Medical Attendants.
Raheny Dispensary. The latter attached to an hospital for the relief of the sick poor, the former established in the year 1811, and latter 1818.	Rathdown Dispensary. Established in the year 1817.	Rathfarnham Dispensary; established, I believe, about forty years.
Clontarf and Raheny.	Three, namely, Union of Monkstown, Booterstown, and Stillorgan.	There are two parishes, Rathfarnham, Whitechurch, and part of Tallaght, all in the same county.
It is presumed that this query does not apply to dispensaries in the immediate vicinity of Dublin, from whence Raheny is distant about four miles.	Bray and its hospital, Enniskerry and its hospital, Booterstown, Stillorgan, Killiny, Donnybrook, and Roebuck Dispensaries.	Tallaght, Clondalkin, Castleknock, the different infirmaries and dispensaries of the city of Dublin, Booterstown, Raheny and Rathdown.
No other dispensary within the district.	There is neither hospital nor infirmary within my district; but an hospital, capable of containing 30 beds, is just now about erecting, and to be connected with the Rathdown Dispensary.	The only dispensary touching on my district is Tallaght. I do not know what salary is attached to it.
No other dispensary is attended by me.	Only one, namely, Rathdown Dispensary.	I only attend to the one; attendance for one hour every week-day; salary 100 l. , and 25 l. for a house. Those whose case requires, are visited at their houses.
I am ready to attend to all cases recommended by subscribers.	Particularly so.	Only when called on by a subscriber's ticket, and then I always attend personally.
—	Yes, an accurate registry is kept; the result has been most gratifying, as few deaths occur.	There is a registry kept, and generally the result is known from it; the cases of recoveries and deaths are not recorded.
1833 - - - - 918 1834 - - - - 740	1831: Total number of patients - - 1,257 1832 - - - - - 1,477 1833 - - - - - 1,288 Nothing unusual, with the exception of cholera.	There were 5,661 cases attended to within the last three years. The general diseases were those of the chest, small pox, measles, a few cases of typhus fever, dysentery, diarrhoea, cholera, influenza, and indigestion.
Not with my knowledge and consent.	Frequently, but I never give them medicines from the dispensary.	Only in case of necessity from sudden illness, when medicines may be given. Tradesmen receive the benefits of the institution.
The medicines are supplied by the general fund.	Supplied by the druggist, compounded by myself, and delivered to the sick poor.	The medicines are supplied by the druggist, dispensed by me, and paid for by the committee.
<table><tr><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1833 - £. 162 19 5</td><td>£. 163 1 3½</td></tr><tr><td>1834 - 127 6 4</td><td>129 12 2</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><td>1833.</td><td>1834.</td></tr><tr><td>Salary to Medical Attendant } £. 92 6 1¼</td><td>92 6 1¼</td></tr><tr><td>Balance due Treasurer 31 12 3</td><td>0 10 10½</td></tr><tr><td>Medicines - - 18 18 3½</td><td>14 14 8½</td></tr><tr><td>Contingencies - 20 4 7½</td><td>22 9 5¾</td></tr></table>	Receipt.	Expenditure.	1833 - £. 162 19 5	£. 163 1 3½	1834 - 127 6 4	129 12 2	1833.	1834.	Salary to Medical Attendant } £. 92 6 1¼	92 6 1¼	Balance due Treasurer 31 12 3	0 10 10½	Medicines - - 18 18 3½	14 14 8½	Contingencies - 20 4 7½	22 9 5¾	<table><tr><td>Expenditure for the year 1831 - £. 206 9 5</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Ditto - - - - 1832 - 202 3 4</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Ditto - - - - 1833 - 200 4 6</td><td></td></tr></table> First year, expenses - - - £. 184 17 11 Second year - - - - 164 3 4 Third year - - - - 156 7 10 The accounts for the different years have been so kept, that we could not separate the different items, to give them separately for each year.	Expenditure for the year 1831 - £. 206 9 5		Ditto - - - - 1832 - 202 3 4		Ditto - - - - 1833 - 200 4 6
Receipt.	Expenditure.
1833 - £. 162 19 5	£. 163 1 3½
1834 - 127 6 4	129 12 2
1833.	1834.
Salary to Medical Attendant } £. 92 6 1¼	92 6 1¼
Balance due Treasurer 31 12 3	0 10 10½
Medicines - - 18 18 3½	14 14 8½
Contingencies - 20 4 7½	22 9 5¾
Expenditure for the year 1831 - £. 206 9 5
Ditto - - - - 1832 - 202 3 4
Ditto - - - - 1833 - 200 4 6
By private subscription, and a grant from the county Dublin grand jury.	By private subscriptions, and grand jury presentment.	Supported by voluntary contributions, and by a grant from the county Dublin only.
The present funds are not equal to the expenditure.	No, I cannot, with the exception of allowing nourishing food to convalescents, and who cannot procure it for themselves.	I cannot.

LEINSTER—DUBLIN.

Rush Dispensary.	Santry District Dispensary.	Skerries Dispensary.
W. H. Franklin, Esq., M. D.	Samuel Cusack, Esq., M. D.	William Thornhill, Esq., M. D.
Rush Dispensary only ; established in 1817.	Santry District Dispensary, including three depositaries for the distribution of medicines, and giving medical advice, which are attended by the medical officers three days in the week each : the names are, Santry, Drumcondra and Coolock ; established May 1832.	Skerries Dispensary, established November 1832, opened the 23d of January 1833.
Lusk only.	Four parishes, all in the county of Dublin.	The entire of Holmpatrick parish, and the contiguous parts of Lusk and Balrothery, all in the county Dublin.
Dispensary at Swords; distance seven miles; and one at Balbriggan, six miles.	Malahide, Raheny, Glasnevin, Swords, and the various dispensaries in the city of Dublin.	The dispensary of Rush, Swords and Balbriggan.
None.	None.	'There is not.
None.	Three dispensaries; two of them about two miles from my residence, and the other at it. The salary of all conjointly, 100 l. ; and each attended three times in the week.	No.
Certainly.	Yes.	Yes.
Yes.	Yes.	Yes.
Being but a short time in office, I have no means of answering this question.	The report of last year, which was the first of its existence, was 1,595 cases; cholera, diseases of the chest, diseases of digestive organs, various diseases of children, accidents, &c.	Eight hundred and eighty-five patients have been relieved since the opening of this establishment. The principal diseases treated were fevers and inflammations of the lungs and bowels.
Seldom.	Very rarely, in some cases discrimination being impossible.	It does in some few cases, but we guard as much as possible to prevent it.
From the funds of the dispensary, purchased from Messrs. Boileau and George.	Purchased, by order of the committee, from Allen, druggist, 50, Henry-street.	By Boileau and George, druggists, in the city of Dublin.
The late treasurer being in England, this cannot be answered.	<table><tr><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1833 - £.178 10 0</td><td>£.165 5 9</td></tr><tr><td colspan="2">GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.</td></tr><tr><td>Salary to Medical Attendant</td><td>£.100 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine - - -</td><td>- 37 6 4½</td></tr><tr><td>Rent, Servant, &c. - -</td><td>- 27 19 4½</td></tr></table>	Receipt.	Expenditure.	1833 - £.178 10 0	£.165 5 9	GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.		Salary to Medical Attendant	£.100 0 0	Medicine - - -	- 37 6 4½	Rent, Servant, &c. - -	- 27 19 4½	<table><tr><td colspan="2">Receipts to November 1833.</td></tr><tr><td>Private subscription - - -</td><td>£.58 13 0</td></tr><tr><td>County grant - - -</td><td>54 0 0</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>£.112 13 0</td></tr><tr><td colspan="2">Expenditure to November 1833.</td></tr><tr><td>Physician's salary for 9 months -</td><td>£.60 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicines - - -</td><td>20 0 4</td></tr><tr><td>Rent of Dispensary-house - -</td><td>2 10 0</td></tr><tr><td>Sundries - - -</td><td>3 6 5</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>£.85 16 9</td></tr><tr><td>Balance in Treasurer's hands</td><td>26 16 3</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>£.112 13 0</td></tr></table>	Receipts to November 1833.		Private subscription - - -	£.58 13 0	County grant - - -	54 0 0		£.112 13 0	Expenditure to November 1833.		Physician's salary for 9 months -	£.60 0 0	Medicines - - -	20 0 4	Rent of Dispensary-house - -	2 10 0	Sundries - - -	3 6 5		£.85 16 9	Balance in Treasurer's hands	26 16 3		£.112 13 0
Receipt.	Expenditure.
1833 - £.178 10 0	£.165 5 9
GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.
Salary to Medical Attendant	£.100 0 0
Medicine - - -	- 37 6 4½
Rent, Servant, &c. - -	- 27 19 4½
Receipts to November 1833.
Private subscription - - -	£.58 13 0
County grant - - -	54 0 0
	£.112 13 0
Expenditure to November 1833.
Physician's salary for 9 months -	£.60 0 0
Medicines - - -	20 0 4
Rent of Dispensary-house - -	2 10 0
Sundries - - -	3 6 5
	£.85 16 9
Balance in Treasurer's hands	26 16 3
	£.112 13 0
By private subscription, and a grant from the grand jury of the county of Dublin.	By voluntary contribution, and presentment from the county of Dublin.	By private subscriptions, and presentment (of equal amount) from the county Dublin.
I believe the present arrangement to be very beneficial.	No.	No.

LEINSTER—DUBLIN.

Stillorgan and Newtown Park Dispensary.	Swords Dispensary.	Tallaght Dispensary.
H. C. Field, Esq., M.D.	M. O'Grady, Esq., M.D.	R. P. Burkitt, Esq., M.D.
The Stillorgan and Newtown Park Dispensary, established 1828, for the relief of such poor as are attacked by disease, or meet with accident.	Swords Dispensary, established 1819. means may have surgical aid in case of accidental injuries, to which this neighbourhood is particularly liable, in consequence of its numerous manufactories.	The Tallaght Dispensary. The object is to provide medicines for the poor, and the attendance of a physician or surgeon at their own houses, when such may be requisite, and that persons of small
One parish, and part of a second, all in the same county.	Eleven; viz., Swords, Killossary, Kinsealy, Cloghran, part of Santry, Killeek, Naul, Lusk, Donabate, Portram and Malahide, all in the county of Dublin. I have only part of the duty of Malahide to do.	Three; Tallaght, Ornagh and Saggard, all in the county Dublin.
Bray Dispensary and Hospital, Enniskerry Dispensary and Hospital, Rathdown Dispensary, Killybeg Dispensary, Dundrum Dispensary, and the various dispensaries and hospitals of Dublin.	There is a dispensary at Malahide, two miles from Swords; one at Rush, seven miles distant; one at Skerries, eight miles; one at Balbriggan, eight miles, and one at Old Town, Clonmethan, six miles from Swords. Salaries to medical attendants varying from 100 l. to 80 l. per annum.	The city of Dublin hospitals and dispensaries; also the Rathfarnham and Clendalkin dispensaries, all within eight miles.
There is not.	There is no dispensary attached to any hospital in my district; but there is another dispensary in the town of Swords, supported liberally by the governors of the Swords school, and for attending which, an apothecary is paid a salary of 80 l. sterling per annum, a house rent free, and other emoluments.	There is not any hospital, or any other dispensary in my district.
I only attend one dispensary. The distance is one mile and a half from my residence. The salary is 50 l. per annum. I attend the dispensary two days in the week, and such sick as are confined to bed I attend every day, if their illness or accident requires it.	I only attend one dispensary. I am obliged to attend at a certain hour, three days in the week. My apothecary is always resident.	I do not attend more than one dispensary. Attendance is required every day.
Yes, certainly.	I do consider myself personally responsible to attend all acute cases at the respective residences of all such patients as obtain visiting tickets from subscribers.	I do, in all cases.
Yes, a register is kept.	There is a register kept, in which the names of all persons who apply for medical aid are entered. Those who have tickets of recommendation only are attended either by me or the apothecary, upon producing their ticket; and those who are not able to attend at the institution, are visited at their residences, according to the priority of their application, after their visiting ticket is lodged in the dispensary.	A register has been kept of all cases where application has been made, and of the medicines furnished, and generally the result has been recovery.
The number of persons relieved from the 1st day of January 1831 to the last day of December 1833, has been 1,604. Of this number, 500 laboured under either acute disease, accident, or such illness as confined them to bed, and were attended by me at their own dwellings so long as they continued ill. The remaining 1,104 were able to come to the dispensary, where they received from me medicine and advice, until they were relieved of either the disease or accident they suffered from.	1831 - - - - - 1,952 1833 - - - - - 1,681 1832, and influenza	The number of individuals relieved, as nearly as can be ascertained, is as follows: For the year ending Nov. 1, 1833 - 1,200 For - - - - - 1832 - 1,000 For - - - - - 1831 - 1,000 With the exception of cholera in the summer of 1832, and influenza in the present year, there has not been any remarkable epidemic disease, or other than the diseases common to the poor.
I believe not.	Sometimes, indeed frequently; but if a subscriber recommends such a person, I never question his claim upon my attendance, although I know it is wrong to allow it.	Persons holding small portions of land, who are not actual paupers, but yet are poor, are amongst the persons most frequently benefitted, they being recommended by subscribers as proper objects.
The medicines are supplied, by order of the managing committee, from the druggist to the dispensary, and distributed by me to the poor at that institution.	By my order, as treasurer to the dispensary.	By the medical attendant, who is allowed a certain sum by the committee for that purpose.
<table><tr><td></td><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1831 -</td><td>£. 79 15 2½</td><td>£. 64 6 9</td></tr><tr><td>1832 -</td><td>70 1 2</td><td>64 10 0</td></tr><tr><td>1833 -</td><td>67 14 0</td><td>62 15 2</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. Physician's salary, medicine, rent, &c.		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831 -	£. 79 15 2½	£. 64 6 9	1832 -	70 1 2	64 10 0	1833 -	67 14 0	62 15 2	<table><tr><td></td><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1831 -</td><td>£. 212 14 0</td><td>£. 212 14 0</td></tr><tr><td>1832 -</td><td>217 9 0</td><td>217 9 0</td></tr><tr><td>1833 -</td><td>205 2 0</td><td>205 2 0</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><td></td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td><td>1833.</td></tr><tr><td>Salaries</td><td>£. 173 9 5</td><td>159 5 0</td><td>163 14 6</td></tr><tr><td>Medicines</td><td>29 18 7</td><td>36 0 0</td><td>21 3 6</td></tr><tr><td>Rent & Con- tingencies</td><td>9 7 0</td><td>22 4 0</td><td>20 5 0</td></tr></table>		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831 -	£. 212 14 0	£. 212 14 0	1832 -	217 9 0	217 9 0	1833 -	205 2 0	205 2 0		1831.	1832.	1833.	Salaries	£. 173 9 5	159 5 0	163 14 6	Medicines	29 18 7	36 0 0	21 3 6	Rent & Con- tingencies	9 7 0	22 4 0	20 5 0	<table><tr><td></td><td>1831: Receipts.</td><td>1832: Receipts.</td><td>1833: Receipts.</td></tr><tr><td>Subscrip- tions -</td><td>£. s. d. 66 2 9</td><td>Subscrip- tions - £. s. d. 57 16 9</td><td>Subscrip- tions - £. s. d. 71 16 9</td></tr><tr><td>County Grant</td><td>50 0 0</td><td>54 3 9</td><td>69 14 9</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>116 2 9</td><td>112 0 6</td><td>141 11 6</td></tr><tr><td>Disbursements.</td><td></td><td>Disbursements.</td><td>Disbursements.</td></tr><tr><td>Medicines</td><td>21 13 0</td><td>Medicines</td><td>22 1 8</td></tr><tr><td>Rent and Sundries</td><td>810 0</td><td>Sundries</td><td>7 12 9</td></tr><tr><td>Surgeon's Salary</td><td>85 19 9</td><td>Surgeon's Salary</td><td>82 6 1</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>116 2 9</td><td></td><td>112 0 6</td></tr></table>		1831: Receipts.	1832: Receipts.	1833: Receipts.	Subscrip- tions -	£. s. d. 66 2 9	Subscrip- tions - £. s. d. 57 16 9	Subscrip- tions - £. s. d. 71 16 9	County Grant	50 0 0	54 3 9	69 14 9		116 2 9	112 0 6	141 11 6	Disbursements.		Disbursements.	Disbursements.	Medicines	21 13 0	Medicines	22 1 8	Rent and Sundries	810 0	Sundries	7 12 9	Surgeon's Salary	85 19 9	Surgeon's Salary	82 6 1		116 2 9		112 0 6
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831 -	£. 79 15 2½	£. 64 6 9
1832 -	70 1 2	64 10 0
1833 -	67 14 0	62 15 2
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831 -	£. 212 14 0	£. 212 14 0
1832 -	217 9 0	217 9 0
1833 -	205 2 0	205 2 0
	1831.	1832.	1833.
Salaries	£. 173 9 5	159 5 0	163 14 6
Medicines	29 18 7	36 0 0	21 3 6
Rent & Con- tingencies	9 7 0	22 4 0	20 5 0
	1831: Receipts.	1832: Receipts.	1833: Receipts.
Subscrip- tions -	£. s. d. 66 2 9	Subscrip- tions - £. s. d. 57 16 9	Subscrip- tions - £. s. d. 71 16 9
County Grant	50 0 0	54 3 9	69 14 9
	116 2 9	112 0 6	141 11 6
Disbursements.		Disbursements.	Disbursements.
Medicines	21 13 0	Medicines	22 1 8
Rent and Sundries	810 0	Sundries	7 12 9
Surgeon's Salary	85 19 9	Surgeon's Salary	82 6 1
	116 2 9		112 0 6
By presentment from the grand jury, and by private subscription. In one county.	By voluntary subscription, and a grand jury grant only from one county.	By voluntary contribution, and by presentment from the grand jury of the county of Dublin alone.
I cannot. The funds of this dispensary are, in my opinion, admirably disposed of. little, certainly not one-half, of the sum I take credit for, (nor can any man who witnesses the sum of poverty and distress I am called upon daily to attend) by the dispensary. I cannot, therefore, suggest any mode of distributing the funds of this institution to more advantage; but I am willing, at the loss of the whole salary I derive from the dispensary, to adopt any suggestion that would enable me to make the funds more useful to the poor.	You see by answer to query 11, how our funds are disposed of, to a certain extent; but I could state, without dread of contradiction, that I make very	The establishment under my charge would be more efficient if an additional fund could be procured, and a proper arrangement made to supply the poor with wholesome food; but if a medical institution, in a populous district, be thought necessary, it cannot be supported at a less expense than the present.

LEINSTER—KILDARE.

Athy Dispensary.	Carberry Dispensary.	Castledermott Dispensary.
William Clayton, Esq., Surgeon, R. N.	J. Grattan, Esq., Medical Officer.	Samuel Richard Carter Esq. Med ^l Super ^l .
Athy Dispensary, established in 1818.	The Carberry Dispensary; established in the year 1819, for the treatment of fever, arresting the progress of contagion, &c.	Castledermott Dispensary; established 16 August 1816.
Eight parishes, three of which are in the Queen's county, the remainder in the county Kildare.	Six; namely, Carberry, Carrick, Nurney, Ark-hills, parts of Myler's Town, and Kilreny, all in the county Kildare.	Three parishes; one in the county of Kildare, the other two in the county of Carlow.
Stradbally and Ballickmoyler Dispensaries, in the Queen's county, and Monasterevan, Ballitore and Castle Dermott, in the county Kildare.	The Edenderry, 4 miles; Johnstown, 5 miles; Clonard, county Meath, about 6 miles.	At Baltinglass, Ballitore, Athy and Carlow.
There is no dispensary attached to any hospital or infirmary in this district.	There is no hospital or infirmary within the district.	There is not.
I do not attend any but the Athy dispensary, which I attend daily. There is a fixed salary of 34 l. 12 s. 4 d. per annum, and a further allowance for visits, making the whole emolument between 70 l. and 80 l. per annum.	The Carberry and the Edenderry dispensaries only. The expense of Carberry for surgeon, apothecary, and house for the dispensary, is 50 l. per annum: three days weekly.	I do not attend any other institution; my entire attention is devoted to the Castledermott dispensary.
I do.	I consider it a duty to attend to all surgical and most of the medical cases. Some of the latter, and convalescents, are of necessity attended to by an assistant or apprentice.	It is my duty to attend at the houses of the sick poor, at any distance within the district, on the recommendation of a subscriber, without any additional fee or remuneration.
There is a correct register kept of the patients visited; but those who attend the dispensary, seldom report the result of their cases.	The printed tickets are noted and filed, counter-tickets exchanged for them, each remaining one month in force.	There is.
The number of persons relieved (as appears by the tickets granted) were, In 1830 - - - - - 2,319 1831 - - - - - 2,719 1832 - - - - - 2,378	Prevailing diseases, fever, dyspeptic and bowel, chronic, rheumatic, &c. &c. 1830 - - - - - 605 1831 - - - - - 598 1832 - - - - - 584 1,787	1831 - - - - - 1,098 1832 - - - - - 1,100 1833 - - - - - 1,012 Accidents, fevers, dyspeptic complaints, labours, vaccination, and every modification of disease incident to the country, but particularly dyspepsia.
Very seldom.	It sometimes happens; a subscriber is liable to be deceived in the applicant.	Very seldom; never, when it can be avoided.
A list (in English) of medicines required for the dispensary is furnished by the apothecary to the surgeon for his approval; it is then submitted to a committee of three subscribers; the medicines are then furnished by Messrs. Leslie & Co. of Dublin.	Medicine is ordered by the treasurer, on requisition of the medical officer, from Messrs. Boileau and George, whose account is paid on delivery by the treasurer.	By Messrs. P. A. & C. Leslie, of Bride-street, Dublin, and paid for half-yearly.
Receipts. 1830 - £.175 12 0 1831 - 166 18 0 1832 - 154 12 0 £. 497 2 0 Expenditure. £.157 7 9½ 159 6 2 164 14 0 £. 481 7 11½	Receipt. 1830 - - - - - £.66 12 3 1831 - - - - - 67 11 3 1832 - - - - - 60 16 3 Expense of drugs, freight, stamps, printing, &c. in treasurer's account, examined and ratified by the committee annually.	Receipt 1831 - - £.63 1 0 1832 - - 139 11 7 1833 - - 135 10 11½ Expenditure. £.112 4 9 113 2 6 112 15 3 Expended in drugs, house-rent and salary, postage and stamps.
One moiety by private subscriptions, and the other by presentment from the county Kildare.	One moiety arises from subscriptions; the other is granted by presentment of the Kildare grand jury.	By subscriptions and presentments, obtained from the county of Kildare alone.
I cannot.	It is looked after carefully by the committee, whose management is unexceptionable.	I am not aware of any change in the administration of our funds which would render the charity more efficient. The distribution is made with the utmost economy.

547
27

LEINSTER—KILDARE.

Clane Dispensary.	Donadea Dispensary.	Johnstown Bridge Dispensary.
The Committee and Medical Attendant.	The Committee and Medical Attendant.	Surgeon O'Brien.
Clane Dispensary, established in the year 1822, to afford medical relief to the indigent poor, free of expense on their part.	The Donadea Dispensary, established in the year 1830.	The Johnstown Bridge Dispensary, opened on the 5th June 1819. The words of the first regulation states, that "The object of this charity is solely for the relief of the truly necessitous; it is therefore hoped that the subscribers will be careful to recommend those only who come under that description."
Ten; some entirely, and some in part.	Eight parishes; some of these only in part; all in county Kildare.	The parishes within my district are, 1st, Cadams-town; 2d, Dunforth; 3d, Mylerstown; 4th, part of Ballinadrimna; 5th, part of Nurney; 6th, part of Ardkill; 7th, part of Kilreaney, in the county Kildare; 8th, part of Longwood; 9th, part of Jordanstown, in the county Meath.
Donadea, Johnstown, Kilcock, Robertstown, Radanstown and Naas Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Clane, Robertstown, Kilcock, Celbridge, Radanstown, Johnstown, and Naas Fever Hospital.	Kilcock, distant six miles; Maynooth, nine; Clane, nine; Donadea, five, in the county Kildare; Edenderry, eight, in the King's County; Clonard, six; Augher, five; Radanstown, seven, in the county Meath; Kennegad, nine, in Westmeath. There is a presentment for a dispensary at Carberry in this barony, but there is no dispensary.
There is not.	None.	There is no hospital or dispensary in the above district.
I attend Clane, where I reside; and Donadea, four miles distant. Salary for Clane, 60 l. per annum; Donadea, 40 l. per annum. Three days' attendance in the week at the dispensaries, and the remainder for the most part occupied visiting the sick at their houses.	I attend two dispensaries within four miles of each other; salary for both, 100 l. per annum. Three days in the week attendance at the dispensaries, and the remainder occupied visiting patients at their homes, and cases of emergency.	I attend the Johnstown Bridge Dispensary only. I reside in the dispensary. The salary is 73 l. 16 s. 11 d. ; the dispensary rent, 7 l. 7 s. 8½ d. The days of attendance are Mondays and Thursdays, by the regulation; but I do not refuse to attend on other days.
I have invariably given personal attendance, and compound all medicines myself.	I do.	I have given personal attendance since my appointment in 1820; my predecessor did the same. The 10th Regulation says, "No medicine shall be delivered by one but the surgeon," and it is strictly complied with.
There is.	There is.	The names of applicants, their residences, and by whom recommended, are registered.
The number of families relieved within the last three years is 802. Intermittent fever, influenza, pleurisy, rheumatism, measles, bowel complaints, indigestion, hooping-cough, asthma, colic, dropsy, various cutaneous diseases, scurvy, jaundice, tumors, ulcers, contusions, sprains, dislocations, fractures, wounds, scalds and burns, itch, convulsions, abortions, difficult labours, and many others.	The number of families relieved, 1,233. Ague, pleurisy, influenza, bowel complaint, eruptions, wounds, dislocations and fractures, with a great many others, too numerous to mention here.	In 1830, there were 559 applications at the dispensary, and 129 visited at their houses; in 1831, 538 applications, and 304 visited; in 1832, 608 applications, and 231 visited: total, 2,369. The number of persons visited is only stated above; many of them were visited seven or eight times, and all more than once.
I can suppose some, but very few.	I believe it does not.	Very frequently.
By contract and by the medical officer.	The medicines are supplied by the treasurer whenever necessary, (purchased from Messrs. Boileau & George, in Dublin.)	I furnish a list of the medicine necessary; it is procured by the Treasurer.
<table><tr><th>Receipts.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>1831 - £. 147 13 6½</td><td>Salary, Medicine, Rent, &c. £. 94 3 8</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - 123 1 10½</td><td>Ditto - - 94 6 10</td></tr><tr><td>1833 - 88 15 0½</td><td>Ditto - - 88 15 0½</td></tr></table>	Receipts.	Expenditure.	1831 - £. 147 13 6½	Salary, Medicine, Rent, &c. £. 94 3 8	1832 - 123 1 10½	Ditto - - 94 6 10	1833 - 88 15 0½	Ditto - - 88 15 0½	<table><tr><th colspan="2">Receipts.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><th>Subscription.</th><th>Grand Jury Presentment.</th><th></th></tr><tr><td>£. s. d.</td><td>£. s. d.</td><td>£. s. d.</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - 43 6 3</td><td>43 6 3</td><td>55 0 10</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - 30 0 0</td><td>30 0 0</td><td>57 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>1833 - 23 0 0</td><td>23 0 0</td><td>54 0 0</td></tr></table>	Receipts.		Expenditure.	Subscription.	Grand Jury Presentment.		£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	1831 - 43 6 3	43 6 3	55 0 10	1832 - 30 0 0	30 0 0	57 0 0	1833 - 23 0 0	23 0 0	54 0 0	<table><tr><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>1830 - £. 95 6 0</td><td>£. 104 1 6</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - 96 6 10</td><td>99 6 7</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - 95 10 0</td><td>100 0 6½</td></tr></table> <table><tr><th colspan="6">GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.</th></tr><tr><th colspan="2">1830.</th><th colspan="2">1831.</th><th colspan="2">1832.</th></tr><tr><th>£.</th><th>s. d.</th><th>£.</th><th>s. d.</th><th>£.</th><th>s. d.</th></tr><tr><td>Medicines -</td><td>20 13 7</td><td>17 5 10½</td><td>16 7 8</td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Salary to Surgeon -</td><td>73 16 11</td><td>73 16 11</td><td>73 16 11</td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Rent -</td><td>7 7 8½</td><td>7 7 8½</td><td>7 7 8½</td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Contingencies</td><td>2 3 4</td><td>0 16 1</td><td>2 8 3</td><td></td><td></td></tr></table>	Receipt.	Expenditure.	1830 - £. 95 6 0	£. 104 1 6	1831 - 96 6 10	99 6 7	1832 - 95 10 0	100 0 6½	GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.						1830.		1831.		1832.		£.	s. d.	£.	s. d.	£.	s. d.	Medicines -	20 13 7	17 5 10½	16 7 8			Salary to Surgeon -	73 16 11	73 16 11	73 16 11			Rent -	7 7 8½	7 7 8½	7 7 8½			Contingencies	2 3 4	0 16 1	2 8 3
Receipts.	Expenditure.
1831 - £. 147 13 6½	Salary, Medicine, Rent, &c. £. 94 3 8
1832 - 123 1 10½	Ditto - - 94 6 10
1833 - 88 15 0½	Ditto - - 88 15 0½
Receipts.		Expenditure.
Subscription.	Grand Jury Presentment.
£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.
1831 - 43 6 3	43 6 3	55 0 10
1832 - 30 0 0	30 0 0	57 0 0
1833 - 23 0 0	23 0 0	54 0 0
Receipt.	Expenditure.
1830 - £. 95 6 0	£. 104 1 6
1831 - 96 6 10	99 6 7
1832 - 95 10 0	100 0 6½
GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.
1830.		1831.		1832.
£.	s. d.	£.	s. d.	£.	s. d.
Medicines -	20 13 7	17 5 10½	16 7 8
Salary to Surgeon -	73 16 11	73 16 11	73 16 11
Rent -	7 7 8½	7 7 8½	7 7 8½
Contingencies	2 3 4	0 16 1	2 8 3
By subscriptions and presentments in the same county, viz. county Kildare.	By subscription and grand jury presentment.	It is supported by annual subscriptions, and also by presentment obtained from the county Kildare.
If the funds were adequate, improvements could be made; but now would not admit of any alteration more efficient for the relief of the poor.	None.	A fever hospital in this district is much wanted. The barony contains 26,000 acres, and 12,000 inhabitants. The county has three fever hospitals and one infirmary, from which this barony has no benefit.

LEINSTER—KILDARE.

Kilcock Dispensary.	Monasterevan Dispensary.	Newbridge Dispensary.
Kilcock Dispensary.	Monasterevan Dispensary, established in 1811.	The Newbridge Dispensary was established in 1830. I have only been in care since July 1832.
Five, and all in the same county.	Five; viz. Monasterevan and Lacker, in county of Kildare; Kildargan, Harristown and Ballybracken, in the King's County.	Five, all of which are in the county of Kildare.
There are dispensaries at Maynooth, Celbridge, Leixlip, Lucan, Clane, Donadea and Naas, all in the county of Kildare; and at Trim, Summerhill, Agher, Dollardstown, Dunshaughlin, in Meath, all within ten miles of Kilcock.	Ballybrittas, Portarlinton, Rathangan, and the County Infirmary, situated in the town of Kildare.	The County Infirmary is at Kildare, four miles off; a dispensary, with fever hospital attached, at Kilcullen, four miles distant; the same at Naas, six miles; and a dispensary at Rathangan, eight.
There is no dispensary or other charitable institution within the district.	There is not.	No.
My attendance is exclusively confined to the Kilcock Dispensary.	I do not.	No. Newbridge is near six miles from my residence in Naas. I attend twice weekly, and am paid 50 l. yearly.
Where the patient is a pauper, I do consider it my duty to attend within the district all cases, when called upon by a subscriber.	I do.	Certainly.
Of all cases where application has been made, with the manner they have been disposed of, a regular register is kept; of their results there is no register.	There is; the applications have met with prompt attention, and the result, generally speaking, successful.	I have kept as particular a register as circumstances permit.
This dispensary being only established in March last, I can merely furnish an account of the persons relieved since that period; their number amounts to 870. The usual diseases met with here are fevers, generally of the continued type, and pulmonary complaints.	1830 - - 2,069 patients - 10 died. 1831 - - 2,129 " - 8 " 1832 - - 2,056 " - 12 " Fever, coughs, bowel complaints, consumption, rheumatism, diseases of the eye, diseases of the skin, accidents, sexual diseases, infantile diseases, chronic, and other cases of an anomalous character.	I believe fifty new cases monthly a correct average number.
It may happen that persons not objects of charity sometimes participate in the benefits of the institution, when such persons are recommended by a subscriber; but it is one of the rules of the dispensary that no person but a pauper be recommended.	I am not aware of any.	Yes, but seldom.
They are paid for out of the funds established for the support of the dispensary.	At the expense of the institution, purchased from a druggist.	Ordered by the managing Committee from a respectable Dublin druggist.
On account of the recent establishment of this institution, I cannot answer this query.	<table> <tr> <td>1830 - - £.121 6 0</td><td>Receipts.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr> <tr> <td>1831 - - - 110 16 0</td><td>To Subscriptions received for 1831, £.62 5 0</td><td>By Salary to Medical Attendant £.149 6 3</td></tr> <tr> <td>1832 - - - 108 14 0</td><td>County Presentment for ditto - 62 5 0</td><td>Servants' Wages and Fuel - 16 4 6</td></tr> <tr> <td></td><td>Subscriptions received for 1832 43 10 0</td><td>Medicine, Instruments, &c. - 86 0 4</td></tr> <tr> <td></td><td>County Presentment for ditto - 43 10 0</td><td>Books, Stamps, Printing, &c. 3 17 4</td></tr> <tr> <td></td><td>Subscriptions received for 1833 48 7 6</td><td>Furniture and Repairs to Dispensary - - - 9 18 8½</td></tr> <tr> <td></td><td>County Presentment for ditto - 48 7 6</td><td>Half a Year's Rent of Dispensary 6 0 0</td></tr> <tr> <td></td><td></td><td>One Year's Subscription to Fever Hospital - - - 1 1 0</td></tr> <tr> <td></td><td></td><td>272 5 14</td></tr> <tr> <td></td><td></td><td>By Cash in Treasurer's hands - 15 5 10½</td></tr> <tr> <td></td><td></td><td>last County Presentment, not yet received - - - 20 14 0</td></tr> <tr> <td></td><td></td><td>308 5 0</td></tr> </table> These sums, with a balance in treasurer's hands, have disbursed the expenses, including salary of medical attendant, rent, &c.	1830 - - £.121 6 0	Receipts.	Expenditure.	1831 - - - 110 16 0	To Subscriptions received for 1831, £.62 5 0	By Salary to Medical Attendant £.149 6 3	1832 - - - 108 14 0	County Presentment for ditto - 62 5 0	Servants' Wages and Fuel - 16 4 6		Subscriptions received for 1832 43 10 0	Medicine, Instruments, &c. - 86 0 4		County Presentment for ditto - 43 10 0	Books, Stamps, Printing, &c. 3 17 4		Subscriptions received for 1833 48 7 6	Furniture and Repairs to Dispensary - - - 9 18 8½		County Presentment for ditto - 48 7 6	Half a Year's Rent of Dispensary 6 0 0			One Year's Subscription to Fever Hospital - - - 1 1 0			272 5 14			By Cash in Treasurer's hands - 15 5 10½			last County Presentment, not yet received - - - 20 14 0			308 5 0
1830 - - £.121 6 0	Receipts.	Expenditure.
1831 - - - 110 16 0	To Subscriptions received for 1831, £.62 5 0	By Salary to Medical Attendant £.149 6 3
1832 - - - 108 14 0	County Presentment for ditto - 62 5 0	Servants' Wages and Fuel - 16 4 6
	Subscriptions received for 1832 43 10 0	Medicine, Instruments, &c. - 86 0 4
	County Presentment for ditto - 43 10 0	Books, Stamps, Printing, &c. 3 17 4
	Subscriptions received for 1833 48 7 6	Furniture and Repairs to Dispensary - - - 9 18 8½
	County Presentment for ditto - 48 7 6	Half a Year's Rent of Dispensary 6 0 0
		One Year's Subscription to Fever Hospital - - - 1 1 0
		272 5 14
		By Cash in Treasurer's hands - 15 5 10½
		last County Presentment, not yet received - - - 20 14 0
		308 5 0
By private subscriptions, and a grant from the grand jury of the county in which it is situated only.	By private subscriptions and county presentment from this county alone.	By private subscriptions, and an equal amount from the county, presented by the grand jury.
I cannot suggest any alteration which would make this institution more efficient for the relief of the poorer classes.	I cannot.	No.

LEINSTER—KILDARE—KILKENNY.

Robertstown Dispensary.	Ballyraggett Dispensary.	Callan Dispensary.
W. Godfrey Dyas, Esq. M. D.	John Bradley, Esq., Surgeon.	Mr. Abraham W. Cronyn, Medical Attendant.
Robertstown Dispensary.	Ballyraggett Dispensary.	I superintend the Callan Dispensary; it was established about 16 years ago.
Three parishes, and a portion of a fourth parish, all situated within the county Kildare.	Donoghmore or Ballyraggett; Aharney or Lisdouney; Kilmacar; part of the Union of Burn Church; part of Coolraheen; part of Aughour or Freshford; all situated in the county of Kilkenny, except a very small portion of Aharney.	There are six parishes in my district, all in the county Kilkenny.
Kildare Infirmary, distant 8 miles; Naas Fever Hospital and Dispensary, distant 7 miles; Newbridge Dispensary; Clane ditto; the former 7 miles, the latter 5 miles.	Freshford, 5 miles; Castlecomer, 6 miles; Durrow, 5 miles; Ballinakill, 5 miles; Abbeyleix, 8 miles. The two last are in the Queen's County.	The Kilkenny Dispensary, Infirmary and Fever Hospital, 8 miles distant, and the Kilmagranny within 7 miles; but that is a country village.
There is not any dispensary attached to any hospital or infirmary within my district.	None.	No dispensary or hospital within my district.
I do not attend more than one public medical institution.	No.	I only attend the Callan Dispensary.
Certainly.	I consider it my duty to see every case at the dispensary, if the patient be able to attend; if not able to attend, I consider it my duty to visit.	In some medical cases, my foreman attends in my absence; but in any surgical or midwifery case, I consider it my duty to give my own personal attendance.
Yes.	A register is kept of all cases, whether treated at the dispensary or at the houses of the patients; in which are recorded the name, residence; and disease of the patient, with the result, whether recovery or death.	There is a register kept of the number relieved.
The Robertstown dispensary not being established more than one year, I cannot reply to this question.	The number of cases treated during the last three years amounts to 3,097, of which 30 died. The prevalent diseases are, fevers, and disorders of the digestive organs.	Thirteen thousand have been relieved within the last three years. Fever, ague, affections of the lungs, and bilious attacks, the most general diseases.
Very seldom.	The instances of such participation are few.	Persons who are in circumstances not to require gratuitous assistance, sometimes apply.
The medicines are supplied by the Messrs. Leslie & Co., Dublin, purchased out of the general fund.	By Messrs. Leslie, druggists, Bride-street, Dublin, to order of the Treasurer.	The medicines are supplied by the committee, and paid for out of the general fund.
The receipt of last year, including county grant, £.49. 8s. Expenditure, viz. <table><tr><td>Rent - - - - -</td><td>£. 6 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Fine for a House - - - -</td><td>3 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine - - - - -</td><td>9 5 4½</td></tr><tr><td>Fuel - - - - -</td><td>1 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Surgeon's Salary - - - -</td><td>30 2 7½</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>£. 49 8 0</td></tr></table>	Rent - - - - -	£. 6 0 0	Fine for a House - - - -	3 0 0	Medicine - - - - -	9 5 4½	Fuel - - - - -	1 0 0	Surgeon's Salary - - - -	30 2 7½		£. 49 8 0	<table><tr><th colspan="2">Receipts.</th><th colspan="2">Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td colspan="2">1831:</td><td colspan="2">Salary, Surgⁿ £. 80 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Subscriptions</td><td>£. 52 4 0</td><td>Rent - - -</td><td>10 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Presentment</td><td>- 52 4 0</td><td>Medicine, &c.</td><td>13 19 5</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>104 8 0</td><td></td><td>103 19 5</td></tr><tr><td colspan="2">1832:</td><td colspan="2">Salary & Rent 100 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Subscriptions &</td><td></td><td>Medicine, &c.</td><td>33 8 8½</td></tr><tr><td>Presentment</td><td>121 18 0</td><td></td><td>133 8 8½</td></tr><tr><td colspan="2">1833:</td><td colspan="2">Salary & Rent 90 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Subscriptions &</td><td></td><td>Medicine, &c.</td><td>12 16 0</td></tr><tr><td>Presentment</td><td>103 0 0</td><td></td><td>102 16 0</td></tr></table>	Receipts.		Expenditure.		1831:		Salary, Surg ⁿ £. 80 0 0		Subscriptions	£. 52 4 0	Rent - - -	10 0 0	Presentment	- 52 4 0	Medicine, &c.	13 19 5		104 8 0		103 19 5	1832:		Salary & Rent 100 0 0		Subscriptions &		Medicine, &c.	33 8 8½	Presentment	121 18 0		133 8 8½	1833:		Salary & Rent 90 0 0		Subscriptions &		Medicine, &c.	12 16 0	Presentment	103 0 0		102 16 0	Annual Receipt: <table><tr><td>Subscriptions</td><td>- - -</td><td>£. 70 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Presentments</td><td>- - -</td><td>70 0 0</td></tr><tr><td></td><td></td><td>140 0 0</td></tr></table> Salary - - - - - £. 100. Annual Expenditure about £. 150. In consequence of the two last presentments not having been paid, the committee are a good deal in debt.	Subscriptions	- - -	£. 70 0 0	Presentments	- - -	70 0 0			140 0 0
Rent - - - - -	£. 6 0 0
Fine for a House - - - -	3 0 0
Medicine - - - - -	9 5 4½
Fuel - - - - -	1 0 0
Surgeon's Salary - - - -	30 2 7½
	£. 49 8 0
Receipts.		Expenditure.
1831:		Salary, Surg ⁿ £. 80 0 0
Subscriptions	£. 52 4 0	Rent - - -	10 0 0
Presentment	- 52 4 0	Medicine, &c.	13 19 5
	104 8 0		103 19 5
1832:		Salary & Rent 100 0 0
Subscriptions &		Medicine, &c.	33 8 8½
Presentment	121 18 0		133 8 8½
1833:		Salary & Rent 90 0 0
Subscriptions &		Medicine, &c.	12 16 0
Presentment	103 0 0		102 16 0
Subscriptions	- - -	£. 70 0 0
Presentments	- - -	70 0 0
		140 0 0
By private subscription and grand jury presentment, obtained from only one county.	By private subscriptions, and by presentments obtained from the county of Kilkenny only.	It is supported by subscriptions, annually, and a presentment to the amount of the subscriptions off the county; only the county Kilkenny.
I am of opinion that the poor in this country are not only more predisposed to be attacked by the prevailing epidemic of the season, but are also more subject to have such disease (whatever it may be), accompanied by symptoms of a more dangerous character than that attendant on symptoms of the disease in persons better circumstanced in life. This I attribute to improper diet, want of cleanliness, fatigue, and irregular habits. I cannot suggest any alteration in the distribution of the funds of the Robertstown Dispensary, which could be so advantageous to the poor as the mode now subsisting.	None.	I think the amount of the funds at present could not be better distributed.

LEINSTER—KILKENNY.

Castle Comer Dispensary.	Durrow Dispensary.	Freshford Dispensary.
George Hartford, Esq., M. D.	Robert Drought, Esq., M. D.	James Cullenan, Esq., M. D.
There is no hospital or infirmary but the Castle Comer Dispensary, established in 1808.	Durrow Dispensary, established in the year 1829, for the benefit of the poor of Durrow and its vicinity, Durrow being completely surrounded by the Queen's County and the county Kilkenny. Grand jury refusing to present in aid of the poor of the Queen's County, Moyne Dispensary was established in March 1833 for the benefit of the poor of said Queen's County	There is both an hospital and dispensary in Freshford. The object of the hospital is to receive poor persons attacked with fever, and thereby prevent the spread of contagion; it was established in the year 1824. The object of the dispensary is to afford medical and medicinal assistance to the poor of the district; established 1814.
Part of the parish of Dysart, the whole of Castle Comer; one of the most populous in Ireland, containing a population of 13,990 inhabitants.	Three entire parishes, and part of four parishes; all are not in the same county, Durrow being in the county Kilkenny.	I believe six or seven, all in the county Kilkenny.
Within nine miles, south, is the Kilkenny Infirmary and Fever Hospital; within five miles, west, is the Ballyragget Dispensary; within five miles, north, is the Ballinakill Dispensary; and five miles, east, is the Newtown Dispensary.	Ballinakill, Ballyragget, Abbeyleix and Rathdowny Dispensaries.	County Infirmary and Fever Hospital, Kilkenny; Ballyragget, Johnstown, Urlingford, Durrow and Kilkenny Dispensary.
There is no other dispensary, hospital or infirmary within this district.	There is no hospital or infirmary within the district. My salary for attending both dispensaries is at present 70 l. per annum.	There is but an hospital and dispensary in my district; they are entirely distinct. My own salary and that of the apothecary is 100 l. per annum (for both) for the dispensary; I attend the hospital gratis.
I do not attend any other dispensary, hospital or infirmary; it would be impossible, the duties of this being so laborious. I am required to give attendance every day in the week.	I attend two dispensaries, viz. Durrow and Moyne, each two days in every week. On being appointed to the Durrow Dispensary, I was obliged to become a resident of the town. Moyne Dispensary is distant in or about a mile from my residence.	I do not attend any dispensary or hospital but those I have stated above; I attend both daily, both of which are within the town of Freshford.
I do, and have always done so.	I do, and have not confined my attendance to the particular days specified in each week.	Certainly, in most cases.
There is a register kept, with the names, diseases, residences of the patients, with the date of their application, and by whom recommended, &c.	A regular registry is kept of the patients seeking relief from either dispensary. Medicine and advice are regularly given, but the result is not always known.	There is such a registry kept, and I have disposed of most of the cases by giving my own attendance when necessary, and generally with a favourable result.
1830, 3,945; 1831, 4,009; 1832, 4,362. The general diseases seem to be here, as elsewhere, inflammatory fever, pleuritis, pneumonia, and besides low fever, rheumatism, and phthisis or consumption, which is very prevalent. Want of space obliges me not to enter more fully on the subject. Accidents are of frequent occurrence in the colliery district.	From 1st January 1830 to 1st January 1833, 4,573 patients have received medicine and advice; diseases most general were fevers, catarrhs, influenza, and inflammatory affections of the chest, disease of the stomach, liver and bowels, complaints of women and children, rheumatism, disease of the skin, eye, and urinary organs, accidents, fractures and contusions, ulcers, abscesses and anthrax, &c.	The number of persons who applied for and received aid from the dispensary, for the last three years to the 30th of December last, were 3,269. The diseases treated were various, both surgical and medical.
Very seldom, as there are scarcely any but paupers in this district.	I believe a few such cases have occurred.	Such cases may have sometimes occurred through ignorance on the part of the subscribers as to the circumstances of those who applied for relief.
By Messrs. Boileau & George, Druggists, Bride-street, Dublin.	The subscribers elect a committee of part of the members and the Treasurer; the physician makes out a list of the medicines requisite, and the Treasurer procures them from a Dublin druggist.	The Treasurer to the dispensary pays for the medicines according to my order, which medicines are always supplied from the house of Messrs. Boileau & George.
<table><tr><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>1830 - £. 284 0 0</td><td>£. 257 7 5½</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - 270 5 0</td><td>269 11 9</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - 251 4 6</td><td>279 10 3½</td></tr></table>	Receipt.	Expenditure.	1830 - £. 284 0 0	£. 257 7 5½	1831 - 270 5 0	269 11 9	1832 - 251 4 6	279 10 3½	<table><tr><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>1830 - £. 187 13 0</td><td>£. 151 5 0½</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - 122 4 11½</td><td>160 17 1</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - 139 17 0</td><td>152 1 10½</td></tr></table>	Receipt.	Expenditure.	1830 - £. 187 13 0	£. 151 5 0½	1831 - 122 4 11½	160 17 1	1832 - 139 17 0	152 1 10½	<table><tr><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>1830 - £. 146 3 0</td><td>£. 137 16 6½</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - 136 19 6</td><td>134 11 10</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - 112 15 7</td><td>131 5 8</td></tr></table>	Receipt.	Expenditure.	1830 - £. 146 3 0	£. 137 16 6½	1831 - 136 19 6	134 11 10	1832 - 112 15 7	131 5 8
Receipt.	Expenditure.
1830 - £. 284 0 0	£. 257 7 5½
1831 - 270 5 0	269 11 9
1832 - 251 4 6	279 10 3½
Receipt.	Expenditure.
1830 - £. 187 13 0	£. 151 5 0½
1831 - 122 4 11½	160 17 1
1832 - 139 17 0	152 1 10½
Receipt.	Expenditure.
1830 - £. 146 3 0	£. 137 16 6½
1831 - 136 19 6	134 11 10
1832 - 112 15 7	131 5 8
<table><tr><th colspan="3">GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.</th></tr><tr><th>1830.</th><th>1831.</th><th>1832.</th></tr><tr><th>£. s. d.</th><th>£. s. d.</th><th>£. s. d.</th></tr><tr><td>Salaries -</td><td>175 0 0</td><td>175 0 0</td><td>190 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine -</td><td>55 3 3½</td><td>65 7 6</td><td>64 14 10</td></tr><tr><td>Rent and Fuel -</td><td>19 0 0</td><td>19 0 0</td><td>19 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Repairs & Furniture -</td><td>0 8 0</td><td>6 14 0</td><td>0 13 2</td></tr><tr><td>Contingencies -</td><td>7 16 2</td><td>3 10 3</td><td>5 2 3½</td></tr></table>	GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.			1830.	1831.	1832.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	Salaries -	175 0 0	175 0 0	190 0 0	Medicine -	55 3 3½	65 7 6	64 14 10	Rent and Fuel -	19 0 0	19 0 0	19 0 0	Repairs & Furniture -	0 8 0	6 14 0	0 13 2	Contingencies -	7 16 2	3 10 3	5 2 3½	<table><tr><th colspan="3">GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE:</th></tr><tr><th>1830.</th><th>1831.</th><th>1832.</th></tr><tr><th>£. s. d.</th><th>£. s. d.</th><th>£. s. d.</th></tr><tr><td>Salaries and Rent -</td><td>113 3 0</td><td>134 4 0</td><td>130 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine -</td><td>18 10 9</td><td>22 2 6</td><td>16 13 6</td></tr><tr><td>Sundries -</td><td>19 11 3½</td><td>4 10 7</td><td>3 4 2</td></tr><tr><td>Balance paid Treasurer -</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>2 4 2½</td></tr></table>	GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE:			1830.	1831.	1832.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	Salaries and Rent -	113 3 0	134 4 0	130 0 0	Medicine -	18 10 9	22 2 6	16 13 6	Sundries -	19 11 3½	4 10 7	3 4 2	Balance paid Treasurer -	-	-	2 4 2½	<table><tr><th colspan="2">Leaving a balance due to the Treasurer for this last year } £. 18 10 1</th></tr></table>	Leaving a balance due to the Treasurer for this last year } £. 18 10 1
GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.
1830.	1831.	1832.
£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.
Salaries -	175 0 0	175 0 0	190 0 0
Medicine -	55 3 3½	65 7 6	64 14 10
Rent and Fuel -	19 0 0	19 0 0	19 0 0
Repairs & Furniture -	0 8 0	6 14 0	0 13 2
Contingencies -	7 16 2	3 10 3	5 2 3½
GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE:
1830.	1831.	1832.
£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.
Salaries and Rent -	113 3 0	134 4 0	130 0 0
Medicine -	18 10 9	22 2 6	16 13 6
Sundries -	19 11 3½	4 10 7	3 4 2
Balance paid Treasurer -	-	-	2 4 2½
Leaving a balance due to the Treasurer for this last year } £. 18 10 1
By subscription and presentment, the Hon. Clark Wanderford being the principal subscriber. A presentment from the county Kilkenny grand jury only is looked for, when an equal sum to that subscribed is generally obtained.	Durrow, by private subscription, and county Kilkenny, presentment; Moyne, by private subscription; and Queen's County, presentment.	By private subscription, and grand jury presentment of the county of Kilkenny alone.
I really cannot, unless something in the way of an hospital could be established, into which the several severe accidents, &c., that frequently occur, could be removed, and attended to better than at a distance at their own houses. I also think a fever hospital would be useful (after a time), as at present patients have a dislike to going into such establishments.	I cannot.	I cannot.

LEINSTER—KILKENNY.

Gowran Dispensary.	Graigue Dispensary.	Inistiogue Dispensary.
James Newell, Esq. Surgeon.	Edward Fitzpatrick, Esq. Surgeon.	Miles Sterling, Esq. L. C. S. D.
Gowran Dispensary, established May 1822, for affording medical and surgical relief to the sick and indigent poor of the district, and those unable to pay for medical advice (within a distance of four miles of each side of Gowran.)	Graigue Dispensary, established anno 1810.	The Innistiogue dispensary, established in the year 1818; its object is, to afford medicine and advice gratuitously to the sick poor.
Eight entire parishes, and parts of four others, all in the county of Kilkenny.	Five parishes; three in the county of Kilkenny, two in the county of Carlow.	There are two entire parishes, and part of three others in my district; they are all in the same county.
The nearest medical institution is almost 10 English miles distant; namely, the County Infirmary, Fever Hospital and Kilkenny Dispensary, Graig and Thomastown Dispensaries.	The dispensaries of Borris, Gowran, Thomastown and Innistiogue surround me, all within 10 miles.	There are five dispensaries within 10 miles; viz. Ross, Thomastown, Graigue, Stoneyford and Kilmaganny.
No other medical institution in this district.	There is no hospital or infirmary within my district.	There is no dispensary attached to any hospital or infirmary within my district.
I only attend one dispensary; my salary has been 85 l. for each of the last three years. I attend at the dispensary three days in each week, and the alternate days I visit patients unable to attend.	I only attend the Graigue Dispensary; receive 70 l. per annum. I attend two days in the week, and am visiting the sick the other days.	I do not attend more than one dispensary. The salary is 75 l. per annum. The days of attendance are two in each week, viz. Tuesday and Friday.
I consider it my duty to give my personal attendance at home and elsewhere, and I invariably do so.	I do.	I consider it my duty to give my personal attendance when a subscriber recommends any individual as a fit object to receive medicine and advice from the institution.
A registry is kept, in which are entered the names of the patients recommended, their residence, admission, date and disease. A copy of the medical treatment in each case is kept, and the result. This is carefully examined by the subscribers.	There is a register kept; but it is impossible to know the result in all the cases, as the people are only disposed to know your opinion whether the patient will live or die, and never, perhaps, come to say if they ultimately recovered.	There has been a register kept during the last year, but all the cases have not been entered in it.
The number of patients admitted for the last three years, 6,108. Discharged cured, 5,564; discharged relieved, 458; died, 76; sent to Kilkenny Fever Hospital, 10 (destitute); in all, as above, 6,108. The principal diseases treated are, fevers, agues, pneumonia and chest affections, stomach and bowel complaints, rheumatism, diseases of the eye, female complaints, disease of children, tedious, difficult and preternatural labours, fractures, dislocations, wounds, tumors, ulcers, diseases of the skin, &c. &c. &c.	I could not, from the above reason; but I will say about 1,000. The general diseases are inflammation, fever, cholera and influenza.	The number of applicants at the dispensary this year will amount to between 4,000 and 5,000. The most prevailing diseases are, inflammations of the different tissues of the lungs, fevers, derangement of the digestive organs, and inflammation of the bowels, &c.
The governors are particular in this case, but some few infringements have occurred.	It frequently occurs so, in consequence of getting tickets from friendly subscribers.	It does very frequently.
Medicines are supplied by the committee, and paid for by the treasurer.	By order of the committee, from P. A. & C. Leslie, Druggists, Dublin.	The medicines are purchased with the funds of the establishment from Messrs. Boileau & George, Druggists, Dublin.
<table><tr><td></td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td><td>1833.</td></tr><tr><td>Subscriptions</td><td>£. 71 15 6</td><td>63 14 6</td><td>56 8 6</td></tr><tr><td>Presentment</td><td>- 71 15 6</td><td>63 14 6</td><td>56 8 6</td></tr><tr><td>Petty Session</td><td></td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Fines</td><td>2 3 6</td><td>3 0 0</td><td>4 5 0</td></tr></table> <table><tr><td colspan="4">EXPENDITURE.</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td><td>1833.</td></tr><tr><td>Salary</td><td>£. 85 0 0</td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Medicines</td><td>- 37 15 7½</td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Contingencies</td><td>- 8 8 0</td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td></td><td>133 2 8½</td><td>133 5 6</td><td>127 0 0</td></tr></table>		1831.	1832.	1833.	Subscriptions	£. 71 15 6	63 14 6	56 8 6	Presentment	- 71 15 6	63 14 6	56 8 6	Petty Session				Fines	2 3 6	3 0 0	4 5 0	EXPENDITURE.					1831.	1832.	1833.	Salary	£. 85 0 0			Medicines	- 37 15 7½			Contingencies	- 8 8 0				133 2 8½	133 5 6	127 0 0	<table><tr><td></td><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1830</td><td>£. 62 8 5</td><td>£. 71 11 5</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>- 135 2 0</td><td>120 5 9</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>- 97 7 0</td><td>101 17 6</td></tr></table> <table><tr><td colspan="4">GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>1830.</td><td>1832.</td><td>1833.</td></tr><tr><td>Salary</td><td>£. 53 6 8</td><td>70 0 0</td><td>70 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine</td><td>9 5 2</td><td>30 18 3</td><td>26 12 7½</td></tr><tr><td>Rent</td><td>- 8 0 0</td><td>4 19 0</td><td>4 10 0</td></tr><tr><td>Sundries</td><td>0 19 7</td><td>5 5 6</td><td>0 14 0</td></tr><tr><td>Balance paid</td><td></td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Treasurer</td><td>—</td><td>9 3 0</td><td>—</td></tr></table>		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1830	£. 62 8 5	£. 71 11 5	1832	- 135 2 0	120 5 9	1833	- 97 7 0	101 17 6	GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.					1830.	1832.	1833.	Salary	£. 53 6 8	70 0 0	70 0 0	Medicine	9 5 2	30 18 3	26 12 7½	Rent	- 8 0 0	4 19 0	4 10 0	Sundries	0 19 7	5 5 6	0 14 0	Balance paid				Treasurer	—	9 3 0	—	<table><tr><td></td><td>Income.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1831:</td><td>£. s. d.</td><td>£. s. d.</td></tr><tr><td>Balance in Treasurer's hand</td><td>- 4 18 8</td><td>Surgeon's Salary - 60 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Subscriptions</td><td>- 44 13 0</td><td>House-rent, Medicine, &c. - 34 4 8</td></tr><tr><td>Co. Presentment</td><td>- 44 13 0</td><td></td></tr><tr><td></td><td>£. 94 4 8</td><td>£. 94 4 8</td></tr><tr><td>1832:</td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Subscriptions</td><td>- 52 15 0</td><td>Surgeon's Salary - 65 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Co. Presentment</td><td>- 52 15 0</td><td>Medicine, Rent, &c. 49 17 0</td></tr><tr><td>Magistrate's Fines</td><td>0 14 0</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Bal. due to Treas.</td><td>8 13 0</td><td></td></tr><tr><td></td><td>£. 114 17 0</td><td>£. 114 17 0</td></tr><tr><td>1833:</td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Subscriptions</td><td>- 58 19 0</td><td>Surgeon's Salary - 75 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Co. Presentment</td><td>- 58 19 0</td><td>Medicine, Rent, &c. 34 4 3</td></tr><tr><td>Magistrate's Fines</td><td>0 5 0</td><td>Balance in hands of Treasurer - 0 5 9</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>£. 118 3 0</td><td>£. 118 3 0</td></tr></table>		Income.	Expenditure.	1831:	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	Balance in Treasurer's hand	- 4 18 8	Surgeon's Salary - 60 0 0	Subscriptions	- 44 13 0	House-rent, Medicine, &c. - 34 4 8	Co. Presentment	- 44 13 0			£. 94 4 8	£. 94 4 8	1832:			Subscriptions	- 52 15 0	Surgeon's Salary - 65 0 0	Co. Presentment	- 52 15 0	Medicine, Rent, &c. 49 17 0	Magistrate's Fines	0 14 0		Bal. due to Treas.	8 13 0			£. 114 17 0	£. 114 17 0	1833:			Subscriptions	- 58 19 0	Surgeon's Salary - 75 0 0	Co. Presentment	- 58 19 0	Medicine, Rent, &c. 34 4 3	Magistrate's Fines	0 5 0	Balance in hands of Treasurer - 0 5 9		£. 118 3 0	£. 118 3 0
	1831.	1832.	1833.
Subscriptions	£. 71 15 6	63 14 6	56 8 6
Presentment	- 71 15 6	63 14 6	56 8 6
Petty Session
Fines	2 3 6	3 0 0	4 5 0
EXPENDITURE.
	1831.	1832.	1833.
Salary	£. 85 0 0
Medicines	- 37 15 7½
Contingencies	- 8 8 0
	133 2 8½	133 5 6	127 0 0
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1830	£. 62 8 5	£. 71 11 5
1832	- 135 2 0	120 5 9
1833	- 97 7 0	101 17 6
GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.
	1830.	1832.	1833.
Salary	£. 53 6 8	70 0 0	70 0 0
Medicine	9 5 2	30 18 3	26 12 7½
Rent	- 8 0 0	4 19 0	4 10 0
Sundries	0 19 7	5 5 6	0 14 0
Balance paid
Treasurer	—	9 3 0	—
	Income.	Expenditure.
1831:	£. s. d.	£. s. d.
Balance in Treasurer's hand	- 4 18 8	Surgeon's Salary - 60 0 0
Subscriptions	- 44 13 0	House-rent, Medicine, &c. - 34 4 8
Co. Presentment	- 44 13 0
	£. 94 4 8	£. 94 4 8
1832:
Subscriptions	- 52 15 0	Surgeon's Salary - 65 0 0
Co. Presentment	- 52 15 0	Medicine, Rent, &c. 49 17 0
Magistrate's Fines	0 14 0
Bal. due to Treas.	8 13 0
	£. 114 17 0	£. 114 17 0
1833:
Subscriptions	- 58 19 0	Surgeon's Salary - 75 0 0
Co. Presentment	- 58 19 0	Medicine, Rent, &c. 34 4 3
Magistrate's Fines	0 5 0	Balance in hands of Treasurer - 0 5 9
	£. 118 3 0	£. 118 3 0
By subscriptions and county presentment from the county Kilkenny only.	By presentment from the county Kilkenny.	It is supported by subscriptions and presentments obtained from the county Kilkenny only.
I cannot, the funds being too small to assist in any other way. The governors of Gowran Dispensary have built a good house by subscription for the institution, and also apartments for the residence of the medical attendant, rent-free for ever.	An hospital would be of the greatest benefit to the poor, but the funds at present would not be adequate to support it. maintain two or three beds, for serious accidents occurring to paupers who could not be removed with safety to the County Infirmary, which is twelve miles distant. Or in the event of fever of a malignant character breaking out, the speedy removal of the first cases might prevent the spreading of such disease.	I am not aware that the funds of the establishment under my care could be more judiciously applied than they are at present; but it would be a great desideratum if the funds were sufficient to

LEINSTER—KILKENNY.

Johnstown Dispensary.	Kilkenny Dispensary.	Kilmacow Dispensary.
Patrick Ryan, Esq. M.D.	N. Alcock, Esq. Medical Attendant.	Treasurer and Medical Attendant.
Johnstown Dispensary; no other under my care; established 1813.	I have under my care the Kilkenny Dispensary, established in the year 1814, for the purpose of affording medical and medicinal aid to the poor of the city and its liberties.	Kilmacow Dispensary, established in 1817.
Three parishes, all in this county; I often go into others.	There are four parishes included in my district, all situated in the city and its liberties.	Eight, all in the county of Kilkenny.
Urlingford, Freshford, Rathdowny and Templetoohy.	We have in the city a county infirmary and a fever hospital, and within ten miles round seven dispensaries; viz. Thomastown, Stoneyford, Knocktopher, Kilmagany, Callan, Tushford and Castlecomer.	A branch of the Whitechurch dispensary at Pilltown, about seven miles distant.
None whatever.	There is no other dispensary within my district, but medicines are occasionally given from the county infirmary to extern surgical patients.	There is no hospital or infirmary in the district.
I do not attend more than one.	I attend the Kilkenny dispensary alone; I attend daily, and receive a salary of 50 l. Irish.	I attend no other dispensary, nor could I, as the duties of the one under my care are so overwhelming, the district extending about 40 square miles, and thickly inhabited by very poor people.
In all surgical cases I do.	By the regulations of the dispensary, I am required to attend as physician at the dispensary daily, and to prescribe for such patients as are present. There is also an apothecary, whose business it is to compound, to visit patients unable to attend, and, if necessary, to call on me to see them. He has a house and 80 l. salary.	To the poor in all cases.
A register has been kept of the remarkable cases, and all the tickets of recommendation.	Each subscriber has a power to ticket three patients daily, and these tickets are filed.	The names of the applicants are registered; but from the irregularity of their attendance, it would be impossible in very many cases to state the result of their treatment.
1,000 annually. The prevailing diseases are fevers, diseases of the chest, dropsy, dysentery, dyspepsia, diseases of the skin and puerperal state.	There have been from 18 to 20,000 patients relieved within the last three years. All diseases (except surgical and fever cases) are treated.	Twelve thousand two hundred and forty. The prevailing complaints are hepatic, bilious and inflammatory; scrofula, scurvy and itch.
Yes, persons of small property, who, though so circumstanced, should allow their friends to lie, not being able to pay for medicine or advice.	Not with our knowledge.	Frequently; as some of the landed proprietors expect that their tenants will receive medical assistance from the dispensary.
By the treasurer of the charity from the general fund.	Medicines are purchased from the funds, and given at the dispensary to patients' friends.	Supplied out of the funds by the committee.
The subscription has been for the last three years 60 l. The presentment the same. It has been expended every year in rent of a house, payment of my salary, medicine, wine, &c.	<table><tr><td></td><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1830</td><td>- £. 250 1 1</td><td>£. 211 19 3½</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>- - 263 9 10</td><td>249 13 10</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>- - 179 12 0</td><td>162 0 1</td></tr></table> General heads of Expenditure are, for salaries, medicines, house, servants' wages, &c. &c.		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1830	- £. 250 1 1	£. 211 19 3½	1831	- - 263 9 10	249 13 10	1832	- - 179 12 0	162 0 1	<table><tr><td></td><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1830</td><td>- £. 126 0 0</td><td>£. 125 10 0</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>- - 138 18 0</td><td>138 12 0</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>- - 122 12 4</td><td>122 1 4</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><td></td><td>1830.</td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>£. s. d.</td><td>£. s. d.</td><td>£. s. d.</td></tr><tr><td>Salary</td><td>- 92 10 0</td><td>95 0 0</td><td>83 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine</td><td>- 20 0 0</td><td>27 8 0</td><td>21 1 4</td></tr><tr><td>Rent</td><td>- 10 0 0</td><td>10 0 0</td><td>10 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Contingent</td><td>- 3 0 0</td><td>6 4 0</td><td>8 0 0</td></tr></table>		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1830	- £. 126 0 0	£. 125 10 0	1831	- - 138 18 0	138 12 0	1832	- - 122 12 4	122 1 4		1830.	1831.	1832.		£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	Salary	- 92 10 0	95 0 0	83 0 0	Medicine	- 20 0 0	27 8 0	21 1 4	Rent	- 10 0 0	10 0 0	10 0 0	Contingent	- 3 0 0	6 4 0	8 0 0
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1830	- £. 250 1 1	£. 211 19 3½
1831	- - 263 9 10	249 13 10
1832	- - 179 12 0	162 0 1
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1830	- £. 126 0 0	£. 125 10 0
1831	- - 138 18 0	138 12 0
1832	- - 122 12 4	122 1 4
	1830.	1831.	1832.
	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.
Salary	- 92 10 0	95 0 0	83 0 0
Medicine	- 20 0 0	27 8 0	21 1 4
Rent	- 10 0 0	10 0 0	10 0 0
Contingent	- 3 0 0	6 4 0	8 0 0
Supported by presentment from this county only, also by subscription.	It is supported by contributions, and a presentment from the city alone, equal to contributions, and also by a bequest of 100 l. late Irish currency.	By private subscriptions and presentment granted by the grand jury of the county.
I would suggest a small hospital to be attached to the dispensary, for the reception of bad cases, and when fever prevails, to use it as a fever hospital exclusively.	I at present cannot.	Not that I am aware of under existing circumstances.

LEINSTER—KILKENNY.

Knocktopher Dispensary.	Thomastown Dispensary.	Urlingford Dispensary.
Richard S. Peile, Esq., L. R. C. S. D.	Samuel A. Duke, Esq., Medical Attendant.	William Greene, Esq., Surgeon.
Knocktopher Dispensary, established about ten years; I also attend the Kilmagany Dispensary and Fever Hospital.	Thomastown Dispensary, established in 1812.	Urlingford Dispensary, established March 1813.
Two parishes, both in the county.	The district contains several parishes, comprising the entire of the Protestant Union of Thomastown and Colmkill, and the whole of the roman catholic parish, which is very extensive; all in same county.	Four parishes, all in this county.
Kilmagany, Stoneyford, Thomastown, Kilmacow, Kilkenny Infirmary and Hospital.	Kilkenny Hospitals, &c. within ten miles; Gowran Dispensary, seven miles; Graigue Dispensary, seven miles; Inistiogue Dispensary, four miles; Knocktopher Dispensary, four miles; Kilmaganny Dispensary and Fever Hospital, nine miles; Kells and Stoneyford Fever Hospital, four miles; Callan Dispensary, ten miles.	Johnstown Dispensary, Freshford Fever Hospital and Dispensary, in the county Kilkenny; Ballynauty and Thurles, county Tipperary.
Kilmagany Dispensary and Fever Hospital; salary to me, as medical attendant of both, 100 l. Irish; for Knocktophot, salary 40 l.	No other in the district.	None.
I do; Kilmagany Dispensary and Hospital, distant from Knocktophot five miles; salary at Kilmagany 100 l. Irish; Knocktophot, 40 l. ; three days to each dispensary in the week.	Only Thomastown.	I attend this dispensary only.
Certainly.	Yes.	I do.
There is.	Yes, the result generally favourable.	The name and disease, and the person recommending, are entered, but no observations of the result are made.
About 2,500; the diseases—fever, ague, eruptions on the skin, from poverty, bad diet, &c. &c., and injuries.	<table><tr><td></td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td><td>1833.</td></tr><tr><td>Number admitted</td><td>1,225</td><td>1,516</td><td>692</td></tr></table> All those diseases to which the poor are liable, such as fevers, inflammatory and pulmonary affections, colic, diarrhoea, dropsy, dyspepsia, scrofula, psora, fractures, wounds, &c., midwifery cases.		1831.	1832.	1833.	Number admitted	1,225	1,516	692	From those books the number exceeds 6,000. Fever, inflammation of lungs and bowels, scrofula, cattarrh, dyspepsia and itch, seem to be the most numerous.
	1831.	1832.	1833.
Number admitted	1,225	1,516	692
Sometimes.	Sometimes middling farmers apply for relief, but latterly it had been prohibited.	It has sometimes occurred, but the instances are few.
By the treasurer, from a druggist in Dublin.	Supplied by Messrs. Boileau & George, Dublin, by order from the treasurer.	By the druggist, and paid for by the treasurer from the general fund.
Surgeon's salary 120 l. , for three years; medicine about 40 l. ; rent and washing, &c. &c., 13 l. 10 s. Presentments and subscriptions generally deficient; the balance supplied by the Rev. Dr. Hamilton.	<table><tr><td></td><td>Income.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>£.142 19 0</td><td>£.166 4 11</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>118 10 0</td><td>128 0 10</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>101 8 0</td><td>134 4 2</td></tr></table> Including salary, rent, fuel, medicine and all other expenses. N.B.—Many subscribers being absent, has caused deficiency in funds from former years.		Income.	Expenditure.	1831	£.142 19 0	£.166 4 11	1832	118 10 0	128 0 10	1833	101 8 0	134 4 2
	Income.	Expenditure.
1831	£.142 19 0	£.166 4 11
1832	118 10 0	128 0 10
1833	101 8 0	134 4 2
By presentment and subscriptions from the county Kilkenny alone.	Supported by private subscription and county presentment, from the county Kilkenny only.	By presentment and private subscription from the county Kilkenny.
Were the funds sufficient to afford it, I consider it would be of service to the poor, that the medical attendant should have the power of procuring such nourishment as he should think necessary for patients. When a contagious disease appears in a district to which no hospital is attached, and where the people are so poor as to be unable to obtain it, this I consider would, in many cases, change the progress of the disease.	None whatever, unless an increase in the funds, which would enable the committee to grant pecuniary relief in such cases as seemed to require it, and this was practised when the funds could afford it.	I cannot.

LEINSTER—KING'S COUNTY.

Banagher Dispensary.	Edenderry Dispensary.	Farbane Dispensary.
J. Bird, Esq., M. D.	J. Grattan, Esq., M. D.	C. D. Fry, Esq., M. D.
Banagher Dispensary, established in 1817.	The Edenderry Dispensary, established in 1819, for treatment of the then epidemic fever, and for arresting the progress of contagion.	Farbane Dispensary, established March 1822.
Four parishes; three in the King's County, and one in the county Galway.	Six; viz. Castropetre, Ballinakill, Ballymackwilliam, Ballyburly, and parts of Clonbullogue and Castle Jordan, all in the King's County.	Five, all in the same county.
Birr Dispensary, Farbane Dispensary, in the King's County; Eyrecourt Dispensary, county Galway.	—	Banagher Dispensary, seven miles, and Clara, eight, from Farbane.
No.	The above-named dispensary only; there is no hospital or infirmary in the district.	Not any.
No.	The surgeon to the Edenderry is likewise surgeon to the Carbery Dispensary, county Kildare, four miles distant, the reports and accounts for which have no connexion, and are kept separately; the days of attendance are three alternate days weekly; the Johnstown Dispensary, county Kildare, distant nine miles; Rathangan, county Kildare, nine miles; Phillipstown, King's County, nine miles; Kinnegad, county Westmeath, eight miles; and Clonard, county Meath, six miles.	Only one.
Where the case is of importance, I always consider it my duty to attend; if a mild case, my assistant.	—	Not except in cases recommended by a subscriber; a discretionary power, however, is entrusted to me, which I have in very many instances acted on.
Yes.	A register is kept, by filing the printed tickets, and giving counter tickets, entitling each patient to a month's attendance at the dispensary.	There is.
<table><tr><td>1830.</td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td></tr><tr><td>—</td><td>—</td><td>—</td></tr><tr><td>1,129</td><td>1,332</td><td>1,437</td></tr></table>	1830.	1831.	1832.	—	—	—	1,129	1,332	1,437	<table><tr><td>1830.</td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td></tr><tr><td>—</td><td>—</td><td>—</td></tr><tr><td>1,189</td><td>986</td><td>991</td></tr></table> Prevailing diseases have been, fever of various type, dyspeptic and bowel complaints, chronic rheumatism, &c. &c.	1830.	1831.	1832.	—	—	—	1,189	986	991	6,563: eruptive complaints have, during each of the last three years, appeared most numerous; next to these, inflammations, many cases of typhus fever in 1831 and 1832, and at all times a considerable number of chronic, especially dyspeptic complaints.
1830.	1831.	1832.
—	—	—
1,129	1,332	1,437
1830.	1831.	1832.
—	—	—
1,189	986	991
Occasionally, but not frequently.	Very rarely; but many occur from subscribers supposing the applicants poorer than they really are.	Very frequently.
They are purchased, with the subscription funds, from Dublin druggists.	Medicine is ordered by the treasurer, on the surgeon's certificate, from Messrs. Boileau & George, Dublin, whose account is then paid by the treasurer.	Messrs. Boileau & George, on receiving an order from the managing committee, through the secretary, supply them.
<table><tr><th colspan="2">RECEIPT.</th></tr><tr><th>Subscriptions.</th><th>Grand Jury Presentment.</th></tr><tr><td>1830 - £. 55 2 0</td><td>- £. 55 2 0</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - 56 2 0</td><td>- 54 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - 65 7 0</td><td>- 65 7 0</td></tr></table> <table><tr><th colspan="2">EXPENDITURE.</th></tr><tr><th>Salary.</th><th>Medicines, House-rent, and Contingencies.</th></tr><tr><td>1830 - £. 80 0 0</td><td>- £. 31 10 0</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - 80 0 0</td><td>- 32 18 7</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - 80 0 0</td><td>- 37 8 6</td></tr></table>	RECEIPT.		Subscriptions.	Grand Jury Presentment.	1830 - £. 55 2 0	- £. 55 2 0	1831 - 56 2 0	- 54 0 0	1832 - 65 7 0	- 65 7 0	EXPENDITURE.		Salary.	Medicines, House-rent, and Contingencies.	1830 - £. 80 0 0	- £. 31 10 0	1831 - 80 0 0	- 32 18 7	1832 - 80 0 0	- 37 8 6	<table><tr><th colspan="2">RECEIPT.</th></tr><tr><th>Subscription.</th><th>Presentment.</th></tr><tr><td>1830 - £. 48 17 8</td><td>£. 48 7 2</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - 48 4 2</td><td>48 4 2</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - 48 4 2</td><td>48 4 2</td></tr></table> <table><tr><th colspan="2">EXPENDITURE.</th></tr><tr><td>Surgeon's Salary -</td><td>- £. 46 3 1</td></tr><tr><td>Apothecary's Salary -</td><td>- 14 12 4</td></tr><tr><td>Dispensary and Fuel -</td><td>- 13 16 11</td></tr></table>	RECEIPT.		Subscription.	Presentment.	1830 - £. 48 17 8	£. 48 7 2	1831 - 48 4 2	48 4 2	1832 - 48 4 2	48 4 2	EXPENDITURE.		Surgeon's Salary -	- £. 46 3 1	Apothecary's Salary -	- 14 12 4	Dispensary and Fuel -	- 13 16 11	<table><tr><th colspan="3">EXPENDITURE.</th></tr><tr><th></th><th>1830.</th><th>1831.</th><th>1832.</th></tr><tr><td></td><td>—</td><td>—</td><td>—</td></tr><tr><td>Salary -</td><td>£. 68 14 9</td><td>60 0 0</td><td>60 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine</td><td>36 11 0</td><td>41 0 8</td><td>41 10 1</td></tr><tr><td>Rent -</td><td>15 0 0</td><td>15 0 0</td><td>15 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Contingencies</td><td>1 15 0</td><td>2 7 3</td><td>0 6 0</td></tr></table>	EXPENDITURE.				1830.	1831.	1832.		—	—	—	Salary -	£. 68 14 9	60 0 0	60 0 0	Medicine	36 11 0	41 0 8	41 10 1	Rent -	15 0 0	15 0 0	15 0 0	Contingencies	1 15 0	2 7 3	0 6 0
RECEIPT.
Subscriptions.	Grand Jury Presentment.
1830 - £. 55 2 0	- £. 55 2 0
1831 - 56 2 0	- 54 0 0
1832 - 65 7 0	- 65 7 0
EXPENDITURE.
Salary.	Medicines, House-rent, and Contingencies.
1830 - £. 80 0 0	- £. 31 10 0
1831 - 80 0 0	- 32 18 7
1832 - 80 0 0	- 37 8 6
RECEIPT.
Subscription.	Presentment.
1830 - £. 48 17 8	£. 48 7 2
1831 - 48 4 2	48 4 2
1832 - 48 4 2	48 4 2
EXPENDITURE.
Surgeon's Salary -	- £. 46 3 1
Apothecary's Salary -	- 14 12 4
Dispensary and Fuel -	- 13 16 11
EXPENDITURE.
	1830.	1831.	1832.
	—	—	—
Salary -	£. 68 14 9	60 0 0	60 0 0
Medicine	36 11 0	41 0 8	41 10 1
Rent -	15 0 0	15 0 0	15 0 0
Contingencies	1 15 0	2 7 3	0 6 0
By subscriptions, and county presentment, from only one county.	By subscriptions, one moiety; the other by presentment, made by King's County grand jury.	By subscription and presentment; the latter always tantamount to whatever the former may be; obtained from one county only.
Our funds are too small to be made more useful; but if a few beds could be supported for intern patients, then the charity would be more extensively useful.	Our committee have been watchful in regulating the establishment, leaving me nothing to add or diminish.	I consider the benefits of the institution should be confined to the really poor, at least as far as giving medicines; many persons, though objects for gratuitous advice, would willingly pay for these, which sum, added to the fund, would render its usefulness far more extensive than at present.

LEINSTER—KING'S COUNTY.

Frankford and Ballyboy Dispensary.	Geashill Dispensary.	Kennitty Dispensary.
The Committee.	Committee and Medical Attendant.	Treasurer and Medical Attendant.
One dispensary, denominated Frankford and Bally Boy Dispensary, established 5th March 1821, for advice and medicine to the poor of the surrounding neighbourhood gratis, and visiting those at their own houses unable to attend at the dispensary.	Geashill Dispensary, established six years and a half. I am also one of the physicians to the Portarlington Dispensary.	Kennitty Dispensary, established 11th February 1814.
Two; parishes of Ballyboy and Killoughy, King's County.	Two parishes, very large, both in King's County.	Seven parishes, whereof six are in the King's County, and one in the Queen's County.
Two other dispensaries, namely, Kinnity and Farbane.	County Infirmary in Tullamore, six miles; Portarlington Dispensary, eight miles; Phillips-town Dispensary, five miles.	Clonaslee, in the Queen's County, a dispensary; Frankford, in the King's County, a dispensary; and Birr, in the King's County, a dispensary and fever hospital.
No infirmary or other dispensary.	There is a dispensary (so far as exhibiting medicines without attendance goes), attached to the County Infirmary in Tullamore.	No.
One dispensary, as described in answer to No. 1.	I attend no other hospital or infirmary, except Geashill and Portarlington, where I reside.	No, but one.
Certainly, and have invariably done so.	I consider it my duty to attend all cases not able to attend on my call.	I do, as far as it may be practicable.
A registry is kept of the number of patients, their particular diseases, treatment, recoveries, deaths, &c. this registry is inspected continually, and reported on monthly by a committee, who assemble at the dispensary the first Monday in each month for that purpose.	There has been a registry kept since I have been appointed to the institution, with notes of the manner in which the applications have been disposed of.	There is a regular registry kept and annually examined by a committee, who report same to the grand jury of the King's County.
Within the last three years, 4,803 patients. Their diseases, inflammations, fevers, bowel and liver complaints, consumptions, rheumatism, ulcers, diseases of urinary organs, of the eye, of the skin, of the lungs, cholera, accidents, vaccination, midwifery, &c.	I have not been the attendant for the last three years, but believe I may state the number of cases since my appointment to average 800.	<table><tr><td colspan="4">The number of Patients from</td></tr><tr><td>February 1830 to February 1831</td><td>-</td><td>2,337</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>" 1831 to " 1832</td><td>-</td><td>2,609</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>" 1832 to " 1833</td><td>-</td><td>2,237</td><td></td></tr><tr><td colspan="3">TOTAL</td><td>- 7,183</td></tr></table>	The number of Patients from				February 1830 to February 1831	-	2,337		" 1831 to " 1832	-	2,609		" 1832 to " 1833	-	2,237		TOTAL			- 7,183
The number of Patients from February 1830 to February 1831	-	2,337
" 1831 to " 1832	-	2,609
" 1832 to " 1833	-	2,237
TOTAL			- 7,183
Such instances have occurred.	It is contrary to the rules of the dispensary that any such should be received.	A few instances only have occurred.
From Boileau & George, and paid for by A. Stoney, Esq. treasurer to the dispensary.	Drugs supplied by Messrs. Leslie, Bride-street, and compounded entirely by myself.	They are purchased by the treasurer from Pollock & Co. Capel-street, Dublin.
	Average amount of medicine, 20 l. ; surgeon's salary 50 l. Sundry minor expenses, 5 l.	<table><tr><td colspan="2">Receipt.</td><td colspan="2">Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1830</td><td>- £.110 10 0</td><td>£.92 18 3</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>- 102 2 0</td><td>97 19 3</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>- 96 0 0</td><td>98 8 4</td><td></td></tr><tr><td colspan="2">£. 308 12 0</td><td>£.289 5 10</td><td></td></tr></table>	Receipt.		Expenditure.		1830	- £.110 10 0	£.92 18 3		1831	- 102 2 0	97 19 3		1832	- 96 0 0	98 8 4		£. 308 12 0		£.289 5 10
Receipt.		Expenditure.
1830	- £.110 10 0	£.92 18 3
1831	- 102 2 0	97 19 3
1832	- 96 0 0	98 8 4
£. 308 12 0		£.289 5 10
By voluntary subscription paid to the treasurer previous to spring assizes, for this county only, in each year; upon affidavit by treasurer of such sum being paid, a presentment is obtained for a similar sum at same assizes.	It is supported by private subscription and presentments obtained from the King's County. The greater proportion by private subscription.	One moiety by private subscriptions, the other moiety by presentment on the King's County at large.
With reference to the state of the funds of this institution, nothing more effectual, it appears to us, can be devised at present.	We cannot suggest any alteration in the distribution of our funds more calculated to give relief to the poor.	I cannot in their present limited state.

LEINSTER—KING'S COUNTY.

Moneygall Dispensary.	Phillipstown Dispensary.	Shinrone Dispensary.
C. Bournse, Esq. Surgeon.	—	Committee and Medical Attendant.
Moneygall Dispensary.	Phillipstown Dispensary, established in 1828.	The Shinrone Dispensary, established anno 1817, (I think.)
Parts of three parishes in the King's County and county Tipperary.	Six, all in same county.	Six parishes, one of them in the county Tipperary.
Fever hospital and dispensary, CloghJordan; the like Roscrea; the like Nenagh Dispensary, Toomavara; like Ballymacky.	The County Infirmary at Tullamore, seven or eight miles distant; Geashill Dispensary, about five miles.	The dispensaries and fever hospitals of Parsonstown, seven miles; Roscrea, five miles; CloghJordan, five miles; and the dispensaries of Moneygall, seven miles, and Borrisokane, eight miles.
None.	None.	None.
Moneygall, King's County, four miles from my residence (Toomavara); two days' attendance weekly; salary, 40 l. Toomavara (Tipperary), six days' salary, 60 l.	Phillipstown Dispensary alone; 80 l. a year; three days in the week; but find it necessary to give more or less of attendance daily.	I attend the dispensary and fever hospital of Shinrone; the fever hospital not a mile, and the dispensary not twenty yards from my residence. Fever hospital, no salary; dispensary attended every day. House-rent paid by me; also an assistant apothecary, paid by me; salary, 100 l. p'ann.
I do.	Yes.	I do, to any distance not much exceeding three miles, which has been marked as the boundary of my visiting duties.
A register kept, but not preserved.	There is a book kept in the dispensary, in which the name, residence, disease, treatment, &c. is entered.	There is.
From recollection, 3,000 attendances annually; from the district not having any other medical institution, neither a resident practitioner, the entire range of diseases, wounds, &c. resort to the dispensary.	Upwards of 12,000 received medical and surgical aid, nearly 2,000 of them visited at their homes. Inflammatory and infectious fever, dyspeptic complaints, diarrhoea, female complaints, diseases of children, phthisis, &c.	<table><tr><td></td><td></td><td></td><td></td><td>Persons.</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>2,410</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>2,181</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>2,200</td></tr></table>					Persons.	1831	-	-	-	2,410	1832	-	-	-	2,181	1833	-	-	-	2,200 Persons.
1831	-	-	-	2,410
1832	-	-	-	2,181
1833	-	-	-	2,200
If gentlemen's servants are eligible, then the answer is, no; otherwise, yes; but I have not the power of deciding.	Persons have at times presented themselves who have means; an intimate knowledge of the district enables me in most cases to correct this abuse.	Very seldom.
Boileau & George, Dublin.	The medicines are ordered by the surgeon at a druggists, and paid for by the treasurer to the Institution, out of the general funds.	By Messrs. P. A. & C. Leslie, of Bride-street, Druggists, by order of Committee.
<table><tr><td></td><td></td><td>£.</td><td>s.</td><td>d.</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>15</td><td>0</td><td>0</td></tr><tr><td>Salary</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>40</td><td>0</td><td>0</td></tr><tr><td>Rent</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>3</td><td>0</td><td>0</td></tr></table>			£.	s.	d.	Medicine	-	-	15	0	0	Salary	-	-	40	0	0	Rent	-	-	3	0	0	About 120 l. a year, out of which is paid the surgeon's salary, medicine bills, freight, printer's bill, rent of dispensary, &c.	<table><tr><td></td><td></td><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>-</td><td>£. 142 12 0</td><td>£. 137 2 9</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>-</td><td>135 14 0</td><td>134 13 7</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>-</td><td>137 6 0</td><td>133 14 6</td></tr></table> <table><tr><td colspan="4">GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td><td>1833.</td></tr><tr><td>Salary</td><td>- £. 100 0 0</td><td>100 0 0</td><td>100 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine</td><td>- 33 0 3</td><td>25 4 5</td><td>28 12 0</td></tr><tr><td>Contingencies</td><td>4 2 6</td><td>9 9 2</td><td>5 2 6</td></tr></table>			Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831	-	£. 142 12 0	£. 137 2 9	1832	-	135 14 0	134 13 7	1833	-	137 6 0	133 14 6	GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.					1831.	1832.	1833.	Salary	- £. 100 0 0	100 0 0	100 0 0	Medicine	- 33 0 3	25 4 5	28 12 0	Contingencies	4 2 6	9 9 2	5 2 6
		£.	s.	d.
Medicine	-	-	15	0	0
Salary	-	-	40	0	0
Rent	-	-	3	0	0
		Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831	-	£. 142 12 0	£. 137 2 9
1832	-	135 14 0	134 13 7
1833	-	137 6 0	133 14 6
GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.
	1831.	1832.	1833.
Salary	- £. 100 0 0	100 0 0	100 0 0
Medicine	- 33 0 3	25 4 5	28 12 0
Contingencies	4 2 6	9 9 2	5 2 6
By presentment from the King's County, equal to private subscription.	Part subscription, and part presentment from the King's County.	By subscriptions and presentment from the King's County alone.
The funds are so very small as scarcely to furnish medicine, and that not in sufficient quantity; therefore I think that without an increase no improvement could be made.	The fund small, the district large. I am not aware of any alteration by which the poor would derive more benefit from the same amount of funds.	I cannot.

LEINSTER—LONGFORD and CAVAN.

Ballymahon Dispensary.	Edgworthstown Dispensary.	Granard Dispensary.
Committee and Medical Attendant.	J. Clarke, Esq., Surgeon, R. N.	Mark Daly, Esq., M.D.
The Ballymahon Dispensary, established in or about the year 1813.	Edgworthstown Dispensary, established in the year 1818, for the relief of the poor in fever and other diseases.	Granard Dispensary, established in the year 1816; Ballymachugh Dispensary, established the same year.
Five parishes in the county of Longford, and part of two parishes in the county Westmeath, in the neighbourhood of Ballymahon.	Two parishes, in same county.	As nearly as can be calculated, three or four parishes to each dispensary.
There is one dispensary, the Kenagh Dispensary, in this county, within ten miles of us.	Ballymahon Dispensary, distant 10 miles; Granard, six miles; Street Dispensary, six miles; Balnalack, six miles; the two latter in county Westmeath; and Longford Infirmary, six miles and a half distant, with Dispensary: two days in each week.	None, except Street and Edgworthstown.
There is no dispensary attached to any hospital or infirmary within our district.	There are none.	No.
Our surgeon only attends the Ballymahon Dispensary, for which he receives a salary of 70 l. per annum, three days in the week, besides visiting out-patients.	I attend but the Edgworthstown Dispensary.	Two; the Granard Dispensary, in the town of Granard, and the Ballymachugh, in the county Cavan, eight miles distant. Granard Dispensary, at a salary of 46 l. 3 s. 1 d. per annum; Ballymachugh, 36 l. 18 s. 5½ d. per annum; attendance two days in the week for each.
Certainly.	I do consider it my duty to give personal attendance in all cases that require it.	Yes.
There is a register kept of all applications for aid: diseases entered, the medicines administered, and the patients visited at their residence.	There has been a register kept of the cases visited, which has been productive of the greatest advantage to the patients.	Yes.
There have been 4,654 patients relieved within the last three years, consisting generally of diseases, of fever, dysentery, diseases of the stomach, dropsy, &c. &c.	Relieved within the last three years, 5,088 patients; inflammation of the lungs, fevers, bowel complaints, fractures, diseases of the skin, measles, agues, and dropsies, were the most frequent diseases met with.	<table><tr><td colspan="4"></td><td>Patients recommended.</td></tr><tr><td>1830</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>1,801</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>1,724</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>1,613</td></tr><tr><td colspan="4"></td><td>5,138</td></tr></table>					Patients recommended.	1830	-	-	-	1,801	1831	-	-	-	1,724	1832	-	-	-	1,613					5,138
				Patients recommended.
1830	-	-	-	1,801
1831	-	-	-	1,724
1832	-	-	-	1,613
				5,138
Not to our knowledge.	In very few instances.	It sometimes does, but the recommendations come from the bailiffs and under agents of non-resident landlords.
Out of the funds; from Messrs. Leslie & Co., Bride-street, Dublin.	I supply the medicines.	Purchased from a Dublin druggist, out of the funds of the dispensary.
Receipts for year ending at Spring Assizes : 1831 - - £. 114 14 3½ 1832 - - 101 4 0 1833 - - 103 3 0 GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. Surgeon's Salary, Medicines, &c., Fuel, Repairs of Dispensary.	<table><tr><td colspan="4"></td><td>Private Subscription and Presentment.</td></tr><tr><td>1830</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>£. 72 10 0</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>74 12 0</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>74 12 0</td></tr><tr><td colspan="4">In all -</td><td>£. 231 14 0</td></tr></table> I pay porter's wages, find fire, necessaries, &c., and get the whole sum subscribed and presented. The medicines, &c. may amount to 32l., and the attendance to 40l., which make up the whole sum of 72l., the annual sum.					Private Subscription and Presentment.	1830	-	-	-	£. 72 10 0	1831	-	-	-	74 12 0	1832	-	-	-	74 12 0	In all -				£. 231 14 0	<table><tr><td colspan="4"></td><td colspan="2">RECEIPT.</td></tr><tr><td colspan="4"></td><td>Subscription.</td><td>Presentment.</td></tr><tr><td>1830</td><td>-</td><td>£. 83</td><td>9 0</td><td></td><td>£. 50 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>-</td><td>70</td><td>9 0</td><td></td><td>50 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>-</td><td>84</td><td>14 0</td><td></td><td>50 0 0</td></tr><tr><td colspan="4"></td><td colspan="2">EXPENDITURE.</td></tr><tr><td>1830</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>£. 117</td><td>12 1½</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>111</td><td>3 8</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>123</td><td>13 4½</td></tr><tr><td colspan="4"></td><td colspan="2">GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. Salary, Medicine, House-rent.</td></tr></table>					RECEIPT.						Subscription.	Presentment.	1830	-	£. 83	9 0		£. 50 0 0	1831	-	70	9 0		50 0 0	1832	-	84	14 0		50 0 0					EXPENDITURE.		1830	-	-	-	£. 117	12 1½	1831	-	-	-	111	3 8	1832	-	-	-	123	13 4½					GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. Salary, Medicine, House-rent.
				Private Subscription and Presentment.
1830	-	-	-	£. 72 10 0
1831	-	-	-	74 12 0
1832	-	-	-	74 12 0
In all -				£. 231 14 0
				RECEIPT.
				Subscription.	Presentment.
1830	-	£. 83	9 0		£. 50 0 0
1831	-	70	9 0		50 0 0
1832	-	84	14 0		50 0 0
				EXPENDITURE.
1830	-	-	-	£. 117	12 1½
1831	-	-	-	111	3 8
1832	-	-	-	123	13 4½
				GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. Salary, Medicine, House-rent.
It is supported by private subscriptions, and presentments from the county of Longford only, and fines.	By private subscription, and presentments from one county.	By voluntary subscriptions, and county grants from the counties of Longford and Cavan.
We cannot suggest any alteration in the application of the funds, as the greatest economy is observed.	The funds are barely sufficient for the purposes they have been applied to. The institution is badly supported; private subscription this year is 27 l. , and the grand jury would only present 25 l. , owing to political causes.	The funds are too inadequate to render it more extensively useful.

LEINSTER--LOUTH.

Ardee Dispensary.	Ballymascanlan Dispensary.	Carlingford Dispensary.
Alexander Munthetrick, Esq., M.D.	J. Walker, Esq., Surgeon.	The Chairman and Medical Attendant.
Ardee Dispensary, established in 1814.	Ballymascanlan, established 20 January 1829.	Carlingford Dispensary, established 1813.
The Union of Ardee, containing five parishes; the Union of Charlestown, five parishes; Clonkeen, and in part Louth, Killencoole and Darver.	There is but one parish.	One, Carlingford.
Dundalk and Drogheda County Infirmaries and Dispensaries; Collon, Dunleer, Castle Bellingham, Louth, Carrickmacross, Drumcondra, Kingscourt, Slane.	Dundalk, Carlingford, Meigh, Newry, Forkhill.	One dispensary, Ballymascanlan.
There is a dispensary in the parish of Louth, into which I am occasionally called. I do not know the emoluments of the medical attendant.	There is none.	None.
I attend Ardee only; the salary paid fluctuates according to the subscriptions, the medical attendant receiving two-thirds of the gross receipts.	There is but one dispensary in this district, which I have attended three days in each week, and for such have received on an average about 20 l. per year.	Only one.
Yes, in every case recommended by a subscriber, and in casualties without any recommendation whatever.	I do not.	Yes.
An accurate register is kept of all persons recommended, their residence, disease, and by whom recommended. From the irregularity of those attending, it would be very difficult to know the result in each case.	There is.	There is.
In 1831, 1,889, of whom 307 were attended at their own houses, 181 children vaccinated: 1832, 3,005, 537 visited, 139 vaccinated: 1833, 2,869, 576 visited, 121 vaccinated. These embrace all diseases, medical and surgical.	The number of persons relieved, from the 18th June 1831 to the 21st June 1833, is 3,569.	1,483 have been relieved. Most common diseases, fever, complaints of the stomach and bowels.
A few such do sometimes occur.	It does.	No.
By the physician, from the salary paid him.	I order the necessary medicines, and the accounts are discharged by the committee.	By the funds of the dispensary.
<table> <tr> <th></th><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr> <tr> <td>1831 -</td><td>£. 234 16 5½</td><td>£. 170 15 6½</td></tr> <tr> <td>1832 -</td><td>236 8 4½</td><td>305 11 9</td></tr> <tr> <td>1833 -</td><td>224 8 4¾</td><td>166 9 0</td></tr> </table>		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831 -	£. 234 16 5½	£. 170 15 6½	1832 -	236 8 4½	305 11 9	1833 -	224 8 4¾	166 9 0	The amount of its expenditure, from February 1832 to this date, is 46 l. 8 s. 2 d.	<table> <tr> <th></th><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr> <tr> <td>1830 -</td><td>£. 90 3 4½</td><td>£. 90 3 4½</td></tr> <tr> <td>1831 -</td><td>89 10 2½</td><td>90 12 9½</td></tr> <tr> <td>1832 -</td><td>90 16 0½</td><td>85 18 8</td></tr> </table>		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1830 -	£. 90 3 4½	£. 90 3 4½	1831 -	89 10 2½	90 12 9½	1832 -	90 16 0½	85 18 8
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831 -	£. 234 16 5½	£. 170 15 6½
1832 -	236 8 4½	305 11 9
1833 -	224 8 4¾	166 9 0
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1830 -	£. 90 3 4½	£. 90 3 4½
1831 -	89 10 2½	90 12 9½
1832 -	90 16 0½	85 18 8
By private subscriptions, and presentments from the county of Louth only.	It is supported equally by subscription and presentment from the county Louth.	Half by subscription, and half by presentment from county Louth.
A surplus fund exists to meet any exigency, as the occurrence of epidemic disease, whitewashing the dwellings of the sick, distributing of various comforts, repairs of the dispensary, &c. I am unable to point out any improvement in the distribution of its funds.	I cannot.	Not any, except the erection of a fever hospital, which the present state of the funds will not admit.

LEINSTER—LOUTH.

Castlebellingham Dispensary.	Collon Dispensary.	Dunleer Dispensary.
John Gimble, Esq. M.D.	Richard L. Pincking, Esq. M.D.	John Ball, Esq. Medical Attendant.
Castlebellingham Dispensary, established 1819, for the purpose of affording medical and surgical assistance to such as are unable to pay for same.	The Collon Dispensary.	Dunleer Dispensary, established in the year 1817, to which I have ever since been superintendent.
The greatest part of six parishes, all in the same county.	One parish, part of which is in the county Louth, and the other in the county Meath.	The parishes in my district are all in the county of Louth; namely, Dunleer, Cappog, Moyleary, Drumcar, Moptown, Dromin, Clanmore, Philips-town, &c.
Louth Hospital, six miles; Drogheda Hospital, ten miles; Dunleer Dispensary, four miles; Ardee ditto, six miles; Louth ditto, six miles; Turfuhin, ditto, nine miles.	Drogheda, six miles; Slane, five miles; Drumcondra, eight miles; Ardee, five miles; Castlebellingham, nine miles; Dunleer, five miles; Termonfeckan, eight miles.	Castlebellingham, four miles; Collon, five miles; Ardee, five miles; Termonfeckan, six; and Drogheda, seven miles.
There is neither hospital nor dispensary within my district, except that of which I am superintendent.	None.	There is no dispensary attached to any hospital within my district at a less distance than seven miles. I know nothing of the emoluments derived therefrom by the medical attendants.
I attend one dispensary only; the days of attendance are Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, from 9 to 12 o'clock. My salary is 80 l. No extra payment for out attendances.	I do not attend more than one.	I attend no hospital or dispensary but this; the salary paid me is 70 l. per annum, with an allowance of fifteen guineas a year for house-rent; and although the attendance is nominally three days in the week, I reside upon the spot, and render assistance when required.
I keep an assistant, who is a member of the London College of Surgeons; he prescribes for and attends the patients generally; but in every case where he thinks necessary I give my personal attendance.	Most certainly I do.	Certainly I do, and always have.
A registry of the cases, mode of treatment, and quantity of medicines used, is most regularly kept.	There is.	A regular registry has been for the most part kept of the names, place of abode, nature of complaint, event, &c. for the last sixteen years.
4,500 persons have been relieved during the last three years; fever, pneumonia, pleurisy, bronchitis, dysentery, diarrhoea, dyspepsia, measles, scarletina, fractures, dislocations, chronic skin diseases, with many other slight surgical cases, as also some troublesome midwifery cases, are the chief diseases which I am called on to attend.	In 1831, 302; in 1832, the surgeon of the dispensary was changed, and no registry was kept; in 1833, 577. Generally, typhus and inflammatory fever, with dysentery, ophthalmia, accidents, and diseases of women and children.	The number of persons relieved for the last three years amounts to about 5,000. The diseases treated are such as fall under the observation of the physician and surgeon generally.
It sometimes happens that persons are recommended who have the means of paying for advice, &c.	Very seldom.	Very frequently; to avoid which, a N.B. has been lately annexed to each form of recommendation.
By the committee of the dispensary.	There is so much allowed for medicine, which is supplied by the medical superintendent.	The medicines for the dispensary are supplied by the treasurer.
£. s. d. The amount of subscription yearly } 70 0 0 has been - - - - - } And the county grant - - - - - 70 0 0 £. 140 0 0 The expenditure has been equivalent to the receipt.	<table> <tr> <th colspan="2">Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr> <tr> <th>Subscription.</th><th>Presentmt.</th><th></th></tr> <tr> <td>1831 £. 50 8 0</td><td>50 8 0</td><td>83 0 0</td></tr> <tr> <td>1832 - 51 9 0</td><td>51 9 0</td><td>80 10 0</td></tr> <tr> <td>1833 - 51 9 0</td><td>51 9 0</td><td>93 18 10</td></tr> <tr> <th colspan="3">GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.</th></tr> <tr> <th>1831.</th><th>1832.</th><th>1833.</th></tr> <tr> <td>Salary and Medicine } £. 80 0 0</td><td>80 0 0</td><td>80 0 0</td></tr> <tr> <td>Repairs of } 3 0 0</td><td>- -</td><td>7 19 5</td></tr> <tr> <td>Dispensary } - - -</td><td>0 10 0</td><td>5 19 5</td></tr> <tr> <td>Contingencies - - -</td><td></td><td></td></tr> </table>	Receipt.		Expenditure.	Subscription.	Presentmt.		1831 £. 50 8 0	50 8 0	83 0 0	1832 - 51 9 0	51 9 0	80 10 0	1833 - 51 9 0	51 9 0	93 18 10	GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.			1831.	1832.	1833.	Salary and Medicine } £. 80 0 0	80 0 0	80 0 0	Repairs of } 3 0 0	- -	7 19 5	Dispensary } - - -	0 10 0	5 19 5	Contingencies - - -			<table> <tr> <th colspan="2">Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr> <tr> <th>Subscription.</th><th>Presentmt.</th><th></th></tr> <tr> <td>1830 £. 53 1 3</td><td>53 1 3</td><td>108 4 7</td></tr> <tr> <td>1831 - 59 8 4</td><td>59 8 4</td><td>178 11 9</td></tr> <tr> <td>1832 - 59 2 4</td><td>59 2 4</td><td>162 4 11</td></tr> <tr> <th colspan="3">GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.</th></tr> <tr> <th>1830.</th><th>1831.</th><th>1832.</th></tr> <tr> <td>Salary £. 80 0 0</td><td>80 0 0</td><td>80 0 0</td></tr> <tr> <td>Medicine - - -</td><td>61 14 3</td><td>63 1 3</td></tr> <tr> <td>Rent - 23 12 6</td><td>31 10 0</td><td>15 15 0</td></tr> <tr> <td>Contingencies 4 12 1</td><td>5 7 6</td><td>3 8 8</td></tr> </table>	Receipt.		Expenditure.	Subscription.	Presentmt.		1830 £. 53 1 3	53 1 3	108 4 7	1831 - 59 8 4	59 8 4	178 11 9	1832 - 59 2 4	59 2 4	162 4 11	GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.			1830.	1831.	1832.	Salary £. 80 0 0	80 0 0	80 0 0	Medicine - - -	61 14 3	63 1 3	Rent - 23 12 6	31 10 0	15 15 0	Contingencies 4 12 1	5 7 6	3 8 8
Receipt.		Expenditure.
Subscription.	Presentmt.
1831 £. 50 8 0	50 8 0	83 0 0
1832 - 51 9 0	51 9 0	80 10 0
1833 - 51 9 0	51 9 0	93 18 10
GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.
1831.	1832.	1833.
Salary and Medicine } £. 80 0 0	80 0 0	80 0 0
Repairs of } 3 0 0	- -	7 19 5
Dispensary } - - -	0 10 0	5 19 5
Contingencies - - -
Receipt.		Expenditure.
Subscription.	Presentmt.
1830 £. 53 1 3	53 1 3	108 4 7
1831 - 59 8 4	59 8 4	178 11 9
1832 - 59 2 4	59 2 4	162 4 11
GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.
1830.	1831.	1832.
Salary £. 80 0 0	80 0 0	80 0 0
Medicine - - -	61 14 3	63 1 3
Rent - 23 12 6	31 10 0	15 15 0
Contingencies 4 12 1	5 7 6	3 8 8
Supported by subscription and presentment from this county only.	By subscription, with presentment.	By annual subscriptions, and a grant from grand jury equal in amount to subscriptions, and from county of Louth alone.
The strictest economy is had recourse to in the management of our affairs. If a dispensary house was found which would admit of a ward or two for the reception of sick persons, it would be a great convenience.	I cannot.

LEINSTER—LOUTH and MEATH.

Louth Dispensary.	Termonfeckan Dispensary.	Agher Dispensary.
Committee and Medical Attendant.	Thomas Gernon, Esq. M.D.	Committee and Medical Attendant.
Louth Parochial Dispensary, instituted 1st July 1825.	Termonfeckan Dispensary; only one, established in February 1831, for giving medicine and attendance to the poor gratuitously.	Agher Dispensary, for the relief of the poor, established in 1812, and Summer Hill Dispensary, established in 1817.
One, parish of Louth, in this county, containing nearly 20,000 English acres.	Two parishes in the same county.	Agher, Rathmolion, Kill, Jordanstown, and Rathcore.
The County Infirmary in Dundalk to the east; Castlebellingham Dispensary, south east; Ardee Dispensary, south.	Drogheda Infirmary and Dispensary; Collon Dispensary; Dunleer Dispensary.	Summer Hill, about five miles off; Trim, five miles off; Radinstown, seven miles off.
In my district there is no other dispensary.	No.	There is no other hospital or dispensary in the district.
Days of attendance at this dispensary, Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday; hours for patients to assemble from ten to twelve o'clock; attendance continued till all are served.	Only one dispensary; no infirmary or hospital. I am paid 52 l. 10 s. annually, and attend the dispensary two days weekly, and visit the sick who are unable to attend dispensary.	One, five miles off, at Summer Hill; attendance one day in the week, and daily when called on; salary, 53 l. per annum. Agher, one day in the week, and when called on; salary, 40 l. per annum.
I do in all cases when applied to by a subscriber to visit patients, and also whenever there appears necessity for my attendance.	I do consider it my duty to do so.	I consider it my duty to attend all cases of the poor when called on, and always do attend them personally when they are unable to attend the dispensary.
A registry is kept of all patients recommended to this institution, and examined by the trustees every year before a new subscription is made, and a new appeal to the county for further assistance. A report is also taken from the registry and examined by the committee previous to its being laid before the grand jury.	There is a registry kept.	A registry is kept of the number of applicants and complaints, but not of the results.
Total number of persons relieved at this institution for the last three years, 3,094; total visited at their own houses, 506; number of visits, 947.	The number relieved was 2,632, and the diseases generally are febrile and inflammatory, pectoral and bowel disorders.	Number of applicants at Agher Dispensary, from 1st July 1830 up to 1st July 1833, 3,120. The complaints were, fevers, inflammations, colds, catarrhs, affection of eyes, chest and bowels; rheumatism, accidents, midwifery, dropsy and liver complaints.
Very few; about eight in the year.	It does occasionally occur.	I believe some do.
By medical officer at wholesale prices, which are laid before the committee at their annual meeting.	By the committee of the dispensary.	Medicines are supplied by an order on the druggists in Dublin, Messrs. Hoyte & Flood, Sackville-street.
RECEIPT. <table><tr><th></th><th>1831.</th><th>1832.</th><th>1833.</th><th>Total.</th></tr><tr><td>Subscriptions -</td><td>40 7 11</td><td>41 2 0</td><td>46 7 0</td><td>127 16 11</td></tr><tr><td>Presentments -</td><td>40 7 11</td><td>41 2 0</td><td>46 7 0</td><td>127 16 11</td></tr><tr><td></td><td></td><td></td><td></td><td>255 13 10</td></tr></table> EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><th></th><th>1831.</th><th>1832.</th><th>1833.</th><th>Total.</th></tr><tr><td>Medicine, Leeches, Trusses, Calico, &c. }</td><td>£. 16 6 0</td><td>15 6 0</td><td>19 0 6</td><td>50 12 6</td></tr><tr><td>To Medical Officer -</td><td>65 14 0</td><td>66 14 0</td><td>60 19 6</td><td>193 7 6</td></tr><tr><td></td><td></td><td></td><td></td><td>244 0 0</td></tr></table>		1831.	1832.	1833.	Total.	Subscriptions -	40 7 11	41 2 0	46 7 0	127 16 11	Presentments -	40 7 11	41 2 0	46 7 0	127 16 11					255 13 10		1831.	1832.	1833.	Total.	Medicine, Leeches, Trusses, Calico, &c. }	£. 16 6 0	15 6 0	19 0 6	50 12 6	To Medical Officer -	65 14 0	66 14 0	60 19 6	193 7 6					244 0 0	The dispensary was established 1831, at which time there was 158l. subscribed; a similar sum was got by presentment annually; since, there have been 20l. subscribed; and the same presented. The annual expenses have been 65l.	RECEIPT: <table><tr><th></th><th>Subscription.</th><th>Presentm^t.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>1830 -</td><td>£. 30 4 0</td><td>30 4 0</td><td>61 12 11</td></tr><tr><td>1831 -</td><td>30 4 0</td><td>30 4 0</td><td>61 4 4</td></tr><tr><td>1832 -</td><td>33 2 0</td><td>33 2 0</td><td>61 7 0½</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><th></th><th>1830.</th><th>1831.</th><th>1832.</th></tr><tr><td>Salary</td><td>£. 40 0 0</td><td>40 0 0</td><td>40 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine -</td><td>19 7 11</td><td>18 19 1</td><td>19 1 9½</td></tr><tr><td>Rent, &c.</td><td>2 5 0</td><td>2 5 3</td><td>2 5 3</td></tr></table>		Subscription.	Presentm ^t .	Expenditure.	1830 -	£. 30 4 0	30 4 0	61 12 11	1831 -	30 4 0	30 4 0	61 4 4	1832 -	33 2 0	33 2 0	61 7 0½		1830.	1831.	1832.	Salary	£. 40 0 0	40 0 0	40 0 0	Medicine -	19 7 11	18 19 1	19 1 9½	Rent, &c.	2 5 0	2 5 3	2 5 3
	1831.	1832.	1833.	Total.
Subscriptions -	40 7 11	41 2 0	46 7 0	127 16 11
Presentments -	40 7 11	41 2 0	46 7 0	127 16 11
				255 13 10
	1831.	1832.	1833.	Total.
Medicine, Leeches, Trusses, Calico, &c. }	£. 16 6 0	15 6 0	19 0 6	50 12 6
To Medical Officer -	65 14 0	66 14 0	60 19 6	193 7 6
				244 0 0
	Subscription.	Presentm ^t .	Expenditure.
1830 -	£. 30 4 0	30 4 0	61 12 11
1831 -	30 4 0	30 4 0	61 4 4
1832 -	33 2 0	33 2 0	61 7 0½
	1830.	1831.	1832.
Salary	£. 40 0 0	40 0 0	40 0 0
Medicine -	19 7 11	18 19 1	19 1 9½
Rent, &c.	2 5 0	2 5 3	2 5 3
By private subscriptions and presentments from this county.	By presentments obtained from one county, and by private subscriptions.	By presentment, and private subscriptions from the county Meath, and no other.
I cannot conceive any alteration in funds so limited which could be productive of any advantage to the poor.	I cannot suggest any alteration in the distribution of the funds by which the wants of the poor would be more efficiently relieved.	I think the funds of the dispensary could not be better applied than in administering to the medical and surgical wants of the poor of a large district. The only observation I can venture to make is on the difficulty of procuring private subscriptions sufficient to answer the purpose.

LEINSTER—MEATH.

Athboy Dispensary.	Belliver Dispensary.	Clonard Dispensary.
James Adams, Esq. M.D.	James Adams, Esq. M. D.	The Treasurer.
The Athboy and Belliver dispensaries, established in 1819, for the sick poor, who are recommended to them by subscribers.	Balliver Dispensary, established in 1819, for the sick poor who are recommended by subscribers.	I am secretary and treasurer to the Clonard dispensary, and also to the Kinnegad dispensary.
Six parishes, all in Meath.	Six parishes, all in county Meath.	Clonard, Killyon, Ballyboggan and Castlejordan; the medical attendant also supplies medicine, and attends patients in the parish of Carbery and county Kildare, a few subscribers residing in that county.
Trim, Navan, Kells, Crosakeel, in Meath, Clonard, Killiscan, Castletowndelvin and Clonmellon, in West Meath.	Trim, Navan, Kells, Crosakeel, in Meath, Clonard, Killiscan, Castletowndelvin and Clonmellon, in Westmeath.	One at Killiscan, in Westmeath; one at Balliver, in Meath; and I believe one at Johnstown, in Kildare.
There is not.	There is not.	No hospital or infirmary in this district. Salary for Clonard 60 guineas; for Kinnegad 10 guineas a year; occasionally, when funds admitted, or medical attendance was particularly laborious, a gratuity of 10 l. or even 25 l. was added in Kinnegad. No gratuity was given last year.
I attend two, Athboy and Balliver; the former is the eighth of a mile from my residence, and the latter is six miles. From the Athboy dispensary I receive 60 l. Irish per annum, and from Balliver dispensary 30 l. I attend two days in the week at Athboy, and one at Balliver.	I attend two, Athboy and Balliver; the former is the eighth of a mile from my residence, and the latter is six miles. I receive from the Athboy Dispensary 60 l. Irish per annum, and from Balliver 30 l. I attend two days in the week at Athboy, and one at Balliver.	The medical attendant is obliged to attend at Clonard two days each week.
Whenever subscribers recommend patients who are not able to attend at the dispensaries, I consider it my duty to attend them at their own houses.	Whenever subscribers recommend persons not able to attend, I consider it my duty to attend at their own houses.	The medical attendant is obliged to do so whenever required by a subscriber.
A register is kept of the name, age, residence and disease of each patient, with the medicines prescribed during the attendance.	A register is kept of the name, age, residence and disease of each patient, with the medicine prescribed during the attendance.	In consequence of our having changed our medical attendant, I cannot furnish reports of the diseases for the last three years.
During the last three years, 4,373 patients have been recommended, and have received advice and medicine 16,571 times.	2,302 patients have been recommended, and have received advice and medicine 5,184 times.	Last year sickness was rather more prevalent than either of the preceding years.
Many have been recommended who were not objects of charity.	Many have been recommended who were not objects of charity.	Sometimes, but I think not often, persons not requiring gratuitous assistance are recommended by subscribers, but precautions are taken to prevent it.
From P. A. Leslie & Son, Bride-street, Dublin. Mr. Wood is the apothecary, and is paid by the Earl of Darnley for compounding at Athboy, and has 20 l. Irish per annum from the Balliver Dispensary for the same duty.	From Messrs. P. A. Leslie & Co., Dublin.	On an order from the secretary, by Mr. Barker, Druggist, Great Britain-street. By the medical attendant, on a recommendation from the subscribers.
<table><tr><th colspan="3">Receipt.</th><th colspan="3">Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>1830</td><td>-</td><td>£. 130 6 0</td><td>£. 135 2 9</td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>-</td><td>131 16 0</td><td>130 9 8</td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>-</td><td>129 10 0</td><td>132 3 10</td><td></td><td></td></tr></table>	Receipt.			Expenditure.			1830	-	£. 130 6 0	£. 135 2 9			1831	-	131 16 0	130 9 8			1832	-	129 10 0	132 3 10			<table><tr><th colspan="3">Receipt.</th><th colspan="3">Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>1830</td><td>-</td><td>£. 71 0 0</td><td>£. 70 8 11½</td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>-</td><td>75 4 0</td><td>72 18 1</td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>-</td><td>75 2 0</td><td>75 7 11</td><td></td><td></td></tr></table>	Receipt.			Expenditure.			1830	-	£. 71 0 0	£. 70 8 11½			1831	-	75 4 0	72 18 1			1832	-	75 2 0	75 7 11			<table><tr><th colspan="3">Receipts.</th><th colspan="3">Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>1830</td><td>-</td><td>£. 104 8 2</td><td>£. 100 7 9</td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>-</td><td>103 11 0</td><td>99 9 5</td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>-</td><td>107 11 0</td><td>102 0 0</td><td></td><td></td></tr></table>	Receipts.			Expenditure.			1830	-	£. 104 8 2	£. 100 7 9			1831	-	103 11 0	99 9 5			1832	-	107 11 0	102 0 0
Receipt.			Expenditure.
1830	-	£. 130 6 0	£. 135 2 9
1831	-	131 16 0	130 9 8
1832	-	129 10 0	132 3 10
Receipt.			Expenditure.
1830	-	£. 71 0 0	£. 70 8 11½
1831	-	75 4 0	72 18 1
1832	-	75 2 0	75 7 11
Receipts.			Expenditure.
1830	-	£. 104 8 2	£. 100 7 9
1831	-	103 11 0	99 9 5
1832	-	107 11 0	102 0 0
GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.	GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.	GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.
<table><tr><th colspan="3">1830.</th><th colspan="3">1831.</th><th colspan="3">1832.</th></tr><tr><th>£.</th><th>s.</th><th>d.</th><th>£.</th><th>s.</th><th>d.</th><th>£.</th><th>s.</th><th>d.</th></tr><tr><td>Salaries</td><td>-</td><td>59 1 10</td><td>59 1 10</td><td>58 10 8</td><td></td><td></td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Medicine</td><td>-</td><td>64 16 5</td><td>60 2 10</td><td>62 11 2</td><td></td><td></td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Rent</td><td>-</td><td>8 0 0</td><td>8 0 0</td><td>8 0 0</td><td></td><td></td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Contingencies</td><td>3 4 6</td><td></td><td>3 5 0</td><td>3 2 0</td><td></td><td></td><td></td><td></td></tr></table>	1830.			1831.			1832.			£.	s.	d.	£.	s.	d.	£.	s.	d.	Salaries	-	59 1 10	59 1 10	58 10 8					Medicine	-	64 16 5	60 2 10	62 11 2					Rent	-	8 0 0	8 0 0	8 0 0					Contingencies	3 4 6		3 5 0	3 2 0					<table><tr><th colspan="3">1830.</th><th colspan="3">1831.</th><th colspan="3">1832.</th></tr><tr><th>£.</th><th>s.</th><th>d.</th><th>£.</th><th>s.</th><th>d.</th><th>£.</th><th>s.</th><th>d.</th></tr><tr><td>Salaries</td><td>-</td><td>46 3 4</td><td>46 3 2</td><td>46 3 2</td><td></td><td></td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Medicine</td><td>-</td><td>16 11 1½</td><td>18 13 4</td><td>21 11 9</td><td></td><td></td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Rent</td><td>-</td><td>6 6 0</td><td>6 6 0</td><td>6 6 0</td><td></td><td></td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Contingencies</td><td>1 8 6</td><td></td><td>1 15 7</td><td>1 7 0</td><td></td><td></td><td></td><td></td></tr></table>	1830.			1831.			1832.			£.	s.	d.	£.	s.	d.	£.	s.	d.	Salaries	-	46 3 4	46 3 2	46 3 2					Medicine	-	16 11 1½	18 13 4	21 11 9					Rent	-	6 6 0	6 6 0	6 6 0					Contingencies	1 8 6		1 15 7	1 7 0					<table><tr><th colspan="3">1830.</th><th colspan="3">1831.</th><th colspan="3">1832.</th></tr><tr><th>£.</th><th>s.</th><th>d.</th><th>£.</th><th>s.</th><th>d.</th><th>£.</th><th>s.</th><th>d.</th></tr><tr><td>Salary</td><td>-</td><td>63 0 0</td><td>63 0 0</td><td>63 0 0</td><td></td><td></td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Medicine</td><td>-</td><td>20 7 6</td><td>21 11 9</td><td>19 1 10</td><td></td><td></td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Rent</td><td>-</td><td>12 10 0</td><td>12 10 0</td><td>12 10 0</td><td></td><td></td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Contingencies</td><td>4 10 3</td><td></td><td>2 7 8</td><td>7 8 2</td><td></td><td></td><td></td><td></td></tr></table>	1830.			1831.			1832.			£.	s.	d.	£.	s.	d.	£.	s.	d.	Salary	-	63 0 0	63 0 0	63 0 0					Medicine	-	20 7 6	21 11 9	19 1 10					Rent	-	12 10 0	12 10 0	12 10 0					Contingencies	4 10 3		2 7 8	7 8 2
1830.			1831.			1832.
£.	s.	d.	£.	s.	d.	£.	s.	d.
Salaries	-	59 1 10	59 1 10	58 10 8
Medicine	-	64 16 5	60 2 10	62 11 2
Rent	-	8 0 0	8 0 0	8 0 0
Contingencies	3 4 6		3 5 0	3 2 0
1830.			1831.			1832.
£.	s.	d.	£.	s.	d.	£.	s.	d.
Salaries	-	46 3 4	46 3 2	46 3 2
Medicine	-	16 11 1½	18 13 4	21 11 9
Rent	-	6 6 0	6 6 0	6 6 0
Contingencies	1 8 6		1 15 7	1 7 0
1830.			1831.			1832.
£.	s.	d.	£.	s.	d.	£.	s.	d.
Salary	-	63 0 0	63 0 0	63 0 0
Medicine	-	20 7 6	21 11 9	19 1 10
Rent	-	12 10 0	12 10 0	12 10 0
Contingencies	4 10 3		2 7 8	7 8 2
By private subscriptions and county presentments.	By private subscriptions and county presentments.	By voluntary contributions and presentments. The Clonard by presentment in Meath.
I cannot. Dispensaries should have the power of giving nourishment to the aged and infirm poor, which they more frequently require than medicine.	I cannot. Dispensaries should have the power of giving nourishment to the aged infirm poor, which they frequently require more than medicine.	No. The district is very large and remarkably poor, and no infirmary near; it would be exceedingly desirable if we had funds to hire a house or kept to put occasionally poor patients or bad accidents into. Both the Meath and Westmeath Infirmaries are at a great distance from this, and there are no subscribers to either resident in the district. Our present medical attendant is an excellent physician, and a kind man to the poor, but his duty is very heavy indeed.

LEINSTER—MEATH.

Crossakeel Dispensary.	Duleek and Black Lion Dispensaries.	Dunboyne Dispensary.
Henry Davidge, Esq. M. D.	Edward Fogarty, Esq. M. D.	James Goodshaw, Esq. M. D.
Crossakeel Dispensary, established 20 years, for the distribution of medicine and medical aid to the poor.	The Duleek and Black Lion Dispensaries; of three years' existence since my appointment; but existed under a different name under a former medical man for 9 or 10 years previous to it.	Dunboyne Dispensary, established in March 1817.
Killagh, part of Killallon, and part of Loughcrew, said county.	It is not easy to define this, as I am obliged to attend to subscribers' notes, wherever they may come from; but the parishes are all in Meath.	Three; Dunboyne, Kilbride and Ballynaclasson, all in the same county.
Kells, Oldcastle, Clonmellon and Athboy, and Castletowndelyin.	Navan Hospital, 10 miles; Drogheda Hospital (for that town and county exclusively), four miles; Garristown Dispensary, six miles; Julianstown Dispensary, five miles; Slane Dispensary, six miles.	Summer Hill and Ratoath, county Meath; Castleknock, Chapelizod, Clondalkin, Newcastle and Lucan, in county Dublin; Maynooth and Celbridge, in Kildare, and the public hospitals and institutions in Dublin.
No dispensary or hospital within the district.	There is no such hospital or infirmary within the district, or no other medical establishment for the poor, except my own one.	No, there is no other medical institution connected with the Dunboyne Dispensary.
I attend Clonmellon, county of Westmeath, where I reside, three miles from Crossakeel; attendance Mondays and Thursdays at Crossakeel, and when called on by a subscriber. Salary 40 l. per annum.	—	I do not.
I do consider it my duty to attend at all times when called on.	I do so, except in cholera cases, provided the applicants comply with the bye-laws.	Only in such cases as are considered to be fit objects for dispensary relief.
None.	Such registers are kept.	A registry is kept of all cases attended to at the institution, the patient's name, by whom recommended, the disease and the treatment.
At least 2,000 patients are relieved annually. Fevers, small-pox, rheumatism, asthma, dysentery, diarrhoea.	1832:—3,508 - - - 1833:—2,849.	The number of single applications average from 1,800 to 2,000. The diseases generally treated are chronic affections of the stomach and bowels, colds, inflammations of the lungs and throat, and the epidemics of the season, accidents, &c.
It seldom happens that they do participate in the attendance, unless from accident or other sudden illness.	Such impositions are frequently practised on the charity, but not whenever I can detect them.	Not frequently; such circumstances may occur, but they are not sanctioned by the dispensary committee.
By the committee, from Messrs. Stanley & Co., Dublin.	Compounded and supplied by myself.	Supplied by a respectable Dublin druggist, and compounded and dispensed by a resident medical person.
The average amount, by private and county presentment, annually 70 l. for the last three years; expended by medicine, house-rent, carriage and salary.	The expenditure is all included in my salary and the house-rent, which, with some trifling incidental expenses, amount to something under 150 l. per annum for the two dispensaries. The receipts have for the last three years exceeded the expenditure each year by a few pounds, which is handed over to the new treasurer at the end of every year to commence with.	Receipts, between subscription and presentment, for the last three years, amount to 120 l. annually. EXPENDITURE. To Physician - - - - - £. 65 House-rent - - - - - 12 Medicine and other Contingencies - 50
Supported by private subscription, and county presentment equal to the sum subscribed.	Partly by voluntary subscriptions, and partly by presentments, all obtained in Meath.	—
I am not prepared to say any alteration in the present institutions that would tend to benefit the poor, finding the great good done by medical aid; and when that cannot be obtained, there is much illness.	Not any. But if there were funds sufficient to establish a fever hospital in Duleek (with a detached surgical ward) for the use of the district, it would render the establishment a far more effective one.	I cannot. I think it but right to observe here, that the gentry of the neighbourhood have annually subscribed to a small fund (independent of their dispensary subscriptions), which has been called the "Sick Poor Fund," and which they have empowered me to dispose of in the most necessitous cases. A great deal of good has been done from time to time with this little charity.

LEINSTER—MEATH.

Julianstown & Bellewstown Dispensaries.	Kells Dispensary.	Kilmainham Wood Dispensary.
J. Lynch, Esq. Surgeon.	B. M'Dermott, Esq. M.D.	Committee and Medical Attendant.
Julianstown and Bellewstown Dispensaries.	Kells Dispensary, established in 1815.	Kilmainham Wood Dispensary, established 1st July 1826.
The parishes of Julianstown, Moore Church, Colp, and part of the parish of Duleek, all in the county of Meath.	The district is not limited or confined to particular parishes or counties.	Subscribers from four parishes in the county of Meath.
There is an hospital in Drogheda, and a dispensary attached to it. There is a dispensary in Duleek, and one in the Black Lion, and one in Stamullin, all in the county of Meath. There is one in Balbriggan, in the county of Dublin, attached to Stamullin, in the county of Meath.	One fever hospital in Kells, a county infirmary at Navan (about 10 miles), a dispensary at Athboy, at Clonmellon, at Crossakeel, at Mullagh and Moynalty.	Kells, nine miles; Drumcondra, eight miles; Moynalty, six miles; Kingscourt, in the county of Cavan, three miles.
There is no hospital or infirmary within our district. As to salaries, I do not know what is attached to each dispensary.	There is no dispensary attached to any hospital or infirmary within ten miles.	Not any.
I attend two, Julianstown on Thursdays, and Bellewstown on Mondays. The salary settled by the committee is 60 l. for both; the surplus pays for medicines and the rent of the two dispensaries. Julianstown is about three miles, and Bellewstown about four miles distance from my residence.	I only attend one dispensary.	I attend only the Kilmainham Wood Dispensary, two days each week. Amount of salary between 40 l. and 50 l. yearly. Three miles from my residence.
I do attend all cases where a visiting ticket is produced.	There are dispensary regulations requiring recommendations; but I never refuse my attendance to the poor.	By the rules of the dispensary, I am obliged to attend the poor at their respective houses, when recommended by a subscriber.
I keep a registry of all recommendants and recommended; also of the diseases, and all who die, which is submitted to the annual general meeting.	I keep a registry of the patients attended; but, owing to their various and remote residences, I cannot keep a registry of the results.	There is a registry of all patients recommended to the dispensary.
<table><thead><tr><th></th><th>Recommended.</th><th>Deaths.</th></tr></thead><tbody><tr><td>1831</td><td>800</td><td>7</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>813</td><td>9</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>807</td><td>10</td></tr></tbody></table> Fevers, coughs, small-pox, measles, cholera, &c. were the diseases which sometimes prevailed here.		Recommended.	Deaths.	1831	800	7	1832	813	9	1833	807	10	All diseases incident to a large and very populous district.	<table><thead><tr><th></th><th>Relieved at Dispensary.</th><th>Attended at their Houses.</th></tr></thead><tbody><tr><td>1831</td><td>1,248</td><td>47</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>1,579</td><td>57</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>1,233</td><td>86</td></tr></tbody></table> Fevers, catarrhæ affections, chronic diseases, accidents, &c. &c.		Relieved at Dispensary.	Attended at their Houses.	1831	1,248	47	1832	1,579	57	1833	1,233	86
	Recommended.	Deaths.
1831	800	7
1832	813	9
1833	807	10
	Relieved at Dispensary.	Attended at their Houses.
1831	1,248	47
1832	1,579	57
1833	1,233	86
Very often subscribers recommend people who are very well able to pay for medicines; but their tickets must be attended to.	Very rarely, as by the regulations poor only have a right to attendance.	Not one.
The medicines are supplied by Messrs. Boileau & George, 88, Bride-street, Dublin.	By druggists in Dublin, Messrs. Boileau & George.	When medicine is required, an order from the treasurer is sent to Messrs. Boileau & George, Bride-street.
<table><thead><tr><th></th><th>£.</th></tr></thead><tbody><tr><td>1831</td><td>88</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>126</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>100</td></tr></tbody></table> I above mentioned, that the committee settled my salary at 60 l. a year; there is a balance of 6 l. in the treasurer's hands, for which he must lay in medicine immediately.		£.	1831	88	1832	126	1833	100	<table><thead><tr><th></th><th>Receipts.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr></thead><tbody><tr><td>1830</td><td>£. 89 0 0</td><td>£. 85 5 1</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>89 0 0</td><td>92 14 11</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>34 2 0</td><td>31 16 7½</td></tr></tbody></table>		Receipts.	Expenditure.	1830	£. 89 0 0	£. 85 5 1	1831	89 0 0	92 14 11	1832	34 2 0	31 16 7½	Annual private subscription, average about 130 l. ; the same amount from county presentment.
	£.
1831	88
1832	126
1833	100
	Receipts.	Expenditure.
1830	£. 89 0 0	£. 85 5 1
1831	89 0 0	92 14 11
1832	34 2 0	31 16 7½
Supported by subscriptions, and a grant from the grand jury of Meath equal to the subscriptions.	By subscription and presentment from the county of Meath only.	By subscriptions from people possessing property in the neighbourhood, and county presentment of Meath.
The funds are very low, and what is in the treasurer's hands too little to purchase medicine; but if the grand jury grant was on an equal footing with the hospital grants, the poor could be advantageously assisted.	I cannot, without increasing the funds, to which the majority of the gentry of this neighbourhood do not subscribe; but in many cases consider food more necessary than medicine.	I do not consider that the funds of the dispensary could be applied to the relief of such a number of poor to better advantage.

LEINSTER—MEATH.

Moynalty Dispensary.	Oldcastle Dispensary.	Raddinstown Dispensary.
William Dyas, Esq. Surgeon.	Robert Peebles, Esq. M.D.	J. P. Homes, Esq. M.D.
Moynalty Dispensary. There is but one, which is established for the benefit of the poor.	The Oldcastle Dispensary, established in the year 1818.	Raddinstown Dispensary, established in 1833.
Four, all in the said county of Meath.	There are seven parishes, and all are in the same county.	Five; two of those have seven parishes united, making in all ten, and situated in two counties.
There are two dispensaries and one fever hospital.	There are in the county of Cavan the dispensaries of Virginia, six miles from this; Ballyduff, six miles; and Mount Nugent, four miles. In Meath, there is one at Crossakeel, 6 miles; in West Meath, at Clonmellon and Castle Pollard, 8 miles. No hospital of any kind within ten miles.	I cannot answer this exactly.
Not one.	There is no infirmary or hospital of any description in this district or barony.	None.
But one, which is about three miles and a half from my residence. Attendance twice a week. Salary only 30 L . per annum.	I attend only one dispensary; the hours of attendance are from eleven o'clock till three, on Tuesdays and Fridays.	No.
Certainly.	Yes.	Yes.
There is; but from the remote and various places they come, it would be impossible to state the result of all.	There is a register kept of each patient's name, disease, residence, and by whom recommended.	Yes.
Number of persons, 2,048; and every description of disease was treated.	As I have not been medical attendant here for three years, I can only give an account of two years, during which period 1,344 persons have been relieved, of whom 323 were attended at their own houses. The diseases have been various; but the most common were dyspepsy, worms, coughs, rheumatism, cutaneous eruptions and inflamed eyes.	Dispensary only established one year.
Certainly not.	The subscribers seldom recommend persons able to pay for advice.	Not as far as subscribers can prevent.
By the treasurer, und supplied by Messrs. Stanley and Co., Dublin.	By Messrs. Leslie, Druggists, of Dublin, by order from the treasurer.	Druggist.
<table><tr><td></td><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>- £. 64 15 2</td><td>£. 64 18 7</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>- 63 13 5</td><td>63 13 5</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>- 62 16 11</td><td>62 16 11</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><td></td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td><td>1833.</td></tr><tr><td>Balance due</td><td>£. 6 18 7</td><td>4 17 2</td><td>3 13 5</td></tr><tr><td>Salary</td><td>- 29 10 0</td><td>30 0 0</td><td>30 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine</td><td>- 21 19 0</td><td>22 4 2</td><td>22 7 4</td></tr><tr><td>Rent</td><td>- 5 0 0</td><td>5 0 0</td><td>5 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Sundries</td><td>- 1 11 0</td><td>1 12 1</td><td>1 16 2</td></tr></table>		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831	- £. 64 15 2	£. 64 18 7	1832	- 63 13 5	63 13 5	1833	- 62 16 11	62 16 11		1831.	1832.	1833.	Balance due	£. 6 18 7	4 17 2	3 13 5	Salary	- 29 10 0	30 0 0	30 0 0	Medicine	- 21 19 0	22 4 2	22 7 4	Rent	- 5 0 0	5 0 0	5 0 0	Sundries	- 1 11 0	1 12 1	1 16 2	EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><td></td><td>£.</td><td>s.</td><td>d.</td></tr><tr><td>1830</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td></tr></table> 1830 - - - - - 118 11 0 1831 - - - - - 97 18 6½ 1832 - - - - - 106 7 6		£.	s.	d.	1830	-	-	-	1831	-	-	-	1832	-	-	-	Dispensary only established in 1833.
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831	- £. 64 15 2	£. 64 18 7
1832	- 63 13 5	63 13 5
1833	- 62 16 11	62 16 11
	1831.	1832.	1833.
Balance due	£. 6 18 7	4 17 2	3 13 5
Salary	- 29 10 0	30 0 0	30 0 0
Medicine	- 21 19 0	22 4 2	22 7 4
Rent	- 5 0 0	5 0 0	5 0 0
Sundries	- 1 11 0	1 12 1	1 16 2
	£.	s.	d.
1830	-	-	-
1831	-	-	-
1832	-	-	-
By presentment of the county, and subscription.	It is supported by subscriptions and an equal presentment, both of which are from Meath only.	By contribution and presentment from one county.
Certainly not, without an increase of fund.	No.	No.

LEINSTER—MEATH.

Ratoath Dispensary.	Slane Dispensary.	Stamullen Dispensary.
Laurence O'Reiley, Esq., M.D.	J. S. Egan, Esq., M.D.	W. S. M'Evry, Esq., Surgeon.
The Ratoath Dispensary, established 1818.	The Slane Dispensary, for supplying advice and medicine gratis to the sick poor; established 1808.	Stamullen, opened privately in 1828; as a county dispensary, latter end of 1830; Balbriggan Dispensary, county Dublin, to afford medicinal assistance and necessary surgical operations.
Seven parishes, all in the county Meath.	Four parishes, all in the same county.	Two in the county Meath, four in the county Dublin.
A dispensary at Dunboyne, five miles; and another at Duleek, eight miles distant.	The Infirmary at Navan, and Fever Hospital; the infirmary at Drogheda; and dispensaries at Duleek, Drumcondra, Collon and Ardee.	Julianstown, Duleek and its branch, Black Lion Hospital and Dispensary; Drogheda, Old Town; Balbriggan, Skerries, Rush.
There is no other dispensary or hospital.	None.	None.
I attend no other institution.	No.	Stamullen, county Meath, three miles from my residence; attendance three days; one at dispensary, two at my house, with visits at houses when unable to attend dispensary. Salary 52 l. Balbriggan, county Dublin, three days, about 90 l.
Invariably my own attendance is given.	Certainly, and at all times, day or night.	Yes, and if required by note to visit at their houses, if illness prevents their attending at dispensary.
There is such a register kept.	A register is kept of those cases that require to be visited at their own homes, which are always promptly attended to, and in general the result is favourable.	A register has been kept, advice, medicine, and necessary operations performed when necessary.
Within the last three years, 4,158 persons have been attended, during which there was no particular epidemic, except the diseases of children, and only a few cases of cholera.	Seven hundred; their complaints various, such as accidents, broken limbs, child-birth, rheumatism, fevers, influenza, &c.	<table><tr><td>From July 1830 to July 1831</td><td>-</td><td>327 persons.</td></tr><tr><td>" 1831 "</td><td>1832</td><td>- 579 "</td></tr><tr><td>" 1832 "</td><td>1833</td><td>- 479 "</td></tr><tr><td></td><td></td><td>1,385 "</td></tr></table> Balibrggan, county Dublin, total 15,183.	From July 1830 to July 1831	-	327 persons.	" 1831 "	1832	- 579 "	" 1832 "	1833	- 479 "			1,385 "
From July 1830 to July 1831	-	327 persons.
" 1831 "	1832	- 579 "
" 1832 "	1833	- 479 "
		1,385 "
There have been several such instances.	Seldom.	When such occurs, on representing the matter to the committee, they can be struck off; no doubt cases have occurred.
By the subscribers, at an average expense of 30 l. per annum.	I have an unlimited order for medicines upon Messrs. Boileau & George, of Dublin.	I order them at Messrs. Boileau & George's, Bride-street, and being approved by committee, treasurer pays it; I compound and distribute them.
The receipts are an average of 45 l. per annum of subscription, with a similar grant from the grand jury; the expenditure is an average of about 30 l. per annum for medicine, and 60 l. for medical attendance and house-rent.	The yearly income of the dispensary is about 120 l. sterling, eighty guineas the physician's salary, and the remainder to purchase medicines.	<table><tr><th colspan="2">Receipt.</th><th colspan="2">Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>- £.110 13 0</td><td>£.110</td><td>13 6</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>- 106 14 0</td><td>90</td><td>12 0</td></tr></table> <table><tr><th colspan="4">GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.</th></tr><tr><th colspan="2">1831.</th><th colspan="2">1832.</th></tr><tr><td>Salary</td><td>- - - £.55 19 8</td><td>52</td><td>0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine</td><td>- - 39 2 7</td><td>34</td><td>2 0</td></tr><tr><td>Sundries</td><td>- - 15 11 3</td><td>4</td><td>10 0</td></tr></table> A county grant was only obtained in Summer Assizes 1831, previous to which it was carried on by private expense.	Receipt.		Expenditure.		1831	- £.110 13 0	£.110	13 6	1832	- 106 14 0	90	12 0	GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.				1831.		1832.		Salary	- - - £.55 19 8	52	0 0	Medicine	- - 39 2 7	34	2 0	Sundries	- - 15 11 3	4	10 0
Receipt.		Expenditure.
1831	- £.110 13 0	£.110	13 6
1832	- 106 14 0	90	12 0
GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.
1831.		1832.
Salary	- - - £.55 19 8	52	0 0
Medicine	- - 39 2 7	34	2 0
Sundries	- - 15 11 3	4	10 0
By private subscriptions, and a similar sum presented by the grand jury.	Supported by private subscriptions, and a presentment from the grand jury.	By private subscriptions, and county grant for each dispensary from its own county.
Our funds admit of no alteration; but I am convinced that better bed-covering and wearing apparel, particularly linen, would materially benefit the condition of the poor.	I think the institution could not be better conducted.	Not of present funds; but if a fund could be established from which the poor could obtain some assistance during illness, it would be most salutary: persons who can maintain their families when in health, are very destitute during illness.

LEINSTER—MEATH and QUEEN'S COUNTY.

Summerhill Dispensary.	Trim Dispensary.	Ballybrittas Dispensary.
Committee and Medical Attendant.	Henry Clifford, Esq., M.D.	S. Davis, Esq., M.D.
Summerhill Dispensary, for the relief of the poor, established in 1817; Agher Dispensary, for the relief of the poor, established in 1812.	Trim Dispensary, established 1811.	The Ballybrittas Dispensary.
Laracor, Galtrim, Kilmore, all in the same county.	Trim parish, part of the parishes of Laracor, Castle Rickard, Moymet, Kilmisson and Galbrom, all in the same county.	It comprehends part of the parish of Lea, in Queen's County; and the entire of the parish of Courtwood, in said county.
At Trim, five miles off; at Raddinstown, nine miles off; at Agher, five miles off.	At Navan, the County Infirmary and Fever Hospital; at Summer Hill, a dispensary; same at Agher, Athboy and Balliver.	The Maryborough Infirmary and Lunatic Asylum, the Stradbally Dispensary, Athy Dispensary, Monasterevan Dispensary, Mount Mellick Dispensary, and Portarlinton Dispensary.
There is no other dispensary or hospital in the district.	None.	There is not.
One, Summer Hill, at my residence; attendance one day in the week, and daily when called on; salary 53 l. per annum. The Agher, five miles off; attendance one day in the week, and when called on; salary 40 l. per annum.	But one, the Trim Dispensary; the days of attendance are two; the salary 45 l. per annum.	I attend but one dispensary; days of attendance, Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.
I consider it my duty to attend, and always do attend personally all cases of the poor, when they are unable to attend the dispensary.	I consider it my duty, and always give my personal attendance when required.	Most certainly.
A registry is kept of the number of applications and the complaints, but not the results.	A register is kept of all applications, and advice and medicine given.	There is a register kept of all the cases.
From 1st July 1830 to 1st July 1833, 6,340 cases were attended at the dispensary, and 300 cases at their own homes. The general diseases treated were, inflammations, both local and general, fevers, cutaneous diseases, colds and catarrhs, dyspeptic affections of stomach, complaints of the eyes, bowels, rheumatism, accidents and midwifery.	The number of applications for relief, for the last three years, 10,690; the diseases are, fever, bowel complaint, and wounds and fractures.	The answer required to this would take up more of my time than my professional vocations would admit of.
I believe some few occasionally do receive the benefits of the institution who are not objects of charity.	Very seldom, if ever.	It very frequently happens that persons in comfortable circumstances avail themselves of such gratuitous assistance, though not generally with the consent of the subscribers.
The medicines are supplied by an order on the druggists in Dublin, Messrs. Hoyte & Flood, Sackville-street.	The medicines are purchased from a druggist in Dublin, compounded at the dispensary, and paid for by the Treasurer.	By voluntary subscription, and obtained by the treasurer or physician from the best and cheapest druggist.
<table><tr><td></td><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1830 -</td><td>£. 106 10 0</td><td>£. 106 13 4</td></tr><tr><td>1831 -</td><td>106 6 0</td><td>104 8 7</td></tr><tr><td>1832 -</td><td>104 8 0</td><td>104 12 6½</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><td></td><td>1830.</td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td></tr><tr><td>Salary -</td><td>£. 53 0 0</td><td>53 0 0</td><td>53 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine -</td><td>42 1 10½</td><td>42 12 7</td><td>41 8 6½</td></tr><tr><td>Rent -</td><td>10 0 0</td><td>10 0 0</td><td>10 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Sundries -</td><td>1 11 10½</td><td>0 7 9</td><td>0 4 0</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>£. 106 13 9</td><td>104 12 6</td><td>104 12 6½</td></tr></table>		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1830 -	£. 106 10 0	£. 106 13 4	1831 -	106 6 0	104 8 7	1832 -	104 8 0	104 12 6½		1830.	1831.	1832.	Salary -	£. 53 0 0	53 0 0	53 0 0	Medicine -	42 1 10½	42 12 7	41 8 6½	Rent -	10 0 0	10 0 0	10 0 0	Sundries -	1 11 10½	0 7 9	0 4 0		£. 106 13 9	104 12 6	104 12 6½		<table><tr><td></td><td colspan="2">Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>Subscription.</td><td>Presentment.</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>1831 -</td><td>£. 57 0 8½</td><td>47 9 0</td><td>93 17 8½</td></tr><tr><td>1832 -</td><td>53 10 0</td><td>35 18 8</td><td>83 2 0</td></tr><tr><td>1833 -</td><td>52 19 4</td><td>31 12 0</td><td>80 9 9</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><td></td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td><td>1833.</td></tr><tr><td>Salary -</td><td>£. 61 10 0</td><td>52 10 0</td><td>52 10 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine -</td><td>25 13 9</td><td>26 12 2</td><td>21 2 5½</td></tr><tr><td>Rent -</td><td>1 4 0</td><td>1 4 0</td><td>1 4 0</td></tr><tr><td>Contingencies</td><td>5 9 11½</td><td>2 15 10</td><td>5 13 3½</td></tr></table>		Receipt.		Expenditure.		Subscription.	Presentment.		1831 -	£. 57 0 8½	47 9 0	93 17 8½	1832 -	53 10 0	35 18 8	83 2 0	1833 -	52 19 4	31 12 0	80 9 9		1831.	1832.	1833.	Salary -	£. 61 10 0	52 10 0	52 10 0	Medicine -	25 13 9	26 12 2	21 2 5½	Rent -	1 4 0	1 4 0	1 4 0	Contingencies	5 9 11½	2 15 10	5 13 3½
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1830 -	£. 106 10 0	£. 106 13 4
1831 -	106 6 0	104 8 7
1832 -	104 8 0	104 12 6½
	1830.	1831.	1832.
Salary -	£. 53 0 0	53 0 0	53 0 0
Medicine -	42 1 10½	42 12 7	41 8 6½
Rent -	10 0 0	10 0 0	10 0 0
Sundries -	1 11 10½	0 7 9	0 4 0
	£. 106 13 9	104 12 6	104 12 6½
	Receipt.		Expenditure.
	Subscription.	Presentment.
1831 -	£. 57 0 8½	47 9 0	93 17 8½
1832 -	53 10 0	35 18 8	83 2 0
1833 -	52 19 4	31 12 0	80 9 9
	1831.	1832.	1833.
Salary -	£. 61 10 0	52 10 0	52 10 0
Medicine -	25 13 9	26 12 2	21 2 5½
Rent -	1 4 0	1 4 0	1 4 0
Contingencies	5 9 11½	2 15 10	5 13 3½
Supported by private subscriptions, and a presentment from the county of Meath, and no other county.	By voluntary subscriptions, and grand jury presentments from one county.	By voluntary contribution, two-thirds of the subscription raised being added by grand jury presentment obtained only from the Queen's County.
I think the funds of the dispensary could not be better applied than in administering to the medical and surgical wants of a large district; first, in affording medicines towards the prevention of disease; and, secondly, as a cure. The only observation I can venture to make is on the difficulty of procuring private subscriptions sufficient to answer the purpose.	I think the funds could not be better applied. I think it my duty to state, that the poor have been deprived of many comforts (in time of illness), in consequence of the Government not having made it compulsory on the grand jury to grant a sum equal in amount to that raised by private subscription. By this means small quantities of wine (which in many cases of fever is quite essential) might be procured, as heretofore, together with many other necessities, which they have not the means of obtaining. By referring to the Reports of the establishment, you will find my statement to be correct, and you will see that the grand jury have confined their grant to two-thirds of the subscription raised.	I do not think that the funds of this establishment can be applied in a better way than they are at present.

LEINSTER—QUEEN'S COUNTY.

Balinakill Dispensary.	Borris-in-Ossory Dispensary.	Kilmanmon Dispensary.
Committee and Medical Attendant.	—	J. J. Dunne, Esq., M. D.
The Ballinakill Dispensary, established in July 1818.	Borris-in-Ossory and Rathdowney Dispensaries, for the supply of medicine and advice to persons unable to procure either.	The Kilmanmon, Queen's County.
The entire parish of Dysart Galen, and a part of Balaroan, in the Queen's County; a part of Abbeyleix, Rosconnell and Atanna parishes, in the county Kilkenny.	Part of Aghavoe, Skirk, Kilo, Offerlane, Donomore, all in the Queen's County.	Three in the same county.
The Infirmary and Lunatic Asylum at Maryborough; a dispensary at Durrow; a house for the reception of fever patients, and a dispensary, at Abbeyleix; a dispensary at Ballyraggett, one at Castlecomer, and another at Freshford.	Mountrath, 7½ miles distant; Rathdowney, 5½; Offerlane, 6; all in the Queen's County. Roscrea, 7½, Tipperary county.	Mountmelick Dispensary, in the Queen's County, 7 miles; Kennity, 7 miles; Geashill, 9 miles; and Tallamon Infirmary, 10 miles, in the King's County.
There is not.	None.	None.
I attend only the Balinakill Dispensary three times a week; neither is there, in the town or neighbourhood, any other public institution for affording relief to the sick and destitute poor; a fact much to be regretted, as the prevalence of disease, and the almost universal spread of poverty, renders a house, particularly for the reception of fever patients, much to be desired. Days of attendance, Monday, Wednesday and Saturday.	I attend Borris-in-Ossory and Rathdowney Dispensaries; residence, Borris-in-Ossory, distant from Rathdowney 5½ miles; attendance, two days in the week to each; salary for Borris-in-Ossory Dispensary 65 l. 7 s. 8 d. , until the county grant was reduced one-third, in the year 1831, since which period it varies.	I only attend the above dispensary; salary, 60 l. per annum.
I consider it my duty to give my own personal attendance (when required) to all such applicants as produce tickets from subscribers to the dispensary.	I do.	I consider it my duty conscientiously, as a Christian, to give personal attendance on all such occasions.
There is.	Yes.	There is a registry kept, and the applications disposed of with the most happy effects.
The number of persons relieved by the dispensary within the three last years amounted to 1,567, in the following proportions: For 1831 - - - - 291 1832 - - - - 404 1833 - - - - 872 The diseases treated were, fevers, rheumatism, diseases of the lungs and liver and bowels, various dyspeptic affections, syphilis, and ophthalmia.	Number, 3,020.	It would take me six months to answer this quere. Upwards of 3,000 cases were attended to.
Such imposition has been practised in a few cases, but precautions have been taken to prevent similar occurrences.	In many instances.	A great many.
Medicines are supplied, by order of the committee, from the house of Leslie & Co. Dublin.	Boileau & George, Dublin; paid for by the Treasurer from the funds of the dispensary.	By me, chiefly.
<table> <tr> <th colspan="2">Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr> <tr> <th>Subscription.</th><th>Presentment.</th><th></th></tr> <tr> <td>1831 - 49 2 10</td><td>32 15 2</td><td>116 17 7</td></tr> <tr> <td>1832 - 54 9 11</td><td>35 9 3</td><td>83 19 5</td></tr> <tr> <td>1833 - 96 6 0</td><td>20 0 0</td><td>105 13 2</td></tr> </table> <table> <tr> <th colspan="3">GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.</th></tr> <tr> <th>1831.</th><th>1832.</th><th>1833.</th></tr> <tr> <td>Salaries - - 62 13 1</td><td>66 10 0</td><td>64 5 0</td></tr> <tr> <td>Medicine - - 27 16 3½</td><td>9 3 1</td><td>25 7 11½</td></tr> <tr> <td>Rent - - - 14 0 0</td><td>4 13 4</td><td>8 0 0</td></tr> <tr> <td>Contingencies 12 8 2½</td><td>3 13 0</td><td>8 0 3</td></tr> </table>	Receipt.		Expenditure.	Subscription.	Presentment.		1831 - 49 2 10	32 15 2	116 17 7	1832 - 54 9 11	35 9 3	83 19 5	1833 - 96 6 0	20 0 0	105 13 2	GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.			1831.	1832.	1833.	Salaries - - 62 13 1	66 10 0	64 5 0	Medicine - - 27 16 3½	9 3 1	25 7 11½	Rent - - - 14 0 0	4 13 4	8 0 0	Contingencies 12 8 2½	3 13 0	8 0 3	<table> <tr> <th colspan="2">Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr> <tr> <th></th><th></th><th></th></tr> <tr> <td>1831 - - - £. 99 9 1</td><td></td><td>£. 81 18 5</td></tr> <tr> <td>1832 - - - 88 4 0</td><td></td><td>88 12 10</td></tr> <tr> <td>1833 - - - 71 8 8</td><td></td><td>69 11 3</td></tr> </table> <table> <tr> <th colspan="3">GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.</th></tr> <tr> <th>1831.</th><th>1832.</th><th>1833.</th></tr> <tr> <td>Salary - - - £. 65 7 8</td><td>65 7 8</td><td>54 0 0</td></tr> <tr> <td>Medicines - - - 14 1 5</td><td>19 3 6</td><td>13 10 6</td></tr> <tr> <td>Printing, Postage, &c. 2 9 4</td><td>4 1 8</td><td>2 0 0</td></tr> </table>	Receipt.		Expenditure.				1831 - - - £. 99 9 1		£. 81 18 5	1832 - - - 88 4 0		88 12 10	1833 - - - 71 8 8		69 11 3	GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.			1831.	1832.	1833.	Salary - - - £. 65 7 8	65 7 8	54 0 0	Medicines - - - 14 1 5	19 3 6	13 10 6	Printing, Postage, &c. 2 9 4	4 1 8	2 0 0	Not being the registrar or treasurer, I cannot answer.
Receipt.		Expenditure.
Subscription.	Presentment.
1831 - 49 2 10	32 15 2	116 17 7
1832 - 54 9 11	35 9 3	83 19 5
1833 - 96 6 0	20 0 0	105 13 2
GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.
1831.	1832.	1833.
Salaries - - 62 13 1	66 10 0	64 5 0
Medicine - - 27 16 3½	9 3 1	25 7 11½
Rent - - - 14 0 0	4 13 4	8 0 0
Contingencies 12 8 2½	3 13 0	8 0 3
Receipt.		Expenditure.
1831 - - - £. 99 9 1		£. 81 18 5
1832 - - - 88 4 0		88 12 10
1833 - - - 71 8 8		69 11 3
GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.
1831.	1832.	1833.
Salary - - - £. 65 7 8	65 7 8	54 0 0
Medicines - - - 14 1 5	19 3 6	13 10 6
Printing, Postage, &c. 2 9 4	4 1 8	2 0 0
The institution is principally supported by annual subscriptions (which amounted for 1833 to 96 l. 6 s.), assisted by a grant from the grand jury of the Queen's County only, amounting for 1833 to 20 l.	By subscription, and presentment from the Queen's County.	By presentment and subscription from the Queen's County.
It is much to be regretted that the funds of this establishment are so scanty as barely to enable the committee to provide the poor with medicines and medical attendance, as, with a little additional means, its utility might be very much extended; nutritious diet might be procured for the sick, when recovering from disease, and warm clothing could be provided for them, of which they are, at certain periods, in great want.	I could not, the funds being so very low at present.	I can, but it must be before the committee.

LEINSTER—QUEEN'S COUNTY.

Mountmelick Dispensary.	Mountrath Dispensary.	Newtown Dispensary.
Treasurer and Medical Attendant.	James Smith, Esq., Surgeon.	Samuel Edge, Esq., Surgeon.
Mountmelick Dispensary, established in the year 1813.	The Mountrath Dispensary, established in 1818.	The Newtown Dispensary, established in 1832.
There are no defined limits. The subscribers have the power of recommending pauper patients from any parish or county.	The entire of this parish, which extends 12 miles from north to south, 6½ from east to west; population, 20,000; also a large share of the adjoining parish of Offerlane, which comes near this town on the west side.	Two whole parishes, and a great part of three others, all in the Queen's County.
An infirmary at Maryborough, with dispensary attached; a dispensary at Portarlinton; another at Ballybrittas; another at Stradbally; another at Mountrath; another at Clonaslee; and another at Geashill.	Maryborough Infirmary, Abbeyleix, Borris-in-Ossory, Mountmelick and Offerlane Dispensaries.	The Castlecomer Dispensary, in the county Kilkenny, and Ballickmoyler, in this county; the Carlow Infirmary; the two former within about 6 miles each, and the latter about 9.
There is no other dispensary or infirmary in this town or immediate neighbourhood. The physician's salary is 60 guineas per annum. There is also an apothecary, whose salary is 20 guineas per annum.	None.	There is no hospital or infirmary in the district of this dispensary, though such an institution is absolutely necessary.
I attend no dispensary, infirmary or hospital, except the Mountmelick dispensary. The days of attendance are every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.	One dispensary; salary, 100 guineas a year; attendance two days, at stated hours, in each week; attendance upon external patients, and for the distribution of their medicines, every day; accidents attended at all hours.	I attend but one dispensary, one mile from my residence; receive 80 l. per annum salary, to attend three days in the week.
Certainly, as far as is practicable in this extensive and very populous neighbourhood.	I do.	I do, and am obliged to attend at any time, when called on.
A register is kept of all cases applying for aid, and of the number visited at their homes, and also the number of times each patient has received aid from the dispensary.	Regularly inspected at each meeting.	There is a register kept, and the result marked.
Number relieved within the last three years, 6,502. Diseases most frequently treated: dyspepsia, typhus, diarrhoea and dysentery; eruptions, particularly itch; inflammations of the lungs and severe colds; rheumatism (acute and chronic), wounds and ulcers.	1831 - - - 3,000 1832 - - - 2,769 1833 - - - 3,180	I can only state the number relieved in 1833; 2,621 patients relieved at dispensary. A very large proportion of fevers and bowel complaints.
It frequently occurs that persons who are in circumstances not to require gratuitous assistance, participate in the benefits of the charity.	Sometimes.	Very seldom.
By the Treasurer, according to requisitions made out by the apothecary, and examined and approved by the physician.	For the last three years entirely at my expense.	The medicines are supplied by Messrs. P. A. & C. Leslie, Druggists, Dublin.
<table><tr><td></td><td>£.</td><td>s.</td><td>d.</td><td>£.</td><td>s.</td><td>d.</td></tr><tr><td>Subscription for 1831</td><td>60</td><td>8</td><td>4</td><td rowspan="2">100</td><td rowspan="2">13</td><td rowspan="2">11</td></tr><tr><td>County Grant - - -</td><td>40</td><td>5</td><td>7</td></tr><tr><td>Expenditure - - -</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>142</td><td>13</td><td>10</td></tr><tr><td>Subscription for 1832</td><td>88</td><td>14</td><td>9</td><td rowspan="2">147</td><td rowspan="2">17</td><td rowspan="2">11</td></tr><tr><td>County Grant - - -</td><td>-</td><td>59</td><td>3</td></tr><tr><td>Expenditure - - -</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>185</td><td>5</td><td>7</td></tr><tr><td>Subscription for 1833</td><td>99</td><td>19</td><td>9</td><td rowspan="2">165</td><td rowspan="2">10</td><td rowspan="2">0</td></tr><tr><td>County Grant - - -</td><td>-</td><td>65</td><td>10</td></tr><tr><td>Expenditure - - -</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>127</td><td>13</td><td>2</td></tr></table>		£.	s.	d.	£.	s.	d.	Subscription for 1831	60	8	4	100	13	11	County Grant - - -	40	5	7	Expenditure - - -	-	-	-	142	13	10	Subscription for 1832	88	14	9	147	17	11	County Grant - - -	-	59	3	Expenditure - - -	-	-	-	185	5	7	Subscription for 1833	99	19	9	165	10	0	County Grant - - -	-	65	10	Expenditure - - -	-	-	-	127	13	2	<table><tr><td></td><td colspan="2">Receipts.</td><td colspan="2">Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - - -</td><td>£.</td><td>131 4 4</td><td>131</td><td>1 6</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - - -</td><td>-</td><td>115 16 8</td><td>115</td><td>16 8</td></tr><tr><td>1833 - - -</td><td>-</td><td>110 15 2</td><td>110</td><td>13 4</td></tr></table> <table><tr><td colspan="4">GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td><td>1833.</td></tr><tr><td>Salaries £.</td><td>109 0 0</td><td>109 0 0</td><td>109 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Rent - -</td><td>12 7 6</td><td>1 6 8</td><td>1 7 8</td></tr><tr><td>Contingencies</td><td>9 14 0</td><td>5 10 0</td><td>0 7 6</td></tr></table>		Receipts.		Expenditure.		1831 - - -	£.	131 4 4	131	1 6	1832 - - -	-	115 16 8	115	16 8	1833 - - -	-	110 15 2	110	13 4	GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.					1831.	1832.	1833.	Salaries £.	109 0 0	109 0 0	109 0 0	Rent - -	12 7 6	1 6 8	1 7 8	Contingencies	9 14 0	5 10 0	0 7 6	<table><tr><td colspan="3">RECEIPT.</td></tr><tr><td>Subscription.</td><td>Presentment.</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>1833 £.</td><td>95 16 6</td><td>64 1 5 133 10 5</td></tr></table> <table><tr><td colspan="3">GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.</td></tr><tr><td>Salary - - -</td><td>-</td><td>£. 80 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Extras ditto - - -</td><td>-</td><td>10 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine - - -</td><td>-</td><td>18 6 6½</td></tr><tr><td>Contingencies - - -</td><td>-</td><td>25 3 10½</td></tr></table>	RECEIPT.			Subscription.	Presentment.		1833 £.	95 16 6	64 1 5 133 10 5	GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.			Salary - - -	-	£. 80 0 0	Extras ditto - - -	-	10 0 0	Medicine - - -	-	18 6 6½	Contingencies - - -	-	25 3 10½
	£.	s.	d.	£.	s.	d.
Subscription for 1831	60	8	4	100	13	11
County Grant - - -	40	5	7
Expenditure - - -	-	-	-	142	13	10
Subscription for 1832	88	14	9	147	17	11
County Grant - - -	-	59	3
Expenditure - - -	-	-	-	185	5	7
Subscription for 1833	99	19	9	165	10	0
County Grant - - -	-	65	10
Expenditure - - -	-	-	-	127	13	2
	Receipts.		Expenditure.
1831 - - -	£.	131 4 4	131	1 6
1832 - - -	-	115 16 8	115	16 8
1833 - - -	-	110 15 2	110	13 4
GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.
	1831.	1832.	1833.
Salaries £.	109 0 0	109 0 0	109 0 0
Rent - -	12 7 6	1 6 8	1 7 8
Contingencies	9 14 0	5 10 0	0 7 6
RECEIPT.
Subscription.	Presentment.
1833 £.	95 16 6	64 1 5 133 10 5
GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.
Salary - - -	-	£. 80 0 0
Extras ditto - - -	-	10 0 0
Medicine - - -	-	18 6 6½
Contingencies - - -	-	25 3 10½
By private subscriptions, and presentments from the county in which it is situated.	By subscription, and two-thirds county grant.	By private subscription, and grand jury presentment, obtained from the Queen's County only.
We have to regret that the limited state of our funds prevent the institution being more extensively useful; but we are of opinion that they are managed with the utmost economy.	Under the circumstances of expenditure, as detailed, I have no suggestion to offer. people) follow the accession of fever in this district. Where men, women, children, pigs, asses, &c. &c. are obliged to inhabit the same apartment, there being but one in the house, and this with but one outlet, a door, in very many instances.	None, except that a fever hospital would prevent the spread of contagion, and the fatal results which of necessity (from the poverty and ignorance of the

LEINSTER—QUEEN'S COUNTY.

Portarlinton Dispensary.	Rathdowney Dispensary.	Stradbally Dispensary.
Committee and Medical Attendant.	John F. Harte, Esq. M. D.	—
Portarlinton Dispensary, established in the year 1812. Attended three days in each week.	Rathdowney and Borris-in-Ossory Dispensaries, for the supply of medicines and advice to persons not able to procure either; Rathdowney, established in the year 1812.	Stradbally Dispensary, established 1817, for medical and surgical advice, distributing medicine, and visiting at their own houses when unable to attend (all gratuitously).
Four parishes, in King's and Queen's County; King's County paying no presentment.	Rathdowney, Rathsarm, Coolkeery, Aughinacarte, Bordwell, part of Donomore, Aghavoe, Killermion, and part of Erke.	Eight parishes, all in the Queen's County.
Maryborough Infirmary, 10 miles; Ballybrittas Dispensary, four miles; Monastereven Dispensary, five miles; Stradbally Dispensary, nine miles; and Geashill Dispensary, eight miles; Rathangan, eight miles, and Mount Mellick, six miles.	Durrow, nine miles, county Kilkenny; Johnstown, ditto, nine miles; Borris-in-Ossory, seven miles.	The County Infirmary, a dispensary at Ballybrittas, and one at Athy, in the county of Kildare.
No other infirmary or dispensary in our district.	None.	There is none.
One of the Portarlinton Dispensary physicians attends Geashill one day in each week; receives 50 l. per annum. Portarlinton pays 33 l. per annum to each.	Rathdowney and Borris-in-Ossory Dispensaries; residence, Borris-in-Ossory at present; distant from Rathdowney seven miles; two days to each dispensary in the week. Salary for Rathdowney, 52 l. 10 s. per annum.	No. Salary, 87 l. 13 s. 10 d. per annum; attendance, two days in the week, from 10 until 1, at the dispensary, and at all times when a visiting ticket is given. I reside within 20 yards of the dispensary.
Yes, invariably.	I do.	I am at all times willing to give medical and surgical advice when wanting.
A regular registry has been kept, and the result noted, as far as the attendance of patients would admit of.	Yes.	There is a register kept of all the cases.
Average last three years between 11,000 and 12,000 annually. Diseases of women and children, including labours, accidents, epidemics, &c. &c.	Number of persons relieved, 3,417.	Number relieved, 6,725. Every species of disease that generally falls to the lot of man, but principally fevers and diarrhoea.
It is contrary to the regulations of the dispensary that any such should be relieved.	In a great many instances.	Rarely.
Supplied by Messrs. Leslie, Druggists, and compounded by the attending physicians, who have not the assistance of an apothecary.	From Boileau & George, Druggists, Dublin; paid for by the treasurer, from the funds of the dispensary.	The drugs are received from Messrs. Boileau & George; compounded and ordered by the physician at the dispensary.
Average amount of Medicine annually - - - £. 25 1 6 $\frac{1}{2}$ Rent, Fuel and Sundries - 12 0 0 Average amount annually paid to each Physician - 33 0 0	<table><tr><td></td><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - -</td><td>£. 78 1 0</td><td>£. 81 6 9</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><td>Salaries - - -</td><td>£. 52 10 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine - - -</td><td>20 5 11</td></tr><tr><td>Rent - - -</td><td>4 4 0</td></tr><tr><td>Contingencies - - -</td><td>4 6 10</td></tr></table>		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831 - -	£. 78 1 0	£. 81 6 9	Salaries - - -	£. 52 10 0	Medicine - - -	20 5 11	Rent - - -	4 4 0	Contingencies - - -	4 6 10	Receipt for 1830, 1831, 1832 - £. 360 9 2 Expenditure - - - - 384 8 0 GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. Surgeon's salary, medicine, house-rent and collector's fees.
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831 - -	£. 78 1 0	£. 81 6 9
Salaries - - -	£. 52 10 0
Medicine - - -	20 5 11
Rent - - -	4 4 0
Contingencies - - -	4 6 10
Two-fifths by presentment of the Queen's County, three-fifths by private subscription of the inhabitants of Portarlinton and vicinity: heretofore Queen's County grand jury presented a sum equal to subscriptions.	By presentment and subscription from the Queen's County.	By private subscriptions, and a small grant off the county. We are assisted by no other county.
We are of opinion, from the smallness of the funds of this institution, there cannot be anything recommended in addition that would benefit the establishment.	I cannot, the funds this year being inadequate to meet the expenses.	The funds of this dispensary are small, and so far cannot be better distributed; but I would think it most advisable for all dispensaries to have a ward for the removal of persons labouring under contagious diseases.

LEINSTER—WESTMEATH.

Athlone Dispensary.	Ballinacraig Dispensary.	Ballinalack Dispensary.
Treasurer and Medical Attendant.	Committee and Medical Attendant.	Treasurer and Medical Attendant.
Athlone Dispensary, Westmeath side.	Ballinacraig Dispensary, instituted 1818.	Ballinalack dispensary only.
The entire parish of St. Mary, and part of the parish of Mount Temple.	At least six parishes, all in this county.	There are six parishes, all in the county of Westmeath.
There are dispensaries as follows: at the other side of Athlone, in the county Roscommon, one; at Glasson, in Westmeath, one, four miles distant; one at Meath, eight miles, and another in Roscommon, about five miles distant.	County Infirmary, Mullingar, distant eight miles; Ballinalack Dispensary, four miles; Street Dispensary, six miles; Edgeworthstown Dispensary, county Longford, eight miles; Bullymahon Dispensary, county Longford, nine miles.	County Infirmary, Mullingar, 10 miles distant; Street Dispensary, six miles, and Ballinacanga, eight miles.
There is none.	None.	There is no hospital, infirmary or dispensary within my district, but that above stated. The salary paid me amounts generally to 40 l. per annum from the grand jury, and 40 l. from private subscription, from which are deducted the amount of medicine, house-rent and other expenses.
The medical attendant, Dr. Dawson, has not the care of any other dispensary.	Ballinacraig dispensary alone. Salary, 50 l. per annum. Attendance three days in the week.	I attend but the one dispensary, and I attend it every day in the week, even on Sunday.
It is certainly that officer's duty to attend when called upon, and there is no instance of his having omitted to do so.	I consider it my duty to do so in all cases of serious illness or accident.	Only when the urgency of the case requires it, or when I am requested to do so by some of my subscribers.
Answered by medical attendant in reply to following query.	A register is kept of most of the cases, the applications being generally so numerous that too much time would be occupied in recording the more trifling cases without the aid of a clerk: the results are often unknown, in consequence of the distance from which patients often come.	There has been no registry kept before the 1st of April 1833: from that period to the first of March last, 1834, there were 850 cases treated from the dispensary.
Having only held the situation since the 8th of July last, and finding no books to inform me, I can only say that up to this date there have been 2,100 persons relieved. The prevailing diseases are pulmonary affections and dyspepsia.	About 4,200, per register. Diseases generally, fevers, pulmonary complaints, bowel complaints, eruptive complaints, childbirth, chronic cases, accidents, and various other surgical cases.	The diseases treated were, fever, acute and chronic diseases, liver and bowel complaints, consumption and scorbutic affections, wounds and fractures, &c. &c.
Persons apply who, I am confident, could pay for medicines, but not for advice.	Sometimes instances may have occurred.	It sometimes so happens, that persons who are able to purchase medicine, impose upon the benefactors of the institution, and procure an order for relief.
A donation of medicines was made some years ago by Dr. Henry; all other has been purchased, from time to time, as required by the medical attendant.	A list being furnished by me to the committee, an order is given by the secretary to the druggists, Messrs. Pollock & Figgis, Capel-street, Dublin, who send the articles in consequence.	They are supplied wholesale by Messrs. Aylmer, Druggists, Mary-street, and compounded by the Physician at the dispensary.
<table> <tr> <th></th><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr> <tr> <td>1331</td><td>- £. 78 6 10</td><td>£. 93 14 3 $\frac{1}{2}$</td></tr> <tr> <td>1832</td><td>- 103 4 0</td><td>109 0 6 $\frac{1}{2}$</td></tr> <tr> <td>1833</td><td>- 77 19 0</td><td>*46 9 2</td></tr> </table>		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1331	- £. 78 6 10	£. 93 14 3 $\frac{1}{2}$	1832	- 103 4 0	109 0 6 $\frac{1}{2}$	1833	- 77 19 0	*46 9 2	<table> <tr> <th></th><th>Subscriptions.</th><th>Presentment.</th></tr> <tr> <td>1831</td><td>- - £. 47 13 6</td><td>£. 41 9 0</td></tr> <tr> <td>1832</td><td>- - 47 5 0</td><td>47 5 0</td></tr> <tr> <td>1833</td><td>- - 48 2 3</td><td>48 3 0</td></tr> </table>		Subscriptions.	Presentment.	1831	- - £. 47 13 6	£. 41 9 0	1832	- - 47 5 0	47 5 0	1833	- - 48 2 3	48 3 0	The medicine amounts, in the average, to about 17 l. per annum, for the last three years.
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1331	- £. 78 6 10	£. 93 14 3 $\frac{1}{2}$
1832	- 103 4 0	109 0 6 $\frac{1}{2}$
1833	- 77 19 0	*46 9 2
	Subscriptions.	Presentment.
1831	- - £. 47 13 6	£. 41 9 0
1832	- - 47 5 0	47 5 0
1833	- - 48 2 3	48 3 0
* This is the sum paid by the treasurer, but the year will not be completed till February; more is due than there are funds to pay. The treasurer has always been in advance.
By subscriptions, and an annual presentment of equal amount by the county.	By subscription, and proportionate presentment from the county alone.	It is supported half by presentment, and half by private contribution from this county alone.
I am not aware of any; great relief intern and extern has been afforded at comparatively small expense.	I cannot suggest any alteration in the present limited funds to extend the utility of the institution.	The funds are at present so limited, that I could suggest no alteration for the better; but if sufficient funds could be procured, great benefit would arise, by attaching two or three beds to the dispensary, by which contagion would be arrested, and relapses prevented.

LEINSTER—WESTMEATH.

Castletown Delvin and Turin Branch Dispensary.	Clonmellon Dispensary.	Drumcree Dispensary.
Treasurer and Medical Attendant.	Henry Davidge, Esq. M.D.	Treasurer and Medical Attendant
The Castletown Delvin and Turin Branch Dispensaries: the object of both is to supply the poor with medicine and advice gratis; established in the year 1817, in the county Westmeath.	Clonmellon Dispensary, for the distribution of medicines and medical attendance to the poor; established 1825.	Drumcree Dispensary. I also attend the Castlepollard Dispensary and Fever Hospital. I know not how long those establishments are established; but I am in attendance in the Drumcree Dispensary for five years; in the Castlepollard Dispensary and Fever Hospital 13 years.
There are two parishes entirely included in the district, and part of two others, all in the same county.	Two parishes, namely, Killallonand Killrea; the former in Meath, the latter in Westmeath.	They are all in the same county. My attendance extends over a considerable portion of six parishes. They are all in Westmeath.
There are five dispensaries within ten miles; viz. Drumcree, Killucan, Clonmellon, Crossakeel and Castlepollard.	Kells Fever Hospital and Dispensary, Athboy Dispensary, Crossakeel, Castletowndelvin and Drumcree.	Five dispensaries, one infirmary, one fever hospital.
There is no hospital or infirmary within the district; the only charitable institutions are the above two mentioned in No. 1, for which the medical attendant receives 64 l. annually for his attendance on both.	No hospital or infirmary in the district.	There is a dispensary and fever hospital within five miles of Drumcree, at Castlepollard, which I attend, and which is within my district. For my attendance on the Castlepollard Fever Hospital and Dispensary I get 120 l. a year; for the Drumcree Dispensary, uncertain, from 30 l. to 40 l. a year.
The medical officer attends the two dispensaries; he resides in Castletown Delvin, a distance of four miles from the Turin Dispensary, and is paid 64 l. for the two; he attends three days at Castletown Delvin and two days at Turin.	I attend Clonmellon Tuesday and Friday; open every day, when required. Many poor living in the town. Salary 25 l. per annum. Crossakeel, Monday and Thursday; distance three miles; attendance at any time called on. Salary 30 l. 120 l. per annum. In this place I reside,	I attend the Drumcree Dispensary one day in the week, distant from me five miles, at a salary varying between 30 l. and 40 l. according to amount of subscription. I also attend the Castlepollard Dispensary and Fever Hospital twice a week; salary and am obliged to give attendance when required.
The medical officer gives his personal attendance in all cases at both dispensaries, when the patient is not able to come to the dispensaries.	I do consider it my duty to attend all cases when called on, the poor being numerous.	I do, where I find it possible, or where there are not conflicting duties. Where I find it impossible to give my personal attendance, medicine is sent to them, or the apothecary attends them.
There has been a registry kept, where the patients brought a ticket from different subscribers, for the purpose of knowing who were entitled to attendance; but seldom, if ever, refused any poor person without a ticket.	A register is kept of all cases within and external that apply, and a return made to the general assizes at Spring. In general the cases have terminated favourably.	There is a register of cases admitted kept; but the limits of the dispensary are so extensive, that it is impossible to ascertain the results of the treatment followed in all cases.
The number for the last three years having such tickets, and registered, amounts to 2,531; principally coughs, indigestions and fevers.	About 4,000 patients have been relieved, from fever, measles, small-pox, asthma, dysentery, diarrhoea, accidents, and innumerable other diseases incident to the human frame.	The applications for relief for the last three years, as by register, are 3,014. This does not include all, however, as those who apply for medicine or advice at Castlepollard, are not included. The diseases are chiefly pulmonary.
Where such happens, they generally become subscribers to the charity.	It sometimes occurs that persons are recommended who are in comfortable circumstances, and some who have no other alternative in case of sudden illness.	It does not often happen that a subscriber recommends for advice or medicine persons able to purchase them.
The medicines are supplied by the druggist, who is generally settled with at the end of the year.	By the druggist, when required and ordered by the doctor.	The subscribers contract with an apothecary residing in Castlepollard for medicine. He is also obliged to give his attendance. The medical attendant is responsible that the medicines are good.
<table><tr><th>Receipts.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>£. s. d.</td><td>£. s. d.</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - Subscriptions - 48 10 0</td><td>97 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Co. Grant - 48 10 0</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>1832 - Subscriptions - 49 13 0</td><td>110 1 6 ½</td></tr><tr><td>Co. Grant - 49 13 0</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>1833 - Subscriptions - 53 4 0</td><td>106 8 0</td></tr><tr><td>Co. Grant - 53 4 0</td><td></td></tr></table> Expenditure under the general heads of medical attendant's salary, medicines, nourishment, flannel, rent of dispensary.	Receipts.	Expenditure.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	1831 - Subscriptions - 48 10 0	97 0 0	Co. Grant - 48 10 0		1832 - Subscriptions - 49 13 0	110 1 6 ½	Co. Grant - 49 13 0		1833 - Subscriptions - 53 4 0	106 8 0	Co. Grant - 53 4 0		Private and county grant for the last three years, 20 l. 15 s. annually. This was expended by medicine, rents, carriage, postage, stationery, stamps and salary of doctors.	The receipts and expenditure have been equal. The exact amount cannot be known, the treasurer being at present from home, in some part of England.
Receipts.	Expenditure.
£. s. d.	£. s. d.
1831 - Subscriptions - 48 10 0	97 0 0
Co. Grant - 48 10 0
1832 - Subscriptions - 49 13 0	110 1 6 ½
Co. Grant - 49 13 0
1833 - Subscriptions - 53 4 0	106 8 0
Co. Grant - 53 4 0
Supported by private subscriptions, and presentments from the county of Westmeath only.	By private subscription, and county presentment for the county of Westmeath.	It is partly supported by private subscription, and the county presents a sum equal to the subscriptions. Presentments obtained only from Westmeath county.
The funds are not adequate to supply additional comforts to the poor, and a little further in addition would add considerably, by way of supplying flannel and nourishment, such as broth and wine during their illness and convalescent stage. The establishment of a few sick wards, to which patients labouring under dangerous illness, particularly when presumed to be infectious, would be highly useful, and the means of arresting the progress of disease through a family and the neighbourhood.	I am not aware of any alteration in the present institution that would benefit the poor: from many years' experience amongst them, I find the great necessity of such establishments; and where they are not, the poor are badly off.	None at present, as the subscribers, from time to time, at their meetings, make such alteration in the management of the dispensary and the distribution of its funds as they see occasion for, or as may be suggested by me.

LEINSTER—WESTMEATH.

Glasson Dispensary.	Kilbeggan Dispensary.	Kinnegad Dispensary.
The Treasurer.	S. E. Duggan, Esq. Surgeon.	The Treasurer.
Glasson Dispensary, established in 1822.	Kilbeggan Dispensary.	I am secretary and treasurer to the Kinnegad Dispensary, and also to the Clonard Dispensary.
Two, and part of two more, all in Westmeath.	Kilbeggan, Horseleap, Durrow, Castletown, Kill Rahue, Newtown, some parishes in the King's County; in fact, wherever a subscriber resides, when ordered, I must attend.	Kinnegad.
Two dispensaries (Leinster and Connaught sides) in Athlone, one in Ballymahon, six miles off, and one in Moate, seven miles off.	King's County Infirmary, six miles distant; Mullingar, 12 miles ditto; Clara Dispensary, four miles ditto; Tyrell's-pass Dispensary, four miles ditto; Moate, 7 1/2 miles ditto.	One at Killucan, in Westmeath; one at Balliver, in Meath; and I believe one at Johnstown, in Kildare.
No.	The County Infirmary is in Mullingar, distant from Kilbeggan 12 miles; it has a dispensary attached. As to the salary or emoluments, I know nothing of them.	Kinnegad, the parish of Kinnegad. No hospital or infirmary in this district: salary for Clonard, 60 guineas, for Kinnegad 10 guineas a year; occasionally when funds admitted, or medical attendance was particularly laborious, a gratuity of 10 l. or even 25 l. was added in Kinnegad. No gratuity was given last year.
No. Tuesdays and Fridays the doctor attends.	I attend but the one dispensary, namely, Kilbeggan: I was appointed at a salary of 60 guineas; but from the state of things, I now for the last four or five years receive but 56 l. per annum: Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays are days of attendance, from 10 to 12 o'clock.	The medical attendant is obliged to attend one day in each week.
Very often.	There are four visiting tickets allowed to each subscriber of one guinea, with a quantity of indoor tickets to the dispensary on the days and hours appointed. When a poor person requires my attendance, he solicits one of those visiting tickets from a subscriber, on receipt of which, I am bound to attend.	The medical attendant is obliged to do so whenever required by a subscriber.
Not very regularly till this year, since when it has been regular. Applications have always been attended with advice and medicine, generally with fortunate results.	There is a registry kept of the date, number of ticket, name, place of residence, disease; but it would be utterly impossible to know the result, except in a few cases.	In consequence of our having changed our medical attendant, I cannot furnish reports of the diseases for the last three years.
More than 3,000. All sorts of disorders and accidents. Fever very prevalent lately.	About 5,523 relieved. Fever of the low type, chest complaints, bowels, rheumatism, &c. &c. &c.	Last year sickness was rather more prevalent than either of the preceding years.
We extend relief to all persons under the class of yeomen, knowing that they are not able to pay fees, or buy medicine.	Very frequently, being unwilling to refuse the ticket, fearing to give the subscriber offence, which would induce him to withdraw his subscription, &c.	Sometimes, but I think not often, persons not requiring gratuitous assistance are recommended by subscribers; but precautions are taken to prevent it.
I purchase the medicines from Mr. Boileau, out of the funds placed in my hands.	I furnish a list of articles of medicine as I think I shall require during the year, which is forwarded by the committee to the druggist in Dublin, &c.	On an order from the secretary, by Mr. Barker, Druggist, of Great Britain-street. By the medical attendant, on a recommendation from the subscribers.
<table><tr><th></th><th>Receipts.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>£. 80 6 0</td><td>£. 75 10 4</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>54 4 2</td><td>63 16 3</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>102 5 2</td><td>105 6 11 1/2</td></tr></table>		Receipts.	Expenditure.	1831	£. 80 6 0	£. 75 10 4	1832	54 4 2	63 16 3	1833	102 5 2	105 6 11 1/2	About 80 l. per annum, which pays salary, medicine, printing reports, &c. &c.	<table><tr><th></th><th>Receipts.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>£. 53 1 3 1/2</td><td>£. 53 1 3 1/2</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>54 8 0</td><td>54 5 11 1/2</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>50 8 0</td><td>50 17 6</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><th></th><th>1831.</th><th>1832.</th><th>1833.</th></tr><tr><td>Salary</td><td>£. 35 10 0</td><td>35 10 0</td><td>10 10 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine</td><td>14 5 1</td><td>16 2 11 1/2</td><td>11 10 5</td></tr><tr><td>Rent</td><td>—</td><td>—</td><td>6 5 0</td></tr><tr><td>Contingencies</td><td>3 6 2 1/2</td><td>2 13 0</td><td>22 12 1</td></tr></table>		Receipts.	Expenditure.	1831	£. 53 1 3 1/2	£. 53 1 3 1/2	1832	54 8 0	54 5 11 1/2	1833	50 8 0	50 17 6		1831.	1832.	1833.	Salary	£. 35 10 0	35 10 0	10 10 0	Medicine	14 5 1	16 2 11 1/2	11 10 5	Rent	—	—	6 5 0	Contingencies	3 6 2 1/2	2 13 0	22 12 1
	Receipts.	Expenditure.
1831	£. 80 6 0	£. 75 10 4
1832	54 4 2	63 16 3
1833	102 5 2	105 6 11 1/2
	Receipts.	Expenditure.
1831	£. 53 1 3 1/2	£. 53 1 3 1/2
1832	54 8 0	54 5 11 1/2
1833	50 8 0	50 17 6
	1831.	1832.	1833.
Salary	£. 35 10 0	35 10 0	10 10 0
Medicine	14 5 1	16 2 11 1/2	11 10 5
Rent	—	—	6 5 0
Contingencies	3 6 2 1/2	2 13 0	22 12 1
Private subscriptions, and county grants for equal sums, only from Westmeath.	By private subscriptions, presentments off the county Westmeath only.	By voluntary contributions and presentments in Westmeath.
No. There are some old and infirm persons, cripples and idiots, here as well as elsewhere, but they are too humble to be clamorous, too weak to be wicked; to them some parochial relief would be a boon. There are also here, as well as elsewhere in Ireland, malcontents, turbulent spirits, evil-doers; but they must not be sought for in the class of the poor and needy, neither will they be conciliated by poor laws.	That the institution be supported totally by the Government, who will appoint governors yearly to watch the conduct of the medical superintendent, and see that he does his duty, and that five or six beds be allowed for the reception of sudden accidents, which could not be sent to the county Hospital. Under those circumstances, dispensaries would be of the highest possible service to the poor.	No. The district is very large, and remarkably poor, and no infirmary near. It would be exceedingly desirable, if we had funds, to have a house or room where about a dozen or 20 beds might be kept, to put occasionally fever patients or bad accidents into. Both the Meath and Westmeath Infirmarys are at a great distance from this, and there are no subscribers to either resident in the district. Our present medical attendant is an excellent physician, and a kind man to the poor, but his duty is very heavy indeed.

LEINSTER—WESTMEATH.

Moate Dispensary.	Street Dispensary.	Tyrrellspass Dispensary.
John M. Mathews, Esq., M.D.	Treasurer and Medical Attendant.	G. W. Berry, Esq., Surgeon.
Moate Dispensary, established in the year 1818.	Street, established July 11, 1831.	Tyrrellspass Dispensary, established in the year 1816 to afford medicine and medical attendance to the poor of the district.
The number of parishes cannot be stated, as subscribers are permitted to send from any distance.	Two whole parishes, and part of two others, in two counties.	There are ten parishes in my district; eight of them are in Westmeath county, and two in King's County.
There are two in Athlone, one for each county in which the town is situate, one in Kilbeggan, Clara, Farbane.	Edgworthstown, Granard, and Balnalack Dispensaries.	Mullingar Infirmary, eight miles and a half northward, situated in county Westmeath; also King's County Infirmary, eight miles south-westward, being sixteen miles and a half distance from each other; also the Kilbeggan Dispensary, four miles and a half from Tyrrellspass; also Clara Dispensary, eight miles and a half distance from Tyrrellspass.
There is no dispensary attached to any hospital or infirmary in my district.	No. 55 l. 7 s. 6 d. per year; I have also all the apartments of the dispensary-house which are not used for dispensary purposes; the value I consider equivalent to 16 l. yearly.	There is not any other hospital, infirmary or dispensary in my district: the salary derived by me for attending and residing at this institution is
I attend the dispensary at Moate, and no other dispensary, hospital or infirmary.	Only Street Dispensary, two days in the week.	I do not attend any other charitable medical institution. Three days every week I attend to receive patients at the dispensary, to give them medicine and advice, but all days and nights in the year am liable to be called on to visit the sick at their own homes.
I do not consider it my duty in all cases to give personal attendance; I should consider it my duty, were my instructions to be complied with, but they never are.	Yes.	I do.
There is a register kept, but I cannot state the result, as the friends of the patients so attended, with a few singular exceptions, never return when relief is obtained.	Yes; the subscribers recommend the patients by tickets, which are kept in the dispensary.	There is a careful registry kept of all the cases, and of the medicines prescribed, &c.
	2,555. Principally fevers, and disorders of the digestive organs.	In round numbers, the persons so relieved (one year with another for the last three) amount to about 1,300; the diseases many, including those of the stomach and bowels, colds, fevers, coughs, consumptions, wounds, accidents, infirmities and debilities of age, and many others, too numerous to mention, and child-birth; there was but a single case of cholera.
Yes, numbers.	In a very few instances.	The rules of the dispensary exclude such persons from gratuitous relief, but this rule is not always observed.
By order of the medical officer on the house of Messrs. Leslie, Bride-street, Dublin.	A statement of necessary medicines is given by the medical attendant to treasurer, who sends for them to Messrs. Boileau & George, Dublin. orders the druggist to dispatch them to the dispensary. The druggists who have hitherto supplied this institution are Messrs. Boileau & George, Bride-street, Dublin.	The medical attendant furnishes a list of such medicines as he requires for the dispensary to the treasurer of the dispensary, who is also secretary, who
<table><tr><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1830 - £. 107 0 0</td><td>£. 105 6 3</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - 96 5 11</td><td>95 4 4</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - 124 11 4</td><td>106 18 3</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><td>1830.</td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td></tr><tr><td>Salary - £. 60 0 0</td><td>60 0 0</td><td>60 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine - 31 7 8</td><td>23 8 9</td><td>31 9 10</td></tr><tr><td>Rent - 9 4 7</td><td>9 4 7</td><td>9 4 7</td></tr><tr><td>Contingencies 4 14 0</td><td>2 11 0</td><td>6 3 10</td></tr></table>	Receipt.	Expenditure.	1830 - £. 107 0 0	£. 105 6 3	1831 - 96 5 11	95 4 4	1832 - 124 11 4	106 18 3	1830.	1831.	1832.	Salary - £. 60 0 0	60 0 0	60 0 0	Medicine - 31 7 8	23 8 9	31 9 10	Rent - 9 4 7	9 4 7	9 4 7	Contingencies 4 14 0	2 11 0	6 3 10	<table><tr><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - £. 102 6 2½</td><td>£. 102 6 2½</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - 88 9 0</td><td>88 9 0</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td></tr><tr><td>£. s. d.</td><td>£. s. d.</td></tr><tr><td>Medicines, and putting up Dispensary - 40 10 7½</td><td>14 6 2*</td></tr><tr><td>Salary - 61 15 7</td><td>73 12 10</td></tr></table> * Medicine only.	Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831 - £. 102 6 2½	£. 102 6 2½	1832 - 88 9 0	88 9 0	1831.	1832.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	Medicines, and putting up Dispensary - 40 10 7½	14 6 2*	Salary - 61 15 7	73 12 10	I cannot at present inspect the account of receipt and expenditure for the last three years, as I cannot obtain them at this moment; but I can state from recollection that the average amount of Receipt by Subscription is £. 45 0 0 annually. Ditto - Presentment - 45 0 0 „ £. 90 0 0 „ Expenditure: To Medical Attendant, Salary - £. 55 7 6 Druggist's bill - 35 0 0 £. 90 7 6
Receipt.	Expenditure.
1830 - £. 107 0 0	£. 105 6 3
1831 - 96 5 11	95 4 4
1832 - 124 11 4	106 18 3
1830.	1831.	1832.
Salary - £. 60 0 0	60 0 0	60 0 0
Medicine - 31 7 8	23 8 9	31 9 10
Rent - 9 4 7	9 4 7	9 4 7
Contingencies 4 14 0	2 11 0	6 3 10
Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831 - £. 102 6 2½	£. 102 6 2½
1832 - 88 9 0	88 9 0
1831.	1832.
£. s. d.	£. s. d.
Medicines, and putting up Dispensary - 40 10 7½	14 6 2*
Salary - 61 15 7	73 12 10
By presentments from the county.	By private subscriptions, and presentment of county Westmeath.	Supported partly by the voluntary subscriptions from the resident and some of the non-resident gentlemen of the district, and partly by a sum granted at the assizes of Mullingar, on presentment, exactly equal to the sum subscribed.
Yes; if the state of the funds would permit, the establishment of a soup kitchen, attached to the dispensary, would be of essential service.	I cannot.	Space on this paper is too confined to offer any suggestions that would render this charity more efficient for the relief of the poor.

LEINSTER—WEXFORD.

Bannow and Kilkivan Dispensary.	Bridgetown Dispensary.	Broadway Dispensary.
John Carroll, Esq., Surgeon.	Edward Peirce, Esq., Medical Attendant.	Thomas Lindsay, Esq., M. D.
Bannow and Kilkivan Dispensary, established in 1818, for the purpose of supplying the poor with medical advice, attendance, medicine, &c., free of expense. A fever hospital has been attached to this dispensary.	Bridgetown Dispensary, established about 1819, for relieving the poor.	Broadway Dispensary, established in the year 1826.
Three; Bannow, Kilkivan and St. Imogues, all in the county Wexford.	Twenty parishes, in one county.	Eighteen parishes, all in one county.
Fethard, Taghmon, Bridgetown, Arthurstown, Clongeen, Newbawn and Clonmines.	County Infirmary, 9 miles; Broadway Dispensary, 7; Bannow, 8.	Bridgetown Dispensary only, 7 miles distant.
There is no dispensary, hospital or infirmary, within my district.	There is only one dispensary. Salary 80 l. a year, and bound to attend the farming subscribers free, as an inducement, not having many gentlemen subscribers, and a great number of poor, in consequence of the fishery and mountain being in the district.	No.
I attend three dispensaries; Bannow and Kilkivan, where I reside, and for which I receive 80 l. per year. I attend three days in each week. Clongeen and Newbawn, 6 miles from my residence, for which I did receive 30 l. , now 35 l. I attend one day each week, and give attendance to those who are unable to attend the dispensary, whenever required; also Clonmines and Arklow Dispensary, 5 miles from my house, supported by Mr. Annesley, of Oxford; salary 15 l. ; attendance every Monday.	Attend only one dispensary; days of attendance, three times a week, and visit externs every day.	I attend but one dispensary, close by my residence. Salary, 100 l. per annum. Open three days in the week for extern patients, but obliged to be at all times in attendance, for the cases of necessity visited in their own dwellings.
I have always considered it my duty, in every case, to give my own personal attendance.	My own attendance.	I do imperatively.
A register has been kept of the applications, and the results have been attended with great advantage.	Accounts kept.	There is. Some visited at their own houses, others treated at the dispensary; with satisfaction to the public.
3,329 have been relieved within the last three years. Dyspepsia, bronchitis, acute and chronic, pleuritis, pneumonia, scrofula, phthisis, vermes, diarrhoea, cynanche tonsillaris, eruptions, ophthalmia, hepatitis, heart diseases, &c.	<table><tr><th>Dispensary Patients.</th><th>Visited at home.</th><th>Total Number of Patients.</th><th>Number of Prescriptions.</th><th>Cases of Typhus Fever.</th><th>Other Fever.</th><th>Death in Fever.</th><th>Death in other Diseases.</th></tr><tr><td>2790</td><td>792</td><td>3582</td><td>9382</td><td>35</td><td>243</td><td>7</td><td>16</td></tr></table>	Dispensary Patients.	Visited at home.	Total Number of Patients.	Number of Prescriptions.	Cases of Typhus Fever.	Other Fever.	Death in Fever.	Death in other Diseases.	2790	792	3582	9382	35	243	7	16	Within the period required by your question, the numbers relieved have been 4,709; and the cases included almost every class of disease, and a great variety of accidents.
Dispensary Patients.	Visited at home.	Total Number of Patients.	Number of Prescriptions.	Cases of Typhus Fever.	Other Fever.	Death in Fever.	Death in other Diseases.
2790	792	3582	9382	35	243	7	16
I do think persons have received gratuitous assistance from the dispensary who were in circumstances not to require it.	I attend the farming subscribers free, and all subscribers have medicine at cost price. The number of visits I paid the farmers is not included in the above, as I kept no account of them.	Very seldom indeed.
By Boileau & George, Druggists, Dublin.	Boileau & Co.	They are supplied by Mr. Jonathan Hill, Druggist, Capel-street, Dublin, when ordered by the Committee.
<table><tr><th></th><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>£. 147 6 0</td><td>£. 140 7 6</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>145 4 0</td><td>138 19 5 $\frac{1}{2}$</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>102 16 8</td><td>102 16 0</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. Salary, drugs, hospital expenses, wine, coals, rent, &c.		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831	£. 147 6 0	£. 140 7 6	1832	145 4 0	138 19 5 $\frac{1}{2}$	1833	102 16 8	102 16 0	<table><tr><th></th><th>Receipts.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>£. 174 13 4 $\frac{1}{2}$</td><td>£. 174 13 4 $\frac{1}{2}$</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>206 3 6</td><td>154 12 5</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>204 2 4</td><td>158 6 4</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>£. 584 19 2 $\frac{1}{2}$</td><td>£. 487 12 1 $\frac{1}{2}$</td></tr></table> Not knowing the amount paid by subscribers for medicine (as I do not keep the accounts), I cannot say accurately the amount of medicine for paupers; believe about 30l. a year.		Receipts.	Expenditure.	1831	£. 174 13 4 $\frac{1}{2}$	£. 174 13 4 $\frac{1}{2}$	1832	206 3 6	154 12 5	1833	204 2 4	158 6 4		£. 584 19 2 $\frac{1}{2}$	£. 487 12 1 $\frac{1}{2}$	<table><tr><th colspan="5">Receipt.</th></tr><tr><th>Years.</th><th>Balance in Treasurer's hands, 2p'ct. included.</th><th>Subscriptions.</th><th>Presentment.</th><th>Medicines sold to Subscribers only.</th></tr><tr><td></td><td>£. s. d.</td><td>£. s. d.</td><td>£. s. d.</td><td>£. s. d.</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>178 8 0</td><td>46 17 6</td><td>46 17 6</td><td>7 0 9</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>125 4 8 $\frac{1}{2}$</td><td>64 5 6</td><td>64 5 6</td><td>11 8 1</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>108 6 9 $\frac{1}{2}$</td><td>84 0 0</td><td>84 0 0</td><td>7 18 5 $\frac{1}{2}$</td></tr></table> General Heads of Expenditure. <table><tr><th>Years.</th><th>Salaries.</th><th>Medicine.</th><th>House Rent.</th><th>Codlin-gencies.</th><th>Total.</th></tr><tr><td></td><td>£. s. d.</td><td>£. s. d.</td><td>£. s. d.</td><td>£. s. d.</td><td>£. s. d.</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>104 0 0</td><td>35 11 1</td><td>5 0 0</td><td>10 12 9</td><td>155 3 10</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>104 0 0</td><td>44 9 11</td><td>5 0 0</td><td>4 9 5 $\frac{1}{2}$</td><td>157 19 4 $\frac{1}{2}$</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>104 0 0</td><td>52 19 11</td><td>5 0 0</td><td>5 10 7 $\frac{1}{2}$</td><td>167 10 6 $\frac{1}{2}$</td></tr></table>	Receipt.					Years.	Balance in Treasurer's hands, 2p'ct. included.	Subscriptions.	Presentment.	Medicines sold to Subscribers only.		£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	1831	178 8 0	46 17 6	46 17 6	7 0 9	1832	125 4 8 $\frac{1}{2}$	64 5 6	64 5 6	11 8 1	1833	108 6 9 $\frac{1}{2}$	84 0 0	84 0 0	7 18 5 $\frac{1}{2}$	Years.	Salaries.	Medicine.	House Rent.	Codlin-gencies.	Total.		£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	1831	104 0 0	35 11 1	5 0 0	10 12 9	155 3 10	1832	104 0 0	44 9 11	5 0 0	4 9 5 $\frac{1}{2}$	157 19 4 $\frac{1}{2}$	1833	104 0 0	52 19 11	5 0 0	5 10 7 $\frac{1}{2}$	167 10 6 $\frac{1}{2}$
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831	£. 147 6 0	£. 140 7 6
1832	145 4 0	138 19 5 $\frac{1}{2}$
1833	102 16 8	102 16 0
	Receipts.	Expenditure.
1831	£. 174 13 4 $\frac{1}{2}$	£. 174 13 4 $\frac{1}{2}$
1832	206 3 6	154 12 5
1833	204 2 4	158 6 4
	£. 584 19 2 $\frac{1}{2}$	£. 487 12 1 $\frac{1}{2}$
Receipt.
Years.	Balance in Treasurer's hands, 2p'ct. included.	Subscriptions.	Presentment.	Medicines sold to Subscribers only.
	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.
1831	178 8 0	46 17 6	46 17 6	7 0 9
1832	125 4 8 $\frac{1}{2}$	64 5 6	64 5 6	11 8 1
1833	108 6 9 $\frac{1}{2}$	84 0 0	84 0 0	7 18 5 $\frac{1}{2}$
Years.	Salaries.	Medicine.	House Rent.	Codlin-gencies.	Total.
	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.
1831	104 0 0	35 11 1	5 0 0	10 12 9	155 3 10
1832	104 0 0	44 9 11	5 0 0	4 9 5 $\frac{1}{2}$	157 19 4 $\frac{1}{2}$
1833	104 0 0	52 19 11	5 0 0	5 10 7 $\frac{1}{2}$	167 10 6 $\frac{1}{2}$
By presentment from the county Wexford only.	By subscriptions and presentments, in one county.	By subscription and presentment, all from county.
I cannot suggest any alteration in the distribution of the funds of the dispensary, which would render it more efficient for the relief of the poor.	As a substitute for a fever hospital, which some of the subscribers proposed, I recommended the calling in of nurses in all fever cases, and paying them from the funds, which has had the effect of checking the progress of fever.	The funds are on the increase, and it appears to want little alteration.

LEINSTER—WEXFORD.

Camolin Dispensary.	Clongeen and Newbawn Dispensary.	Coolgreny and Limerick Dispensary.
Thomas Irvine, Esq., M.D.	John Carroll, Esq., Surgeon.	D. Wright, Esq., M.D.
The Camolin Dispensary, established on the 28th day of June, in the year 1814.	Clongeen and Newbawn Dispensary, established in 1820, for the purpose of supplying the poor with medical advice, attendance, medicine, &c., free of expense.	Coolgreny and Limerick United Dispensary, for giving advice, medicine, and occasional sustenance to the sick poor, established in 1829.
There are seven parishes in my district, and all in the county of Wexford.	Four; Clongeen, Newbawn, Inch and Rosegarland, all in the county Wexford.	Two whole parishes, and part of two more, all in the same county.
The Gorey Dispensary and Fever Hospital, and the Ferns Dispensary, are within seven miles of this.	Bannow and Kilkevan, Clonmines, Taghmon, Fethard, and Arthurstown.	Gorey, Carnew, Tinnahely, Arklow.
There is no other dispensary within my district.	There is no dispensary, hospital or infirmary, within my district.	No.
I attend but this one, and am obliged to attend at the dispensary two days in the week; but as the dispensary is attached to my house, every day, in fact, I am in it; I have a salary of 90 l. a year.	I attend three dispensaries; Clongeen and Newbawn, for which I receive 35 l. per year: Bannow and Kilkevan, for which I receive 80 l. per year; attendance three days each week: Clonmines and Arklow, supported solely by Mr. Annesley, of Bletchingham, Oxford, 15 l. per year.	One dispensary; residence two miles and a half from Coolgreny, five miles from Limerick; attendance two days each week; in cases of emergency, daily.
I consider it my duty to attend personally in all cases where the patients are unable to attend at the dispensary, and being ordered by a ticket from a subscriber.	I have always considered it my duty in every case to give my own personal attendance.	Yes.
There is a register kept of all applications, and by whom recommended, and all attended to.	A register has been kept of the applications, and the results have been attended with great advantage.	Yes.
<table><tr><td></td><td>Number relieved.</td><td>Children vaccinated.</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - -</td><td>1,373</td><td>118</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - -</td><td>1,854</td><td>22</td></tr><tr><td>1833 - -</td><td>1,896</td><td>201</td></tr></table>		Number relieved.	Children vaccinated.	1831 - -	1,373	118	1832 - -	1,854	22	1833 - -	1,896	201	2,972 have been relieved within the last three years; dyspepsia, bronchitis, acute and chronic, pleuritis, pneumonia, scrofula, phthisis, vermes, diarrhoea, cynanche, tonsillaris, eruptions, ophthalmia, hepatitis, heart disease, &c.	Number relieved, 13,455. Fevers, pulmonary and bowel complaints, rheumatism, stomach complaints, diseases of the skin, children's diseases, &c.
	Number relieved.	Children vaccinated.
1831 - -	1,373	118
1832 - -	1,854	22
1833 - -	1,896	201
Very few apply to the dispensary who are able to pay for medicines and attendance.	I do think persons have received gratuitous assistance from the dispensary who were in circumstances not to require it.	Many are given gratuitous advice without medicine.
The medicines are supplied by John Glenton, Druggist, Parliament-street, Dublin, and from the funds of the institution.	By Boileau & George, Druggists, Dublin.	By a wholesale druggist, on the requisition of the treasurer.
<table><tr><td></td><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1831 -</td><td>£. 132 12 11</td><td>£. 109 16 5½</td></tr><tr><td>1832 -</td><td>119 10 5</td><td>133 18 7½</td></tr><tr><td>1833 -</td><td>123 1 11</td><td>140 19 4½</td></tr></table>		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831 -	£. 132 12 11	£. 109 16 5½	1832 -	119 10 5	133 18 7½	1833 -	123 1 11	140 19 4½	<table><tr><td></td><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1831 -</td><td>£. 34 0 0</td><td>£. 50 18 3</td></tr><tr><td>1832 -</td><td>70 0 0</td><td>72 6 7½</td></tr><tr><td>1833 -</td><td>56 4 0</td><td>48 13 7½</td></tr></table>		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831 -	£. 34 0 0	£. 50 18 3	1832 -	70 0 0	72 6 7½	1833 -	56 4 0	48 13 7½	<table><tr><td></td><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1830 -</td><td>£. 129 2 0</td><td>£. 139 2 0</td></tr><tr><td>1831 -</td><td>133 2 0</td><td>119 1 10</td></tr><tr><td>1832 -</td><td>127 3 0</td><td>117 13 11</td></tr></table>		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1830 -	£. 129 2 0	£. 139 2 0	1831 -	133 2 0	119 1 10	1832 -	127 3 0	117 13 11
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831 -	£. 132 12 11	£. 109 16 5½
1832 -	119 10 5	133 18 7½
1833 -	123 1 11	140 19 4½
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831 -	£. 34 0 0	£. 50 18 3
1832 -	70 0 0	72 6 7½
1833 -	56 4 0	48 13 7½
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1830 -	£. 129 2 0	£. 139 2 0
1831 -	133 2 0	119 1 10
1832 -	127 3 0	117 13 11
GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.		GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.
<table><tr><td></td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td><td>1833.</td></tr><tr><td>Salary -</td><td>£. 70 0 0</td><td>90 0 0</td><td>90 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine -</td><td>21 19 4</td><td>24 3 9</td><td>29 2 5</td></tr><tr><td>House-rent -</td><td>4 12 3</td><td>4 12 4</td><td>4 12 4</td></tr><tr><td>Contingencies</td><td>13 4 10½</td><td>15 2 6½</td><td>17 4 7½</td></tr></table>		1831.	1832.	1833.	Salary -	£. 70 0 0	90 0 0	90 0 0	Medicine -	21 19 4	24 3 9	29 2 5	House-rent -	4 12 3	4 12 4	4 12 4	Contingencies	13 4 10½	15 2 6½	17 4 7½		Medicine, Sustenance, Rent, Physician's Salary, &c.
	1831.	1832.	1833.
Salary -	£. 70 0 0	90 0 0	90 0 0
Medicine -	21 19 4	24 3 9	29 2 5
House-rent -	4 12 3	4 12 4	4 12 4
Contingencies	13 4 10½	15 2 6½	17 4 7½
Half by private subscription, and half by grant from the grand jury of the county.	By presentment from the county of Wexford only.	By subscription, and presentment from one county only.
If it could be accomplished, or that our funds were equal to it, the establishment of a fever hospital would be of the greatest utility.	I cannot suggest any alteration in the distribution of the funds of the dispensary which would render it more efficient for the relief of the poor.	I cannot; the funds are as well applied as, I think, they can be.

LEINSTER—WEXFORD.

Ferns Dispensary.	Fethard Dispensary.	Killena Dispensary.
F. Macartney, Esq., M.D.	Secretary and Medical Attendant.	B. Porter, Esq., Surgeon.
Ferns Dispensary.	Fethard Dispensary, established in the year 1817.	There is no Hospital or Infirmary; name of Dispensary, Killena, established in 1828.
Three; and in the same county (Wexford).	Three parishes, Fethard, Hook and Temple-town, all in the county Wexford.	Six, all in the same county.
Dispensaries at Enniscorthy, Newtownbarry, Gorey, Oulart, Camolin, Carnew: to the four former, Fever Hospitals are attached.	Arthurstown Dispensary.	An Hospital in Gorey, and one in Oulart. A Dispensary in Camolin, and one in Ferns.
None.	—	No.
I attend two Dispensaries, one at Enniscorthy, where I reside, and another at Ferns, six miles distant. I also attend the Enniscorthy Fever Hospitals and Dispensary, for which I receive 60 l. per year. For Ferns Dispensary, 50 l. per year. I attend the former three days in the week, the latter twice, but this I am about to resign.	I only attend the Fethard Dispensary. My annual salary, 86 l. ; attendance on three days in the week.	I am not in charge of any other Dispensary but Killena, which I attend three days in the week.
Yes.	Yes.	I do.
In both dispensaries and hospital an exact register is kept of each case and mode of treatment, but it would be impossible to state the result in most instances, from the difficulty of inducing the lower classes to give their attendance for that purpose.	Yes, and all have been attended to.	There is a register.
1831 - - - - 2,620 1832 - - - - 2,630 1833 - - - - 2,664	The number relieved during the past three years, was 2,781. The general diseases, fevers, colds and diseases of the chest.	7887: fever, dysentery, ague, accidents, mid-wifery, &c.
Not unfrequently.	Such persons, sometimes by false statements, obtrude themselves, but it is the desire of myself and the committee to exclude them.	No.
Messrs. Boileau & George.	The medicines are purchased by the committee from the Messrs. Whites, Druggists, Waterford.	This will appear in answer to the next query.
<table> <tr> <th></th><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure</th></tr> <tr> <td>1831</td><td>- £. 145 7 2</td><td>£. 144 16 1</td></tr> <tr> <td>1832</td><td>- 134 12 6</td><td>134 2 4</td></tr> <tr> <td>1833</td><td>- 131 8 4</td><td>131 8 4</td></tr> </table>		Receipt.	Expenditure	1831	- £. 145 7 2	£. 144 16 1	1832	- 134 12 6	134 2 4	1833	- 131 8 4	131 8 4	<table> <tr> <th></th><th>Income.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr> <tr> <td>1831</td><td>- £. 154 9 0</td><td>£. 188 13 0½</td></tr> <tr> <td>1832</td><td>- 143 0 0</td><td>129 15 11½</td></tr> <tr> <td>1833</td><td>- 147 0 0</td><td>137 0 0</td></tr> </table>		Income.	Expenditure.	1831	- £. 154 9 0	£. 188 13 0½	1832	- 143 0 0	129 15 11½	1833	- 147 0 0	137 0 0	<table> <tr> <th></th><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr> <tr> <td>1830</td><td>- £. 174 15 0</td><td>£. 146 11 10½</td></tr> <tr> <td>1831</td><td>- 182 9 1½</td><td>156 16 0</td></tr> <tr> <td>1832</td><td>- 178 13 1½</td><td>152 5 2</td></tr> </table>		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1830	- £. 174 15 0	£. 146 11 10½	1831	- 182 9 1½	156 16 0	1832	- 178 13 1½	152 5 2
	Receipt.	Expenditure
1831	- £. 145 7 2	£. 144 16 1
1832	- 134 12 6	134 2 4
1833	- 131 8 4	131 8 4
	Income.	Expenditure.
1831	- £. 154 9 0	£. 188 13 0½
1832	- 143 0 0	129 15 11½
1833	- 147 0 0	137 0 0
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1830	- £. 174 15 0	£. 146 11 10½
1831	- 182 9 1½	156 16 0
1832	- 178 13 1½	152 5 2
GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table> <tr> <th></th><th>1830.</th><th>1831.</th></tr> <tr> <td>Surgeon's Salary</td><td>- £. 90 0 0</td><td>£. 90 0 0</td></tr> <tr> <td>Medicine</td><td>- - 39 7 0</td><td>48 5 2</td></tr> <tr> <td>Rent, &c.</td><td>- - 7 12 6</td><td>8 5 0</td></tr> <tr> <td>Sundries</td><td>- - 9 12 4½</td><td>10 5 10</td></tr> </table>				1830.	1831.	Surgeon's Salary	- £. 90 0 0	£. 90 0 0	Medicine	- - 39 7 0	48 5 2	Rent, &c.	- - 7 12 6	8 5 0	Sundries	- - 9 12 4½	10 5 10
	1830.	1831.
Surgeon's Salary	- £. 90 0 0	£. 90 0 0
Medicine	- - 39 7 0	48 5 2
Rent, &c.	- - 7 12 6	8 5 0
Sundries	- - 9 12 4½	10 5 10
By private subscriptions. and county presentments; the latter from the county Wexford alone.	By private voluntary subscription, and an equal sum by presentment on the county of Wexford.	Partly by subscription, partly by presentment, the presentment all from one county.
From many years' superintendence of dispensaries; and careful observation of the extent of actual benefit derived from them, I am of opinion, that the establishment of hospitals, on a limited scale, throughout each county of Ireland, would be followed with more beneficial effects to the poor, and to cases absolutely requiring medical aid, than the desultory, irregular and dissatisfactory manner in which patients are now treated at Dispensaries, however vigilant, talented or benevolent the medical superintendent may happen to be; and I am farther of opinion, that much time is lost, and a great deal of disease induced by the habit persons fall into of attending at dispensaries and taking medicines for trifling complaints that would yield to time and the influence of the vis medicatrix nature .	I do not conceive that in the distribution of our present limited funds, there could be any improvement; but if our means were adequate for the building and support of a fever Hospital, I should conceive such an Institution of the most essential benefit to the health of the district.	No.

577
57

LEINSTER—WEXFORD and WICKLOW.

Screen, Castle Ellis and Ardcolin Dispensary.	Taghmon and Horetown Dispensary.	Blessington Dispensary.
J. M. Satlock, Esq., M. D.	John Widdup, Esq., Surgeon.	George Robinson, Esq., M. D.
The united Dispensaries of Screen, Castle Ellis and Ardcolin; established in the year 1829.	The name of the dispensary is the Taghmon and Horetown Dispensary; there is not more than one; its object is to afford medical and surgical aid, together with medicine, to such poor as cannot procure them by any other means. Established in November 1819.	Blessington Dispensary; established in the year 1819. None other.
There are ten parishes in the district, all of the same county.	There are seven parishes; viz. Taghmon, Horetown, Kilgarvan, Ballymitty, Ballyconnick, Trinity and Coolstuffe, and parts of the parishes of Killuran, Whitechurch and Ballinglee, all in the same county.	The parishes of Blessington, Baltiboys, Hollywood, Kilebeg, Granabeg and Kilbride, in the county of Wicklow. Parts of the parishes of Rathmore, Edestown and Kilteel, in county of Kildare, and parts of the parishes of Ballymore, Crehelp and Tipperkevin, county of Dublin.
The Oulart Dispensary and County Infirmary.	The Clongeen and Newbawn, the Bannow and Kilkivan, the Clonmine, and the Bridgetown Dispensaries; the Wexford County Infirmary and Fever Hospital.	Fever hospitals and dispensaries at Naas and Kilkullen, in the county of Kildare, and a dispensary at Dunlavin, county of Wicklow.
There is no dispensary or hospital within my district.	There is neither hospital nor infirmary in the district; the salary of the surgeon for attending dispensary patients 60 l. per annum.	No.
The dispensary is divided into three stations, one at Screen, one at Kyle, and the other at Castle Bridge, where I reside; the other two stations (Kyle and Screen) are about four miles distant from me, in opposite directions. My salary 70 l. per annum, and obliged to attend one day in the week at each station.	I do not attend more than one dispensary; it is situated at my residence, and required to be attended three days in the week, viz. Monday, Wednesday and Friday; the salary is mentioned above, 60 l. per annum.	No.
I am obliged to do so, according to our dispensary regulations.	In all cases within the district, when recommended by a subscriber.	Personal attendance is always given.
This is also another of our regulations. A register is kept of all cases coming under the care of the surgeon	There is a register kept of all cases that received aid from the dispensary.	A registry is kept.
Patients relieved 3,513. Fevers, ague, pleurisy, inflammation of the bowels and stomach, dysentery, pneumonia, ophthalmia, &c. &c. Midwifery cases also attended to.	1,329 cases were relieved during the last three years. Fevers, phthisis, pneumonia, catarrh, hepatitis, dysentery, scrophula, variola, cholera, rubcola, midwifery cases, fractures, dislocations and tumours, were more numerous than other diseases.	1,500 persons are on an average annually treated, and receive aid from this dispensary.
Never: such persons are excluded by our dispensary regulations.	This seldom occurs, it being contrary to the rules of the institution.	I may say never, as the subscribers are cautious not to recommend any persons able to pay for medicine or advice.
From the funds of the institution, by Messrs. Boileau & George, Dublin.	They are imported from Dublin (Messrs. Boileau & George, Druggists, Bride-street), and compounded as well as prescribed by the surgeon of the dispensary.	The medicines are purchased by the committee of the dispensary, from Messrs. Boileau & George, Druggists, Bride-street.
<table><tr><th></th><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>£. 118 9 0</td><td>£. 114 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>119 11 0½</td><td>115 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>123 3 4</td><td>110 3 4</td></tr></table>		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831	£. 118 9 0	£. 114 0 0	1832	119 11 0½	115 0 0	1833	123 3 4	110 3 4	<table><tr><th></th><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>£. 146 7 1</td><td>£. 146 10 2½</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>106 6 1½</td><td>94 6 0½</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>95 10 1½</td><td>98 0 1½</td></tr></table> The chief expenditure was for the surgeon's salary, and for medicine.		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831	£. 146 7 1	£. 146 10 2½	1832	106 6 1½	94 6 0½	1833	95 10 1½	98 0 1½	Amount of subscriptions for the last three years has averaged 70 l. An equal sum has been given by the county. Of this, 80 l. per annum has been given to the medical attendant; 10 l. per annum for a house. The rest has been consumed by medicines, other attendance, and giving subsistence to the destitute during their illness.
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831	£. 118 9 0	£. 114 0 0
1832	119 11 0½	115 0 0
1833	123 3 4	110 3 4
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831	£. 146 7 1	£. 146 10 2½
1832	106 6 1½	94 6 0½
1833	95 10 1½	98 0 1½
By private subscription, and a grant by presentment from the county Wexford only.	It is supported by subscriptions and presentments; the presentments not obtained from more than one county.	By private subscription and annual county grant.
I cannot, as I consider the institution to be managed as regards economy, and the purpose for which it is designed, the relief of the sick poor of the district, in the best manner possible, under the direction of Sir Francis Le Hunte Astramont.	The present funds are so limited, that I cannot suggest any alteration therein that would render the establishment more efficient. Should they be sufficiently increased, however, to support a fever hospital, such an object would be a desideratum.	I can suggest no alteration in the funds which would render the institution more useful. It is generally allowed to be very efficient.

LEINSTER—WICKLOW.

Carnew Dispensary.	Dunlavin Dispensary.	Rathdrum Dispensary.
Thomas De Renzy, Esq., M. D.	John Hatch, Esq., M. D.	Charles Clarke, Esq. M. D.
Carnew Dispensary, established about the year 1820. Its object is to relieve the sick poor with medicine and advice gratis, and to attend at their residence any requiring such.	The dispensary under my care is known by the name of the Dunlavin Dispensary.	Rathdrum Dispensary, established in the year 1811.
The district is not well defined; it has always been the object to give all the relief possible. The whole parish of Carnew is included, but the poor of other parishes attend and are relieved; some of such parishes are in the county of Wexford, and in a few instances persons from Carlow county are relieved.	There are five parishes in my district, situated in the counties of Wicklow, Kildare and Dublin.	The whole parish of Rathdrum (an extensive mountainous tract), and the adjoining parts of two others, all in the county of Wicklow.
Gorey, Camolin, Ferns, Newtown Barry, Clonegal, Shillelagh, Tinnahely; the distance is computed in Irish measure.	Stratford Fever Hospital, county of Wicklow; Infirmary Baltinglass, Kilcullen and Ballitore Dispensaries.	Wicklow Infirmary (to which a dispensary is attached), Arklow Fever Hospital and Dispensary, and Aughrim Dispensary.
No.	There is no dispensary attached to any hospital or infirmary in my district that I am aware of.	There is not.
I attend the dispensary of Carnew and another; it is one mile from my residence; salary 100 l. per annum. I attend every day, Sunday not excepted.	None.	I attend but one dispensary, and that daily.
Yes.	No; for whenever my personal attendance is required, the subscriber who recommends the person to the dispensary particularly mentions it in the admission ticket he gives if I am required to attend.	Certainly, and I have visited both medical and surgical cases where patients were unable to attend the dispensary.
A register is kept of the number of applications, and it was endeavoured to register the results, but this could not be accomplished; for when a person recovered, such person did not feel it incumbent to return to state the result.	There is a register kept of the number of patients admitted to the dispensary, and their diseases recorded.	I have not kept a register of the cases, with the result, &c.; but I shall give a statement of the number of persons who have presented themselves daily for advice and medicine for the last three years.
1831 - - - - 1,569 1832 - - - - 1,656 1833 - - - - 2,065 5,290	1831 - - - - 1,489 1832 - - - - 1,232 1833 - - - - 1,248 The diseases for the most part are affections of the lungs, liver, fevers, diseases of the skin, and casual epidemic diseases.	1830 - - - - 6,370 1831 - - - - 6,605 1832 - - - - 6,211
Every disease to which the human race is liable and affected with.
This may possibly be the case, but very rarely indeed. Many require medical advice, and that I give to every person asking, gratis, without inquiry into circumstances.	It often happens by such persons imposing on the subscribers not knowing their circumstances.	It has sometimes happened that such persons have applied, but I have used every exertion to correct such abuse of the charity.
The medicines are partly purchased from Messrs. Boileau, in Dublin, partly collected by myself in the country, but without any charge; viz. vegetable medicines growing in the neighbourhood, such as fox-glove and hemlock.	The medicines are supplied by myself.	Orders are sent quarterly (sanctioned by the committee) to Messrs. Boileau & George, 88, Bride-street, Druggists, Dublin, who supply the medicines.
I am not aware of this.	<table><tr><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>1831 - £. 174 16 4</td><td>£. 122 12 1</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - 162 9 0</td><td>100 2 0</td></tr><tr><td>1833 - 179 1 1</td><td>118 4 4½</td></tr></table> The balance in Treasurer's hands of each year going to support the expenses of the ensuing one.	Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831 - £. 174 16 4	£. 122 12 1	1832 - 162 9 0	100 2 0	1833 - 179 1 1	118 4 4½	<table><tr><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>1831 - - £. 189 13 0</td><td>£. 193 8 5</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - - 193 14 1</td><td>185 16 7</td></tr><tr><td>1833 - - 194 6 7</td><td>160 10 11</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><th></th><th>1831.</th><th>1832.</th><th>1833.</th></tr><tr><td>Salaries - - -</td><td>£. 112 10 8</td><td>112 15 8½</td><td>110 11 2</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine - - -</td><td>31 7 7½</td><td>33 19 6</td><td>22 12 5</td></tr><tr><td>Rent - - - -</td><td>21 0 0</td><td>21 0 0</td><td>21 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Repairs - - -</td><td>4 0 0</td><td>8 9 6</td><td>0 10 6</td></tr><tr><td>Fuel - - - -</td><td>1 5 0</td><td>1 2 6</td><td>1 1 3</td></tr><tr><td>Contingencies -</td><td>9 4 5½</td><td>4 14 0</td><td>4 15 7</td></tr><tr><td>Balance paid Treas. -</td><td>14 0 8</td><td>3 15 5</td><td>-</td></tr></table> The distance of a county fever hospital from Rathdrum being ten miles, we have fitted up two rooms capable of containing eight beds for the reception of patients. This will explain the item in expenditure for a nurse (6 l.), as well as repairs, &c. &c.	Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831 - - £. 189 13 0	£. 193 8 5	1832 - - 193 14 1	185 16 7	1833 - - 194 6 7	160 10 11		1831.	1832.	1833.	Salaries - - -	£. 112 10 8	112 15 8½	110 11 2	Medicine - - -	31 7 7½	33 19 6	22 12 5	Rent - - - -	21 0 0	21 0 0	21 0 0	Repairs - - -	4 0 0	8 9 6	0 10 6	Fuel - - - -	1 5 0	1 2 6	1 1 3	Contingencies -	9 4 5½	4 14 0	4 15 7	Balance paid Treas. -	14 0 8	3 15 5	-
Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831 - £. 174 16 4	£. 122 12 1
1832 - 162 9 0	100 2 0
1833 - 179 1 1	118 4 4½
Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831 - - £. 189 13 0	£. 193 8 5
1832 - - 193 14 1	185 16 7
1833 - - 194 6 7	160 10 11
	1831.	1832.	1833.
Salaries - - -	£. 112 10 8	112 15 8½	110 11 2
Medicine - - -	31 7 7½	33 19 6	22 12 5
Rent - - - -	21 0 0	21 0 0	21 0 0
Repairs - - -	4 0 0	8 9 6	0 10 6
Fuel - - - -	1 5 0	1 2 6	1 1 3
Contingencies -	9 4 5½	4 14 0	4 15 7
Balance paid Treas. -	14 0 8	3 15 5	-
Partly by subscriptions, and partly by presentments obtained from the county of Wicklow alone.	It is supported by private contributions, and a yearly grant from the county of Wicklow only.	Supported by donations, subscriptions and grand jury presentments, from the county Wicklow only.
I have not given this subject the consideration in all its bearings it deserves.	None.	I cannot.

LEINSTER—WICKLOW.		MUNSTER—CLARE.
Tinnahely Dispensary.		Ballinacally Dispensary.
Francis Henry Morton, Esq. M.D.		—
The dispensary under my care is situated in the town of Tinnahely, and was first established in the year 1817.		Ballinacally Dispensary, established in 1832.
There are five parishes included in my district, four of them in the county of Wicklow, and one in the county Carlow.		Two parishes, Kilchrist and Clondegad, both in same county.
There are five dispensaries within ten miles of me.		Kildysart Dispensary, three miles: there is a Fever Hospital and County Infirmary in Ennis, being eight miles.
There is no other dispensary or hospital in my district; my salary is 75 l. per annum.		None.
I have no other dispensary or hospital to attend; I attend at the dispensary three days in the week, and I visit the out-patients when necessary on the other days.		No.
I consider it my duty to attend in all cases.		No; Dr. Finucane alone attended.
There is a register kept of all cases relieved at the dispensary.		Yes; a register was kept by Dr. Finucane, who has left the place, another doctor and treasurer being appointed. I am not now aware of how it is conducted.
There has been relieved at the Tinnahely Dispensary, in the year 1831, 1,515 patients; in the year 1832, 1,381; and in the year 1833, 1,895 patients.		—
It does sometimes happen that persons have received advice and medicine who were not in distressed circumstances.		I do not know.
The medicines are purchased at first cost in Dublin at Messrs. Boileau's and Co.		By the doctor, from the medical repositories of Limerick. He being best judge of medicine, I furnished him with cash for that purpose.
<table><tr><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - £. 106 19 7</td><td>£. 105 7 8½</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - 119 6 2</td><td>107 3 7</td></tr><tr><td>1833 - 114 17 8</td><td>121 4 10</td></tr></table>		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831 - £. 106 19 7	£. 105 7 8½	1832 - 119 6 2	107 3 7	1833 - 114 17 8	121 4 10	Not in existence for more than a year and a half.
Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831 - £. 106 19 7	£. 105 7 8½
1832 - 119 6 2	107 3 7
1833 - 114 17 8	121 4 10
It is supported by private subscriptions and county presentments.		By voluntary subscriptions, the county in most cases paying equal to the subscriptions; but in this case it was presented for twice, and each time only a part granted by the grand jury.
The funds of the dispensary are too small to admit of any further relief to the poor.		Not at present.

MUNSTER—CLARE.
Corofin Dispensary.
A. H. Blood, Esq., Surgeon.
The Corofin Dispensary.
Nine; viz. Kilnaboy, Rath, Dysart, Ruan, Kilkeedy, Kiltonarty, Inagh, Cluana and Kilnamona: they are all in this county.
Kilfenora Dispensary, six miles; Ennis Dispensary, County Infirmary and Fever Hospital, eight miles; and Crusheen Dispensary, eight miles.
No.
I only attend this dispensary, and the salary 50 l. Three days in each week; and when necessary, I attend patients at their dwellings.
I do.
There is a register kept.
I only became in attendance on this dispensary upon the death of the former medical gentleman, which was during the last year, and in May last I opened a registry. The number of entries to March 1834, 2,390.
Not to my knowledge, they bringing tickets from the subscribers.
By the committee, from the Apothecaries' Hall Company.
<table><tr><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1833 - £. 108 12 0</td><td>£. 108 12 0</td></tr></table>		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1833 - £. 108 12 0	£. 108 12 0
Receipt.	Expenditure.
1833 - £. 108 12 0	£. 108 12 0
GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.
Salary - - - £. 50 0 0
Additional ditto - - 11 19 0
Rent - - - 46 13 0
By subscriptions and presentment from this county only.
If the funds were sufficient, I should recommend the establishment of an hospital for the benefit of such persons as should not be able to go to the County Hospital or Infirmary, from want of conveyance or mode of obtaining such, or not being able to go such a distance in a common car; and again for accidents, rather than allowing them to remain in their wretched hovels when they could not have proper attendance.

MUNSTER—CLARE.

Clare Dispensary.	Crusheen Dispensary.	Doonas Dispensary.
Michael Healy, Esq., M. D.	John Silver, Esq., M. D.
The dispensary of Clare; there is only one; it was established in the year 1832.	The Crusheen Dispensary (being the only one under my superintendence) was established at the Summer assizes of 1831, for the purpose of affording medical aid to the poor of the district.	Dispensary of Doonas, established in the year 1828.
There is no definite number of parishes included in the district, any person bringing a ticket from a subscriber being entitled to medical aid; but in general the applicants reside in either the parish of Clare Abbey, in which the dispensary is, or in the adjoining parishes of Ballyea, Dromcliff and Doura.	Six parishes, which are all in Clare, except one in Galway.	Two parishes in the same county.
A dispensary at Newmarket, in Fergus, within five miles; one at Quin, about five miles; one at Ballinakally, about seven miles.	The County Infirmary, the Corofin Dispensary, the Quin Dispensary, the Tulla Dispensary and the Gort Dispensary.	The dispensary of Killaloe is within seven miles in the county of Clare; Limerick is within five miles; and Castleconnell Dispensary, in the county of Limerick, within six of Doonas.
The county of Clare Infirmary is situated in Ennis, within two miles of my dispensary; there are two medical men attached to it, with, I think, an annual salary of 100 l. each.	There is no hospital, infirmary or dispensary within my district, but that to which I have been appointed; the salary for attending varies with the amount of subscription.	The Doonas Dispensary is the only medical establishment supported by charity for the relief of the poor within its district.
I only attend the Clare Dispensary; this I attend on Wednesdays and Saturdays from 11 A. M. to 2 P. M. My salary is dependent on the amount of contributions. I have only been a few months attached to the institution. The salary of my predecessor (Dr. Cullinan) was about 40 l. annually.	I only attend the Crusheen Dispensary, which is seven miles from my residence, and for which I merely receive 55 l. My presence is required so long on two week days as there are patients to be relieved.	I attend but one dispensary, and am resident in the parish, and am required to attend two days each week.
I do not think I am bound to give my personal attendance, except on the dispensary days and hours; but I would not decline giving it, except in cases where it would be attended with much personal inconvenience. The remuneration which I receive being small, I do not think it could fairly be expected that I would give my personal attendance whenever it may be required in a district so extensive as that in which I reside.	I do, or else to provide the attendance of a competent medical man when my professional avocations are required elsewhere.	Written tickets are given by the subscribers to the poor within the district, who are unable from illness to come to the dispensary, and I am obliged to visit them at their houses on any day of the week my personal attendance is required.
A register of the names of patients, by whom recommended, and their diseases, has been kept by me since my appointment to the charge of the dispensary.	A register is kept of the names and residence of the patients, as also of the persons by whom they are recommended, and of the nature and treatment of their diseases.	There is a register kept by the medical officer of the names, residences and diseases of all persons who apply for medical relief. The applicants are attended either at the dispensary or at their houses.
Generally speaking, there are about 24 applicants on each dispensary-day; making about 48 weekly.	No less than three thousand persons have been afforded relief within the last 18 months, being the time during which a register has been kept, the majority of whom have been afflicted with dyspepsia, ulcers, diarrhoea, &c.
Subscribers sometimes give orders to persons who are not really objects of charity, and who can afford to pay for medical attendance; but this does not often happen.	Never, unless under urgent circumstances.	It sometimes does, from the subscribers, on whose recommendations applications are received by the medical officer, not being sufficiently acquainted of the applicant, and from other incidental causes.
The medicines are purchased from a druggist, and paid for from the funds of the institution.	The medical attendant usually supplies the treasurer with a list of the requisite medicines, which he procures in Limerick or Dublin.	Medicines are supplied, on the order of the treasurer of dispensary, by Mr. Frith, Surgeon and Druggist, Charlotte's Quay, Limerick.
Receipt. Expenditure. 1832-33 - £. 72 1 4 £. 71 15 2 GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. Surgeon's Salary - £. 40 0 0 Medicines - - - 26 15 2 Rent of Dispensary - - 5 0 0	Receipt. Expenditure. 1832 - £. 131 10 0 131 10 0 GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. Medicines, &c. - - £. 40 19 1½ Physician's Salary - - 55 0 0 Apothecary's ditto, house- } 35 10 10½ rent, &c - - - }
It is supported partly by voluntary contributions, and partly by presentment granted by the grand jury of the county of Clare.	By subscriptions and presentment, which is obtained from the grand jury of the above county.	By presentments from one county.
I think, as far as the funds of the dispensary go, they are disposed of in the best manner to effect the object for which they are intended.	I do not conceive it possible that dispensaries, supported as they at present are, can be of much utility in relieving actual disease.	If there were funds to meet the expenses of affording the poor throughout the year proper clothing, food and dwellings, I am convinced disease amongst them would in a short time, and to a very considerable extent, decrease.

MUNSTER—CLARE.

Ennistymon Dispensary.	Kildysart Dispensary.	Kilfenora Dispensary.
Treasurer and Medical Attendants.	Committee and Medical Attendant.	Committee and Medical Attendant.
Ennistymon Dispensary, established in October 1822: the then treasurer was changed in 1829, and Archdeacon Whitty appointed, who resigned in July 1833.	The Kildysart Dispensary, established 18 years.	There is but one institution under my care, the name of which is the Kilfenora Dispensary. The object of it is to relieve the wants of the poor, and have a resident medical man. It was established in the year 1832.
There are seven parishes in our district, all in Clare, exclusive of nearly one-half of three other parishes, all numerous inhabited.	Three, all in the county of Clare.	There are seven parishes, all in the same county.
The Corofin, nine miles; the Milltown seven, and the Kilfenora, established in the last year, four miles.	The Dispensaries of Knock and Ballinacally; no hospital or infirmary within 10 miles.	There are two dispensaries, viz. Ennisymon and Corofin; but no infirmary or public hospital.
No hospital or infirmary, consequently no dispensary attached within our district.	None.	There is no hospital or infirmary within my district.
In answer to this query, we must first state that there are two attendants to this dispensary, a physician and surgeon, at the trifling annual salary of 25 l. each, and are not in the care of any other dispensary.	None.	I only attend the Kilfenora Dispensary, and am obliged to reside in the city. The amount of salary is what remains in treasurer's hands after paying for medicines and all other necessary expenses for dispensary; and I am required to attend two days in the week, and urgent cases on other days, should they occur.
We consider it our duty to give our personal attendance in such cases, and which we are daily in the habit of doing.	Always.	I do certainly.
A register is kept; all applications attended to, and in general the results have been favourable.	A register is kept.	There is.
In consequence of the death of the late surgeon Finucane, we cannot say precisely the number of patients; but according to the calculation of the present year, on an average, 1,604 have been annually relieved.	The number of persons 1,642. patients under my care, who have received gratuitous relief from the institution. The diseases, generally speaking, were inflammations of different kinds, fevers, differing in type, asthmas, consumptions, wounds, ulcers, venereal disease, cancer, spine complaints, fractures, catarrhs, rheumatism, scurvy, cholera, dysentery, eruptions of different classifications, with many others too numerous to give insertion to here with any satisfaction, &c	I have only been in charge of the dispensary since the middle of September last, (three months) a vacancy having then occurred by the death of my predecessor; since which time there have been 700
None; but if by chance any, they must be few, being acquainted with the localities of the country and circumstances of its inhabitants.	Very seldom.	It does, but very rarely.
We, the medical attendants, present the treasurer with a list of medicines, which list he sends to the druggist in Ennis, who supplies us.	By the committee, and paid for by the treasurer.	The medicines are supplied by Mr. William Ryan, Druggist, Ennis.
Archdeacon Whitty had been treasurer since first established till within the last year, so cannot state the amount in his time; this year's subscription being 68 l. 19 s.	<table><tr><td></td><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>- £.135 0 0</td><td>135 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>- 149 14 0</td><td>135 7 6</td></tr></table> <table><tr><td colspan="4">GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>1832.</td><td></td><td>1833.</td></tr><tr><td>Surgeon's Salary</td><td>£.100 0 0</td><td>£.100</td><td>0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Dispensary House</td><td>- 10 0 0</td><td></td><td>10 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicines</td><td>- 25 0 0</td><td></td><td>25 7 6</td></tr></table>		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1832	- £.135 0 0	135 0 0	1833	- 149 14 0	135 7 6	GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.					1832.		1833.	Surgeon's Salary	£.100 0 0	£.100	0 0	Dispensary House	- 10 0 0		10 0 0	Medicines	- 25 0 0		25 7 6	<table><tr><td></td><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>- £.66 6 0</td><td>£.58 4 2</td></tr></table> <table><tr><td colspan="4">GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.</td></tr><tr><td>Surgeon's Salary</td><td>-</td><td>£.32</td><td>0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine</td><td>-</td><td>20</td><td>0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Rent for Dispensary House</td><td></td><td>5</td><td>0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Carriage of medicine</td><td></td><td>1</td><td>4 2</td></tr></table>		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1833	- £.66 6 0	£.58 4 2	GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.				Surgeon's Salary	-	£.32	0 0	Medicine	-	20	0 0	Rent for Dispensary House		5	0 0	Carriage of medicine		1	4 2
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1832	- £.135 0 0	135 0 0
1833	- 149 14 0	135 7 6
GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.
	1832.		1833.
Surgeon's Salary	£.100 0 0	£.100	0 0
Dispensary House	- 10 0 0		10 0 0
Medicines	- 25 0 0		25 7 6
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1833	- £.66 6 0	£.58 4 2
GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.
Surgeon's Salary	-	£.32	0 0
Medicine	-	20	0 0
Rent for Dispensary House		5	0 0
Carriage of medicine		1	4 2
By private subscriptions, and presentment off the county at large.	Supported by private subscriptions, and presentment only from the county of Clare.	It is supported by private subscriptions, and presentment from the grand jury of equal amount, from one county.
Our funds are so small, that we consider they cannot be laid out to better advantage than at present: the only way to render relief would be to have an hospital attached to the dispensary. The County Infirmary is 14 miles from us, and in most cases the poor are not able to procure a mode of conveyance. This being the third principal town in the county, and in the centre of an extensive and populous district, must be an eligible situation for a district hospital to be attached to the dispensary.	No.	I cannot, the funds are so very limited, nor do I think, in their present state, they could be better or more appropriately laid out.

MUNSTER—CLARE.

Kilkee and Carigaholt Dispensary.	Killaloe Dispensary.	Kilrush Dispensary.
	George Purdon, Esq. Surgeon.	Committee and Medical Attendant.
Kilkee and Carigaholt Dispensary, established in the year 1831. The object of both is to give medical aid and medicine to an extent of country containing a very great population, the majority of whom are very poor, and supplied with medicine and advice on being recommended by a subscriber.	The Killaloe Dispensary, established July 1824, for the relief of the indigent poor of the parishes of Killaloe and Ogonilloe.	Kilrush Dispensary: advice and medicine are given out two days in the week, and those who are too ill to attend the dispensary are visited at their houses, on presenting the medical attendant a subscriber's recommendation, it was established in 1814.
Three very extensive parishes, and all in the same county.	The entire of the parish of Ogonilloe, and a very large proportion of that of Killaloe.	One parish, and a part of two more, including the town of Kilrush.
The nearest public hospital or infirmary to this dispensary is in the county town (Ennis), distance about 30 miles. There is a dispensary within eight miles of this.	One at Clonlaragh Corclare, seven miles distant; another at Castle connell, seven miles distant, in the county Limerick; and one in Nenagh, county Tipperary, 12 miles distant.	There is a dispensary at Knock, another at Kilkee, and a third at Carigaholt, all within ten miles.
There is no hospital or infirmary within this district, and the medical attendant to this dispensary gets a salary in proportion to the funds, which vary almost every year.	None.	There is but the one dispensary attached to this district; with the exception of the cholera hospital, there is no other.
I attend but this dispensary; but it has a branch established in Carigaholt, a distance of seven English miles. There is but one salary for attending both, and they require three days' attendance in the week, from eleven A. M. to four P. M.	None but the Killaloe Dispensary, for which I receive a salary of 75 l. per annum, attending two days weekly, from ten till three.	But one dispensary. When cholera was prevalent, I attended the Cholera Hospital, for which I was paid two guineas per week. I attend the dispensary two days in the week, for which I get 35 l. per annum.
Whenever medical or surgical aid is required I generally give my own personal attendance, and am obliged to do so in all cases recommended by a subscriber.	I consider it my duty to attend the tenants of each subscriber who are urgently ill, if called on to do so, at any reasonable distance, such person not being able to come to the dispensary.	I do.
A registry is kept of all the cases received at this dispensary; they are all attended to: a great portion of the cases have turned out successful.	A register is kept, stating the date of admission of each patient, on the dispensary ledger; the disease, age, by whom recommended, and the daily prescription ordered in detail.	A register is kept of all cases, by whom recommended, the medicines prescribed, the nature of the disease, and the result.
The average number of cases annually, for the last two or three years, exceed 1,500. The variety of disease has been very great; viz. fever, dysentery, common cholera, dyspepsia, cholic, dropsy, &c.	The number of patients yearly admitted average 1,500. It is 1,400 this year, of which 400 were visited at their homes. Fever, cholera, inflammatory attacks, &c. and some casualties.	I can give a return only from the 1st of last April, as the grand jury require that the dispensary books should be sent them before they grant any presentment, and they have not returned the books. From the 1st of April to 1st January I had 1,567 applications at the dispensary. The diseases most common are bowel complaints, inflammation of the lungs, indigestion, dropsy, typhus fever, and lately the cholera, with casualties.
There are some subscribers to this dispensary who themselves receive aid from it, and their families are also supplied with medicine, &c.	None ever claim relief but those who cannot afford to pay for medical advice and medicine, as it is imperative on subscribers to give tickets to none but such characters.	Very rarely.
The medicines are supplied by druggists, either in Dublin or Limerick, who generally subscribe to the funds of said dispensary.	By Mr. B. W. Kelly, Druggist, Limerick, and by the requisition of the surgeon, for which there is a pass book.	By the treasurer and committee.
<table><tr><th>Receipts.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>1832 - £.160 0 0</td><td>1832 - £.160 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>1833 - 120 0 0</td><td>1833 - 120 0 0</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><th></th><th>1832.</th><th>1833.</th></tr><tr><td>Salaries - - -</td><td>£.80 0 0</td><td>80 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine, Rent, &c.</td><td>80 0 0</td><td>40 0 0</td></tr></table>	Receipts.	Expenditure.	1832 - £.160 0 0	1832 - £.160 0 0	1833 - 120 0 0	1833 - 120 0 0		1832.	1833.	Salaries - - -	£.80 0 0	80 0 0	Medicine, Rent, &c.	80 0 0	40 0 0	<table><tr><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>1831 - £.105 0 0</td><td>£.100 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - 114 12 0</td><td>112 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>1833 - 117 16 0</td><td>—</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><th></th><th>1831.</th><th>1832.</th></tr><tr><td>Surgeon's Salary -</td><td>£.75 0 0</td><td>75 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine, &c. - -</td><td>25 0 0</td><td>37 0 0</td></tr></table>	Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831 - £.105 0 0	£.100 0 0	1832 - 114 12 0	112 0 0	1833 - 117 16 0	—		1831.	1832.	Surgeon's Salary -	£.75 0 0	75 0 0	Medicine, &c. - -	25 0 0	37 0 0	<table><tr><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>1831 - £.82 8 0</td><td>£.75 15 7</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - 83 3 6</td><td>74 9 7½</td></tr><tr><td>1833 - 90 7 10½</td><td>82 13 8</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><th></th><th>1831.</th><th>1832.</th><th>1833.</th></tr><tr><td>Salaries - £.50 0 0</td><td>50 0 0</td><td>50 0 0</td><td>50 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine 16 4 9½</td><td>17 0 7</td><td>22 18 8</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Rent and necessities }</td><td>9 10 9½</td><td>7 9 0½</td><td>9 15 0</td></tr></table>	Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831 - £.82 8 0	£.75 15 7	1832 - 83 3 6	74 9 7½	1833 - 90 7 10½	82 13 8		1831.	1832.	1833.	Salaries - £.50 0 0	50 0 0	50 0 0	50 0 0	Medicine 16 4 9½	17 0 7	22 18 8		Rent and necessities }	9 10 9½	7 9 0½	9 15 0
Receipts.	Expenditure.
1832 - £.160 0 0	1832 - £.160 0 0
1833 - 120 0 0	1833 - 120 0 0
	1832.	1833.
Salaries - - -	£.80 0 0	80 0 0
Medicine, Rent, &c.	80 0 0	40 0 0
Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831 - £.105 0 0	£.100 0 0
1832 - 114 12 0	112 0 0
1833 - 117 16 0	—
	1831.	1832.
Surgeon's Salary -	£.75 0 0	75 0 0
Medicine, &c. - -	25 0 0	37 0 0
Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831 - £.82 8 0	£.75 15 7
1832 - 83 3 6	74 9 7½
1833 - 90 7 10½	82 13 8
	1831.	1832.	1833.
Salaries - £.50 0 0	50 0 0	50 0 0	50 0 0
Medicine 16 4 9½	17 0 7	22 18 8
Rent and necessities }	9 10 9½	7 9 0½	9 15 0
It is supported by private subscriptions, and presentments. The grand jury of this county, once a year, give a presentment for its support, and since its formation, give a sum equivalent to the sum raised by private subscriptions.	By public subscription, a similar sum being procured from the county by presentment.	By subscriptions, and a presentment to the amount of the annual subscription; only one county.
If the dispensary could be supported as it is, it would be of the greatest possible benefit, affording both advice and medicine to a vast population; but it is supported by absentee landlords, who do not see its utility, nor the wants of the poor.	I know of no better means of distributing the present expenditure of our establishment than the present resorted to; but the want of an hospital for contagious diseases is sorely felt, when visitations of epidemics are so prevalent as this year and last.	Our funds are so small, that I cannot suggest any alteration.

MUNSTER—CLARE.

Milltown Dispensary.	Newmarket Dispensary.	Quin Dispensary.
Treasurer and Medical Attendant.	James Frazer, Esq. Surgeon.	Joseph Blood, Esq. Surgeon.
There is one dispensary under our care, in the village of Milltown Malbay, established in 1831, for dispensing gratuitous medicine and advice to the poor.	Newmarket Dispensary, established in 1815, for gratuitous advice and medicine to the poor.	The name of the dispensary under my care is Quin; its object is for the relief of the poor, and established about three years.
Two parishes (Kilfarboy and Kilmurray) in the said county.	Seven, all in this county.	There are three parishes in my district, all situate in same county.
There are none.	There is a dispensary at Six-mile Bridge, six miles from hence; one at Quin, four miles; and one at Clare, four miles; the County Hospital, in Ennis, to which a dispensary is attached, is six miles from hence.	The County Hospital, Six-mile Bridge and Newmarket, are within 10 miles.
There is no other in the district.	None.	There is no dispensary or hospital within my district.
I attend only one dispensary; amount of salary, 70 l. ; three days in the week attendance.	I do not attend any other dispensary; my salary, including house-rent, is 90 l. per annum; I attend three days in the week, from 9 o'clock until 12.	I attend no other dispensary but the Quin, which is half a mile from my residence. My salary varies each year, and I attend three days in the week.
In some cases it is, in others not.	By the dispensary regulations I am not required to visit patients at their dwellings; but I never refuse to attend any case, whether medical, surgical, or obstetrical, when the patient is unable to pay for advice.	I consider it my duty to give medical or surgical aid whenever it is required.
There is a register kept of all the cases where application has been made for aid; the applications have been disposed of in the way of medicine and attendance, and in many cases with beneficial results.	The names of patients, their disease, and by whom recommended, are entered in the journal; but the applications being so numerous, no detail of cases is kept.	A register is at present kept of the cases; the applications have been attended to with the best results.
Number of persons relieved within the last three years, 14,040. Every disease incidental to this climate.	The number of patients relieved at the dispensary,— 1830 - 2,750 — 1832 - 2,300 — 1833 - 2,423 The diseases most frequently presenting are derangement of the digestive organs, affections of the chest, and disease of the skin.	The number of patients attended to within the last three years are about 5,000; the diseases are of such varied characters as to preclude the possibility of mentioning within this space.
The rules of the dispensary prohibit assistance to those who are able to afford its purchase; a fraud or imposition may occur, but not often.	Frequently.	In cases of great emergency, persons participate in the benefits of the charity whose circumstances do not require gratuitous assistance.
The medicines are purchased at the wholesale druggist's in Limerick, out of the general fund.	I furnish a requisition for the medicines required to the treasurer, who transmits the same to the druggists, Messrs. Boileau & George, 88, Bride-street, Dublin.	Medicines are procured from the eminent druggists with the funds of the institution.
<table><tr><td></td><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>£. 110 10 0</td><td>£. 110 10 0</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>- - 115 4 0</td><td>—</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>- - 115 8 0</td><td>—</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><td></td><td>1831.</td></tr><tr><td>Surgeon's Salary</td><td>£. 70 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicines</td><td>- 30 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Rent and Sundries</td><td>- 10 10 0</td></tr></table> N.B.—Nearly the same items of expenditure for each year.		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831	£. 110 10 0	£. 110 10 0	1832	- - 115 4 0	—	1833	- - 115 8 0	—		1831.	Surgeon's Salary	£. 70 0 0	Medicines	- 30 0 0	Rent and Sundries	- 10 10 0	<table><tr><td></td><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>£. 152 19 5</td><td>£. 141 14 3</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>- - 129 5 0</td><td>126 19 5</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>- - 163 15 5</td><td>159 11 4</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><td></td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td><td>1833.</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine and Sundries</td><td>£. 51 14 3</td><td>36 19 5</td><td>69 11 4½</td></tr><tr><td>Salary, Rent, &c.</td><td>- 90 0 0</td><td>90 0 0</td><td>90 0 0</td></tr></table>		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831	£. 152 19 5	£. 141 14 3	1832	- - 129 5 0	126 19 5	1833	- - 163 15 5	159 11 4		1831.	1832.	1833.	Medicine and Sundries	£. 51 14 3	36 19 5	69 11 4½	Salary, Rent, &c.	- 90 0 0	90 0 0	90 0 0	The amount of the receipt for the last three years has been about 110 l. annually, which has been expended in procuring medicine, surgeon's salary, and sundry requisites.
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831	£. 110 10 0	£. 110 10 0
1832	- - 115 4 0	—
1833	- - 115 8 0	—
	1831.
Surgeon's Salary	£. 70 0 0
Medicines	- 30 0 0
Rent and Sundries	- 10 10 0
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831	£. 152 19 5	£. 141 14 3
1832	- - 129 5 0	126 19 5
1833	- - 163 15 5	159 11 4
	1831.	1832.	1833.
Medicine and Sundries	£. 51 14 3	36 19 5	69 11 4½
Salary, Rent, &c.	- 90 0 0	90 0 0	90 0 0
By private subscription, and a county presentment equal thereto.	By annual subscription, and presentment from Clare only.	It is supported by subscription, and a presentment is also obtained from the county of Clare.
I can suggest a very material alteration, which is, the establishment of an hospital.	The funds are so limited, and the district so extensive, I do not conceive that any material improvement could be made without a considerable increase to the revenues of the dispensary.	The funds of the institution under my charge are so well distributed by the committee, that I cannot suggest any alteration which would render them more efficient for the relief of the poor.

MUNSTER—CLARE.

Six-mile Bridge Dispensary.	Tomgrany Dispensary.	Tulla Dispensary.
Treasurer and Medical Attendant.	P. H. Harris , Esq. Medical Attendant.	James Frazer , Jun. Esq. M. D.
Six-mile Bridge Dispensary, established in the year 1817.	Tomgrany, established in March 1830.	The Tulla Dispensary.
Five parishes, all in the same county.	There are six parishes in my district, two of which are in the county of Galway.	No certain number; but patients receive relief from seven, all in Clare.
Three dispensaries; no infirmaries or hospitals.	Tulla and Killaloe are the nearest; the former ten miles distant, and the latter nine.	Quin and Crusheen Dispensaries.
There is no hospital or infirmary in the district.	There is none.	No.
I only attend one dispensary.	I attend but one dispensary, and patients are attended there daily.	I attend but one, the salary for which is 50 l. per annum. I attend three days in each week.
I consider it my duty to attend the dispensary personally.	I do, whenever the poverty of the individual renders him unable to pay for attendance.	By a regulation of the subscribers, each subscriber of one guinea is entitled to two visiting tickets, and so on in proportion to their subscription.
A register is kept, the applications have been carefully attended to, and the results have been in most instances favourable.	There is a dispensary book, which the grand jury require to be laid before them when the annual grant is presented for, and in this there is a registry of the names of patients, the cases and results.
The number of persons relieved in the years 1831, 1832 and 1833 amounts to 14,040, being 90 per week on an average. The diseases are so various, it would be impossible to state the mode of treatment.	The total number of persons attended for the last three years is 1,643; of which 1,400 were medical cases, relieved 1,136; surgical 243, relieved 192.	Since the 24th of August 1833 there have been 709 applications for relief, prior to which time I did not keep a register; but for the two preceding years the number of tickets I received exceeded 2,000 annually, each applicant having to bring a subscriber's ticket.
Any application of this sort would not be attended to by the subscribers, as they would not recommend any person capable of procuring assistance themselves.	It sometimes does, not frequently.	Occasionally.
Supplied by a druggist, and paid for by the treasurer.	The treasurer supplies the institution with medicines, from the establishment of Messrs. Leslie & Co., Dublin.	Ordered by myself, from Messrs. Boileau & George, Dublin, and paid for by the treasurer.
The receipts for each of the last three years were on an average £. 96. 2. 8. and the expenditure the same. Surgeon's salary, dispensary rent, medicines, &c. comprise the expenditure.	<table> <tr> <th></th><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr> <tr> <td>1830 -</td><td>£. 92 10 0</td><td>£. 86 10 0</td></tr> <tr> <td>1831 -</td><td>76 0 0</td><td>76 10 0</td></tr> <tr> <td>1832 -</td><td>62 0 0</td><td>—</td></tr> </table>		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1830 -	£. 92 10 0	£. 86 10 0	1831 -	76 0 0	76 10 0	1832 -	62 0 0	—	I am unable to answer this question accurately; but as well as I can recollect, 29 l. , 45 l. and 33 l. with a presentment to the same amount, were the receipts, which were expended on medicines, house-rent and medical attendance.
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1830 -	£. 92 10 0	£. 86 10 0
1831 -	76 0 0	76 10 0
1832 -	62 0 0	—
By subscriptions, and presentments obtained only from the county Clare.	It is supported by presentments, and they are obtained from one county only.	By subscriptions, and presentments to the like amount from Clare only.
I do not think the funds could be applied in any way which would render them more efficient for the poor, particularly in this extensive district.	The funds of the institution which I attend are so limited, being supplied by a few resident individuals of moderate means, and not aided by the numerous absentee proprietors of the district, that	The funds supporting this institution are too small to be rendered of more benefit than they are; but where they exceed 100 l. per annum, the establishment of a local or parochial hospital would be extremely desirable.
I cannot see how any alteration can be made for the better; if, however, the funds were sufficient, I would suggest that a small hospital should be attached to the dispensary, for the reception of bad surgical cases, the county infirmary being 20 miles distant, and admission there being at all times difficult.

MUNSTER—CORK.

Aghada Dispensary.	Bantry Dispensary.	Black Rock Dispensary.
	Committee and Medical Attendant.	Committee and Medical Attendant.
The only establishment under my care is the Aghada Dispensary, established August 31, 1831.	Bantry alone, established five years.	Black Rock Dispensary, established in 1827.
Six parishes in the same county.	Four entire parishes, and parts of three more, all in the same county.	The district consists of the parish of St. Michael's, Black Rock, and portions of the city parishes of St. Finbarr and St. Nicholas.
There is a dispensary at Carrigaline, Cloyne and Castlemartyr, and a dispensary and fever hospital at Middleton, Cove and Passage. The greater portion of the Union of Aghada is perfectly peninsular, and consequently, in a great measure, cut off from communication with Cove, Passage or Carrigaline.	None.	Two surgical hospitals, a fever hospital and dispensary in the city, the Blarney, Carrignavar, Ballindrassig, Glanmire and Passage Dispensaries, in the county and within a circle of about 5 miles round the city; and the Glanmire road, and Douglas Dispensaries in the liberties. From most of these, however, the Black Rock district is separated by its peninsular situation.
There is no public medical institution within my district; an opposition establishment to the Aghada one was attempted to be got up, but failed.	None.	There is no other medical charity in the district.
I attend no medical institution but the Aghada Dispensary, where I attend every day (Sunday excepted), from eight to eleven o'clock A.M.	None but the one.	I attend no other medical establishment. I reside in the Black Rock district, and the dispensary is open every day, except Sunday.
Most certainly.	I do.	It is my duty, and I give my personal attendance, when required, at all hours.
Yes.	There is a regular register kept; all applications attended to, as required, but the result of every case cannot be ascertained in so extensive a district.	A register is now kept of all particulars.
Our dispensary only being in existence since the 31st October 1831, I am forced to confine my statement to two years, the number admitted for that period being 2,181. The diseases were principally pulmonic, hepatic and gastric, particularly diarrhoea, dysentery, colic and cholera, besides fevers, and accidents involving surgical operations. I have had also many cases of instrumental midwifery.	Number of persons attended to within the last three years, 7,761. The diseases generally prevalent were, fevers, inflammations, dysentery and dyspepsia.	1831 - - - - - 1,100 1832 - - - - - 1,200 1833 - - - - - 1,303 120 were attended at their own houses.
Sometimes, but without my knowledge, as all such cases are injurious to my private practice.	None to our knowledge.	No.
By Mr. William Harrington, Druggist, No. 17, Patrick-street, Cork.	By contract with Mr. Gosnell, Druggist in Cork.	By a druggist approved of by the Committee; the medicine is dispensed by the physician.
<table><tr><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - £.149 11 0</td><td>£. 144 8 7 1/2</td></tr><tr><td>1833 - - 143 6 4 1/2</td><td>128 15 1 1/2</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. Salary, Medicines, Rent, &c.	Receipt.	Expenditure.	1832 - £.149 11 0	£. 144 8 7 1/2	1833 - - 143 6 4 1/2	128 15 1 1/2	<table><tr><td>1831 :</td><td>Expenditure :</td></tr><tr><td>Rent, Medicine & Sundries - 54 13 4</td><td rowspan="2">} 133 15 9</td></tr><tr><td>To the Physician & Apothecary 79 2 4</td></tr><tr><td>1832 :</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Rent, Medicine & Sundries - 63 1 4</td><td rowspan="2">} 140 7 3</td></tr><tr><td>To the Physician & Apothecary 77 5 11</td></tr><tr><td>1833 :</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Rent, Medicine & Sundries 52 17 11</td><td rowspan="2">} 161 12 0</td></tr><tr><td>To the Physician & Apothecary 108 14 1</td></tr></table> N. B.—The annual salaries are, 60l. to the physician, and 40l. to the apothecary. The balance due of their salaries for the two previous years was partly liquidated this year by the overplus of the 8l. 14s. 1d.	1831 :	Expenditure :	Rent, Medicine & Sundries - 54 13 4	} 133 15 9	To the Physician & Apothecary 79 2 4	1832 :		Rent, Medicine & Sundries - 63 1 4	} 140 7 3	To the Physician & Apothecary 77 5 11	1833 :		Rent, Medicine & Sundries 52 17 11	} 161 12 0	To the Physician & Apothecary 108 14 1	<table><tr><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1830 - - £.106 5 7</td><td>£.101 5 9</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - - - 107 0 4</td><td>104 10 10</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - - - 123 1 6</td><td>113 4 9</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><td>1830.</td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td></tr><tr><td>Salaries £.79 6 6</td><td>79 6 1</td><td>94 2 7</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine 11 19 3</td><td>12 14 9</td><td>8 12 2</td></tr><tr><td>Rent - 10 0 0</td><td>12 10 0</td><td>10 10 0</td></tr></table>	Receipt.	Expenditure.	1830 - - £.106 5 7	£.101 5 9	1831 - - - 107 0 4	104 10 10	1832 - - - 123 1 6	113 4 9	1830.	1831.	1832.	Salaries £.79 6 6	79 6 1	94 2 7	Medicine 11 19 3	12 14 9	8 12 2	Rent - 10 0 0	12 10 0	10 10 0
Receipt.	Expenditure.
1832 - £.149 11 0	£. 144 8 7 1/2
1833 - - 143 6 4 1/2	128 15 1 1/2
1831 :	Expenditure :
Rent, Medicine & Sundries - 54 13 4	} 133 15 9
To the Physician & Apothecary 79 2 4
1832 :
Rent, Medicine & Sundries - 63 1 4	} 140 7 3
To the Physician & Apothecary 77 5 11
1833 :
Rent, Medicine & Sundries 52 17 11	} 161 12 0
To the Physician & Apothecary 108 14 1
Receipt.	Expenditure.
1830 - - £.106 5 7	£.101 5 9
1831 - - - 107 0 4	104 10 10
1832 - - - 123 1 6	113 4 9
1830.	1831.	1832.
Salaries £.79 6 6	79 6 1	94 2 7
Medicine 11 19 3	12 14 9	8 12 2
Rent - 10 0 0	12 10 0	10 10 0
By subscriptions, and presentments from the county of Cork only.	By subscriptions, fines from petty sessions, and presentments from the county of Cork alone.	Is supported by voluntary subscriptions, and a sum, nearly equal in amount, is annually presented by the city grand jury.
No, as dispensaries are at present regulated.	We cannot. The physician and committee beg to suggest the decisive improvement this institution would attain by the erection of an hospital attached to it.	The residence of the physician within the district, and the dispensary being opened every day, instead of three times a week, having been required during the last year and half, appear to render this institution as efficient for the relief of the poor as at present seems to be necessary.

MUNSTER—CORK.

Ballinspittle Dispensary.	Ballyclough Dispensary.	Ballinaboy Dispensary.
Committee and Medical Attendant.	William James M ^c Cormick, Esq., M. D.	William Keily, Esq., M. D.
It is denominated "The Ballinspittle, Ballinadee and Kilbrittain Union Dispensary," established in the year 1830, for the purpose of giving to the sick poor of this district medical advice and medicine gratis.	A local dispensary, established in August 1820.	The Ballinahoy Dispensary, established in August 1829.
The parishes of Ringrone, Templetrine, Kilroan, part of the parishes of Ballinadee, Kilbrittain and Rathelaren, are included in the district, all in same county.	Ballyclough, Castlemagner, and a part of Clonmeen, in same county.	Part of the parishes of Ballinaboy, Dunderrow and Waterfall.
Kinsale Dispensary and Fever Hospital, 3½ miles, and across a ferry; Innishannon Dispensary, 6½ miles; Bandon Dispensary and Fever Hospital, 7½ miles; and Timoleague Dispensary, 9 miles.	Mallow Infirmary; Buttevant Dispensary and Fever Hospital; Kanturk, Glauntane, Newmarket, Freemount and Doneraile Dispensaries.	There are medical institutions for the use of the poor at Cork, Douglas, Carrigaline, Kinalea, Kinsale, Innishannon, Bandon and Inniscarra.
There is none.	No hospital or infirmary in our district	There is not any hospital within my district.
There is a branch dispensary at Kilbrittain, about 4 miles from Ballinspittle,* for the benefit of the poor of that neighbourhood, where the physician attends two days in the week, for which he receives no additional emolument. He attends four days at Ballinspittle. Salary is 80 l. this year. * The physician resides at Ballinspittle.	I attend one dispensary only, one mile distant from my residence; 60 l. per annum salary. I attend two days regular, and every other day visiting patients if necessary.	I attend the Ballinaboy Dispensary only; on Sundays, Tuesdays and Fridays, at 11 o'clock, A. M.; salary, 60 l.
In all cases where medical or surgical aid is required, whether at the dispensary, or at the houses of the patients, the physician personally attends.	I do consider it necessary.	It is my duty to attend only the labourers, and poor tenants of subscribers, and subscribers of small sums; however, I never refuse to attend the very poor, even though they live on the lands of non-subscribers.
A register is kept, containing the names and residences of patients, date of admission, by whom recommended, disease, treatment, result.	A registry is kept of all cases, and their terminations.	There is a register kept of the names of patients, the date of their admission to the benefits of the institution, their age, disease, and, when it can be ascertained, the result of the disease.
1830 - - - - - 551 1831 - - - - - 713 1832 - - - - - 1,010 2,274 Diseases:—Amenorrhœa, anasarca, aphtha, abscess, anthrax, asthma, ascites, &c. &c. &c. Some instances have occurred, but they have been very few. It is ruled by the committee, that when such cases are recommended, they are to be attended to in the first instance, and then are to be referred to them by the physician. They have been hitherto supplied by a druggist in Cork, by order from the physician, returned to the committee. Mr. Harrington is now, and has been heretofore the druggist, who is paid by the treasurer, on order from the committee.	Number attended at dispensary for the years 1831, 1832 and 1833, 8,658. Number visited at their own houses, 743. Persons in good circumstances do not participate in the benefits of the charity, except in cases of accident. Purchased from druggists in Cork.	It frequently happens. The medicines are supplied by contract, by Mr. Harrington, Druggist, Cork, on my order.
<table><tr><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - £. 159 14 6</td><td>£. 159 19 1½</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - - 138 15 0</td><td>135 15 2</td></tr><tr><td>1833 - - 134 13 6</td><td>136 12 8½</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td><td>1833.</td></tr><tr><td>Salaries - £. 85 8 4</td><td>103 9 3½</td><td>108 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Rent - - 7 6 8</td><td>8 0 0</td><td>8 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine - 27 10 6</td><td>23 15 2½</td><td>17 0 4</td></tr><tr><td>Contingencies 39 13 7½</td><td>0 10 8</td><td>3 12 4½</td></tr></table>	Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831 - £. 159 14 6	£. 159 19 1½	1832 - - 138 15 0	135 15 2	1833 - - 134 13 6	136 12 8½	1831.	1832.	1833.	Salaries - £. 85 8 4	103 9 3½	108 0 0	Rent - - 7 6 8	8 0 0	8 0 0	Medicine - 27 10 6	23 15 2½	17 0 4	Contingencies 39 13 7½	0 10 8	3 12 4½	<table><tr><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>Subscription.</td><td>Presentment.</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - £. 61 5 2</td><td>45 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - 66 10 2</td><td>50 10 5</td></tr><tr><td>1833 - 67 11 2</td><td>60 0 0</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td><td>1833.</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine and Attendance } 91 11 5</td><td>107 7 7</td><td>115 3 7½</td></tr><tr><td>House-rent, &c. 14 2 9</td><td>9 13 0</td><td>10 2 9</td></tr></table>	Receipt.	Expenditure.	Subscription.	Presentment.	1831 - £. 61 5 2	45 0 0	1832 - 66 10 2	50 10 5	1833 - 67 11 2	60 0 0	1831.	1832.	1833.	Medicine and Attendance } 91 11 5	107 7 7	115 3 7½	House-rent, &c. 14 2 9	9 13 0	10 2 9	<table><tr><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1830 - £. 95 18 1½</td><td>95 18 1½</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - - 81 5 0</td><td>86 1 10</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><td>1830.</td><td>1831.</td></tr><tr><td>Salary - - - £. 61 0 0</td><td>60 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine - - - 15 1 4</td><td>14 1 10</td></tr><tr><td>Attendant - - - 8 0 0</td><td>8 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Rent - - - - 4 0 0</td><td>4 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Sundries - - - 7 16 9½</td><td>-</td></tr></table>	Receipt.	Expenditure.	1830 - £. 95 18 1½	95 18 1½	1831 - - 81 5 0	86 1 10	1830.	1831.	Salary - - - £. 61 0 0	60 0 0	Medicine - - - 15 1 4	14 1 10	Attendant - - - 8 0 0	8 0 0	Rent - - - - 4 0 0	4 0 0	Sundries - - - 7 16 9½	-
Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831 - £. 159 14 6	£. 159 19 1½
1832 - - 138 15 0	135 15 2
1833 - - 134 13 6	136 12 8½
1831.	1832.	1833.
Salaries - £. 85 8 4	103 9 3½	108 0 0
Rent - - 7 6 8	8 0 0	8 0 0
Medicine - 27 10 6	23 15 2½	17 0 4
Contingencies 39 13 7½	0 10 8	3 12 4½
Receipt.	Expenditure.
Subscription.	Presentment.
1831 - £. 61 5 2	45 0 0
1832 - 66 10 2	50 10 5
1833 - 67 11 2	60 0 0
1831.	1832.	1833.
Medicine and Attendance } 91 11 5	107 7 7	115 3 7½
House-rent, &c. 14 2 9	9 13 0	10 2 9
Receipt.	Expenditure.
1830 - £. 95 18 1½	95 18 1½
1831 - - 81 5 0	86 1 10
1830.	1831.
Salary - - - £. 61 0 0	60 0 0
Medicine - - - 15 1 4	14 1 10
Attendant - - - 8 0 0	8 0 0
Rent - - - - 4 0 0	4 0 0
Sundries - - - 7 16 9½	-
It is supported by voluntary contributions, and by presentments on the county of Cork only.	By voluntary contributions, and a presentment from county of Cork.	By subscriptions and presentments.
No alteration in the mode of expenditure of the funds of the institution could possibly benefit it, as it is by the most rigid economy that the necessary expenses are regulated. If there were funds provided, the fitting up of three or more beds in the dispensary house for bad fever cases, or accidents of a very serious nature, would be of the greatest advantage to the poor of this district, where their habitations are so wretched, crowded and ill-accommodated, and where they are completely removed from the comfort and accommodation of an hospital. A small fund for the provision of meal, wine, sugar, &c. in suitable cases, would be of the greatest possible advantage to the sick poor of the district.	The amount of the present fund will not allow of any distribution more advantageous to the poor.	An increase of funds, so as to enable the very poor in many cases to be supplied with food and clothes would be desirable; but this would subject the medical officer to very great additional trouble, on account of the impositions which would be practised on him, as was proved at the Cork Dispensary in the years 1826 and 1827.

MUNSTER—CORK.

Ballyneen Dispensary.	Blarney Dispensary.	Carrigaline Dispensary.
J. H. Jagoe, Esq., M. D.	Committee and Medical Attendant.	Henry O'Brien, Esq., M. D.
The Ballyneen Dispensary, established in March 1824; to this institution I only give my public service. The object is to afford medical and surgical advice and assistance to patients recommended by subscribers.	The Blarney Dispensary, which was established on the 24th May 1828.	Carrigaline Dispensary, established in the year 1813, for the supply of medicines, and affording medical aid to the sick poor.
Kenneigh, Ballymoney, Desertserges, Murragh, Kilmeen, Kilowen, and the greater part of Fanlobbus, all in this county.	The parishes of Garrycloyne and Grenagh, part of the parishes of Inniscarra, of Killograhanmore, Killograhanbeg and Whitechurch.	The parish of Templebreda, part of the parish of Carrigaline, and the union of Tracton Liscleary, and part of Killanully, all in the county of Cork.
The Dunmanway Dispensary is about 5½ miles, and the Bandon Dispensary and House of Recovery about 8 miles from Ballyneen.	Cork Dispensary and Hospitals; Donoughmore Dispensary; Inniscarra Dispensary; Ovens Dispensary, and Cahinarra Dispensary.	Passage, Kinnalea and Ballindrassig, in the county Douglas, and Blackrock, in the liberties of the city of Cork, and the city of Cork Dispensary.
There is a dispensary at Dunmanway, within my district, but no hospital or infirmary; the salary of the medical attendant I understand to be 70 l. per annum.	There is no hospital nor infirmary within the district.	No hospital or infirmary within the district.
I reside at the Ballyneen Dispensary, to which public establishment I only attend, and give attendance daily from 9 to 11 o'clock A. M.; the salary at present is 70 l. per annum.	I do not.	I attend no other.
Certainly, in every case requiring such I do.	I do; according to the rules laid down by the local committee.	I do.
There have, since the formation of this institution, been kept registers, and from referring to them, I feel confident in saying the applications have been disposed of with the happiest results.	A regular register is kept of the name, disease, and age of each patient, and by whom recommended.	There is.
Our year commencing in March and ending the March following, renders it impossible to make out a statement for the current year; but from March 1830 to March 1833, the applications for relief at the dispensary were 16,729; the number visited at their own houses, 754; deaths, 76; relieved or cured, 17,407. The most prevalent epidemic affections were catarrhal and gastric; but beside those, surgical and midwifery cases, and others, which I cannot comprise here, called for particular attention.	<table><tr><td></td><td>No. of Persons relieved.</td><td>Medical cases.</td><td>Surgical cases.</td><td>Vaccinated.</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>1,446</td><td>754</td><td>628</td><td>64</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>1,848</td><td>1,032</td><td>759</td><td>57</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>1,915</td><td>1,108</td><td>782</td><td>25</td></tr></table> In future all dispensary returns will be made half yearly.		No. of Persons relieved.	Medical cases.	Surgical cases.	Vaccinated.	1831	1,446	754	628	64	1832	1,848	1,032	759	57	1833	1,915	1,108	782	25	There were 5,487 relieved. The prevailing diseases have been fevers and pulmonary complaints.
	No. of Persons relieved.	Medical cases.	Surgical cases.	Vaccinated.
1831	1,446	754	628	64
1832	1,848	1,032	759	57
1833	1,915	1,108	782	25
Very frequently.	The rules of this charity direct, that none but those who are poor by reputation, can derive any relief therefrom.	I know of none.
They are supplied by Mr. Henry Belcher, Druggist, &c. Bandon, as ordered by me, or the secretary to this dispensary.	By a Mr. Hayes, Druggist, of Cork, who has contracted with the committee to supply them at the most moderate prices, having previously ascertained the prices of other druggists.	Medicines are supplied by the Messrs. Gosnell, of Cork, Druggists, at prices regulated by contract.
<table><tr><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - £. 156 8 0</td><td>£. 194 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - - 132 10 6</td><td>204 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>1833 - - 143 6 0</td><td>159 0 0</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td><td>1833.</td></tr><tr><td>Salaries - £. 134 0 0</td><td>134 0 0</td><td>85 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine, Rent, &c. - - - } 60 0 0</td><td>70 0 0</td><td>74 0 0</td></tr></table>	Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831 - £. 156 8 0	£. 194 0 0	1832 - - 132 10 6	204 0 0	1833 - - 143 6 0	159 0 0	1831.	1832.	1833.	Salaries - £. 134 0 0	134 0 0	85 0 0	Medicine, Rent, &c. - - - } 60 0 0	70 0 0	74 0 0	<table><tr><td>Physician's Salary.</td><td>Paid for Medicines.</td><td>Advertisements, Stamps, printing Reports.</td><td>Rent.</td><td>Total.</td></tr><tr><td>£.</td><td>£. s. d.</td><td>£. s. d.</td><td>£.</td><td>£. s. d.</td></tr><tr><td>86</td><td>11 14 7</td><td>2 11 0</td><td>3</td><td>103 5 7</td></tr><tr><td>86</td><td>12 0 8</td><td>1 0 2</td><td>3</td><td>102 0 10</td></tr><tr><td>86</td><td>8 11 9</td><td>2 6 8</td><td>3</td><td>99 18 7</td></tr><tr><td>258</td><td>32 7 4</td><td>5 17 10</td><td>9</td><td>295 5 0</td></tr></table> This calculation is made for the years ending in May 1831, 1832 and 1833.	Physician's Salary.	Paid for Medicines.	Advertisements, Stamps, printing Reports.	Rent.	Total.	£.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£.	£. s. d.	86	11 14 7	2 11 0	3	103 5 7	86	12 0 8	1 0 2	3	102 0 10	86	8 11 9	2 6 8	3	99 18 7	258	32 7 4	5 17 10	9	295 5 0	<table><tr><td colspan="3">Receipts.</td><td>Disbursements.</td></tr><tr><td>Subscriptions.</td><td>Present^{ts}.</td><td>Total.</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>£. s. d.</td><td>£.</td><td>£. s. d.</td><td>£. s. d.</td></tr><tr><td>1831 58 7 0</td><td>50</td><td>108 7 0</td><td>125 9 8</td></tr><tr><td>1832 50 13 6</td><td>50</td><td>100 13 6</td><td>90 16 0</td></tr><tr><td>1833 53 16 6</td><td>50</td><td>104 10 0</td><td>109 3 5½</td></tr></table> The permanent and principal items of expenditure are, the doctor's salary, cost of medicines, and rent.	Receipts.			Disbursements.	Subscriptions.	Present ^{ts} .	Total.		£. s. d.	£.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	1831 58 7 0	50	108 7 0	125 9 8	1832 50 13 6	50	100 13 6	90 16 0	1833 53 16 6	50	104 10 0	109 3 5½
Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831 - £. 156 8 0	£. 194 0 0
1832 - - 132 10 6	204 0 0
1833 - - 143 6 0	159 0 0
1831.	1832.	1833.
Salaries - £. 134 0 0	134 0 0	85 0 0
Medicine, Rent, &c. - - - } 60 0 0	70 0 0	74 0 0
Physician's Salary.	Paid for Medicines.	Advertisements, Stamps, printing Reports.	Rent.	Total.
£.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£.	£. s. d.
86	11 14 7	2 11 0	3	103 5 7
86	12 0 8	1 0 2	3	102 0 10
86	8 11 9	2 6 8	3	99 18 7
258	32 7 4	5 17 10	9	295 5 0
Receipts.			Disbursements.
Subscriptions.	Present ^{ts} .	Total.
£. s. d.	£.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.
1831 58 7 0	50	108 7 0	125 9 8
1832 50 13 6	50	100 13 6	90 16 0
1833 53 16 6	50	104 10 0	109 3 5½
Supported by voluntary subscription, and an annual presentment from the county of Cork.	By voluntary subscriptions, and by a grant from the grand jury at August assizes.	Supported by voluntary contributions, and by presentment granted solely from the county of Cork.
I cannot, the funds being insufficient almost at present to meet the demands for their usual application. Up to the year 1831, from the establishment of the Ballyneen Dispensary, an annual presentment from the grand jury, equivalent to the local subscriptions, have been made; since then, their presentment has been but 50 l. , however large the sum locally subscribed may be. Voluntary subscriptions at the formation of the institution, it	When sessions courts exist within the district where dispensaries have been established, it is a very general opinion, that sums levied in these courts, by fines or otherwise, may be applied to the support of these charities, with considerable advantage to the poor. I may farther state, that were it not for the could not have been carried on.	We cannot suggest any.

MUNSTER—CORK.

Castlemartyr Dispensary.	Castletown Roche Dispensary.	Charleville and Bruree Dispensaries.
W. G. Eames, Esq., Surgeon.	B. C. Cooke, Esq., Medical Attendant.	John Bernard, Esq., M. D.
Castlemartyr Dispensary, established in January 1827, for the purpose of affording medical aid to the poor, and supplying them with medicine.	Castletown Roche Dispensary, established February 10, 1810, for the relief of the sick poor within 5 miles round, and such as cannot attend to be visited at their houses.	The Charleville Dispensary, established in the year 1810. I am also an assisting medical officer to a branch of the Kiffinane Dispensary, established in Kilmallock in 1824. I am the principal medical officer of the Bruree Dispensary, established in 1830.
The district includes the greater part of seven parishes, and a small part of another, all in the county of Cork.	Three parishes, and part of four, in the county of Cork.	I cannot accurately state the number of parishes, but as those institutions extend relief to a circle of 8 miles at least, of which they may be considered central points, the parishes may be rated at least as two to each dispensary, making about six in the whole.
Youghal and Middleton Infirmaries and Fever Hospitals, Youghal, Killeagh and Mount Uniacke, Cloyne, Middleton and Aghada Dispensaries.	Mallow Infirmary, Fermoy, Glenville, Glenworth, Kildorrery, Doneraile, Buttevant and Rathcormac Dispensaries.	There is a dispensary and fever hospital at Buttevant, one at Doneraile, and one at Freemount, in the county of Cork. There is one at Bruff, and another at Kilfinane, in the county Limerick, not quite 10 miles distant from Charleville. I do not know of any more.
No.	There is no hospital or infirmary within my district.	In Bruree the dispensary is connected with a small and convenient hospital, built for permanent use at the time the cholera raged here. A Dispenser of medicines always lives in the hospital, and receives 5 l. a year. As physician, accoucheur and surgeon, I receive 25 l. a year.
One only; the salary, 130 l. per annum; attendance daily, Sundays excepted.	I attend but one dispensary, and that every day. Salary 80 l. Dispensary, I attend a branch thereof at Kilmallock, at 2 p. m.; on two days of every week I attend at Bruree, at 2 p. m. I receive, for Charleville Dispensary, 50 l. a year; for Kilmallock, 20 l. a year; and for Bruree, 25 l. a year; making for all, 95 l. a year.	I attend the Charleville Dispensary every day at 12; on two days of each alternate week, in conjunction with the medical attendant of the Kilfinane
Yes, in all cases.	I do when necessary.	I do; I consider it my duty, as it has been my habit, to afford medical aid, when required, at the houses of the poor, and to perform there, when required, both surgical and obstetric operations.
Yes.	A registry is kept now, since the last Cork assizes.	Such a register is regularly kept.
The number of persons relieved since the 1st day of January 1831, to this day, amounted to 9,898.	About 20 applicants daily. The prevailing diseases are, fever, pulmonary attacks, dysentery, colic, scurvy, &c. &c.	<table><tr><td></td><td>Charleville.</td><td>Bruree.</td></tr><tr><td>1830 - -</td><td>3,089</td><td>1,410</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - -</td><td>2,059</td><td>3,187</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - -</td><td>1,301</td><td>1,171</td></tr></table> The number for Kilmallock is included in the Kilfinane Dispensary. The epidemics were fevers and dysenteries, but the most pressing and numerous diseases were dropsies, severe labours requiring obstetric aid, and accidents requiring amputations.			Charleville.	Bruree.	1830 - -	3,089	1,410	1831 - -	2,059	3,187	1832 - -	1,301	1,171
	Charleville.	Bruree.
1830 - -	3,089	1,410
1831 - -	2,059	3,187
1832 - -	1,301	1,171
It does in some few instances.	It is not intended, but there is no institution without some abuse.	Very rarely.
Paid for by a managing committee, appointed annually, at a general meeting of the subscribers to the dispensary, but ordered and procured by the medical attendant, who produces the vouchers for the same to the committee.	The medicines are supplied by Mr. Gosnell, a Cork druggist, and paid for by the dispensary treasurer.	From a druggist, on the order of a physician, the expense of which is defrayed out of the funds.
The average expenditure for the last three years, for medicines, rent and attendance, was about, for each year, 210 l. The death of the late Treasurer prevents a more accurate return.	<table><tr><td>Receipt.</td><td colspan="3">Charleville.</td><td colspan="3">Bruree.</td></tr><tr><td>1831 £. 163 6 0</td><td colspan="3">Receipts.</td><td colspan="3">Receipt.</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - 168 0 0</td><td>1830 - - £. 182 2 0</td><td colspan="2">Expenditure.</td><td>1830 - - - £. 68 0 0</td><td colspan="2">Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>Expenditure.</td><td>1831 - - - 173 9 0</td><td>208 10 2</td><td></td><td>1831 - - - 73 10 4</td><td>67 10 0</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>1831 £. 169 9 5 ½</td><td>1832 - - - 200 0 0</td><td>189 4 4½</td><td></td><td>1832 - - - 85 11 1½</td><td>73 9 2</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>1832 - 168 0 0</td><td colspan="3">GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.</td><td colspan="3">GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>1830.</td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td><td>1830.</td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td></tr><tr><td>GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE;</td><td>£. s. d.</td><td>£. s. d.</td><td>£. s. d.</td><td>£. s. d.</td><td>£. s. d.</td><td>£. s. d.</td></tr><tr><td>House-rent, Medicine and Salary.</td><td>Balance - 31 15 2½</td><td>26 8 2½</td><td>15 15 4</td><td>Salary - 47 10 0</td><td>50 0 0</td><td>50 0 0</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>Salary - 89 9 2½</td><td>-</td><td>89 9 2½</td><td>Medicine - 20 0 0</td><td>15 0 0</td><td>25 0 0</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>Medicines - 58 15 11</td><td>56 0 11</td><td>46 7 4½</td><td>Sundries - -</td><td>8 9 2</td><td>10 11 1½</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>Meal & Milk 15 6 2½</td><td>6 17 11</td><td>13 17 7</td><td></td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td></td><td>Sundries - 9 13 6½</td><td>10 8 1</td><td>15 6 7</td><td></td><td></td><td></td></tr></table>	Receipt.	Charleville.			Bruree.			1831 £. 163 6 0	Receipts.			Receipt.			1832 - 168 0 0	1830 - - £. 182 2 0	Expenditure.		1830 - - - £. 68 0 0	Expenditure.		Expenditure.	1831 - - - 173 9 0	208 10 2		1831 - - - 73 10 4	67 10 0		1831 £. 169 9 5 ½	1832 - - - 200 0 0	189 4 4½		1832 - - - 85 11 1½	73 9 2		1832 - 168 0 0	GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.			GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.				1830.	1831.	1832.	1830.	1831.	1832.	GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE;	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	House-rent, Medicine and Salary.	Balance - 31 15 2½	26 8 2½	15 15 4	Salary - 47 10 0	50 0 0	50 0 0		Salary - 89 9 2½	-	89 9 2½	Medicine - 20 0 0	15 0 0	25 0 0		Medicines - 58 15 11	56 0 11	46 7 4½	Sundries - -	8 9 2	10 11 1½		Meal & Milk 15 6 2½	6 17 11	13 17 7					Sundries - 9 13 6½	10 8 1	15 6 7
Receipt.	Charleville.			Bruree.
1831 £. 163 6 0	Receipts.			Receipt.
1832 - 168 0 0	1830 - - £. 182 2 0	Expenditure.		1830 - - - £. 68 0 0	Expenditure.
Expenditure.	1831 - - - 173 9 0	208 10 2		1831 - - - 73 10 4	67 10 0
1831 £. 169 9 5 ½	1832 - - - 200 0 0	189 4 4½		1832 - - - 85 11 1½	73 9 2
1832 - 168 0 0	GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.			GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.
	1830.	1831.	1832.	1830.	1831.	1832.
GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE;	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.
House-rent, Medicine and Salary.	Balance - 31 15 2½	26 8 2½	15 15 4	Salary - 47 10 0	50 0 0	50 0 0
	Salary - 89 9 2½	-	89 9 2½	Medicine - 20 0 0	15 0 0	25 0 0
	Medicines - 58 15 11	56 0 11	46 7 4½	Sundries - -	8 9 2	10 11 1½
	Meal & Milk 15 6 2½	6 17 11	13 17 7
	Sundries - 9 13 6½	10 8 1	15 6 7
By private subscriptions, and presentments from the grand jury from the county Cork only.	By subscription, and county presentment.	Those institutions are supported by private subscriptions, and grand jury grants of equal amount, levied on the county wherein the dispensary is situated.
I am of opinion, that should any surplus remain, after paying the physician's salary, and the account for medicine and house-rent, it would be well to apply it for the purpose of procuring nourishment for the poor.	I cannot.	Dispensaries are in general peculiarly beneficial to the poor, but they may be improved, 1st. By removing the condition upon which alone grand juries can now present for them, viz. the necessity of a subscription from private individuals. This may and perhaps ought to be the rule; but grand jurors ought to have a power of relaxing it, because in many districts, there are no resident inhabitants who could subscribe, and in such the want of subscribers should be an argument in favour of, rather than against, a dispensary. The present mode reposes more confidence in the kindness of human nature than experience warrants. 2d. Instead of distinct dispensaries, multiplied at much expense, central institutions should be formed, which, at a definite expenditure, should administer medical aid by establishing branches under the care of the central physician, without additional expense. 3d. Central institutions should consist of a depot of medicines, a small hospital to receive surgical accidents and contagious diseases, a dispenser of medicines, who should sleep and reside therein, and a physician, who should be qualified to practise surgery. One physician of such a character may have charge of more than one, especially if he resides in a large town, as it would be too expensive to employ one for each; if a man of experience, it may be imprudent to employ unqualified persons, and the resident dispenser could supply his place on ordinary occasions. In this way, as in city hospitals, externs could receive daily aid, surgical accidents and contagious complaints could receive immediate aid from the dispenser, and the necessary assistance from the physician, who, as well as on special occasions, should always attend, and regularly, at least twice every week; such an institution has been brought, at Bruree, to much practical utility by the vicar, the Rev. Mr. Westropp. 4th. The grand juries should discourage the formation of dispensaries which are not patronised by the clergy, by the resident or the absent proprietors, but are supported by strangers to the parish, and therefore men liable to questionable motives. 5th. When physicians are sent to see women labouring under difficult and preternatural labours, they should be paid, besides their salaries, an extra sum per day, so long as such women require attention, because such cases are in their character most appalling of any to which afflicted human nature is exposed, as they require a patient attention, which the physician should rather possess a motive to give than to refuse, as may, as at present paid, hurry the labour to a premature conclusion, without a sufficient consideration of the lives of the mother and infant, and as he may be subjected to a conflict between his apparent interest and his duty, which, if possible, all well-regulated institutions should discourage. Lastly, the salaries of physicians and surgeons attending the poor in convenient inaccessible and widely scattered dwellings, where the absence of a local gentry presents a faint prospect of medical practice, and creates a proportioned demand on his

MUNSTER—CORK.

Clonakilty Dispensary.	Cloyne Dispensary.	Douglas Dispensary.
William Ffolliott, Esq. M.D.	Treasurer and Medical Attendant.	Julius B. Evans, Esq.
Clonakilty Dispensary, established in 1812.	Cloyne Local Dispensary, established in 1817, for the purpose of affording medical and surgical relief to the poor in the district.	Douglas Dispensary, established February 1828.
The chief part of seven parishes; all in the county of Cork, West Riding.	The district includes two parishes, and parts of five adjoining parishes, all in the same county.	Chiefly one parish, but small portions of two other parishes.
Ross Carbery Dispensary, distant 6 miles. Timoleague - - - 5 " Ballyneen - - - 8 " Dunmanway - - - 9 " Bandon - - - 10 " A fever hospital also at Bandon.	The dispensary and infirmary at Cove; the dispensary and infirmary at Middleton; the dispensaries at Castle Martyr, Aghada and Killeagh, are within ten miles of Cloyne.	There are two dispensaries within ten miles, besides the different charitable medical institutions in the city.
None.	The Cloyne Dispensary is the only establishment for the relief of the sick poor within this district. Salary 80 l. per annum, if the funds will admit.	There is but the one dispensary in my district.
No. pens, from an increase in the disbursements, owing to an increased number of applicants, &c., that the sum remaining in the treasurer's hands falls short of the stipulated amount, leaving the dispensary is open for the reception of patients every day, from 9 A.M. till 12. Cases of sudden	I attend the Cloyne Dispensary only, which is in the populous town where I reside. My salary has been fixed at 80 l. a year; but it frequently happens, from an increase in the disbursements, owing to an increased number of applicants, &c., that the sum remaining in the treasurer's hands falls short of the stipulated amount, leaving the dispensary is open for the reception of patients every day, from 9 A.M. till 12. Cases of sudden	The salary of the medical attendant is 70 l. per annum. I attend no hospital or infirmary. Attendance is afforded three days in the week.
When the patients are unable to attend at the dispensary, I uniformly make it a practice to attend them at their houses.	I consider it my duty to give my attendance in such cases in person, if possible, or by a qualified assistant, approved of by the committee, the assistant residing in the dispensary, and being paid by myself.	Immediate attendance is afforded at all times whenever necessary.
I keep a regular registry of the patients, their residence, age, disease and treatment.	A register has always been kept at the dispensary for the inspection of the committee and subscribers. The book is divided into columns, headed "Current Number," "By whose Order admitted," "Name and Age of Patient," "Place of Residence," "Time of Entry," "Quality of Disease or Hurt," "Time of Recovery or Death," "Remarks," &c.	Such a register is kept.
The average number of cases for this period have been upwards of 3,000 annually. The diseases were principally fevers, dysenteries, inflammation of the lungs, pleurisies, scrofula, cutaneous affections, surgical cases, such as accidents, operations, &c. and midwifery requiring surgical aid.	There were admitted into Cloyne Dispensary within the last three years 7,241 individuals, who obtained medical or surgical aid. The prevalent diseases during that period were, fevers of the continued and intermittent type, pulmonary diseases, bowel complaints, rheumatisms, &c.; ulcers and abscesses, contusions, wounds and fractures, were also of frequent occurrence.	The number relieved during the last three years amounted to 5,012. Fevers, diseases of the chest, affections of the stomach and bowels, rheumatism, ague, form the most numerous classes of disease.
Never.	It too often occurs that such persons participate in the benefits of the charity.	This does not occur in my district.
By Cork druggists.	The medicines are supplied by a druggist in Cork, on the written demand of the medical superintendent, and the accounts are examined annually by the committee. The medicines are compounded and dispensed at the dispensary.	The medicines are purchased from a druggist at wholesale prices, and compounded by the medical attendant as well as prescribed.
Receipt. 1831 - - - £. 113 16 0 1832 - - - 113 16 0 1833 - - - 118 19 0 The average expenditure for medicines is 20 l. per annum; and in numerous cases I have supplied food and other nourishment to poor patients, of which I have kept no account. My salary is between 80 l. and 90 l. per annum.	<table><tr><td></td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td><td>1833.</td></tr><tr><td>Balance in Treasurer's hands -</td><td>7 16 3</td><td>0 2 7</td><td>- - -</td></tr><tr><td>Amount of Subscriptions -</td><td>74 3 0</td><td>68 18 0</td><td>71 3 0</td></tr><tr><td>Grand Jury Presentment -</td><td>26 19 9½</td><td>65 0 0</td><td>65 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Total Receipts - £.</td><td>144 19 0½</td><td>134 0 7</td><td>136 3 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicines - - -</td><td>48 1 5½</td><td>43 6 6</td><td>51 0 1½</td></tr><tr><td>Rent - - -</td><td>10 0 0</td><td>10 0 0</td><td>10 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Calico - - -</td><td>2 8 9</td><td>1 17 4</td><td>1 16 7</td></tr><tr><td>Salary of Medical Superintendent -</td><td>80 0 0</td><td>75 13 3½</td><td>70 15 3</td></tr><tr><td>Lard, Printing, Stamps and Sundries -</td><td>4 6 3</td><td>3 3 5½</td><td>2 11 0½</td></tr><tr><td>Total Expenditure £.</td><td>144 16 5½</td><td>134 0 7</td><td>136 3 0½</td></tr></table>		1831.	1832.	1833.	Balance in Treasurer's hands -	7 16 3	0 2 7	- - -	Amount of Subscriptions -	74 3 0	68 18 0	71 3 0	Grand Jury Presentment -	26 19 9½	65 0 0	65 0 0	Total Receipts - £.	144 19 0½	134 0 7	136 3 0	Medicines - - -	48 1 5½	43 6 6	51 0 1½	Rent - - -	10 0 0	10 0 0	10 0 0	Calico - - -	2 8 9	1 17 4	1 16 7	Salary of Medical Superintendent -	80 0 0	75 13 3½	70 15 3	Lard, Printing, Stamps and Sundries -	4 6 3	3 3 5½	2 11 0½	Total Expenditure £.	144 16 5½	134 0 7	136 3 0½	Receipt for the last three years, 329 l. The medical attendant's salary, the medicines and the rent of the dispensary, with a few very minor matters consumed the entire sum.
	1831.	1832.	1833.
Balance in Treasurer's hands -	7 16 3	0 2 7	- - -
Amount of Subscriptions -	74 3 0	68 18 0	71 3 0
Grand Jury Presentment -	26 19 9½	65 0 0	65 0 0
Total Receipts - £.	144 19 0½	134 0 7	136 3 0
Medicines - - -	48 1 5½	43 6 6	51 0 1½
Rent - - -	10 0 0	10 0 0	10 0 0
Calico - - -	2 8 9	1 17 4	1 16 7
Salary of Medical Superintendent -	80 0 0	75 13 3½	70 15 3
Lard, Printing, Stamps and Sundries -	4 6 3	3 3 5½	2 11 0½
Total Expenditure £.	144 16 5½	134 0 7	136 3 0½
By voluntary contributions and grand jury presentments in county Cork.	Supported by subscription, and presentment from the grand jury of this county only, the subscriptions being generally more than the presentment.	By voluntary subscription, aided by a presentment from the city of Cork grand jury.
The funds of this dispensary are too limited to afford any alteration from the present practice; but if they were sufficient, a fever and surgical ward attached to the dispensary would be extremely beneficial, more especially as the County Infirmary at Mallow is 40 miles distant, and the only fever hospital in the West Riding at Bandon, a distance of ten miles.	The only suggestion I can offer is, that if the funds were strictly confined to the relief of the poor or working class, whom I consider the legitimate objects of the charity, the committee would be thereby enabled to set apart a small sum annually, to provide food, clothing and other necessaries. But to enable the committee to carry this relief to any beneficial extent, it would be necessary that they should receive an additional annual grant from the grand jury, and also that the law should be so framed as to justify them in appropriating such additional sum to this object.	I do not think that any changes for the better could be made with the funds.

MUNSTER—CORK.

Cork General Dispensary.	Crookstown Dispensary.	Donoughmore Dispensary.
Committee and Medical Attendants.	Secretary and Medical Attendant.	T. Godfrey, Esq. M.D.
The Cork General Dispensary and Humane Society, established in 1787.	The Crookstown Dispensary, established in the year 1827.	The Magourney and Donoughmore Dispensaries: Magourney established in 1825, Donoughmore 1819, to relieve the poor labouring under indisposition.
Seven parishes, all in the County of the City of Cork.	There are three parishes, and parts of three others, all in the county of Cork.	Magourney, Donoughmore, and part of Aghabologue.
The Fever Hospital, which receives the most of its patients through the Cork Dispensary physicians, who are virtually inspectors for it. The hospital attached to the House of Industry, which only receives inmates of that institution. The Strand, Glanmire, Douglas, Black Rock, Blarney, Carrignaver, Ballinaboy, Passage, Carrigaline, Donoughmore, Watergrasshill.	There are five dispensaries and one infirmary.	Iniscarra and Macroom.
There are two infirmaries within the district, which dispense medicines to those only who are able to attend these institutions, their medical staff never visiting patients at their own houses, as the physicians of this establishment duly do: they are called the North and South Infirmaries. In the North, the two physicians and senior surgeon get 20 l. each per annum. The junior surgeon is gratuitous. In the South, there are three physicians and two surgeons who receive no salary.	None.	No.
The physicians are not permitted to attend any other charitable medical institutions, excepting the Lying-in Hospital, to which two of this staff give their gratuitous services: we attend every day. The three senior physicians get 30 l. each per annum, the two next get 25 l. each per annum, and the two junior get nothing. The apothecary gets 105 l. per annum, with a residence, and some emoluments from apprentices.	No.	Yes, three miles; 50 l. , for one, 70 l. for the other; three days in the week to each.
We consider it our duty to give our personal attendance on all occasions when required by subscribers.	Immediately, when required.	Yes.
A regular registry is kept of every patient; viz. the name, age, residence, by whom recommended, the attending physician, disease and result, as far as that result can be obtained.	There is.	Yes; some cured, relieved and dead.
Patients treated in 1831 - 10,890 " 1832 - 13,062 " 1833 - 12,062 The diseases were catarrhal, pleuritic, ptisical, hepatic, rheumatic, hooping cough, croup, scarletina and measles.	The number of patients average within the last three years about 1,200 a year. They consist of medical, surgical and midwifery cases.	From the 12th of April to 20th of November 1833, 1,136 patients have been admitted to the Donoughmore Dispensary: prior to my appointment, no books have been kept in this establishment.
From the extent of the City, it is impossible that the subscriber can in all cases be acquainted with the patients they recommend; and by one of the rules the onus of guarding the charity from imposition is thrown on the physicians, who as far as in their power prevent persons not actual paupers from receiving its benefits.	One of our bye-laws expressly prohibits it; but medical men in charge of hospitals are easily and frequently imposed upon by those who are not objects of charity.	It does.
The medicines are supplied, under contract, by a wholesale druggist in the city.	By a chemist and druggist in Cork.	Mr. Hayes.
Expenditure. 1831 - - £.838 15 7 1832 - - 724 4 10 1833 - - 688 15 10½ £. 2,251 16 3½	The subscriptions are very small for so large a district, amounting to from 50 l. to 60 l. per annum, and there is a deficiency this year of about 10 l. which is deducted from the physician's salary. It is owing to the greater number of patients requiring relief last year.	Receipt. Expenditure. 1830 - £.108 2 0 £.105 3 4 1831 - 90 16 6 101 0 0 1832 - 108 16 0 109 5 11½ GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. 1830. 1831. 1832. Salary - £.70 0 0 70 0 0 70 0 0 Medicine 27 10 4 24 10 0 29 8 11½ Contingencies 7 13 0 9 10 0 9 17 0
Supported by subscriptions and donations, and a presentment from the City grand jury, not exceeding the amount of voluntary contribution.	Supported by subscriptions from the neighbouring gentry and landlords, and an equal sum from the county grand jury by presentment.	By presentment, and subscriptions obtained in one county.
With our limited income, which is insufficient for our current expenses, and debars us not only from adequately remunerating our physicians, but obliges us to accept the services of two of them gratuitously; we deeply regret that from this cause we cannot suggest any alteration.	The only suggestion I can make is, that I think if each parish was taxed to support its own sick poor, that it would be very beneficial, and proper food might then be obtained for those who require it.	I cannot, as those institutions are conducted at present.

MUNSTER—CORK.

Dunmanway Dispensary.	Freemount Dispensary.	Glandore Dispensary.
John B. Bennett, Esq.	Thomas Ahern, Esq. M.D.	—
The Dunmanway Dispensary; it was established on its present plan in July 1828.	The dispensary of which I am the physician is denominated the Freemount Dispensary. There is no infirmary or hospital in my district; only one dispensary under my care, established in March 1832.	The institution under my care is called the Glandore Dispensary; I also attend at Castletownsend, where a branch dispensary exists. The Glandore was founded in 1816.
Parts of six; viz. Fanlobbus, Kilmeen, Kil-michael, Drinagh, Dromaleague and Ballymoney, all in the county Cork.	There are six parishes in my district, all in the same county.	There are four large and populous parishes in my district, and they are all within the county of Cork.
Six miles to the east is the Ballineen Dispensary; there is no medical charitable institution within ten miles in any other direction.	Newmarket Dispensary is seven miles distant; Kanturk Dispensary about the same distance; and the Charleville one about 9½ miles.	The Rosscarbery Dispensary is five miles to the east, and the Skibbereen Dispensary six miles to the west of mine.
No.	There is no dispensary attached to any hospital or infirmary within my district; neither is there an hospital or infirmary nearer than the County Infirmary at Mallow, 18 miles distant.	There is no infirmary or hospital within my district, and the County Infirmary is at the distance of 40 miles, at Mallow; a case is never sent from my neighbourhood to it.
No.	I only attend one dispensary. I reside in a house attached to the dispensary. I attend three days in each week; my salary is 80 l. per annum.	I attend at the Castletownsend Dispensary, which is at the distance of five miles from Glandore. The Glandore is attended on four days in the week; the Castletownsend on two; and the salary for both is 70 l.
Yes, so far as the number of claims on my time will allow.	The bye-laws of my dispensary require me to attend all medical, surgical and obstetric cases on the recommendation of a subscriber of one guinea a year; but if urgent cases occur, I require none.	I conceive it my duty to attend any case within my district, for which I receive a ticket from a subscriber.
A register is kept of the names and diseases of the patients; but in the dispensary practice of an extensive district, it is often impossible to ascertain the result.	There is a registry kept of all cases, including the names of the patients, by whom recommended, the diseases, treatment and result.	There is a regular register kept in which all cases are entered; but as patients' friends seldom report either deaths or recoveries, it is impossible to state the result satisfactorily.
<table><tr><td></td><td>Medical cases.</td><td>Surgical cases.</td><td>Total.</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>2,941</td><td>3,230</td><td>6,171</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>1,815</td><td>2,028</td><td>3,843</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>1,174</td><td>1,395</td><td>2,569</td></tr></table> N.B.—Cutaneous diseases are here classed amongst surgical cases.		Medical cases.	Surgical cases.	Total.	1831	2,941	3,230	6,171	1832	1,815	2,028	3,843	1833	1,174	1,395	2,569	Three thousand patients have been attended at the dispensary and their houses since March 1832. The principal diseases were, fevers, pleurisies, dropsies, diseases of the skin, labour cases, fractures, dislocations, dyspepsia, rheumatism, &c.	The number of cases treated annually is about 2,500, and every variety of disease has prevailed, but most generally diseases of the stomach from bad diet, and surgical cases produced by neglected sores.
	Medical cases.	Surgical cases.	Total.
1831	2,941	3,230	6,171
1832	1,815	2,028	3,843
1833	1,174	1,395	2,569
This unavoidably occurs sometimes, but it is an abuse that is guarded against as much as possible.	No person is attended or recommended to the charity who is able to pay for medicine or medical aid.	Very frequently; dispensary attendants are so much in the power of local subscribers, that they do not wish to refuse the applications of even comfortable persons when backed by a subscriber's ticket.
Medicines are purchased from a druggist in Cork, and paid for out of the general funds of the institution.	The medicines are purchased at a druggists in the city of Cork, paid for out of the funds of the institution, by the treasurer, half yearly.	The medicines are supplied by a druggist in Cork, by an order from the Dispensary Committee.
<table><tr><td></td><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>£.168 9 0</td><td>£.171 15 11</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>157 2 6</td><td>141 17 6½</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>129 6 0½</td><td>122 19 0</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><td></td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td><td>1833.</td></tr><tr><td>Salaries</td><td>£.100 0 0</td><td>75 0 0</td><td>75 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine</td><td>56 0 4½</td><td>48 15 9½</td><td>27 4 7</td></tr><tr><td>Rent and Sundries</td><td>15 15 6½</td><td>18 1 10</td><td>20 14 6</td></tr></table>		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831	£.168 9 0	£.171 15 11	1832	157 2 6	141 17 6½	1833	129 6 0½	122 19 0		1831.	1832.	1833.	Salaries	£.100 0 0	75 0 0	75 0 0	Medicine	56 0 4½	48 15 9½	27 4 7	Rent and Sundries	15 15 6½	18 1 10	20 14 6	The annual amount of subscriptions about 75 l. The annual grand jury presentments, 50 l. The entire expenditure on medicines, physician's salary, house-rent for physician's residence and dispensary.	Annual receipt and expenditure amounts to 120 l. GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. Salary - - - £.70 0 0 Medicine - - - 30 0 0 Rent - - - 20 0 0 Secretary's expenses and stationery are supplied by fines from petty sessions, about 6 l. annually.
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831	£.168 9 0	£.171 15 11
1832	157 2 6	141 17 6½
1833	129 6 0½	122 19 0
	1831.	1832.	1833.
Salaries	£.100 0 0	75 0 0	75 0 0
Medicine	56 0 4½	48 15 9½	27 4 7
Rent and Sundries	15 15 6½	18 1 10	20 14 6
By voluntary subscriptions, and presentments from the county Cork only.	It is supported by subscriptions from the resident and absentee proprietors, and by an annual presentment from the county of Cork grand jury only.	It is supported by local subscriptions, and presentments from the county of Cork alone.
I consider the present application of our funds to be very judicious, but the amount is far too small to enable us to afford efficient relief to all the sick poor of so large a district.	I am of opinion that if an hospital for the reception of patients labouring under diseases of a contagious nature were attached to every dispensary, much good would result; also the distribution of bedding among the sick poor labouring under diseases of a non-contagious nature would tend much to alleviate their sufferings, and add much to their comforts.	I can offer no suggestion for the better distribution of the present funds; but if sufficient means existed for them, I think dispensaries could be made most useful institutions: in the first place, as it is impossible that the medical wants of a large district could be supplied by one individual, I would recommend that each dispensary should be provided with others requiring the daily attendance of the medical officer: at my own expense during their recovery individuals on whom the sick poor if the Government took the management of dispensaries into their own hands, and thereby removed them from the control of grand juries, who are more influenced by private interests than by any desire to make these institutions beneficial to the public.

MUNSTER—CORK.

Glanmire Dispensary.								Glanmire Road Dispensary.					Glauntane Dispensary.
Committee and Medical Attendant.								Committee and Medical Attendant.					Thomas Justice, Esq., M.D.
The Glanmire Dispensary; to give medical and surgical aid to the sick poor within a circumference of thirteen or fourteen miles; established in 1807.								Glanmire Road Dispensary; established October the 8th, 1831, for the relief of the poor; no other under my charge.					Glauntane, and no other; established in June 1826.
Four entire parishes, Rathdowney, Caherlog, Little Island and Brooklodge, the greater part of two, Templeiskey and Carringtonhill, all in the county Cork.								The greater proportion of two extensive parishes, in one of which are two shipwrights dock yards, giving employment throughout the year to many hundred persons, where accidents continually occur, together with a fishery, where many of the poorer class reside. In the other is a village thickly inhabited by the lower order of people, both in the same county.					Only parish of Kilshannig, and in same county.
The city of Cork, within four miles; Cove, nine miles; Middleton, nine miles; Watergrasshill, five miles.								Two other dispensaries, Glanmire and Dunbullog, together with the city hospitals.					County Infirmary Ballyclough, Kanturk and Donoughmore Dispensaries.
No.								There is not.					None.
No.								I do not.					None but Glauntane, which allows 100 l. per annum for medical attendance, and requires attendance for two hours on three days in the week, and on the intermediate days in urgent or sudden cases.
I have no assistant, and must comply with the order of a subscriber, if according to rule; or should the case be urgent, I seldom wait an order.								I consider it my duty to give my personal attendance in all cases at the houses of those unable to attend at the dispensary, which is open from 9 till 12 o'clock every alternate day; the entire medical, surgical and compounding department of which is conducted by myself alone.					Yes.
I have kept a list for the 15 years I am in charge, stating names, age, disease, by whom recommended, cured, visited, died, relieved or incurable.								A register is kept, stating the date of admission, the name, recommendation, age, disease, residence and result of the case of each applicant for relief.					Yes; and a return thereof made annually to the the grand jury of the county.
<table><tr><td>—</td><td>Cured.</td><td>Died.</td><td>Relieved.</td><td>Incurable.</td><td>Remaining.</td><td>Vaccinated.</td><td>Total.</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>3,187</td><td>82</td><td>57</td><td>27</td><td>58</td><td>193</td><td>3,599</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>3,114</td><td>79</td><td>47</td><td>21</td><td>62</td><td>229</td><td>3,552</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>3,181</td><td>54</td><td>41</td><td>17</td><td>51</td><td>193</td><td>3,537</td></tr></table> Epidemics have been less frequent for the last four years than the previous ten.								—	Cured.	Died.	Relieved.	Incurable.	Remaining.	Vaccinated.	Total.	1831	3,187	82	57	27	58	193	3,599	1832	3,114	79	47	21	62	229	3,552	1833	3,181	54	41	17	51	193	3,537	From the 20th of October 1831 to the 20th of October 1833, a period of two years, for which time only the dispensary has been in operation, there were admitted on the books,— <table><tr><td>Medical cases.</td><td>Surgical cases.</td><td>Total.</td><td>Cured or relieved.</td><td>Died.</td></tr><tr><td>2,213</td><td>1,215</td><td>3,428</td><td>3,412</td><td>16.</td></tr></table> Fevers, rheumatisms, inflammations of the head, chest and abdomen, small pox, measles, hooping cough and dropsies are the general medical diseases treated; surgical diseases of all kinds attended to. Malignant cholera has occasionally appeared, and visited our neighbourhood with extreme severity during its prevalence.					Medical cases.	Surgical cases.	Total.	Cured or relieved.	Died.	2,213	1,215	3,428	3,412	16.	<table><tr><td>1830</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>1,640</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>1,878</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>1,565</td></tr></table> Principally febrile diseases and affections of stomach and skin.					1830	-	-	-	1,640	1831	-	-	-	1,878	1832	-	-	-	1,565
—	Cured.	Died.	Relieved.	Incurable.	Remaining.	Vaccinated.	Total.
1831	3,187	82	57	27	58	193	3,599
1832	3,114	79	47	21	62	229	3,552
1833	3,181	54	41	17	51	193	3,537
Medical cases.	Surgical cases.	Total.	Cured or relieved.	Died.
2,213	1,215	3,428	3,412	16.
1830	-	-	-	1,640
1831	-	-	-	1,878
1832	-	-	-	1,565
Very often heretofore; but now, by a rule allowing subscribers of 5 s. 6 d. and 10 s. all the advantages of a dispensary patient. Such occurrences are much less frequent.								Never.					Persons holding small lots of ground, who are subscribers to the institution, conceive themselves entitled to receive medical assistance and medicines for themselves and families.
From a druggist, Mr. Harrington, 17, Patrickstreet, Cork.								Out of the funds of the institution, by Messrs. Gosnell & Son, North Main-street, Cork, wholesale Druggists, at wholesale prices, and compounded by the medical attendant, whereby a considerable saving is afforded the institution					Out of the general fund at druggist's price from an apothecary's establishment in the neighbouring town of Mallow.
<table><tr><th colspan="4">Receipt.</th><th colspan="4">Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td colspan="4">Subscription.</td><td colspan="4">Presentment.</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>£.93</td><td>3</td><td>6</td><td>75</td><td>0</td><td>0</td><td>148 0 3</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>-</td><td>94</td><td>3</td><td>6</td><td>90</td><td>0</td><td>155 5 9½</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>-</td><td>93</td><td>12</td><td>6</td><td>80</td><td>0</td><td>150 1 11</td></tr></table>								Receipt.				Expenditure.				Subscription.				Presentment.				1831	£.93	3	6	75	0	0	148 0 3	1832	-	94	3	6	90	0	155 5 9½	1833	-	93	12	6	80	0	150 1 11	<table><tr><th colspan="4">Receipt.</th><th colspan="4">Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>-</td><td>£.227</td><td>0</td><td>0</td><td>113</td><td>17</td><td>0</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>-</td><td>84</td><td>14</td><td>0</td><td>92</td><td>11</td><td>6</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><th></th><th>1832.</th><th>1833.</th></tr><tr><td>Salary</td><td>-</td><td>£.85 0 0</td><td>85 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine</td><td>-</td><td>13 19 2</td><td>6 18 2</td></tr><tr><td>Fitting up shop</td><td>-</td><td>12 12 9</td><td>—</td></tr><tr><td>Sundries</td><td>-</td><td>2 5 1</td><td>- 13 4</td></tr></table>					Receipt.				Expenditure.				1832	-	£.227	0	0	113	17	0	1833	-	84	14	0	92	11	6		1832.	1833.	Salary	-	£.85 0 0	85 0 0	Medicine	-	13 19 2	6 18 2	Fitting up shop	-	12 12 9	—	Sundries	-	2 5 1	- 13 4	<table><tr><th colspan="4">Receipt.</th><th colspan="4">Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>1830</td><td>-</td><td>£.169</td><td>6</td><td>11</td><td>124</td><td>0</td><td>0</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>-</td><td>139</td><td>6</td><td>2</td><td>134</td><td>11</td><td>5</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>-</td><td>123</td><td>18</td><td>0</td><td>124</td><td>9</td><td>11</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><th></th><th>1830.</th><th>1831.</th><th>1832.</th></tr><tr><td>Physician's</td><td>—</td><td>—</td><td>—</td></tr><tr><td>Salary</td><td>£.80 0 0</td><td>100 0 0</td><td>100 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine</td><td>29 0 0</td><td>24 11 5</td><td>15 9 11</td></tr><tr><td>Rent and Incidents</td><td>15 0 0</td><td>10 0 0</td><td>9 0 0</td></tr></table>					Receipt.				Expenditure.				1830	-	£.169	6	11	124	0	0	1831	-	139	6	2	134	11	5	1832	-	123	18	0	124	9	11		1830.	1831.	1832.	Physician's	—	—	—	Salary	£.80 0 0	100 0 0	100 0 0	Medicine	29 0 0	24 11 5	15 9 11	Rent and Incidents	15 0 0	10 0 0	9 0 0
Receipt.				Expenditure.
Subscription.				Presentment.
1831	£.93	3	6	75	0	0	148 0 3
1832	-	94	3	6	90	0	155 5 9½
1833	-	93	12	6	80	0	150 1 11
Receipt.				Expenditure.
1832	-	£.227	0	0	113	17	0
1833	-	84	14	0	92	11	6
	1832.	1833.
Salary	-	£.85 0 0	85 0 0
Medicine	-	13 19 2	6 18 2
Fitting up shop	-	12 12 9	—
Sundries	-	2 5 1	- 13 4
Receipt.				Expenditure.
1830	-	£.169	6	11	124	0	0
1831	-	139	6	2	134	11	5
1832	-	123	18	0	124	9	11
	1830.	1831.	1832.
Physician's	—	—	—
Salary	£.80 0 0	100 0 0	100 0 0
Medicine	29 0 0	24 11 5	15 9 11
Rent and Incidents	15 0 0	10 0 0	9 0 0
By subscriptions, and presentment from one county.								Supported by yearly subscriptions from the respectable inhabitants of the vicinity, and an annual presentment from the city grand jury.					By private subscriptions, and presentment only from same county.
No.								I do not think that any other appropriation of the funds could render the institution more beneficial to the poor than that of their present application.					Not in our own funds, being small; but in cases where the diseases of the poor arise from or are increased by want of proper clothing, we regret not having sufficient funds to procure warmer clothing, which, in our opinion, would contribute to render the medicine more efficient for the relief of the poor.

MUNSTER—CORK.

Glanworth Dispensary.	Glenville Dispensary.	Inniscarra Dispensary.
Medical Attendant.	Charles Murphy, Esq. M.D.	—
Glanworth Dispensary.	Glenville Dispensary.	Inniscarra Dispensary; no other.
The union of Glanworth and the parish of Dunmahon, in the county of Cork only.	Three; yes.	Three; viz. Inniscarra, Matthey and Carrirohane, all in the county of Cork.
There is a Fever Hospital and Dispensary at Fermoy, and a Dispensary at Kilworth, Castletown Roche, Kildorrery and Mitchelstown.	Three dispensaries within ten miles.	Magourney, Dorroughmore, Blarney, Ovens; besides those in the City of Cork, which is distant eight miles.
None.	No.	None.
The physician also attends Kildorrery, and pays an assistant. He resides at one dispensary, and is required to attend two days in the week at the other; but generally attends three days, and as often at other times as is necessary. The physician's salary at Kildorrery is 60 l. per annum, and at Glanworth 40 l. per annum.	No.	But one. I reside in the dispensary house, in the centre of my district. I am required to attend three days in the week, but do not limit my attendance to this when occasion demands. Salary 68 l. per annum.
Yes, whenever the case requires it.	Yes.	Yes, to all the poor.
Such a register is kept at both dispensaries.	Yes.	Yes.
The number relieved within the last three years has been about 4,500. The general diseases in the district have been fever, pneumonia, dysentery, natural small-pox, influenza, dyspepsia and hepatitis. In 1832 cholera prevailed with fatal effects.	For the last three years there were 3,532 relieved, as will appear by the annual returns to grand jury.	Number applied for relief in 1831, 1,800; 1832, 1,186; 1833, 2,416. Prevalent diseases in 1831, ague, pulmonary affections, &c.; 1832, ague, fever, &c.; 1833, influenza, cholera, &c. To give a more particular account would be obviously impossible.
Occasionally, in consequence of the distance of towns.	No.	Yes, sometimes by imposition; the cases are not numerous, and when discovered, are refused further relief from the public fund.
The medicines are paid for by the funds of the dispensary, and supplied by Mr. M'Namara, Druggist, in Fermoy.	By a druggist, who is paid out of the funds.	By Gosnell & Son, Apothecaries and Druggists, North Main-street, Cork.
<table><tr><td></td><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1830 -</td><td>£. 81 7 5</td><td>£. 73 0 3</td></tr><tr><td>1831 -</td><td>70 11 4</td><td>70 5 10</td></tr><tr><td>1832 -</td><td>83 9 0</td><td>75 5 8</td></tr></table> Besides the above sums, there was 200 l. placed by Government at the disposal of the Board of Health for cholera expenses, and the Board is still about 20l. in debt.		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1830 -	£. 81 7 5	£. 73 0 3	1831 -	70 11 4	70 5 10	1832 -	83 9 0	75 5 8	<table><tr><td></td><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>£. 358 13 0</td><td>£. 356 8 1</td></tr></table>		Receipt.	Expenditure.		£. 358 13 0	£. 356 8 1	<table><tr><td colspan="4">RECEIPT.</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>£. 124 11 6</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>133 4 6</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>122 0 0</td></tr></table> <table><tr><td colspan="6">EXPENDITURE.</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td><td>1833.</td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td></td><td>£.</td><td>£.</td><td>£.</td><td>s.</td><td>d.</td></tr><tr><td>Medicines</td><td>34</td><td>39</td><td>43</td><td>16</td><td>7 11½</td></tr><tr><td>Liquidation of Debt</td><td>15</td><td>17</td><td>3</td><td>9 9</td><td>11 4½</td></tr></table>	RECEIPT.				1831	-	-	£. 124 11 6	1832	-	-	133 4 6	1833	-	-	122 0 0	EXPENDITURE.							1831.	1832.	1833.				£.	£.	£.	s.	d.	Medicines	34	39	43	16	7 11½	Liquidation of Debt	15	17	3	9 9	11 4½
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1830 -	£. 81 7 5	£. 73 0 3
1831 -	70 11 4	70 5 10
1832 -	83 9 0	75 5 8
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
	£. 358 13 0	£. 356 8 1
RECEIPT.
1831	-	-	£. 124 11 6
1832	-	-	133 4 6
1833	-	-	122 0 0
EXPENDITURE.
	1831.	1832.	1833.
	£.	£.	£.	s.	d.
Medicines	34	39	43	16	7 11½
Liquidation of Debt	15	17	3	9 9	11 4½
Supported by private subscriptions and donations, also by presentments from the county of Cork.	By subscriptions, and presentments of the grand jury of the county of Cork.	By voluntary contributions, aided by an annual grant from the county Cork grand jury.
No.	No, but an increase of funds would be very desirable.	The funds of the institution are not sufficient to procure a proper nurse-tender, diet or drink. Previous to my appointment to the dispensary in the year 1828, the institution owed a sum of 80 l. to the druggist, it is now gradually clearing off that debt, the apothecary being discharged, and both duties being performed by myself.

MUNSTER—CORK.

Innishannon Dispensary.	Kanturk Dispensary.	Kildorrery Dispensary.
Richard Corbett, Esq. M.D.	Gerard P. Barry, Esq. M.D.	Medical Attendant.
The Innishannon Dispensary.	The Kanturk Dispensary; it is under my superintendence for four years, and I believe it has been established about 20 years.	Kildorrery Dispensary.
Six parishes, and part of a seventh, all situate in the county of Cork.	Eight parishes, all in same county.	The parishes of Farihy, Mogeela, Kildorrery and Nathlash, also Carrigdownan.
Kinsale, Ballinspittle, Bandon, Dunderrow, Ovens, Inniscarra.	Mallow (in which is the County Infirmary), Ballyclough, Buttevant, Glauntane, Millstreet, Newmarket and Freemount.	Doneraile, Mitchelstown and Glanworth.
None.	There is no medical charity in my district.	None.
I only attend the one above specified.	I attend only one, which is in the town I reside; my salary is 40 l. per annum; the apothecary's is 20 l. The dispensary is open for three days in the week, for three hours each day; patients unable to attend, are visited at their houses on the intervening days, within a circuit of three miles from the dispensary.	The Physician attends, and pays an assistant; he attends three days in the week at Glanworth.
Most assuredly.	Certainly, in all cases of emergency, and at any hour, when the patient is in limited circumstances, though not recommended by a subscriber.	Whenever cases require it.
I keep a registry of all cases attended, with the name, age, residence, disease, date of admission, and by whom recommended, and attach to each the result.	A report is laid before the grand jury, bearing an account of the age, disease, &c. &c. of each patient recommended by a subscriber. From the difficulty of paupers obtaining recommendations, owing to few subscribers residing in the town, such persons are prescribed for, but the names of such persons who are provided with tickets are alone recorded in the dispensary books.	A regular register is kept at the dispensary.
4,338 cases. Each season seems to me to produce disease peculiar to itself; but the most general disease is dyspepsia, and various diseases of the stomach also prevailed; affections of the lungs and lining membrane of the chest (pleurisy) measles, hooping-cough, small-pox, simple fever, cholera, and many surgical cases; but not extensively, midwifery cases.	6,540; fevers, inflammations of the head, chest and abdominal cavity, venereal affections, midwifery cases, dislocations, fractures and surgical operations.	The number relieved within the last three years have been about 12,000; the general diseases in the district have been fever, pneumonia, dysentery, natural small-pox, influenzas, dyspepsia, and hepatitis. In 1833 cholera prevailed with fatal effect.
It has occurred, and was becoming an abuse, until the committee of the dispensary within the last five years prevented it, by passing a resolution on the subject.	In some instances, though very rarely, all public institutions being unavoidably subject to a portion of abuse.	Scarcely ever, except in cases of peculiar emergency.
By Mr. Harrington, Druggist, Cork, on the order of the physician, sanctioned by the committee.	The bill for medicine, previously to its being transmitted to the druggist, has the treasurer's signature affixed; the amount is discharged out of the funds in his hands.	Purchased for the use of the dispensary from the best druggist in Cork.
Receipt and expenditure for three years, 355 l. 15 s. 6½ d. The general heads of expenditure, physician's salary, porter's salary, house-rent, medicine, coal, &c. There was a deficiency in physician's salary in each of those years.	<table><tr><th colspan="4">RECEIPT.</th></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>£.93 18 11</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>83 15 0</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>93 8 3</td></tr><tr><td></td><td></td><td></td><td>£.271 2 2</td></tr><tr><th colspan="4">GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.</th></tr><tr><td>Surgeon's Salary, at 40l. p' annum</td><td>£.120</td><td>0</td><td>0</td></tr><tr><td>Apothecary, at 20l.</td><td>-</td><td>60</td><td>0</td></tr><tr><td>Rent of Dispensary, at 7l. 7s. p' ann.,</td><td>22</td><td>1</td><td>0</td></tr><tr><td>Druggist's Bill, including Stationery</td><td></td><td>69</td><td>1</td></tr><tr><td>and other incidental Expenses</td><td></td><td>-</td><td>2</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>£.271</td><td>2</td><td>2</td></tr></table>	RECEIPT.				1831	-	-	£.93 18 11	1832	-	-	83 15 0	1833	-	-	93 8 3				£.271 2 2	GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.				Surgeon's Salary, at 40 l. p' annum	£.120	0	0	Apothecary, at 20 l.	-	60	0	Rent of Dispensary, at 7 l. 7 s. p' ann.,	22	1	0	Druggist's Bill, including Stationery		69	1	and other incidental Expenses		-	2		£.271	2	2	<table><tr><th colspan="4">RECEIPT.</th></tr><tr><td>1830</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>£.132 18 0</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>130 10 0</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>138 3 0</td></tr><tr><td></td><td></td><td></td><td>£.401 11 0</td></tr><tr><th colspan="4">EXPENDITURE.</th></tr><tr><td>1830</td><td>£.129</td><td>16</td><td>2</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>-</td><td>128</td><td>3</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>-</td><td>126</td><td>13</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>£.384</td><td>12</td><td>9½</td></tr><tr><td>Balance in hand</td><td>£.3</td><td>1</td><td>10</td></tr><tr><td>Ditto</td><td>-</td><td>5</td><td>8</td></tr><tr><td>Ditto</td><td>-</td><td>16</td><td>18</td></tr></table>	RECEIPT.				1830	-	-	£.132 18 0	1831	-	-	130 10 0	1832	-	-	138 3 0				£.401 11 0	EXPENDITURE.				1830	£.129	16	2	1831	-	128	3	1832	-	126	13		£.384	12	9½	Balance in hand	£.3	1	10	Ditto	-	5	8	Ditto	-	16	18
RECEIPT.
1831	-	-	£.93 18 11
1832	-	-	83 15 0
1833	-	-	93 8 3
			£.271 2 2
GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.
Surgeon's Salary, at 40 l. p' annum	£.120	0	0
Apothecary, at 20 l.	-	60	0
Rent of Dispensary, at 7 l. 7 s. p' ann.,	22	1	0
Druggist's Bill, including Stationery		69	1
and other incidental Expenses		-	2
	£.271	2	2
RECEIPT.
1830	-	-	£.132 18 0
1831	-	-	130 10 0
1832	-	-	138 3 0
			£.401 11 0
EXPENDITURE.
1830	£.129	16	2
1831	-	128	3
1832	-	126	13
	£.384	12	9½
Balance in hand	£.3	1	10
Ditto	-	5	8
Ditto	-	16	18
It is supported by voluntary contributions, and a presentment off the county Cork only each year.	By private subscriptions collected from gentry resident in the vicinity, from non-residents possessing property here, when a sum similar in amount is obtained by grand jury presentment at spring assizes.	By private subscriptions, and by presentments from the grand jury of the county of Cork.
I think hospital accommodation should be procured in every district, or an hospital for three or four contiguous districts, or if the funds would not admit of the former, and indeed in few instances I believe the expense could be afforded, a soup-shop and clothing-room might be provided; the clothing (bed-clothes particularly,) to be lent to the persons during disease. In my humble opinion, a great deal could be done for the alleviation of the poor suffering from disease, if the governors of dispensaries would lend more of their personal aid to the physician; but, unfortunately, there are numbers of persons whose benevolence extends merely to their giving their money, and never inquiring how it is expended.	The funds are too limited to support an infirmary capable of holding 12 beds, which should be attached to each dispensary. Under existing circumstances, I do not conceive the funds could be more appropriately applied for the relief of the poor.	No.

MUNSTER—CORK.

Kilmore Dispensary.	Killeagh and Mount Uniacke Dispensary.	Kilworth Dispensary.
Charles Armstrong, Esq.	—	—
The Kilmore Dispensary.	The Killeagh and Mount Uniacke Dispensary, established 13th April 1832.	The dispensary which I attend is called the Kilworth Dispensary, is situated in the town of Kilworth, and was established in 1815.
One, situated in county of Cork.	Six parishes; namely, Killeagh, Clonpriest, Ardagh, Dangan, Ballamacody and Mogeela.	The district includes four parishes, all in the county Cork.
There is a dispensary in Skull, distant from that of Kilmore by nine or ten miles.	Castle Martyr Dispensary and private Hospital under Lord Shannon, Youghal Hospital and Dispensary, Middleton Hospital and Dispensary, Cloyne Dispensary.	There are the Fermoy, Mitchelstown, Glanworth and Rathcormac, within ten miles.
None.	There is no other dispensary or hospital in my district.	There is not a second dispensary in this district, and the County Infirmary is 15 miles distant.
I attend only one dispensary, adjoining which I reside. Whatever funds remain in the treasurer's hands after the different expenses are paid, are given as my salary; this may be 85 l. for the year; but of this I am not certain.	I merely attend the dispensary to which I am attached, and receive 100 l. annually	I attend but one dispensary, and receive but 60 l. per annum for a daily attendance of four hours and upwards.
I do, when called on by a subscriber; but if a person be recommended who I believe, from circumstances, is not an object for dispensary relief, I can represent the thing to the committee, who are always anxious to prevent abuses.	I consider it my duty to attend personally all cases, both medical and surgical.	I consider it my duty to give personal attendance in all cases, the urgency of which is stated in the ticket of recommendation.
Yes.	There is in the dispensary a register of all persons applying for advice, but the result of cases is not easily ascertained, the institution being a new one.	A registry is kept of all cases, their treatment and result.
The dispensary is in being only a year and a half; I have been connected with it for six months, during which time 1,090 persons have received medical aid, the majority of which were of an ophthalmic, cutaneous and dyspeptic nature.	The institution has only been established for one year and seven months, during which period 1,594 persons have received advice and medicine.	Upwards of 4,000 l. patients have been attended in the last three years; but I cannot in this space furnish a general statement of the diseases.
I think not, the subscribers being very particular in recommending none but those who are objects of charity.	No person, by the rules of the charity, is allowed to receive advice or medicine, except paupers.	Persons fully able to purchase medicines and fee a medical man are too frequently recommended to this charity; dispensaries are in this particular shamefully abused.
By a druggist resident in Cork, who furnishes medicines on the order of the medical attendant of the dispensary.	By the order of the medical attendant, from Mr. Harrington, Druggist, Cork; the account is furnished to the committee.	Medicines are procured by the dispensary committee from a druggist in Cork.
—	Amount of Receipts for 1832, £.177 0 0 Amount of Expenditure; viz. for Medicines, Salary to } 158 17 6 ½ Physician, Rents, &c. - } The accounts for the current year (1833) not yet closed.	Annual Receipt and Expenditure - £.100 GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. Salary - - - - £.60 Medicine about - - - - 30 Rent - - - - 10
By private subscription, and presentment from county of Cork alone.	By private subscription, and presentment from Cork only.	It is supported by voluntary subscriptions and presentments from the grand jury of the county of Cork only.
I cannot.	The funds of the charity are so small, that I do not know how they could be more advantageously applied; would they permit, an hospital would be a decided advantage.	I cannot imagine how the trifling funds allowed for the support of this institution could be more efficiently applied for the relief of the poor; but I would suggest the utility of compelling grand juries to present funds for the support of a small fever house in this district (having a population of 9,000), with one small ward for surgical accidents.

MUNSTER—CORK.

Kinnalea Dispensary.	Kinnataloon Dispensary.	Macroon Dispensary.
Thomas Daunt, Esq. Medical Officer.	Committee and Medical Attendant.	W. Furlong, Esq. M.D.
Kinnalea Dispensary, established in 1817, for the relief of those who are unable to pay for medicine.	Kinnataloon Baronial Dispensary, established in the year 1825.	Macroon District Dispensary, established in 1813.
Six, and part of two more, viz. Noughoval, Kenmare, Kilmanogue, Ballyfoil, Ballyfeard, Tracton, part of Cullen, and Ballymartle.	Six, all in the county of Cork.	Seven entire large and populous parishes, and nearly half of four others, all in the county of Cork, and Baronies of East and West Muskerry.
Kinsale, Innishannon, Carrigaline, Balindrassig.	Three in the county of Cork; viz., Fermoy, a fever-house and dispensary; Rathcormac, a dispensary, and Watergrass hill, a dispensary; and three in the county Waterford, viz., Lismore, a fever-house and dispensary; Tallow, a fever-house and dispensary; and Ballyduff, a dispensary.	Crookstown Dispensary, between Macroon and Bandon, and Magourney Dispensary, between Macroon and Cork.
None other.	None; the dispensary I have charge of is the only institution of the kind in the barony.	There is not.
I attend but the one; three days in the week for giving out medicine, the other days for visiting those who are unable to attend. I reside at the dispensary; salary 60 l .	One only; distance from my residence less than a quarter of a mile; salary 100 guineas a year; attendance three days in the week for dispensing medicine, and every day for visiting patients at their own houses who are unable to attend at the dispensary.	I do not; I attend at the dispensary at Macroon three days each week, and visit patients requiring assistance every day called upon; my salary is 80 l . a year.
I do.	Invariably.	I consider it my duty to attend all cases of midwifery, and all cases of acute disease, at the residence of the patient.
There is a return which is made half-yearly of the cured, dead and those on the list.	Yes, the application is filed, and the name, age, residence, date of admission, disease and treatment of the patient registered; the result is generally favourable.	A separate register of cases requiring to be visited is not kept; but a correct list of all patients recommended to the dispensary is kept, with the result, as far as so extended a district will allow.
About 820 each year.	<table><tr><th>Years.</th><th>No. of Applications.</th><th colspan="2">Medical Cases</th><th>Surgical.</th><th>Female and Midwifery.</th><th>Died.</th></tr><tr><th></th><th></th><th>Fevers.</th><th>Other Diseases.</th><th></th><th></th><th></th></tr><tr><td>1830</td><td>2,447</td><td>587</td><td>1,534</td><td>253</td><td>59</td><td>14</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>3,062</td><td>650</td><td>2,041</td><td>299</td><td>53</td><td>19</td></tr><tr><td>*1832</td><td>3,361</td><td>476</td><td>2,707</td><td>104</td><td>61</td><td>13</td></tr></table> * The greater number of medical cases this year is to be attributed to the prevalence of an epidemic influenza, and consequent comparative absence of febrile and other complaints; a remark, which observation and experience will prove to be founded on fact.	Years.	No. of Applications.	Medical Cases		Surgical.	Female and Midwifery.	Died.			Fevers.	Other Diseases.				1830	2,447	587	1,534	253	59	14	1831	3,062	650	2,041	299	53	19	*1832	3,361	476	2,707	104	61	13	The number of patients admitted on subscribers' tickets for the last three years amounts to 9,621; about 2,000 more have been relieved without recommendation. The general cases are, midwifery, fever, pneumonia, stomach diseases, infantile, and cutaneous affections; in surgery, wounds, bruises and fractures.
Years.	No. of Applications.	Medical Cases		Surgical.	Female and Midwifery.	Died.
		Fevers.	Other Diseases.
1830	2,447	587	1,534	253	59	14
1831	3,062	650	2,041	299	53	19
*1832	3,361	476	2,707	104	61	13
By the rules of the dispensary, those who are able to pay do not get medicine there.	It has happened, by subscribers (I believe) having been imposed upon.	It frequently occurs, the medical attendant not being allowed the power of refusing aid to such.
Out of the funds of the charity.	By Mr. Dargavill, Apothecary and Druggist, Cork, upon my order, by authority of the committee.	The medicines are of the very best class, and supplied from a respectable druggist, on an order signed by the treasurer.
About 70 l . each year expended in salary, medicines, messengers, paper and stamp for grand jury grant, &c.	<table><tr><th colspan="3">EXPENDITURE.</th></tr><tr><th></th><th>1830.</th><th>1831.</th><th>1832.</th></tr><tr><th></th><th>£. s. d.</th><th>£. s. d.</th><th>£. s. d.</th></tr><tr><td>Salary</td><td>105 0 0</td><td>105 0 0</td><td>105 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine</td><td>47 2 1</td><td>40 7 3½</td><td>42 6 5½</td></tr><tr><td>Man in care of Dispensary</td><td>2 0 0</td><td>2 0 0</td><td>2 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Coal</td><td>1 0 6</td><td>1 2 0</td><td>1 0 6</td></tr></table>	EXPENDITURE.				1830.	1831.	1832.		£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	Salary	105 0 0	105 0 0	105 0 0	Medicine	47 2 1	40 7 3½	42 6 5½	Man in care of Dispensary	2 0 0	2 0 0	2 0 0	Coal	1 0 6	1 2 0	1 0 6	<table><tr><th colspan="2">Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><th>Subscriptions.</th><th>Presentments.</th><th></th></tr><tr><th>£. s. d.</th><th>£. s. d.</th><th>£. s. d.</th></tr><tr><td>1830 - 123 12 6</td><td>105 0 0</td><td>226 12 6</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - 123 7 6</td><td>105 0 0</td><td>228 7 6</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - 105 8 0</td><td>87 0 0</td><td>220 9 3</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.—Physician's Salary, 80l. per annum; Apothecary, 40l.; Rent of House, 20l.; Druggist's Bill varies generally from about 65l. to 70l. Sundry articles are purchased at a lower price than a druggist would sell them at.	Receipt.		Expenditure.	Subscriptions.	Presentments.		£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	1830 - 123 12 6	105 0 0	226 12 6	1831 - 123 7 6	105 0 0	228 7 6	1832 - 105 8 0	87 0 0	220 9 3
EXPENDITURE.
	1830.	1831.	1832.
	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.
Salary	105 0 0	105 0 0	105 0 0
Medicine	47 2 1	40 7 3½	42 6 5½
Man in care of Dispensary	2 0 0	2 0 0	2 0 0
Coal	1 0 6	1 2 0	1 0 6
Receipt.		Expenditure.
Subscriptions.	Presentments.
£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.
1830 - 123 12 6	105 0 0	226 12 6
1831 - 123 7 6	105 0 0	228 7 6
1832 - 105 8 0	87 0 0	220 9 3
By subscriptions, and also a presentment.	By private subscriptions, and grand jury presentments from the county Cork only.	By private subscriptions, and by presentments at summer assizes on the county of Cork only.
I cannot do so.	The committee are of opinion that no alteration can be for the better.	The funds of the Macroon Dispensary being barely adequate to carry on the institution, I do not conceive any other distribution of them could be made.

take place; but I am clearly convinced, that were a fever hospital or small local infirmary attached to the dispensary, much good would result, and many lives be saved. The grand jury of the county Cork have for some years assumed the power of only granting what sums they please in aid of dispensaries, instead of, as formerly, giving a sum equal to the amount of subscriptions received.

take place; but I am clearly convinced, that were a fever hospital or small local infirmary attached to the dispensary, much good would result, and many lives be saved. The grand jury of the county Cork have for some years assumed the power of only granting what sums they please in aid of dispensaries, instead of, as formerly, giving a sum equal to the amount of subscriptions received.

MUNSTER—CORK.

Magourney Dispensary.	Millstreet Dispensary.	Ovens Dispensary.
Thomas Godfrey, Esq., M.D.	Thomas Cudmore, Esq. Medical Attendant.	Committee and Medical Attendant.
Magourney Dispensary, established the 12th February 1825; Donoughmore Dispensary, established the 3d December 1819. The object of each ought to be to relieve the necessitous poor, labouring under any complaint requiring medical or surgical assistance.	Millstreet Dispensary, established about 30 years ago, and no other.	Ovens Dispensary, established in the year 1817.
Magourney, part of Aghabologue and Donoughmore, in the same county.	Five parishes, all in the county of Cork, with the exception of part of one, which is in the county of Kerry.	Union of Athnowen and Kilnaglory, Desertmore, portions of Kilbonane, Aglish, St. Barry's, Carrigrohane, all in the county of Cork.
Inniscarra Dispensary, six miles; Macroom, seven miles.	There is none.	A military hospital at Ballincollig, dispensaries at Inniscarra, Innishannon, Ballindrassig, Crookstown and Magourney; and public hospitals at Cork and Bandon, all within ten miles of the Ovens dispensary.
No internal accommodation for patients nearer than Cork or Mallow; and since my appointment to those institutions, do not recollect of any case being sent to either; two or three cases of lunacy were sent to the Lunatic Asylum.	There is no hospital or infirmary within the district.	None.
I attend two dispensaries. The Magourney on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday, about 100 yards from my residence; salary 50 guineas per year. The Donoughmore, Monday, Wednesday and Friday, three miles distant from my residence; salary 70 l. a year.	Superintendent is attached to Millstreet Dispensary only.	No.
Most certainly to all such as cannot afford a fee, within my district.	I do, when called upon by a subscriber, for paupers alone.	Yes.
Yes; the name, age, place of abode, by whom recommended, and the disease, is registered. After being booked in this manner, he is not again put on the entry book, except he should get, on a future occasion, a return of the complaint, or be affected with some other disease. In one of the institutions of which I have charge, there is an entry and prescription book; in the former, the patient is only once entered; in the latter, on every occasion that medicines are ordered, and also the medicines prescribed.	There is a register kept for the purposes stated in this query.	Yes.
From the 5th of January 1830 to 1st of January 1833, number on entry book 1,939; of those, some were cases of fever, measles, cutaneous, midwifery, surgical accidents, affections of the eye, stomach, abdominal, uterine affections, &c. &c.; also a few cases of Asiatic cholera.	1831 - - - 989 1832 - - - 1,016 1833 - - - 995 ----- 3,000 ----- Fevers, pectoral complaints, &c. &c. &c.	—
It does.	In some few cases, through inadvertency.	Such cases do occur, but the practice is contrary to the rules of the institution.
At the Magourney Dispensary, partly by Mr. Gosnell; at the Donoughmore, by Mr. Hayes.	Hitherto by superintendent; henceforward by treasurer.	By a druggist in the city of Cork.
<table><tr><td></td><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - -</td><td>£.70 0 0</td><td>£.70 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - -</td><td>88 12 0</td><td>88 12 0</td></tr><tr><td>1833 - -</td><td>80 8 6</td><td>—</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><td></td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td></tr><tr><td>Physician's Salary -</td><td>£.45 0 0</td><td>65 8 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicines - - -</td><td>17 0 0</td><td>16 17 0</td></tr><tr><td>Rent - - - - -</td><td>3 0 0</td><td>3 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Sundries - - - -</td><td>5 0 0</td><td>3 7 0</td></tr></table>		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831 - -	£.70 0 0	£.70 0 0	1832 - -	88 12 0	88 12 0	1833 - -	80 8 6	—		1831.	1832.	Physician's Salary -	£.45 0 0	65 8 0	Medicines - - -	17 0 0	16 17 0	Rent - - - - -	3 0 0	3 0 0	Sundries - - - -	5 0 0	3 7 0	<table><tr><td></td><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - -</td><td>£.87 16 0</td><td>£.84 14 0</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - -</td><td>87 3 1</td><td>83 2 8</td></tr><tr><td>1833 - -</td><td>114 18 9</td><td>101 6 10</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. Rent, medicines, and salary to superintendent.		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831 - -	£.87 16 0	£.84 14 0	1832 - -	87 3 1	83 2 8	1833 - -	114 18 9	101 6 10	<table><tr><td></td><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1830 - -</td><td>£.130 4 0</td><td>£.130 7 9</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - -</td><td>119 10 0</td><td>119 10 0</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - -</td><td>141 9 5½</td><td>141 9 5½</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><td></td><td>1830.</td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td></tr><tr><td>Salary - £.</td><td>80 0 0</td><td>80 0 0</td><td>80 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine -</td><td>30 3 0</td><td>19 4 10½</td><td>41 4 4</td></tr><tr><td>Rent - - -</td><td>20 0 0</td><td>20 0 0</td><td>20 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Stamps - -</td><td>0 4 9½</td><td>0 5 1½</td><td>0 5 1½</td></tr></table>		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1830 - -	£.130 4 0	£.130 7 9	1831 - -	119 10 0	119 10 0	1832 - -	141 9 5½	141 9 5½		1830.	1831.	1832.	Salary - £.	80 0 0	80 0 0	80 0 0	Medicine -	30 3 0	19 4 10½	41 4 4	Rent - - -	20 0 0	20 0 0	20 0 0	Stamps - -	0 4 9½	0 5 1½	0 5 1½
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831 - -	£.70 0 0	£.70 0 0
1832 - -	88 12 0	88 12 0
1833 - -	80 8 6	—
	1831.	1832.
Physician's Salary -	£.45 0 0	65 8 0
Medicines - - -	17 0 0	16 17 0
Rent - - - - -	3 0 0	3 0 0
Sundries - - - -	5 0 0	3 7 0
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831 - -	£.87 16 0	£.84 14 0
1832 - -	87 3 1	83 2 8
1833 - -	114 18 9	101 6 10
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1830 - -	£.130 4 0	£.130 7 9
1831 - -	119 10 0	119 10 0
1832 - -	141 9 5½	141 9 5½
	1830.	1831.	1832.
Salary - £.	80 0 0	80 0 0	80 0 0
Medicine -	30 3 0	19 4 10½	41 4 4
Rent - - -	20 0 0	20 0 0	20 0 0
Stamps - -	0 4 9½	0 5 1½	0 5 1½
By voluntary subscription, and presentment, obtained in one county.	By private subscriptions, and presentments from the grand jury of the county of Cork.	By presentments from the county, and private subscriptions. We have some very small parishes, and portions of others contributing, some, nothing, and others very little to the maintenance of the dispensary.
As those institutions are supported at present, I cannot. The funds are generally very insufficient for the support of them, and while only the humane subscribe, those who often have the largest numbers of paupers on their estates give nothing. The opulent often give a tacit refusal of their mite, while the worthy rector of a parish, in some instances, does not give a shilling, although he may have over 1,000 l. a year under the tithe composition.	By attaching an hospital or infirmary to the dispensary, thereby bringing persons infected under the immediate care of the superintendent, preventing the extension of disease. effects for the alleviation of disease amongst the poor of the district, has been upheld, with the aid of grand jury presentment, by subscriptions of the clergy, resident gentry and farmers, unassisted, however, by the non-resident proprietors, with a few honourable exceptions.	We know of no alteration that could be made for the better, under existing circumstances, viz. paucity of funds, &c. We cannot close this report without observing, that this institution, which has been carried on for the last sixteen years with the best

MUNSTER—CORK.

Passage and Monkstown Dispensary.	Rathcormac and Castlelyons Dispensary.	Rosscarberry Dispensary.
	Committee and Medical Attendant.	Thomas Fitzgibbon, Esq., Surgeon.
The Passage and Monkstown Dispensary. Attempts have been made lately to separate them, but without effect, the population of Monkstown rapidly increasing; established in 1812.	Rathcormac and Castle Lyons Dispensary, for affording medical attendance and medicine gratuitously to the poor; established for the Rathcormac district about the year 1817, and Castle Lyons was added to it in the year 1827.	The Rosscarberry Dispensary. No other medical charitable institution here; established as close as I can discover, 21 years; said to be one of the first instituted in county Cork.
Two parishes in the same county, and part of another in the same.	Rathcormac, Castle Lyons and Gortroe. the dispensaries of Glandore and Clonakilty; but subscribers recommending according to pleasure, you are often carried into neighbouring districts.	There are three parishes, Ross, Castle Ventry and Rathbarry, wholly dependent on this institution, and parts of three other parishes; viz. Kilmacabea, Kilfaugnanbeg and Kilkeranmore, conjointly with the dispensaries of Glandore and Clonakilty; but subscribers recommending according to pleasure, you are often carried into neighbouring districts.
In the south, within seven miles, is Cork and its hospitals, dispensaries, &c. &c., Carrigaline, Douglas, Ballindrassig; in the north, Glanmire, Cove, Middleton.	A dispensary and fever hospital at Fermoy, a dispensary at Watergrasshill, and one at Glenville.	The dispensary of Clonakilty within 6½ miles; Glandore, 6 miles; Dunmanway, 9 miles; Skibbereen, 10 miles.
There are no hospitals or dispensaries in my district, except the one already named.	No other dispensary or infirmary in the district. A fever hospital is now being built for the district.	None.
I only attend one daily, and the salary varies from 60 l. to 80 l. sterling a year, according to the subscriptions received.	No other. I reside in Rathcormac, and attend there three days in the week, and attend two days at the branch of the same institution, in Castle Lyons, being two miles distant. No separate salary.	But the one named at Query 1; salary, 50 l. per annum; attendance daily from 8 to 11 o'clock, A. M., Sundays excepted; but all sudden illness or labour cases attended to any day or hour of day or night.
I do.	I do not consider it my duty to attend, except in urgent cases, without a note of recommendation from a subscriber to the institution.	Whenever it is directed by special visiting ticket of a subscriber, and always without such ticket in case of sudden illness, accident, wound or labour.
Their name, residence, disease, and recommendation, are daily entered on the books of the institution.	A register is kept of all applying, in which the name, residence, age, disease, and the subscriber recommending, are entered. Those not able to come to the dispensary are attended at their own houses; the rest are prescribed for and supplied with medicines at the dispensary.	Such has been the case for the 11 years the subscriber has held the situation.
About 3,800 afflicted with various diseases, too long to enumerate.	From 1st July 1820 to 1st July 1831, 1,809 were relieved; 1831, 2,209; 1832, 1,630. The diseases various; fever averaged about 80 cases annually in the district; thoracic diseases over 200; gastric, 140.	<table><tr><td>1831</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>3,458</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>3,046</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>3,334</td></tr></table> The limits here are too small to enter into such minute statements; they used to be made half yearly to the grand jury, but were unattended to.	1831	-	-	-	3,458	1832	-	-	-	3,046	1833	-	-	-	3,334
1831	-	-	-	3,458
1832	-	-	-	3,046
1833	-	-	-	3,334
Very seldom.	Occasionally. farmers, &c. would sooner see their friends die, than pay a doctor a moderate fee, and that they do it purely from charity to the sufferers.	Repeatedly, and by the admission of the subscribers; but they state as their reason, that the better
By contract from druggists in Cork, and afterwards compounded at the dispensary.	Medicines are principally obtained at Mr. Harrington's, Druggist, Cork. Some are made at the institution.	By a druggist in Cork, on the order of the medical man, who has a discretionary power of ordering what he may require. It should be remarked that the druggist is an annual subscriber to the charity.
The whole receipts, disbursements, &c. are regularly entered in the book, and amount to about 100 l. sterling yearly.	<table><tr><th></th><th>Annual Grand Jury Presentm.</th><th>Subscriptions.</th><th>Total Amount of Receipts.</th><th>Physician & Assistant's Salary.</th><th>Medicine.</th><th>House-rent.</th><th>Stamps, Postage, &c. &c.</th><th>Total Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td></td><td>£.</td><td>£. s.</td><td>£. s.</td><td>£. s. d.</td><td>£.</td><td>£.</td><td>£. s. d.</td><td>£. s.</td></tr><tr><td>*1830-31</td><td>70</td><td>99 11</td><td>169 11</td><td>119 2 4</td><td>35</td><td>12</td><td>3 8 8</td><td>169 11</td></tr><tr><td>1831-32</td><td>70</td><td>99 13</td><td>169 13</td><td>120 6 8</td><td>35</td><td>12</td><td>1 6 4½</td><td>169 13</td></tr><tr><td>1832-33</td><td>70</td><td>88 12</td><td>188 12</td><td>111 8 9½</td><td>35</td><td>12</td><td>0 6 4</td><td>188 12</td></tr></table> * The accounts are annually made up on the 1st of July. † Medicine was supplied for this sum, by the attending physician; but by the recommendation of the Board of Superintendence of Charitable Institutions, this system has been given up, and the medicines are now obtained from Cork on account of the dispensary.		Annual Grand Jury Presentm.	Subscriptions.	Total Amount of Receipts.	Physician & Assistant's Salary.	Medicine.	House-rent.	Stamps, Postage, &c. &c.	Total Expenditure.		£.	£. s.	£. s.	£. s. d.	£.	£.	£. s. d.	£. s.	*1830-31	70	99 11	169 11	119 2 4	35	12	3 8 8	169 11	1831-32	70	99 13	169 13	120 6 8	35	12	1 6 4½	169 13	1832-33	70	88 12	188 12	111 8 9½	35	12	0 6 4	188 12	<table><tr><th colspan="3">Receipt.</th><th colspan="3"></th></tr><tr><th></th><th>1830.</th><th>1831.</th><th></th><th>1831.</th><th>1832.</th></tr><tr><td>Balance -</td><td>£. 32 3 5</td><td>19 11 1½</td><td></td><td>9 19 2</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Subscriptions</td><td>54 5 0</td><td>61 19 6</td><td></td><td>56 17 6</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Presentment</td><td>54 5 0</td><td>50 0 0</td><td></td><td>54 0 0</td><td></td></tr></table> <table><tr><th colspan="3">Expenditure.</th><th colspan="3"></th></tr><tr><th></th><th>1830.</th><th>1831.</th><th></th><th>1831.</th><th>1832.</th></tr><tr><td>Salary -</td><td>£. s. d. 71 0 0</td><td>71 0 0</td><td></td><td>62 0 0</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Medicine -</td><td>30 19 10½</td><td>21 9 11</td><td></td><td>25 12 7½</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Rent -</td><td>10 10 0</td><td>10 10 0</td><td></td><td>10 10 0</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Fuel -</td><td>5 0 0</td><td>5 0 0</td><td></td><td>5 0 0</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Sundries -</td><td>3 12 3</td><td>13 11 6½</td><td></td><td>5 7 5</td><td></td></tr></table>	Receipt.							1830.	1831.		1831.	1832.	Balance -	£. 32 3 5	19 11 1½		9 19 2		Subscriptions	54 5 0	61 19 6		56 17 6		Presentment	54 5 0	50 0 0		54 0 0		Expenditure.							1830.	1831.		1831.	1832.	Salary -	£. s. d. 71 0 0	71 0 0		62 0 0		Medicine -	30 19 10½	21 9 11		25 12 7½		Rent -	10 10 0	10 10 0		10 10 0		Fuel -	5 0 0	5 0 0		5 0 0		Sundries -	3 12 3	13 11 6½		5 7 5
	Annual Grand Jury Presentm.	Subscriptions.	Total Amount of Receipts.	Physician & Assistant's Salary.	Medicine.	House-rent.	Stamps, Postage, &c. &c.	Total Expenditure.
	£.	£. s.	£. s.	£. s. d.	£.	£.	£. s. d.	£. s.
*1830-31	70	99 11	169 11	119 2 4	35	12	3 8 8	169 11
1831-32	70	99 13	169 13	120 6 8	35	12	1 6 4½	169 13
1832-33	70	88 12	188 12	111 8 9½	35	12	0 6 4	188 12
Receipt.
	1830.	1831.		1831.	1832.
Balance -	£. 32 3 5	19 11 1½		9 19 2
Subscriptions	54 5 0	61 19 6		56 17 6
Presentment	54 5 0	50 0 0		54 0 0
Expenditure.
	1830.	1831.		1831.	1832.
Salary -	£. s. d. 71 0 0	71 0 0		62 0 0
Medicine -	30 19 10½	21 9 11		25 12 7½
Rent -	10 10 0	10 10 0		10 10 0
Fuel -	5 0 0	5 0 0		5 0 0
Sundries -	3 12 3	13 11 6½		5 7 5
By presentments from the county grand jury of Cork, and voluntary contributions.	Supported by voluntary contributions, and by an annual presentment from the grand jury of the county of Cork.	By voluntary contribution in part, and partly by grand jury presentment.
I cannot.	Not with the present funds, but with a small addition to the present means, I conceive where the medical man and medicines are paid for, with an hospital built, a very useful institution may be supported at a very trifling additional expense to the community.	Not with the present state of funds. If the grand jury were a little more liberal, from four to six beds might be added to each dispensary, for accidents and non-contagious medical and surgical cases, by which means attendance might be paid that never would be afforded at their own homes; small fever houses too would be a blessing.

MUNSTER—CORK.

Skull Dispensary.	Skibbereen Dispensary.	Timoleague Dispensary.
—	A. M ^c Carthy, Esq., M. D.	The Committee.
Skull Dispensary, established July 1833.	The Skibbereen Dispensary. No other institution.	Timoleague Dispensary, established A. D. 1822, for the medical relief of the poor. This is the only one.
Two entire parishes, and a portion of two others, all in the same county.	Eleven parishes, all in one county and barony.	There are nine parishes, and part of a tenth, all in the same county and riding.
Kilmoe Dispensary.	There are three dispensaries within 10 miles; Glandore, Skull and Ross.	There is the Bandon Dispensary and Fever Hospital, Clonakilty Dispensary, and Ballinspittle Dispensary.
No hospital or infirmary in the district.	There is no infirmary in my district.	There is no other dispensary within the district.
No other dispensary. Five days' attendance; two at the village of Skull, and three at Ballydehob, 4 miles distant. Salary for the past year, 75 l .	I attend but the Skibbereen Dispensary, at which there is daily attendance from 10 to 1 o'clock, forenoon, by me, as physician, and by the apothecary. We visit a district of 12 miles. Physician's salary, 55 l . per annum; apothecary's salary, 30 l . per annum.	I attend no other medical institution; my salary is stated in reply to query 11.
Yes.	I consider it my duty in all cases to afford aid to the sick poor in my district.	I do, in compliance with the regulations of this dispensary.
Yes.	There is a regular registry, with a case book, detailing the age, residence, name of disease, treatment, and circumstances of each case admitted.	A registry is kept of all cases where applications have been made for aid, governors' tickets always filed, and the cases attended with good effect in general.
The number relieved since July 1833 amount, to this period, to several thousand.	The total number of admissions for the last three years amount to 7,210. 1830 - - - - - 2,645 1831 - - - - - 2,326 1832 - - - - - 2,239	The number of persons relieved within the last three years (viz. 1830, 1831 and 1832) amount to 7,680. The usual diseases were, viz. typhus and others, cerebral, pectoral, abdominal, eruptive, cutaneous, ophthalmic, midwifery, vaccinated, and surgical accidents, &c. &c. &c.
It does occur.	The poverty of the people in this district is so widely extended, that I meet no applications for relief that are not objects for the charity.	No persons are entitled to gratuitous aid, who are considered in circumstances able to pay for medical advice.
By the committee, from a druggist.	The medicines are of the best quality, and supplied by Mr. John J. Hayes, Druggist and Chemist, of Cork. All orders for medicine are vouched by the committee.	By an order from the treasurer to a druggist appointed by the committee to this dispensary.
	<table><tr><th></th><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>1831 - -</td><td>£. 152 5 0</td><td>£. 182 9 3</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - -</td><td>- 146 19 0</td><td>- 149 9 3</td></tr><tr><td>1833 - -</td><td>- 160 19 6</td><td>- 124 6 1½</td></tr></table>		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831 - -	£. 152 5 0	£. 182 9 3	1832 - -	- 146 19 0	- 149 9 3	1833 - -	- 160 19 6	- 124 6 1½	<table><tr><th></th><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>1830 -</td><td>£. 121 6 2</td><td>£. 121 6 2</td></tr><tr><td>1831 -</td><td>- 140 10 0</td><td>- 140 10 0</td></tr><tr><td>1832 -</td><td>- 140 10 0</td><td>- 140 10 0</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><th></th><th>1830.</th><th>1831.</th><th>1832.</th></tr><tr><td>Salary -</td><td>£. 80 10 10</td><td>93 13 4</td><td>93 6 8</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine -</td><td>31 0 0</td><td>37 5 10½</td><td>40 12 0</td></tr><tr><td>Sundries -</td><td>9 15 4</td><td>9 10 9½</td><td>6 0 6</td></tr></table>		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1830 -	£. 121 6 2	£. 121 6 2	1831 -	- 140 10 0	- 140 10 0	1832 -	- 140 10 0	- 140 10 0		1830.	1831.	1832.	Salary -	£. 80 10 10	93 13 4	93 6 8	Medicine -	31 0 0	37 5 10½	40 12 0	Sundries -	9 15 4	9 10 9½	6 0 6
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831 - -	£. 152 5 0	£. 182 9 3
1832 - -	- 146 19 0	- 149 9 3
1833 - -	- 160 19 6	- 124 6 1½
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1830 -	£. 121 6 2	£. 121 6 2
1831 -	- 140 10 0	- 140 10 0
1832 -	- 140 10 0	- 140 10 0
	1830.	1831.	1832.
Salary -	£. 80 10 10	93 13 4	93 6 8
Medicine -	31 0 0	37 5 10½	40 12 0
Sundries -	9 15 4	9 10 9½	6 0 6
By subscription, and presentment from one county.	By voluntary subscription, by an annual grand jury presentment from one county, and fines from petty sessions.	Supported half by voluntary subscriptions, and half by grand jury presentment, from same county.
The funds are so very small, that they could not be altered for the better. A few beds attached to each dispensary, with proportionate funds, would make them most efficient.		We cannot suggest any alteration with our present limited means, but we do consider that other and more nutritious food would be beneficial to the sick and convalescents, if our funds admitted of it.

MUNSTER—KERRY.

Ballylongford Dispensary.	Cahirseveen Dispensary.	Castleisland Dispensary.
John Poyntz, Esq.	James Barry, Esq., M. D.	Philip O'Leary, Esq., M. D.
Ballylongford Dispensary, the only one under my care; established 1st July 1833, for affording medical aid to the poor of the neighbourhood.	There is only one dispensary under my care, called the Cahirseveen Dispensary, established in 1816, for the purpose of supplying the sick poor of this district with medicines and advice gratuitously.	Only one institution under my care, the Castle island Dispensary, established in the year 1824.
Two extensive parishes, 10 miles by 4, both in this county.	Seven parishes, all in county Kerry, comprising a vast distance of mountainous country, with a population of over 27,000 souls, and not a single resident proprietor.	The district comprehends the union of Castleisland, comprising the parishes of Castleisland, Ballylinculane, Dysart, and Killentierna; the parishes of Ballymacelligot; Currans; Molahiffe, and Brosna; all in the same county.
There are three dispensaries within the distance mentioned in this query; one 4 miles east of this, on the verge of the county, 3 miles beyond which, in the neighbouring county, is the second; the third lies 7 miles west of this, in a very populous district.	Only one dispensary, and that in an island (Valentia).	None.
There is no charitable institution of any kind in this district but the dispensary. There is no hospital or infirmary nearer than the shire town of the county, a circumstance much to be lamented. A fever hospital is much wanted.	There is no dispensary attached to any hospital or infirmary at present, but there is being built here an hospital, by private subscriptions, to which the dispensary will be attached, when finished.	No.
I attend but one dispensary, which is open two days in the week; but urgent cases are attended at all times. My salary only 40 l. per annum, and have to provide a house for dispensing medicine.	I only attend one dispensary, part of the district attached to which is in the barony of Dunkerron, and over 16 miles from my residence, for which I receive a salary of 100 l. a year, for my own personal attendance, the compounding of the medicines, and the rent of the dispensary house, and attend every day.	I do not.
Decidedly, in all urgent cases, and at all hours.	I am only required, by the dispensary rules, to visit cases within a certain distance (4 miles) of me; but whenever I am applied to by any subscriber, or person appointed by a subscriber to recommend patients, to visit in the most remote part of my district, I always attend.	By a resolution of dispensary committee, I am bound to dispense advice and medicine gratis, three days in the week, at the dispensary, and to visit patients residing within two or three miles, always requiring a subscriber's certificate of the individual's poverty. But in cases of necessity, I never confine myself to time or distance, nor do I require a certificate when I am personally cognizant of the person's circumstances.
Yes, not only of particular cases, but of all recommended for relief, which, on reference to the registry, I find have been attended generally with a favourable result.	There is no register kept, but every recommendation is attended to, and persons known to me to be real objects are also attended to, without any other recommendation.	It was kept the two first years, with patient's name, disease, prescription, but not the result. It was found subsequently to take so much time as to interfere with the more important duties of the establishment, and consequently given up, with the exception of an account of the number of patients.
This dispensary being established not more than six months, I give the number (170) admitted for relief within that period. The number of applicants are gradually increasing.	I am sure from four to five thousand persons are annually relieved.	The medical attendants, from a constant system of numbering the prescriptions issued on the days of attendance, calculate that over 5,000 persons receive advice at the institution annually, exclusive of those attended at their own houses, the number of whom cannot be well ascertained. The prevailing diseases are, cutaneous diseases of every description, probably arising from the great extent of wet mountain land comprehended in the district; also diseases of the digestive organs, probably arising from deficient and unwholesome food, and acute diseases, arising from want of necessary clothing.
It does, but less frequently in this than in any other charity I know, or have been connected with.	I have no doubt but persons who could pay for medicines and advice are frequently recommended for gratuitous aid.	In some instances it has certainly occurred, but, I am happy to say, not often.
By the committee, who purchase them where they can get them best and cheapest.	The treasurer to the dispensary sends to a druggist in Cork for any medicines I require, and I have them compounded under my own inspection.	By order of the treasurer, from a druggist in Cork, the medical attendant giving in a catalogue of what he deems necessary.
This dispensary being established only six months, I give the amount of receipts and current expenditure for this year; that is, to 1st July 1834. <table><tr><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>Subscription £. 50 0 0</td><td>Salary - £. 50 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>County grant - 20 0 0</td><td>Medicines - 20 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>£. 70 0 0</td><td>£. 70 0 0</td></tr></table>	Receipt.	Expenditure.	Subscription £. 50 0 0	Salary - £. 50 0 0	County grant - 20 0 0	Medicines - 20 0 0	£. 70 0 0	£. 70 0 0	The subscriptions and presentment varied from 150l. to 160l. for each of the three last years, and the expenditure to something about the same; that is, for my attendance, compounding medicines, and house-rent, 100l. a year; medicines and other necessities, from 50l. to 60l.	<table><tr><th></th><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>1830</td><td>- £. 143 12 9</td><td>£. 143 12 4</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>- - 163 2 8</td><td>163 2 8</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>- - 160 19 8</td><td>160 19 8</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><th></th><th>1830.</th><th>1831.</th><th>1832.</th></tr><tr><td>Salary</td><td>- £. 92 1 2½</td><td>100 0 0</td><td>100 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine</td><td>- 46 15 4</td><td>51 15 8½</td><td>39 17 3</td></tr><tr><td>Sundries</td><td>- 4 15 9½</td><td>11 6 11½</td><td>21 2 5</td></tr></table>		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1830	- £. 143 12 9	£. 143 12 4	1831	- - 163 2 8	163 2 8	1832	- - 160 19 8	160 19 8		1830.	1831.	1832.	Salary	- £. 92 1 2½	100 0 0	100 0 0	Medicine	- 46 15 4	51 15 8½	39 17 3	Sundries	- 4 15 9½	11 6 11½	21 2 5
Receipt.	Expenditure.
Subscription £. 50 0 0	Salary - £. 50 0 0
County grant - 20 0 0	Medicines - 20 0 0
£. 70 0 0	£. 70 0 0
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1830	- £. 143 12 9	£. 143 12 4
1831	- - 163 2 8	163 2 8
1832	- - 160 19 8	160 19 8
	1830.	1831.	1832.
Salary	- £. 92 1 2½	100 0 0	100 0 0
Medicine	- 46 15 4	51 15 8½	39 17 3
Sundries	- 4 15 9½	11 6 11½	21 2 5
By private subscriptions to a small amount, and county aid, obtained by presentment, exclusively from this county.	By private subscriptions, and by presentment, sometimes equal to, but never exceeding, obtained only from one county (Kerry).	Partly by voluntary contributions, and partly by presentments from the county of Kerry alone.
I can.	I cannot, so far as my establishment is concerned; but if there were sufficient funds to establish a small fever hospital or infirmary in every parish, I would think it advisable, and one medical attendant might attend three or four such houses.	This I consider a most important point. I would call the attention of the committee to a fact not generally considered, whether county hospitals, county infirmaries, &c. answer the end of their institution. The committee will find, that though perfectly efficient in their immediate vicinity, they are wholly useless so far as the other parts of the county are concerned. They may do pretty well in small counties, such as Dublin, but not in Cork, Kerry, or many others. Is a fever patient, or one with a broken limb, likely to be brought 15 or 20 miles to the county institution? It would be worth while to obtain a return of the number of patients, and the distance each is brought to the county hospitals and infirmaries. Assuming them to be wholly useless for the population at large, I would suggest, that district dispensaries should have a few wards to each for sick poor, of whatever description, and medical superintendents, properly qualified, should be encouraged, by liberal salaries, to attend them; and to secure the latter point, I would make it imperative on the grand juries to give a sum equal to the subscription.

MUNSTER—KERRY.

Clanmaurice Dispensary.	Dingle Dispensary.	Kenmare Dispensary.
John O'Flaherty, Esq.	Committee and Medical Attendant.	Timotheus M'Carthy, Esq. M.D.
The Clanmaurice (Baronial) Dispensary, established in 1825, in the county of Kerry.	The Dingle Dispensary, which is the only one under my care, was established in July 1824.	The Kenmare Dispensary, established in March 1827; there is no other under my care.
Seven; viz. Ballyheige, Killury, Benmore, Lixnaw, Killflyn, Abbeydorney and Irraghmore; and until last year, the parishes of Lerrig and Ardfer, subsequently formed into what is now called the Ardfer Dispensary, all in the county.	Mine is a peninsular district of nearly forty English miles in length, with a mean breadth of twelve miles, containing twenty parishes, and a population of 40,000.	Six parishes; viz. Kenmare, Kilgarvan, Templenoe, Tuosist, Bunnane and Kilocrohan, all in the county of Kerry.
The Ardfer Dispensary, five miles distant, in the Barony of Clanmaurice; and the Tralee Infirmary and Dispensary, ten miles distant, in the Barony of Trughenackmy.	There is no other dispensary or hospital nearer than at Tralee, which is thirty miles distant.	There is no other dispensary within twenty miles at any side.
None.	There is not.	There is no hospital or infirmary within my district, and I beg to say that one would be most necessary, as it comprehends a large extent of country; indeed even a small infirmary sufficient to contain
I attend but one dispensary above mentioned, and that daily; I am too frequently called out by night. The amount of salary (so called) is only 70 l. per annum.	I attend no other dispensary, infirmary or hospital. jury curtailing our presentment, is only 32 l. 6 s. , though if they granted the full amount, it would not exceed 52 l. pounds. The result of this conduct of the grand jury will be, that the regularly qualified medical superintendent must resign his trust, and the dispensary will cease to exist, than which there could not be a greater evil to the poor. I am obliged to attend three days in the week, from 11 A.M. to 3 P.M., four hours.	I attend only one dispensary, situate in the town I reside in; the amount of my salary for the present year, in consequence of the act of the grand
Most indubitably.	Those who are well enough to come to the dispensary, have of course my own personal attendance there three days in each week; I visit at their own houses the sick poor who reside in the town, and who are unable to come to the dispensary, but the great extent of the district precludes a possibility of one man's attending the country patients at their own places.	I do, within a certain distance of the town; and if I am aware that the object is poor and unable to pay, I attend without a ticket from a subscriber.
I had kept a register for the first five years, which I transmitted to the proper officer, pursuant to an order from Government. Since that period, owing to the overwhelming pressure of professional labour, and the incompetency of my salary to the engagement of a clerk, I have since discontinued the register.	I keep a regular register of all the cases; no poor person who applies is rejected. The result of each case in a dispensary cannot be ascertained.	There is a register of the names of those recommended, and of the subscribers who have given the recommendation, with the medicines prescribed for each in a regular form of prescription. The results cannot be stated, as no account of such has been kept; and in a dispensary it would be rather difficult to do so with any accuracy.
	<table><tr><td>1830</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>14,310</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>14,307</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>10,740*</td></tr></table> Fevers, rheumatism, pulmonary complaints, dysentery, &c. * The falling off of patients during this year I attribute to the existence of malignant cholera in the town for four months, the terror of which prevented the country people from coming into the dispensary.	1830	-	-	-	-	14,310	1831	-	-	-	-	14,307	1832	-	-	-	-	10,740*	<table><tr><td>1831</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>1,630</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>1,570</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>1,320</td></tr></table> Each person is entitled to medical advice and medicine during his illness, so that the number of times each ticket got medicine may be averaged at six. No register of diseases is kept; but I may say generally that diseases of skin, affections of chest, stomach and bowels predominate.	1831	-	-	-	-	1,630	1832	-	-	-	-	1,570	1833	-	-	-	-	1,320
1830	-	-	-	-	14,310
1831	-	-	-	-	14,307
1832	-	-	-	-	10,740*
1831	-	-	-	-	1,630
1832	-	-	-	-	1,570
1833	-	-	-	-	1,320
My sense of charity and of duty ever compels me to relieve whoever is recommended to me by any of the subscribers.	None to my knowledge, though in this, as in every similar institution, persons who are not proper objects of charity may sometimes obtain medicines in the name of those who are known to be poor.	This has frequently been the case; but in consequence of representations made to the subscribers, there has been a check put to it, though there is yet an occasional instance of it.
By the subscription funds.	The dispensary is regularly supplied with medicines from a druggist in Cork of the name of Harrington.	The medicines are supplied by a druggist (Mr. Harrington) of Cork, who is paid by the treasurer every year.
<table><tr><td></td><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>£.104 0 0</td><td>£. 100 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>- 104 0 0</td><td>102 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>- 104 0 0</td><td>100 0 0</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><td></td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td><td>1833.</td></tr><tr><td>Salary</td><td>£.70 0 0</td><td>70 0 0</td><td>70 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine</td><td>- 30 0 0</td><td>32 0 0</td><td>30 0 0</td></tr></table>		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831	£.104 0 0	£. 100 0 0	1832	- 104 0 0	102 0 0	1833	- 104 0 0	100 0 0		1831.	1832.	1833.	Salary	£.70 0 0	70 0 0	70 0 0	Medicine	- 30 0 0	32 0 0	30 0 0	The treasurer says, that he kept no copy of the annual accounts which are lodged with the secretary of the grand jury; but I can state that the subscriptions have generally varied from 80 l. to 110 l. , with a similar sum from the county, and the expenditure mostly to the same amount.	<table><tr><td></td><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>£.140 0 0</td><td>£.140 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>- 102 6 0</td><td>102 6 0</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>- 83 6 0</td><td>82 6 0</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><td></td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td><td>1833.</td></tr><tr><td>Physician</td><td>£.85 0 0</td><td>52 6 0</td><td>32 6 0</td></tr><tr><td>Apothecary</td><td>25 0 0</td><td>20 0 0</td><td>20 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine</td><td>- 30 0 0</td><td>30 0 0</td><td>30 0 0</td></tr></table>		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831	£.140 0 0	£.140 0 0	1832	- 102 6 0	102 6 0	1833	- 83 6 0	82 6 0		1831.	1832.	1833.	Physician	£.85 0 0	52 6 0	32 6 0	Apothecary	25 0 0	20 0 0	20 0 0	Medicine	- 30 0 0	30 0 0	30 0 0
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831	£.104 0 0	£. 100 0 0
1832	- 104 0 0	102 0 0
1833	- 104 0 0	100 0 0
	1831.	1832.	1833.
Salary	£.70 0 0	70 0 0	70 0 0
Medicine	- 30 0 0	32 0 0	30 0 0
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831	£.140 0 0	£.140 0 0
1832	- 102 6 0	102 6 0
1833	- 83 6 0	82 6 0
	1831.	1832.	1833.
Physician	£.85 0 0	52 6 0	32 6 0
Apothecary	25 0 0	20 0 0	20 0 0
Medicine	- 30 0 0	30 0 0	30 0 0
Partly by annual subscriptions, and partly by presentments in said county.	By private subscriptions, and an annual presentment from the grand jury of the county of Kerry alone.	It is supported by private contributions, as well as by presentment, obtained only from the county of Kerry. The funds of this dispensary have been lately curtailed to an amount which must prove fatal to its existence if persevered in, by, (to use the least harsh expression,) an unwise, and I may add, arbitrary act of grand jury, who refused to give an amount
Impossible, owing to the scantiness of the funds, even for the purchase of medicine; I myself have in many cases bought medicine out of my own pocket for the benefit of the poor, without receiving or even expecting any earthly compensation, and have not unfrequently administered in other ways to their wants.	The grand Jury of this county have at the last assizes put a new construction on the Fever Hospital and Dispensary Act, whereas they have hitherto presented a sum equal in amount to the private subscriptions; they have expressed their determination in future to give as little as they like, and have accordingly cut down almost all the dispensaries; as no treasurer under such circumstances will advance money, our dispensary, from a want of funds, will be defunct by the month of April, and the other dispensaries must share the same fate, or at the best be only attended by apothecaries, unless the grand jury be deprived by the Legislature of the power of working mischief.	The present funds are so low, from the cause frequently stated before, that they would not allow any alteration to benefit the poor; and I regret to say, that unless Government do something for dispensaries, and place them in an independent and respectable attitude, they must pass from the hands of the respectable and qualified physician or surgeon into those of unqualified persons and apothecaries, than which there could not be a greater curse on the poor. I could suggest many improvements on dispensaries, which would prevent abuses, and render them of infinite value to the poor, were this the proper place, and that the limits of these queries allowed it.

MUNSTER—KERRY.

Listowel Dispensary.	Milltown Dispensary.	Tarbert Dispensary.
	Mr. G. Salmon, Apothecary.	Wm. Kennedy, Esq., M.D.
The Listowel Dispensary, established in the year 1828, for the relief of the sick poor.	The Milltown Dispensary.	The Tarbert Dispensary, established July 1828, for the relief of the poor, has been under my care, as medical superintendent, since its original formation.
There are eight parishes, all in this county.	Seven parishes, all in the same county.	The district consists of two parishes, the parish of Tarbert and parish of Murhur; they are both in the county of Kerry.
Ballinoe, Ballylongford and Tarbert Dispensaries only.	In Tralee and Killarney.	The Ballylongford Dispensary, within four miles; the dispensary of Listowel, within nine miles; but there is no infirmary or public hospital within ten miles.
There is no hospital or infirmary within my district.	No hospital or infirmary nearer than Tralee or Killarney; one eight miles, and the other nine miles from this town.	There is no dispensary attached to any hospital or infirmary within the above-mentioned district, nor is there any hospital or infirmary within the same.
I attend but one dispensary, in which I reside; attend three days in the week, and from which I derive a salary of 80 £. a year.	I attend only one dispensary, situated in the town; I attend it daily, and my salary is 30 £. per annum.	I attend the Tarbert Dispensary solely, and no other dispensary, infirmary or hospital; I am paid salary between 40 £. and 50 £. annually, varying according to the state of the funds: I am required to attend every day through the year.
Only when the person requiring such aid resides on subscribing property within my district, and is recommended by a subscriber.	I do in all cases of emergency.	I consider it my duty to give my personal attendance whenever medical or surgical aid is required, and it is my constant practice to do so.
Yes.	There has been no registry kept further than returning to the grand jury on passing the accounts the number of persons who have obtained relief.	A register is kept of all the cases where application has been made for aid, how those applications have been disposed of, and with what result.
8,640, on whose cure and relief 36,000 personal attendances were bestowed, and who laboured under almost every known chronic and acute disease.	The diseases in general are typhus and intermittent fevers, bowel and liver complaints, affections of the lungs, the diseases of children, worm fevers, measles, small pox, &c.	<table><tr><td>Admitted.</td><td>Relieved.</td><td>Died.</td><td>Attended at their Residence.</td></tr><tr><td>1,496</td><td>1,461</td><td>26</td><td>228</td></tr></table> The diseases were, dyspepsia, fever, peripneumonia, hepatic, gastritis, enteritis, diarrhoea, diabetes, measles, small pox, influenza, scarletina, dysentery, ophthalmia, dropsy, catarrhal affections, fractures, simple and compound, accidents, and many surgical cases, too numerous to state.	Admitted.	Relieved.	Died.	Attended at their Residence.	1,496	1,461	26	228
Admitted.	Relieved.	Died.	Attended at their Residence.
1,496	1,461	26	228
It occurs but rarely; the effect of our lamentable partial dependence on unprincipled private individuals.	I know of none; the subscribers are very particular whom they recommend.	I do not consider any persons participating the benefit of the charity who are not proper objects of gratuitous assistance.
Mr. Harrington, of Cork, and Leslie, of Dublin, Druggists, supply such medicine as I deem necessary.	The medicines are procured from a druggist, and compounded by the Apothecary.	The medicines are procured from Messrs. Leslie & Co., Druggists, Dublin, by the treasurer of the institution; who sends them to me to the dispensary, and I compound, prepare and administer them.
The average receipt by private subscriptions and equivalent presentments, 200 £.; the expenditure, tantamount; viz. 110 £. towards procuring medical attendants, the remainder for medicine and other necessities.	The treasurer of the dispensary for the last three years having left the country for the benefit of his health, we cannot give an account of receipts and expenditure for those years; but the amount of subscriptions paid into the present treasurer's hands for this year, is only 26 £. It is never more than 33 £.	<table><tr><td></td><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1830</td><td>£. 88 12 6½</td><td>£. 74 0 4</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>69 4 2½</td><td>67 9 5</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>66 16 9½</td><td>63 15 8</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><td></td><td>1830.</td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td></tr><tr><td>Physician's Salary</td><td>£. 50 0 0</td><td>50 0 0</td><td>40 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine, &c.</td><td>19 0 4</td><td>12 9 5</td><td>18 15 8</td></tr><tr><td>Rent</td><td>5 0 0</td><td>5 0 0</td><td>5 0 0</td></tr></table>		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1830	£. 88 12 6½	£. 74 0 4	1831	69 4 2½	67 9 5	1832	66 16 9½	63 15 8		1830.	1831.	1832.	Physician's Salary	£. 50 0 0	50 0 0	40 0 0	Medicine, &c.	19 0 4	12 9 5	18 15 8	Rent	5 0 0	5 0 0	5 0 0
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1830	£. 88 12 6½	£. 74 0 4
1831	69 4 2½	67 9 5
1832	66 16 9½	63 15 8
	1830.	1831.	1832.
Physician's Salary	£. 50 0 0	50 0 0	40 0 0
Medicine, &c.	19 0 4	12 9 5	18 15 8
Rent	5 0 0	5 0 0	5 0 0
By private subscriptions, and presentments obtained from this county only.	By subscriptions, and a like sum by presentment from the county.	The funds for the support of the Tarbert Dispensary are provided one-half by private subscriptions, the other half by presentments, obtained annually from county Kerry solely.
I cannot; our funds, left subject to the caprices and uncharitableness of private individuals, and grand juries, are too poor and fluctuating to admit any further extension of relief, or any alteration on which we could permanently act: this year, our grand jury (quia possunt) unexpectedly refused the usual grant.	The funds are so small, that they can barely afford them medicine and attendance.	Our funds are very small. I cannot suggest any alteration by which they could be made more efficient for the relief of the poor.

MUNSTER—KERRY—LIMERICK.

Tralee Dispensary.	Ballingarry Dispensary.	Ballinlander Dispensary.
Medical Attendants.	Robert Odell, Esq.	James O'Brien, Esq. Surgeon.
The Tralee Dispensary; a small house rented for that purpose; only one, established about ten years.	The Ballingarry Dispensary. It was established in the year 1823, and is the only one under my care.	Ballinlander Dispensary.
Two parishes in the same county; persons from all the parishes come here.	My district includes Ballingarry (a very extensive parish), and part of the parishes of Rathkeale, Croagh, Kilfenny, Clounagh and Killeedy.	Four parishes, all in the county of Limerick.
There are five, including this (Tralee.)	There are four, three of which have fever hospitals attached to them. The nearest, Rathkeale, is within four miles of Ballingarry.	There are but two dispensaries within ten miles in this county, Kilfenny five, and Knockany nine miles.
We know of no other but the above-named dispensary, which is quite a separate establishment from the County Infirmary.	There is not.	There is no other hospital or infirmary in the county nearer than 20 miles to me; Limerick city is the nearest. I do not know the emoluments received by the medical attendants.
We all live in Tralee, and attend gratis month about.	I do not. My salary for 1831 was 50 l. per annum, and for last year 75 l. I attend for four hours every second day. I reside within less than half a mile of it.	I attend but one dispensary, in which I reside. My salary is 84 l. per annum. I have two fixed days, four hours each; but if any sudden illness occurs, I give it every day.
We give our advice through motives of humanity.	Certainly. The number of visits paid annually amounts to 200 or 300. Some upwards of six miles from Ballingarry.	I attend all out-door cases, on the subscribers' recommendations, to the poor.
We write down the names of every applicant, with the name of the disease.	A book is kept in which the cases, &c. are entered. An account of number relieved, &c. is furnished to the grand jury.	I enter in a book the names of each applicant, and the medicines given to each; in this small space I could not give even an outline of the several cases, treatment and results.
We attend twice a week, and about 40 or 50 apply each time. The diseases generally resulting from cold, fatigue, and want of sufficient food.	The number of patients relieved yearly was from 2,500 to 2,800, as well as I can recollect.	This dispensary was established in 1832; the number of persons who received medicines and advices for that year was more than three thousand five hundred: the number this year will be considerably more.
Not to our knowledge.	In general the patients are too poor to pay either for advice or medicine.	I know that in some instances persons not objects of charity procure tickets from subscribers.
They are supplied by a druggist once or twice a year.	By Mr. W. B. Kelly, an extensive druggist and apothecary in Limerick.	Whenever medicine is wanted, I make out a list, which is sent by the treasurer to the druggist, with whom the committee make all further arrangements.
The total amount of monies received for the last three years is 245 l. 15 s. , half by presentment and the other half by private subscriptions, of which sum there is now in hand barely sufficient to support the dispensary until the next assizes, when new subscriptions will be obtained. The expenditure consists chiefly of medicine, apothecary for compounding, fuel and rent.	I am unable to answer this query, in consequence of the unavoidable absence of the treasurer. The funds are very limited.	Receipt. Expenditure. 1832 - £. 140 0 0 £. 140 0 0 GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. Salaries - £. 96 0 0 Medicines - 20 0 0 Rent - 14 0 0 Repairs - 6 0 0 Contingencies - 4 0 0 The present year (1833) not yet closed.
By private subscription, and by an equal sum granted by the grand jury.	It is supported by subscriptions, and presentments from this county (Limerick.)	The landed proprietors, clergyman and farmers, subscribe a certain sum each. The grand jury grant a sum equal to the amount of the subscriptions. County Limerick only.
The funds are so small, that we cannot suggest any alteration or improvement in the establishment, the funds being scarcely sufficient to supply the necessary medicines.	I cannot. When I consider the limited state of the funds, I think the establishment could not possibly be more useful.	If an asylum for sick poor could be established in certain districts through the country, it would be of material service in checking the spread of disease, and also to those affected.

MUNSTER—LIMERICK.

Bruff Dispensary.	Cahirconlish Dispensary.	Castleconnell Dispensary.
Committee and Medical Attendant.		Elliott O'Donnell, Esq. M.D.
Bruff Dispensary, established in the year 1824; and also Knockany Dispensary, established in 1821. The object of each is to attend twice a week at dispensary, to give advice and administer medicine, and also to visit patients at their homes when necessity requires it.	Cahirconlish Dispensary, established in the year 1808.	The Castleconnell Dispensary, established on the 1st day of December 1818, with a resident medical officer to give three days' attendance gratis to the poor at Castleconnell village and parish, and three at Ahane, parish Kilnagariff in each week, and administer advice and necessary medicine.
Six parishes, all within the county of Limerick.	Two parishes, in the same county.	The united parishes of Castleconnell and Kilnagariff, in the county of Limerick, and county of the city of Limerick.
Knockany, under my own care; Croome, Fedamore, Bruree and Kilfenan.	Limerick, six miles from this town: a dispensary in Moroe, five miles from this place.	Limerick City Dispensary, County Infirmary, Barrington's City of Limerick Hospital, Fever Hospital, within six or seven miles; Doonass Dispensary, county Clare, two miles opposite side of the Shannon; and Newport Dispensary, county Tipperary, five miles.
There is not.	Not that I know.	The Castleconnell Dispensary is not attached to any hospital or infirmary in the district; the salary for medical attendant is 50 l. a year; and 20 l. allowed to provide a house, and dispensary for keeping and issuing the medicines from.
I attend Knockany and Bruff only, distant from each other three miles; salary for the former 60 l. per annum, for the latter 75 l. I attend two days in the week to each, and visit extern patients in the intermediate days, if called upon.	I attend no dispensary but Cahirconlish, every day, from nine to twelve o'clock (Sundays excepted). Salary, 60 l. per year.	I attend two dispensaries, one at Castleconnell, where I reside, and another at Ahane, three miles distant from my residence. I attend three days in the week at Castleconnell, and two days in the week at Ahane. For the five days' attendance on those two dispensaries I am only paid 70 l. a year, they being considered as one dispensary,
I do.	Such patients (living in this town) as are unable to attend the dispensary, are attended at their houses.	I do, on receiving a ticket from any of the subscribers.
There is a register kept of all cases, and their treatment, and the result may be concluded as generally successful.	The subscriber's recommendation is the only register. The patients are attended occasionally till they recover.	Not having any clerk or assistant, I only enter the names, disease and residence of each applicant in a book; and at the yearly meeting of the committee, I furnish them with the number of persons relieved during the past year.
The number of persons is 9,600; diseases treated are, fevers, inflammations, eruptive fevers, pleurisies, chronic coughs and colds, scrofula, accidents, cutaneous diseases, stomach affections, bowel affections, sore eyes, ulcers, abscesses, &c.	The number of persons attended at their houses and relieved, may be about 1,000 per year; the number attended at the dispensary about 4,000 a year: their diseases, fevers, pleurisies, inflammations, rheumatism, &c., and almost every disease to which the human frame is liable.	During the last three years about 32,000 persons, including repetitions, have received from me advice and medicines between the two dispensaries. The most general diseases have been, fevers, indigestion, scrofula, bowel complaints, inflammatory affections, rheumatism, and various surgical cases, &c. Many very bad lying-in cases have come under my care.
Frequently, an abuse originating with the subscribers who recommend, and whose recommendation I do not feel myself at liberty to reject.	It has frequently happened, and in dangerous cases could not well be avoided; but unless in cases of this kind, where delay might be fatal, it has not been practised.	Not to my knowledge.
By a Limerick druggist; ordered in suitable and convenient quantities, so that the medicine might not suffer from damp, &c.	The medicines are supplied by Mr. Frazer, Druggist, Limerick.	The medicines are supplied from Mr. Bennett Kelly's Medical Hall, Limerick, by pass-book, kept with his establishment.
<table><tr><td>1831</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>£. 130 18 0</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>138 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>130 12 0</td></tr></table>	1831	-	-	-	£. 130 18 0	1832	-	-	-	138 0 0	1833	-	-	-	130 12 0	<table><tr><td colspan="4">Receipt.</td><td colspan="4">Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>-</td><td>£. 106</td><td>0 0</td><td>£. 122</td><td>4 6</td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>-</td><td>119</td><td>12 0</td><td>117</td><td>19 5</td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>-</td><td>90</td><td>16 0</td><td>90</td><td>16 0</td><td></td><td></td></tr></table>	Receipt.				Expenditure.				1831	-	£. 106	0 0	£. 122	4 6			1832	-	119	12 0	117	19 5			1833	-	90	16 0	90	16 0			<table><tr><td colspan="4">Receipt.</td><td colspan="4">Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1830</td><td>-</td><td>£. 113</td><td>0 0</td><td>£. 110</td><td>10 5</td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>-</td><td>111</td><td>0 0</td><td>110</td><td>7 1½</td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>-</td><td>110</td><td>18 0</td><td>102</td><td>15 8½</td><td></td><td></td></tr></table>	Receipt.				Expenditure.				1830	-	£. 113	0 0	£. 110	10 5			1831	-	111	0 0	110	7 1½			1832	-	110	18 0	102	15 8½
1831	-	-	-	£. 130 18 0
1832	-	-	-	138 0 0
1833	-	-	-	130 12 0
Receipt.				Expenditure.
1831	-	£. 106	0 0	£. 122	4 6
1832	-	119	12 0	117	19 5
1833	-	90	16 0	90	16 0
Receipt.				Expenditure.
1830	-	£. 113	0 0	£. 110	10 5
1831	-	111	0 0	110	7 1½
1832	-	110	18 0	102	15 8½
The physician's salary is the principal item of expenditure; and the residue of the yearly fund is applied in payment of medicine, house-rent, and a variety of other things necessary for the use of the institution, but too tedious for insertion.	GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. Medicines, Medical Attendant, and Rent of Dispensary-house.	GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><td colspan="3">1831.</td><td colspan="3">1832.</td><td colspan="3">1833.</td></tr><tr><td>Physician</td><td>-£. 70</td><td>0 0</td><td>70</td><td>0 0</td><td>70</td><td>0 0</td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Medicine</td><td>- 30</td><td>1 3</td><td>33</td><td>11 9</td><td>23</td><td>3 1</td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Visits to Ex-</td><td rowspan="2">- } 9</td><td rowspan="2">17</td><td rowspan="2">9½</td><td rowspan="2">6</td><td rowspan="2">0 0</td><td rowspan="2">9</td><td rowspan="2">2 6</td><td rowspan="2"></td></tr><tr><td>terns</td></tr><tr><td>Sundries</td><td>- 0</td><td>11</td><td>4½</td><td>0</td><td>15</td><td>4½</td><td>0</td><td>10 1½</td></tr></table>	1831.			1832.			1833.			Physician	-£. 70	0 0	70	0 0	70	0 0			Medicine	- 30	1 3	33	11 9	23	3 1			Visits to Ex-	- } 9	17	9½	6	0 0	9	2 6		terns	Sundries	- 0	11	4½	0	15	4½	0	10 1½
1831.			1832.			1833.
Physician	-£. 70	0 0	70	0 0	70	0 0
Medicine	- 30	1 3	33	11 9	23	3 1
Visits to Ex-	- } 9	17	9½	6	0 0	9	2 6
terns
Sundries	- 0	11	4½	0	15	4½	0	10 1½
By presentment on the county in which the dispensary is situate, equal to the voluntary subscriptions.	Supported by subscriptions, and a grant from the county.	By presentment from the county Limerick grand jury only, equal to the voluntary subscriptions paid.
I cannot, for the funds at present are scarcely sufficient to meet the calls of the institution, such as it is; but, I think a house of recovery or fever hospital attached to one or more dispensaries in the centre of a large populous district, would be a check to contagious and epidemic diseases, and a great blessing to the poor.	The funds for this establishment have been laid out to the best advantage for the relief of the poor; an increase of its funds would enable the subscribers to make alterations, which would be of the greatest advantage to the poor in this neighbourhood.	I cannot. The committee of my dispensaries are particularly zealous in the cause of humanity, and most competent to discharge the various duties connected with their office.

MUNSTER—LIMERICK.

Clarina Dispensary.	Croom Dispensary.	Glin Dispensary.
Michael Brodie, Esq. M. D.	Dionysius O'Flaherty, Esq. M. D.	—
Clarina Dispensary, established about 14 years. I am also one of the physicians to the City Limerick Infirmary, to which two other physicians and three surgeons are attached.	Croom Dispensary, established July 1826.	The Glin Dispensary, established in 1827.
There are two parishes, and the greater part of a third in the district; two in the County, and the remainder in the liberties of the City.	The parish of Croom, and portions of the adjoining parishes of Adare, Manister, Bruff, Ballingarry and Rockhill, all in the county of Limerick.	The parish of Glin, and parts of the parishes of Loughill and Ballyhahill.
Pallas Kenry Dispensary is distant from Clarina about five miles and a half; Adare Dispensary, to which a small fever hospital is attached, nearly six miles; Croom Dispensary, nearly seven miles; Kilpeacon, five miles; Limerick, four miles.	Adare, Rathkeale, Fedamore, Bruff, Bruree, Castletown, Kilpeacon, Ballingarry, Clarina.	There is a dispensary at Tarbert, four miles from this place, and in the county of Kerry.
There is no hospital or other dispensary in this district. Physician's salary, 75 l. per annum. No apothecary, the funds of the institution not being sufficient to enable the committee to employ one; no other emoluments.	No other dispensary within my district.	There is no dispensary attached to any hospital within this district.
I attend but one dispensary; but as physician to the City of Limerick Infirmary, I attend it in my turn in the morning. Clarina Dispensary is four miles distant from my house in town, but the district extends to within nearly a mile of it; attendance three days in the week.	Not more than one.	I only attend the Glin Dispensary.
I attend acute or urgent cases at the patients' homes, when required by a subscriber.	In every case.	I consider it my duty to attend all cases when required to do so.
There is at present; but I must confess that I have frequently found it impossible to keep a regular register, there being on some days 70 or 80 applicants, and 10 or 12 to be visited at their houses, not having an apothecary to compound.	—	A register is kept of all cases, and how they are disposed of.
There have been, on an average for each of the last three years, nearly 2,000 persons relieved at Clarina Dispensary. The diseases treated were principally affections of chest, liver, bowels, eyes, common fever, rheumatism, measles, small pox, cutaneous affections, &c. &c.	5,700, comprising fevers, intermittent, remittent, continued and typhus, and inflammations, indigestion, cutaneous diseases, dysentery, cholera, consumption, &c. &c. and many surgical cases.	There were over 4,596* relieved; 965 of those were attended at their own houses, from 1st January 1830 to 1st January 1833. The principal diseases were, fevers, affections of the chest, cholera, dysentery, diarrhoeas, and affections of the digestive organs.
A great many persons receive advice and medicine gratuitously, who are all able to purchase medicine, and indeed many who are well able to pay for advice and medicine: those persons, of course, get tickets from subscribers.	Rarely.	The instances are very rare of persons having participated in the benefits of the charity who were in circumstances not to require gratuitous assistance.
The medicines are supplied by Mr. W. B. Kelly, Druggist, through the secretary.	By the committee.	The medicines are supplied by the committee from the funds of the charity.
Subscriptions, each of the last three years, about 55 l. Presentment, an equal sum, 55 l. Druggist's bill, from 29 l. to 30 l. Physician's salary, 75 l. Rent, 3 l. 3 s. Incidental expenses, about 30 s.	On an average, 110 l. received, including presentment. Expended, 80 l. per annum, physician's salary, and 30 l. for medicine.	<table> <tr> <th></th><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr> <tr> <td>1830</td><td>£. 134 2 0</td><td>£. 134 12 5 ½</td></tr> <tr> <td>1831</td><td>- 125 16 0</td><td>121 15 11</td></tr> <tr> <td>1832</td><td>- 121 15 0</td><td>133 8 3 ½</td></tr> </table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.—Salary and medicine.		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1830	£. 134 2 0	£. 134 12 5 ½	1831	- 125 16 0	121 15 11	1832	- 121 15 0	133 8 3 ½
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1830	£. 134 2 0	£. 134 12 5 ½
1831	- 125 16 0	121 15 11
1832	- 121 15 0	133 8 3 ½
By subscriptions from the neighbouring gentry, and presentment from the county of Limerick grand jury.	By voluntary subscriptions, and presentment (until this year equal in amount to the voluntary subscriptions); but this year the grand jury curtailed the grant considerably, in consequence of not having their favourite elected medical attendant at the last election.	By voluntary contributions, to which the county adds a sum equal to the amount contributed.
The funds for the support of this dispensary are so limited, not admitting even the employment of an apothecary, that, consistently with their present low state, I cannot suggest any alteration.	I know of no other distribution of the present funds which would render it more beneficial to the poor in a medical point; but the establishment would be made much more useful, if funds were to be had from some quarter, and placed in the hands of the committee, to be by them laid out, when ordered by the medical attendants, in the purchase of wholesome food and bedding for the many poor, to whom, without these adjuncts, medicine can often be of little use.	I do not think the funds in their present state could be better applied than they are.

MUNSTER—LIMERICK.

Limerick General Dispensary.	Limerick Dispensary.	Kilfinan Dispensary.
William Griffin, Esq., M. D.	Mr. George Ryan, Apothecary.	John Grove White, Esq., M. D.
The City of Limerick General Dispensary.	The City of Limerick Dispensary, established so long back as 1795.	The name of the dispensary under my care is the Kilfinan Dispensary, established about twenty years or upwards. I am also in charge (in conjunction with the medical attendant of the Charleville Dispensary) of a branch of this dispensary, established in Kilmallock about eight years back; the object of both being to give medical and surgical aid to the sick poor.
	All parishes within the city and liberties, five in number.	I cannot be particular as to the number of parishes, but my district extends on the south side to the bounds of the county of Cork, a distance of six miles; on the north it extends about six miles, on the west side about six miles, and on the east about four miles, all in the county of Limerick.
	I cannot state how many within ten miles; but in Limerick are the County Hospital, Barrington's Hospital, Fever and Lock Hospital, Lying-in Hospital; besides Lunatic Asylums, Almshouses, &c. &c.	There are only two dispensaries within ten miles of this, viz. Ballylanders, which is within five miles, in the county of Limerick, and Kildorrery, near nine miles, in the county of Cork, except the branch of this dispensary, which is held at Kilmallock, a distance of five miles.
	There is no other recognised dispensary attached to either hospital or infirmary in this district; ours has been always independent of such.	There is no dispensary attached to any hospital or infirmary, there being no hospital or infirmary in the district.
	I attend the city dispensary only, as resident apothecary, every day, and am only paid 50 l. per annum; the salary was formerly 80 l.	I attend the Dispensary of Kilfinan, where I reside, three days in the week, and am always in the habit of attending the sick poor at their own houses, in the capacity of physician, surgeon and accoucheur; any surgical operations that may be necessary I perform at their own houses, and attend them every day in the week when necessary. The district being so extensive, I am obliged to keep an assistant, the salary being 120 l. I also attend the branch of this dispensary at Kilmallock (a distance of five miles) two days in the week, alternately with the physician of the Charleville Dispensary, for which I receive 20 l. a year. In the year 1830, I received 5 l. extra for Kilmallock.
All the medical men of the city attend the dispensary gratuitously, and visit the poor occasionally at their homes, when their other avocations allow them.	I do not, although I frequently attend even out of doors in urgent cases when called upon.	I always consider it an imperative duty to do so, and strictly adhere to it.
There is no registry of cases kept, and of course no knowledge, even with the physicians themselves, of how their duty is performed, or whether their treatment has been useful or otherwise.	Not of all the cases, but of the prescriptions dispensed.	There is a register kept for all such purposes.
Prescriptions. <table><tr><td>1830</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>34,523</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>37,119</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>31,962</td></tr></table> The number of patients, the nature of their diseases, and the results are totally unknown.	1830	-	-	-	34,523	1831	-	-	-	37,119	1832	-	-	-	31,962	<table><tr><td>1830</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>34,523</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>37,119</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>31,962</td></tr></table> For nearly all diseases to which the poor are subject.	1830	-	-	-	34,523	1831	-	-	-	37,119	1832	-	-	-	31,962	<table><tr><td>1830</td><td>-</td><td>6,228</td><td rowspan="3">} Of this number, the greater part have laboured under affections of the lungs, fevers, bowel and stomach complaints, dropsies and affections of the skin. A great number of women have been relieved at their own houses, who suffered under difficult and preternatural labours, and who must have perished if assistance were not afforded them.</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>-</td><td>8,542</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>-</td><td>7,558</td></tr></table>	1830	-	6,228	} Of this number, the greater part have laboured under affections of the lungs, fevers, bowel and stomach complaints, dropsies and affections of the skin. A great number of women have been relieved at their own houses, who suffered under difficult and preternatural labours, and who must have perished if assistance were not afforded them.	1831	-	8,542	1832	-	7,558
1830	-	-	-	34,523
1831	-	-	-	37,119
1832	-	-	-	31,962
1830	-	-	-	34,523
1831	-	-	-	37,119
1832	-	-	-	31,962
1830	-	6,228	} Of this number, the greater part have laboured under affections of the lungs, fevers, bowel and stomach complaints, dropsies and affections of the skin. A great number of women have been relieved at their own houses, who suffered under difficult and preternatural labours, and who must have perished if assistance were not afforded them.
1831	-	8,542
1832	-	7,558
	Too often persons able to pay impose themselves as paupers, and procure advice and medicine.	Not often.
	The medicine is purchased from Mr. W. B. Kelly, druggist, and prepared and dispensed by me.	The medicines are purchased out of the dispensary funds, and supplied by Messrs. Leslie & Co. Druggists, Dublin.
<table><tr><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>1830 - £. 314 7 7</td><td>£. 307 5 8</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - 335 14 11</td><td>361 19 2</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - 272 2 0</td><td>231 19 1</td></tr></table>	Receipt.	Expenditure.	1830 - £. 314 7 7	£. 307 5 8	1831 - 335 14 11	361 19 2	1832 - 272 2 0	231 19 1	<table><tr><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>1830 - £. 314 7 7</td><td>£. 307 5 8</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - 335 4 11</td><td>361 19 2</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - 272 2 0</td><td>231 19 1</td></tr></table>	Receipt.	Expenditure.	1830 - £. 314 7 7	£. 307 5 8	1831 - 335 4 11	361 19 2	1832 - 272 2 0	231 19 1	<table><tr><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>1830 - £. 251 0 0</td><td>£. 255 5 6½</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - 248 16 0</td><td>245 8 2</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - 251 0 0</td><td>250 3 4</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE: <table><tr><th></th><th>1830.</th><th>1831.</th><th>1832.</th></tr><tr><td>Salary</td><td>- £. 170 0 0</td><td>160 0 0</td><td>160 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine</td><td>- 57 4 8½</td><td>57 5 8</td><td>70 13 3</td></tr><tr><td>Rent</td><td>- 9 9 0</td><td>9 9 0</td><td>9 9 0</td></tr><tr><td>Meal and Milk</td><td>8 0 0</td><td>9 4 0</td><td>9 4 0</td></tr><tr><td>Sundries</td><td>- 10 11 10</td><td>9 9 4</td><td>0 17 1</td></tr></table>	Receipt.	Expenditure.	1830 - £. 251 0 0	£. 255 5 6½	1831 - 248 16 0	245 8 2	1832 - 251 0 0	250 3 4		1830.	1831.	1832.	Salary	- £. 170 0 0	160 0 0	160 0 0	Medicine	- 57 4 8½	57 5 8	70 13 3	Rent	- 9 9 0	9 9 0	9 9 0	Meal and Milk	8 0 0	9 4 0	9 4 0	Sundries	- 10 11 10	9 9 4	0 17 1
Receipt.	Expenditure.
1830 - £. 314 7 7	£. 307 5 8
1831 - 335 14 11	361 19 2
1832 - 272 2 0	231 19 1
Receipt.	Expenditure.
1830 - £. 314 7 7	£. 307 5 8
1831 - 335 4 11	361 19 2
1832 - 272 2 0	231 19 1
Receipt.	Expenditure.
1830 - £. 251 0 0	£. 255 5 6½
1831 - 248 16 0	245 8 2
1832 - 251 0 0	250 3 4
	1830.	1831.	1832.
Salary	- £. 170 0 0	160 0 0	160 0 0
Medicine	- 57 4 8½	57 5 8	70 13 3
Rent	- 9 9 0	9 9 0	9 9 0
Meal and Milk	8 0 0	9 4 0	9 4 0
Sundries	- 10 11 10	9 9 4	0 17 1
In the city of Cork there are about 240 subscribers to the dispensary, and its income about 750 l. In Limerick we have only about 60 subscribers, and the income last year was no more than 270 l. Even this sum, if managed with a due consideration of the real interests of the poor, would effect infinitely more benefit than it now does; but it might be easily increased to double the amount by a little exertion on the part of the committee.	By donations, subscriptions, and a presentment from the City grand jury.	It is supported by voluntary contributions, given chiefly by non-resident landlords (there being scarcely any resident gentlemen in the neighbourhood), and an equal sum presented by the grand jury of the county of Limerick.
I never was connected with any institution, the good management of which is of such vital importance to the poor, so badly regulated, or so little calculated to attain the objects for which it was established. The number of governors in this large city scarcely exceeds that of a dispensary in a country village, and of these a quorum can hardly ever be got together to conduct the business of the charity. There is hence neither obligation nor responsibility on the part of the medical men, and the manner in which the poor are prescribed for or attended to, depends entirely on the humanity or indifference of those to whom they apply for relief. In short, it is inconceivable, in a city in which I believe the population is more numerous, miserable and sickly than in any other in the kingdom, that so much general apathy should exist respecting their sufferings in illness. I attempted more than once to draw the attention of the public to the state of the dispensary, but had no success. The difficulty is not so much in the impossibility of inducing people to subscribe (there are numbers who would do so if they were asked), but in getting those who do subscribe to devote any time to the affairs of the charity.	This dispensary, although abused in many ways by persons coming to it from districts where Dispensaries exist, does more good than could be expected from an institution so poorly supported, its funds being so low as to oblige the committee to exclude some valuable medicines, such as bark, castor oil, &c. &c.; to do away with physicians paid for visiting the sick poor at their homes; to reduce the salary of the apothecary when his labour had increased, being nearly double what it had been some years back, when the emolument was greater; and only for the humane and unwearied exertions of the charitable and respectable treasurers, this very useful charity could not have been upheld as it has been for many years.	I do not consider that any alteration could be made in the distribution of the funds, which would render more service to the poor than they at present possess; but I am of opinion, that if an hospital were attached to the dispensary, much good would result therefrom, inasmuch as the poor, afflicted with fever or any other contagious disease, might at once be removed from their own houses.

MUNSTER—LIMERICK.

Kilpeacon Dispensary.	Knockany Dispensary.	Murroe Dispensary.
Committee and Medical Attendant.	Secretary and Medical Attendant.
Kilpeacon Dispensary, established 1832.	Knockany Dispensary, established in 1821, and also Bruff Dispensary, established in 1824.	The name of the dispensary is Murroe, established in the year 1828.
There are seven parishes, and a part of a parish, in my district, and all in the same county.	Nine parishes, containing a dense pauper population; and all situate in the county of Limerick.	Two, situated in the same county.
The Limerick Hospitals and Dispensary, Adare Fever Hospital and Dispensary, Croom, Clarina and Fedamore Dispensaries.	Bruff, Kilfinan, Ballylanders, Fedamore and Bruree.	The County and City Infirmaries and Fever Hospital in Limerick, which is nine miles distant; there are other dispensaries there with which I am not acquainted, in the country around; within ten miles there are nine dispensaries.
There is no hospital or infirmary within the district of my dispensary.	There is no House of Recovery or Hospital attached to the two dispensaries to which I am medical attendant.	None.
I am an occasional attendant of the Limerick Dispensary, and sole attendant of the Kilpeacon; the former, a short distance from my residence, the latter about five miles. From the Limerick Dispensary I receive no emolument. The salary of the Kilpeacon is not a fixed one, as it depends on the amount of subscriptions and presentment. I attend it two days in the week, or any period when called on; should cases of urgency occur, I visit them daily.	I attend Bruff, in conjunction with Knockany Dispensary, and reside in the former town, which is distant from Knockany three miles; salary for Bruff, 75 l. per annum, and for Knockany, 60 l. I attend two days in the week, and visit extern patients in the intermediate days.	I attend one dispensary only. My salary is 70 l. a year; I attend three days in the week; viz. Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, three hours each day.
In all cases when required.	I do.	I consider it necessary that the patients should be seen at their own houses by the medical man, otherwise very little benefit can be expected.
I keep a register of all applications for professional aid, together with their residence, and by whom recommended; should a case be more than ordinary, I note it particularly.	There is a register kept of all the cases, and their treatment, and the result may be concluded as generally favourable.	I always keep a registry of the number of patients at the dispensary each day, and of those that have been visited at their own houses.
The number of applications for advice and medicine the last year, is about 4,500, many of whom I visited at their dwellings, labouring under fever, inflammation, dysentery, affections of the lungs and liver, scrofula of a bad character, a variety of affections of the skin, dropsy, bowel complaints, indigestion of an obstinate character, ophthalmia, influenza and cholera, as well as a variety of injuries. I have delivered several women at their dwellings, who would not have survived but for professional aid.	About 12,000; diseases treated are, fevers, inflammations, eruptive fevers, pleurisies, chronic coughs and cold, scrofula, accidents, cutaneous diseases, midwifery attendance, stomach affections, bowel complaints, sore eyes, ulcers and abscesses, &c. &c.	<table><tr><td>Applicants at the dispensary</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>13,450</td></tr><tr><td>Visited at their own houses</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>300</td></tr></table>	Applicants at the dispensary	-	-	13,450	Visited at their own houses	-	-	300
Applicants at the dispensary	-	-	13,450
Visited at their own houses	-	-	300
The governors of my dispensary are not in the habit of recommending persons to the charity, but such as are in need of gratuitous assistance.	It does; an abuse originating with the subscribers who recommend, and whose recommendation I cannot refuse.	Repeatedly; this abuse is not alone confined to the dispensary I take charge of, but is common in all the like charitable institutions I am acquainted with.
The committee and treasurer give an order on the druggist for their supply.	By a Limerick druggist, and furnished by agreement at Dublin prices.	Medicines are obtained by order of the treasurer and committee, from a druggist in Limerick.
<table><tr><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - £.102 6 0</td><td>£.102 5 9</td></tr><tr><td>1833 - 109 6 0</td><td>—</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><td colspan="2">1832.</td></tr><tr><td>Salary</td><td>£.72 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine</td><td>30 5 9</td></tr></table> The accounts for 1833 are not yet made out.	Receipt.	Expenditure.	1832 - £.102 6 0	£.102 5 9	1833 - 109 6 0	—	1832.		Salary	£.72 0 0	Medicine	30 5 9	100 l. per annum is the average fund, which is disbursed by 60 l. per annum to the physician, and the balance in purchase of medicine and other necessities.	<table><tr><td colspan="2">Receipt.</td></tr><tr><td>1831 -</td><td>£.137 18 0</td></tr><tr><td>1832 -</td><td>121 18 0</td></tr><tr><td>1833 -</td><td>126 8 0</td></tr></table> Chief expenditure is, physician's salary, medicine, stationary and house-rent.	Receipt.		1831 -	£.137 18 0	1832 -	121 18 0	1833 -	126 8 0
Receipt.	Expenditure.
1832 - £.102 6 0	£.102 5 9
1833 - 109 6 0	—
1832.
Salary	£.72 0 0
Medicine	30 5 9
Receipt.
1831 -	£.137 18 0
1832 -	121 18 0
1833 -	126 8 0
By voluntary contributions, and presentment from the county of Limerick only.	By presentment on the county of Limerick, equal in amount to voluntary subscriptions.	By private subscriptions and county presentment, the same sum being allowed by the grand jury that had been collected by private subscription; the subscribers in general are non-resident.
I regret I cannot suggest any alteration by which the establishment could be made more efficient for the relief of the poor, owing principally to the funds not being sufficient. The remuneration to the medical attendant is by no means adequate to his duties.	I cannot, for the funds are too low; but I think a House of Recovery or Hospital attached to one or more dispensaries in the centre of a populous district, would be a check to contagious and epidemic diseases.	From what I have seen of the sick poor, I consider it would be essentially necessary (if the funds of a dispensary were sufficient), besides supplying them with medicines, to have them equally supplied with bed-clothes and other necessities during their illness, without which I think the administration of medicine of very little use; the case again means the comfort of patients would be insured, and any the present number of dispensaries should necessarily be

MUNSTER—LIMERICK.

Palace Kenry Dispensary.	Shanagolden Dispensary.	Thomond Gate Dispensary.
Daniel Griffin, Esq. M. D.	Joseph Kennedy, Esq., M. D.	M. C. Gore, Esq., Surgeon.
There is only one under my care. The Kenry Dispensary, to which there is no hospital attached; it was established about 20 years since.	The institution which I superintend is called the Shanagolden Dispensary; it was founded by the Right Hon. T. Spring Rice, in the year 1813. Its object is and has been to afford gratuitous advice and	Three institutions in one house; an infirmary for diseases of the eye; a dispensary for diseases of the chest; and an institution for attending lying-in women at their own homes; established January 1, 1833. medicine to the poor, and to those in the humbler classes who are unable to obtain immediate medical aid, or purchase the requisite medicine. There is no hospital attached to it.
Five, viz. Kildimo, Ardcarry, Chapelrussell, Kilcoman Iveruss, and part of three others, viz. Adare, Cappagh and Askeaton. They are all in the same county.	Three parishes, Shanagolden, Ballyhahill, and Robertstown; also a part of the parishes of Killcoleman and Loghill, all in the county of Limerick.	As the institutions are for the benefit of the poor generally, all the neighbouring parishes are included.
Askeaton, 6 miles; Adare, 8 miles (an hospital attached); Rathkeale, 10 miles (an hospital); Clarina, 8 miles; Kilpeacon, 9 miles.	In Rathkeale, an hospital and dispensary, 8 miles distant; a dispensary and hospital in Newcastle, 8 miles; a dispensary in Glin, 7 miles; a dispensary in Askeaton, 6 miles distant.	Dispensary and Fever Hospital at Adare; Dispensaries at Croom, Doonass, Six-mile Bridge and Castleconnell.
There is no hospital or infirmary in this district, and this is the only dispensary.	There are none.	There is a dispensary attached to Barrington's Hospital, and to the County of Limerick Infirmary, for prescribing for the poor, the medicine being obtained at the City General Dispensary. No emolument arises from the former. The medical men of the latter are only paid for attending the infirmary.
I attend one only, that of Palace Kenry, where I reside.	I attend only the Shanagolden Dispensary. I am obliged to reside in the dispensary-house, where the pharmacy is kept, to prescribe the requisite dispensed, to attend every day to hear reports from the sick, and visit them, if necessary. Thursdays and Mondays are the days appointed for general attendance. My salary is 92 l. 6 s. per annum.	I attend my own establishments in Thomond Gate and the City of Limerick General Dispensary, every day, without any emolument whatever; about half a mile or so from my residence.
Certainly; and this is provided for by a rule of the dispensary, which obliges the medical attendant to visit any patients who are declared, by a ticket from a subscriber, to require attendance at their own houses.	I have considered it my duty so to do, for the last 20 years.	I think personal attendance imperative, and therefore am present upon all occasions.
An accurate register is kept of all the patients that apply at the dispensary for assistance, with the particulars of the date, name, residence, person who recommends them, age, disease, time ill on applying, event, &c. &c.; and a column is left on the register for observations that occasionally occur. The keeping of a register of this kind I consider absolutely essential to the good management of such institutions as dispensaries. In fact, it is impossible that any institution of the kind can be well conducted without it; and I am the more anxious to insist on this, as I know it to be a very common practice at dispensaries not to keep them. Medical men attending large districts have so many things to distract them, that a dispensary must inevitably be neglected, unless some system is laid down which places the business of the institution every hour and moment under the supervision of the committee.	A register is kept, stating the name and residence of the patient, his complaint, as also the subscriber's name who recommends; each application meets with immediate attendance, and the sick are visited at their homes, as the cases may require; calls at night, where there is active and dangerous disease, and midwifery duty I also attend; residing in the centre of my district, no mishap is likely to occur from absence, or neglect of duty.	I keep a regular register of every case attended to, and publish, every half year, a report of the Thomond Gate institutions.
As a general statement, it may be said that the most dangerous diseases consisted of fevers, intermittent and continued, inflammations of liver, lungs, heart and bronchia, dysenteries and bowel complaints, inflammations of bowels, kidneys, bladder, &c. besides not a few fractures and wounds from fighting.	The number of persons relieved in consequence of tickets presented, has exceeded 3,000; the number of applications during the requisite treatment, exceeds 12,000 for the last three years. Diseases treated: fever, typhoid, and inflammatory, pleurisy, catarrhal affections, rheumatism, dysentery, diarrhoea, &c.	Several thousand persons have been relieved within the last year.
<table><tr><td></td><td>Total No.</td><td>Cured.</td><td>Relieved or incurable.</td><td>Died.</td><td>Under treatment.</td></tr><tr><td>1830</td><td>3,494</td><td>3,311</td><td>87</td><td>14</td><td>82</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>2,830</td><td>2,650</td><td>38</td><td>12</td><td>130</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>2,726</td><td>2,596</td><td>23</td><td>24</td><td>82</td></tr></table>		Total No.	Cured.	Relieved or incurable.	Died.	Under treatment.	1830	3,494	3,311	87	14	82	1831	2,830	2,650	38	12	130	1832	2,726	2,596	23	24	82	It sometimes occurs that paupers present themselves in lieu of others, who may be able to pay a physician; they describe, as it were, the illness of some members of their family, and surreptitiously get advice and medicine. I guard against such stratagems as much as I possibly can; they are not very frequent.	One or two instances have occurred, but since discovery, care has been taken to avoid a recurrence.
	Total No.	Cured.	Relieved or incurable.	Died.	Under treatment.
1830	3,494	3,311	87	14	82
1831	2,830	2,650	38	12	130
1832	2,726	2,596	23	24	82
They are supplied by the medical attendant, on an agreement with the committee, the terms of which are, that the committee shall pay the medical attendant 5 d. for every patient entered on the register, in case the number of patients falls short of 3,000, and 4½ d. only for each if it exceeds that number. As a check, the medical attendant is obliged to produce the tickets of recommendation which patients had from subscribers, and the proper supply of medicine is secured by the dispensary being always open to inspection.	They are generally ordered by me from a respectable house in Dublin, Messrs. Leslie, Bride-street, Druggists, and are paid for by the Treasurer to this institution, out of the funds of the charity.	The medicines I myself purchase at the cheapest rate, the funds being small, from several druggists in Limerick.
The annual subscriptions are from 80 to 90 guineas; the presentment as much more. Of this, 80 guineas is the salary of the physician; but no additional allowance is made for the assistant who compounds for him; 25 l. a year for the dispensary-house, which forms the residence of the medical attendant, with a garden attached. The druggist's bill comes to from 58 l. to 65 l. yearly; house repairs and incidental expenses scarcely ever leave a balance in the treasurer's hands; indeed, the committee were in debt until the last 12 months.	<table><tr><td></td><td>Subscription.</td><td>Presentment.</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - - -</td><td>£.69 4 7½</td><td>£.69 4 7½</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - - -</td><td>77 17 3½</td><td>77 17 3½</td></tr><tr><td>1833 - - -</td><td>75 12 3½</td><td>75 12 3½</td></tr></table> <table><tr><td colspan="2">Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>Physician's Salary - - - -</td><td>£.92 6 0</td></tr><tr><td>Rent of Dispensary House - -</td><td>18 9 2½</td></tr><tr><td>Balance in Treasurer's hands each year, to pay for Medicine, &c. }</td><td></td></tr></table>		Subscription.	Presentment.	1831 - - -	£.69 4 7½	£.69 4 7½	1832 - - -	77 17 3½	77 17 3½	1833 - - -	75 12 3½	75 12 3½	Expenditure.		Physician's Salary - - - -	£.92 6 0	Rent of Dispensary House - -	18 9 2½	Balance in Treasurer's hands each year, to pay for Medicine, &c. }		The first year of the institution not having expired, a correct account cannot be given.
	Subscription.	Presentment.
1831 - - -	£.69 4 7½	£.69 4 7½
1832 - - -	77 17 3½	77 17 3½
1833 - - -	75 12 3½	75 12 3½
Expenditure.
Physician's Salary - - - -	£.92 6 0
Rent of Dispensary House - -	18 9 2½
Balance in Treasurer's hands each year, to pay for Medicine, &c. }
By voluntary subscriptions, and by a sum equal in amount, which is presented by the grand jury of this county only.	It is supported by subscriptions from the Right Hon. T. Spring Rice, and a few noblemen who have estates in this district; there are also a few local subscribers; there is a yearly presentment granted (equivalent to the subscriptions) by the county Limerick grand jury.	Supported by voluntary subscriptions, no application for a presentment having yet been made.
The only suggestion which the committee have to offer on this subject is the attaching a small hospital to the dispensary, for the reception of fever patients, which the provision made by Act of Parliament, (enabling grand juries to present for double the amount of the subscriptions in such cases) would enable them to support. The smallness of their funds has not allowed them to build or procure one, the great distance of the nearest fever hospital would render this very desirable.	I cannot suggest any alteration, as our funds are small. An asylum for the aged and miserable poor would be of the greatest utility in this populous district.	If the funds were sufficient, I would establish a soup kitchen, or some dietetic institution, the distribution of the food being entirely confined to the medical officer of the dispensary. A dispensary without such an institution is of comparatively trifling value, but with it, must prove of intrinsic good to the poor sufferers generally.

MUNSTER—TIPPERARY.

Ballymacky Dispensary.	Ballynonty Dispensary.	Ballyporeen Dispensary.
Committee and Medical Attendant.	Committee and Medical Attendant.	Committee and Medical Attendant.
Ballymacky only; a dispensary for the poor; established in March 1832.	Ballynonty, established in 1805.	The Ballyporeen Dispensary. I attend but the one, established in 1824.
Ballymacky, Ballygibbon, Templedowny, part of Aghnameadle and part of Killkeary.	Three parishes, and two unions.	One.
Nenagh, a dispensary and fever hospital; Silvermines, Borris O'Keane, CloghJordan, Toomavara, and Moneygal Dispensaries.	Killenaule, Littleton, Fethard and Drangan.	Mitchelstown and Clogheen.
No hospital or infirmary in the district.	There is no hospital or infirmary in this district.	No dispensary or hospital within my district.
Physician or his assistant attends every day in the village of Ballymacky.	I attend the above-named dispensary only, where I reside, and give daily attendance if necessary.	I attend but the one dispensary. Salary 50l. a year.
I do; either by my assistant or my own attendance.	I do.	I do consider it my duty to give my personal attendance wherever it is required.
A register is kept.	There is.	A regular register is kept of all cases and the result.
I can only give a return for one year, as the second will not expire till March 1834; applications 1,962. Fevers, consumptions, stomach complaints, dropsy, eruptive diseases, &c. &c.	The number relieved exceeds 3,500.	The number of persons applying for medical and surgical aid, about 80 a week.
Very rarely.	Very seldom.	Sometimes; not often.
Supplied by Messrs. Boileau & George, Druggists, Dublin.	The surgeon sends his list to the treasurer, who orders and pays for them.	By a druggist.
<table><tr><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - £. 111 8 0</td><td>£. 97 9 10</td></tr><tr><td colspan="2">GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>£. s. d.</td></tr><tr><td>Salaries - - -</td><td>- 60 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine - - -</td><td>- 19 10 0</td></tr><tr><td>Rent - - -</td><td>- 7 7 4</td></tr><tr><td>Contingencies - -</td><td>- 10 12 6</td></tr></table>	Receipt.	Expenditure.	1832 - £. 111 8 0	£. 97 9 10	GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.			£. s. d.	Salaries - - -	- 60 0 0	Medicine - - -	- 19 10 0	Rent - - -	- 7 7 4	Contingencies - -	- 10 12 6	<table><tr><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - £. 137 5 0</td><td>£. 125 12 6</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - - 114 0 0</td><td>125 2 0</td></tr><tr><td>1833 - - 113 16 0</td><td>125 7 8</td></tr></table> The expenditure includes surgeon's salary, house rent, medicines and incidental expenses.	Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831 - £. 137 5 0	£. 125 12 6	1832 - - 114 0 0	125 2 0	1833 - - 113 16 0	125 7 8	<table><tr><td>Receipts.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - £. 92 0 0</td><td>£. 95 0 4</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - - 96 19 0</td><td>123 10 0</td></tr><tr><td>1833 - - 93 16 0</td><td>73 1 0</td></tr></table>	Receipts.	Expenditure.	1831 - £. 92 0 0	£. 95 0 4	1832 - - 96 19 0	123 10 0	1833 - - 93 16 0	73 1 0
Receipt.	Expenditure.
1832 - £. 111 8 0	£. 97 9 10
GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.
	£. s. d.
Salaries - - -	- 60 0 0
Medicine - - -	- 19 10 0
Rent - - -	- 7 7 4
Contingencies - -	- 10 12 6
Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831 - £. 137 5 0	£. 125 12 6
1832 - - 114 0 0	125 2 0
1833 - - 113 16 0	125 7 8
Receipts.	Expenditure.
1831 - £. 92 0 0	£. 95 0 4
1832 - - 96 19 0	123 10 0
1833 - - 93 16 0	73 1 0
By private subscriptions, and county presentment.	By private subscriptions and county presentment.	By presentment, from one county.
None; the funds are small, and well appropriated in the purchase of good medicine for the poor, and unequal to afford relief but in that way.	I cannot. N. B.—There has latterly been a falling off in the subscriptions, as several of the clergy have withdrawn, in consequence of not receiving their tithes. The deficiency has been supplied from a balance in hand.	If our funds would admit of building a general hospital, I think it would render it much more efficient for the relief of the poor.

MUNSTER—TIPPERARY.

Borris O'Kane Dispensary.	Borrisoleigh Dispensary.	Clogheen Dispensary.
James J. Stoney, Esq. Surgeon.	Committee and Medical Attendant.
Dispensary of Borris O'Kane, established A.D. 1819.	Borrisoleigh Dispensary, established 1827, for affording medicine and medical aid to the poor.	Clogheen Dispensary, July 1811.
Eleven parishes are in the district of the dispensary.	The dispensary district, comprehends portions of 12 different parishes, all in the county of Tipperary.	Shanrahan, Tullaghorton, Tubrid, Whitechurch, Ballybacon, all in county Tipperary.
	A Fever Hospital and Dispensary at Templemore, a Dispensary at Templetoohy, Toomavara and Thurles, all in the county of Tipperary.	A Dispensary and Fever Hospital at Cahir, nine miles distant; a Dispensary at Ballyporeen, five miles distant.
There is an hospital building, to be attached to our dispensary. I receive a sum which varies from 50 l. to 80 l. annually, for my attendance on the dispensary. I am obliged to keep a horse, and visit patients within six miles, and to visit at night cases of sudden illness and females in difficult labour.	None.	The Dispensary and Fever Hospital here are connected; for attending both I receive 92 l. 6 s. 1 d. per annum.
I am required to attend three days in the week; but I must visit patients at all times, except during the hours of dispensary attendance.	I attend but one dispensary; my salary is 60 l. per annum; I reside in the institution, and attend it three days in the week; in case of accident or sudden illness, on every day and night.	No.
Most certainly, on receiving any evidence of the poverty of the applicant.	I do, and am called on personally at all hours, day or night, when required, in all cases.	Yes.
There is such a register kept.	I enter in a book the names, residence and diseases of all patients recommended; but the result can be but partially known.	Yes.
4,000 and some hundreds; accidents, fevers, cholera and other acute and chronic diseases, and diseases of the eye and skin, difficult labours, and diseases of women and children.	The number of persons visited at their own residence for the last two years is 536, and from 1st of February to the 1st of December 279; many of those visited eight or ten times, and more. I consider fevers, pleurisy, dyspepsia, flatulence, affections of stomach and bowels, and diseases of the skin, to be most prevalent.	1831 - - - - - 1,699 1832 - - - - - 2,071 1833 - - - - - 860 And since the influenza prevailed very much, the spasmodic cholera commenced on the 26th December 1832, since which we have had 56 cases.
Scarcely ever, as I am of opinion that from the present high rates of medical fees and prices of medicines, that a person worth 100 l. per annum could badly afford to support himself under a week's illness.	There are many who obtain medicine that are able to purchase it, I believe owing to the persons recommending them not being aware of their circumstances. illness, which expense I would compute at 5 l.	It does.
By Messrs. Boileau & George, Dublin, on my order, subject to the approval of the committee.	By the direction of the committee, I procure the necessary medicine from the house of Messrs. P. & C. Leslie, Dublin.	The medicines are ordered by the committee of the dispensary, on my giving a list of those required, and are got from Thomas Grubb, Druggist, Clonmel.
I am totally unable to answer this query.	Amount of subscription and county grant about 106 l. ; disposed of by salary 60 l. ; medicine 35 l. ; house-rent 5 l. ; the remainder for incidental expenses.	Receipt. 1831 - - - £. 56 6 0 1832 - - - - 56 15 0 1833 - - - - 64 4 0 General heads of expenditure: Doctor's salary, rent and repairs of dispensary house, medicines, &c.
By voluntary subscription, and presentment from county Tipperary only.	By annual subscription from the clergy and gentry, and an equal presentment from the county Tipperary grand jury.	By subscription, and presentment from county Tipperary.
I am of opinion that small local hospitals ought to be established at least in every barony, giving advice and medicine to extern patients, with a rule obliging the medical superintendent to visit those poor who cannot, through want of room or from any cause be received into hospital, as I am aware, in numerous instances, the skill and attention of the physician is thrown away, through want of proper nourishment and clothing, as also from the prejudices of the lower order.	I consider the limited subscription and county grant that is given for the support of this institution, situated in a poor and densely populated country, could not be applied to more advantage.	I think that if the funds afforded it, each fever hospital should have two wards, containing at least three beds each, for bad surgical cases. This being a mountainous neighbourhood, the poor are very liable to severe accidents, and the manufacture of flax in this town and neighbourhood being carried on extensively, those engaged about the machinery, are very liable to injuries.

MUNSTER—TIPPERARY.

Drangan Dispensary.	Dundrum Dispensary.	Grangemockler Dispensary.
P. O'Halloran, Esq. M.D.	—	S. J. Meagher, Esq. M.D.
Drangan Dispensary, established in November 1829, to provide medical and surgical aid for the sick poor of the district.	Dundrum Dispensary, established in the year 1820, for affording medical aid to the poor of the district.	Grangemockler Dispensary.
Portions of four or five parishes, all in same county.	The parishes of Ballintemple, Rathliney, Kilpatrick, Aughterleigh, Donohill, Clonoulty, and parts of Tipperary and Golden, all in the county Tipperary.	Two, both in the same county.
Fethard, Killenaule, Mullinahone, Grangemockler and Ballynonty Dispensaries.	The County Infirmary at Cashel, where extern patients are attended to on two days in each week; the surgeon of this institution receives 200 l. a year, and the apothecary 52 l. 10 s. for doing the extern duty, of which the above forms a part. A dispensary and fever hospital in the town of Tipperary, and a dispensary in the village of Cappaghwhite, in Tipperary; the physicians receive 100 l. a year for the fever hospital, and the apothecary the medical attendant gets only 35 l. a year.	There is a dispensary within nine miles at one side, on every other side none nearer than eight miles.
40 l. ; the apothecary for the dispensary 60 l. a year; in Cappaghwhite	There is no other hospital or infirmary within the above-named district.	There is no fever hospital nearer than seven miles. There is a dispensary attached to it; the County Infirmary is 19 miles from this dispensary.
The nearest hospital is the County Infirmary at Cashel, about 10 miles; Clonmel Fever Hospital, about the same distance. There is a dispensary attached to each of those hospitals. Salary of the surgeon to the County Infirmary, 200 l. late Irish currency. The salary of the medical attendant of Clonmel is 100 l. a year.	I attend the Dundrum Dispensary only; it is six miles from my residence, in Cashel; on every Tuesday and Friday; the salary is 64 l. 12 s.	I attend but one dispensary twice a week; my salary is about 50 l. a year; it is five miles from my residence.
See answers to the Newcastle Dispensary queries.	I consider it my duty to attend on the above-named days; and on any day in case of accident or sudden illness.	Yes.
—	A registry is kept of all recommendations and all cases attended to, but it is not possible to keep a satisfactory account of the patients.	As the institution is a new one, I have not commenced keeping a register until lately.
—	About 13,000 persons relieved; principally diseases of the stomach and bowels, also intermittent fevers, scrophula, and diseases of the skin, some pulmonary and hepatic affections, and the ordinary diseases of children, typhus fever, and cholera only a few cases.	Within the last five months the average number of patients is 25 per day.
—	Very many; I am obliged to attend all who are recommended by subscribers, and do not consider that I have power to refuse those even who I know are not proper objects.	Sometimes such is the case that persons unentitled to such assistance impose on the subscribers and receive gratuitous relief; but when I find out such to be the case, I of course refuse it.
—	By Messrs. Boileau & George, of Dublin, on receiving an order from the treasurer, to whom I furnish a list of medicines.	The medicines are procured from Malcomson & Jacob, Druggists, Clonmel, from the funds of dispensary.
Receipt. 1831 - - - - £. 90 18 0 1832 - - - - 100 8 0 1833 - - - - 103 14 0	Average Receipt for each of the } £. 145 18 0 last three years - - - } EXPENDITURE. Medical Attendance - - - - £. 64 12 0 House-rent - - - - 7 0 0 Medicine - - - - 66 0 0 Housekeeper - - - - 5 0 0 Fuel, &c. - - - - 3 0 0 £. 145 18 0	The dispensary is established but one year; the amount of medicines this year was 21 l. some odd shillings.
By private subscriptions, and presentments obtained from the county Tipperary.	By private subscriptions (Viscount Hawarden, on whose estate it is situated, is the principal subscriber), and by an annual presentment on the county equal in amount to each year's subscription.	It is supported by presentments obtained from only one county.
See Newcastle return. The treasurer pays out of the funds of this Dispensary for such things as are particularly wanted by poor sick persons recommended by me.	If there were sufficient funds to provide for the comforts of the poor in the way of food, clothes, bedding, &c., a great change would be made in their condition; the present funds could not be better applied than they now are.	I must decline giving any opinion on the subject; and should any suggest itself to you, I shall feel happy in any thing that would ameliorate the condition of the poor.

MUNSTER—TIPPERARY.

Killenaule Dispensary.	Kilsheelan Dispensary.	Lorrah Dispensary.
Mr. Charles Fitzpatrick, Apothecary.	Charles Sloane, Esq. Surgeon.
Killenaule Dispensary.	Kilsheelan Dispensary, established in November 1829.	Lorrah Dispensary, established 1st March 1829.
Six parishes, all in Tipperary.	Three whole parishes, and parts of four more. Some parts are in the county of Waterford.	Two parishes, in the same county.
Ballynonty, Drangan, Fethard, Mullinahone, Littleton, Thurles, all Dispensaries.	A dispensary and fever hospital at Carrick-on-Suir. A dispensary and fever hospital at Clonmel.	Dispensary in Birr, King's County; Borris O'Kane Dispensary, Tipperary.
The County Infirmary at Cashel, ten miles distant, has a dispensary attached, supported by funds from the county, with some private subscriptions. The surgeon has a salary of 200 l. per annum Irish.	There is not any dispensary, hospital or infirmary within my district.	Not any.
I only attend the Killenaule Dispensary. The salary is 70 l. per annum. I attend every day, and reside at the dispensary.	I hold but one dispensary; I reside almost in the centre of the district, and I attend daily.	But one.
Yes, within four miles of the dispensary.	I consider it my duty to give my personal attendance whenever required.	In all cases.
There is no regular registry kept, but the tickets of recommendation are filed, which show the number attended.	A register is kept of all applications. If the patient do not attend, and that the disease is such as to require it, he is attended at his residence.	There is a registry kept of all cases, by whom recommended, residence, disease, and result.
The average number relieved yearly, about 1,500. The diseases chiefly are fevers, various diseases of the skin (very prevalent), rheumatism, inflammatory affections of various parts, chronic sore eyes, tithis pulmonalis, agues, dropsies, diseases of women in the puerperal state. Of children, measles, croup, whooping-cough, small-pox, which prevail much in certain seasons. Accidents, wounds and injuries, especially of the head, caused by factious disputes among the peasantry; various derangements of the digestive organs very prevalent, particularly when the potatoes are not of a good quality, and at seasons of the year when they are decaying, and when they begin the use of the new crop.	The number relieved within this period amounts to 9,000. It is impossible to give a general statement of the diseases treated.	<table><tr><td>1830</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>1603</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>1207</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>1417</td></tr></table>	1830	-	-	-	1603	1831	-	-	-	1207	1832	-	-	-	1417
1830	-	-	-	1603
1831	-	-	-	1207
1832	-	-	-	1417
Sometimes there are persons recommended by subscribers, who could not, strictly speaking, be considered objects, such as tradespeople and small farmers, who would not likely seek medical aid if they had not such an institution to apply to.	Many have received assistance, who were not proper objects of such charity.	Not in many cases.
Obtained from a druggist in Dublin, and paid by the treasurer of the dispensary, out of the funds.	I order the medicines at a druggists; the bills are sent to the treasurer, and paid by him. Leslie & Co. Dublin; Malcomson & Jacob, Clonmel, are the druggists.	Medicines ordered by committee, and supplied by Messrs. Boileau & George, Druggists in Dublin.
<table><tr><th colspan="4">Receipt.</th></tr><tr><th></th><th>1831.</th><th>1832.</th><th>1833.</th></tr><tr><td></td><td>£. s. d.</td><td>£. s. d.</td><td>£. s. d.</td></tr><tr><td>Balance in Treasurer's hands</td><td>146 5 8</td><td>147 10 0</td><td>131 14 11</td></tr><tr><td>Subscriptions</td><td>52 11 0</td><td>51 2 0</td><td>53 4 0</td></tr><tr><td>Presentment</td><td>52 11 0</td><td>51 2 0</td><td>53 4 0</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>£. 151 7 8</td><td>249 14 0</td><td>238 2 11</td></tr></table> <table><tr><th colspan="4">GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.</th></tr><tr><th></th><th>1831.</th><th>1832.</th><th>1833.</th></tr><tr><td></td><td>£. s. d.</td><td>£. s. d.</td><td>£. s. d.</td></tr><tr><td>Salary</td><td>70 0 0</td><td>70 0 0</td><td>70 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine</td><td>25 16 11</td><td>28 13 1</td><td>29 9 10</td></tr><tr><td>Sundries</td><td>9 0 10</td><td>19 6 0</td><td>20 11 4</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>£. 104 17 9</td><td>117 19 1</td><td>120 2 2</td></tr></table>	Receipt.					1831.	1832.	1833.		£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	Balance in Treasurer's hands	146 5 8	147 10 0	131 14 11	Subscriptions	52 11 0	51 2 0	53 4 0	Presentment	52 11 0	51 2 0	53 4 0		£. 151 7 8	249 14 0	238 2 11	GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.					1831.	1832.	1833.		£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	Salary	70 0 0	70 0 0	70 0 0	Medicine	25 16 11	28 13 1	29 9 10	Sundries	9 0 10	19 6 0	20 11 4		£. 104 17 9	117 19 1	120 2 2	<table><tr><th colspan="4">Receipt.</th></tr><tr><th></th><th>1831</th><th>1832</th><th>1833</th></tr><tr><td></td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>£. 138 14 0</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>161 8 0</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>157 6 6</td></tr></table> There is at present 23l. in the treasurer's hands, the rest has been expended on house-rent, medicine, fuel and my salary.	Receipt.					1831	1832	1833		-	-	£. 138 14 0		-	-	161 8 0		-	-	157 6 6	<table><tr><th></th><th>1830.</th><th>1831.</th><th>1832.</th></tr><tr><td></td><td>£. s. d.</td><td>£. s. d.</td><td>£. s. d.</td></tr><tr><td>Subscriptions</td><td>40 10 0</td><td>49 5 0</td><td>48 17 0</td></tr><tr><td>Presentment</td><td>40 10 0</td><td>49 5 0</td><td>48 17 0</td></tr></table> The expenditure equal to the above.		1830.	1831.	1832.		£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	Subscriptions	40 10 0	49 5 0	48 17 0	Presentment	40 10 0	49 5 0	48 17 0
Receipt.
	1831.	1832.	1833.
	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.
Balance in Treasurer's hands	146 5 8	147 10 0	131 14 11
Subscriptions	52 11 0	51 2 0	53 4 0
Presentment	52 11 0	51 2 0	53 4 0
	£. 151 7 8	249 14 0	238 2 11
GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.
	1831.	1832.	1833.
	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.
Salary	70 0 0	70 0 0	70 0 0
Medicine	25 16 11	28 13 1	29 9 10
Sundries	9 0 10	19 6 0	20 11 4
	£. 104 17 9	117 19 1	120 2 2
Receipt.
	1831	1832	1833
	-	-	£. 138 14 0
	-	-	161 8 0
	-	-	157 6 6
	1830.	1831.	1832.
	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.
Subscriptions	40 10 0	49 5 0	48 17 0
Presentment	40 10 0	49 5 0	48 17 0
By annual subscriptions and county presentments from Tipperary only.	Supported by private subscriptions, and presentment from the county Tipperary.	By subscriptions, and presentments obtained from one county.
	If the funds could afford it, the destitute ought to be supplied with food during illness. With the means now at the disposal of the committee, no alteration in its disposal can be made.	The funds are so small, that they would not enable any better distribution of them; but if they were more, a fever hospital might be got up.

MUNSTER—TIPPERARY.

Littleton Dispensary.	Mullinahone Dispensary.	Nenagh Dispensary.
Committee and Medical Attendant.	Committee and Medical Attendant.	Committee and Medical Attendant.
Littleton Dispensary, established August 1828.	The name of the Dispensary under my care is the Mullinahone; its object is the relief of the poorer classes with medicine, medical and surgical attendance; established since March 1822.	Nenagh Dispensary, established in 1817.
Parts of five parishes, forming a district of about four miles round Littleton.	There are three entire parishes, and a considerable portion of five other adjacent parishes included in its district; all in the same county, except a small portion.	Eight entire parishes, and portions of six, all in Tipperary.
Dispensaries at Thurles, Urlingford, Johnstown, Ballynonty, Killenaule and Templetucky; an infirmary and dispensary at Asket-Urlingford and Johnstown, in the county of Kilkenny.	Callon, Ballynonty, Killenaule, Fethard, Drangan, and Grangemockler Dispensaries; these two latter have been recently got up, the former about three years since, but the latter at last autumn assizes; each at about a distance of two miles and a half from Mullinahone.	Nenagh Fever Hospital, Ballymackey, Toom, Silvermines, and Borris O'Kane Dispensaries, Clogh-jordan Dispensary and Fever Hospital.
No.	There is no dispensary attached to any hospital or infirmary within my district.	None.
I only attend this dispensary, for which I receive 80 l. a year for medicine and attendance; the days of attendance are Mondays and Fridays, and at all other times when applied to by a subscriber.	I attend but one dispensary in a country village, at a distance of about seven miles from my residence; the amount of salary is 70 l. a year, and the number of days I am required to attend are two in the week; but in case of epidemics, three, and if necessary every day.	I attend but this one dispensary; salary 70 l. yearly, and a house; attendance every day.
I do.	I conceive it to be my duty to give my personal attendance whenever medical or surgical aid is officially required.	I do.
A register is kept of all persons to whom recommendations are given by subscribers; the name is only entered at the first time of application, unless when more than a month has elapsed since the recommendation was first given. The register does not state how the applications have been disposed of, or with what result.	A register is kept of all applications made, and their disposal, and the result noted.	Yes.
1831 - - - 1,335 1832 - - - 1,874 1833 - - - 2,275	The number of admissions for the last three years (each to continue in force three months), amounts to 5,000; the general diseases being fever, ague, small-pox, measles, pertussis, consumption, dropsy, influenza, hernia, fractures, cancer, evil, inflammation of the intestines, liver and lungs, inveterate diseases of the skin, joints, &c. &c.	10,704, for three years. Diseases treated comprehend almost every variety in medicine and surgery.
Only two or three such cases have occurred.	It sometimes, I dare say, happens, that such an abuse as persons participating in the benefit of the charity who are not really in circumstances to entitle them to it, does occur; the instances are few, and not the intentional fault of the governors.	Seldom occurs.
By the medical attendant, in consequence of his having a shop at his residence in Thurles, from whence the patients often obtain medicines, on the days when he does not attend the dispensary.	The medicines are supplied by the treasurer; he is authorized to do so by the committee every spring.	The committee supply the medicines from the most approved druggist in Dublin.
<table><tr><td colspan="4">Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td><td colspan="2">1833.</td></tr><tr><td>Medical Attendant and Medicine</td><td>£. 80 0 0</td><td>80 0 0</td><td>80 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Rent & Sundries</td><td>8 0 7</td><td>8 11 6½</td><td>10 1 8</td></tr></table>	Expenditure.				1831.	1832.	1833.		Medical Attendant and Medicine	£. 80 0 0	80 0 0	80 0 0	Rent & Sundries	8 0 7	8 11 6½	10 1 8	<table><tr><td colspan="7">Receipt for three Years.</td></tr><tr><td>Subscription</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>£. 135</td><td>5</td><td>8</td></tr><tr><td>Presentment</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>135</td><td>5</td><td>8</td></tr><tr><td colspan="7">Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>Salary</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>£. 210</td><td>0</td><td>0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>46</td><td>12</td><td>0</td></tr><tr><td>Rent</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>18</td><td>0</td><td>0</td></tr></table>	Receipt for three Years.							Subscription	-	-	-	£. 135	5	8	Presentment	-	-	-	135	5	8	Expenditure.							Salary	-	-	-	£. 210	0	0	Medicine	-	-	-	46	12	0	Rent	-	-	-	18	0	0	<table><tr><td>Receipt for three Years.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>£. 728 4 2¾</td><td>£. 561 17 2</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.—Medicine, Surgeon's Salary, and Rent.	Receipt for three Years.	Expenditure.	£. 728 4 2¾	£. 561 17 2
Expenditure.
1831.	1832.	1833.
Medical Attendant and Medicine	£. 80 0 0	80 0 0	80 0 0
Rent & Sundries	8 0 7	8 11 6½	10 1 8
Receipt for three Years.
Subscription	-	-	-	£. 135	5	8
Presentment	-	-	-	135	5	8
Expenditure.
Salary	-	-	-	£. 210	0	0
Medicine	-	-	-	46	12	0
Rent	-	-	-	18	0	0
Receipt for three Years.	Expenditure.
£. 728 4 2¾	£. 561 17 2
By subscription, and presentment equal to the amount of subscription obtained from the county of Tipperary only.	It is supported in part by private subscriptions, and in part by presentment, off of one county only.	By voluntary subscriptions, and a presentment on county of Tipperary of equal amount.
No.	The only alteration of the funds, by way of application, that I can suggest, would be a considerable increase to the funds of this and every other necessary dispensary, which increase is available from the county presentments, as paid hitherto to all infirmaries and dispensaries; thus a fund might be created in every county, and vested in commissioners, for the purpose of adding medical and surgical wards, beside fever wards, to every efficient dispensary.	No.

MUNSTER—TIPPERARY.

Newcastle Dispensary.	Newport Dispensary.	Poulnucka Dispensary.
P. O'Halloran, Esq., M.D.	Committee and Medical Attendant.	Patrick Fitzgibbon, Esq., Surgeon.
Newcastle Dispensary, established in March 1830; object, to provide medical and surgical aid for the sick poor of the neighbourhood.	Newport Dispensary. Not more than one under my care; the object of it is to relieve the poor with medicine gratis, when recommended by subscribers; established in 1825.	Poulnucka, established in the year 1829; it is a dispensary, without any hospital being attached to it.
There are five or six parishes, or large portions of those parishes, included in the district, all in the same county.	Number of parishes included in district, four, all in the same county.	The district embraces parts of five parishes, all of them in the same county.
A fever hospital and dispensary in Cahir, eight miles; same in Clogheen, seven miles.	No dispensaries, infirmaries and public hospitals within ten miles.	There is a dispensary and fever hospital in Clonmel, distant five miles; one at Cashel, seven miles; one at Cahir, four miles; a dispensary at Fethard, six miles, and at Roesgreen, five miles.
There is no hospital or dispensary nearer than Clonmel, about seven miles; the salary paid to the medical attendant is 100 l. a year: there is an apothecary to the Clonmel Hospital, I do not know the amount of his salary.	Neither hospital or infirmary within my district.	There is neither dispensary nor hospital within my district.
Yes, the Drangan Dispensary; I attend two day in the week each dispensary; Newcastle, seven miles from Clonmel, where I reside; Drangan ten miles. Salary of the Newcastle, 50 l. a year; of Drangan, 60 l. a year.	I attend but one dispensary, namely, Newport, which is in the village where I reside; amount of my salary 70 l. per annum; attendance at said dispensary twice a week, subject to calls at all times for out-tickets.	I hold but one dispensary; I am obliged to reside there, and to attend for three hours every day.
I do, and go any hour, night or day, I am called; I am often called to midwifery cases, and if a call should come for me in my absence, I have arranged with another medical man to attend for me, that no one from the district of my dispensary should be disappointed, who would require medical or surgical aid.	I consider it my duty to attend to all cases that require assistance.	I do consider it my duty.
There was a register kept for some time; but having to prescribe, compound the medicines, and visit many at their own houses, it took up too much time to continue it.	A register is kept of the number of persons applying for relief.	There is no particular register for such cases, but there is a general register kept.
There are on an average 25 persons receive medicine and medical advice each day at the dispensary, besides five or six visited in their own houses. The prevalent diseases are, inflammatory affections of various organs, lungs, abdominal, viscera, &c. &c.; fevers some seasons, diseases of the skin very frequent, and various rheumatic affections, becoming, I think, more prevalent than they were; dropsies, agues, consumptions, diseases of women and children, accidents, wounds, and injuries received in fractious quarrels amongst the peasantry; indigestions, pains of the stomach, and many affections of the digestive organs.	The number of persons relieved within the last three years, amount to 9,627.	The average number of patients about 5,000 annually; accidents, fever, midwifery, &c. &c.
Some small farmers are occasionally recommended, who cannot be considered proper objects for a charitable institution.	By the rules of the institution none but paupers are entitled to relief.	It sometimes does occur that such persons are recommended; and as I have no discretionary power in such cases, I am obliged to attend to them.
By the committee; I furnish a list of medicines wanted, and they are obtained from a druggist, and paid for by the treasurer from the funds of the dispensary.	Medicines are now supplied by an apothecary residing in Limerick, and paid for out of the funds of the institution.	They are supplied by Messrs. Malcomson & Jacob, Druggists, Clonmel.
Receipt. 1831 - £. 69 10 0 1832 - 79 4 0 1833 - 95 18 0 Before this year the funds were barely equal to the expenditure, viz. cost of medicine, rent of dispensary, firing, &c., and the salary of the medical attendant.	Receipt. 1831 - £. 156 4 3 1832 - 108 4 0 1833 - 109 14 10 Expenditure. £. 77 18 11 154 0 0 107 4 9½	The receipt has been about 112 l. for each of the last three years, and the expenditure equals the receipt.
By private subscriptions, and presentments obtained from the county Tipperary alone.	Supported by private subscriptions, and by a sum from the county grand jury, equal to the amount of the sum subscribed.	By subscriptions, and county presentment, which is obtained but from one county.
I do not know of any alteration in the funds at present at the disposal of the committee, which would render it more efficient for the relief of the poor; but if the funds could afford it, I would suggest some plans of distribution, which a good deal of observation convinces me would be most useful to the sick poor; first, to empower the treasurer, at the recommendation of one or two governors, and the medical attendant, to give such assistance of clothes as would appear necessary for a sick person; and also such wholesome food as the medical attendant would recommend; sufficient care being taken to have only proper objects supplied with such necessities: many poor distressed and sickly persons have received assistance in the way of food and clothes, especially flannel waistcoats from the gentry in their neighbourhood, at my recommendation, whose wants would otherwise not be known to their benevolent and richer neighbours. I am quite sure much good has been done in this way to the sick poor, from the recommendations of the medical attendants of dispensaries.	I can suggest at present no alteration in the distribution of the funds.	I do not think that any alteration in the distribution of the present funds would make it in any way more efficient than it is at present.

MUNSTER—TIPPERARY.

Roesgreen Dispensary.	Roscrea Dispensary.	Silvermines Dispensary.
Patrick Heffernan, Esq. M.D.	Secretary and Medical Attendant.	Committee and Medical Attendant
The Roesgreen Dispensary, established in March 1831, for the relief of the sick poor of the neighbourhood.	The charitable institution under my care is the Roscrea Dispensary; it has for its object the affording medical and surgical aid, with medicines to the sick poor; it was established about 1809.	Silvermines Dispensary, established in 1810: no other.
The district includes part of the parishes of St. Patrick's Rock and St. John Baptist's, Cashel, Tullamaine, Railstown, Kilconnel, and others, all in the county Tipperary.	The parishes of Roscrea, Bourney and Corbally, in the county Tipperary; Kyle, in the Queen's County; Aughincon and Ettagh, in the King's County.	Five parishes, all in the same county.
The only dispensaries, &c. within ten Irish miles are the County Infirmary, Fethard, Poulmucka, and Dundrum Dispensaries; and in Clonmel and Cahir there are fever hospitals, with dispensaries.	There are the dispensaries of Borris, in Ossory, and Rathdowney, in the Queen's County; the dispensaries and fever hospitals at Birr and Shinrone, and Kennetty, King's County; and the fever hospital and dispensary at Templemore, county Tipperary; all within ten miles.	Three dispensaries within ten miles. A fever hospital at Nenagh.
There is not any hospital in the district but the County Tipperary Infirmary at Cashel, where extern patients are attended to on Wednesdays and Saturdays, by the surgeon and apothecary of that institution; the former receives 200 l. late currency a year, and the latter 50 guineas.	There is not any hospital or dispensary within the above district but that at Roscrea.	None.
I attend the Roesgreen Dispensary only; it is distant four miles from my residence (Cashel.) I receive 50 l. a year for my attendance, which is given regularly on Tuesdays and Fridays; and on other days I visit the sick, if necessary, or required.	I attend the dispensary and fever hospital, for which I receive a salary of 60 l. per annum, a remuneration totally inadequate to the duty performed; out of this sum I give 10 l. to the apothecary, whose salary I also consider too small, being but 25 l. I think it my duty to make this statement, as the smallness of my salary (50 l. a year on the clear,) might militate against other physicians who are more adequately remunerated than I am.	I attend but one dispensary. I am one of three physicians attached to Nenagh Fever Hospital; the attendance is daily, and we take the duty in monthly rotation; salary, 20 l. per annum to each; I reside in Nenagh; the dispensary four miles from my residence, where I attend two days in the week, and more frequently when necessary, in consequence of sudden or dangerous illness.
I do consider it my duty to attend in all cases where medical or surgical aid is required, and invariably do so at the request of a subscriber, or without it whenever any accident occurs.	Myself or my assistant give our personal attendance at the cabins of the sick poor, in cases of diseases of an acute or chronic nature, which confines them to their beds or to their houses.	Certainly, and I invariably do. I visit all patients at their houses who require my attendance.
A register is kept. All applicants are attended to, but it is impossible to keep an account of the consequences. In chronic cases, and where application has been deferred, it is a difficult matter to relieve them, owing to the want of the necessaries, not only for such a state, but for the ordinary life.	We keep a register of the number of patients recommended each year, with their diseases and the medicines exhibited, &c. &c.; but we are unable to state, as can be done in an hospital, the number cured, relieved, dead, &c. in consequence of the great extent of our district, and of the number of new patients applying for relief being about 2,000 per annum.	I keep a registry of all the cases, and know the result.
The number attended since the establishment of this dispensary is 7,230; of those, at their own houses, 802. The principal diseases treated are, fevers, catarrhs, and more especially those of the digestive organs, caused by the want of proper food and clothing.	<table><tr><th>Tickets of Recommendation.</th><th>Repetitions.</th><th>Surgical Operations, including all of a minor nature.</th><th>Visits at Cabins.</th></tr><tr><td>6,259</td><td>21,195</td><td>1,163</td><td>1,097</td></tr></table> The most frequent diseases, inflammations of the chest, fevers, rheumatism, diseases of the stomach, bowel complaints, intestinal fever amongst children, liver complaints, dropsies, scrofula, consumption, &c.	Tickets of Recommendation.	Repetitions.	Surgical Operations, including all of a minor nature.	Visits at Cabins.	6,259	21,195	1,163	1,097	Relieved in last three years 6,500. The diseases treated, inflammation of the cavities, more frequently the lungs; dyspepsia, fevers, dropsies, liver affections, and scrofula in all its varieties.
Tickets of Recommendation.	Repetitions.	Surgical Operations, including all of a minor nature.	Visits at Cabins.
6,259	21,195	1,163	1,097
There are not any recommended by the subscribers to the dispensary but proper objects, which accounts for the number attended to not being so numerous as at other dispensaries, where a great abuse in this way exists.	A few receive medicines who could pay for them, but even so, good is done.	Never, as I am acquainted with the circumstances of most people in my district.
The medicines are ordered by me through the treasurer, and are supplied by Messrs. P. A. & C. Leslie, 40, Bride-street, Dublin.	We purchase our medicines from Messrs. Leslie, Bride-street; our bill to them is about 70 l. per annum; our apothecary compounds the medicines, which enables us to distribute to the poor about 500 l. worth scientifically compounded.	By Boileau & George, Druggists.
<table><tr><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>From March 1831 to March 1833 } £. 174 4 0</td><td>£. 142 14 10½</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><th></th><th>£.</th><th>s.</th><th>d.</th></tr><tr><td>Salary - - -</td><td>75</td><td>0</td><td>0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine, &c. -</td><td>55</td><td>19</td><td>3</td></tr><tr><td>Rent, Repairs, &c.</td><td>11</td><td>15</td><td>7½</td></tr></table>	Receipt.	Expenditure.	From March 1831 to March 1833 } £. 174 4 0	£. 142 14 10½		£.	s.	d.	Salary - - -	75	0	0	Medicine, &c. -	55	19	3	Rent, Repairs, &c.	11	15	7½	<table><tr><th>Receipt.</th></tr><tr><td>1830 - - - £. 68 16 1</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - - - 185 2 0*</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - - - 54 2 0</td></tr></table> The items of expenditure are, Apothecary's Salary, Medicine, Porter's Wages, Instruments, Calico for Bandages, Trusses, Stationary, &c. The funds of the dispensary are never equal to its demands. We are therefore constantly obliged to draw on the finances of the Fever Hospital. * A dispensary house was built this year, which accounts for the largeness of its income.	Receipt.	1830 - - - £. 68 16 1	1831 - - - 185 2 0*	1832 - - - 54 2 0	<table><tr><th>Receipt:</th></tr><tr><td>For last three years - £. 365 8 0</td></tr></table> Expenditure: <table><tr><td>Surgeon's Salary -</td><td>£. 180 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Drugs - - -</td><td>126 18 0</td></tr><tr><td>House-rent - -</td><td>27 13 10</td></tr><tr><td>Cow-Pock Subscription -</td><td>3 3 0</td></tr><tr><td>Contingencies -</td><td>26 10 0</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>£. 364 4 10</td></tr></table>	Receipt:	For last three years - £. 365 8 0	Surgeon's Salary -	£. 180 0 0	Drugs - - -	126 18 0	House-rent - -	27 13 10	Cow-Pock Subscription -	3 3 0	Contingencies -	26 10 0		£. 364 4 10
Receipt.	Expenditure.
From March 1831 to March 1833 } £. 174 4 0	£. 142 14 10½
	£.	s.	d.
Salary - - -	75	0	0
Medicine, &c. -	55	19	3
Rent, Repairs, &c.	11	15	7½
Receipt.
1830 - - - £. 68 16 1
1831 - - - 185 2 0*
1832 - - - 54 2 0
Receipt:
For last three years - £. 365 8 0
Surgeon's Salary -	£. 180 0 0
Drugs - - -	126 18 0
House-rent - -	27 13 10
Cow-Pock Subscription -	3 3 0
Contingencies -	26 10 0
	£. 364 4 10
By private subscriptions, and by a sum equal in amount to them, raised by presentment on the county Tipperary.	It is supported by voluntary subscriptions, and by a presentment paid by the county equal in amount to the sum received, according to the Act of 58 Geo. III. c. 47, s. 5.	By voluntary contributions from the neighbouring gentry, principally the Lord Dunally, and a grant from the county equal in amount to the voluntary contributions, one county.
The funds of this institution are too small to admit of an appropriation to any other use than the present. If there were sufficient funds, they would be most usefully applied in procuring bedding, flannel, &c. and where disease exists, wholesome food.	When we consider the vast benefits conferred on the poor, and, through them, on the rich, in preventing the extension of infectious fever amongst them, we cannot but feel surprised that so much good is done by such small funds as are placed at our disposal; yet we could be more practically useful by having a general hospital attached to our fever hospital or dispensary in this populous town, containing about 10,000 inhabitants; or even if there were a few wards for the reception of cases of accident, as fractured limbs, wounds, &c. and cases for surgical operations and such like; such a plan would add greatly to the comfort of many destitute persons.	I certainly cannot suggest any alteration in the distribution of the funds of this charity which would in any way contribute to the relief of the poor more efficiently.

MUNSTER—TIPPERARY.

Templetohy Dispensary.	Thurles Dispensary.	Tipperary Dispensary.
Bryan Mullally, Esq. M.D.	Committee and Medical Attendant.	Treasurer and Medical Attendant.
It is called the Templetohy Dispensary, established in November 1830.	Thurles Dispensary, situated in the town of Thurles, established in the year 1810, for supplying medicine and medical aid to the sick poor recommended by subscribers.	The Tipperary Dispensary, established in 1810.
It includes a large portion of six parishes, all of which are situated in the county of Tipperary.	The dispensary district, comprising a circuit of five miles round the town, includes portions of fourteen parishes, all in the county of Tipperary.	Seven, and all in the county Tipperary.
There are four dispensaries; viz. Thurles, Johnstown, Rathdowney and Templemore, to which latter a fever hospital is attached.	Borrisoleigh, Templemore, Templetohy, Urlingford, in the county Kilkenny; Johnstown, in same county; Ballinoulty, Killenaule Dispensaries within ten miles, and the County Infirmary at Cashel, distance ten miles.	The Dundrum and Cappaghwhite Dispensaries, each within six miles of Tipperary.
There is no dispensary attached to any hospital or infirmary in the district.	There is a dispensary established at Littleton by the gentry of that village, which is distant four miles, and of course barely within my district, as above described; the salary of the medical gentleman is, I believe, 60 l. or 70 l. per annum.	There is not.
I attend only one dispensary, mentioned above, for which I receive a yearly salary of 60 l. I am obliged to attend at the dispensary on two days of each week.	I attend but one dispensary; my salary is 70 l. per annum; I reside within 200 yards of it, and attend every day in the week at the dispensary for upwards of an hour, and on Mondays or Thursdays for three or four hours.	I only attend the Tipperary Dispensary.
By one of the laws for regulating the dispensary, I am bound to give my personal attendance within four miles of the dispensary, when required by a ticket from a subscriber.	I do, and am called at all hours, day or night.	As apothecary to the institution, I am obliged to attend whenever called on by a pauper. The physicians and surgeons act gratuitously, and also attend the poor at their houses.
A register is kept of such cases as have been attended to outside the dispensary, and also of such as receive medicines and advice at dispensary.	I enter in a book the name, residence and disease of all I visit at their houses, with the result as well as I can ascertain. This, with the general registry of all names, is submitted to the subscribers yearly, and seldom preserved after. I have those only of the two last years, and a memorandum of that of 1831.	Every patient recommended to the dispensary is registered in the registry book, with the name of the governor recommending, date of admission, &c.
The number of patients visited at their homes during the last three years I find to be about 300. The number admitted to the dispensary during each year averages at least 2,000. Fevers, affections of lungs, dysenteries and dyspepsia, especially the latter, are the diseases usually occurring in this district.	The number of persons visited for the two past years, 764; and from 1st March to November 25th, 1833, 284. Many of those visited ten times and more. The diseases in a population so dense are too numerous to specify here. They generally consist of fevers, dyspepsia and flatulence, ulcerations, diseases of the bowels, injuries and fractures of the head, and diseases of women and children, midwifery cases, &c.	The number of patients recommended 7,606. Their diseases were various, such as pleurisy, ague, dropsy, herpes, psora, dysentery, diarrhoea, &c.
Many persons in moderate circumstances frequently apply for gratuitous assistance, but such persons are not entitled to any participation in the benefits of the charity.	I do believe that many get medicine who have means to buy it; they come with regular tickets from subscribers, probably unacquainted with their condition; but I am positive relief is not confined	Such occurrence seldom happens.
The medicines are usually obtained at the house of Leslie & Co., Dublin, for which the treasurer to the institution gives an order. The selection of proper medicines is left to the medical officer of the establishment.	The medicines are purchased by the treasurer, from Boileau, of Bride-street, Dublin; consigned to his care, and dispensed by me, and are accounted for by him annually, entirely unconnected with my salary.	The medicines are supplied from Messrs. Leslie, Bride-street, Dublin, by the treasurer's order.
During the first year, the receipt, including subscriptions and presentment for the county, exceeded 150 l. , of which 80 l. was given as salary to medical attendant, and more than 50 l. was expended on medicine; during each of two last years the amount of receipt did not exceed 100 l. , of which 60 l. was given to physician, and more than 30 l. expended on medicine.	<table> <tr> <th></th><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr> <tr> <td>1830</td><td>- £. 170 5 4½</td><td>170 5 4½</td></tr> <tr> <td>1831</td><td>- 171 6 6</td><td>158 1 11</td></tr> <tr> <td>1832</td><td>- 158 19 4</td><td>185 2 9</td></tr> </table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.—Salary, Medicine, House-rent, &c.		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1830	- £. 170 5 4½	170 5 4½	1831	- 171 6 6	158 1 11	1832	- 158 19 4	185 2 9	<table> <tr> <th></th><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr> <tr> <td>1830</td><td>- £. 207 16 4</td><td>- £. 165 13 4</td></tr> <tr> <td>1831</td><td>- 184 11 3</td><td>- 185 16 9</td></tr> <tr> <td>1832</td><td>- 204 18 2</td><td>- 141 13 8</td></tr> </table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.—Medicine, Fuel, Rent and Attendance.		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1830	- £. 207 16 4	- £. 165 13 4	1831	- 184 11 3	- 185 16 9	1832	- 204 18 2	- 141 13 8
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1830	- £. 170 5 4½	170 5 4½
1831	- 171 6 6	158 1 11
1832	- 158 19 4	185 2 9
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1830	- £. 207 16 4	- £. 165 13 4
1831	- 184 11 3	- 185 16 9
1832	- 204 18 2	- 141 13 8
It is supported by subscriptions of individuals, and by presentment on the county in which the dispensary is situated of equal amount to the subscription.	By subscriptions from the landed proprietors and gentry, and an equal annual presentment from the county Tipperary grand jury.	By private subscription, and by a presentment from the county Tipperary.
I am not prepared to suggest any alteration in the distribution of the funds of the establishment which would render greater benefit to the poor.	With the present number of patients, nearly 3,000 annually, and the funds available for their use, I know no mode that would materially improve its efficiency. There have not been any complaints of want of attendance or medicine, and the people appear satisfied. If some additional nourishment could be procured for poor women in child-birth whom I often attend, it is the only thing strikes me as important.	I cannot.

MUNSTER—TIPPERARY and WATERFORD.

Toomavara Dispensary.	Ballyduff Dispensary.	Bonmahon Dispensary.
C. Bourns, Esq., Surgeon.	Committee and Medical Attendant.	Thomas Dillon Baker, Esq.
The Toomavara Dispensary has been under my care six years, and existed several years previously, say at least ten years.	The Ballyduff Dispensary, established March 1832, for the relief of the poor of that district.	Bonmahon Dispensary, established in 1830.
One parish, and parts of two others.	One very extensive one in the same county.	Three parishes, in county Waterford.
Dispensary and Fever Hospital Nenagh, dispensary at the church of Ballymacky, dispensary Moneygrell, Dispensary and Fever Hospital Clogh-jordan.	Tallow, Lismore and Cappoquin Dispensaries.	Two dispensaries.
There is not any medical establishment in what I consider my district; of the salary afforded by them I am not aware.	There is not.	None.
Toomavara Dispensary, in the town, with my residence; six days' attendance; weekly salary, 60 l. ; Moneygall, four miles (King's County) two days; salary 40 l.	I attend only one, twice a week, Mondays and Fridays; hours of attendance from 12 till 2 o'clock, though it generally requires four hours each day, in consequence of the numerous claimants, and being allowed no apothecary, which most other dispensaries have; distance from my residence 3½ miles; salary 100 l. per annum.	I attend but one dispensary; it is open but twice a week, unless some accident or disease occurs in the intermediate days.
I do.	I certainly do, and have always done so.	Yes.
The register, although kept, yet not preserved.	Yes, a dispensary book, in which the names of the patients, by whom recommended, their age, residence, disease, and their termination.	A register has been kept.
As nearly as I can recollect 9,000 attendances, embracing the general aggregate of diseases, accidents, wounds, &c.	Since the institution was established, nearly 2,000 persons have been relieved; the diseases most common are, fevers, hemorrhage, liver and pectoral complaints, diseases of bladder and womb, bowel attacks, accidents, such as fractures and dislocations, wounds, &c. &c.	The number of persons relieved amount to 4,388; the diseases were principally surgical, and almost in all cases treated with success.
The district is occupied principally by farmers possessing from 30 to 100 acres; many subscribe to the funds, and receive a small assistance in return in cases of slight sickness.	Frequent applications are made under such circumstances, but never knowingly granted, and the impositions are very rare, owing to the precautions adopted by subscribers and medical superintendent.	Occasionally.
By Messrs. Boileau & George, Dublin.	By a Cork druggist.	By the medical attendant.
Expenditure. Medicine - - - £. 35 Salary - - - - 60 Rent - - - - 7 Stationery - - - 2 £.104 each year.	Receipt. 1832 - - - - £.94 0 0 1833 - - - - 124 0 0 GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. 1832. 1833. Salary - £.50 0 0 - *100 0 0 Balance expended in medicine, house-rent, &c. * This increase was made by the committee in consequence of the physician's exertions in the cause of the institution.	Expenditure. Medical Attendant - - - £. 80 Medicine, &c. - - - - 22
By presentment from the county Tipperary, equally with private subscription.	By subscription and presentment obtained from one county only.	By subscriptions, and presentment from the county Waterford only.
Many plans might be suggested for the amelioration of the sick poor; but I know of none which could be effected without an increase of funds, and that I believe is not to be obtained locally.	I think part of the funds may be most usefully appropriated to the purchase of a little wine, a suggestion which the committee mean to carry into effect next year.

MUNSTER—WATERFORD.

MUNSTER—WATERFORD.

Cappoquin Dispensary.	Clashmore Dispensary.	Dunmore and Passage Dispensaries.
David Barry, Esq., Surgeon.	William O'Brien, Esq., Surgeon.	William Holland Gore, Esq., Surgeon.
The Cappoquin Dispensary, established in 1824. No infirmary or hospital attached; the object is to supply medicine and advice to the poor.	The name of the institution under my care, is the Clashmore Dispensary, established in 1824. I was appointed in 1825, and have continued medical superintendent since that time.	The Dunmore and Passage Dispensaries, situated in the barony of Gaultier, established 25th of March 1825, for the purpose of affording medicine and advice to the sick poor.
Three, and occasionally part of a fourth, this being somewhat remote; all within the county.	The district is perhaps one of the largest in the south of Ireland; it contains six parishes, together with an immense tract of mountain, all in the county Waterford, probably over 8,000 acres, parts of which are thickly inhabited.	The parishes of Kilmachiongue, Rathmoylan, Killea, Knockbee, Faithleg, Kilsonicholas, Crook and Kilmacomb are included in my district, and all in the same county.
There are no dispensaries without hospitals, and three with fever hospitals attached to each, within ten miles; viz. Lismore, Dungarvan, Tallow, Ballyduff and Clashmore.	The only medical institutions within ten miles of the Clashmore Dispensary are, the Cappoquin Dispensary, in the county Waterford, distant nine miles, and the Youghal Dispensary and Infirmary, in the county Cork, five miles distant.	The Tramore Dispensary within nine miles, and the Waterford Hospitals, at the same distance.
None within the district in which I am bound to act.	There is no other dispensary, hospital or infirmary within my district.	There is no other dispensary within my district.
I attend but one dispensary (Cappoquin), which is in the town I reside; the amount of salary fifty guineas annually, and attendance daily from 11 to 1 o'clock.	I attend only the one dispensary, and taking into consideration the extent of the district, it is quite as much as one person can attend to. My allowances are 60 L. a year salary, 20 L. to keep a horse, with a residence; the hours of attendance are from 9 to 11 o'clock each day, Sundays excepted.	I attend the Passage Dispensary two days in each week, the distance six miles from Dunmore, where I reside, and the amount of salary for both, 100 L. per annum; I also attend the Dunmore Dispensary two days in each week.
I do undoubtedly give such assistance when required.	I consider it my duty to attend on all medical or surgical cases, on receiving the printed recommendation of a subscriber.	I invariably give my own personal attendance to those who are unable to attend at the dispensary; and am required to do so at any time that a subscriber may deem necessary.
I have kept an exact account of name of patients recommended, the disease, residence, age, and the result.	I keep a register of the number of cases, with the names of the persons and of the diseases treated, for the inspection of the governors; I likewise make a return, to the best of my knowledge, of the number of deaths and recoveries; but such a return cannot be made with accuracy, as the majority of persons applying for relief reside miles distant, and they or their friends seldom take the trouble to inform me of the result of the treatment.	A register is kept of the persons recommended by each subscriber; also of their diseases, and the medicines prescribed.
The average number recommended about 1,370 annually, for the last three years; the annual deaths about 30; recoveries, about 1,340. The general diseases, fever, pleurisy, those incidental to age, infancy, &c.	The number of persons relieved for the last three years were 3,141, annual number visited at their own houses, 155. The diseases which have generally come under my observation were those which always attend a state of poverty and privation, such as diseases of the lungs and pleura, fevers of a low type, and a peculiar disease of the stomach and digestive organs, which I look upon to be the result of the constant use of the wretched potato of this country.	The number of persons relieved for the last three years, amounts to 1,830, and the diseases most prevalent have been fevers, epidemic colds, liver complaints and dysentery.
This seldom occurs, so seldom, that I do not now recollect having occasion to remonstrate with any subscriber to the institution on an abuse of the kind.	I regret to say that persons do participate in the benefit of the charity who are able to procure it for themselves, and I look upon such a circumstance to be one of the most crying abuses of those otherwise valuable institutions.	This very seldom occurs, except in the instance of gentlemen's servants, who, I believe, are not, strictly speaking, entitled to dispensary relief.
By a wholesale druggist, and paid for annually out of the general fund.	The medicines are supplied by Mr. Harrington, a wholesale druggist in Cork.	The medicines are supplied from the dispensary funds, and purchased by the treasurer from a Waterford druggist.
Annual (average) amount of subscriptions for the last three years, 50 L.; medicine, 30 L.; incidental expenses, 9 L.; rent of dispensary-room, 4 L.; the incidental expenses were for twine, paper, leather skins, spirits, sugar, carriage of medicine, &c. &c.	<table> <tr> <th></th><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr> <tr> <td>1831 -</td><td>£. 115 11 9½</td><td>£. 104 9 2½</td></tr> <tr> <td>1832 -</td><td>117 5 9</td><td>106 6 11</td></tr> <tr> <td>1833 -</td><td>142 15 10</td><td>131 3 8</td></tr> </table> It is to be observed, that the last year was that in which the cholera prevailed.		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831 -	£. 115 11 9½	£. 104 9 2½	1832 -	117 5 9	106 6 11	1833 -	142 15 10	131 3 8	The private subscriptions amount to 63 L. per annum; the presentments to a similar sum, and the expenditure for medicines, dispensary rooms and firing, exclusive of my salary, amounts on an average to 25 L. per annum.
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831 -	£. 115 11 9½	£. 104 9 2½
1832 -	117 5 9	106 6 11
1833 -	142 15 10	131 3 8
By private subscription, and an annual grant from the county, equal in amount, from the county Waterford only.	It is supported by voluntary subscriptions, and by presentments obtained solely from the county Waterford.	By private subscriptions, and presentments obtained from the county Waterford alone.
I can suggest no alteration in the distribution of the funds by which the establishment under my professional charge is supported, economy and utility being the objects of all concerned.	The present funds I conceive could not effect much more than is at present done, as there is never more than a few pounds balance on hand at the end of the year; if the funds were increased, I would suggest the necessity of attaching an infirmary or hospital to the dispensary, and would likewise suggest the necessity of a fund to afford relief, even on a limited scale, in the way of nourishing food and covering for the destitute sick poor, such relief to be given at the recommendation of the medical attendant.	The funds are too limited to be appropriated to any other purposes, otherwise the establishment of an hospital for fever cases and accidents would be of vast importance, particularly as there is no infirmary in the county of Waterford.

MUNSTER—WATERFORD.		ULSTER—ANTRIM.
Kilmaethomas Dispensary.	Kilmeaden & Drummannon Dispensaries.	Ahoghill Dispensary.
J. P. Coghlan, Esq., M. D.	Geo. A. Waters, Esq., M. D.	Secretaries and Medical Attendant.
Kilmaethomas Dispensary, established in the year 1828.	Kilmeaden and Drummannon Dispensaries, established April 1822, for the relief of the sick poor of Drummannon and Kilmeaden (including the town of Tramore), and adjoining parishes.	The Ahoghill Dispensary, established in April 1833.
Five parishes, all in the same county.	Seven, and all in the same county.	One only, the parish of Ahoghill, in the county of Antrim.
Dispensary of Kill, 4 miles; Bonmahon, 4 miles; Portlaw, 6 miles; Kilmeaden, 7 miles; Carrick-on-Suir Fever Hospital and Dispensary, 9 miles; Dungor Fever Hospital, 10 miles.	At Waterford there is the Fever Hospital for city and county; Leper Hospital for the city alone. At Portlaw there is a dispensary, supported by Lord Waterford, for his tenantry alone; another at same place, supported by weekly subscriptions of the people working in the cotton factory of the Messrs. Malcolmson, for the people of the factory alone; another of the same description at Bonmahon, established by Lady Osborne, for the use of the miners at Knockmahon; and a dispensary at Dunmore.	The Randalstown Dispensary.
None.	None.	There is none.
I attend only one dispensary, a branch of which is in Stradbally, 5 miles off. The dispensary here is open on two days in the week, and the branch in Stradbally I attend on one day in each week. The salary is 90 l. per annum.	I attend the two dispensaries, viz. Drummannon and Kilmeaden; they are united dispensaries. I visit them twice a week, and oftener, if necessary. I reside at Tramore, where the Drummannon Dispensary is. The Kilmeaden Dispensary is about 6 miles from Tramore. My salary for each is only 47 l. 10 s. per year.	None but the one above mentioned; attendance is given at the dispensary two days in each week for the distribution of medicine, besides visits to the poor at their houses whenever necessary. Salary, 40 l. per annum, and the residence, in the same village in which the dispensary is.
Certainly.	Whenever I am called on by the recommendation of a subscriber, I consider it my duty to attend the object pointed out.	In all cases I attend myself.
A register of the names only has been kept, not mentioning the disease.	There are books for each dispensary, in which the names of those relieved are inserted, with the medicines prescribed. These books are examined at the termination of the year, by the committee, and the numbers relieved inserted in the secretary's books.	There is.
The number on the books for the last three years is 14,000.	1830 - - - - - 5,025 1831 - - - - - 4,688 1832 - - - - - 3,719 The diseases treated were, fevers, pneumonia, rheumatism, dropsy, dyspepsy, variola, scarletina, varicella, pertussis, colica, typhosis, catarrhal affections, scrofula, hernia, ophthalmia, asthma, epilepsy, hepatitis, cancer, cum multis aliis.	During the last eight months, the number of persons relieved were 136 at the dispensary, and 47 have been visited at their houses, and the number of visits and times receiving medicine varied according to the nature of the complaint; the nature of complaints varied according to the season of year, and the generality were of a chronic nature.
Every precaution is taken by the committee to prevent such misapplication of the funds.	Very many.	Very seldom, if ever.
I write an order on a Waterford druggist for any medicines required, which are paid for by the secretary.	The medicines in general are supplied by Mr. Denis Harrington, Druggist, Waterford, in the rough, and compounded at the dispensaries.	From the funds, derived as mentioned below.
The receipts amount to about 140 l. per annum, which are disposed of by giving the medical attendant 90 l. , rent for his house and dispensary 15 l. per annum, and remainder for medicine.	Expenditure. 1830 - - - - - £. 158 8 0 1831 - - - - - 157 19 7 1832 - - - - - 175 5 0 GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. Rent, medicines, wine and aliments, trusses, nurse-tendings, stationary, salary to medical attendant, &c. &c.	The amount received this year was 75 l. 4 s. ; and as the accounts have not been made up, we can give no exact account of expenditure.
By private subscriptions, and presentments from the county of Waterford alone.	By private subscriptions, and presentments on the county.	By voluntary subscriptions from some of the landlords, clergy and others, residing in the parish, with an equal sum got by presentment from the county of Antrim.
I believe the funds are turned to the best account.	Our sick are supplied, besides medicine, with bread, milk, tea, sugar, wine, beer and meat, whenever such is found necessary for their comfort and wants, out of the funds of the institutions, which are very poor indeed. All, therefore, that we can accomplish with the means we possess, are put into full force.	We cannot at present think that any alteration would be beneficial, as the affairs are carefully attended to.

ULSTER—ANTRIM.

Antrim Dispensary.	Ballycastle Dispensary.	Ballymoney Dispensary.
Edward Bryson, Esq., Surgeon.	William Neville, Esq., M. D.	Alexander Moore, Esq., M. D.
The institution of which I have the charge is called the Antrim Dispensary. Its object is to provide medicine and medical attendance for the poor of the district. I have no connexion with any other.	Ballycastle Dispensary, established July 1831.	Ballymoney General Dispensary, established 1827.
The district includes the parish of Antrim, and adjoining grange of Muckamore, both in the county of Antrim.	Ramoan and Culfeightrin, with neighbouring parts of Battintoy and Ardmoy, all in same county.	The sphere of gratuitous attendance only extends to the parish, but we receive patients on the books for eight miles distance.
There is a dispensary at Randalstown, four miles; one at Connor, five miles; and one at Crumlin, five miles distant.	There are four dispensaries, from ten to twelve miles distant, namely, Ballymoney, Bushmills, Cushendall and Loughgeel.	One dispensary in Loughgeel, within eight miles.
There is no other dispensary, hospital or infirmary within my district.	None.	None.
I have the charge of one dispensary only, which I attend three days in the week. The salary which I receive is 50 l. per annum.	I attend Ballycastle Dispensary only; salary last year, 40 l. Attendance two days in the week.	Only the one. The attendance three times a week at the dispensary, two hours each time.
I consider it my duty, on the recommendation of a subscriber, to visit all cases within my district which require my personal attendance.	I do, in all cases recommended by a subscriber.	In every instance, within the bounds of the parish of Ballymoney.
A register is kept of all the cases of any importance which receive aid from the dispensary, and the tickets of the subscribers recommending are filed, but I find it impracticable to keep a correct account of the result of the treatment in all cases.	I have not yet been two years superintendent to this dispensary; have kept such register.	A registry is kept of the names of patients, their diseases, recoveries and deaths.
<table><tr><td>1830</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>1,376</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>1,517</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>1,466</td></tr></table> The prevailing diseases have been, fevers of different types, diarrhoea and dysentery, catarrhal and pulmonic affections, visceral obstructions, acute and chronic rheumatism, cutaneous affections, and many of the diseases incident to children.	1830	-	-	-	-	1,376	1831	-	-	-	-	1,517	1832	-	-	-	-	1,466	During the year ending July 1, 1833, 346 persons have been medically treated; of this number 264 have been either perfectly restored, or so improved in health, as to be enabled to follow their usual avocations; 13 have died, of 11 the results are unknown, and 58 remain under treatment.	<table><tr><td>1830</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>1,105</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>852</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>846</td></tr></table>	1830	-	-	-	-	1,105	1831	-	-	-	-	852	1832	-	-	-	-	846
1830	-	-	-	-	1,376
1831	-	-	-	-	1,517
1832	-	-	-	-	1,466
1830	-	-	-	-	1,105
1831	-	-	-	-	852
1832	-	-	-	-	846
I have no doubt that persons have occasionally been recommended to receive dispensary aid whose circumstances enable them to pay at least for the medicine; such instances are however, I believe, rare.	There are few, if any, of this description.	Persons are occasionally recommended whom I should think do not strictly come under the rules of the institution.
The medicines are ordered by me from a respectable druggist in Belfast, and are paid for the treasurer from the funds of the institution.	By an order on Mr. Adams, druggist, of Belfast; this order countersigned by the treasurer.	By the treasurer, from the subscriptions.
<table><tr><td colspan="2">Receipt.</td><td colspan="2">Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1830</td><td>- £. 105 0 0</td><td>£. 69 10 0</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>- 71 0 0</td><td>76 16 0½</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>- 71 0 0</td><td>72 16 7</td><td></td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><td></td><td>1830.</td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>£. s. d.</td><td>£. s. d.</td><td>£. s. d.</td></tr><tr><td>Salary</td><td>- 50 0 0</td><td>50 0 0</td><td>50 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicines</td><td>- 19 10 0</td><td>26 16 0½</td><td>22 16 7</td></tr></table>	Receipt.		Expenditure.		1830	- £. 105 0 0	£. 69 10 0		1831	- 71 0 0	76 16 0½		1832	- 71 0 0	72 16 7			1830.	1831.	1832.		£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	Salary	- 50 0 0	50 0 0	50 0 0	Medicines	- 19 10 0	26 16 0½	22 16 7	<table><tr><td colspan="2">Receipt.</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>- - - - £. 58 13 0</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>- - - - 84 10 0</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><td></td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>£. s. d.</td><td>£. s. d.</td></tr><tr><td>Salary</td><td>- - - £. 25 0 0</td><td>40 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine, &c.</td><td>- 33 13 0</td><td>28 0 0</td></tr></table>	Receipt.		1831	- - - - £. 58 13 0	1832	- - - - 84 10 0		1831.	1832.		£. s. d.	£. s. d.	Salary	- - - £. 25 0 0	40 0 0	Medicine, &c.	- 33 13 0	28 0 0	<table><tr><td colspan="2">Receipt.</td><td colspan="2">Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1830</td><td>- - £. 125 18 11</td><td>£. 127 17 4½</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>- - - 104 5 0</td><td>100 12 0</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>- - - 94 16 6½</td><td>98 17 6½</td><td></td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><td></td><td>1830.</td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>£. s. d.</td><td>£. s. d.</td><td>£. s. d.</td></tr><tr><td>Salaries</td><td>- - 50 0 0</td><td>50 0 0</td><td>50 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine</td><td>- - 65 10 9</td><td>36 13 4</td><td>37 17 6</td></tr><tr><td>Rent</td><td>- - 8 8 0</td><td>8 8 0</td><td>8 8 0</td></tr><tr><td>Sundries</td><td>- - 3 18 7½</td><td>3 12 2</td><td>2 12 0½</td></tr></table>	Receipt.		Expenditure.		1830	- - £. 125 18 11	£. 127 17 4½		1831	- - - 104 5 0	100 12 0		1832	- - - 94 16 6½	98 17 6½			1830.	1831.	1832.		£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	Salaries	- - 50 0 0	50 0 0	50 0 0	Medicine	- - 65 10 9	36 13 4	37 17 6	Rent	- - 8 8 0	8 8 0	8 8 0	Sundries	- - 3 18 7½	3 12 2	2 12 0½
Receipt.		Expenditure.
1830	- £. 105 0 0	£. 69 10 0
1831	- 71 0 0	76 16 0½
1832	- 71 0 0	72 16 7
	1830.	1831.	1832.
	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.
Salary	- 50 0 0	50 0 0	50 0 0
Medicines	- 19 10 0	26 16 0½	22 16 7
Receipt.
1831	- - - - £. 58 13 0
1832	- - - - 84 10 0
	1831.	1832.
	£. s. d.	£. s. d.
Salary	- - - £. 25 0 0	40 0 0
Medicine, &c.	- 33 13 0	28 0 0
Receipt.		Expenditure.
1830	- - £. 125 18 11	£. 127 17 4½
1831	- - - 104 5 0	100 12 0
1832	- - - 94 16 6½	98 17 6½
	1830.	1831.	1832.
	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.
Salaries	- - 50 0 0	50 0 0	50 0 0
Medicine	- - 65 10 9	36 13 4	37 17 6
Rent	- - 8 8 0	8 8 0	8 8 0
Sundries	- - 3 18 7½	3 12 2	2 12 0½
It is supported partly by subscription, and partly by presentments; the latter are obtained from the county of Antrim only.	By voluntary subscriptions, and presentments from the county of Antrim only.	By private subscriptions, and an equal sum presented by the grand jury.
It does not occur to me that any change could advantageously be made in the distribution of the funds of the dispensary. I believe the poor derive as much benefit from the present mode of appropriating so small a sum as they are likely to do from any other.	None.	I can suggest nothing better than that already adopted.

ULSTER—ANTRIM.

Belfast General Dispensary.	Bushmills Dispensary.	Carrickfergus Dispensary.
W. Duncan, Esq. M.D. Thomas H. Purdon, Esq. M.D.	—	George Forsyth, Esq. M.D.
The Belfast Dispensary, established 1st October 1827. Dr. Duncan is also senior physician to the Fever Hospital.	The Bushmills Dispensary only, under the care of the medical superintendent, established in 1830; the object of which is, to obtain medical aid and medicine at a cheap rate.	The Carrickfergus Dispensary, established 1st January 1832, for the relief of the wretched poor in this town and neighbourhood.
The district is strictly the parish of Belfast or Shankhill, but we do not reject patients from any part of the county of Antrim, nor, until the establishment of a dispensary lately at Ballymacarret, from Down either.	There are five parishes included in this district, all in the county of Antrim.	Only one parish, viz. St. Nicholas.
Fever Hospital and Dispensary, Lying-in Hospital, in Belfast; county Antrim Infirmary, Lisburn; and dispensaries at Ballymacarret, Newtownhida, Hollywood, Bangor, Newtownards, Hillsborough, Castlereagh, Whitehouse, and Carrickfergus.	There are dispensaries at Ballycastle, Ballymoney, Coleraine, Portstewart and Portrush; during the prevalence of cholera, there were hospitals fitted up at Coleraine, Ballymoney, Ballycastle Derrock and Bushmills.	In Belfast, which is about ten statute miles from Carrickfergus, there are several dispensaries, but these are in the county of Antrim.
There is a dispensary attached to the Fever Hospital here. The Lunatic Asylum physician, and the surgeon to the House of Correction, are the only medical officers in Belfast who receive any salary.	There is no hospital or infirmary attached to the Bushmills Dispensary.	There is no hospital in this district; for attending the dispensary I receive twenty guineas annually.
Dr. Duncan is at present senior physician to the Fever Hospital; attendance daily, as well as at the General Dispensary; no salary paid by either.	One dispensary only in the town of Bushmills; salary 20 pounds; attendance is required two days each week; Mondays and Thursdays from 11 till 2 o'clock.	I attend no other dispensary or infirmary.
No, except in urgent cases, there being provision at the other dispensary for attending the poor at their own houses.	Personal attendance is given when required at all times.	I always give my own personal attendance.
Once in each year, on a patient's first applying for relief, we register the name, age, residence and disease, but not afterwards during that year.	There were registers kept of all the cases admitted since the commencement in 1830; it is allowed much good has been done thereby.	An account is kept of the admission, disease, cure or death of patients.
<table><tr><td>1830</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>11,235</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>9,351</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>7,005</td></tr></table> The general diseases being dyspepsia, different modifications of struma, worms, and the usual epidemics, as influenza, dysentery, common cholera, measles, hooping cough, &c.	1830	-	-	-	11,235	1831	-	-	-	9,351	1832	-	-	-	7,005	There have been upwards of 2,000 cases; typhus fever, dropsies, measles, cancer, indigestion, catarrhal affections, form the most prominent of the diseases treated.	<table><tr><td></td><td>Cured.</td><td>Relieved.</td><td>Died.</td><td>Total.</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>-</td><td>390</td><td>26</td><td>19</td><td>435</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>20</td><td>553</td></tr></table> Books are not yet closed. Diseases are, fevers, dropsies, accidents, catarrhal affections, and complaints usual in this climate.		Cured.	Relieved.	Died.	Total.	1832	-	-	-	-	1832	-	390	26	19	435	1833	-	-	-	20	553
1830	-	-	-	11,235
1831	-	-	-	9,351
1832	-	-	-	7,005
	Cured.	Relieved.	Died.	Total.
1832	-	-	-	-
1832	-	390	26	19	435
1833	-	-	-	20	553
Such persons seldom apply, and when we discover them, we refuse medicine, or medical advice, as the case may be.	Very seldom, if known.	None such are relieved at this dispensary, which was established for the poor only.
Purchased by the treasurer from the druggists in the town.	There is a list made out by the superintendent, and forwarded to Belfast, to druggists there who are in the habit of selling at a cheap rate.	I make out a list of the medicines wanted, which I send to Mr. Johns, the secretary and treasurer, who gets the medicines from Belfast.
<table><tr><td></td><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1830</td><td>- £. 74 16 0</td><td>£. 78 16 2</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>- 109 9 6</td><td>109 8 0</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>- 107 7 0</td><td>97 16 5</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><td></td><td>1830.</td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine</td><td>- £. 47 1 7½</td><td>75 0 6</td><td>57 9 5</td></tr><tr><td>Rent, Cess, &c.</td><td>23 11 8</td><td>22 6 3</td><td>22 2 9</td></tr><tr><td>Sundries</td><td>- 8 2 10½</td><td>12 1 3</td><td>18 4 3</td></tr></table>		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1830	- £. 74 16 0	£. 78 16 2	1831	- 109 9 6	109 8 0	1832	- 107 7 0	97 16 5		1830.	1831.	1832.	Medicine	- £. 47 1 7½	75 0 6	57 9 5	Rent, Cess, &c.	23 11 8	22 6 3	22 2 9	Sundries	- 8 2 10½	12 1 3	18 4 3	The expense for the last three years about 50 l . each year for medicine and for the salary of the surgeon; there has been no house rent required yet.	<table><tr><td></td><td>Receipt.</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>£. s. d.</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>- - - 64 10 0</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>- - - 63 10 0</td></tr></table> Last year a few pounds remained over; this year there will be nothing.		Receipt.		£. s. d.	1832	- - - 64 10 0	1833	- - - 63 10 0
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1830	- £. 74 16 0	£. 78 16 2
1831	- 109 9 6	109 8 0
1832	- 107 7 0	97 16 5
	1830.	1831.	1832.
Medicine	- £. 47 1 7½	75 0 6	57 9 5
Rent, Cess, &c.	23 11 8	22 6 3	22 2 9
Sundries	- 8 2 10½	12 1 3	18 4 3
	Receipt.
	£. s. d.
1832	- - - 64 10 0
1833	- - - 63 10 0
By subscriptions, and presentments from county Antrim only.	By subscriptions from the neighbouring gentlemen, and presentments on the county of Antrim only.	It is supported by subscriptions, and presentments from the inhabitants and grand jury of the county of the town of Carrickfergus.
We cannot suggest any distribution of the funds that would be more efficient or economical, when it appears that in the three entire periods mentioned, 27,591 patients have been relieved at an expense of 284 l . 0 s . 7 d . only.	Without an augmentation of the funds, I know no way the present system could be of more use; if the poor were better supplied with nourishment, it would be of infinite use to assist the cure of disease.	I am not aware that the funds could be managed with more economy, or be rendered more useful to the poor of Carrickfergus.

ULSTER—ANTRIM.

Connor Dispensary.	Crumlin Dispensary.	Larne Dispensary.
Committee and Medical Attendant.	—	Thomas Kirkpatrick, Esq., M.D.
The Connor Dispensary; only one.	Only one dispensary, called "Crumlin Dispensary," for supplying the poor with advice and suitable medicines, established March 1833.	The Larne Dispensary. Medicines and medical or surgical aid are given at the dispensary on Tuesdays and Fridays, from 10 until 1 o'clock, and patients are visited in Larne, Kilwaughter, Glynn, Ralloo, and the four towns of Inver, when recommended by subscribers. It was established in the year 1817.
All the parish of Connor, and part of the parish of Ballyclug; all in county Antrim.	Two parishes in same county.	There are five parishes in the district, viz. the parishes of Larne (in which is the town of Larne,) Kilwaughter, Glynn (which includes Maghera-morne) Ralloo and the four towns of Inver. They are all in the county of Antrim.
The dispensaries at Antrim, Randalstown and Ahoghill.	A dispensary at Randalstown, nine miles distant; one at Antrim, five miles distant; a county infirmary at Lisburn, nine miles distant.	There is only one dispensary, that of Carrickfergus, within ten miles.
None.	None.	There is neither hospital nor infirmary in this district.
None but the Connor Dispensary. Two days in the week.	Only one; two days in the week.	I attend but the one dispensary; my salary is 40 l. per annum.
In all cases of necessity.	Not in all cases.	Agreeably to the regulations of the Larne Dispensary, I attend at the dispensary as above stated, on two days of the week. I likewise consider it my duty in all cases to give personal attendance whenever required; without the latter obligation, the institution would indeed be but comparatively of trivial benefit to the poor.
A regular register is kept.	A registry is kept.	An entry is regularly made of all the persons recommended by the subscribers for aid. The name and residence of each patient, and by whom recommended, the disease and the result of its treatment, are registered.
1,300; fevers, dyspepsia, diarrhoea, cholera (common), inflammatory colds, psoca, pertussis, pthisis, scorbutus, rheumatism, vermes, ulcers, dropsy, anemorrhoea, hepatitis, constipation.	There have been upwards of 240 patients attended to since its commencement (ten months), and their diseases are generally nervous and inflammatory fevers, dyspeptic complaints and chronic affections.	A report of the number of cases treated, &c. at this institution during each year is laid before the grand jury. <table><tr><td></td><td>Cured or relieved.</td><td>Died.</td><td>Total.</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>522</td><td>15</td><td>571</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>875</td><td>27</td><td>922</td></tr></table>		Cured or relieved.	Died.	Total.	1831	522	15	571	1832	875	27	922
	Cured or relieved.	Died.	Total.
1831	522	15	571
1832	875	27	922
This may sometimes happen through misrepresentation of the applicants.	None.	It may occasionally occur that persons participate in the benefits of the charity, who are in circumstances not to require gratuitous aid; but I am convinced the instances are rare, as I study to prevent such occurrences, which would prove highly detrimental to the interests of the institution.
By an order from the treasurer on a druggist in Belfast.	Out of the funds of the dispensary, and wherever the medicines can be obtained upon the best terms.	The medicines in the first instance are supplied by a druggist in Belfast, on an order from the treasurer; these again are compounded and distributed by myself to the patients.
<table><tr><td></td><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>£.77 8 6</td><td>£.71 11 8</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>70 5 0</td><td>66 1 2</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>55 15 2</td><td>69 16 10</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><td></td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td><td>1833.</td></tr><tr><td>Surgeon</td><td>£.45 0 0</td><td>37 14 2</td><td>40 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine</td><td>17 6 10</td><td>14 0 0</td><td>21 15 1</td></tr><tr><td>Rent, fuel, &c.</td><td>9 4 10</td><td>14 7 0</td><td>8 1 9</td></tr></table>		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831	£.77 8 6	£.71 11 8	1832	70 5 0	66 1 2	1833	55 15 2	69 16 10		1831.	1832.	1833.	Surgeon	£.45 0 0	37 14 2	40 0 0	Medicine	17 6 10	14 0 0	21 15 1	Rent, fuel, &c.	9 4 10	14 7 0	8 1 9	Accounts not yet made up by treasurer.	<table><tr><td></td><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>£.162 1 3</td><td>£.78 1 0</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>72 18 0</td><td>96 7 5½</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>64 5 0</td><td>88 0 9½</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><td></td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td><td>1833.</td></tr><tr><td>Salary</td><td>£.40 0 0</td><td>40 0 0</td><td>40 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine</td><td>31 4 10</td><td>49 11 3½</td><td>41 6 5½</td></tr><tr><td>Rent, &c.</td><td>6 16 2</td><td>6 16 2</td><td>6 14 4</td></tr></table>		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831	£.162 1 3	£.78 1 0	1832	72 18 0	96 7 5½	1833	64 5 0	88 0 9½		1831.	1832.	1833.	Salary	£.40 0 0	40 0 0	40 0 0	Medicine	31 4 10	49 11 3½	41 6 5½	Rent, &c.	6 16 2	6 16 2	6 14 4
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831	£.77 8 6	£.71 11 8
1832	70 5 0	66 1 2
1833	55 15 2	69 16 10
	1831.	1832.	1833.
Surgeon	£.45 0 0	37 14 2	40 0 0
Medicine	17 6 10	14 0 0	21 15 1
Rent, fuel, &c.	9 4 10	14 7 0	8 1 9
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831	£.162 1 3	£.78 1 0
1832	72 18 0	96 7 5½
1833	64 5 0	88 0 9½
	1831.	1832.	1833.
Salary	£.40 0 0	40 0 0	40 0 0
Medicine	31 4 10	49 11 3½	41 6 5½
Rent, &c.	6 16 2	6 16 2	6 14 4
By voluntary subscriptions from a few individuals, and by presentments from grand jury of county Antrim alone.	By private subscriptions and grand jury presentments of the county Antrim.	By private annual subscriptions and presentments from the county of Antrim alone, equal to the sum subscribed.
We are at a loss to suggest any alteration in the state of an establishment so useful as a dispensary, which would render it more efficient for the relief of the poor, except an increase to the funds.	Cannot suggest any.	Owing to the limited amount of the funds, I know of no alteration which could be suggested in their distribution, that would render this establishment more efficient for the relief of the poor.

ULSTER—ANTRIM.

Portrush Dispensary.	Randalstown Dispensary.	Whitehouse Dispensary.
John Hamilton, Esq., Medical Attendant.	Horace Neeson, Esq. Surgeon.
Portrush Dispensary, established January 4, 1833, for the relief of the poor within the parish of Ballywellan.	Randalstown Dispensary; there is but one in this district, established in 1811 for the purpose of giving medicine, medical aid and relief, and visiting patients at their own houses, who are unable to provide the like for themselves.	The Whitehouse Dispensary, for furnishing medicine, and affording medical or surgical aid to the poor of the neighbourhood; established 1st of August 1832. (58 Geo. 3. c. 47; 3 Geo. 4. c. 21.
One; the parish of Ballywellan.	Three, all in this county.	Two; the parishes of Carnmoney, and a small part of Belfast adjoining, both in Antrim county.
Three; Coleraine, Bushmills and Postwen; all dispensaries.	Three; viz. Ahoghill, six miles; Kells, five miles; Antrim, four miles; but no hospital within twenty miles of this.	Belfast Fever Hospital, Belfast General Dispensary (in Chapel-lane), Carrickfergus Dispensary, and Holywood Dispensary (in the county of Down.)
No.	There is no infirmary in this district.	No.
One; the salary only 40 l. per annum: two days in each week.	Only one dispensary; salary, formerly 50 l. , latterly reduced to 30 l. for want of funds. Visiting patients in the country not to exceed 5 l. per quarter: attendance at the dispensary three days in each week.	No.
I do.	Certainly I do.	Certainly.
There are.	Yes.	Yes.
There have been 145 persons relieved in one year, whose cases are registered in a book kept for that purpose.	<table><tr><td>Relieved.</td><td>Number of Prescriptions.</td><td>Visited at their own Houses.</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - 2,891</td><td>5,000</td><td>359</td></tr></table> This may be considered as an average for the last three years.	Relieved.	Number of Prescriptions.	Visited at their own Houses.	1831 - 2,891	5,000	359	From 1st August 1832 to 1st July 1833, there are 457 applications registered; of these there were 70 cases of fever, of whom 10 died. Chronic ailments, accidents and diseases of childhood, constitute the majority of the other cases treated by me. We have had no fever since May 1833. The influenza commenced then.
Relieved.	Number of Prescriptions.	Visited at their own Houses.
1831 - 2,891	5,000	359
No.	In some very few instances.	Perhaps occasionally, but certainly not to any considerable extent.
By myself.	By the treasurer, at the expense of the institution.	I myself compound and dispense them. The treasurer gives an order, and settles the druggist's account.
<table><tr><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - £. 89 13 9</td><td>£. 80 8 3½</td></tr></table> The above may be considered as an average for the last three years, excepting 12l. 3s. 1d. cost of fitting up two apartments for a dispensary.	Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831 - £. 89 13 9	£. 80 8 3½	We have only one account as yet made out, and that only for 11 months. Receipt, 140 l. Expenditure, 66 l. , leaving a balance of 74 l. in treasurer's hands.
Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831 - £. 89 13 9	£. 80 8 3½
By a presentment from the county of Antrim, and by subscription.	By subscriptions from the landlord and neighbouring gentlemen, and the like sum from the county at large (from this county only.)	By voluntary subscriptions, and presentments from the grand jury of the county Antrim.
No.	I cannot, from our very limited means.	I have not any suggestions to make on this subject.

ULSTER—ARMAGH.

Crossmaglen Dispensary.	Forkhill Dispensary.	Keady Dispensary.
G. Harvey, Esq. Surgeon.	Samuel Walker, Esq. M.D.	R. H. Montgomery, Esq. M.D.
Crossmaglen Dispensary.	Forkhill, established in 1818. It is for charitable purposes	Keady Dispensary.
One, the parish of Creggan, which is large and densely populated, situated in the counties of Armagh and Louth; but patients may be sent from other parishes for relief to this dispensary.	There is but one parish, and in the county of Armagh.	Two, Keady and Derrynoose, in same county.
The Louth Infirmary, the dispensaries of Forkhill, Newtownhamilton and Carrickmacross.	Newtownhamilton, Crossmaglen, Newry, Dundalk, Mullaglass, Ballymaseanlan and Meigh.	Armagh Infirmary, Tynan, Markethill, Newtownhamilton and Castleshane Dispensaries, and Middleton Fever Hospital.
There is no other establishment whatever in this district for the relief of the poor.	There is none.	Annual salary, 60 l. per annum.
I attend but one dispensary, and live in the house in which it is held.	There is but one dispensary in this district. I reside at it, and receive a salary of 50 l. ; there are three days of attendance for chronic cases, &c.: but acute cases and accidents are admissible at all times.	No, twice a week at Keady.
I do, on the ticket of a subscriber, or when accidents or other cases of emergency occur.	My personal attendance is given when required; but I do not in all cases consider it necessary.	Yes.
There is a registry of the names of the patients, the disease, townland, parish, age, by whom recommended, and the result of the treatment, with any other observations that may be necessary.	There is.	Yes.
This dispensary is not yet three years established; the average number relieved each year between seven and eight hundred, and diseases of every type and character.	6,664. The diseases, not including fevers, are generally of a chronic nature.	Total for three years, 1,227, and also 1,068 children vaccinated. Scrofula, fever, colds, pleurisy, &c.
Sometimes it does occur, but if known they are prevented from participating in the benefits of the charity.	It does.	Rarely, if ever.
By the treasurer of the dispensary, having received an order from the surgeon for the medicines required.	The medicines are supplied by the treasurer, upon the invoice being furnished by me.	Supplied from Dublin out of the funds of the institution.
<table><tr><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>1831 - £.196 3 0</td><td>£.200 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - 149 5 0</td><td>149 5 0</td></tr><tr><td>1833 - 123 0 0</td><td>*</td></tr></table> * The accounts for this year are not yet closed; it is believed that the dispensary will owe the treasurer this year.	Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831 - £.196 3 0	£.200 0 0	1832 - 149 5 0	149 5 0	1833 - 123 0 0	*	<table><tr><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>1831 - £.96 3 0</td><td>£.150 2 7½</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - 134 2 0</td><td>162 17 1</td></tr><tr><td>1833 - 130 0 0</td><td>*32 0 0</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.—Salary, Rent, Medicine. * Medicines only included.	Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831 - £.96 3 0	£.150 2 7½	1832 - 134 2 0	162 17 1	1833 - 130 0 0	*32 0 0	<table><tr><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>1831 - Subscription - £.49 11 6</td><td>£.74 2 0</td></tr><tr><td>County grant - 24 10 6</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>£.74 2 0</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>1832 - Subscription £.46 18 6</td><td>£.72 3 8</td></tr><tr><td>County grant - 23 15 0</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>£.70 13 6</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>1833 - Subscription £.61 14 0</td><td>£.90 10 1</td></tr><tr><td>County grant - 25 5 0</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>£.86 19 0</td><td></td></tr></table>	Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831 - Subscription - £.49 11 6	£.74 2 0	County grant - 24 10 6		£.74 2 0		1832 - Subscription £.46 18 6	£.72 3 8	County grant - 23 15 0		£.70 13 6		1833 - Subscription £.61 14 0	£.90 10 1	County grant - 25 5 0		£.86 19 0
Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831 - £.196 3 0	£.200 0 0
1832 - 149 5 0	149 5 0
1833 - 123 0 0	*
Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831 - £.96 3 0	£.150 2 7½
1832 - 134 2 0	162 17 1
1833 - 130 0 0	*32 0 0
Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831 - Subscription - £.49 11 6	£.74 2 0
County grant - 24 10 6
£.74 2 0
1832 - Subscription £.46 18 6	£.72 3 8
County grant - 23 15 0
£.70 13 6
1833 - Subscription £.61 14 0	£.90 10 1
County grant - 25 5 0
£.86 19 0
Both by private subscriptions and presentment, which are obtained, but from one county.	Partly by presentment from the county; but its principal support is derived from subscriptions.	By subscriptions and presentment from county Armagh.
In the present state of the funds I can suggest no alterations; but if the funds were larger the addition of a small hospital for the reception of a few of the most wretched, would tend much to relieve affliction.	I cannot suggest any alteration in the present funds of the institution; its sufficiency for the relief of the poor would no doubt be greatly increased, if the grand jury could be induced, or were obliged, to grant an aid equal to the sum subscribed in the district.	No.

ULSTER—ARMAGH.

Lurgan Dispensary.	Markethill Dispensary.	Meigh and Jonesborough Dispensary.
Robert S. Hannay, Esq., M. D.	Committee and Medical Attendant.	W. Huston, Esq., Surgeon.
Lurgan Dispensary, established in 1804, but for several years before 1832 the institution was dying gradually away, there being no subscribers.	The Markethill Dispensary, established 1816, for the relief of the sick poor of the parish of Mullabrack.	Meigh and Jonesborough Dispensary; the object is to provide medicine and advice for such as are unable to pay for it; established on the 17th March 1832.
In the parish of Shankhill, which is partly in Armagh and partly in Down, and part of the parishes of Seagoe and Maralin, both of which parts are in county Armagh.	This dispensary was first established for the parish of Mullabrack only, but at present it includes the parish of Loughgilly, and part of the parish of Armagh, all in the county of Armagh.	There are two parishes in my district; they are both in the same county.
Dispensaries of Tanderagee, county Armagh, and of Banbridge, county Down, each seven miles from Lurgan; Dromore, county Down, six miles; Hillsborough, county Down, nine miles.	There are the Armagh Infirmary, Armagh Fever Hospital, and the dispensaries of Keady, Newtownhamilton, Mullaglass, Pointzpass, and Tanderagee.	Newry Hospital and Dispensary, Mullaglass, Forkhill, Crossmaglen, Dundalk, Ballymascanlon, and Carlingford.
No hospital or infirmary; the medical attendant on the dispensary of Lurgan has a salary of 60 l. per annum.	There is no other dispensary or hospital within my district.	There is no dispensary attached to any hospital or infirmary in my district.
No. Attendance three days in the week; patients visited at all times.	I attend only the Markethill Dispensary, in which I reside, and dispense medicine on every Tuesday and Saturday, to those capable of attending, and visit, whenever called on, those who are unable from disease to attend at the dispensary-house; for which duties I receive the salary of 50 l. per annum.	I only attend one dispensary, viz. Meigh and Jonesborough; the distance from my residence is about five miles; the amount of salary 30 l. per annum. I attend two days in each week to dispense medicines, and visit patients on any other day, if called on.
Yes.	Most certainly, in every instance.	I do consider it my duty, and have been in the habit of attending when called on.
Yes.	A correct register is kept, stating the name, age and residence of the patient, by whom recommended, the disease and medical treatment, and also when admitted and when discharged, together with the result of the case.	There is a register kept of all the cases, where application has been made for aid, but it is quite impossible to state the result, as very few patients ever return to the dispensary after they have been cured or relieved.
No account was kept previous to November 1832, when Dr. Hannay was appointed to this dispensary; number of patients 1,421; deaths about 25. Pulmonary diseases, dyspepsia, fever, inflammatory diseases, &c. &c.	I have been in charge of this dispensary only two years, during which, 2,753 patients have been admitted on the books, of which 1,773 have been cured, 737 relieved, 58 have died, and of 185 cases the result is unknown; the principal diseases being fevers, inflammations, skin diseases and indigestion.	I can only give the number of patients admitted on the books, since the dispensary was established, one year and a half, 1,433.
This did occur, but is now more carefully looked to.	This dispensary, in common with every other for public charity, is often imposed upon.	Subscribers very often recommend persons able to pay for both medicine and advice.
At present the medicines are supplied by Mr. Walkington, Rosemary-street, Belfast, and compounded by Dr. Hannay.	By order of the treasurer, from Messrs. Boileau & George, Druggists, Bride-street, Dublin.	Medicines are supplied by P. A. & C. Leslie, Bride-street, Dublin, and paid for out of the funds of the institution.
Receipt. 1832 - - - £. 126 0 0 Expenditure. Medical Attendant's Salary - £. 60 0 0 Medicine - - - - 66 2 2 Stationary - - - - 6 0 0	Receipt. Expenditure. 1832* - £. 85 8 6 £. 132 17 11½ 1833 - 130 2 0 132 17 11½ GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. Surgeon's Salary, Rent, and Medicine. * I would beg to state, for the information of the commission, that within the district of the Markethill Dispensary there are 28 landed proprietors, some of them estated gentlemen, who do not subscribe a shilling to this charity, although again and again applied to, and that they do not contribute a penny to any public charity in the neighbourhood, notwithstanding that their tenantry require more gratuitous assistance than any other in the district.	The income for the year ending 17th March 1833, amounted to 70l. 3s.; the income for the current year, when the amount of the county presentment shall have been received, will, it is presumed, amount to 40l. The expenditure of the two years will be pretty nearly covered by these incomes taken together.
By subscriptions, and presentment from the county of Armagh only.	By private subscriptions, and a varying county grant, obtained annually by presentment from the county of Armagh only.	Supported by subscriptions, and presentments which are obtained from one county only, viz. Armagh.
There is a Mendicity Society which provides for a great many of the poor; it is in contemplation to build a permanent fever hospital, for which nearly 300 l. has been subscribed.	The very limited funds, I conceive, are expended to the very best possible advantage.	I cannot suggest any alteration likely to be attended with benefit.

ULSTER—ARMAGH.

Mullaglass and Camlough Dispensaries.	Newtownhamiltown Dispensary.	Pointzpass Dispensary.
C. W. Riggs, Medical Attendant.	—	—
The Mullaglass Dispensary, and a branch in connexion with it, called the Camlough Dispensary. Established in 1819.	Newtownhamilton Dispensary; none but itself under my care; was established in May 1815.	The Pointzpass Dispensary; there is none other under my care.
Four; three in county Armagh, one in county of Down.	Six or seven parishes, all in said county but one.	There are five large parishes included in my district; three of those are in the county of Armagh and two in the county of Down.
Newry, Pointzpass, Meigh, Forkhill, Newtownhamilton, Markethill, Tanderagee, Warrenpoint, and Jonesborough.	The dispensaries are, Keady, Newtownhamilton, Crossmaglen, Forkhill, Meigh, Newry, Camlough, Markethill.	Tanderagee, Loughgall, Richhill, Markethill, Mullaglass, Newry, Banbridge, Newtownhamilton and Lurgan Dispensaries, and the Armagh Infirmary.
None.	The infirmary of the county is in Armagh; there is a dispensary established in each of the above villages or towns; the emoluments are fluctuating, from 70 l. , I believe, to 30 l. or 40 l.	Not one.
Two, each three miles distant; salary under 50 l. per annum; attendance three days in the week, for dispensing medicines; personal attendance unrestricted.	I do not attend any but one, Newtownhamilton Dispensary; the amount of salary is from 40 l. to 50 l. annually; I attend three days in the week, and frequently oftener.	I am medical attendant to the Pointzpass Dispensary only, which is in the village of Pointzpass, where I reside. I am obliged to attend two days in each week, from ten till two o'clock each day; my salary is 50 l. per annum, not more than sufficient for the
Yes.	keep of two horses, which the duty of my situation requires me to be provided with.	Certainly; I have attended every case where assistance has been required.
Yes.	It is my indispensable duty, and am liable to be called out at all hours by any subscriber, whenever medical or surgical aid is required.	An exact register is kept of cases, specifying the names of the subscriber, of the patient, and of the disease; the prescription is written in full, and the result, when this can be ascertained.
Yes.	There is a register kept, and each subscriber has a power to recommend as many of the poor as he thinks proper; I must say the result has been favourable.	There have been about 4,000 persons relieved since the re-establishment of the dispensary, a space of two years and a half; previous to this time the dispensary had ceased for two years from want of support; the most prevalent diseases have been fevers, indigestion and skin diseases, although we have had numerous instances of almost all diseases.
<table><tr><th>Fevers.</th><th>Acute Diseases.</th><th>Chronic Diseases.</th><th>Accidents.</th><th>Mid-wifery.</th><th>Died.</th><th>Total.</th></tr><tr><td>321</td><td>1,227</td><td>726</td><td>156</td><td>24</td><td>87</td><td>2,454</td></tr></table>	Fevers.	Acute Diseases.	Chronic Diseases.	Accidents.	Mid-wifery.	Died.	Total.	321	1,227	726	156	24	87	2,454	<table><tr><th>1831.</th><th>1832.</th><th>1833.</th></tr><tr><td>1,508</td><td>1,305</td><td>1,150</td></tr></table> The diseases were fevers, inflammations, dysenteries, rheumatisms, measles, pulmonic affections, and various others, with many cases surgical.	1831.	1832.	1833.	1,508	1,305	1,150	There have been about 4,000 persons relieved since the re-establishment of the dispensary, a space of two years and a half; previous to this time the dispensary had ceased for two years from want of support; the most prevalent diseases have been fevers, indigestion and skin diseases, although we have had numerous instances of almost all diseases.
Fevers.	Acute Diseases.	Chronic Diseases.	Accidents.	Mid-wifery.	Died.	Total.
321	1,227	726	156	24	87	2,454
1831.	1832.	1833.
1,508	1,305	1,150
Very often.	It has frequently happened, but it is not so common an occurrence at present.	With a very few exceptions, every person who has applied stood in need of gratuitous assistance.
Supplied from the funds of the institution, and compounded by the medical officer.	There is a treasurer appointed, who provides the medicines.	I prepare a list of the medicines required, present it at the quarterly meeting to the committee, and am then permitted to order them from the druggists, Messrs. Mitchel & Co. of Glasgow.
<table><tr><th>1831.</th><th>1832.</th><th>1833.</th></tr><tr><td>0 0 08</td><td>0 0 08</td><td>0 0 08</td></tr><tr><td>—</td><td>0 11 08</td><td>11 81 08</td></tr><tr><td>—</td><td>0 01 10</td><td>0 01 10</td></tr><tr><td>—</td><td>0 0 8</td><td>0 0 8</td></tr></table>	1831.	1832.	1833.	0 0 08	0 0 08	0 0 08	—	0 11 08	11 81 08	—	0 01 10	0 01 10	—	0 0 8	0 0 8	The amounts received by subscription and county grants for the last three years, have been about 85 l. or 90 l. annually; and the expenditure, for medicines, surgeon's salary, house-rent, and other necessities, nearly the same.	The amount of receipt has been about 80 l. annually, every penny of which has been, with the utmost economy, expended. The general heads of each are, Salary of the Medical Attendant, Medicines, Carriage of Medicines, Stationery, Fire, &c.
1831.	1832.	1833.
0 0 08	0 0 08	0 0 08
—	0 11 08	11 81 08
—	0 01 10	0 01 10
—	0 0 8	0 0 8
By subscriptions, and presentment from county Armagh only.	By subscriptions from the gentlemen of the village and neighbourhood, and one presentment annually from the county Armagh alone.	It is supported partly by voluntary contributions and by presentment. It does not receive support from any county but one.
The funds of the institution are only sufficient to purchase medicine and pay the surgeon; larger funds could be usefully applied in the purchase of clothing for those that are destitute.	I cannot suggest any alteration which would render it more efficient.	The small funds are laid out, in my opinion, in the best possible manner.

ULSTER—ARMAGH—CAVAN.

Tynan Dispensary.	Arvagh Dispensary.	Bailieborough Dispensary.
—	Robert Wiley, Esq. Surgeon.	Robert James, Esq. M.D.
The Tynan Dispensary, established in the year 1817.	Arvagh Dispensary, established for the use of the poor in the year 1818, by the Earl Gosford.	Bailieborough Dispensary, established March 6th, 1822.
One entire large parish and parts of two others, all in the same county.	The parish of Killeshandra, in county Cavan; parish of Carrigallen, in the county Leitrim; parish of Killaw, in the county Longford; parish of Scrabbey, in the county of Cavan.	Four parishes, and part of a fifth, all in the county of Cavan, except part of one which is in Meath.
There are within a distance of ten miles the county infirmaries of Armagh and Monaghan, the dispensaries of Castleshane, Glasslough, Caledon, Aghmacloy, Benburb and Keady.	Cavan Infirmary, ten miles; Killeshandra, seven miles; Ballinagh, seven miles; Cloone, nine miles.	Two dispensaries; viz. Kingscourt and Virginia, each nearly eight miles distant from Bailieborough.
There is at present no dispensary attached to any hospital or infirmary within the dispensary district.	None.	None.
I attend but one dispensary, and that is in the village in which I reside. It is open two days in each week. The salary paid me has been 80 £. per ann.; but is now to be considerably reduced, owing to the depressed state of our funds.	None, but Arvagh Dispensary, two days in the week.	No.
I consider it my duty to attend personally to all persons recommended, whether requiring medical or surgical aid.	I have always felt it my bounden duty, when called on, in all cases to give my personal attendance for the relief of the poor under my care.	Yes, and during the last year I have paid 875 visits.
A regular registry is kept; but it is quite impossible accurately to ascertain the result of all the cases.	The names of those persons who applied for medical aid have been always duly entered in the register book; and the treatment given to the greater part of the patients had a good result.	A register is kept of all applications, of the medicine and attendance afforded to each patient, and the result stated when ascertained.
7,717. The principal diseases are indigestion, rheumatism, fever and common colds.	1,465. During which time there have occurred various diseases, fever in all its species, &c. quinsy, inflammatory diseases, stomach complaints, diarrhoea and dysentery, catarrh, diseases of the skin, diseases of females, midwifery cases, and other diseases of minor importance.	<table><tr><th></th><th>Applications.</th><th>Died.</th></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>1,182</td><td>9</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>2,182</td><td>8</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>1,950</td><td>19</td></tr></table> The diseases were, fevers, in pneumonia, rheumatism, quinsy, inflammatory diseases, stomach complaints, diarrhoea and dysentery, catarrh, diseases of the skin, diseases of females, midwifery cases, and other diseases of minor importance.		Applications.	Died.	1831	1,182	9	1832	2,182	8	1833	1,950	19
	Applications.	Died.
1831	1,182	9
1832	2,182	8
1833	1,950	19
It rarely occurs that persons are recommended to the dispensary who are able to pay for medical assistance.	I have not experienced an instance of any one being relieved at Arvagh Dispensary who could relieve themselves otherwise.	Seldom or never.
The medicines are supplied by orders from the treasurer to the institution on the firm of Messrs. Boileau & George, in Dublin.	By the committee and treasurer.	The treasurer orders them, and they are supplied from Messrs. Pollock & Co., Dublin; a list of the medicines required being previously furnished by the medical attendant.
<table><tr><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>1831 - £. 128 1 11½</td><td>£. 120 9 4½</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - 130 1 4</td><td>129 16 6</td></tr><tr><td>1833 - 118 1 10</td><td>129 2 10</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE — Medicine, Salary, Rent, &c.	Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831 - £. 128 1 11½	£. 120 9 4½	1832 - 130 1 4	129 16 6	1833 - 118 1 10	129 2 10	<table><tr><th>Receipt:</th><th></th></tr><tr><td>1831 - £. 40 0 0</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>1832 - 42 0 0</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>1833 - 46 0 0</td><td></td></tr></table> Salary, 25 £.; the remainder for Medicine.	Receipt:		1831 - £. 40 0 0		1832 - 42 0 0		1833 - 46 0 0		<table><tr><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>1831 - £. 128 9 7½</td><td>£. 117 5 6</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - 114 14 1½</td><td>110 16 1½</td></tr><tr><td>1833 - 116 13 11½</td><td>—</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><th></th><th>1831.</th><th>1832.</th><th>1833.</th></tr><tr><td>Salary</td><td>£. 55 3 9</td><td>60 0 0</td><td>50 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine</td><td>40 18 11</td><td>30 11 6</td><td>—</td></tr><tr><td>Rent</td><td>10 10 0</td><td>10 10 0</td><td>—</td></tr><tr><td>Stationery, about</td><td>3 0 0</td><td>3 0 0</td><td>—</td></tr></table>	Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831 - £. 128 9 7½	£. 117 5 6	1832 - 114 14 1½	110 16 1½	1833 - 116 13 11½	—		1831.	1832.	1833.	Salary	£. 55 3 9	60 0 0	50 0 0	Medicine	40 18 11	30 11 6	—	Rent	10 10 0	10 10 0	—	Stationery, about	3 0 0	3 0 0	—
Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831 - £. 128 1 11½	£. 120 9 4½
1832 - 130 1 4	129 16 6
1833 - 118 1 10	129 2 10
Receipt:
1831 - £. 40 0 0
1832 - 42 0 0
1833 - 46 0 0
Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831 - £. 128 9 7½	£. 117 5 6
1832 - 114 14 1½	110 16 1½
1833 - 116 13 11½	—
	1831.	1832.	1833.
Salary	£. 55 3 9	60 0 0	50 0 0
Medicine	40 18 11	30 11 6	—
Rent	10 10 0	10 10 0	—
Stationery, about	3 0 0	3 0 0	—
It is supported by presentments from the grand jury of the county of Armagh alone, and by private subscriptions.	By private subscription from the different counties and public presentments from the county of Cavan.	By private subscriptions, and presentments of Cavan grand jury pursuant to the 58 Geo. 3. c. 47. s. 5.
I am not aware of any alteration in the management of the funds of the institution that would be more serviceable to the poor. When the grand jury presented an equal sum to that subscribed, it enabled the medical attendant more effectually to relieve the persons applying for aid, by supplying them with flannel, wine, &c. which I think, in many instances fully as necessary as medicine.	In my opinion, there is no way better calculated for the use of the poor, on account of our fund being so low and so many applicants.	It is suggested that if the funds were not as they are by the statute restricted to the procuring mere medical or surgical aid, the poor would be much benefited; the withdrawing of the stamp required for the presentment is also suggested.

ULSTER—CAVAN.

Ballinagh Dispensary.	Ballyconnell Dispensary.	Ballyjamesduff Dispensary.
J. Byrn, Esq., Surgeon.	Treasurer and Medical Attendant.	James Kennedy, Esq., Surgeon.
The Ballinagh Dispensary, only established November 1828.	The Ballyconnell Dispensary, established on Monday, June 15, 1818, for distributing medicine and giving advice gratis.	The Ballyjamesduff Dispensary is the only one under my care; established in the year 1821.
Kilmore and Ballintemple, both in county of Cavan.	The parish of Tomregan, with parts of the parishes of Drumlane, Kildallen and Templepool, in the county of Cavan, and of Kinawley, county of Fermanagh.	Nine parishes, all in the county Cavan.
The Cavan Infirmary and dispensary, five miles distant; and the Crossdoney Dispensary, two miles distant.	The dispensary of Belturbet, six miles and a half; Killesahndra, seven miles; and Swanlinbar, seven miles; all these are Irish miles, and therefore ten English miles or nearly so.	Stradone, eight miles; Bailieborough, nine miles; Virginia, five miles; Oldcastle, county Meath, six miles; Mountnugent, three miles; Ballinaghugh, four miles; Ballinagh, seven miles; Crossdoney, nine miles.
One at Crossdoney, principally supported by the lord of the manor.	None.	There is neither hospital nor infirmary within my district.
The Ballinagh Dispensary only; its salary fluctuates. The maximum is 46 l. per annum. I attend one day in the week, and every day if necessary.	None but the Ballyconnell Dispensary, distant from my residence about a mile and a half; I am obliged to attend two days in the week at the dispensary, and to visit every patient who cannot attend at the dispensary, for a distance of four miles round; my salary is 50 l. per annum.	Only one; residence in Ballyduff; amount of salary, 40 l. per annum; attendance two days each week from 11 to 3 o'clock, and at all other times when required.
Certainly.	Yes, certainly.	In all cases; I consider it my duty to attend in such cases.
Yes. Average number of deaths, eight per annum, except at the outset of cholera.	Yes, a regular entry is made of every case, by whom recommended, nature of disease, course of treatment, &c.	A registry is kept regularly in the dispensary; some of the patients visited at their houses; others get medicine at the dispensary, and with a good result in general.
1,000 annual average, including second, third and fourth applications from the same persons, but on different occasions; every form of disease incidental to this country.	1831, 1,591; 1832, 1,606; 1833, 1,360; this year's account is not yet settled. Each person recommended is entitled to one month's attendance when necessary. Indigestion, fevers, catarrhal affections, eruptions, pleurisy, and all other inflammatory diseases of the chest and abdominal viscera bear a great proportion of the diseases of this neighbourhood; also rheumatism, dropsies of various sorts, diarrhoea, asthma, irregularities in menstruation, pulmonary consumption, scrofula and jaundice are also often to be met with.	4,357; as to an accurate statement of the diseases, whether cured or not, it would be impossible for any man to find out.
Rarely, if ever.	Sometimes, but we endeavour to prevent this as much as possible.	In several instances when I was first appointed, but since I became acquainted with the country, but very few.
Out of the dispensary's funds, by a Dublin druggist.	Our druggists in Dublin are Messrs. Boileau & George, 88, Birde-street; and orders are issued by the treasurer.	By Messrs. Boileau & George, 88, Bride-street, Dublin.
Receipt. 1831 - - - £.76 18 0 1832 - - - 70 6 0 1833 - - - 70 0 0 GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. 1831. 1832. 1833. Salary - £.45 0 0 45 0 0 46 4 0 Medicine } 31 18 0 24 14 0 23 16 0 and Rent }	Receipt. Expenditure. 1830 - £. 96 15 1½ £.101 12 10½ 1831 - 97 12 8½ 98 11 4 1832 - 104 0 9 103 15 7 GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. 1830. 1831. 1832. Salary - £.50 0 0 50 0 0 50 0 0 Medicines 41 7 7 35 1 0 39 18 5 Rent - 6 0 0 6 0 0 6 0 0 Contingencies 4 5 3 7 10 4 8 3 3	Receipt. Expenditure. 1831 - £.126 6 0 £.133 19 0½ 1832 - 81 8 0 75 7 6 1833 - 60 10 0 64 14 0½ GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. 1831. 1832. 1833. Salary - £.51 2 3 40 0 0 40 0 0 Medicine - 70 18 10 32 2 0 21 1 9½ Sundries - 11 17 11½ 3 5 6 2 12 3
By subscriptions, and a corresponding presentment from the county of Cavan only.	Partly by annual subscriptions, and partly by presentments on the county of Cavan.	It is supported by subscriptions and by presentments from county Cavan only.
None.	I do not think we could alter this establishment much, so that it would work better than it does.	Our funds are so small, from so many contiguous dispensaries, that I cannot suggest any better means; but were small district hospitals established, more good could be done by tenfold.

ULSTER—CAVAN.

Ballymachugh Dispensary.	Belturbet Dispensary.	Cavan and Stradone Dispensaries.
Mark W. Daly, Esq., M.D.	Committee and Medical Attendant.	Bernard Coyne, Esq., M.D.
Ballymachugh Dispensary, established in 1816.	Belturbet Dispensary; established 1817.	I attend the Stradone Dispensary, established 1828, five miles from Cavan, and the town of Cavan Dispensary; the former intended to relieve the neighbourhood for nearly six miles round, the latter to relieve Cavan town and its neighbourhood, extending four miles.
Parts of four different parishes, all in the same county.	The parishes of Anna and Drumlane, and part of Kinawley and Tomregan are included in the district. Persons come 10 miles to our dispensary.	Certainly five between the two; and very many instances of patients receiving benefit from the dispensaries, 15 miles distant as to their residence, as the subscribers are not limited therein.
The Cavan Infirmary, ten miles distant; Mount Nugent Dispensary, two miles distant; Ballyjamesduff Dispensary, four miles distant; Granard Dispensary, county Longford, eight miles distant.	Cavan Infirmary is distant seven miles; Ballyconnell Dispensary, six; Killeshandra Dispensary, fourteen; Newtownbuller, eight; Clones, nine.	Killeshandra, Croplaney, Ballinagh, the two latter within a mile and half of each other; Mount-nugent, Belturbet, Ballyjamesduff, county Cavan Infirmary and Fever Hospital.
None.	No hospital or infirmary is attached to the dispensary of this district, or to any dispensary with which I am acquainted.	None.
Ballymachugh Dispensary, county Cavan, salary 36 l. 18 s. 6½ d. per annum; Granard Dispensary, county Longford, salary 46 l. 3 s. 1 d. per annum; attendance two days in the week for each dispensary.	I only attend one dispensary, salary 50 l. per annum, which is very inadequate, being obliged to give my personal attendance on two days each week, from 11 to 3 o'clock, and to visit persons unable to attend at the dispensary, when recommended; four miles distant from the dispensary. In some counties the salary allowed by the grand jury is much greater, even to a person not qualified in every branch of the profession. A fixed salary would be desirable.	I attend the Stradone Dispensary, five miles distant from my residence, and the dispensary in this town; the salary of the Stradone Dispensary, 40 l. ; attendance three days in eleven; Cavan Dispensary, 30 l. per annum; liable to be called upon on any day in the week a subscriber may wish, when illness may visit the poor of the neighbourhood; and for chronic cases open every Tuesday regularly.
Yes.	Yes.	Generally speaking; if not, by some medical friend, equally capable.
Yes.	There is.	I never consider a dispensary useful or efficient, where a regular case-book is not kept of the history, treatment and probable result of each case; consequently each case duly attended to, and the results vary, but are very generally most satisfactory.
1830 - - - - - 1,254 1831 - - - - - 979 1832 - - - - - 1,132	1831 - - 1,790 - - attended at home - 132 1832 - - 1,512 " 150 1833 - - 2,073 " 142 Fevers of different types, dyspepsia, inflammatory diseases and accidents, &c.	Stradone Dispensary has relieved 7,000 applicants in the last three years; Cavan Dispensary will not be two years established until January 1834, and it has relieved up to this date (December 1833), 3,380 patients. Diseases generally are, liver disease and its various consequences, diseases of the lungs, dysentery, fevers, typhoid, intermittent, &c.
Very seldom in this dispensary.	Such abuse sometimes arises from want of caution or ignorance of the actual condition and of the means of the applicant.	Never, to my knowledge.
From the funds of the dispensary; the medicines are purchased from a druggist.	The treasurer, upon an order of the committee, directs Messrs. P. & A. C. Leslie, Bride-street, to forward the medicine ordered. Boileau & George, 88, inadvisable in any case	From the funds in the treasurer's hands, who pays the druggist's bills when furnished him; our druggists have been and continue to be Messrs. Bride-street, Dublin; it would be in my mind very that the physician should supply the medicine.
<table><tr><th></th><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>1831 -</td><td>£. 33 10 0</td><td>£. 29 5 7</td></tr><tr><td>1832 -</td><td>70 7 0</td><td>67 6 0</td></tr><tr><td>1833 -</td><td>70 9 0</td><td>70 4 2</td></tr></table>		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831 -	£. 33 10 0	£. 29 5 7	1832 -	70 7 0	67 6 0	1833 -	70 9 0	70 4 2	<table><tr><th></th><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>1831 -</td><td>£. 113 15 8</td><td>£. 106 19 5</td></tr><tr><td>1832 -</td><td>118 17 11</td><td>123 13 3</td></tr><tr><td>1833 -</td><td>116 14 4</td><td>116 14 11</td></tr></table>		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831 -	£. 113 15 8	£. 106 19 5	1832 -	118 17 11	123 13 3	1833 -	116 14 4	116 14 11	The amount of receipt for the two years the Cavan Dispensary has been only established, did not vary, being 82 l. each year, which was expended in paying the house-rent, supplying bandages, medicines, stationery and physicians' salary, &c.
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831 -	£. 33 10 0	£. 29 5 7
1832 -	70 7 0	67 6 0
1833 -	70 9 0	70 4 2
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831 -	£. 113 15 8	£. 106 19 5
1832 -	118 17 11	123 13 3
1833 -	116 14 4	116 14 11
<table><tr><th colspan="6">GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.</th></tr><tr><th></th><th colspan="2">1831.</th><th colspan="2">1832.</th><th>1833.</th></tr><tr><th></th><th>£.</th><th>s. d.</th><th>£.</th><th>s. d.</th><th>£. s. d.</th></tr><tr><td>Medicines, &c.</td><td>20</td><td>0 0</td><td>22</td><td>11 0</td><td>16 17 3</td></tr><tr><td>Porter, &c.</td><td>9</td><td>5 7</td><td>4</td><td>15 0</td><td>—</td></tr><tr><td>Salary</td><td>—</td><td>—</td><td>40</td><td>0 0</td><td>53 16 11</td></tr></table> The grant from the county to the dispensary for the year 1831, was withheld, owing to an informality in the application to the grand jury.	GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.							1831.		1832.		1833.		£.	s. d.	£.	s. d.	£. s. d.	Medicines, &c.	20	0 0	22	11 0	16 17 3	Porter, &c.	9	5 7	4	15 0	—	Salary	—	—	40	0 0	53 16 11	The expenditure consists in the salary paid to the medical attendant, the procuring of medicine, a small salary to housekeeper and messenger, and necessary repairs, fuel, &c.
GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.
	1831.		1832.		1833.
	£.	s. d.	£.	s. d.	£. s. d.
Medicines, &c.	20	0 0	22	11 0	16 17 3
Porter, &c.	9	5 7	4	15 0	—
Salary	—	—	40	0 0	53 16 11
By voluntary subscriptions, and grants from county Cavan.	By subscriptions from a few of the gentry and landed proprietors, and by an equal presentment from county; but many extensive proprietors of land in the immediate neighbourhood, although frequently applied to, have not contributed to its support, and very few contribute in proportion to their means and the wants of the poor living on their estates.	Both dispensaries are supported by subscriptions of private individuals, and an equal sum presented annually by the grand jury of this county only.
The funds are so small, that the charity could not be made more extensively useful.	Establishing a general hospital and fever ward to each dispensary would be highly useful, as the distance to Cavan Infirmary or Fever Hospital is too great for bad surgical or fever cases, and many cases arise where medicine or attendance cannot be given with the desired effect at their own residence.	I cannot suggest any, as the funds are extremely scanty, and vary according to the whim of subscribers; the funds of both dispensaries never exceed 165 l. per annum to meet all demands.

ULSTER—CAVAN.

Cootehill Dispensary.	Crossdoney Dispensary.	Killeshandra Dispensary.
M. Welsh, Esq., Medical Attendant.	J. Sheridan, Esq., Medical Attendant.	Alexander Finlay, Esq., Surgeon.
The Cootehill Dispensary, under my care; only one, which was established 1st of June 1814.	I attend the Crossdoney Dispensary, and no other, which was established in or about the year 1812.	Killeshandra Dispensary, instituted in 1811; there is but one under my care.
There are generally from five to six parishes that get relief, and all except one, in this county.	Four parishes are included, and they are all in this county.	Within the district, which extends five miles in every direction from the town of Killeshandra, there are parts of the parishes of Killeshandra, Kildallen, Drumlane, and Carrigallan; the last situated in county Leitrim, and all the foregoing in the county Cavan.
There is none within ten miles of this, except a small dispensary in the village of Rockecorry, county Monaghan, four miles from this.	There are dispensaries at Cavan, Belturbet, Killeshandra, Ballymachugh, Arva, Ballinagh and Stradone; all I believe within ten miles of Crossdoney.	At Cavan there is a fever hospital, infirmary and dispensary; at Crossdoney, Belturbet, Ballyconnel, Arva, and Ballinamore, a dispensary in each.
There is no other dispensary or hospital in my district.	There is not a dispensary attached to the county infirmary or fever hospital, which are the only hospitals in this county.	None.
I only attend the one dispensary; the days of attendance are Tuesdays and Saturdays, from 10 to 3 in the afternoon, and every morning when necessary; the amount of my salary is 60 l. a year.	Crossdoney is the only dispensary I am concerned in; it is upwards of four miles from my residence at Killeshandra; the amount of salary paid me is 30 l. annually, and I attend two days in each week, but am liable to be called upon at any time in case of accident or sudden illness.	But one dispensary, and no infirmary or hospital; the dispensary is within a few hundred yards of my residence; the amount of salary is 50 l. per annum, if the funds permit; attendance is given at the dispensary two days in every week.
At all times I give my personal attendance when called on.	Certainly, and I act accordingly.	It is my duty to administer personally (and not by deputy) medical and surgical aid to all poor persons who are recommended by a subscriber to the dispensary.
There is a day-book, specifying the names of every patient, and a report made out every year, giving the numbers relieved, &c., and the annual accounts of the institution.	There is a proper registry kept of the number of cases in each year, the name, age and residence of each patient, by whom recommended, and the disease incident to each; also of those visited at their own homes, and the medicines prescribed in each case.	A register is regularly kept of the name, age, disease and treatment of all applicants to the dispensary; the result has in almost every case been relief or perfect cure.
<table><tr><td>1830</td><td>-</td><td>3,660</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>-</td><td>5,811</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>-</td><td>5,741</td></tr></table> The diseases treated were of a general description, fevers, accidents, wounds, &c. &c. apply frequently on one recommendation. The diseases treated were various; fevers, coughs, measles, indigestion, eruptions, rheumatism, dropsies, &c. besides accidents	1830	-	3,660	1831	-	5,811	1832	-	5,741	The number of new patients in the last three years was 4,023, and the number of old patients in that space was 17,144, making 21,167 applications; by new patients are meant those who come with fresh tickets, each of which continues to be received for a month; and by old patients are meant those who	It appears, from the register, that in the year 1830 about 3,000 prescriptions were made up and dispensed, and a proportionate number, consequently, of patients admitted and relieved. I have only been superintendent for a little better than a year, and my report for twelve months was, that about 900 odd of patients were prescribed for at the dispensary, and out of this number, as far as I could collect, not more than eight or ten individuals died; the principal diseases were scrofula and stomach complaints.
1830	-	3,660
1831	-	5,811
1832	-	5,741
It sometimes occurs, but not often in this district.	I fear it does so occur.	Every subscriber feels it his duty to recommend only the poor, and this duty has been generally fulfilled, as almost every individual applying for aid is evidently poor.
The medicines are supplied through the treasurer, who sends an order, when required, to the druggist.	The medicines are furnished by a Dublin druggist, at the expense of the governors.	The rule is, that the treasurer, authorized by the managing committee, shall provide the medicines from some druggist in Dublin who deals by wholesale.
<table><tr><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>1830 - £. 171 10 1</td><td>£. 134 12 9½</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - 199 8 11</td><td>147 2 7</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - 216 15 4</td><td>145 13 8½</td></tr></table>	Receipt.	Expenditure.	1830 - £. 171 10 1	£. 134 12 9½	1831 - 199 8 11	147 2 7	1832 - 216 15 4	145 13 8½	The receipt is about 40 l. annually, and the expenditure generally equal in amount thereto.	<table><tr><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>1830 - £. 56 7 0</td><td>£. 56 7 0</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - 72 7 0</td><td>64 10 6</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - 97 5 0</td><td>106 8 11</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><th></th><th>1830.</th><th>1831.</th><th>1832.</th></tr><tr><td>Rent -</td><td>£. 4 0 0</td><td>4 0 0</td><td>4 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Salary -</td><td>28 17 4</td><td>37 1 1</td><td>50 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine</td><td>21 18 11</td><td>21 18 7</td><td>47 12 4½</td></tr><tr><td>Contingencies</td><td>1 10 9</td><td>1 10 10</td><td>4 16 6½</td></tr></table>	Receipt.	Expenditure.	1830 - £. 56 7 0	£. 56 7 0	1831 - 72 7 0	64 10 6	1832 - 97 5 0	106 8 11		1830.	1831.	1832.	Rent -	£. 4 0 0	4 0 0	4 0 0	Salary -	28 17 4	37 1 1	50 0 0	Medicine	21 18 11	21 18 7	47 12 4½	Contingencies	1 10 9	1 10 10	4 16 6½
Receipt.	Expenditure.
1830 - £. 171 10 1	£. 134 12 9½
1831 - 199 8 11	147 2 7
1832 - 216 15 4	145 13 8½
Receipt.	Expenditure.
1830 - £. 56 7 0	£. 56 7 0
1831 - 72 7 0	64 10 6
1832 - 97 5 0	106 8 11
	1830.	1831.	1832.
Rent -	£. 4 0 0	4 0 0	4 0 0
Salary -	28 17 4	37 1 1	50 0 0
Medicine	21 18 11	21 18 7	47 12 4½
Contingencies	1 10 9	1 10 10	4 16 6½
It is supported by subscriptions, and also a presentment from only the one county each year, the amount of which is granted according to the funds.	It is supported by private subscriptions, and a sum generally equal in amount thereto, presented by the grand jury of this county only once in each year.	One-half of its revenues is derived from private subscriptions, the other half from the grand jury presentment.
I do not know of any alterations that could be made for the better in this institution.	No; except that the governors might be more cautious in giving tickets, and not recommend any but real objects.	None.

ULSTER—CAVAN.

Mountnugent Dispensary.	Mullaugh Dispensary.	Swanlinbar Dispensary.
Charles Halpin, Esq., Surgeon.		William Maxwell Wade, Esq., Surgeon.
The Mountnugent Dispensary, established about three years.	Mullaugh Dispensary, established July 1831, for the distribution of medicine and medical aid to the poor.	The Swanlinbar Dispensary, established September 30, 1819.
There are two entire parishes, and portions of three contiguous parishes, in my district; some in county Meath, the rest in county Cavan.	Two parishes in district, namely, Mullaugh and Killickere, county Cavan.	The greater part of three parishes, namely, Templeport, in the county Cavan, Kinawley, partly in Cavan and Fermanagh, and Killesher, in Fermanagh.
	Moynalty, Crossakiell, Virginia, Baileborough, Ballyjamesduff, Kilmainham and Kingscourt.	The Ballyconnell Dispensary is within eight miles.
One dispensary, that of Ballymachugh. Cannot answer the latter part of this question.	No infirmary or hospital in the district.	There is no hospital or infirmary within ten miles of Swanlinbar; Cavan Infirmary and Fever Hospital is distant 22 miles; Enniskillen, 10½ miles.
I do not. I am paid 40 l. per annum. Attend two days in each week, and visit such out-patients as are recommended as such.	Mullaugh Dispensary; residence, town of Mullaugh; medical officer's salary, 30 l. per annum; general day of attendance, Tuesday. In consequence of accidents, and other diseases incident to the poor, they are attended any day when required.	I attend only the above institution, which is in the town. My salary is 67 l. per annum, for which I must provide a house to receive patients in, fuel, and attendants, &c. I am required to attend two days in each week by the dispensary rules, but I never refuse a patient requiring relief in the interim. Patients not able to come, are visited at home.
Of course I do.	I do consider it imperative on me to attend on all cases when called on.	By all means.
There has been since I took charge, which is about two years and a half ago.	A regular registry is kept, and furnished to the grand jury each assizes, of all cases visited, and those who personally attend the dispensary; in general most cases have been benefited.	There is a registry kept of the names of patients, by whom recommended, disease, and medicine administered to each.
1831 - - - 1,193 1832 - - - 1,270 1833 to this date (May) about - 1,000 Chief diseases, dyspepsia, dropsy, ophthalmia, fever.	Number relieved in two years and a half, is 4,230. The diseases with which the country is generally afflicted are coughs, asthmas, fever, rheumatism, diarrhoea and dysentery.	12,000 persons have received medicine and advice within the last three years. Diseases, dyspepsia, fever, scurvy, consumption, &c.
Some few; not very many.	It often happens that persons are relieved at a dispensary, whose means are comfortable, only in case of necessity, or where there is no other alternative.	Occasionally, but contrary to the regulations of the dispensary.
By Messrs. Boileau & George, Druggists, Bride-street, Dublin.	When medicines are required for the dispensary, they are ordered from the druggist by the medical attendant.	We get our medicines from Messrs. Leslie & Co. Druggists, Bride-street, Dublin, by order from the treasurer.
The amount of receipts, since establishing this dispensary, by subscription and presentment, has been about 226 l. I cannot state exactly what the expenditure has been; as nearly as I can come at the fact, it is 186 l.	<table><tr><th colspan="4">Receipt.</th></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>£. 53 6 0</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>58 10 0</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>50 14 0</td></tr></table> Those sums are expended by medicine, carriage, postage, stamps, house-rent, and medical attendant's salary.	Receipt.				1831	-	-	£. 53 6 0	1832	-	-	58 10 0	1833	-	-	50 14 0	<table><tr><th colspan="2">Receipt.</th><th colspan="2">Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>- - £. 111 6 0</td><td>£. 107 3 0</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>- - 115 2 0</td><td>115 5 0</td><td></td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><th colspan="2">1831.</th><th colspan="2">1832.</th></tr><tr><td>Salary</td><td>- - £. 50 0 0</td><td>50 0 0</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Medicines</td><td>- - 40 3 0</td><td>48 5 0</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Rent and Fuel</td><td>17 0 0</td><td>17 0 0</td><td></td></tr></table>	Receipt.		Expenditure.		1831	- - £. 111 6 0	£. 107 3 0		1832	- - 115 2 0	115 5 0		1831.		1832.		Salary	- - £. 50 0 0	50 0 0		Medicines	- - 40 3 0	48 5 0		Rent and Fuel	17 0 0	17 0 0
Receipt.
1831	-	-	£. 53 6 0
1832	-	-	58 10 0
1833	-	-	50 14 0
Receipt.		Expenditure.
1831	- - £. 111 6 0	£. 107 3 0
1832	- - 115 2 0	115 5 0
1831.		1832.
Salary	- - £. 50 0 0	50 0 0
Medicines	- - 40 3 0	48 5 0
Rent and Fuel	17 0 0	17 0 0
By subscription and presentments.	By private contribution, and county presentment from county Cavan.	By voluntary subscriptions, and an equal sum granted by presentment from the county Cavan.
The funds are so low that the dispensary pays me but 40 l. a year. I am obliged to keep a pair of horses to perform the duty attached to it.	I do not know of any change in the present charitable fund by which the poor would be benefited. From long experience, I have generally found the poor in great want from such institutions, where they are not convenient.	None.

ULSTER—CAVAN—DONEGAL.

Virginia Dispensary.	Ballyshannon Dispensary.	Carndonagh Dispensary.
John M. Atkins, Esq., M. D.	Treasurer and Medical Attendant.	Alexander Wilson, Esq., M. R. C. S. L.
There is no hospital or infirmary under my care. The dispensary, named Virginia Dispensary, was established in 1817, to afford advice, medicine and attendance, when necessary, to the sick poor.	Ballyshannon Dispensary.	The name of the dispensary was Carndonagh and Clonmany, but is now confined to Carndonagh, as there was no subscriptions raised from Clonmany last year; established about 1822.
Four parishes, and they are all in the county of Cavan.	Parishes of Kilbarron and Innismacsaint chiefly. Innismacsaint is situated in counties Donegal and Fermanagh. The district is not limited to these two parishes; it includes a part of the counties Fermanagh, Leitrim and Sligo adjoining, or near to county Donegal.	One at present, formerly two; they are both in same county.
Mullagh, Kells, Moynalty, Oldcastle, Mountnugent, Ballyduff and Baileborough Dispensaries.	Ballinagh only.	Only one dispensary, Malin, within ten miles.
There is no hospital or infirmary in my district.	No other dispensary, hospital or infirmary.	There is no hospital or infirmary attached; the salary in general varies from 30 l. to 40 l. per ann. by subscription, along with the same, from the county.
I attend only one dispensary.	No.	Only one dispensary at present, formerly two. Clonmany, distance six miles. Salary for both, as above. Days of attendance, Tuesday and Friday.
I do, and I always give my own personal attendance.	Patients unable to attend, having a ticket from a subscriber, are then visited at their homes.	I do consider it requisite to give it, in surgical aid only.
A register of all cases recommended to the dispensary is kept, and the result of the treatment, &c.	The name and disease, and by whom recommended, is registered.	No register is kept of the cases which have occurred; they are in general numerous.
About 4,000 persons were relieved within the last three years. The diseases treated were fevers, inflammations of the lungs, liver, intestines, dysentery, diarrhoea, acute and chronic rheumatism, cutaneous diseases, &c. and accidents of various kinds.	1831 - - - 12,279 1832 - - - 12,279 1833 - - - 6,359	Cannot say the number of persons so relieved.
Sometimes, from misrepresentation; but, in the event of such an occurrence, communication is made to the subscriber, and the person is dismissed.	None.	Frequently persons who are in very good circumstances benefit very much from this institution.
About quarterly, or oftener when necessary, by Messrs. Boileau & George, Druggists, Bride-street, Dublin.	Supplied by Messrs. Leslie, Dublin, and paid for by treasurer out of general fund.	Taken out of my salary.
<table><tr><td></td><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1830 - -</td><td>£.90 18 6</td><td>129 3 4</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - - -</td><td>122 10 10</td><td>122 10 10</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - - -</td><td>116 18 4</td><td>116 18 4</td></tr></table>		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1830 - -	£.90 18 6	129 3 4	1831 - - -	122 10 10	122 10 10	1832 - - -	116 18 4	116 18 4	<table><tr><td>Receipt.</td><td>Annual Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1830 - £.163 15 0</td><td>Salaries - £.105 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - 126 18 6</td><td>Rent - - 6 6 0</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - 139 4 0</td><td>Servant - 2 0 0</td></tr></table> The balance is laid out in medicine, and other necessaries, such as lard, spirits for tinctures, wine occasionally, and sundry small articles, and is not adequate to the expenses, the institution being in debt to both surgeon and apothecary.	Receipt.	Annual Expenditure.	1830 - £.163 15 0	Salaries - £.105 0 0	1831 - 126 18 6	Rent - - 6 6 0	1832 - 139 4 0	Servant - 2 0 0	About 10 l. per annum is the expenditure for medicine.
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1830 - -	£.90 18 6	129 3 4
1831 - - -	122 10 10	122 10 10
1832 - - -	116 18 4	116 18 4
Receipt.	Annual Expenditure.
1830 - £.163 15 0	Salaries - £.105 0 0
1831 - 126 18 6	Rent - - 6 6 0
1832 - 139 4 0	Servant - 2 0 0
By voluntary contributions, and county assessment from the county of Cavan only.	By private subscription, and by county presentment from county of Donegal only.	By subscriptions, and grand jury presentment from one county.
I do not think, with its present funds, this dispensary could possibly be rendered more efficient for the relief of the sick poor.	The funds are inadequate, in debt to the treasurer, and no salary for the medical attendants for the last two years.	The alteration I would suggest would be by a much larger subscription or grant to support this establishment, as the poor, being very numerous, would receive more benefit, the funds being much too small for the population.

ULSTER—DONEGAL.

Clondahorkey and Raymunderdoney Dispensary.	Clonderadagh and Killygarvan Dispensaries.	Clonleigh Dispensary.
—	Wm. F. Grueber, Esq. Surgeon.	Wm. John Greer, Esq. M. D.
The united Dispensaries of Clondahorkey, Raymunderdoney and Raytullaghobegly; established in the year 1826.	The Dispensary of the parishes of Clonderadagh and Killygarvan. Although the word dispensary is used, yet there are in reality two, as explained in 5th answer; it was established May 23, 1833.	Clonleigh Dispensary, established in the year 1830, for the purpose of providing medicines, medical and surgical aid for the poor of the parish of Clonleigh.
Three parishes, in same county.	Answered above.	One parish, in the county of Donegal.
None within ten miles.	The Ramelton Dispensary is distant five miles from Rathmullen, one of the places where the medical officer attends; but if the centre of the district be taken, there is no dispensary within 10 miles.	Strabane, Donaghadee, Castlederg, Newtown-stuart, Raphoe, Donaghmore, Loughboyne.
No hospital or infirmary attached.	There is only the one dispensary in the district, and no other medical establishment of any kind.	None.
Clondahorkey or Dunfanoghy Dispensary, two days in each week; Raymunderdoney and Raytullaghobegly, one day in each week; distance 7 miles and 7 parts; united salary 59 l. 7 s. 8 d.	There are two dispensaries in the district, supported by the same fund, and the same governors; there is one medical attendant only, who, in consequence of the extent of the district, is obliged to attend at two places, distant eight miles from each other, for the distribution of medicines, of which there is a depository at each place. We may here remark that the district is 15 miles long, and that until the establishment this dispensary utterly destitute of medical aid, being surrounded on three sides by water, and having no connexion with any medical establishment. For amount of salary see No. 11. The medical attendant resides at one of the above-mentioned medicine depositaries, and attends at the other two days in each week.	One only; two days in the week; salary for the last year, 75 l.
Yes.	Whenever a patient is recommended to the dispensary, I consider it my duty (if I think the case requires it) to visit such patient at his own house, and each subscriber of one guinea has a right of sending me an order to visit any person he may think requires it.	It is the duty of the surgeon to visit all patients who are not able to attend at the dispensary.
A register has been kept. The cases treated terminated for the most part favourably.	—	A regular register is kept of all patients recommended, and a report of the result (as well as can be ascertained) made out at the end of the year.
1,610 have been relieved, and many hundreds relieved not entered on books; dyspeptic cases generally prevailed, and in filthy huts typhus fever occurred.	366 people have received medical assistance at the dispensaries within the last six months; diseases, dyspepsia, fever, dysentery, diarrhoea, rheumatism, &c. &c.	5,421 patients have been entered on the book during the last three years.
Yes, very frequently by advice.	In some few cases persons who might not be considered fit objects of the charity have received assistance, but such cases are as few as in any similar establishment.	The duty of the surgeon is to attend to all orders from a governor, but sometimes the governor is imposed on, and the surgeon is obliged to visit a person who is not an object of charity.
By the treasurer's order, on Dublin druggists.	The medicines are supplied out of the general fund of the dispensary.	The medicines are ordered by the treasurer, from a druggist, and paid for out of the funds.
<table><tr><td></td><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1830</td><td>- £.92 8 0</td><td>£. 80 13 7</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>- 71 2 9</td><td>85 7 9</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>- 71 17 10</td><td>79 18 10½</td></tr></table>		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1830	- £.92 8 0	£. 80 13 7	1831	- 71 2 9	85 7 9	1832	- 71 17 10	79 18 10½	<table><tr><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>£.123 2 0</td><td>Medicine - £.27 0 0</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>Advertisements, &c. 5 0 0</td></tr></table> It has been resolved to give the remainder to the medical attendant. The dispensary has not yet existed a year.	Receipt.	Expenditure.	£.123 2 0	Medicine - £.27 0 0		Advertisements, &c. 5 0 0	<table><tr><td></td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>- - - £.108 12 9</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>- - - 118 13 1½</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>- - - 140 14 3½</td></tr></table> All for medicine, rent and surgeon's salary.		Expenditure.	1831	- - - £.108 12 9	1832	- - - 118 13 1½	1833	- - - 140 14 3½
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1830	- £.92 8 0	£. 80 13 7
1831	- 71 2 9	85 7 9
1832	- 71 17 10	79 18 10½
Receipt.	Expenditure.
£.123 2 0	Medicine - £.27 0 0
	Advertisements, &c. 5 0 0
	Expenditure.
1831	- - - £.108 12 9
1832	- - - 118 13 1½
1833	- - - 140 14 3½
Supported by private subscription and presentment from County Donegal.	It is supported by subscriptions, and a presentment of the grand jury, county Donegal.	By private subscriptions, and by presentments from the grand jury of the county of Donegal.
No.	I believe the funds are as well distributed as they can be for the relief of the poor.	Many alterations could be suggested, provided the funds of the institution would allow of them.

ULSTER—DONEGAL.

Culdaiff Dispensary.	Donegal Dispensary.	Donoughmore Dispensary.
	Michael Mulreany, Esq. surgeon.	James Holmes, Esq. Surgeon.
One Dispensary for the parishes of Culdaiff and Cloncale, established in 1817, for the relief of the poor inhabitants.	The Donegal Dispensary, established A.D. 1826, for relief of the suffering poor of the neighbouring parishes.	The Donoughmore Dispensary was established on 7th September 1826, at Killygordon. Medicine is distributed every Monday, in the west end of the parish, for the poor of that district.
Two parishes, both in the same county.	The greater part of four parishes all in county Donegal.	Parish of Donoughmore in the county Donegal only.
One in Larne.	The Mountcharles Dispensary three miles distant; the Balintra Dispensary five miles distant.	Raphoe, five miles; Stranolar, three miles; Strabane, eight miles; Castlederg, eight miles; Lifford, eight miles from Killygordon. The infirmary for the county Donegal is also at Lifford.
None; but an hospital would be a very desirable thing for the bad cases among the poor.	There is neither hospital nor infirmary in my district.	None.
None but the above-named.	I attend but one dispensary; the amount of my salary is no more than 40 L. per annum. The dispensary is open two days each week, but medical aid is never refused to applicants when the urgency of any case may require it.	I only attend the Donoughmore Dispensary, which occupies my entire time; the salary is 70 L. a year.
I do whenever recommended by a subscriber, which recommendation is very easily obtained in all cases of necessity.	I do consider it my duty in all cases to give my personal assistance.	By the rules of the institution I am bound to attend at the dispensary three days each week, and to visit the patients two days; I always visit patients when recommended by subscribers.
Such a register has generally been kept.	I keep a register of all cases treated in my dispensary.	An exact registry is kept and submitted to the examination of the committee.
For the last 13 years the number of cases relieved have varied from 1,800 to 2,000 annually. The principal diseases treated were, fever, rheumatism, affections of the heart, dyspepsia, female complaints, fractures and dislocations.	I was appointed to this dispensary on the 24th September 1833, since which time (three months) the number of persons receiving medical aid was 221. The diseases most prevalent here are those of the lungs and bowels, constituting diarrhœas, &c. &c.	1831 - - - - 2,558 1832 - - - - 2,395 1833 - - - - 2,121
Occasionally it does, as subscribers have the power of recommending whom they please.	It often occurs that such persons participate in the benefits of this institution.	The subscribers only recommend such as are objects of charity.
By Messrs. Leslie & Co. druggists, Dublin, paid from the funds of the dispensary by order of the treasurer.	The medicines are supplied by Messrs. Boileau & George, druggists, of Dublin, and paid for out of the subscriptions.	The medicines are generally supplied by Messrs. Pollock, Figgis & Co., Dublin; ordered by the committee.
Receipt. 1830 - - - £. 100 0 0 1831 - - - 100 13 0 1832 - - - 91 3 0 The surgeon's salary and medicine just amounted to annual receipt.	This dispensary, established in 1826, was (from some dislike which the subscribers had to the surgeon) not in existence for the last two years until 24th September; before my time there was no book of registry kept.	Receipt. 1831 - £. 104 16 6 1832 - - 110 6 6 1833 - - 121 19 0 Expenditure. £. 108 4 7 140 6 0 116 9 0 GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. 1831. 1832. 1833. £. s. d. £. s. d. £. s. d. Salary - 70 0 0 80 0 0 70 0 0 Medicine - 32 19 7 54 0 0 40 3 0 Rent - 5 5 0 6 6 0 6 6 0
By private subscriptions and grand jury presentments for one county.	By subscriptions, but we expect some support from the grand jury next assizes.	About 65 L. is generally obtained annually by subscriptions from the landed proprietors, and 50 L. or 60 L. is generally granted by the grand jury of Donegal.
I cannot suggest any, but if the funds of the dispensaries were materially increased, particularly in the poorer districts of the country where disease much abounds, I think then much more good might be done.	Our funds are too limited to be able to effect any thing salutary in this thickly populated country.	The funds of this institution are managed with the strictest economy and discretion, but are inadequate to relieve the poor of this extensive parish.

ULSTER—DONEGAL.

Drumholm Dispensary.	Fahan Dispensary.	Glencolumbkille Dispensary.
William Thompson, Esq. Medical Attendant.	Committee and Medical Attendant.	Committee and Medical Attendant.
The Drumholm Dispensary, established May 1819, for administering advice and medicine to the sick poor of the parish.	The Dispensary for Upper and Lower Fahan and Dysertegny is only under my care, placed in Buncrana, with an effective branch in Upper Fahan; both established A.D. 1819, by the late Lord Bishop of Derry, solely for the relief of the poor.	Established in the year 1824 (Dispensary Glencolumbkille), Parish of Glencolumbkille.
The parish of Drumholm and part of Donegal, both in the same county.	There are three, all in the same county.	Only one at present, in the county of Donegal.
The Ballyshannon Dispensary, within six miles, and Mountcharles, eight miles.	No dispensary within ten miles, nor hospital nor infirmary.	No dispensary or infirmary or medical aid of any description within ten miles.
There is no infirmary or hospital within my district.	None of any kind exists.	None.
I attend but one dispensary; the amount of salary 60 l. yearly. There are two days in the week for dispensing medicines; the intermediate days for visiting the sick throughout the district when called on.	The establishment in Fahan being part of and identified with that of Buncrana, is looked on as a branch; yet in every respect, as far as attendance, visiting and the dispensing of medicines, it is a separate institution. Formerly 100 l. per annum was given for both places being attended, but now it is reduced to 75 l. I attend at Fahan two days each week; the distance from my house 3 miles.	I attend but one dispensary, exclusive of visiting the sick poor of this district; salary last year, including county grant, but 40 l. ; every day in the week is a dispensary day with me.
In all cases where my medical or surgical aid is required, I consider it my duty to attend.	One of our first regulations was, that we should attend only to subscribers' recommendations; but now I never look for these. Most decidedly I consider it my duty, and it is my constant practice, to attend to the distresses of the poor, whether medical or surgical aid is required.	At all times when my assistance is required, I attend unhesitatingly.
There is a register kept of the number of patients to whom medicines and advice are administered, and also of the number visited at their own houses.	This would be impossible. Originally we registered all cases; but such was the demand for medicines and attendance, and such has it continued so to be, that we could only visit and write down names; but on the breaking out of any epidemic, the performance of any important surgical operation, as amputation at the shoulder joint, the tying of some of the great arteries, other amputations, hernia, preternatural cases of midwifery, trepanning, vaccination, we keep distinct notes of each; e. g. in the three summer months of 1827 we vaccinated 833 cases!	A correct registry of all cases is kept, wherein a statement of the diseases is accurately noted down, with treatment and result.
15,640, out of which number 750 have been visited; the principal diseases requiring my personal attendance were, fevers, inflammations, dropsy, fractures and dislocations.	Fevers, pneumonia, cholera, cholice, measles; no small-pox for the last thirteen years; stomach affections; the many and diversified accidents and injuries as well of the bones as of the soft parts; all come to us; all are treated. In round numbers, 6,500 are annually relieved at both institutions. Although we are by our regulations only to attend five days in the week at both places, yet few days ever pass without giving both advice and medicines.	I have not been in charge of this dispensary previously to March 1832, since which period (one year and nine months) upwards of 500 cases have been treated, and two deaths; diseases chiefly scrofula, fevers and bowel affections.
Very seldom.	Very often; commonly so.	This is avoided as much as possible.
The medicines are paid for out of the fund, and supplied by druggists in Dublin.	By the united funds of subscriptions and grand jury presentments; the medicines purchased from the house of Boileau & George, Dublin.	The medicines I am obliged to furnish myself from my trifling salary and private funds, which are quite inadequate to meet the necessities of such an unbounded circle of paupers.
Receipt - - - £. 120 0 0 GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. Salary - - - £. 60 0 0 Medicines - - - 45 0 0 Rent - - - 15 0 0 120 0 0	<table> <tr> <th></th><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr> <tr> <td>1831 -</td><td>£. 20 0 0</td><td>£. 20 0 0</td></tr> <tr> <td>1832 -</td><td>72 0 0</td><td>62 0 0*</td></tr> <tr> <td>1833 -</td><td>24 0 0</td><td>24 0 0</td></tr> </table> * The great expenditure of this year was owing to the cholera panic.		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831 -	£. 20 0 0	£. 20 0 0	1832 -	72 0 0	62 0 0*	1833 -	24 0 0	24 0 0	I am in charge but two years; the first year's receipt amounted to 60 l. , the last but 40 l.
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831 -	£. 20 0 0	£. 20 0 0
1832 -	72 0 0	62 0 0*
1833 -	24 0 0	24 0 0
Half by presentment and half by private subscription, making the whole amount yearly 120 l. ; the presentment is obtained from the county.	By private subscriptions and presentments only from the one county.	By private subscriptions and an equivalent from grand jury presentment.
I can suggest no alteration in the distribution of the limited funds by which the establishment under my charge is supported, which could possibly render it more efficient for the relief of the poor.	Our low funds cannot be better applied than at present.	The funds are so circumscribed as to render any amelioration at present impracticable, unless an addition be made.

ULSTER—DONEGAL.

Killybegs Dispensary.	Kilmacronan Dispensary.	Moville Dispensary.
	John Hunter, Esq. Surgeon.	John Irvine, Esq. Surgeon, R. N.
Killybegs Dispensary, two branches of which are established, one in Ardara and another in Dunkanully, for the better accommodation of more distant applicants for medicine and medical aid. Established in 1821.	Kilmacronan Dispensary, under my superintendence since the 27th June 1829; but established since 1824 or 1825.	"The Moville Dispensary," established in 1818.
Four, viz. Killybegs, Killcarr, Killaghtee and Inniskeel; all in the same county.	The parish of Kilmacronan, in same county.	Two; viz. the parishes of Upper and Lower Moville, both adjoining, and in the same county.
One only, in Mountcharles, in the parish of Inver.	Two dispensaries, within five miles each; viz. one at Ramelton, and one at Letterkenny. No public infirmary nearer than 17 miles.	"The Malin and Culdaff Dispensary," "The Carndonagh Dispensary" and "The Muff Dispensary," are each distant from Moville about ten miles.
Not any.	No hospital or infirmary attached to any dispensary in my district.	There is no other dispensary, hospital or infirmary within my district.
Only the different branches of the Killybegs Dispensary above stated, the one eight and the other four miles distant. I attend three days in the week; viz. one day at each place, for which I receive a salary of 73 l. 16 s. 11 d.	I attend one dispensary only; viz. Kilmacronan, five miles distant, two days in the week: salary 52 l. 10 s.	I attend the Moville Dispensary only, for which I receive 70 l. a year, paid quarterly.
When I am called on by a subscriber to do so.	Whenever a governor of the dispensary sends me a ticket of the necessity of giving medical or surgical aid to any one in the parish, I consider it my duty to attend.	In all cases of necessity or urgency, I consider it my duty, most assuredly, to give personal attendance. Many trifling cases, both medical and surgical occur, which do not require personal attendance.
A register is kept of all cases, how disposed of, and the result.	There is a register kept of the number of patients admitted during the year, of the visits and diseases; but not the results.	The Moville Dispensary was established for the benefit of the poor of the two parishes, in 1818. For the three first years a register was kept; but since that, the duty became so oppressive, and the applications so numerous, that the keeping of a register of the practice was discontinued.
1831 - - - - - 1,922 1832 - - - - - 2,309 1833 - - - - - 1,791 Diseases treated:—Dysentery, fevers, measles, small-pox, indigestion, &c. &c.	Diseases are generally of the stomach, skin, liver, accidents, &c. &c., with fevers occasionally.	About 40,000 persons have received relief, within the last three years, at the dispensary, for fractures, dislocations, continued fevers, pleurisy, rheumatism, dyspepsia, scrofula, measles, scarlatina, hoopingcough, eruptive diseases, &c.
Sometimes this does happen.	Seldom, if ever.	Very seldom.
The medicine is supplied by Messrs. Boileau & George, Dublin, druggists, who are paid for them out of above funds.	By the governors of the dispensary.	By an order on Messrs. Leslie & Co. druggists, Bride-street, Dublin.
<table><tr><th colspan="4">Receipt.</th></tr><tr><th></th><th>1831.</th><th>1832.</th><th>1833.</th></tr><tr><td>By Balance last account - -</td><td>£. 2 19 5</td><td>—</td><td>—</td></tr><tr><td>Subscriptions - -</td><td>62 7 11</td><td>62 0 11</td><td>68 15 11</td></tr><tr><td>Presentments - -</td><td>60 0 0</td><td>52 1 4</td><td>60 0 0</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>£. 125 7 4</td><td>114 2 3</td><td>128 15 11</td></tr></table> <table><tr><th colspan="4">Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><th></th><th>1831.</th><th>1832.</th><th>1833.</th></tr><tr><td>Salary - - -</td><td>£. 73 16 11</td><td>73 16 11</td><td>73 16 11</td></tr><tr><td>Medicines - -</td><td>30 11 2</td><td>32 16 0</td><td>32 3 8</td></tr><tr><td>Rent - - -</td><td>10 2 0</td><td>10 2 0</td><td>10 2 0</td></tr><tr><td>Contingencies - -</td><td>18 11 8</td><td>12 4 10</td><td>0 4 11</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>£. 133 1 9</td><td>128 14 2</td><td>116 7 6</td></tr></table>	Receipt.					1831.	1832.	1833.	By Balance last account - -	£. 2 19 5	—	—	Subscriptions - -	62 7 11	62 0 11	68 15 11	Presentments - -	60 0 0	52 1 4	60 0 0		£. 125 7 4	114 2 3	128 15 11	Expenditure.					1831.	1832.	1833.	Salary - - -	£. 73 16 11	73 16 11	73 16 11	Medicines - -	30 11 2	32 16 0	32 3 8	Rent - - -	10 2 0	10 2 0	10 2 0	Contingencies - -	18 11 8	12 4 10	0 4 11		£. 133 1 9	128 14 2	116 7 6	<table><tr><th colspan="2">Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><th></th><th>1831.</th><th>1832.</th></tr><tr><td>1831 - -</td><td>£. 67 15 11</td><td>£. 67 15 11</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - -</td><td>72 13 11</td><td>72 13 11</td></tr><tr><td>1833 - -</td><td>81 14 11</td><td>81 14 11</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.—Salary, Medicine and Rent.	Receipt.		Expenditure.		1831.	1832.	1831 - -	£. 67 15 11	£. 67 15 11	1832 - -	72 13 11	72 13 11	1833 - -	81 14 11	81 14 11	The average expenditure for the last three years, for medicines, surgeon's salary, incidental expenses, &c. for one year, amounts to 117 l. The average receipts for private subscriptions and grand jury presentment, about the same sum, viz. 117 l.
Receipt.
	1831.	1832.	1833.
By Balance last account - -	£. 2 19 5	—	—
Subscriptions - -	62 7 11	62 0 11	68 15 11
Presentments - -	60 0 0	52 1 4	60 0 0
	£. 125 7 4	114 2 3	128 15 11
Expenditure.
	1831.	1832.	1833.
Salary - - -	£. 73 16 11	73 16 11	73 16 11
Medicines - -	30 11 2	32 16 0	32 3 8
Rent - - -	10 2 0	10 2 0	10 2 0
Contingencies - -	18 11 8	12 4 10	0 4 11
	£. 133 1 9	128 14 2	116 7 6
Receipt.		Expenditure.
	1831.	1832.
1831 - -	£. 67 15 11	£. 67 15 11
1832 - -	72 13 11	72 13 11
1833 - -	81 14 11	81 14 11
By subscriptions and grand jury presentments in county of Donegal.	By subscriptions from landlords of county of Donegal, and by a presentment from the grand jury thereof.	Partly by private subscriptions, and partly by presentment from the county of Donegal grand jury only.
I cannot.	At present I consider no alterations could be made. subscriptions, as do also a few of the landed proprietors; but there are many proprietors of quarter lands in my district, who do not give a subscription, although their numerous poor tenants receive medical aid. No institution can be more useful, and I cannot suggest any alteration in the distribution of the funds which would render it more efficient for the relief of the poor.	Lord Caledon, Sir Arthur Chichester, and the clergy of the different denominations, contribute most liberally in supporting this institution by their

ULSTER—DONEGAL.

Pettigo Dispensary.	Raphoe Dispensary.	St. Johnstown and Newtowncunningham Dispensaries.
Committee and Medical Attendant.	—————	—————
Pettigo Dispensary, established 27th May 1833.	Raphoe Dispensary.	The St. Johnstown and Newtowncunningham joint Dispensaries.
This dispensary is for the poor of the parish of Templecarin exclusively.	Three parishes, Raphoe, Convoy and Rye, all in the county of Donegal.	Three; Taughboyne, Killea, All Saints, and a small part of Raymochy, all in same county.
Kesh, in the county Fermanagh, 4 miles from this, and Batishan, in this county, 9 miles from here.	The county hospital in Lifford, and dispensaries in the following parishes within 10 miles; viz. Strabane, Lifford, Killigordon, Stranorlar, Letterkenny and Taughboyne.	Londonderry, Lifford, Strabane and Raphoe, none of which are within 6 miles of this.
There is not any dispensary or hospital in connexion with this dispensary.	There is not a dispensary attached to any hospital or infirmary within this district.	There is neither hospital nor infirmary in my district.
I do not attend any dispensary but the one for the parish of Templecarin, and it is regularly attended two days in the week.	I do not attend more than one dispensary, and it is in my own house, in the town of Raphoe. I am paid 70 l. per annum salary, and am allowed 10 l. per annum as rent for the dispensary shop. I am required to attend every Monday and Thursday, to visit and to attend accidents, &c. at all times.	One at St. Johnstown, where I reside; also, a branch at Newtowncunningham, which is 4½ miles distant. The amount of salary for both is 70 l. per annum. Attendance at dispensaries, six days in the week.
I am to attend in all cases when I get a certificate from any of the subscribers.	Certainly.	Certainly; the funds do not admit of an assistant.
A book is kept in the dispensary, where all cases are marked down, and their result.	A register of this kind is kept as regularly and correctly as possible.	No regular register having been required of me, none was kept; but recommendations from subscribers have been constantly filed.
The number of persons relieved since the 27th of May to 11 December amounts to 621. The complaints prevalent here are as follows: rheumatism, fever, measles, inflammation of the lungs, asthma, &c.	The number of applications for medical relief, during the last three years, has been 5,106. The diseases treated have, in general, been fevers, asthmas, coughs and other thoracic complaints, dyspepsia and many disorders of the stomach and bowels, liver complaints, dropsies, influenza, accidents, as fractures and dislocations, diseases of the skin, &c. &c.	The number of recommendations received during the first 12 months, was 573; but as one ticket is only required for a family for an indefinite period, I should say that at least 2,200 have benefited by the institution up to September last, inclusive.
I am not aware that any improper persons ever offered themselves.	I am most particular that none but proper objects of charity shall receive gratuitous assistance.	No.
The medicine is supplied by Boileau & George, Druggists, of Dublin.	The medicines are supplied by the Apothecaries' Company of Glasgow, who subscribe two guineas per annum. They are paid for by the treasurer out of the funds.	By Messrs. Boileau & George, Dublin, and Rankin, Londonderry.
The accounts are not closed for the current year.	Receipt. <table><tr><td>1830: Subscriptions</td><td>£. 55 3 1½</td><td rowspan="2">} £. 115 3 1½</td></tr><tr><td>County Grant -</td><td>60 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>1831: Subscriptions -</td><td>65 5 7</td><td rowspan="2">} 115 5 7</td></tr><tr><td>County Grant -</td><td>50 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>1832: Subscriptions -</td><td>73 14 0</td><td rowspan="2">} 133 14 0</td></tr><tr><td>County Grant -</td><td>60 0 0</td></tr></table> Expenditure. <table><tr><td>1830: Surgeon's salary and rent</td><td>£. 73 10 0</td></tr><tr><td>1831: Ditto - - - -</td><td>73 10 0</td></tr><tr><td>1832: Ditto - - - -</td><td>80 0 0</td></tr></table> Medicines, average per annum, from 35 l. to 40 l.	1830: Subscriptions	£. 55 3 1½	} £. 115 3 1½	County Grant -	60 0 0	1831: Subscriptions -	65 5 7	} 115 5 7	County Grant -	50 0 0	1832: Subscriptions -	73 14 0	} 133 14 0	County Grant -	60 0 0	1830: Surgeon's salary and rent	£. 73 10 0	1831: Ditto - - - -	73 10 0	1832: Ditto - - - -	80 0 0	Expenditure. <table><tr><td>Surgeon's salary - - - -</td><td>£. 70 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicines and surgical instruments</td><td>40 1 4</td></tr><tr><td>Rent, and fitting up two dispensary rooms - - - -</td><td>8 6 3</td></tr><tr><td>Stationary and Books - - -</td><td>5 1 0</td></tr><tr><td>Fuel and incidents - - -</td><td>3 18 10</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>£. 127 7 5</td></tr></table>	Surgeon's salary - - - -	£. 70 0 0	Medicines and surgical instruments	40 1 4	Rent, and fitting up two dispensary rooms - - - -	8 6 3	Stationary and Books - - -	5 1 0	Fuel and incidents - - -	3 18 10		£. 127 7 5
1830: Subscriptions	£. 55 3 1½	} £. 115 3 1½
County Grant -	60 0 0
1831: Subscriptions -	65 5 7	} 115 5 7
County Grant -	50 0 0
1832: Subscriptions -	73 14 0	} 133 14 0
County Grant -	60 0 0
1830: Surgeon's salary and rent	£. 73 10 0
1831: Ditto - - - -	73 10 0
1832: Ditto - - - -	80 0 0
Surgeon's salary - - - -	£. 70 0 0
Medicines and surgical instruments	40 1 4
Rent, and fitting up two dispensary rooms - - - -	8 6 3
Stationary and Books - - -	5 1 0
Fuel and incidents - - -	3 18 10
	£. 127 7 5
It is supported by a grant from the county, and subscriptions.	By subscriptions, and presentments from the county of Donegal only.	By subscription from the landed proprietors and episcopal clergy of the district, and by presentments from the county Donegal alone.
I cannot suggest any plan or alteration that would benefit our dispensary, unless by enlarging our funds, when we could have a better supply of medicine.	I cannot.	No.

ULSTER—DONEGAL and DOWN.

Stranorlar and Glenfirm Dispensary.	Templecroan and Lettermacward Dispensary.	Ballymacarrett Dispensary.
Committee and Medical Attendant.	W. L. Gilliland, Esq., M.D.	John Scott, Esq., M.D.
Stranorlar and Glenfirm, constituting one dispensary.	The Templecroan and Lettermacward Dispensary, established in 1822.	Ballymacarrett Dispensary, established in September 1833, for the relief of indigent poor.
Two parishes, Stranorlar, Kiltrevock.	Two parishes in the same county.	Parish of Ballymacarrett alone, containing between 5,000 and 6,000 inhabitants.
Raphoe, Killygordon and Castlederg, the latter in the county Tyrone.	There is neither a dispensary, infirmary or hospital within the distance.	Newtownbreda, Hollywood, Bangor, Drumbo, Lisburn, Carrickfergus, Newtown-Ards, Whitehouse, Belfast Hospital and Infirmary.
None.	There is no institution of the kind, except this dispensary. £. 70 per annum is the salary allowed.	None.
I attend only the aforesaid dispensary.	I attend none but this dispensary, which has a branch at the distance of six miles in Lettermacward, where there is attendance given one day in the week, and two days in Templecroan.	But one. Salary, 60 l. , with 10 l. as part payment of the rent for the house in which the dispensary is kept. Attendance, three hours daily; frequently occupied four or five hours.
I consider it my duty to visit the patient in all cases, whenever he is unable to attend personally at the dispensary.	Certainly. In all cases where the patients are not able to attend on dispensary days, they are attended at their own homes.	I give my personal attendance in all cases.
A register is kept of all cases admitted to receive medical aid.	There is a regular book kept, where the age, sex, name, residence, disease and result, with the regular date of admission and recovery, or otherwise, are noted.	From the time occupied in arranging the dispensary, with the numerous applications for relief in so poor and densely populated a district, I have been hitherto unable to register the cases, but intend doing so.
3,300. Diseases: dyspepsia, fevers, gastrodynia, bronchitis, rheumatism, cachexia, &c.	Neither the present surgeon nor committee have held their respective situations for more than one year, but on a reference to the books, there appears, on an average, about 400 persons annually relieved at this dispensary.	Typhus fever, common cholera, pleurisy, rheumatism, worms very prevalent, scrofula, itch to a great extent; results generally very satisfactory; very few fatal cases.
Some very few persons participate in the benefits of our charity, by imposing on the subscribers.	From an arrangement made about two years back by the governors of this dispensary, persons who do not come within the list of those entitled, and are not able to pay a fee, are admitted on paying from 5 s. to 1 s. 3 d. , according to their circumstances, and the discretion of the governor recommending.	I have detected attempts at imposition, and no doubt we are sometimes imposed on; but I must say that the subscribers second me as far as in them lies to prevent such attempts.
Medicines are obtained with the funds of the dispensary, and supplied by John G. Laird, Druggist, Ballybofeg.	The medicines are supplied out of the subscriptions and presentment, after the salary of the medical superintendent.	By order of the committee, from Edward Walkington, wholesale druggist, Belfast.
Receipt, £. 130. Expenditure, £. 130. GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. Salary, £. 75. The remainder for medicine, &c.	This has varied, according to the amount of subscription; but on reference to the treasurer's book, the average has been about 110 l. annually, of which 70 l. was paid as salary to the surgeon, and the remainder for a shop and medicines.	The infant state of this institution prevents me from giving an answer to this query.
Supported by private subscriptions, and presentment obtained from the grand jury in the county Donegal.	By private subscriptions, and an equal amount by presentment from the county of Donegal.	By private subscription, and presentment from county Down.
I can suggest no alteration in the distribution of the funds by which the institution could be bettered.	There could not be any distribution for the better, I think, while the funds are so limited; but if the funds would permit, the general opinion coincides with my own, that there ought to be a sick room attached to the dispensary, to accommodate patients after operations, &c. when, from distance or otherwise, it is impossible for the medical officer to see his patients as often as really requisite.	I cannot suggest any alteration, unless the granting of such a presentment as would enable me to keep an assistant, which would render the institution in so large and poor a district much more efficient.

ULSTER—DOWN.

Banbridge Dispensary.	Bangor Dispensary.	Castlewellan Dispensary.
Treasurer and Medical Attendant.	Treasurer and Medical Attendant.	James Hunter, Esq. M. D.
The Banbridge Dispensary, established the 1st November 1811. There is no other in this district.	The Bangor Dispensary, established in 1817.	Castlewellan Dispensary, with a branch at Dundrum; established in 1822, for the relief of sick poor.
There are five parishes in the district; viz. Seapatrik, Tullylish, Ahadergh, Magherally and Anacloan, all in the county Down.	One parish, and all in county Down.	Kilmegan, Kilcoo, Maghera and Drungooland, with part of Loughinesland, in the county of Down.
Newry, Rathfryland, Dromore and Hillsborough, in the county of Down; Tanderagee, Pointzpass and Lurgan, in the county Armagh.	Hollywood and Donaghadee.	The County Infirmary at Downpatrick, distant nine miles; Rathfryland Dispensary, distant eight miles; branch of this at Dundrum, four miles.
There is no other dispensary, hospital or infirmary in our district.	None.	There is no other hospital or dispensary within these districts; my salary as medical attendant is 100 l. per annum.
I attend to no other than the Banbridge Dispensary, the days of attendance on which are four; viz. Sunday, Monday, Wednesday and Friday, from ten to twelve o'clock A. M. Salary, 37 l. per annum.	The days of attendance at the Bangor Dispensary are two in each week, and the salary proposed 30 l. per annum.	I attend only to this dispensary, with its branch at Dundrum; days of attendance, three in every week.
The sick poor, to the number of 400 in the year, are at all times visited when required at their own houses.	Personal attendance is given in all cases where the patient is unable to appear at the dispensary.	In every case requiring it, I visit the poor at their own houses.
A registry has been kept from the commencement.	Latterly no regular register of all the cases and their result has been kept, but from periodical documents preserved.	A regular register is kept of every case, with all particulars relative to it, from which a printed return and report are annually published for the information of governors and grand juries.
The number relieved for last three years, 16,424.	The number of applications for the last three years would, on an average, amount to upwards of 800 annually; it often occurring, however, that the same persons present themselves several times in the course of the year for different diseases; the diseases are chiefly chronic.	The aggregate number relieved within the last three years, 6,889; but in this sheet it would be impossible to give a general statement of the particular diseases; this is done, however, in our printed annual reports.
As much care as can be is taken to prevent such an abuse.	A few cases of this description do occasionally occur.	Such a circumstance may occasionally occur, but very rarely, as great care is taken to avoid it.
By Jonathan Hill, druggist, of Capel-street, which are ordered by the treasurer, by order of the governors.	The medicines are purchased and supplied by the medical attendant.	Purchased from an eminent druggist, and compounded and dispensed under my inspection in the dispensary.
<table><tr><th colspan="3">Receipt.</th><th colspan="3"></th></tr><tr><th>1831.</th><th>1832.</th><th>1833.</th><th></th><th></th><th></th></tr><tr><td>Balance - - -</td><td>£. 61 14 8½</td><td>—</td><td></td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Subscriptions - -</td><td>86 19 0</td><td>89 11 6</td><td></td><td>98 6 3½</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Presentments - -</td><td>84 17 0</td><td>87 9 6</td><td></td><td>80 0 0</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Part of Dispensary</td><td></td><td></td><td></td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Set. - - - - -</td><td>4 4 0</td><td>4 4 0</td><td></td><td>4 4 0</td><td></td></tr><tr><th colspan="3">Expenditure.</th><th colspan="3"></th></tr><tr><th>1831.</th><th>1832.</th><th>1833.</th><th></th><th></th><th></th></tr><tr><td>Salaries - - -</td><td>£. 84 0 0</td><td>109 0 0</td><td></td><td>94 0 0</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Medicine - - -</td><td>47 12 9</td><td>49 19 5</td><td></td><td>56 16 11</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Rent - - - -</td><td>13 13 0</td><td>13 13 0</td><td></td><td>13 13 0</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Fuel, Spirits, Cow-</td><td></td><td></td><td></td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>pox, &c. - - -</td><td>19 18 8</td><td>17 10 2½</td><td></td><td>21 6 9</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Contingencies - -</td><td>3 18 10½</td><td>2 0 4½</td><td></td><td>6 15 8</td><td></td></tr></table>	Receipt.						1831.	1832.	1833.				Balance - - -	£. 61 14 8½	—				Subscriptions - -	86 19 0	89 11 6		98 6 3½		Presentments - -	84 17 0	87 9 6		80 0 0		Part of Dispensary						Set. - - - - -	4 4 0	4 4 0		4 4 0		Expenditure.						1831.	1832.	1833.				Salaries - - -	£. 84 0 0	109 0 0		94 0 0		Medicine - - -	47 12 9	49 19 5		56 16 11		Rent - - - -	13 13 0	13 13 0		13 13 0		Fuel, Spirits, Cow-						pox, &c. - - -	19 18 8	17 10 2½		21 6 9		Contingencies - -	3 18 10½	2 0 4½		6 15 8		<table><tr><th colspan="2">Receipt.</th><th colspan="2">Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>1830 -</td><td>£. 42 1 6</td><td>£. 46 1 3</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>1831 -</td><td>51 7 6</td><td>50 19 11</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>1832 -</td><td>55 12 0</td><td>50 13 8</td><td></td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. Salary, Medicines, Spirits, Flannel, Calico, Stationary, &c.	Receipt.		Expenditure.		1830 -	£. 42 1 6	£. 46 1 3		1831 -	51 7 6	50 19 11		1832 -	55 12 0	50 13 8		<table><tr><th colspan="2">Receipt.</th><th colspan="2">Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>1831 -</td><td>£. 263 4 0</td><td>£. 217 1 7</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>1832 -</td><td>112 14 5½</td><td>74 3 0</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>1833 -</td><td>217 7 4</td><td>228 2 1½</td><td></td></tr></table>	Receipt.		Expenditure.		1831 -	£. 263 4 0	£. 217 1 7		1832 -	112 14 5½	74 3 0		1833 -	217 7 4	228 2 1½
Receipt.
1831.	1832.	1833.
Balance - - -	£. 61 14 8½	—
Subscriptions - -	86 19 0	89 11 6		98 6 3½
Presentments - -	84 17 0	87 9 6		80 0 0
Part of Dispensary
Set. - - - - -	4 4 0	4 4 0		4 4 0
Expenditure.
1831.	1832.	1833.
Salaries - - -	£. 84 0 0	109 0 0		94 0 0
Medicine - - -	47 12 9	49 19 5		56 16 11
Rent - - - -	13 13 0	13 13 0		13 13 0
Fuel, Spirits, Cow-
pox, &c. - - -	19 18 8	17 10 2½		21 6 9
Contingencies - -	3 18 10½	2 0 4½		6 15 8
Receipt.		Expenditure.
1830 -	£. 42 1 6	£. 46 1 3
1831 -	51 7 6	50 19 11
1832 -	55 12 0	50 13 8
Receipt.		Expenditure.
1831 -	£. 263 4 0	£. 217 1 7
1832 -	112 14 5½	74 3 0
1833 -	217 7 4	228 2 1½
It is supported by private subscriptions and county assessment; the presentment is from the county Down alone.	By private subscription and county presentment to the amount of one half the sum so subscribed.	By subscription and county presentments from county of Down.
None.	Not any.	I cannot, as the utmost pains have been bestowed by a highly respectable committee to dispose of the funds to the greatest possible advantage.

ULSTER—DOWN.

Dromore Dispensary.	Hillsborough Dispensary.	Hollywood Dispensary.
Committee and Medical Attendant.	J. N. Moorhead, Esq., M.D.	R. O. M ^r Kittrick, Esq., Surgeon.
Dromore Dispensary, established in 1808, for the medical and surgical relief of the poor.	The Hillsborough Dispensary only, for the relief of sick poor, established September 1815.	The Hollywood Dispensary alone, established 24th January 1815.
The entire parish of Dromore, and part of the parishes of Garvaghy, Magherally and Maralin, all in the county Down.	The parish of Hillsborough, and part of the parishes of Blairis, Annahilt, Dromore and Moira, all situated in the county of Down.	Hollywood only, and that in county Down.
The County of Antrim Infirmary, at the distance of seven miles; Hillsborough Dispensary, four miles; Lurgan Dispensary, seven miles; and Banbridge, six miles.	The Lisburn and Dromore Dispensaries; the Lisburn Fever Hospital, and county Antrim Infirmary.	One in Ballymacarret, two in Belfast, one in Knockbreda, one in Bangor, one at Whitehouse, one in Donaghadee.
There is no dispensary, hospital or infirmary within my district, except the one reported in the first question.	There is no dispensary or hospital attached or unattached in this district but this one. It has three good furnished rooms on the ground floor, and there are apartments over well suited for beds.	This does not occur in the Hollywood district.
Only one dispensary situated in Dromore, where the surgeon resides. Salary, 30 guineas; attendance from 10 till 12 o'clock three days each week.	I attend none but the Hillsborough Dispensary, on Monday, Wednesday and Saturday. The salary for same is 46 L. 3 s. 2 d.	I attend only one.
I consider it my duty to give my own personal attendance in all cases, except cholera as an epidemic.	I consider it my duty in all cases, within the distance prescribed by the committee, to give my personal attendance whenever medical or surgical aid is necessary and required by a subscriber to the funds of the institution giving a dispensary ticket.	I do.
A careful register is kept of all cases, which are presented quarterly for the inspection of the committee; the applications have been attended to, and the results generally favourable to the patients.	There is a register kept of all the cases where such application has been made for aid; the residence of the patient and name of disease; the medicine given, and event.	This has been regularly done.
The average number of patients recommended for the last three years is about 1,000 yearly; the average number of deaths about 20 yearly; and the remainder cured or relieved. Typhus fever and inflammatory diseases most prevalent.	According to the annual reports published, there were relieved in 1831 - - - - 935 1832 - - - - 850 1833 - - - - 1,050 as per admission tickets, some of which served for whole families. Fever and dyspepsia, pulmonia and cutaneous diseases most prevailed.	Prescriptions. 1830 - - - - 2,790 1831 - - - - 3,075 1832 - - - - 3,644
Such applications have been sometimes made, but ordered not to be attended to.	Tickets have been got ("certifying the bearer to be a proper object and fit for relief from this charity") by false representations of the applicants, but very seldom during the last 11 years.	There is no instance of this. The committee and subscribers recommend all applicants, and they are particularly careful that the charity shall be appropriated to its proper objects.
By order of a quorum of the committee, from Mr. Edward Walkington, drug merchant, in Belfast.	The medicines are supplied by the committee, from Mr. Marshall, druggist, Belfast, for cash.	I make out a list of medicines required at any time, send it to the treasurer, who orders them from Surgeon Marshall, licensed apothecary and druggist, 100, High-street, Belfast.
<table><tr><th></th><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>£. 108 3 3½</td><td>92 4 5½</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>127 9 6</td><td>95 8 6½</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>80 14 7½</td><td>96 9 2½</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><th></th><th>1831.</th><th>1832.</th><th>1833.</th></tr><tr><td>Salary</td><td>£. 49 11 6</td><td>51 17 0</td><td>58 19 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine</td><td>30 9 0½</td><td>28 15 8</td><td>27 8 0</td></tr><tr><td>Sundries</td><td>12 3 11</td><td>14 15 10</td><td>10 2 2</td></tr></table>		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831	£. 108 3 3½	92 4 5½	1832	127 9 6	95 8 6½	1833	80 14 7½	96 9 2½		1831.	1832.	1833.	Salary	£. 49 11 6	51 17 0	58 19 0	Medicine	30 9 0½	28 15 8	27 8 0	Sundries	12 3 11	14 15 10	10 2 2	<table><tr><th></th><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>£. 85 18 9</td><td>82 13 5</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>82 4 0</td><td>74 12 11</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>80 17 6</td><td>100 0 2</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. Salary, Medicine, Widwives' fee and Rent.		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831	£. 85 18 9	82 13 5	1832	82 4 0	74 12 11	1833	80 17 6	100 0 2	<table><tr><th></th><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>£. 48 18 9</td><td>54 10 7</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>45 15 9</td><td>46 2 4</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><th></th><th>1831.</th><th>1832.</th></tr><tr><td>Salary</td><td>£. 40 0 0</td><td>40 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine</td><td>14 6 10</td><td>6 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Stamp</td><td>0 3 9</td><td>0 2 4</td></tr></table> The subscriptions have not yet been collected, but will probably exceed last year's by 2 L. Medicine, about 8 L.; salary, 40 L.		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831	£. 48 18 9	54 10 7	1832	45 15 9	46 2 4		1831.	1832.	Salary	£. 40 0 0	40 0 0	Medicine	14 6 10	6 0 0	Stamp	0 3 9	0 2 4
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831	£. 108 3 3½	92 4 5½
1832	127 9 6	95 8 6½
1833	80 14 7½	96 9 2½
	1831.	1832.	1833.
Salary	£. 49 11 6	51 17 0	58 19 0
Medicine	30 9 0½	28 15 8	27 8 0
Sundries	12 3 11	14 15 10	10 2 2
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831	£. 85 18 9	82 13 5
1832	82 4 0	74 12 11
1833	80 17 6	100 0 2
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831	£. 48 18 9	54 10 7
1832	45 15 9	46 2 4
	1831.	1832.
Salary	£. 40 0 0	40 0 0
Medicine	14 6 10	6 0 0
Stamp	0 3 9	0 2 4
By private contributions, and county presentments only from the county Down.	Supported by contributions from the respectable inhabitants, and a presentment of one half the amount from the county Down.	By voluntary yearly subscriptions, and presentments from the county of Down alone.
We cannot; but think the funds are managed to the best advantage.	The funds here hardly answer the most needful. If they were increased, some in-door patients might be accommodated at the dispensary apartments in cases of accidents and strangers.

ULSTER—DOWN.

Knockbreda Dispensary.	Rathfryland Dispensary.	Warrenpoint and Rosstrevor Dispensary.
Mr. George M ^c Clure, Medical Attendant.	Samuel Swan, Esq., Surgeon.	—
Newtownbreda, alias Knockbreda, established 17th February 1818.	Rathfryland Dispensary; one only; established in 1808.	The Warrenpoint and Rosstrevor Dispensary, established A. D. 1814.
At present only Knockbreda, formerly Ballymacarrett belonged to this parish; it is now erected into a parish.	Four parishes, viz. Drumgath, Drumballyroney, Drumgooland and Clanduff, all in county Down.	Three, the parishes of Clonallon, Warrenpoint and Kilbroney, all in the county of Down.
Downpatrick Infirmary, Lisburn Infirmary, Hollywood Dispensary, Ballymacarrett Dispensary, Belfast Fever Hospital and Dispensary, Chapel-lane Dispensary Belfast, Bangor Dispensary.	Newry Dispensary, seven miles distant; Castlewellan Dispensary, eight miles; Warrenpoint Dispensary, nine miles; Banbridge Dispensary eight miles; Pointzpass Dispensary, nine miles distant.	Newry Dispensary and Fever Hospital, and Rathfryland Dispensary, county Down; Carlingford Dispensary, county Louth.
None.	None.	No.
Formerly Knockbreda and Ballymacarrett were united, both of which I attended until June last, when they were separated; before their disunion I attended two days at Ballymacarrett (two miles distant) and two at Knockbreda, where I reside.	None but one. two days in the week in Warrenpoint and one in Rosstrevor to dispense medicines to such patients as are able to attend personally; persons confined in acute diseases, or from accidents or other cause, unable to leave their homes, are visited (on the recommendation of a subscriber). The district extends, in some, say three directions, seven miles from my residence in Warrenpoint; the stated salary is 50 l. annum, but there is an allowance for visits and for attendance on bad labour cases, which makes (including 8 guineas per ann. allowed for rent) the annual average nearly 90 l. per ann.	This dispensary is for the above-mentioned parishes conjointly. I am required to attend on
I do; those that are enabled to come to the dispensary are attended to, and those that are not are regularly visited at their own abodes.	Yes.	Certainly; I am bound to attend personally in all cases where the individual is recommended by a subscriber to the institution.
A regular registry is kept of all cases recommended, but owing to Ballymacarrett being situated on the confines of Down, immediately adjoining Belfast, the beadles of which instantly remove all stragglers (who are hourly arriving from all parts of Ireland) into Ballymacarrett, it has hitherto been impossible to keep a correct registry.	Yes.	A regular register is kept of all cases admitted at the dispensary, the name, age, residence, disease, treatment, &c., and the result of each case; a quarterly report of which is regularly read and furnished to the Committee at each quarterly meeting, and entered on the minute-book of the dispensary.
1830 - - - - - 1,342 1831 - - - - - 1,822 1832 - - - - - 686	<table><tr><th>Number Admitted.</th><th>Cured.</th><th>Relieved</th><th>Died.</th><th>Result unknown.</th></tr><tr><td>1830 - - 933</td><td>892</td><td>31</td><td>8</td><td>2</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - - 1,054</td><td>994</td><td>44</td><td>14</td><td>2</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - - 802</td><td>776</td><td>17</td><td>10</td><td>1</td></tr></table> The diseases generally treated were fevers, consumption, catarrh, dropsy, indigestion, plurisy, &c. and the different diseases of the skin, viz. itch, scurvy, &c.	Number Admitted.	Cured.	Relieved	Died.	Result unknown.	1830 - - 933	892	31	8	2	1831 - - 1,054	994	44	14	2	1832 - - 802	776	17	10	1	1831 - - - - - 1,835 1832 - - - - - 1,410 1833 - - - - - 1,263 Indigestion, fever, bowel complaints, dropsy, diseases of the lungs, rheumatism, epilepsy, diseases of the skin, ague, ulcers, wounds, fractures, dislocations, and difficult labours.
Number Admitted.	Cured.	Relieved	Died.	Result unknown.
1830 - - 933	892	31	8	2
1831 - - 1,054	994	44	14	2
1832 - - 802	776	17	10	1
No person if known.	Very rarely.	Sometimes; very seldom.
Formerly by Mr. Marshall, Belfast, lately by the Apothecaries' Company, Glasgow.	By Jonathan Hill, druggist, Dublin, and paid for out of the general fund. for the ensuing quarter; such list is ordered by the committee, under signature of the chairman, from a druggist in Dublin; the medicines are dispensed by the medical officer, who may be required to satisfy the committee by affidavit that such medicines are applied to the use of the dispensary patients and to no other.	The medical officer furnishes at each quarterly meeting of committee a list of such medicines as he thinks may be required for the use of the dispensary
<table><tr><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>1830 - - £ 74 1 7</td><td>£. 66 1 7½</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - - 76 8 7</td><td>59 1 0</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - - 98 15 1</td><td>107 14 2</td></tr></table>	Receipt.	Expenditure.	1830 - - £ 74 1 7	£. 66 1 7½	1831 - - 76 8 7	59 1 0	1832 - - 98 15 1	107 14 2	<table><tr><th colspan="3">RECEIPT.</th></tr><tr><th>Subscription.</th><th>Presentment.</th><th>Total.</th></tr><tr><td>1830 - - £. 62 16 10½</td><td>31 8 5</td><td>94 5 3½</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - - 50 12 10½</td><td>37 10 0</td><td>88 2 10½</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - - 70 13 7½</td><td>70 13 7½</td><td>141 7 3</td></tr></table> <table><tr><th colspan="3">GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.</th></tr><tr><th>1830.</th><th>1831.</th><th>1832.</th></tr><tr><td>Surgeon's Salary £. 42 0 0</td><td>42 0 0</td><td>42 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Visits - - 4 15 0</td><td>4 10 0</td><td>9 15 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine, &c. - 28 5 6½</td><td>34 13 10½</td><td>48 16 2½</td></tr><tr><td>Rent - - 12 0 0</td><td>8 0 0</td><td>8 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>£. 87 0 6½</td><td>89 3 10½</td><td>108 11 2½</td></tr></table>	RECEIPT.			Subscription.	Presentment.	Total.	1830 - - £. 62 16 10½	31 8 5	94 5 3½	1831 - - 50 12 10½	37 10 0	88 2 10½	1832 - - 70 13 7½	70 13 7½	141 7 3	GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.			1830.	1831.	1832.	Surgeon's Salary £. 42 0 0	42 0 0	42 0 0	Visits - - 4 15 0	4 10 0	9 15 0	Medicine, &c. - 28 5 6½	34 13 10½	48 16 2½	Rent - - 12 0 0	8 0 0	8 0 0	£. 87 0 6½	89 3 10½	108 11 2½	<table><tr><th colspan="2">Receipt.</th></tr><tr><td>1831 - - - - - £. 83 3 0</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>1832 - - - - - 116 11 6</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>1833 - - - - - 81 19 0</td><td></td></tr></table> The expenditure consists in paying the medical officer, the rent of the dispensaries at Warrenpoint and Rosstrevor, the druggists bills for medicine, the midwife for labour cases, and printing tickets of recommendation, advertising, stationary, &c.	Receipt.		1831 - - - - - £. 83 3 0		1832 - - - - - 116 11 6		1833 - - - - - 81 19 0
Receipt.	Expenditure.
1830 - - £ 74 1 7	£. 66 1 7½
1831 - - 76 8 7	59 1 0
1832 - - 98 15 1	107 14 2
RECEIPT.
Subscription.	Presentment.	Total.
1830 - - £. 62 16 10½	31 8 5	94 5 3½
1831 - - 50 12 10½	37 10 0	88 2 10½
1832 - - 70 13 7½	70 13 7½	141 7 3
GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.
1830.	1831.	1832.
Surgeon's Salary £. 42 0 0	42 0 0	42 0 0
Visits - - 4 15 0	4 10 0	9 15 0
Medicine, &c. - 28 5 6½	34 13 10½	48 16 2½
Rent - - 12 0 0	8 0 0	8 0 0
£. 87 0 6½	89 3 10½	108 11 2½
Receipt.
1831 - - - - - £. 83 3 0
1832 - - - - - 116 11 6
1833 - - - - - 81 19 0
By subscriptions, and presentments obtained at the county assizes.	By private subscriptions, and presentments from county Down.	It is supported by voluntary annual subscriptions of private individuals, and by presentments obtained from the county of Down only.
No alteration could be made for the better, as the utmost economy has been pursued, otherwise we could not have met our engagements.	I cannot.	I cannot.

ULSTER—FERMANAGH.

Brookborough and Magherastephana Dispensary.	Churchhill Dispensary.	Holy Well Dispensary.
John West, Esq. Surgeon.	James Wilkin, Esq. Medical Attendant.	John Fogarty, Esq. M.D.
Brookborough and Magherastephana Dispensary, established in 1819.	Churchhill Dispensary, established March 1829; a branch of the above dispensary was opened at Roosky, five miles distant, March 1832. Roosky is in the parish of Devonish.	Holy Well Dispensary, established in the year 1827.
My principal business is confined to the parishes of Aughavea and Aughalurcher, in the county Fermanagh.	Two parishes, both in Fermanagh.	A part of three parishes, two of which are in Fermanagh and the other in Cavan.
The Maguiresbridge and Lisnaskea Dispensaries are within three miles of this.	The County Infirmary at Enniskillen.	County Fermanagh Infirmary.
There is no hospital or infirmary in the district.	None.	None.
I only attend the one dispensary, which I attend three days in the week.	None but Churchhill and the Roosky branch; two days at Churchhill and one at Roosky every week; salary for both, 60 L. per annum.	None.
I give my personal attendance in every case requiring it.	Attendance is given at the houses of such patients as are certified to require it by two subscribers.	I do, when ordered by a subscriber.
There is no register kept, except the entry of the names of the applicants, their diseases, and by whom recommended.	There is a register kept of all patients, cases, prescriptions, visits and results.	I kept no registry.
As this would require more time than I could at present spare, I must decline an answer.	<table><tr><td>Churchhill.</td><td>Roosky.</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - - 1,194</td><td>1832 - - 524</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - - 1,128</td><td>1833 - - 540</td></tr><tr><td>1833 - - 1,032</td><td></td></tr></table>	Churchhill.	Roosky.	1831 - - 1,194	1832 - - 524	1832 - - 1,128	1833 - - 540	1833 - - 1,032		<table><tr><td>1831</td><td>1832</td><td>1833</td></tr><tr><td>—</td><td>—</td><td>—</td></tr></table>	1831	1832	1833	—	—	—
Churchhill.	Roosky.
1831 - - 1,194	1832 - - 524
1832 - - 1,128	1833 - - 540
1833 - - 1,032
1831	1832	1833
—	—	—
There may be a few, but not many.	No.	In some instances they have; living ten miles and upwards from any town, but in no instance was money taken.
The medicines are purchased from P. A. & C. Leslie's, 40, Bride-street, Dublin, and paid for by the treasurer of the dispensary.	They are purchased from Mr. Hugh Henderson, druggist, Enniskillen.	By Hugh Collum, an extensive druggist in Enniskillen.
The receipts generally about 82 L. per year; viz. 42 L. by private subscription, and 40 L. from the county. Surgeon's salary, 60 L. ; medicines, 22 L.	<table><tr><td>Subscription.</td><td>Presentment.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - - 68 0 11½</td><td>50 0 0</td><td>118 10 1</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - - 71 16 11</td><td>50 0 0</td><td>118 0 9½</td></tr><tr><td>1833 - - 69 3 0</td><td>50 0 0</td><td>—</td></tr></table>	Subscription.	Presentment.	Expenditure.	1831 - - 68 0 11½	50 0 0	118 10 1	1832 - - 71 16 11	50 0 0	118 0 9½	1833 - - 69 3 0	50 0 0	—	The average expenditure has been for the last three years between 70 L. and 80 L. in medicine, medical attendance and other necessities.
Subscription.	Presentment.	Expenditure.
1831 - - 68 0 11½	50 0 0	118 10 1
1832 - - 71 16 11	50 0 0	118 0 9½
1833 - - 69 3 0	50 0 0	—
By private subscription and presentment.	By voluntary contributions and presentment from the grand jury of the county Fermanagh.	By presentment from Fermanagh, and private subscriptions.
I cannot point out a better mode than is adopted.	No.	If there were sufficient funds, it would be desirable to procure comfortable clothing.

ULSTER—FERMANAGH.

Kesh Dispensary.	Maguiresbridge and Lisnaskea Dispensary.	Rosslea Dispensary.
W. Johnstone, Esq., Surgeon.	Thomas M'Neece, Esq., Surgeon, R.N.	Committee and Medical Attendant.
Only one dispensary at Kesh for the relief of the sick poor, established nine years.	Maguiresbridge and Lisnaskea Dispensary, established in the month of March 1819, for the distribution of gratuitous medicines to the poor.	Rosslea Dispensary; only one; object, to supply the poor with medicine and medical attendance; established in June 1819.
Two parishes and a part of a third, all in the same county.	Parish of Aughalurcher, part of Aughavea, and part of Galoon, all in same county.	There is only a division of the parish of Clones. All in the same county.
One dispensary only, at Pettigo, in the adjoining county of Donegal.	The County Infirmary, Brookborough and Newtownbutler Dispensaries.	Clones Dispensary, Scotstown Dispensary, and the infirmary at Monaghan.
No.	None.	There is no dispensary attached to any hospital or infirmary within my district.
I do not.	One, namely, Maguiresbridge and Lisnaskea. Residence at Maguiresbridge, two miles from Lisnaskea. Salary, 60 l. per annum. Three days' attendance in each week.	I attend only one dispensary; the distance from my residence one mile. The amount of salary paid, 27 l. sterling. Attendance two days each week.
I do.	I have visited in all cases requiring medical and surgical aid, since the commencement of the institution, without any compensation beyond the annual salary of 60 l.	I consider it my duty in all cases, whenever medical or surgical aid is required, to give my own personal attendance.
A regular register kept of all patients admitted, the nature of their diseases being inserted.	A registry has been kept; the result in many cases could not be ascertained.	There is a regular registry kept of all the cases where application has been made for aid. Those applications have been disposed of according to the direction given by the medical attendant, and in general with a good result.
1831 - - - 2,331 1832 - - - 2,294 1833 - - - 2,500 Fevers, consumptions, scrofula, labour, dyspepsia, &c. &c.	11,239 have received aid within the last three years, and 1,240 have been visited at their own houses within the same period. Fevers, catarrhs, accidents, rheumatism, &c. &c. have been prevalent.	The number of persons relieved within the last three years amount to 4,892. Diseases treated: pleurisy, rheumatism, fever, diarrhoea, dropsy, quinsy, ascarides, phthisis, dyspepsia, ophthalmia, hepatitis, &c.
This depends upon the recommendation of the subscribers, who conceive them as persons whose means are too limited to provide medicine and attendance for themselves.	Never; at least especial care has been taken to guard against such abuse.	It sometimes does occur that persons participate in the benefit of the charity that do not require such assistance, though but seldom.
By a druggist of respectability.	By funds obtained by presentments and private subscriptions. Medicines supplied by Messrs. Leslie & Co., Dublin.	The medicines are supplied by the treasurer from a Dublin druggist, by the amount of or subscriptions.
	<table> <tr> <th></th><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr> <tr> <td>1831 -</td><td>£. 114 4 9½</td><td>£. 114 4 9½</td></tr> <tr> <td>1832 -</td><td>121 9 2½</td><td>121 9 2½</td></tr> <tr> <td>1833 about -</td><td>121 0 0</td><td>—</td></tr> </table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. Surgeon's Salary, Medicine, House-rent, &c. &c.		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831 -	£. 114 4 9½	£. 114 4 9½	1832 -	121 9 2½	121 9 2½	1833 about -	121 0 0	—	<table> <tr> <th></th><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr> <tr> <td>1830 -</td><td>£. 39 17 2½</td><td>£. 39 17 2½</td></tr> <tr> <td>1831 -</td><td>39 13 9</td><td>39 13 9</td></tr> <tr> <td>1832 -</td><td>40 4 10</td><td>40 4 10</td></tr> </table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.—Medicine and Medical Attendance.		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1830 -	£. 39 17 2½	£. 39 17 2½	1831 -	39 13 9	39 13 9	1832 -	40 4 10	40 4 10
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831 -	£. 114 4 9½	£. 114 4 9½
1832 -	121 9 2½	121 9 2½
1833 about -	121 0 0	—
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1830 -	£. 39 17 2½	£. 39 17 2½
1831 -	39 13 9	39 13 9
1832 -	40 4 10	40 4 10
By voluntary contribution, assisted by a county presentment.	By presentments from county Fermanagh only, and by private subscriptions.	Supported by presentments, and subscription obtained from only one county.
None.	With the present limited funds, we cannot suggest any improvement, at the same time observing that nutritious food would be very requisite for those in a convalescent state, if means were supplied for providing it.	No; I think the funds of our establishment are laid out in the most efficient way for the relief of the poor.

ULSTER—LONDONDERRY.

Aghadoey Dispensary.						Bellaghy Dispensary.						Dungiven Dispensary.
George Fullerton, Esq., M.D.						John Farrell, Esq., M.D.						William Moore, Esq., Surgeon.
The Aghadoey Dispensary.						Bellaghy Dispensary; established in May 1832.						Dungiven Dispensary.
The parish of Aghadoey only, in the county of Derry.						One; and the verges of all the subjacent parishes.						Three large parishes, and part of a fourth, in the same county.
The Coleraine, Ballymoney, Derrick, Kilrea and Garvagh public Dispensaries.						There are no hospitals or infirmaries, but several dispensaries; viz. Castledawson, Ballyronan, which are branches of Magherafelt Dispensary; Maghera, Money more and Suattenhaugh. having a resident surgeon, with a salary of 100 l. per annum, the medicines are provided at the sole expense of the company.						At Newtown Limavady, seven miles; Garvagh, nine miles; Maghera, nine miles; all supported by private subscriptions. There are two excellent establishments also near this, on an estate belonging to the Fishmongers' Company of London, each having a resident surgeon, with a salary of 100 l. per annum, the medicines are provided at the sole expense of the company.
None.						None.						There is no other within my immediate district.
The Aghadoey Dispensary only, from eleven till two o'clock, on Tuesdays and Fridays; but when called on, I am required to give medicine at any time.						Only one here where I reside. The salary was 45 l. , but has been augmented to 50 l. per annum; but there is no allowance for horse, house-rent, &c. whatever.						One only. Attended two days in the week statedly.
Certainly.						Certainly, if recommended by a subscriber.						Yes, in every instance.
Yes.						All cases are entered in the dispensary book, and receive attendance and medicine.						A regular account is kept of all applications for aid, and of the result, as far as can be ascertained.
<table><tr><td>Number.</td><td>Relieved.</td><td>Cured</td><td>Incurable.</td><td>Died.</td><td>Remaining.</td></tr><tr><td>706</td><td>128</td><td>478</td><td>31</td><td>35</td><td>44</td></tr></table> Visits paid at patients houses, 512.						Number.	Relieved.	Cured	Incurable.	Died.	Remaining.	706	128	478	31	35	44	This dispensary has been but eighteen months established. Average number of patients about 1,200 per annum; but patients are much more numerous during the last three months.						There have been entered on the books, during the last three years, 4,453; and 1,050 vaccinated. The deaths do not quite average two per cent. Cutaneous diseases are of most frequent occurrence; next fevers; then dyspepsia and other affections of the stomach; next affections of the chest, &c.
Number.	Relieved.	Cured	Incurable.	Died.	Remaining.
706	128	478	31	35	44
It does occasionally, but such impositions are guarded against as much as possible.						Frequently.						Our limited funds oblige us to exclude all, or nearly all, but the very poor.
Each person subscribing a guinea is furnished with printed recommendations, and any patient who presents one of these, signed by a subscriber, is entitled to assistance.						Principally from Glasgow Apothecaries' Company, and paid out of the general fund.						Medicines are ordered by the committee from a druggist, which has latterly been a Scotch house.
<table><tr><td colspan="3">Receipt.</td><td colspan="3">Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>£.</td><td>s. d.</td><td>£.</td><td>s. d.</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>118</td><td>0</td><td>0</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><td></td><td>£.</td><td>s.</td><td>d.</td></tr><tr><td>Surgeon's salary -</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>73 10 0</td></tr><tr><td>Drugs -</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>36 10 9</td></tr><tr><td>House-rent and fuel -</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>5 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Miscellaneous -</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>2 19 3</td></tr></table>						Receipt.			Expenditure.				£.	s. d.	£.	s. d.		1832	-	-	118	0	0		£.	s.	d.	Surgeon's salary -	-	-	73 10 0	Drugs -	-	-	36 10 9	House-rent and fuel -	-	-	5 0 0	Miscellaneous -	-	-	2 19 3	Receipt, 115 l. ; Expenditure for medicines, &c. 38 l. ; Salary to medical attendant, 45 l. Surplus remains in treasurer's hands unappropriated.						<table><tr><td colspan="3">Receipt.</td><td colspan="3">TOTAL.</td></tr><tr><td>Subscription.</td><td>Presentment.</td><td></td><td></td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>1831 - £. 56 19 0</td><td>30 0 0</td><td></td><td>100</td><td>13</td><td>6</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - 46 3 0</td><td>56 19 0</td><td></td><td>101</td><td>19</td><td>9</td></tr><tr><td>1833 - 45 19 6</td><td>40 3 0</td><td></td><td>84</td><td>8</td><td>0</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><td></td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td><td>1833.</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine -</td><td>£. 56 13 6</td><td>57 19 9</td><td>40 8 0</td></tr><tr><td>Surgeon's salary -</td><td>40 0 0</td><td>40 0 0</td><td>40 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>House-rent</td><td>4 0 0</td><td>4 0 0</td><td>4 0 0</td></tr></table>						Receipt.			TOTAL.			Subscription.	Presentment.					1831 - £. 56 19 0	30 0 0		100	13	6	1832 - 46 3 0	56 19 0		101	19	9	1833 - 45 19 6	40 3 0		84	8	0		1831.	1832.	1833.	Medicine -	£. 56 13 6	57 19 9	40 8 0	Surgeon's salary -	40 0 0	40 0 0	40 0 0	House-rent	4 0 0	4 0 0	4 0 0
Receipt.			Expenditure.
	£.	s. d.	£.	s. d.
1832	-	-	118	0	0
	£.	s.	d.
Surgeon's salary -	-	-	73 10 0
Drugs -	-	-	36 10 9
House-rent and fuel -	-	-	5 0 0
Miscellaneous -	-	-	2 19 3
Receipt.			TOTAL.
Subscription.	Presentment.
1831 - £. 56 19 0	30 0 0		100	13	6
1832 - 46 3 0	56 19 0		101	19	9
1833 - 45 19 6	40 3 0		84	8	0
	1831.	1832.	1833.
Medicine -	£. 56 13 6	57 19 9	40 8 0
Surgeon's salary -	40 0 0	40 0 0	40 0 0
House-rent	4 0 0	4 0 0	4 0 0
By subscriptions in part, and partly by presentments obtained only from the county of Derry.						By subscription and presentments from one county.						By private subscriptions. The grand jury presenting in aid to be levied off the county.
Every expenditure is conducted on the most economical plan, consistent with the advantage of the patients; nor am I aware that any alteration would be an improvement.						If subscriptions were received from persons willing to subscribe, and exertions made to procure others, the bounds of the district enlarged, and a salary attached which might induce (as there is little private practice, from the poverty of the neighbourhood,) a respectable medical man to reside, much more good might be effected.						None.

ULSTER—LONDONDERRY.

Garvagh Dispensary.	Glendermott Dispensary.	Londonderry Dispensary.
Mathew Robinson, Esq., Surgeon.	John Semple, Esq., Surgeon.	Alexander Skipton, Esq., M.D.
The Garvagh Dispensary; only one dispensary under my care.	A dispensary in and for the parish of Glendermott; established in 1817, to afford medicine and medical advice to the poor of the parish. I also attend a dispensary in Cumber for same purpose.	The Londonderry Dispensary only.
The parishes of Errigle, Aghadowey and Desertoghill; but last year a dispensary was erected in the parish of Aghadowey.	The parishes of Glendermott and Lower Cumber, being separate establishments; both in the county of Derry.	The Londonderry Dispensary includes (part of one parish) the city, suburbs and liberties of Londonderry, being part of the parish of Templemore.
There is no hospital or infirmary within tenmiles; there are dispensaries in Coleraine, eight miles distant; Newtown Limavady, ten miles; Dungiven, nine miles; Maghera, eight miles; Ballymoney, eight miles; and one erected last year in Aghadowey; all supported as this is. The Worshipful Company of Mercers have two erected on their estate, for the benefit of their tenantry only, and, I believe, supported entirely at their own expense; they are situated in Kilrea and Swatragh, each five miles off.	There is the County Infirmary; a dispensary in the city of Derry; a dispensary in each of the parishes of Faughanvale and Donaghedy, and one for part of Upper Cumber, comprising a district of about ten miles.	The Infirmary of the county of Londonderry, the Muff, the Taughboyne, the Glendermott, the Upper Cumber, the Lower Cumber, the Faughanvale, and the Donaghedy Dispensaries.
There is no hospital or infirmary within the district.	There is the County Infirmary, receiving a few patients from our parishes; there is no dispensary.	None.
I attend only the one.	I attend a dispensary in Glendermott, distant from my residence about a mile; one in Lower Cumber, distant three miles; the one paying annually forty, the other thirty pounds; I attend each dispensary two days in the week.	Only one dispensary, which is within a quarter of a mile of my residence; I attend it three days in the week, and receive 100 £. per annum.
I do in all cases; even in midwifery cases.	I consider it my duty in urgent cases to visit the patients at their own houses, when required so to do.	It is the duty of the surgeon to attend in all such cases on receiving a recommendation from a subscriber.
There is a regular register kept of all cases where application has been made for medical aid which is inspected by the committee of subscribers monthly; latterly the committee only have met quarterly.	There is an entry made of all cases; the result is generally known.	A register is kept at the dispensary, stating the patient's name, number of dispensations, residence, disease, by whom recommended, the number of visits paid, and the result of the case.
During the last three years there have been medicine and medical attendance given to 3,626 patients.	<table><tr><td>Relieved.</td><td>Reported Incurable.</td><td>Died.</td><td>Total Recommended.</td></tr><tr><td>—</td><td>—</td><td>—</td><td>—</td></tr><tr><td>4,948</td><td>26</td><td>85</td><td>5,059</td></tr></table> Dyspeptic complaints, epidemic diseases, and those of the chest, prevailed most.	Relieved.	Reported Incurable.	Died.	Total Recommended.	—	—	—	—	4,948	26	85	5,059	<table><tr><td>Number Recommended.</td><td>Number of Dispensations of Medicine.</td><td>Number of gratuitous Visits.</td><td>Number of Women delivered by Midwife.</td></tr><tr><td>—</td><td>—</td><td>—</td><td>—</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - 1,082</td><td>15,104</td><td>396</td><td>141</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - 1,326</td><td>18,779</td><td>1,154</td><td>153</td></tr><tr><td>1833 - 1,088</td><td>21,454</td><td>1,162</td><td>150</td></tr></table>	Number Recommended.	Number of Dispensations of Medicine.	Number of gratuitous Visits.	Number of Women delivered by Midwife.	—	—	—	—	1831 - 1,082	15,104	396	141	1832 - 1,326	18,779	1,154	153	1833 - 1,088	21,454	1,162	150
Relieved.	Reported Incurable.	Died.	Total Recommended.
—	—	—	—
4,948	26	85	5,059
Number Recommended.	Number of Dispensations of Medicine.	Number of gratuitous Visits.	Number of Women delivered by Midwife.
—	—	—	—
1831 - 1,082	15,104	396	141
1832 - 1,326	18,779	1,154	153
1833 - 1,088	21,454	1,162	150
In some instances, but latterly not often.	I think it has occurred that persons have been recommended to and participated in the benefits of our charity who were not proper objects, but it has rarely happened.	It may occasionally happen, but vigilance is used by the surgeon and committee to prevent such occurrences.
From a wholesale druggist in Belfast, ordered by the committee through me.	From the general fund.	By a wholesale druggist.
The Receipt and Expenditure for the last three years have been about 100£. annually. GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. Salary - - - £. 68 0 0 Medicine - - - 28 0 0 Rent - - - 2 10 0 Sundries - - - 3 0 0	<table><tr><td colspan="2">Receipt.</td><td colspan="2">Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1830 -</td><td>£. 70 3 6</td><td>£. 90 7 8</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>1831 -</td><td>- 104 18 0</td><td>- 105 10 4</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>1832 -</td><td>- 120 2 6</td><td>- 94 17 9</td><td></td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE <table><tr><td>1830.</td><td>1831.</td><td>1832. *</td></tr><tr><td>Salary - £. 40 0 0</td><td>40 0 0</td><td>40 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine - 42 12 6</td><td>59 0 8</td><td>52 2 8</td></tr><tr><td>Sundries - 3 11 1</td><td>2 5 8</td><td>2 15 1</td></tr></table> * In this year a new house was built for the dispensary, which cost 57 £. 6 s., received by subscription in the parish.	Receipt.		Expenditure.		1830 -	£. 70 3 6	£. 90 7 8		1831 -	- 104 18 0	- 105 10 4		1832 -	- 120 2 6	- 94 17 9		1830.	1831.	1832. *	Salary - £. 40 0 0	40 0 0	40 0 0	Medicine - 42 12 6	59 0 8	52 2 8	Sundries - 3 11 1	2 5 8	2 15 1	<table><tr><td colspan="2">Receipt.</td><td colspan="2">Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1831 -</td><td>£. 229 1 6</td><td>£. 212 17 11 1/2</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>1832 -</td><td>- 194 4 0</td><td>221 5 6</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>1833 -</td><td>- 243 0 0</td><td>278 12 9</td><td></td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td><td>1833.</td></tr><tr><td>Salaries, £. 106 7 0</td><td>133 15 0</td><td>133 3 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine - 70 9 10 1/2</td><td>50 11 0</td><td>98 19 8</td></tr><tr><td>Rent - - 23 1 6</td><td>23 1 6</td><td>23 1 6</td></tr><tr><td>Contingencies 12 19 7</td><td>13 18 0</td><td>23 8 7</td></tr></table>	Receipt.		Expenditure.		1831 -	£. 229 1 6	£. 212 17 11 1/2		1832 -	- 194 4 0	221 5 6		1833 -	- 243 0 0	278 12 9		1831.	1832.	1833.	Salaries, £. 106 7 0	133 15 0	133 3 0	Medicine - 70 9 10 1/2	50 11 0	98 19 8	Rent - - 23 1 6	23 1 6	23 1 6	Contingencies 12 19 7	13 18 0	23 8 7
Receipt.		Expenditure.
1830 -	£. 70 3 6	£. 90 7 8
1831 -	- 104 18 0	- 105 10 4
1832 -	- 120 2 6	- 94 17 9
1830.	1831.	1832. *
Salary - £. 40 0 0	40 0 0	40 0 0
Medicine - 42 12 6	59 0 8	52 2 8
Sundries - 3 11 1	2 5 8	2 15 1
Receipt.		Expenditure.
1831 -	£. 229 1 6	£. 212 17 11 1/2
1832 -	- 194 4 0	221 5 6
1833 -	- 243 0 0	278 12 9
1831.	1832.	1833.
Salaries, £. 106 7 0	133 15 0	133 3 0
Medicine - 70 9 10 1/2	50 11 0	98 19 8
Rent - - 23 1 6	23 1 6	23 1 6
Contingencies 12 19 7	13 18 0	23 8 7
By voluntary contributions, aided by presentments from the county alone in which it is situated, and which presentment generally amounts to, but never exceeds, the voluntary contributions.	By subscriptions from different individuals, a sum usually equivalent being obtained by presentment from the county of Londonderry.	It is supported by voluntary subscription, and by presentment, obtained from the county of Londonderry alone.
I am not aware that I could suggest any material beneficial alteration to the commissioners.	I cannot suggest any alteration in the distribution of our funds, by which the same sum would become more efficient for the relief of the poor.	I cannot suggest any such alteration.

ULSTER—LONDONDERRY—TYRONE.

Lower and Upper Cumber Dispensary.	Maghera Dispensary.	Magherafelt Dispensary.
John Semple, Esq., Surgeon.	—	Robert Evans, Esq., M. D.
A dispensary for Lower, and a small part of Upper Cumber, to afford medicine and medical advice to the poor; established 1817.	Maghera Dispensary, established 2d May 1827.	No hospital or infirmary, but a dispensary. Magherafelt Dispensary, with two branches, one at Castledawson and the other at Ballyronan; all three supported from one general fund. This is the fifth year.
The parish of Lower, a small part of Upper Cumber, and the parish of Glendermott, all in the county of Londonderry.	Four extensive parishes and part of a fifth, all in the same county.	Magherafelt, Ardtrea, Moneymore, Desertmartin, Ballinderry, part of Ballyscullin, part of Maghera, and all these in Londonderry; a part of Ballinderry in county Tyrone.
A county infirmary, a dispensary in the city of Derry, a dispensary in each of the parishes of Faughavale and Donaghedy, and a dispensary for another part of Upper Cumber, comprising a district of about ten miles.	Garvagh eight miles, Kilrea six miles, Bellaghy six miles, Magherafelt seven miles, Moneymore eight miles, Ballinascreen five miles, distant from Maghera.	A dispensary in the town of Maghera, near seven miles off; one lately established at Bellaghy, four miles off; one at Moneymore, four miles; one at Draperstown, six miles off; the two latter supported by the London Society of Drapers, for their own tenants only.
There is no dispensary attached to any hospital or infirmary within my district.	None.	There is no hospital or infirmary nearer than Londonderry, 30 miles off; my salary from the dispensary is 60 L.; some years 5 L., some 10 L. extra, towards feeding a horse, according as the funds afford it.
I attend a dispensary in Cumber, distant from my residence about three miles; one in Glendermott, distant about a mile; the one paying annually 30 L., the other 40 L.; I attend each dispensary two days in the week.	Only one; two days in each week, Wednesday and Saturday, from 10 o'clock till 4.	I attend the dispensaries as stated above; salary above. I attend three days in each week; one is two and the other four miles off.
I consider it my duty to visit the sick at their own houses, in urgent cases, when required so to do	Yes; the establishment is always open to give medical aid, though only two days are specified.	I punctually attend to all cases sent to my care, both medical and surgical; and visit such as I find necessary at their own houses.
There is an entry made of all cases; the result is usually known.	There has, since May 1833.	I keep no journal of treatment, nor is it possible, nor the result of cases as cured or dead; but I keep a regular book, in which is entered, under each subscriber's name, date of entry, person's name, place of residence, diseases, numbers monthly and yearly admitted under treatment.
4,504 have been recommended to the dispensary within the last three years; 64 of those died, 28 are supposed incurable, the remainder received more or less relief. Dyspeptic complaints, the usual epidemics, and diseases of the chest, prevailed most.	The average number is 80 cases each week.	<table><tr><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td><td>1833.</td></tr><tr><td>1,653</td><td>1,983</td><td>2,087</td></tr></table> Diseases are various; fevers, nervous diseases, fluxes, stomach complaints, accidents, &c.	1831.	1832.	1833.	1,653	1,983	2,087
1831.	1832.	1833.
1,653	1,983	2,087
I think it has occurred that persons have been recommended to, and participated in, the benefits of our charity, who were not proper objects, and occasionally for convenience-sake, but it has seldom happened.	No. none but objects of distress and pity, requiring my professional aid. Patients from various distant places attend this dispensary.	Some solitary cases of such are sent to me, but the governors are in general particular in sending
From the general fund.	They are purchased with the funds of the institution from Mr. M'Adam, druggist, Belfast.	The medicines are bought of a druggist in Belfast and paid from the general fund by the treasurer.
<table><tr><th></th><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>1830</td><td>£. 74 5 4</td><td>£. 80 16 6</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>80 0 0</td><td>99 5 4</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>80 0 8</td><td>93 5 7</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><th></th><th>1830.</th><th>1831.</th><th>1832.</th></tr><tr><td>Salary</td><td>£. 30 0 0</td><td>30 0 0</td><td>30 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine</td><td>47 4 6</td><td>66 2 3</td><td>56 3 2</td></tr><tr><td>Contingencies</td><td>3 12 0</td><td>3 3 1</td><td>7 2 5</td></tr></table>		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1830	£. 74 5 4	£. 80 16 6	1831	80 0 0	99 5 4	1832	80 0 8	93 5 7		1830.	1831.	1832.	Salary	£. 30 0 0	30 0 0	30 0 0	Medicine	47 4 6	66 2 3	56 3 2	Contingencies	3 12 0	3 3 1	7 2 5	<table><tr><th></th><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>£. 69 19 4½</td><td>£. 63 18 11</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>76 10 5½</td><td>76 5 4½</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>90 13 0</td><td>74 6 1½</td></tr></table> The above expenditure is for medical attendance, medicine, and other dispensary requisites.		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831	£. 69 19 4½	£. 63 18 11	1832	76 10 5½	76 5 4½	1833	90 13 0	74 6 1½	<table><tr><th></th><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>£. 113 7 6</td><td>£. 109 13 0½</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>119 17 0</td><td>130 11 1½</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>124 6 6</td><td>122 19 0</td></tr></table>		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831	£. 113 7 6	£. 109 13 0½	1832	119 17 0	130 11 1½	1833	124 6 6	122 19 0
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1830	£. 74 5 4	£. 80 16 6
1831	80 0 0	99 5 4
1832	80 0 8	93 5 7
	1830.	1831.	1832.
Salary	£. 30 0 0	30 0 0	30 0 0
Medicine	47 4 6	66 2 3	56 3 2
Contingencies	3 12 0	3 3 1	7 2 5
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831	£. 69 19 4½	£. 63 18 11
1832	76 10 5½	76 5 4½
1833	90 13 0	74 6 1½
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831	£. 113 7 6	£. 109 13 0½
1832	119 17 0	130 11 1½
1833	124 6 6	122 19 0
By subscription from different individuals, a sum usually equivalent being obtained by presentment from the grand jury of the county of Londonderry.	By subscriptions, and a sum equal to them obtained by presentment from the grand jury of Derry.	It is supported by private subscriptions, largely and liberally, by the rectors and some of their curates, and other gentlemen, from this county only, and by presentment. No other denomination of clergymen contribute to it.
I cannot suggest any alteration in the distribution of our funds, by which the same sum would become more efficient for the relief of the poor.	No. I in general apply to the rector's, and other charitable families in this town, for occasional aid, to relieve the temporary wants of distressed objects in our immediate vicinity. A plateful of oatmeal, to make gruel, to a sick person who cannot procure it, is a great gratuity.	The funds are merely adequate, under great economy on my part, to meet the demands for medicine, occasionally wine, calico for bandages, &c.; one year we set apart 5 L. for flannel for the asthmatic.

ULSTER—LONDONDERRY—MONAGHAN.

Muff Dispensary.	Worshipful Drapers' Dispensary and Ballinascreen Dispensary.	Ballybay Dispensary.
James Burnside, Esq., Surgeon.	John Savage, Esq., Surgeon.	D. Williamson, Esq., Medical Attendant.
Muff Dispensary, in the parish of Faughanvale, established in September 1822, by the Worshipful Company of Grocers of London.	First, the Worshipful Drapers' Dispensary, established in 1819, for the relief of their tenantry. Secondly, Ballinascreen Dispensary, established in 1829, general.	Ballybay Dispensary, established in the year 1824.
The parish of Faughanvale, part of the parish of Glendermott and part of the parish of Cumber.	The entire of Ballinascreen parish, part of Kilcronaghan, Desertmartin and Maghera, all in Londonderry.	Parish of Aughinamullen, Ballybay, Tullysorbit, and part of Clontibret, in the same county.
The County Infirmary, City Londonderry Dispensary, Glendermott Dispensary, Cumber Dispensary, Ballykelly Dispensary, Mulderg Dispensary and Newtown-Limavady Dispensary.	Dispensaries alone: Dungiven, Maghera, Money-more and Magherafelt.	Monaghan Infirmary, eight miles; Castleshane Dispensary, five miles; Carrickmacross Dispensary, ten miles; Rockcorry Dispensary, four miles.
None.	There is no hospital, infirmary or dispensary within my district.	None but the Ballybay Dispensary.
I attend the Muff Dispensary only two days in the week, but a constant resident in the parish.	The Drapers' Dispensary, two days in the week; salary, 130 £. per annum, with a house. Ballinascreen County Dispensary, one day in the week; salary, 40 £. Both in Draperstown, three quarters of a mile distant from my residence.	None but the Ballybay Dispensary, two days in each week, but visit them every day when called on; salary, 55 £.
I do in all cases of emergency.	In all cases save those of midwifery.	At all times where the case requires it, visit them at their own houses.
The register is kept of all who receive dispensary aid.	For the Drapers', we keep a register. The applications are noted for the benefit of the governors, and the result, I trust, not unsuccessful.	I have kept a regular register, specifying the patient's name, age and disease, the subscriber recommending, and the event of the disorder, when known.
The number dispensed to from January 1831 up to March 1834 was 11,227; no register kept of treatment.	<table><tr><td>1833, treated</td><td>- - - -</td><td>2,859</td></tr><tr><td>Cured and relieved</td><td>- - - -</td><td>2,599</td></tr><tr><td>Died</td><td>- - - -</td><td>35</td></tr></table> Fever, rheumatism and affections of the chest, dropsy and scrofula.	1833, treated	- - - -	2,859	Cured and relieved	- - - -	2,599	Died	- - - -	35	<table><tr><td></td><td>Relieved.</td><td>Visited.</td><td>Vaccinated.</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>- - 1,412</td><td>302</td><td>47</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>- - 1,283</td><td>314</td><td>37</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>- - * 914</td><td>208</td><td>—</td></tr></table> * During the last nine months, as our year does not close for three months hence.		Relieved.	Visited.	Vaccinated.	1831	- - 1,412	302	47	1832	- - 1,283	314	37	1833	- - * 914	208	—
1833, treated	- - - -	2,859
Cured and relieved	- - - -	2,599
Died	- - - -	35
	Relieved.	Visited.	Vaccinated.
1831	- - 1,412	302	47
1832	- - 1,283	314	37
1833	- - * 914	208	—
None, unless in cases of accidents or of sudden seizure.	On the Drapers' Estate, the tenantry, with very few exceptions, participate in the benefits of the charity and my advice, although intended alone for the poor.	The subscribers have encouraged me to extend my practice among that class of society who are able to pay a moderate remuneration for my services, but the medicines for such patients cannot be a charge on the charity.
They are supplied by the Glasgow Apothecaries' Hall, and paid for out of the fund of the institution by the treasurer.	The Drapers' Dispensary, from the Apothecaries' Hall.	By a wholesale druggist in Dublin, and compounded by myself.
<table><tr><td></td><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>- £. 187 5 7½</td><td>£. 175 15 3</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>- 143 2 10</td><td>100 6 8½</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>- 234 2 0</td><td>169 14 10</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.—Salary, Medicine, Stationary, &c.		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831	- £. 187 5 7½	£. 175 15 3	1832	- 143 2 10	100 6 8½	1833	- 234 2 0	169 14 10	The expenditure of the Drapers' about 100 £. per annum for medicines. The Ballinascreen, upwards of 40 £.	<table><tr><td></td><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>- £. 104 14 0</td><td>£. 105 3 0</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><td>Salary</td><td>- - £. 55 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine</td><td>- - 38 6 8</td></tr><tr><td>Rent</td><td>- - 9 9 0</td></tr><tr><td>Sundries</td><td>- - 2 7 4</td></tr></table> Those items were nearly the same last year; this year's accounts are not yet closed.		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831	- £. 104 14 0	£. 105 3 0	Salary	- - £. 55 0 0	Medicine	- - 38 6 8	Rent	- - 9 9 0	Sundries	- - 2 7 4
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831	- £. 187 5 7½	£. 175 15 3
1832	- 143 2 10	100 6 8½
1833	- 234 2 0	169 14 10
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831	- £. 104 14 0	£. 105 3 0
Salary	- - £. 55 0 0
Medicine	- - 38 6 8
Rent	- - 9 9 0
Sundries	- - 2 7 4
By the Grocers' Company at first, but now by subscription and presentment.	The first, by the Drapers solely; the second, by subscription, and by presentment from Derry alone.	By private subscriptions and county grant; county Monaghan alone.
No.	As the Drapers' Funds are under the management of a Board of Governors appointed by them, I cannot presume to dictate any alteration in the application of their charity. The only thing I could suggest with regard to the county dispensary would be an increase of funds to enable us to procure clothing and comforts for the poor.	Employment would keep the poor from getting into bad habits, which might be a great cause of preventing disease.

ULSTER—MONAGHAN.

Castleshane Dispensary.	Clones Dispensary.	Farney Dispensary.
A. M. M'Moran, Esq., M.D.	James Hurst, Esq., M.D.	R. H. Montgomery, Esq., M.D.
The name of the dispensary under my care is the Castleshane Dispensary, established in 1817; there is no other in its neighbourhood; the object is to administer medicine and medical advice to patients who are unable to pay. There are no beds for intern patients.	The Clones Dispensary, established upwards of 20 years.	The Farney Dispensary.
Three parishes are in the district, and a great part of two others; the dispensary circuit extends into the county Armagh.	There is no limited district, all persons having a recommendation from a subscriber being entitled to medicine and attendance.	Five, part of one is out of the county; this is out of my limits.
On the north-east it has the County Infirmary, distant four miles and a half; on the north-west, Ballymore Dispensary, eight miles; on the south, Ballybay Dispensary, ten miles; all in this county; and on the east it has Middleton Dispensary, seven miles distant, in the county Armagh.	There is only one dispensary established within ten miles of this, in the village of Roslea, about four miles off.	The Crossmaglen and Kingscourt Dispensaries.
I cannot say that any hospital, &c. is within my district; but the County Infirmary is on the borders, to which a dispensary for extern patients is attached. The salary of the surgeon (there is only one medical officer to our County Hospital, containing upwards of 40 beds) is 100 l. a year given by Government, and he is (as is the case generally in Ireland), surgeon also to the gaol, for which he has another 100 l. a year.	There is no hospital or infirmary in this neighbourhood. The salary for the medical gentleman for this dispensary is only 40 l. per annum.	There is not.
I attend only the Castleshane Dispensary; salary 50 l. a year. I attend two days in the week.	Attend only the one on Tuesday and Friday in each week; and reside in the town of Clones.	I attend but one dispensary, and in doing so find my time sufficiently occupied, as the district through which the poor are visited extends in some directions seven miles from the centre. Last year, 1833, 443 were visited; and in 1832, 457 visited.
It is my duty to visit at their own houses such patients as any of the subscribers or I may think so ill as to require a visit.	In every instance.	I do.
A register is kept, specifying in different columns the name, age, residence, by whom recommended, the disease, the medicine, &c. ordered, and the result when known; the latter must be imperfect where the patients are all extern.	There is an account kept of the number of applications each day; they average upwards of 100; the result is generally favourable; but in many cases it is impossible to tell.	Yes.
The number of patients prescribed for in the last three years ending January 1832, 4,868.	An average of upwards of 100 on each dispensary day, the chief diseases being dyspepsia, scrofula, diseases of the chest and dropsies.	<table><tr><td></td><td>1832.</td><td>1833.</td></tr><tr><td>Relieved -</td><td>2,817</td><td>2,773</td></tr><tr><td>Incurable -</td><td>21</td><td>23</td></tr><tr><td>Died -</td><td>28</td><td>31</td></tr><tr><td>In attendance</td><td>215</td><td>337</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>3,081</td><td>3,164</td></tr></table> During three months of last year there was no surgeon.		1832.	1833.	Relieved -	2,817	2,773	Incurable -	21	23	Died -	28	31	In attendance	215	337		3,081	3,164
	1832.	1833.
Relieved -	2,817	2,773
Incurable -	21	23
Died -	28	31
In attendance	215	337
	3,081	3,164
The subscribers to the Castleshane Dispensary are particularly cautious in giving recommendations to any but to those who are unable to pay for medicine or medical advice; of course they are sometimes deceived, but not often.	In very few cases.	If such persons can be detected I consider it my duty to withhold gratuitous assistance.
The medicines are supplied by a Dublin druggist, paid for from the funds of the dispensary; therefore I have no interest in giving to or withholding medicines from the patients.	By the subscribers; from a wholesale druggist in Dublin.	By a druggist, at the order of the treasurer.
<table><tr><td></td><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1830 -</td><td>£. 90 0 0</td><td>£. 114 9 7</td></tr><tr><td>1831 -</td><td>193 1 0</td><td>155 7 8</td></tr><tr><td>1832 -</td><td>105 12 0</td><td>115 12 4</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><td></td><td>1830.</td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td></tr><tr><td>Physician's salary</td><td>£. 50 0 0</td><td>50 0 0</td><td>50 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Rent, Wages, Fuel</td><td>8 4 0</td><td>8 2 2</td><td>5 15 10½</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine, &c.</td><td>54 5 9</td><td>47 3 5</td><td>56 4 2½</td></tr><tr><td>Sundries</td><td>1 19 10</td><td>4 12 6</td><td>3 12 3</td></tr><tr><td>Expense of Stable, &c.</td><td>-</td><td>21 0 0</td><td>-</td></tr></table>		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1830 -	£. 90 0 0	£. 114 9 7	1831 -	193 1 0	155 7 8	1832 -	105 12 0	115 12 4		1830.	1831.	1832.	Physician's salary	£. 50 0 0	50 0 0	50 0 0	Rent, Wages, Fuel	8 4 0	8 2 2	5 15 10½	Medicine, &c.	54 5 9	47 3 5	56 4 2½	Sundries	1 19 10	4 12 6	3 12 3	Expense of Stable, &c.	-	21 0 0	-	<table><tr><td></td><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1831 -</td><td>£. 85 5 3</td><td>£. 102 4 9</td></tr><tr><td>1832 -</td><td>92 17 7</td><td>108 18 5</td></tr><tr><td>1833 -</td><td>89 15 2½</td><td>116 0 8</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><td></td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td><td>1833.</td></tr><tr><td>Salaries -</td><td>£. 130 0 0</td><td>130 0 0</td><td>130 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine -</td><td>79 5 11</td><td>66 18 5</td><td>75 16 5</td></tr><tr><td>Rent, &c. -</td><td>32 3 9</td><td>34 8 3½</td><td>42 19 10</td></tr></table>		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831 -	£. 85 5 3	£. 102 4 9	1832 -	92 17 7	108 18 5	1833 -	89 15 2½	116 0 8		1831.	1832.	1833.	Salaries -	£. 130 0 0	130 0 0	130 0 0	Medicine -	79 5 11	66 18 5	75 16 5	Rent, &c. -	32 3 9	34 8 3½	42 19 10	<table><tr><td></td><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1831 -</td><td>£. 267 13 7</td><td>£. 241 9 8</td></tr><tr><td>1832 -</td><td>234 4 0</td><td>231 6 8½</td></tr><tr><td>1833 -</td><td>229 4 0</td><td>248 16 3</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><td></td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td><td>1833.</td></tr><tr><td>Salaries -</td><td>£. 130 0 0</td><td>130 0 0</td><td>130 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine -</td><td>79 5 11</td><td>66 18 5</td><td>75 16 5</td></tr><tr><td>Rent, &c. -</td><td>32 3 9</td><td>34 8 3½</td><td>42 19 10</td></tr></table>		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831 -	£. 267 13 7	£. 241 9 8	1832 -	234 4 0	231 6 8½	1833 -	229 4 0	248 16 3		1831.	1832.	1833.	Salaries -	£. 130 0 0	130 0 0	130 0 0	Medicine -	79 5 11	66 18 5	75 16 5	Rent, &c. -	32 3 9	34 8 3½	42 19 10
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1830 -	£. 90 0 0	£. 114 9 7
1831 -	193 1 0	155 7 8
1832 -	105 12 0	115 12 4
	1830.	1831.	1832.
Physician's salary	£. 50 0 0	50 0 0	50 0 0
Rent, Wages, Fuel	8 4 0	8 2 2	5 15 10½
Medicine, &c.	54 5 9	47 3 5	56 4 2½
Sundries	1 19 10	4 12 6	3 12 3
Expense of Stable, &c.	-	21 0 0	-
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831 -	£. 85 5 3	£. 102 4 9
1832 -	92 17 7	108 18 5
1833 -	89 15 2½	116 0 8
	1831.	1832.	1833.
Salaries -	£. 130 0 0	130 0 0	130 0 0
Medicine -	79 5 11	66 18 5	75 16 5
Rent, &c. -	32 3 9	34 8 3½	42 19 10
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831 -	£. 267 13 7	£. 241 9 8
1832 -	234 4 0	231 6 8½
1833 -	229 4 0	248 16 3
	1831.	1832.	1833.
Salaries -	£. 130 0 0	130 0 0	130 0 0
Medicine -	79 5 11	66 18 5	75 16 5
Rent, &c. -	32 3 9	34 8 3½	42 19 10
Supported by private subscriptions, and by presentments from grand jury, which are obtained solely from the county Monaghan Grand Jury.	By subscription, and presentment equal thereto, from the one county, viz. Monaghan.	By private subscription, and by a grant to an equal amount from the county Monaghan grand jury.
I can suggest no alteration in regard to the funds for this dispensary, as I believe few dispensaries have so accurate a secretary and treasurer.	The present plan of dispensaries appears to be particularly well adapted for the relief of the sick poor; all who are able to attend are relieved at the dispensary-house, and such as are unable being visited at their own houses, at least in this dispensary.	I cannot; but feel exceedingly the want of an hospital, being 20 miles from the County Infirmary. We are obliged to pay for the lodgings of those on whom I operate.

ULSTER—MONAGHAN.

Glasslough and Emyvale Dispensary.	Rockcorry Dispensary.	Scotstown Dispensary.
James Hoy, Esq., Surgeon.	The Committee.	Wm. Temple, Esq., M.D.
I superintend the Glasslough and Emyvale Dispensary, established 1818, for the objects of supplying the poor with medicine and medical attendance.	The Rockcorry Dispensary; established in the year 1824.	Scotstown Dispensary.
Two parishes, both in the same county.	There are three parishes, each situate in the county Monaghan.	Three parishes, all in the county of Monaghan.
Caledon, in Tyrone; Tynan and Middleton, Armagh; Castleshane and Scotstown, Monaghan; with the county infirmary.	County Infirmary, distant eight miles; Ballybay and Cootehill Dispensaries, each distant four miles; Clones, distant eight miles.	County Monaghan Infirmary, Castleshane Dispensary, Glasslough and Roslea.
There is no other hospital, infirmary or dispensary within my district.	There is none.	There are none.
The Glasslough and Emyvale Dispensary. The distance from Glasslough to Emyvale is three miles. Amount of salary, 25 l. for each day of attendance. Two days for each establishment in the week.	Only one dispensary, adjoining my own house. Salary, 30 l. Attendance on Tuesdays and Saturdays.	I attend the Scotstown Dispensary only, for which I am paid 50 l. a year. I attend two days in the week at the dispensary, and visit those in their houses that require it.
When I receive a visiting ticket from a subscriber, by the patient's friend, as is the custom, I always attend.	Certainly so.	I do.
A register is kept at each establishment of all cases recommended, with the result of each.	This has been regularly attended to.	There is a book kept at the dispensary, in which is entered the name, age, residence, by whom recommended and the disease of the patient. The result is seldom known at the dispensary.
Number of patients so relieved within the last three years, 698. Diseases generally treated were fevers, pneumonias, rheumatisms, exanthemas, ophthalmias, dropsies, accidents, &c.	Number of cases for the last three years, 5,646. Prevailing diseases, fevers, catarrhal affections, bowel complaints, small-pox, measles, &c.	There have been upwards of 2,300 patients relieved each of the last three years. The diseases were of the ordinary occurrence.
Persons do participate in the benefits of the institution by imposing on the credulity of the subscribers to the institution.	Abuses of this kind no doubt do sometimes occur.	Very seldom.
The medicines are supplied from the general funds of the establishment.	The dispensary, for the last three years, has been chiefly supplied by Clifford & Co., druggists, Dublin. Ordered by the managing committee when wanting, and paid out of the dispensary funds.	By a druggist in Monaghan, at the wholesale price (in Dublin).
The amount of Receipt of each year, 85 l. The Expenditure nearly similar, with some trifling variation; viz. salary, medicine, &c. &c.	<table><tr><td></td><td colspan="3">Receipt.</td><td colspan="3">Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>£.</td><td>s.</td><td>d.</td><td>£.</td><td>s.</td><td>d.</td></tr><tr><td>1830 - - -</td><td>68</td><td>14</td><td>0</td><td>71</td><td>10</td><td>7</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - - -</td><td>70</td><td>14</td><td>0</td><td>76</td><td>5</td><td>8½</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - - -</td><td>69</td><td>4</td><td>0</td><td>69</td><td>4</td><td>0</td></tr></table>		Receipt.			Expenditure.				£.	s.	d.	£.	s.	d.	1830 - - -	68	14	0	71	10	7	1831 - - -	70	14	0	76	5	8½	1832 - - -	69	4	0	69	4	0	<table><tr><td></td><td colspan="3">Receipt.</td><td colspan="3">Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>£.</td><td>s.</td><td>d.</td><td>£.</td><td>s.</td><td>d.</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - - -</td><td>99</td><td>16</td><td>0</td><td>99</td><td>16</td><td>1½</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - - -</td><td>99</td><td>16</td><td>0</td><td>99</td><td>11</td><td>0½</td></tr><tr><td>1833 - - -</td><td>104</td><td>0</td><td>0</td><td>98</td><td>19</td><td>5</td></tr></table>		Receipt.			Expenditure.				£.	s.	d.	£.	s.	d.	1831 - - -	99	16	0	99	16	1½	1832 - - -	99	16	0	99	11	0½	1833 - - -	104	0	0	98	19	5
	Receipt.			Expenditure.
	£.	s.	d.	£.	s.	d.
1830 - - -	68	14	0	71	10	7
1831 - - -	70	14	0	76	5	8½
1832 - - -	69	4	0	69	4	0
	Receipt.			Expenditure.
	£.	s.	d.	£.	s.	d.
1831 - - -	99	16	0	99	16	1½
1832 - - -	99	16	0	99	11	0½
1833 - - -	104	0	0	98	19	5
By grand jury presentments, and private contributions of the county of Monaghan.	By private subscription, and county presentment in the county Monaghan. The above always of equal amount.	By private subscription and county presentment.
I cannot suggest any alteration in the distribution of the funds of the establishment.	I do not see that any alteration could be made with advantage, from the limited amount of funds.	I cannot, as there is every care taken by the subscribers to appropriate the charity to the relief of the poor.

ULSTER—TYRONE.

Ardstraw Dispensary.	Augher and Clogher Dispensary.	Benburb Dispensary.
James Hamilton, Esq., Surgeon, R.N.	Richard Twigg, Esq., M.D.	M. N. Corry, Esq., M.D.
The Ardstraw Dispensary, established 24th February 1821.	The Augher and Clogher Dispensary.	The Benburb Dispensary is the only institution under my care, established the 1st of July 1831, for the relief of the poor.
The parish of Ardstraw alone.	The whole district is in the parish of Clogher.	The greater part of two parishes, namely, Drumsallin and Clonfeacle.
In Omagh there is the County Infirmary and a dispensary distant seven miles; in Strabane, a dispensary and a fever hospital, also seven miles distant; in Gortin, a dispensary, five miles distant; Castlederg Dispensary, eight miles distant; and the Drumguin Dispensary, eight miles from this.	There is a dispensary at Fintona, and another, I believe, at Ballygandly.	The Armagh Infirmary, Caledon, Dungannon and Loughgall Dispensaries; the nearest of these institutions is above six miles distant.
There is only the one dispensary (as specified in first answer) attached to this district; my salary is 60 l. annually.	There is no hospital or infirmary within the district.	There is no other dispensary or infirmary within my district.
I attend but the one, to which I devote most of my time.	The towns of Augher and Clogher are distant from each other two British miles. Medicines are dispensed in each; in the former every Tuesday, and in the latter every Friday.	I only attend the Benburb Dispensary, the salary of which is 50 l. a year; the days of attendance are two in the week.
I do, where they are unable to pay for other medical attendance.	When it is required by a governor, and half-a-crown deposited with the ticket before 10 o'clock A.M. This restriction is necessary to prevent vexatious and unnecessary calls for personal attendance.	Most certainly; and I am frequently called to cases of no moment, which draws the surgeon's attention away from patients in a dangerous condition.
There is such a register kept.	Such a register was kept during the first year of my appointment; but, from the vast number of applications, it was impossible to continue it, without injury to the efficiency of the institution.	A register has been kept of the number of persons admitted to the dispensary, all of whom have received medical aid.
1831 - - - - - 1,992 1832 - - - - - 1,284 1833 - - - - - 1,350	During the year commencing 1825, in which the register was kept, the number relieved exceeded 2,000.	This dispensary has not as yet been established three years; the number of those who have been relieved within two years amount to 3,388.
The diseases are, fever, dysentery and diarrhoea; worms, ulcers, fractures, measles.
It does not, as I have instructions to withhold medicine from those whom I find able to pay other practitioners.	Frequently.	Frequently; and I have endeavoured to prevail on the subscribers to prevent such abuse, but without effect.
By my order (signed by the treasurer) to Mr. John M'Adam, of Belfast.	They are purchased, and the expense defrayed from the general funds of the dispensary.	The medicines are provided by the committee of the dispensary.
<table><tr><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>1831 - - £. 114 9 0</td><td>125 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - - 124 3 6</td><td>140 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>1833 - - 82 14 0</td><td>103 14 6</td></tr></table>	Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831 - - £. 114 9 0	125 0 0	1832 - - 124 3 6	140 0 0	1833 - - 82 14 0	103 14 6	<table><tr><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>1831 - - £. 121 9 0</td><td>£. 119 8 5</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - - 120 2 7</td><td>119 4 2</td></tr><tr><td>1833 - - 119 5 5</td><td>120 3 8½</td></tr></table> 1831.—Expenditure. <table><tr><td>Surgeon</td><td>- - - - £. 82 15 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine</td><td>- - - - 20 3 2</td></tr><tr><td>Rent</td><td>- - - - 7 7 0</td></tr><tr><td>Postage</td><td>- - - - 0 2 3</td></tr><tr><td>Attendants</td><td>- - - - 6 6 0</td></tr></table>	Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831 - - £. 121 9 0	£. 119 8 5	1832 - - 120 2 7	119 4 2	1833 - - 119 5 5	120 3 8½	Surgeon	- - - - £. 82 15 0	Medicine	- - - - 20 3 2	Rent	- - - - 7 7 0	Postage	- - - - 0 2 3	Attendants	- - - - 6 6 0	About 40 l. a year is the most we can afford to expend on medicines or any other necessary.
Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831 - - £. 114 9 0	125 0 0
1832 - - 124 3 6	140 0 0
1833 - - 82 14 0	103 14 6
Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831 - - £. 121 9 0	£. 119 8 5
1832 - - 120 2 7	119 4 2
1833 - - 119 5 5	120 3 8½
Surgeon	- - - - £. 82 15 0
Medicine	- - - - 20 3 2
Rent	- - - - 7 7 0
Postage	- - - - 0 2 3
Attendants	- - - - 6 6 0
In 1830 the dispensary was 30 l. in debt; it is now 77 l. 8 s.
By private subscriptions, and an annual presentment of 30 l. by grand jury of this county.	By subscription, and presentment from the county Tyrone.	Principally by private subscription; we receive no jury grant from the county Armagh, and only 30 l. annually from the county Tyrone, though this last year it has been increased to 40 l. , on account of the numerous applicants for medical aid.
I cannot suggest any alteration in the distribution of the funds by which this institution is supported. This is a very large parish, and contains about 20,000 inhabitants, the majority of whom are poor, and we have great difficulty in continuing our exertions in their behalf.	It does not appear that any advantageous alteration could be adopted in the distribution of the present funds. Those funds, however, are altogether inadequate to support the institution in a desirable state of efficiency.	Not any, the funds being inadequate to provide medicines for the applicants; it is the intention to strike off part of the district the ensuing year.

ULSTER—TYRONE.

Caledon Dispensary.	Castlederg and Killiter Dispensary.	Cookstown Dispensary.
J. Crozier, Esq., M. D.	John Hamilton, Esq., Surgeon.	Governor and Medical Attendant.
Caledon Dispensary, to give medicine and advice gratis to the poor; established in 1816.	The Castlederg and Killiter Dispensary; established in the year 1822.	Cookstown Dispensary; established in the year 1814.
Parish of Aughaloo, in county of Tyrone.	Two parishes and part of a third, all in the same county.	Nine, viz. Derryloran, Desartereaght, Kildress, Lissan, Artrea, Donagherry, Clonoe, Ballyclog and Arboe, lying in the counties Tyrone and Derry.
Ballygawley, Benburb and Dungannon Dispensaries.	Donegal County Infirmary, and Clonleigh Dispensary, in Lifford, Strabane Dispensary and Fever Hospital, Killygordon Dispensary, Newtown-stewart, Pettigo and Drumquin Dispensaries, Omagh Infirmary and a dispensary attached to it.	A dispensary at Terman, nine miles distant; one at Dungannon, nine miles; one at Moneymore, four miles; one at Stewartstown, five miles.
No other dispensary or infirmary within this district.	None.	No Hospital.
I attend the Caledon Dispensary only. My salary averages about 70 l. per annum; attendance two days in each week.	I attend one day in the week in each parish. Salary, 60 l.	Only this one.
Yes; my annual visits generally amount to three hundred, and extend from five to six miles into the country.	In all cases, when a visit is recommended by a subscriber, and in all cases when I consider it necessary, whether the subscriber mentions a visit or not.	Certainly, whenever I think a visit necessary.
A registry of the patients is regularly kept, and the diseases are marked down; it would be impossible to state the result of the applications, as a patient may have his name entered on the books, and never return to state the result.	Yes.	<table><tr><th>Years.</th><th>Attended.</th><th>Cured.</th><th>Relieved.</th><th>Died.</th></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>1,683</td><td>1,512</td><td>8</td><td>24</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>1,516</td><td>1,383</td><td>17</td><td>26</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>1,753</td><td>1,600</td><td>14</td><td>33</td></tr></table>	Years.	Attended.	Cured.	Relieved.	Died.	1831	1,683	1,512	8	24	1832	1,516	1,383	17	26	1833	1,753	1,600	14	33
Years.	Attended.	Cured.	Relieved.	Died.
1831	1,683	1,512	8	24
1832	1,516	1,383	17	26
1833	1,753	1,600	14	33
The number of patients admitted during the year generally averages about 1,600. Fever, measles, hoopingcough, dyspepsia, inflammation, dysentery, rheumatism, accidents and surgical cases.	7,544. Stomach diseases, fevers, inflammations of chest, dropsies, &c. &c	Diseases treated various; deaths, chiefly fevers, consumptions, dropsy, labour, cancer, accidents, small-pox, cholera, &c.
Seldom occur.	Occasionally.	Occasionally, it bieng difficult to prevent it entirely.
From Boileau & George, druggists, Dublin, paid out of the funds of the dispensary.	By the attending surgeon.	By a respectable Dublin druggist, on my application to the treasurer.
Expenditure about 100 l. per annum.	Average amount of receipt for the last three years about 75 l. ; expenditure about 84 l.	<table><tr><th colspan="2">RECEIPT.</th></tr><tr><th></th><th>Subscription.</th><th>Presentment.</th></tr><tr><td>1830</td><td>£. 71 18 11½</td><td>£. 50 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>74 17 5½</td><td>50 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>63 2 5</td><td>50 0 0</td></tr></table>	RECEIPT.			Subscription.	Presentment.	1830	£. 71 18 11½	£. 50 0 0	1831	74 17 5½	50 0 0	1832	63 2 5	50 0 0
RECEIPT.
	Subscription.	Presentment.
1830	£. 71 18 11½	£. 50 0 0
1831	74 17 5½	50 0 0
1832	63 2 5	50 0 0
By private subscriptions and a county grant.	By private subscriptions, and presentment from one county only.	By subscriptions from the neighbouring clergy and gentry, and by an annual presentment from the Tyrone grand jury of 50 l.
Provided the funds of the dispensary were equal to it, an hospital for the reception of the poor would be highly necessary, as this dispensary is twenty-one Irish miles distant from the county infirmary in Omagh.	Supposing that the funds admitted of it, I would beg leave to suggest the erection of a small hospital capable of containing eight or a dozen patients; it would be particularly useful during the prevalence of cholera, fever or other epidemics, and at all times for the reception of patients requiring capital operations, the performance of which at their own house is totally out of the question.	No.

ULSTER—TYRONE.

Dromore Dispensary.	Drumquin Dispensary.	Dunamanna Dispensary.
Joseph Marshall, Esq., Surgeon.	John Maxwell, Esq.	William Baird, Esq., Surgeon.
It is named Dromore Dispensary; it was established in August 1832, for the purpose of affording professional attendance and medicine to the poor of this parish.	Drumquin Dispensary, for the purpose of affording medical and surgical aid to the poor; established March 1821.	Dunamanna Dispensary, and no other under my care; established 7th May 1828, for giving medical aid and attendance to the poor in the parish of Donaghedy.
The district is the parish of Dromore, county Tyrone.	There are two parishes included in this district, and are both in one county.	One parish, in the county Tyrone.
The County Tyrone Infirmary and a dispensary in Omagh; dispensaries in Fintona, Trillick, Drumquin, Kesh, county Fermanagh.	Tyrone Infirmary and the Dispensaries of Omagh, Dromore, Dergbridge and Newtownstewart are within ten miles.	An infirmary and dispensary at Derry, an infirmary and dispensary at Lifford, fever hospital and dispensary at Strabane, dispensary at Glendernot, Lower Cumber, Upper Cumber and St. Johnstown. Salary varies from 60 l. to 100 l. annually.
There is not any other hospital, dispensary or infirmary within this district.	There is not any other dispensary, hospital or infirmary in this district.	No hospital or dispensary in the district but the dispensary I am in charge of. Salary, 60 l. annually.
I attend none except the Dromore Dispensary, in which town I reside; the salary is 50 l. per annum, and I am required to attend two days in the week.	I attend only one dispensary, in which I reside, for which I receive a salary of 40 guineas. There are two dispensing days each week, and urgent cases are attended at all times.	Only the one dispensary in my district, which I attend two days in each week.
I do.	I consider it my duty to attend personally whenever it is required.	Yes.
A register is kept, in which the names of patients are noted, the disease and medicine prescribed.	A register is kept of all cases. The patients have been attended at the dispensary or at their own dwellings, as the case required, in general with benefit, but in some cases cannot ascertain.	Yes, with a satisfactory result.
The number of persons relieved since the establishment of the dispensary (18 months) is 370; the diseases most prevalent were fevers, dyspepsia, pneumonia, rheumatism, inflammation of various organs, diarrhoea, scrofula, fractures, dislocations, burns, &c.	The number of persons relieved within the last three years amounts to 2,311. The diseases treated were ulcers, fractures, diseases of skin, chest, digestive organs, fevers, &c.	4,130 relieved; fever, dyspepsia, rheumatism and diseases of lungs are the most prevalent complaints.
Very seldom.	Persons very seldom receive aid who are not proper objects.	None.
The medicines are purchased from a druggist, and given to the patients at the dispensary by the surgeon.	The medicines are supplied by order from treasurer on Messrs. Boileau & George, Bride-street.	By order of treasurer, from Glasgow Apothecaries' Company.
<table><tr><th colspan="3">Receipt.</th></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>- - -</td><td>£. 80 1 0</td></tr><tr><th colspan="3">Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>Surgeon's Salary</td><td>- - -</td><td>£. 50 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine</td><td>- - -</td><td>16 8 6</td></tr><tr><td>Fitting up Dispensary</td><td>- - -</td><td>6 9 1</td></tr><tr><td>Rent of ditto</td><td>- - -</td><td>4 4 0</td></tr><tr><td>Sundries</td><td>- - -</td><td>2 10 0</td></tr><tr><td></td><td></td><td>£. 79 11 7</td></tr></table>	Receipt.			1833	- - -	£. 80 1 0	Expenditure.			Surgeon's Salary	- - -	£. 50 0 0	Medicine	- - -	16 8 6	Fitting up Dispensary	- - -	6 9 1	Rent of ditto	- - -	4 4 0	Sundries	- - -	2 10 0			£. 79 11 7	<table><tr><th colspan="3">Receipt.</th><th colspan="3">Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>1830</td><td>-</td><td>£. 84 14 6</td><td>£. 69 14 9½</td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>-</td><td>61 3 0</td><td>59 7 11½</td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>-</td><td>61 18 0</td><td>56 3 10</td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><th colspan="6">GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.</th></tr><tr><th colspan="2">1830.</th><th>1831.</th><th colspan="2">1832.</th><th></th></tr><tr><td>Salary</td><td>- £. 42 0 0</td><td>42 0 0</td><td>42 0 0</td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Medicine</td><td>- 21 5 0½</td><td>15 0 0</td><td>11 13 8</td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Sundries</td><td>- 6 9 9</td><td>2 7 11½</td><td>2 10 2</td><td></td><td></td></tr></table>	Receipt.			Expenditure.			1830	-	£. 84 14 6	£. 69 14 9½			1831	-	61 3 0	59 7 11½			1832	-	61 18 0	56 3 10			GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.						1830.		1831.	1832.			Salary	- £. 42 0 0	42 0 0	42 0 0			Medicine	- 21 5 0½	15 0 0	11 13 8			Sundries	- 6 9 9	2 7 11½	2 10 2			<table><tr><th colspan="3">Receipt.</th><th colspan="3">Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>- -</td><td>£. 184 18 9</td><td>£. 100 7 0</td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>- -</td><td>194 13 9</td><td>120 5 5</td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>- -</td><td>151 3 6</td><td>139 3 4</td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><th colspan="6">GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.</th></tr><tr><td>Salary</td><td>- - -</td><td>£. 60 0 0</td><td></td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Medicine</td><td>- - -</td><td>40 0 0</td><td></td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Rent</td><td>- - -</td><td>5 5 0</td><td></td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Contingencies</td><td>- - -</td><td>7 12 0</td><td></td><td></td><td></td></tr></table>	Receipt.			Expenditure.			1831	- -	£. 184 18 9	£. 100 7 0			1832	- -	194 13 9	120 5 5			1833	- -	151 3 6	139 3 4			GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.						Salary	- - -	£. 60 0 0				Medicine	- - -	40 0 0				Rent	- - -	5 5 0				Contingencies	- - -	7 12 0
Receipt.
1833	- - -	£. 80 1 0
Expenditure.
Surgeon's Salary	- - -	£. 50 0 0
Medicine	- - -	16 8 6
Fitting up Dispensary	- - -	6 9 1
Rent of ditto	- - -	4 4 0
Sundries	- - -	2 10 0
		£. 79 11 7
Receipt.			Expenditure.
1830	-	£. 84 14 6	£. 69 14 9½
1831	-	61 3 0	59 7 11½
1832	-	61 18 0	56 3 10
GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.
1830.		1831.	1832.
Salary	- £. 42 0 0	42 0 0	42 0 0
Medicine	- 21 5 0½	15 0 0	11 13 8
Sundries	- 6 9 9	2 7 11½	2 10 2
Receipt.			Expenditure.
1831	- -	£. 184 18 9	£. 100 7 0
1832	- -	194 13 9	120 5 5
1833	- -	151 3 6	139 3 4
GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.
Salary	- - -	£. 60 0 0
Medicine	- - -	40 0 0
Rent	- - -	5 5 0
Contingencies	- - -	7 12 0
It is supported by subscriptions, and presentments from the county Tyrone only.	It is supported by private subscriptions, and grant from grand jury of Tyrone.	By presentment from the county, and subscriptions.
The funds are at present so low I could scarcely suggest any improvement in their distribution, unless they could be augmented.	I cannot suggest any alteration for the better.	No.

ULSTER—TYRONE.

Dungannon Dispensary.	Fintona Dispensary.	Gortin Dispensary.
James Hamilton, Esq., Surgeon.	Treasurer and Medical Attendant.	Alexander Laughlin, Esq., Surgeon, R. N.
The Dungannon Dispensary; I have had the care of it only a short time, being appointed in February last. It was established to provide the poor with medicine and advice gratis, in the year 1816.	Fintona Dispensary. Not more than one; established 12th April 1819.	The Gortin Dispensary, established in 1819 for the relief of the poor, but only continued two years in operation, for the want of funds; it was again finally established in 1823, and continues so to the present period.
The poor are recommended generally from six parishes, and sometimes from four others, all in same county.	Parish of Donnacaney and part of the parish of Clogher.	Two; Upper and Lower Badony, both in Tyrone; extensive, mountainous, and miserably poor.
Stewartstown and Benburb, which are public dispensaries, and a private one supported by Colonel Verner, for the benefit of the poor on his own estate.	Omagh Infirmary, Clogher, Trillick and Dro-more Dispensaries.	The Ardstraw Dispensary, in the town of Newtown-stewart, distant five miles; and the Tyrone Infirmary, in the town of Omagh, distant eight miles.
None.	Not any.	No.
The Dungannon Dispensary alone; I reside in the same place; the salary is 75 l. per year, and 10 l. for a house. I attend two days in each week, and visit on the intermediate days, at their own houses, such persons as cannot make personal application. My predecessor had 100 l. salary, and 20 l. for a house, of the late currency.	Attends but Fintona Dispensary; salary, 25 l. ; attendance two days in the week.	No. Days of attendance at the Gortin Dispensary every Tuesday and Friday; salary, 40 l. a year.
Certainly.	Almost in all cases.	Yes, in all cases recommended by a subscriber, and particularly when the applicant is unable to attend at the dispensary for relief.
A registry is kept of all persons recommended, and of the medicines prescribed; but a true account of the result is not practicable, in consequence of the patients living at a distance, and their attendance being voluntary.	Kept no registry.	Yes, a register or journal is kept of all the cases recommended to the dispensary, showing the name of the patient, age, residence, governor recommending, when put on and off the list, disease or hurt, &c., and also a case-book, wherein every case of any importance is more particularly noted.
The number of applications, within the last three years, were 7,053, and the diseases generally were fevers, acute and chronic affections of the lungs, dyspeptic affections, &c. &c.	No regular account.	<table><tr><td>Received Assistance.</td><td>Cured.</td><td>Irregular.</td><td>Visited</td><td>Died.</td></tr><tr><td>3,738</td><td>2,213</td><td>318</td><td>913</td><td>181</td></tr></table> The remainder are still on the list, receiving gratuitous assistance. The diseases treated were generally fevers, almost always inflammatory at the commencement, but during their progress and towards their declension, invariably assumed a typhus character; pleurisies, rheumatisms, liver, stomach and bowel complaints, cutaneous and dropsical affections, measles, hoopingcough, smallpox, &c. &c.	Received Assistance.	Cured.	Irregular.	Visited	Died.	3,738	2,213	318	913	181
Received Assistance.	Cured.	Irregular.	Visited	Died.
3,738	2,213	318	913	181
Such persons are frequently recommended.	Not to my knowledge.	Yes, sometimes the applicant pleads poverty, and imposes on the subscriber.
The medicines are supplied out of the funds of institution, and by wholesale druggists.	By Messrs. Leslie & Co., Bride-street, Dublin,	Ordered by a managing committee from established druggists.
The subscriptions average about 105 l. ; the county gives 50 l. , which makes the receipts about 155 l. per annum; not sufficient to meet the expenditure for medicine, &c.; in consequence my salary has been reduced from what my predecessor had.	<table><tr><td></td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td><td>1833.</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine -</td><td>£. 29 6 9</td><td>47 5 6</td><td>29 5 4</td></tr></table>		1831.	1832.	1833.	Medicine -	£. 29 6 9	47 5 6	29 5 4	<table><tr><td></td><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1831 -</td><td>£. 37 0 0</td><td>£. 50 6 7½</td></tr><tr><td>1832 -</td><td>79 12 6</td><td>47 6 7½</td></tr><tr><td>1833 -</td><td>79 7 0</td><td>69 12 6</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><td></td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td><td>1833.</td></tr><tr><td>Physician's half-year's Salary -</td><td>£. 20 0 0</td><td>20 0 0</td><td>20 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine -</td><td>24 6 7½</td><td>17 6 7½</td><td>43 12 6</td></tr><tr><td>Rent -</td><td>6 0 0</td><td>-</td><td>6 0 0</td></tr></table>		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831 -	£. 37 0 0	£. 50 6 7½	1832 -	79 12 6	47 6 7½	1833 -	79 7 0	69 12 6		1831.	1832.	1833.	Physician's half-year's Salary -	£. 20 0 0	20 0 0	20 0 0	Medicine -	24 6 7½	17 6 7½	43 12 6	Rent -	6 0 0	-	6 0 0
	1831.	1832.	1833.
Medicine -	£. 29 6 9	47 5 6	29 5 4
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831 -	£. 37 0 0	£. 50 6 7½
1832 -	79 12 6	47 6 7½
1833 -	79 7 0	69 12 6
	1831.	1832.	1833.
Physician's half-year's Salary -	£. 20 0 0	20 0 0	20 0 0
Medicine -	24 6 7½	17 6 7½	43 12 6
Rent -	6 0 0	-	6 0 0
By private subscriptions and county presentments from the county Tyrone alone.	By subscription, and presentment off the county Tyrone.	By voluntary contributions, and an annual grand jury presentment, obtained only from Tyrone.
From the present state of the funds, no beneficial change could be made in their distribution; but if the funds could be increased by making it imperative on grand juries, and not optional, to grant a sum equivalent to the subscriptions, more efficient relief could be rendered the poor.	We cannot suggest any improvement.	I cannot.

ULSTER—TYRONE.		CONNAUGHT—GALWAY.
Stewartstown Dispensary.	Termon Dispensary.	Galway Fever Hospital.
Wm. Brown Whittell, Esq., Surgeon.	Thomas Rutherford, Esq., Surgeon.	The Mayor and Medical Attendant.
Stewartstown Dispensary, established in the year 1813.	Termon Dispensary, established in the year 1828. There is no other.	This hospital was built in the year 1819, under the provisions of the 58 Geo. 3. c. 47.
The dispensary extends to part of eight different parishes, distant in one direction eight miles, in Tyrone and part of county of Londonderry.	One, the parish of Termon Maguirk, in county Tyrone.	Since the period of its establishment, it has been exclusively appropriated to the reception and relief of the fever poor of the town and county of the town of Galway, and also of such of the poor of the county at large as may contract fever whilst sojourning in the town.
Dungannon, Cookstown and Moneymore Dispensaries.	Omagh Dispensary and Infirmary, and Ballygawley Dispensary.	—
None.	There is not.	—
Only one.	I attend only one, two days in the week; salary, 40 l. per annum.	—
Always.	Personal attendance is given whenever required, and I consider it my duty to give it.	—
A register is kept of cases, by whom recommended, age, disease and result.	A register has been kept; the applications have been attended to, and the treatment has been generally successful.	—
1831 - - - - - 1,248 1832 - - - - - 1,092 1833 - - - - - 1,154 Continued fevers, rheumatism, dropsy, pleurisy, with various inflammatory complaints; wounds, fractures, dislocations, and accidents of various kinds.	2,509. Children vaccinated, 506. Diseases treated: Dyspepsia, obstipatia, psora, febris, teterus, catarrhus, pyrosis, hysteria, anasarca, hepatitis, lumbago, palpitatio, chlorosis, phthisis, pulmonalis, impetigo, rubeola, pleurisy, &c. &c.	<table><tr><th>Year.</th><th>Admitted.</th><th>Cured.</th><th>Deaths.</th></tr><tr><td>1831 - -</td><td>225</td><td>206</td><td>19</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - -</td><td>250</td><td>224</td><td>26</td></tr><tr><td>1833 - -</td><td>253</td><td>239</td><td>14</td></tr><tr><td>TOTAL -</td><td>728</td><td>669</td><td>59</td></tr></table>	Year.	Admitted.	Cured.	Deaths.	1831 - -	225	206	19	1832 - -	250	224	26	1833 - -	253	239	14	TOTAL -	728	669	59
Year.	Admitted.	Cured.	Deaths.
1831 - -	225	206	19
1832 - -	250	224	26
1833 - -	253	239	14
TOTAL -	728	669	59
The rule of the institution is, that none should get assistance who can afford to pay for it elsewhere; but this rule is often evaded by professions of poverty.	So far as an opinion can be formed, it never so happens. last year, when, to meet a great public emergency, it was for a few months rendered available to the relief of the poor afflicted with cholera.	The only exception to the legitimate appropriation of the hospital to fever patients occurred in the
By a druggist, and compounded at the institution, the funds not being adequate to furnish medicines prepared.	By the druggist, and paid for by the treasurer.	—
<table><tr><th></th><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>1831 -</td><td>£. 92 10 0</td><td>£. 99 6 4</td></tr><tr><td>1832 -</td><td>96 15 0</td><td>87 19 7</td></tr><tr><td>1833 -</td><td>96 14 0</td><td>85 2 8</td></tr></table> Expenditure, 1831. Surgeon's Salary - - £. 70 0 0 Medicine - - - - 24 0 0 Rent - - - - - 4 4 0 Sundries - - - - 1 2 4		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831 -	£. 92 10 0	£. 99 6 4	1832 -	96 15 0	87 19 7	1833 -	96 14 0	85 2 8	<table><tr><th></th><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>1832 -</td><td>£. 62 0 0</td><td>£. 16 17 10</td></tr><tr><td>1833 -</td><td>71 0 0</td><td>16 1 6</td></tr></table> My appointment took place since the year ending November 31, but I suppose the receipt and expenditure has been about the same annually.		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1832 -	£. 62 0 0	£. 16 17 10	1833 -	71 0 0	16 1 6	<table><tr><th></th><th>Receipt.</th><th>* Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>1831 (Presentment)</td><td>£. 350 0 0</td><td>356 2 10</td></tr><tr><td>1832 -</td><td>350 0 0</td><td>415 1 4</td></tr><tr><td>1833 -</td><td>375 0 0</td><td>370 7 9</td></tr></table> SALARIES. Physician - - - - - £. 52 10 0 Apothecary - - - - - 30 0 0 1 Head Nurse, at 1 s. 6 d. per day - 27 7 6 2 Under Nurses, at 1 s. per day each - 36 10 0 1 Gatekeeper - - - - - 10 0 0 £. 156 7 6 * By the above statement it will appear, that in the amount of annual expenditure is included the sum of £. 156 7 6 paid in salaries. The remainder covering all expenses incurred for subsistence of patients, medicine, wine, &c., fuel, straw, candles, washing, &c.		Receipt.	* Expenditure.	1831 (Presentment)	£. 350 0 0	356 2 10	1832 -	350 0 0	415 1 4	1833 -	375 0 0	370 7 9
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831 -	£. 92 10 0	£. 99 6 4
1832 -	96 15 0	87 19 7
1833 -	96 14 0	85 2 8
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1832 -	£. 62 0 0	£. 16 17 10
1833 -	71 0 0	16 1 6
	Receipt.	* Expenditure.
1831 (Presentment)	£. 350 0 0	356 2 10
1832 -	350 0 0	415 1 4
1833 -	375 0 0	370 7 9
By private subscription, and presentment from the county of Tyrone.	By subscriptions, and presentment from county Tyrone.	The funds for the support of the establishment are derived exclusively from grand jury presentments, made under the authority of the 58 Geo. 3. c. 112, which empowers grand juries to present annually the sum of 500 l. for the several presentments made on the behalf of this hospital for the relief of the sick poor of this populous town, within a narrowness of system which dissatisfies humanity, and frustrates the purpose of an enlightened policy.
None.	The members of the committee have endeavoured, in distributing the funds, to make them as efficient as possible, and of course can point out no improvement.	It ought not to be concealed from the Commissioners, that this hospital, in consequence of the scantiness of its funds, is, besides being unprovided with offices essential to such an establishment, altogether too limited in extent to afford adequate accommodation to the numerous poor requiring its aid. It consists but of four wards, each of which is calculated to hold conveniently but ten beds, which number, however, it is frequently found necessary to augment, to the great inconvenience and disadvantage of the sick.

CONNAUGHT—SLIGO.	LEINSTER—CARLOW.
Sligo Fever Hospital.	Carlow Fever Hospital.	Tulow Fever Hospital.
Henry Irwin, Esq., M. D.	M. W. Stone, Esq., M. D.	Robert Burnett, Esq., M. D.
Sligo Fever Hospital; in 1817.	Carlow Fever Hospital, and Leighlin Bridge Dispensary. Fever Hospital established 1830; Dispensary 1828.	Tulow Fever Hospital, established 1828.
All the parishes of the county, and several of the neighbouring ones.	It is a county hospital, and receives patients from all parts of the county, as also from that part of Queen's County contiguous to the town.	Five parishes; one in county Wicklow.
Sligo Infirmary; Sligo Dispensary; St. John's Dispensary; Coolaney Dispensary; Collooney Dispensary, and Riverstown Dispensary.	Tulow Dispensary and Fever Hospital, Bagmalstown Dispensary and Fever Hospital; Leighlin Bridge Dispensary.	Carlow Infirmary and Dispensary; Clonegal, Myshall, Hacketstown and Castledermot Dispensaries; Carlow Fever Hospital; Shillelagh Dispensary, county Wicklow.
None.	There is a dispensary in the town, but unconnected with any other establishment. The attendant has about 80 l. per annum.	In one parish, Clonegal, a dispensary exists, unattached to any hospital, mine being the only one in the district. I do not know the salary.
I attend the Sligo and Coolaney Dispensaries, the former in the town with me, the latter 9 miles distant. The salary of the former, when the funds admit, 55 l. 7 s. 8 d. ; that of the latter, 46 l. 3 s. 1 d. Attendance, two days in the week at the former, and one at the latter.	I attend but the two already named. The fever hospital is in the town; Leighlin Bridge, distant about 6 miles. The fever hospital, a daily attendance; salary 60 l. , from which I provide and pay an apothecary. Leighlin Bridge Dispensary; attendance is two days in the week; salary 50 l.	I attend the Tulow County Dispensary and Fever Hospital. I live in the town where they are situated. Salary, 52 l. 10 s. for each; three days in the week for dispensary, daily in fever hospital.
I do, and an apothecary resides at Coolaney, who sees and treats all urgent cases on all other days of the week.	Whenever required.	I attend the poor in their own homes, when unable to attend at the dispensary, and to certify for admission into fever hospital.
A general register for each establishment is kept for all cases, stating date, name, age, with the disease, and the result.	There is a register kept, so far as diseases and recommendations, as also the result.	A register is strictly and correctly kept in all these points.
758 have been admitted into the fever hospital within the three last years; and, as a general statement, fever cases have been principally treated, but acute diseases of every kind have been likewise admitted, when fever did not prevail to a great extent.	<table><tr><td></td><td>In Hos- pital.</td><td>Since ad- mitted.</td><td>Total.</td><td>Cured.</td><td>Died.</td><td>In Hos- pital.</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>6</td><td>99</td><td>105</td><td>88</td><td>6</td><td>5</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>0</td><td>98</td><td>98</td><td>80</td><td>7</td><td>11</td></tr></table> N.B. There have been upwards of 6,000 treated at the Leighlin Bridge Dispensary.		In Hos- pital.	Since ad- mitted.	Total.	Cured.	Died.	In Hos- pital.	1832	6	99	105	88	6	5	1833	0	98	98	80	7	11	249 individuals, generally affected with bad typhus.
	In Hos- pital.	Since ad- mitted.	Total.	Cured.	Died.	In Hos- pital.
1832	6	99	105	88	6	5
1833	0	98	98	80	7	11
Occasionally some are admitted who are not in circumstances to require gratuitous assistance, especially sailors, and shopmen in large families, as well as apprentices of people in trade, who are placed in private wards, and a small charge is made, which is credited to the account of the hospital.	I do not recollect any.	Never, as respecting the fever hospital.
The medicines are supplied from the Sligo Dispensary, for which an adequate sum is paid over, and credited to that institution.	They are supplied by the druggist, and compounded by the apothecary, whom I provide, and pay out of the salary allowed for my attendance. I hope, under the new regulations, that an apothecary will be allowed to every such establishment.	By order of Committee to Boileau & George, druggists.
<table><tr><td></td><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1831 (Presentment)</td><td>£. 461 0 0</td><td>424 14 11½</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - - - - -</td><td>461 0 0</td><td>419 4 2</td></tr><tr><td>1833 - - - - -</td><td>461 0 0</td><td>319 16 4</td></tr></table> The difference between receipt and expenditure was owing to the hospital being in debt in account with the treasurer, at the commencement of the account in 1831. The expense of the last year being so low was owing to the hospital being given over as a cholera hospital, for two months of the period. Expenditure includes subsistence, servants' wages, salaries to medical officers, and medicaments.		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831 (Presentment)	£. 461 0 0	424 14 11½	1832 - - - - -	461 0 0	419 4 2	1833 - - - - -	461 0 0	319 16 4	<table><tr><td></td><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - - - - -</td><td>£. 200 0 0</td><td>£. 158 15 8</td></tr><tr><td>1833 - - - - -</td><td>200 0 0</td><td>164 14 10</td></tr><tr><td>1834 - - - - -</td><td>100 0 0</td><td>170 17 7</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><td></td><td>1832.</td><td>1833.</td><td>1834.</td></tr><tr><td>Medical department - - -</td><td>£. 65 4 1</td><td>77 16 1</td><td>79 14 9½</td></tr><tr><td>Food, fuel and attendance - - -</td><td>86 3 4</td><td>71 1 1</td><td>89 5 6</td></tr><tr><td>Furniture & Repairs</td><td>7 8 3</td><td>15 17 8</td><td>1 17 4</td></tr></table>		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1832 - - - - -	£. 200 0 0	£. 158 15 8	1833 - - - - -	200 0 0	164 14 10	1834 - - - - -	100 0 0	170 17 7		1832.	1833.	1834.	Medical department - - -	£. 65 4 1	77 16 1	79 14 9½	Food, fuel and attendance - - -	86 3 4	71 1 1	89 5 6	Furniture & Repairs	7 8 3	15 17 8	1 17 4	Receipt of county presentments, last three years, 408 l. Amount of expenditure, salaries to nurses, medical officer, caterer's accounts, and medicine, with other extra expenses, 435 l.
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831 (Presentment)	£. 461 0 0	424 14 11½
1832 - - - - -	461 0 0	419 4 2
1833 - - - - -	461 0 0	319 16 4
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1832 - - - - -	£. 200 0 0	£. 158 15 8
1833 - - - - -	200 0 0	164 14 10
1834 - - - - -	100 0 0	170 17 7
	1832.	1833.	1834.
Medical department - - -	£. 65 4 1	77 16 1	79 14 9½
Food, fuel and attendance - - -	86 3 4	71 1 1	89 5 6
Furniture & Repairs	7 8 3	15 17 8	1 17 4
By presentment off the county Sligo.	By presentments alone, from the county Carlow.	By presentments from county Carlow only.
I cannot.	I think the funds are well arranged, but inadequate to the support of such an establishment.	The funds are so adapted to the pressing wants of those institutions, I can offer no suggestions respecting them.

LEINSTER—KILDARE.

Celbridge Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Kilcullen Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Naas Fever Hospital and Dispensary.
Mr. Charles Madden, Apothecary.	Committee and Medical Attendant.	Treasurer and Medical Attendant.
Celbridge Fever Hospital and Dispensary, and Newcastle Dispensary, for the relief of proper applicants and sick poor; the former established in the year 1819.	Kilcullen Fever Hospital and Dispensary established in the year 1807.	The Naas Fever Hospital with a dispensary attached; established in 1817; the former for the reception of patients labouring under contagious fever, the latter for affording advice, attendance and medicine to such person as may be recommended by subscribers.
The union of Celbridge and Straffan, including five parishes, together with Leixlip and Maynooth, in the county Kildare, and part of Kill, in the county Dublin.	Kilcullen, Carnalloway, Ballysax, Great Connell, Usk, Davidstown, Ballyshannon, Two-mile House, Narraghmore, Gittown, Fonstown, Bromistown, Grogheganstown; these in county Kildare: Ballymore, county Dublin; Hollywood, county Wicklow.	Twenty-five, nineteen of which are in the county of Kildare, four in the county of Wicklow, and two in the county of Dublin. Persons become subscribers from those distant parishes, although dispensaries are in their vicinity, for the purpose of participating in the benefits of the fever hospital.
Leixlip, Maynooth, Kilcock, Clane, Naas, Newcastle, Rathcoole, Clondalkin, Lucan and Dunboyne.	Naas Fever Hospital and Dispensary, Ballintore Dispensary, Dunlavin Dispensary, Moorefield Dispensary, Kildare Infirmary.	Kildare Infirmary, Celbridge Hospital and Dispensary, Kilcock, Maynooth, and Dunlavin Dispensaries, each 10 miles; Rathcoole and Newcastle Dispensaries, each 7 miles; Kilcullen Fever Hospital and Dispensary, 6 miles; Newbridge Dispensary, 5 miles; Robertstown Dispensary, 7 miles; Clane, 4 miles, and Donnadea 8 miles.
Yes. The physician receives 92 l. 6 s. 2 d. annually; the apothecary receives 92 l. 6 s. 2 d. annually, for his attendance, and support of a horse.	There is a dispensary at Moorefield; my salary for attending Kilcullen Fever Hospital and Dispensary, 70 l. per annum.	There is not.
Celbridge Hospital and Dispensary; the hospital visited twice daily, and dispensary attended three days each week, and a daily attendance given when called on or necessary.	No. Every day at the hospital; same at the dispensary, except Sundays.	I attend only the Naas Fever Hospital and Dispensary, the former daily, the latter three days in the week. The hospital is one mile from my residence; the dispensary one mile and a quarter; my salary for attendance on both, with that of the apothecary, has been for the last three years 120 l. per annum.
Whenever the nature of the case demands it.	When brought to the hospital or dispensary.	I do, as far as relates to the hospital; the dispensary patients are visited by a licentiate apothecary, who refers or reports all particular cases to me.
There is.	There is a register; applicants at dispensary get medicine and advice, with beneficial results.	There is.
152 fever patients admitted into hospital, and 17,933 patients relieved at the dispensary; treatment of diseases was general.	<table><tr><td>—</td><td>Received into Hospital.</td><td>Received Medicine at Dispensary.</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>1,314</td><td>2,055</td></tr></table> Coughs, colds, bowel complaints, ague, rheumatism, pleurisy, eruption, piles, children affected with worms, &c.	—	Received into Hospital.	Received Medicine at Dispensary.	1832	1,314	2,055	<table><tr><td>Received into Hospital.</td><td>Received Medicine at Dispensary.</td></tr><tr><td>444</td><td>4,471</td></tr></table> of whom 1,021 have been visited at their own houses.	Received into Hospital.	Received Medicine at Dispensary.	444	4,471
—	Received into Hospital.	Received Medicine at Dispensary.
1832	1,314	2,055
Received into Hospital.	Received Medicine at Dispensary.
444	4,471
Unless at the request of factory subscribers, who are entitled to relief according to the rules of the institution.	Very seldom.	It does, although great pains have been taken to defeat such applications.
By Messrs. Leslie, druggists, Dublin.	In general by the Apothecaries' Hall, and by my getting an order from the committee.	From a druggist, by order of the committee or treasurer, who first receives my certificate that such medicines are wanting for the use of the institution.
<table><tr><td></td><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1830</td><td>£. 421 8 6</td><td>£. 360 9 9½</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>312 0 4</td><td>329 15 11</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>368 15 1½</td><td>356 13 7½</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><td></td><td>1830.</td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td></tr><tr><td>—</td><td>£. s. d.</td><td>£. s. d.</td><td>£. s. d.</td></tr><tr><td>Salaries, &c.</td><td>222 14 10</td><td>220 14 2</td><td>220 15 4</td></tr><tr><td>Provisions</td><td>35 8 0</td><td>25 6 9½</td><td>21 4 7½</td></tr><tr><td>Medicines</td><td>28 8 10</td><td>26 15 8½</td><td>41 7 0</td></tr><tr><td>Rent, Repairs, &c.</td><td>28 13 10½</td><td>15 3 2½</td><td>30 9 2</td></tr><tr><td>Firing</td><td>17 0 7½</td><td>14 13 3½</td><td>13 1 6</td></tr><tr><td>Contingencies</td><td>28 3 7½</td><td>27 2 9</td><td>29 15 11½</td></tr></table>		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1830	£. 421 8 6	£. 360 9 9½	1831	312 0 4	329 15 11	1832	368 15 1½	356 13 7½		1830.	1831.	1832.	—	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	Salaries, &c.	222 14 10	220 14 2	220 15 4	Provisions	35 8 0	25 6 9½	21 4 7½	Medicines	28 8 10	26 15 8½	41 7 0	Rent, Repairs, &c.	28 13 10½	15 3 2½	30 9 2	Firing	17 0 7½	14 13 3½	13 1 6	Contingencies	28 3 7½	27 2 9	29 15 11½	<table><tr><td></td><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1830</td><td>£. 356 13 0</td><td>£. 293 0 11</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>236 10 7½</td><td>323 16 11</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>214 7 6</td><td>268 8 11</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.—Salaries, Provisions, Medicine, Fuel, Bedding, &c. pears at the head of the account for 1830, but latterly they are sufficient, fever not being so prevalent as heretofore. The funds of the present year have to meet a large demand for bedding and linen for the use of the patients while in hospital.		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1830	£. 356 13 0	£. 293 0 11	1831	236 10 7½	323 16 11	1832	214 7 6	268 8 11	<table><tr><td></td><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1830</td><td>£. 686 12 2</td><td>£. 565 17 8</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>407 17 3</td><td>444 13 1</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>437 17 11</td><td>874 9 11</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><td></td><td>1830.</td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td></tr><tr><td>—</td><td>£. s. d.</td><td>£. s. d.</td><td>£. s. d.</td></tr><tr><td>Balance due Treasurer</td><td>86 8 2½</td><td>—</td><td>—</td></tr><tr><td>Salaries, Medicine, &c.</td><td>214 1 10½</td><td>188 18 3</td><td>180 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Provisions, &c.</td><td>228 19 8½</td><td>244 19 1</td><td>183 11 2</td></tr><tr><td>Repairs, Sundries</td><td>36 7 10½</td><td>10 15 9</td><td>10 18 9</td></tr></table> N. B. It has frequently occurred that the funds have not been sufficient to meet the demands of the institution, as appears at the head of the account for 1830, but latterly they are sufficient, fever not being so prevalent as heretofore. The funds of the present year have to meet a large demand for bedding and linen for the use of the patients while in hospital.		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1830	£. 686 12 2	£. 565 17 8	1831	407 17 3	444 13 1	1832	437 17 11	874 9 11		1830.	1831.	1832.	—	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	Balance due Treasurer	86 8 2½	—	—	Salaries, Medicine, &c.	214 1 10½	188 18 3	180 0 0	Provisions, &c.	228 19 8½	244 19 1	183 11 2	Repairs, Sundries	36 7 10½	10 15 9	10 18 9
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1830	£. 421 8 6	£. 360 9 9½
1831	312 0 4	329 15 11
1832	368 15 1½	356 13 7½
	1830.	1831.	1832.
—	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.
Salaries, &c.	222 14 10	220 14 2	220 15 4
Provisions	35 8 0	25 6 9½	21 4 7½
Medicines	28 8 10	26 15 8½	41 7 0
Rent, Repairs, &c.	28 13 10½	15 3 2½	30 9 2
Firing	17 0 7½	14 13 3½	13 1 6
Contingencies	28 3 7½	27 2 9	29 15 11½
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1830	£. 356 13 0	£. 293 0 11
1831	236 10 7½	323 16 11
1832	214 7 6	268 8 11
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1830	£. 686 12 2	£. 565 17 8
1831	407 17 3	444 13 1
1832	437 17 11	874 9 11
	1830.	1831.	1832.
—	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.
Balance due Treasurer	86 8 2½	—	—
Salaries, Medicine, &c.	214 1 10½	188 18 3	180 0 0
Provisions, &c.	228 19 8½	244 19 1	183 11 2
Repairs, Sundries	36 7 10½	10 15 9	10 18 9
By subscriptions and a grant from the grand jury of the county Kildare.	By subscriptions and donations, also presentments off the county Kildare.	By voluntary subscriptions and a grant by presentment from the grand jury of the county of Kildare alone.
I cannot.	No; unless the funds were adequate to give the most necessitous clothing on leaving the hospital, and some support for a short period after being discharged.	It is my opinion that a part of the funds might be more usefully applied for the benefit of the poor, in adding a ward to the hospital for the reception of sick and indigent not labouring under contagious fever, and diminishing the extent and thereby the expense of the dispensary district.

LEINSTER—KILKENNY.

Freshford Fever Hospital.	Kilmaganny Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Stoneyford and Kells Fever Hospital and Dispensary.
James Cullenan, Esq., M.D.	Richard S. Peile, Esq., Surgeon.	Thomas Bradley, Esq., Medical Attendant.
There is both an hospital and dispensary in Freshford. The object of the hospital is to receive poor persons attacked with fever, and thereby to prevent the spread of contagion; established Anno Domini 1824. The object of the dispensary is to afford medical and medicinal assistance to the poor of the district; established 1814.	Kilmaganny Fever Hospital and Dispensary, established about nine years. Knocktopher Dispensary.	Stoneyford and Kells Dispensary, with Fever Hospital attached; established May 11th, 1818.
There are nine parishes, all in the county of Kilkenny.	Six parishes. They are.	Ennisnaff, Annamult, Kells, Earlstown, Mal-larchtown, Kilree, Stumcarty, part of Burnelturch, part of Knocktopher, part of Jerpoint, part of Dunamaffon, all in the county Kilkenny.
County Infirmary and Fever Hospital of Kilkenny; Ballyragget, Urlingford, Durrow, Johnstown and Kilkenny Dispensaries.	Carrick-on-Suir, Pilltown, Whitechurch, Knocktopher, Stoneyford, Callan, Thomastown; an hospital in Carrick-on-Suir and a small one in Stoneyford.	Kilkenny, Thomastown, Knocktopher, Kilmaganny, Callan, Gowran.
There is but one hospital and dispensary in my district; they are entirely distinct. My own salary, and the salary of the apothecary, both amount to 100 l. per annum for the dispensary; I attend the fever hospital gratis.	An hospital attached to the dispensary of Kilmaganny. Salary for both, 92 l. 6 s. 2 d. per ann. with a house.	—
I do not attend any dispensary or hospital but those above stated; both are in the town of Freshford; I attend them daily.	I do. Kilmaganny Hospital and Dispensary; also, Knocktopher Dispensary, distant from Kilmaganny, five miles. Salary for Kilmaganny, 100 l. Irish; for Knocktopher, 40 l. ; three days each dispensary, required for attendance.	No.
Certainly, in most cases.	Certainly I do.	Certainly.
There is such a registry kept, and I have disposed of most of the cases by giving my own attendance when necessary, and generally with a favourable result.	There is.	There is a correct registry kept; all applications promptly attended to.
<table><tr><td>Fever Cases.</td><td>Cholera Cases.</td><td>Total.</td></tr><tr><td>311</td><td>31</td><td>342</td></tr></table>	Fever Cases.	Cholera Cases.	Total.	311	31	342	Number relieved at dispensary the last three years about 5,000; besides those visited at their houses who were unable to attend. Admitted into fever hospital for three years, 106; discharged cured, 97; died, 9. The general run of diseases.	Since my appointment to this dispensary, which took place in January 1833 (one year), there have been 600 relieved under various diseases.
Fever Cases.	Cholera Cases.	Total.
311	31	342
Such cases may have sometimes occurred through ignorance on the part of the subscribers, as to the circumstances of those who applied for relief.	Sometimes.	The following resolution appears on the face of the books: "No person is allowed to get gratuitous
I supply the medicines for the hospital for 6 l. a year, by contract.	By contract, with the medical attendant.	The medicines have been hitherto supplied by the treasurer; I have been allowed the sum of 16 l. for the last year for supplying them.
<table><tr><td></td><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1831 -</td><td>£. 82 14 1½</td><td>£. 81 10 6</td></tr><tr><td>1832 -</td><td>81 2 7</td><td>82 5 8</td></tr><tr><td>1833 -</td><td>86 11 0</td><td>55 9 2½</td></tr><tr><td>Balance in hand -</td><td>-</td><td>£. 31 1 9½</td></tr></table>		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831 -	£. 82 14 1½	£. 81 10 6	1832 -	81 2 7	82 5 8	1833 -	86 11 0	55 9 2½	Balance in hand -	-	£. 31 1 9½	<table><tr><td></td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>Surgeon's Salary -</td><td>£. 276 18 5½</td></tr><tr><td>Nurse-Tenders -</td><td>65 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine -</td><td>114 0 0</td></tr></table> Receipt and Expenditure nearly equal. All necessities supplied in the hospital gratuitous to patients; in other hospitals they pay for them. The treasurer of this dispensary is in Bath; I have therefore furnished the items as correct as possible.—R. S. P.		Expenditure.	Surgeon's Salary -	£. 276 18 5½	Nurse-Tenders -	65 0 0	Medicine -	114 0 0	<table><tr><td></td><td>Receipt.</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>£. s. d.</td></tr><tr><td>1831 -</td><td>138 4 0</td></tr><tr><td>1832 -</td><td>152 5 0</td></tr><tr><td>1833 -</td><td>83 13 0</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE: Salaries, Medicine, Rent, &c.		Receipt.		£. s. d.	1831 -	138 4 0	1832 -	152 5 0	1833 -	83 13 0
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831 -	£. 82 14 1½	£. 81 10 6
1832 -	81 2 7	82 5 8
1833 -	86 11 0	55 9 2½
Balance in hand -	-	£. 31 1 9½
	Expenditure.
Surgeon's Salary -	£. 276 18 5½
Nurse-Tenders -	65 0 0
Medicine -	114 0 0
	Receipt.
	£. s. d.
1831 -	138 4 0
1832 -	152 5 0
1833 -	83 13 0
By private subscription, and grand jury presentment off the county of Kilkenny alone.	By subscriptions, and presentments from the county Kilkenny alone. Double the amount of subscription presented for fever hospital.	Local subscriptions, and presentments obtained from the county Kilkenny.
I cannot.	The hospital contains twenty beds for fever patients; I think if two surgical wards were added for accidents that may be of such a nature as to render them unsafe to remove to the county infirmary, and for the purpose of operations requiring immediate surgical aid, it would be of much benefit to the district, the county hospital being twelve miles distant.	I cannot.

LEINSTER—KING'S COUNTY—MEATH.

Parsonstown Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	County Meath Fever Hospital at Kells.	County Meath Fever Hospital at Navan.
John Waters, Esq., M.D.	Henry Pentland, Esq., M.D.	Peter Gilroy, Esq., M.D.
Parsonstown Dispensary and Fever Hospital, established in 1809.	The county Meath Fever Hospital, established the 16th September 1817.	The hospital under my care is a county fever hospital, but is called the Navan Fever Hospital. It was established in the year 1818.
One.	All the parishes in the county must be said to be in my district, as the hospital is for the use of the county at large.	We receive patients from all parts of the county, and frequently strangers.
Roscrea, Shinrone, Kinnitty, Banagher and Frankford Dispensaries.	There is a fever hospital at Navan, a dispensary at Athboy, Crossakiel, Moynalty and Kilmainham, Navan, Oldcastle, Kells and Clonmellon.	The Kells Fever Hospital, within eight miles; the Trim Dispensary, within seven miles; the Duleek Dispensary, within nine miles; the Slane Dispensary, six miles; the Athboy and Kells Dispensaries, nine miles.
No.	There is a dispensary attached to the County Infirmary in Navan, for which the surgeon has, I believe, 200 l. a year.	There is a dispensary attached to the infirmary in this town called the County of Meath Infirmary. The salary of the surgeon is 181 l. 16 s. 9 d. British per annum, for attending the infirmary and dispensary.
I attend only the Fever Hospital and Dispensary here; salary for both, 60 l. per annum.	I attend only the County Fever Hospital, for which I receive but 50 l. a year, and am obliged to attend every day, and at all hours that it is necessary.	I attend the Navan Fever Hospital only, within a quarter of a mile of my residence. Salary, 50 l. per annum; attendance daily, and I often visit more than once during the day, and sometimes at night.
Yes, where the patients are paupers, and not otherwise.	Decidedly.	I give my own personal attendance in every case.
I have been in charge of the establishments but for the last three months; before that time there was not any registry kept.	There is a register kept of every case admitted. It is merely required to know that the person applying for admission has fever, and is from some part of the county Meath.	A registry has been regularly kept of all the cases admitted, and how disposed of, with the result.
	<table><tr><td>1831</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>119</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>139</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>118</td></tr></table> All labouring under fever.	1831	-	-	-	119	1832	-	-	-	139	1833	-	-	-	118	<table><tr><td></td><td>Number Admitted.</td><td>Number of Days in Hospital.</td><td>Average Number of Days each Patient was in Hospital.</td><td>Average Expense of each Patient per Diem.</td></tr><tr><td>1830</td><td>213</td><td>5,211</td><td>24 1-3 d</td><td>9 1/4 d.</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>194</td><td>5,917</td><td>30 1/4</td><td>8 1/4</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>199</td><td>6,406</td><td>32 1/4</td><td>8</td></tr></table> Fevers, and generally of a bad type.		Number Admitted.	Number of Days in Hospital.	Average Number of Days each Patient was in Hospital.	Average Expense of each Patient per Diem.	1830	213	5,211	24 1-3 d	9 1/4 d.	1831	194	5,917	30 1/4	8 1/4	1832	199	6,406	32 1/4	8
1831	-	-	-	119
1832	-	-	-	139
1833	-	-	-	118
	Number Admitted.	Number of Days in Hospital.	Average Number of Days each Patient was in Hospital.	Average Expense of each Patient per Diem.
1830	213	5,211	24 1-3 d	9 1/4 d.
1831	194	5,917	30 1/4	8 1/4
1832	199	6,406	32 1/4	8
Not that I am aware of.	Very seldom.	The persons who participate in our charity are in general very poor, and none who do not require such assistance.
By order of the secretary, from Messrs. Boileau & George, Dublin.	By Messrs. Boileau & George, and paid for out of the hospital funds.	They are supplied by Messrs. Pollock & Co., Dublin, and dispensed by Mr. Timmon, a resident apothecary in Navan.
I could not procure any accounts of expenditure previous to my being appointed.	<table><tr><td>Annual Receipt</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>£.352</td><td>2</td><td>0</td></tr><tr><td>Annual Expenditure about</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>£.330</td><td>0</td><td>0</td></tr></table>	Annual Receipt	-	-	-	£.352	2	0	Annual Expenditure about	-	-	-	£.330	0	0	<table><tr><td></td><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1830</td><td>- £.300 0 0</td><td>£.323 8 4</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>- 400 0 0</td><td>326 10 9</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>- 350 0 0</td><td>334 11 10</td></tr></table> <table><tr><td colspan="4">GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>1830.</td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td></tr><tr><td>Salaries</td><td>- £.94 0 0</td><td>94 0 0</td><td>94 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine</td><td>- 20 0 0</td><td>20 0 0</td><td>20 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Provisions and Nurse-tenders</td><td>} 209 8 4</td><td>212 10 9</td><td>220 11 10</td></tr></table>		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1830	- £.300 0 0	£.323 8 4	1831	- 400 0 0	326 10 9	1832	- 350 0 0	334 11 10	GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.					1830.	1831.	1832.	Salaries	- £.94 0 0	94 0 0	94 0 0	Medicine	- 20 0 0	20 0 0	20 0 0	Provisions and Nurse-tenders	} 209 8 4	212 10 9	220 11 10
Annual Receipt	-	-	-	£.352	2	0
Annual Expenditure about	-	-	-	£.330	0	0
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1830	- £.300 0 0	£.323 8 4
1831	- 400 0 0	326 10 9
1832	- 350 0 0	334 11 10
GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.
	1830.	1831.	1832.
Salaries	- £.94 0 0	94 0 0	94 0 0
Medicine	- 20 0 0	20 0 0	20 0 0
Provisions and Nurse-tenders	} 209 8 4	212 10 9	220 11 10
By voluntary contributions, and presentments from the King's County.	By presentments from the county Meath grand jury.	By presentments and subscriptions; presentments from county of Meath only.
	I cannot.	The funds are at present low, and I do not know of any alteration that could be made in their distribution for the better. If the funds were increased, improvements might be made. It is to be lamented that physicians are not as well paid for attending fever hospitals as the medical officers of other institutions, either medical or surgical.

LEINSTER—QUEEN'S COUNTY—WESTMEATH—WEXFORD.

Abbeyleix Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Castlepollard Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Arthurstown Fever Hospital and Dispensary.
William Boxwell, Esq., M. D.	M. Kenny, Esq., M. D.	R. Long, Esq., M. D.
Abbeyleix Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Castlepollard Fever Hospital and Dispensary. I also attend the Drumcree Dispensary. I did not attend those institutions at their formation; but I believe the Castlepollard Dispensary and Fever Hospital to be established about 20 years, the Drumcree Dispensary about ten years.	Arthurstown Dispensary and Fever Hospital: those include two dispensaries; one at Arthurstown, the other at Whitechurch; but supported without distinction of funds.
The entire of the parish of Abbeyleix, and portions of the parishes of Ballyroan, Clonenagh, Kiltermogh and Ahavoe.	Five parishes; they are all in the county of Westmeath.	Six parishes, forming two unions in the county of Wexford.
Maryborough County Infirmary, nine miles; Balinakill Dispensary, three miles; Durrow, five miles; Mountrath Dispensary, nine miles; Ballyragget Dispensary, eight miles.	Five dispensaries, one infirmary, one fever hospital, within ten miles.	One dispensary at Fethard, five miles off another at Barrow, nine miles off
No other dispensary within my district.	There is no other dispensary or hospital within my district but those I attend, and of which I have	Two dispensaries attached to the Fever Hospital. Medical salary for attendance on all, 85 l. a year, without any other emolument. made mention. For my attendance on the Castlepollard Dispensary and Fever Hospital I get 120 l. a year; from the Drumcree Dispensary, according to the amount of the subscriptions, 30 l. or 40 l. a year. There is no house or other emolument.
I attend the Abbeyleix Dispensary and Fever Hospital, none other, both in the town with me. Salary, 92 l. 6 s. 2 d. per annum for attending both; attendance at dispensary twice a week; fever hospital every day.	I attend the Castlepollard Dispensary two days in the week, but if required, daily. The Fever Hospital I attend every day. Salary for both, 120 l. The Drumcree Dispensary I attend one day in the week, but give attendance oftener, if required. Salary, varying from 30 l. to 40 l. annually.	I attend the Arthurstown Dispensary, and Whitechurch Dispensary and Fever Hospital. Whitechurch is five miles distant, the Fever Hospital two miles. Whitechurch is attended on two days, and Arthurstown on two days each week. The Fever Hospital is visited every day when occupied by patients.
I do to all who procure a recommendation from a subscriber, or in cases of accident.	I do, whenever it is possible; if not, a skilful apothecary attends them, or gives them advice and medicine.	Certainly.
Subscribers' tickets are filed, with the disease and prescription attached to them; wherever attendance at their residence is required, they are visited as soon as possible.	A register of the cases admitted is kept; but the residences of the patients are often at such a distance that it is impossible in many cases to ascertain the result of treatment.	There is a regular register kept, and a column, denoting the visits to each patient at their own houses.
The average number of patients relieved each year is about 3,000; the diseases comprise fevers, lung diseases, diseases of women and children, midwifery cases, and surgical cases of every description.	Fever cases admitted into hospital, 158. Dispensary patients, many receiving attendance at their own houses, 12,831; a large proportion of which are colds and pectoral complaints, diarrhoea and intermittent fever.	There were but 24 patients received into the Fever Hospital labouring under typhus fever, during 1831-1832. No patients in 1833.
Very often; subscribers recommend their servants and better rank of tenantry.	It does not often happen that the subscribers recommend to the charity persons capable of paying a physician; but there is no doubt but that dispensaries have lowered the character and lessened the incomes of the regularly educated physician.	I think not.
The medicine is procured from a druggist in Dublin; made up and dispensed by an apothecary appointed to the establishment at a salary of 25 l. per annum.	The subscribers contract with an apothecary residing in Castlepollard for the medicine. He is obliged to give his attendance. The medical attendant is responsible that the medicines are good.	By a druggist in Waterford.
<table><tr><td>Annual Receipt.</td><td>Annual Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>Subscriptions - £. 96 0 0</td><td>Salaries - £. 117 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Presentment - 58 0 0</td><td>Medicine - 30 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>£. 154 0 0</td><td>£. 147 0 0</td></tr></table>	Annual Receipt.	Annual Expenditure.	Subscriptions - £. 96 0 0	Salaries - £. 117 0 0	Presentment - 58 0 0	Medicine - 30 0 0	£. 154 0 0	£. 147 0 0	<table><tr><td colspan="4">Hospital Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>£.</td><td>s.</td><td>d.</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - - -</td><td>104</td><td>5</td><td>1½</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - - -</td><td>84</td><td>14</td><td>8</td></tr><tr><td>1833 - - -</td><td>74</td><td>12</td><td>2</td></tr></table> Dispensary annual Expenditure, 175 l. 7 s. 8 ½ d.	Hospital Expenditure.					£.	s.	d.	1831 - - -	104	5	1½	1832 - - -	84	14	8	1833 - - -	74	12	2	<table><tr><td></td><td colspan="3">Receipt.</td><td colspan="3">Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1831 -</td><td>£.</td><td>135</td><td>2</td><td>6</td><td>£.</td><td>141</td></tr><tr><td>1832 -</td><td></td><td>135</td><td>0</td><td>6</td><td></td><td>126</td></tr><tr><td>1833 -</td><td></td><td>120</td><td>4</td><td>11</td><td></td><td>111</td></tr><tr><td></td><td></td><td></td><td></td><td></td><td></td><td>6</td></tr><tr><td></td><td></td><td></td><td></td><td></td><td></td><td>0</td></tr></table>		Receipt.			Expenditure.			1831 -	£.	135	2	6	£.	141	1832 -		135	0	6		126	1833 -		120	4	11		111							6							0
Annual Receipt.	Annual Expenditure.
Subscriptions - £. 96 0 0	Salaries - £. 117 0 0
Presentment - 58 0 0	Medicine - 30 0 0
£. 154 0 0	£. 147 0 0
Hospital Expenditure.
	£.	s.	d.
1831 - - -	104	5	1½
1832 - - -	84	14	8
1833 - - -	74	12	2
	Receipt.			Expenditure.
1831 -	£.	135	2	6	£.	141
1832 -		135	0	6		126
1833 -		120	4	11		111
						6
						0
By private subscriptions, and by grand jury presentment from the Queen's County only.	The Castlepollard Dispensary is supported, one-half by private subscriptions, and the county presents an equal sum, whilst, for the support of the Fever Hospital, a sum double to that subscribed is presented for, and granted by the county.	By private subscriptions, and annual grant from the County Wexford Grand Jury.
I would suggest that the physician should have the power of ordering meal and milk, when necessary, to extern patients.	None at present, as the subscribers from time to time, at their meetings, make such alterations as they deem fit, or as the medical attendant suggests.	None, in the present state of the funds.

LEINSTER—WEXFORD.

Castleborough Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Enniscorthy Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Gorey Fever Hospital and Dispensary.
The Treasurer.	Medical Attendants.	James Hamilton, Esq., M.D.
Castleborough Fever Hospital and Dispensary, established 1822, for the relief of the poor of a very large district, being nearly the whole of five parishes.	Enniscorthy Fever Hospital and Dispensary, established in the year 1815.	Gorey Dispensary; within a few years a Fever Hospital has been established, built by the county.
The greater part of five parishes.	Seven; all in the county Wexford.	There is no particular limit, any persons recommended by a subscriber from any part being attended.
Enniscorthy, seven miles from the centre of the district; Ross, ten miles.	Ferns Dispensary; Oulart Fever Hospital and Dispensary; Castlebridge Dispensary; Camolin Dispensary.	It is difficult to answer this, there are so many; Arklow, within nine miles, Coolganney, six; Limerick, three; Carnew, eight; Killena, four; Ferns, nine; Camolin, six.
The dispensary was attached to the surgeon's residence; the fever hospital a separate house. The surgeon's salary for attending both and compounding medicine, 102 l. per annum.	No.	We had, till lately, a separate house, with beds, for a dispensary, the fever hospital being distinct; but our funds were insufficient, and we have our dispensary without beds for interns attached to the fever hospital.
The dispensary open two days in every week, when the surgeon was expected not to be absent; on other days he visited such poor patients as had tickets from subscribers.	No. Salary for this institution, 100 l. per annum. Fever Hospital attended every day; and the dispensary three days per week.	I attend only the Gorey Dispensary and Fever Hospital; the fever hospital daily; at the dispensary three times a week, and frequently six days when any sickness prevails. For the fever hospital I receive 40 l. per annum, and for the dispensary 60 l. per annum.
The district was so large, as to occupy most of his time.	Yes.	In all particular cases I must attend within three miles round, including the town of Gorey.
Always.	A register is kept of each application; but as to the result, it would be impossible, in consequence of the patients seldom attending to report the termination of their illness.	We have always a register of the cases, but the results are not recorded, from the carelessness of patients not attending when relieved or cured.
The number of patients relieved at the dispensary annually averaged 5,000.	Pneumonia, pleuritis, phthisis and other pulmonary affections; dyspepsia, diarrhoea, dysentery, hepatitis, colica and other abdominal diseases; fevers, cutaneous and exanthematous eruptions, cholera, accidents and a great variety of miscellaneous cases.	We have on an average 3,000 patients in the year, of various diseases, as fever, inflammatory affections; a great deal of bowel and dysenteric affections, and of pulmonary complaints.
The dispensary open to occupying farmers; but all over that class obliged to pay for medicine, attendance, &c.	A great number.	Not often; we have a rule that persons able to pay for medicine and not advice, get the latter gratis, and pay for the former at any apothecary's they choose to go to.
Ordered by the doctor from J. & J. Butler's, Dublin.	By Messrs. P. A. & C. Leslie, Dublin, and order of the secretary.	By Messrs. Boileau & George, and an apothecary at a salary of 20 l. a year compounds them, as no physician could compound them with justice to the numerous patients to be prescribed for.
<table><tr><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>1831 - £.150 18 0</td><td>£.148 19 10</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - 139 1 0</td><td>139 1 0</td></tr><tr><td>1833 - 138 15 0</td><td>150 9 6</td></tr></table>	Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831 - £.150 18 0	£.148 19 10	1832 - 139 1 0	139 1 0	1833 - 138 15 0	150 9 6	<table><tr><th colspan="3">Receipt.</th></tr><tr><th>1831.</th><th>1832.</th><th>1833.</th></tr><tr><td>Balance - £.134 10 3</td><td>53 7 4</td><td>44 15 2½</td></tr><tr><td>Subscriptions 119 2 11</td><td>119 19 0</td><td>126 2 3</td></tr><tr><td>Presentment 238 5 10</td><td>239 19 6</td><td>239 19 6</td></tr></table> <table><tr><th colspan="3">Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><th>1831.</th><th>1832.</th><th>1833.</th></tr><tr><td>Salaries - £.100 0 0</td><td>100 0 0</td><td>100 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine and Provisions } 338 11 8</td><td>268 11 4½</td><td>223 4 7½</td></tr></table>	Receipt.			1831.	1832.	1833.	Balance - £.134 10 3	53 7 4	44 15 2½	Subscriptions 119 2 11	119 19 0	126 2 3	Presentment 238 5 10	239 19 6	239 19 6	Expenditure.			1831.	1832.	1833.	Salaries - £.100 0 0	100 0 0	100 0 0	Medicine and Provisions } 338 11 8	268 11 4½	223 4 7½	The average expense of the Hospital for food, nurse-tender, wine, &c. - - - £.100 0 0 Average expense of Dispensary for } Salaries and Medicine - - } 150 0 0
Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831 - £.150 18 0	£.148 19 10
1832 - 139 1 0	139 1 0
1833 - 138 15 0	150 9 6
Receipt.
1831.	1832.	1833.
Balance - £.134 10 3	53 7 4	44 15 2½
Subscriptions 119 2 11	119 19 0	126 2 3
Presentment 238 5 10	239 19 6	239 19 6
Expenditure.
1831.	1832.	1833.
Salaries - £.100 0 0	100 0 0	100 0 0
Medicine and Provisions } 338 11 8	268 11 4½	223 4 7½
GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><th>1831.</th><th>1832.</th><th>1833.</th></tr><tr><td>Salary - - - £.51 0 0</td><td>51 0 0</td><td>51 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine, Wine, &c. 49 19 6</td><td>43 17 6</td><td>47 19 6</td></tr><tr><td>Diet, Clothes, &c. 48 0 4</td><td>44 3 6</td><td>51 10 0</td></tr></table>	1831.	1832.	1833.	Salary - - - £.51 0 0	51 0 0	51 0 0	Medicine, Wine, &c. 49 19 6	43 17 6	47 19 6	Diet, Clothes, &c. 48 0 4	44 3 6	51 10 0	By public subscription and presentment from the county Wexford.	The dispensary is supported by subscriptions, and a grand jury grant of equal amount. The fever hospital by a grand jury grant, without subscriptions.
1831.	1832.	1833.
Salary - - - £.51 0 0	51 0 0	51 0 0
Medicine, Wine, &c. 49 19 6	43 17 6	47 19 6
Diet, Clothes, &c. 48 0 4	44 3 6	51 10 0
By voluntary subscription, of landlords, clergymen of all persuasions and other individuals; and also by presentment.	In consequence of an hospital being attached to this dispensary, we cannot suggest any better appropriation of the funds.	The funds cannot be more usefully devoted than at present, as far as they go, but if we had fewer dispensaries, and the funds enlarged to those within proper distances, and that the convalescent were allowed better food, the general run of diseases would be much curtailed.
The salaries are generally too high; a very clever man cannot afford to give up private practice; and if the district is large, public and private practice interfere very much. A less efficient surgeon would generally be more useful, and devote more of his time at a smaller salary. The dispensary and fever hospital have this year been suspended in consequence of a difference amongst the subscribers; but they will again be resumed. I have made out the returns myself, as well as I could.

LEINSTER—WEXFORD.

New Ross Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Newtown Barry Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Oulart Fever Hospital and Dispensary.
Committee and Medical Attendant.	John Young, Esq., Surgeon.	Richard Read, Esq., M. D.
New Ross Houghton Fever Hospital and Dispensary, together with a local infirmary for the relief of non-contagious, medical and surgical cases; dispensary established in 1794, and connected with the above in 1809.	The Newtown Barry Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	The Oulart Fever Hospital and Dispensary, established in January 1827.
St. Mary's, and part of Ballyane, all in same county.	Two parishes in the county of Wexford, and part of two in the county of Carlow.	Nine parishes, viz. Kilnemannagh, Killencooley, Mielna, Ballyvaldon, Kilmuckridge, Kilcormuck, Ballyhuskard, the Union of Castle Ellis and Monamolin, all in the barony of Ballaghkeen and county of Wexford.
Lying-in Hospital of Ross, and Dispensary of Whitechurch, in same county; Dispensary of Innistogue and of Graig, in county of Kilkenny.	Six dispensaries and one fever hospital; namely, Myshall, Tullow, Carnew, Ferns, Castleborough and Clonegal.	Killena, Camolin, Ferns, Enniscorthy and Castlebridge; the nearest is Killena, which is seven Irish miles distant.
No. None.	There is no dispensary or hospital within my district.	There is no other hospital or infirmary in the barony of Ballaghkeen.
No.	I attend but one dispensary and fever hospital.	It is my duty to attend at the dispensary on Monday, Wednesday and Friday in each week, from eleven until two o'clock, and at the Fever Hospital daily, or oftener if necessary; and also to attend such of the poor at their own houses as are unable to attend at the dispensary, upon a written request signed by two governors.
Yes.	Yes.
A register is kept of extern and intern patients who apply for relief; the result has materially tended to the advantage of the sick poor, both in the prevention and removal of disease.	There is no registry kept of patients visited at their own houses.	There is a register kept of all applications to the dispensary; as to the result of these applications, I cannot give a correct answer, the patients, who generally labour under chronic diseases, attending very irregularly.
Intern patients, 872; extern patients, 10,500; cholera patients, not included in the foregoing, 506. Fevers, cholera, influenza, chronic, medical and surgical cases.	I cannot answer this question.	The number of persons attended to for the last three years were 4,192. The nature of their diseases were those of the chest, rheumatism, diarrhoea, dysentery, &c. &c.
It may occur, but not intentionally, the object being solely to relieve the sick poor.	Such may receive medical and surgical advice, but not medicine.	Frequently. The governors, either from ignorance of the applicants' circumstances, or some other cause, recommend persons who are able to procure medicines and advice.
Medicines are supplied to all the establishments from a compounding department upon the premises, supported by the funds of the establishments. The medicines are procured from a wholesale druggist in Dublin.	They are provided by the funds of the dispensary from Messrs. Boileau & George, druggists, Bride-street, Dublin.	By the Governors and Company of the Apothecaries' Hall, Dublin.

RECEIPT.						EXPENDITURE.						I cannot answer this question, having the charge of the dispensary but for the last six months.	Receipt.			Expenditure.
Hospital.		1831.		1832.		1833.		Hospital.		1831.			1832.		1833.		1831.	1832.	1833.
	£.	s.	d.	£.	s.	d.	£.	s.	d.		£.		s.	d.	£.	s.	d.	£.	s.	d.
Presentments -	-	220	0	0	200	0	0	200	0	0	Subsistence -	-	210	3	10	252	18	1½	195	11	9
Subscriptions -	-	2	12	3	5	19	1	1	1	0	Nurse-tenders, medicine, &c. -	-	148	17	4	165	11	10	126	16	7
From Representatives late Henry Houghton	250	10	3	248	9	3	266	18	5		Physician, coals, candles, &c.	-	112	5	9½	170	1	2½	179	2	3
Interest on Bridge debentures -	-	-	-	-	-	-	10	0	0		Furniture, ground rents, &c.	-	101	17	8½	45	17	1	18	9	9
Mrs. Paul's legacy -	5	5	0	-	-	-	-	-	-	£.		573	5	0	644	8	3	520	0	4
Dispensary.	£.	478	7	6	454	8	4	477	19	5	Dispensary.
Presentments -	-	82	19	10	84	11	11	88	0	6	Salary to Apothecary -	-	58	10	0	52	10	0	54	10	0
Subscriptions -	-	84	11	11	88	0	6	87	11	4	Medicine, lard, vinegar & linen	-	77	10	2	74	17	10	41	9	11
	£.	167	11	9	172	12	5	175	11	10	Cowpock and postages -	-	7	3	0	10	7	7	34	12	8
											Proportion of rent, wine, &c. -	-	18	8	0	11	3	0	-	-	-
										£.		161	11	2	148	18	5	130	12	7

GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.
	1831.	1832.	1833.
	£.	s.	d.	£.	s.	d.
Salary -	81	3	0	83	0	0
Medicine -	48	4	6½	42	3	7
Provisions, &c. -	61	2	7½	49	1	7½
Repairs -	65	4	5	23	6	2

By endowments from the Ballyane family, by presentments from the county Wexford grand jury; also by legacies, voluntary subscriptions and donations.	By subscription, and presentment from the county Wexford only.	By private subscriptions, and by presentments from the grand jury of the county of Wexford.
We cannot.	I am of opinion that the funds of this dispensary are disposed of with most advantage to the poor.

LEINSTER—WEXFORD—WICKLOW.

Wexford Fever Hospital.	Arklow Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Bray Fever Hospital, Cholera Hospital, and Dispensary.
Committee and Medical Attendant.	D. Wright, Esq., M. D.	N. Heffernan, Esq., M. D.
County of Wexford Fever Hospital, established in 1815, for the reception of patients ill of fever, and placed under the provisions of the 58th Geo. 3, in 1818.	Arklow Fever Hospital for fevers, established in 1818. Arklow Dispensary, established in 1807, for affording advice, medicine and surgical aid; also nourishment to the sick poor.	Bray Fever Hospital, established in 1818; Bray Cholera Hospital, established in 1832; Bray Dispensary, for relief of sick poor of the parish, established in 1812.
All the parishes of the county of Wexford have the privilege of sending patients.	Two, and part of two more, all in the same county.	Three, in counties of Wicklow and Dublin.
The following dispensaries are within 10 miles; viz. Broadway, Bridgetown, Taghmon and Castlebridge.	Rathdrum, Gorey, and Aughrim Dispensaries; Gorey Fever Hospital.	Rathdown, Killiney, Enniskerry, Delgany, Newtown Mount Kennedy.
There are several attached to fever hospitals, and there is one in connexion with the Wexford Infirmary, but there is not one attached to this institution.	No.	Not any.
There are four physicians attending, in monthly rotation, at 25 guineas per annum each. When the number of patients exceeds 30, two of these medical gentlemen attend together.	One dispensary and one fever hospital; residence, a few minutes walk from both; salary, 73 l. a year for dispensary; 32 l. for fever hospital. Three days a week at dispensary; daily at fever hospital.	I attend the Bray Fever Hospital, the Bray Cholera Hospital, and the Dispensary at Bray, not distant one-eighth of a mile, and receive for the entire, 130 l. per annum.
Yes.	Yes.	I do.
All who apply are admitted, and a registry is kept.	Yes.	There is.
1831 - - - - - 251 1832 - - - - - 181 1833 - - - - - 172 The diseases come under the general class of fevers.	16,262 pulmonary and bowel complaints, all kinds of inflammatory diseases, agues, rheumatism, diseases of the skin, scrofula, all diseases of women and children, wounds, fractures, &c. &c.	6,437; all diseases incident to this country.
None but paupers present themselves for admission.	Many such get gratuitous advice, but as much care is taken as possible to guard against imposition.	Never.
By Dublin druggists, Messrs. Boileau & George.	The medicines are procured from a wholesale druggist, ordered and paid for by the treasurer of the institution.	By Messrs. Boileau & George, druggists, in Dublin.
<table> <tr> <th></th><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr> <tr> <td>1831 (Presentment)</td><td>£.500 0 0</td><td>624 0 0</td></tr> <tr> <td>1832 - - - - -</td><td>500 0 0</td><td>662 0 0</td></tr> <tr> <td>1833 - - - - -</td><td>500 0 0</td><td>539 0 0</td></tr> </table> The balance is paid by donations and annual subscriptions.		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831 (Presentment)	£.500 0 0	624 0 0	1832 - - - - -	500 0 0	662 0 0	1833 - - - - -	500 0 0	539 0 0	<table> <tr> <th></th><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr> <tr> <td></td><td>Subscription. Presentment.</td><td></td></tr> <tr> <td>1830</td><td>£.91 10 3</td><td>92 6 1</td></tr> <tr> <td>1831</td><td>92 15 2</td><td>92 6 1</td></tr> <tr> <td>1832</td><td>86 8 3</td><td>86 8 3</td></tr> </table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.—Medicine, rent, nourishment, physician's and house-keeper's salaries, &c.		Receipt.	Expenditure.		Subscription. Presentment.		1830	£.91 10 3	92 6 1	1831	92 15 2	92 6 1	1832	86 8 3	86 8 3	<table> <tr> <th></th><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr> <tr> <td>1831</td><td>£.287 17 2</td><td>£.231 18 9</td></tr> <tr> <td>1832</td><td>276 19 2</td><td>336 4 0</td></tr> <tr> <td>1833</td><td>258 14 1½</td><td>227 17 6</td></tr> </table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.—Medicine, diet of patients, and doctor's salary.		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831	£.287 17 2	£.231 18 9	1832	276 19 2	336 4 0	1833	258 14 1½	227 17 6
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831 (Presentment)	£.500 0 0	624 0 0
1832 - - - - -	500 0 0	662 0 0
1833 - - - - -	500 0 0	539 0 0
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
	Subscription. Presentment.
1830	£.91 10 3	92 6 1
1831	92 15 2	92 6 1
1832	86 8 3	86 8 3
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831	£.287 17 2	£.231 18 9
1832	276 19 2	336 4 0
1833	258 14 1½	227 17 6
By subscriptions, and presentments from county Wexford alone.	By subscriptions, and presentment from one county only.	By private subscription, and by presentment from county of Wicklow.
We conceive, if the funds were increased, that a house which is now attached to the fever hospital, and which contains two wards, might be advantageously used for the reception of patients labouring under other diseases than that of fever.	No; I think the funds are as well applied as they can be.	The funds of the establishments under my charge are disbursed with the most rigid economy, and are laid out in the most judicious manner.

LEINSTER—WICKLOW.

Enniskerry Fever Hospital & Dispensary.	Newtown Mount Kennedy Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Stratford-on-Slaney Fever Hospital and Dispensary.
John Gason, Esq., M.D.	James Mitchell, Esq., M.D.	N.W. Heath, Esq., Surgeon.
Enniskerry Dispensary, established 1814; and Enniskerry Hospital, established 1817.	The fever hospital and dispensaries for the parishes of Newcastle and Delgany. The dispensaries were established in the year 1811, one in Newtown Mount Kennedy, the other in the village of Delgany. The fever hospital was established in Newtown Mount Kennedy in the latter part of the same year. There is also a cholera hospital in each parish.	Stratford-on-Slaney Fever Hospital and Dispensary; the latter was established many years since by private subscription, having two apartments for fever patients. When the grand jury was enabled to present 500 l. Irish for fever hospitals, it was divided among house with eight apartments has since been built, which has power, they established a second infirmary in Baltinglass.
the three then existing at Stratford, Newtown Mount Kennedy and Arklow; a good held 40 patients at once; as soon as the governors of the county infirmary got the
The parish of Powerscourt alone.	Two parishes, Newcastle and Delgany; both in the county Wicklow.	Six in the county of Wicklow, and a small portion of Kildare.
A dispensary and fever hospital at Bray; a dispensary and fever hospital at Newtown Mount Kennedy, and a dispensary at Dundrum.	The County Infirmary in the town of Wicklow, distant seven miles from Newtown Mount Kennedy; the Fever Hospital and Dispensary at Bray, distant seven miles; and the Fever Hospital and Dispensary at Powerscourt, distant seven or eight miles.	There are three dispensaries in the barony of Talbotstown, in the county of Wicklow, besides these attached to the infirmary and fever hospital; viz: at Blessington, Dunlavin and Kiltegan; there are also dispensaries at Baletore, Castledermot and Hacketstown.
There is no other medical establishment for the relief of the poor, within my district.	There is not a dispensary, hospital or infirmary within my district, excepting those stated above.	There is a dispensary attached to the infirmary, where the poor get advice and medicine, and all sudden accidents are admitted to the infirmary without any recommendation from a governor.
I only attend the Enniskerry Dispensary and Fever Hospital.	I attend two dispensaries and one fever hospital; the dispensary for Newcastle parish, and the fever hospital, are in Delgany, about two miles and a half distant; these dispensaries and the fever hospital form but one institution, and are supported by the same fund. The salary is 110 l. 15 s. (120 l. Irish), for attending the dispensaries. I do not receive any salary for attending the fever hospital. I attend one day in the week at each dispensary, and further, make it a rule to see and prescribe for the poor on all days, and at whatever hour they apply, at my own house.	Surgeon Heath attends the second county infirmary in Baltinglass, and the Stratford Fever Hospital, with the dispensaries attached to each; the distance from one to the other is four British miles, and he resides between them. The salary of the infirmary is 100 l. Irish, out of which is paid 20 l. a year rent for the infirmary and house attached thereto, which is occupied by his mother, who receives 10 l. and Dispensary, £. 55. 7. 8.; Total Salary, £. 129. 4. 7.
I consider it my duty, in all cases, to give my personal attendance at the residence of the patients, when they are by inability or sickness prevented from attending at the dispensary.	I consider it my duty in all such cases.	Yes, and to visit when a recommendation or a ticket, according to rule, is sent from a governor; the rules of the dispensary require two days' attendance at Baltinglass and two at Stratford, in the week; but advice and medicine are given daily to The infirmary and fever hospital are visited daily.
A registry is kept of all patients admitted into the hospital, and relieved at the dispensary, with the result.	The only registers kept are those of the fever hospital, and a list of the numbers who attend as externs at the dispensaries. A register of those visited at their own houses has not been kept; the number being too great, and the time of the physician too much occupied by them, to admit of this being done with accuracy.	There is a register kept of all cases admitted to the infirmary and fever hospital, and the numbers of extern patients who receive advice and medicine there.
	The yearly accounts of this institution are always made up to the commencement of July, for presentation at the summer assizes.	1831 - - - - 1,240 1832 - - - - 1,025 1833 - - - - 1,388 A great number of these cases were different modifications of dyspepsia, and diseases of the chylopoietic viscera; the remainder were the common affections that afflict our species, with accidents, ulcers, &c.
	Admitted into Hospital: 220 Relieved at Dispensary: 19,282 Visited at their Houses: 20 per day.	The diseases treated are internal inflammations, fevers of different classes; epidemics, as measles, scarlatina, influenza, &c., and all other diseases which render the patient unable to attend at the dispensary. Among these may be mentioned cases of cholera, severe surgical cases and accidents, and cases of midwifery requiring the assistance of an accoucheur.
Seldom, and then only when genuine medicine cannot be procured in time from the neighbouring apothecary.	Not often; every proper precaution being taken to prevent it.	Not often; the district is poor; the village of Stratford miserably so; Baltinglass little better.
By the committee, from a druggist in Dublin, upon the order of the physician.	The medicines are supplied by Messrs. Boileau & Co., druggists, and are paid for by the treasurer.	By an apothecary in Baltinglass, Mr. Johnson.
Hospital.	Receipt.	Receipt.
1830 - £. 150 0 0	1830. 1831. 1832.	1830 - - £. 173 5 11
1831 - 154 12 10	£. s. d. £. s. d. £. s. d.	1831 - - - 173 6 4
1832 - 154 12 10	Balance - - - 35 18 4½	1832 - - - 156 19 10
	Subscriptions - - - 107 19 -
	Presentments - - - 246 1 11
	£. 389 19 3½
Expenditure.	Expenditure.	Expenditure.
1830 - £. 81 17 9	1830. 1831. 1832.	£. 148 18 0
1831 - 113 9 7½	£. s. d. £. s. d. £. s. d.	1831 - - - 129 18 2
1832 - 112 13 11½	Salaries - - - 127 10 2½	1832 - - - 136 16 7
	Medicine - - - 94 14 10
	Diet, Wine, &c. - - - 65 16 7
	Fuel - - - 20 0 0
	Sundries - - - 16 12 1
	£. 324 13 8½
Dispensary.	Expenditure.	GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.
1830 - £. 186 0 7	1830. 1831. 1832.	1830 - - £. 71 3 0½
1831 - 174 0 0	£. s. d. £. s. d. £. s. d.	1831 - - - 71 3 0½
1832 - 168 0 0	Salaries - - - 71 3 0½	1832 - - - 71 3 0½
	Medicine - - - 25 0 0
	Provisions - - - 43 13 3
	Furniture - - - 6 4 0
	Sundries - - - 2 17 9
	£. 272 9 5½
The dispensary and hospital are supported by private subscriptions, and by a grant for each, by presentment from the county.	Partly by private subscription, and partly by presentments from the county Wicklow only.	By subscriptions and presentments got from the grand jury of Wicklow only.
I cannot at present suggest any more effective method for the distribution of the funds by which the medical establishment under my charge is supported.	I cannot suggest any beneficial alteration in the distribution of these funds at their present amount; were they increased, it would be desirable to add a surgical ward to our hospital, the distance to the county infirmary being in general too great for the conveyance of fractures, and other severe accidents requiring surgical treatment.	I believe the funds are expended in the most judicious manner. The surgeon is but inadequately remunerated for all his exertions; but it is hoped that the Legislature, in its wisdom, will see the propriety of allowing an independence to medical officers engaged in attending the poor, so as to enable them to devote their time entirely and solely to that duty.

* In the account for three years ending 1st July 1833, it is to be observed, that the sums set down are those actually received and disbursed within that period, as copied from the statements annually submitted to the grand jury. A portion of the disbursements were sums paid on account, in discharge of arrears due from the years 1827 and 1828, during which an epidemic fever prevailed extensively, and 659 patients were received into the hospital; the institution thus became heavily burthened, being obliged to extend its aid to the adjoining parishes of Wicklow and Derrilossory, neither of them having a fever hospital or visiting dispensary; these arrears are now entirely discharged, and the institution free from debt.

MUNSTER—CITY OF CORK.—COUNTY OF CORK.

Cork Fever Hospital.	Bandon Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Buttevant Fever Hospital and Dispensary.
J. S. Beamish, Esq., M.D.	William Belcher, Esq., M.D.	Committee and Medical Attendant.
The Cork Fever Hospital or House of Recovery; not more than one; established in November 1802.	The Bandon Fever Hospital and Dispensary was established in 1817. It has been a united establishment from the commencement.	The Buttevant Fever Hospital and Dispensary. The dispensary was permanently established in the year 1818, and the fever hospital in 1830.
The district properly comprises the City and Liberties of Cork; the grand jury presentments, by which the hospital is partly supported, being levied exclusively upon these; but not unfrequently patients are brought in from the county, strictly so called.	There are two, Ballymodan and Kilbrogan, both in the county, Cork.	Union of Buttevant, Emerick, Churchtown, Ballydriedun, and a part of the parishes of Kilbrin, Shandrum, Liscarrol and Kilbolane.
In the City there are the City of Cork Dispensary, where attendance is given daily, and the medical men are required to visit externally. Attached to the House of Industry is an hospital for diseases not infectious, such cases being sent to this hospital; a Lunatic Asylum; a Lying-in Hospital and Infirmary attached to each of the two gaols, the Convict Depot and the Foundling Hospital, besides the Military Hospitals. Within a distance of ten miles round are fifteen dispensaries; Cloghrae, Blarney, Whitechurch, Glenville, Watergrasshill, Lower Glanmine, Glanmine Road, Blackrock, Passage, Douglas, Carrigaline, Ballinadrassig, Ovens, Dunbollogue and Cove.	*Within 10 miles of Bandon there are a great number of dispensaries established; viz. Clonakilty, Timoleague, Inishannon, Dunderrow, Balinspittle, Ovens, Ballineen, and some others.	Doneraile Dispensary, situated 5 miles; Ballyclough, 7 miles; County Infirmary, 7 miles; and Charleville Dispensary, 9 miles from Buttevant.
At the North and South Infirmarys of this city advice is given and medicine dispensed on stated days of the week, the patients or their friends attending on these days, the medical men not being required to visit externally.	There is a dispensary, united with a fever hospital. The physician has a fixed salary of 90 l. per annum. An apothecary has 20 l. ; and a superintendent resident in the fever hospital, 20 l. per annum.	The only hospital (with the exception of this one) is the county infirmary. I do not know what salary the surgeon of the county infirmary receives.
	I attend only the Bandon Dispensary daily, from 10 A. M. to 12; and the Fever Hospital, which is connected therewith, at all hours when my presence is necessary.	The physician only attends to the Buttevant Dispensary and Fever Hospital; and although he resides on the spot, the governors conceive that the duties of this establishment take up so much of his time that he could not possibly attend to any other. The salary of the medical officer has fluctuated from 50 l. to over 100 l. a year; but the committee have heretofore allowed 100 l. when the funds permitted. The days of attendance are Monday, Wednesday and Friday, and at any time a case may require it.	The Fever Hospital attendance is daily, of course.
Yes, the physicians of this hospital giving daily personal attendance.	I do consider it a most indispensable duty.	I generally do give my personal attendance, except in slight cases, when I send my assistant.
Yes.	A most accurate register is kept.	There has always been a register kept, stating the date of admission, name, age, by whom recommended, residence, disease, treatment, and event, if that can be ascertained, of every case.
Admitted. Cured. Died. Remaining. 4,187 3,977 179 31	Number treated. Number of Fevers. 1830 - - 2,994 234 1831 - - 3,042 336 1832 - - 2,521 233	1830 - - - - 4,287 1831 - - - - 4,295 1832 - - - - 3,031 11,613
This applies to fever cases. During the last nine months 741 cholera patients have been received, of whom a proportion of more than one-third died; the cholera patients are isolated in a part of the hospital unconnected with the fever wards. This hospital has been the sole receptacle of cholera for this city and its vicinity, since 4th February 1832.	The next prevalent diseases (excepting cholera, last year) were pneumonic affections, rheumatisms, erysipelas, measles; and this year, small-pox and scarlatina.	It would be impossible, in so small a space, to give a general statement of the diseases treated during the above period.
Certainly not.	Very rarely in this establishment. The few that have occurred were recommended by the subscribers, under misapprehension as to their circumstances.	It has occurred, but very rarely, the subscribers in general being exceedingly particular in recommending objects only.
Wholesale, from a druggist.	They are supplied by the apothecary of the dispensary, at the lowest possible rate. He is a resident of this town, Mr. H. Belcher.	The medicines are purchased from the dispensary fund, and supplied by a respectable druggist in Cork, either on my requisition to the treasurer, or immediately on the druggist himself.
Receipt. Expenditure. 1831 - £. 1,066 13 0 £. 1,078 0 6 1832 - - 1,373 17 11 1,515 1 0 1833 - - 1,040 6 0 1,015 7 7	Receipt. Expenditure. 1830 - - £. 390 11 0 ½ £. 325 1 3 ½ 1831 - - 381 14 2 ½ 317 10 10 1832 - - 381 4 5 ½ 322 4 5 ½	Receipt. Expenditure. 1830 - - £. 295 10 8 ½ £. 297 0 8 ½ 1831 - - 66 9 0 66 9 0 1832 - - 51 4 0 42 0 6
		Dispensary. Receipt. Expenditure. 1830 - £. 144 2 0 £. 150 11 0 1831 - - 182 4 0 186 8 1 1832 - - 186 10 6 186 10 6
Partly by voluntary contributions, and partly by presentments obtained solely from the city grand jury.	It is supported by voluntary contributions in part, and by grand jury presentment, obtained from the grand jury of the county of Cork.	By private subscriptions, donations, and presentments. The latter are obtained from the county of Cork only.
No.	The establishment under my charge is well supported, and very efficient indeed for the relief of the poor. The committee are at this moment rendering it more so by building a wing to the hospital, which will contain two extensive wards for accidents and surgical cases, and they expect additional support from the grand jury of the county to assist them in completing this highly desirable addition.	I could not suggest any alteration in the funds as heretofore, from their scantiness; however, if the funds of dispensaries in general were made sufficient, I would humbly propose that a few beds should be attached to every dispensary, for the admission of all cases, contagious or otherwise, when they had no means of support in their own houses; and in certain cases, for example, the father of a large family labouring under a chronic disease, where his advice at home might be of much use and comfort to his family, should be supported in his own house during his illness, under the superintendence of the dispensary physician.

MUNSTER—CORK.

Cove Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Fermoy Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Kinsale Fever Hospital and Dispensary.
Edward Millett, Esq.	Charles Murphy, Esq., M.D. Thomas F. Downing, Esq., M.D.	Committee and Medical Attendants.
Cove Fever Hospital and Dispensary; the latter established in 1809; the former built, and both united, in July 1828.	Fermoy Dispensary and Fever Hospital, established about the year 1810 or 1811. There are surgical wards attached to the institution for operations, admission of accidents, and all surgical cases.	Kinsale Dispensary and Kinsale Fever Hospital; two institutions; the dispensary established 1812, and the hospital 1816.
One parish, comprising town and island of Cove. Population nearly 11,000.	The parishes of Fermoy, Litter and Clandilane.	The entire of St. Multose, the entire of Tissassin, the greater part of Ringcurran, a great part of Clontead, parts of Kilraun, otherwise Killonney, also parts of Ringrone, Ballymartle and Dunderrow, all in the county of Cork.
Hospitals and dispensaries of the city of Cork; Glanmire; Cloyne; Middleton; Ahadagh; Passage and Carrigaline.	Six dispensaries, but no infirmary or fever hospital, except at Mitchelstown.	Kinnalea, Ballinaboy, Innishannon, and the union of Ballinspittle and Kilbrittain.
None but the above. Salary, 100 l. per annum, divided between three medical attendants. No other emolument whatever.	There is not.	The dispensary and fever hospital are held in the same building, but without a communication
No other than those stated in first query. The attendance is daily.	We do not.	Kinsale Fever Hospital and Dispensary alone, which are daily attended.
Most certainly.	We do.	Most certainly.
Registers have always been regularly kept, and the result submitted, in an annual report, to a general meeting of the subscribers, and to the county grand jury.	A register is kept of all applications and the result.	There is a register kept of all cases where application has been made, not as to the result with respect to the dispensary, it being found impracticable, from the number of physicians prescribing and the negligence of patients in reporting results.
Admitted, 4,918. Cured and relieved, 4,810. Diseases, acute, chronic, surgical, midwifery, vaccination, fevers. The number of deaths was much increased by the cholera prevailing to a great extent in 1832; but typhus fever, since the establishment of the hospital, has become nearly extinct.	During the last three years 251 persons have been received into the fever hospital, and at least three times that number have been attended at their own houses; more than 20 per day relieved at the dispensary.	<table><tr><td>1830</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>2,360</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>2,306</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>2,419</td></tr><tr><td></td><td></td><td></td><td></td><td></td><td>7,084</td></tr></table>	1830	-	-	-	-	2,360	1831	-	-	-	-	2,306	1832	-	-	-	-	2,419						7,084
1830	-	-	-	-	2,360
1831	-	-	-	-	2,306
1832	-	-	-	-	2,419
					7,084
Such attempts have been made, but the committee and medical officers guard against this abuse as much as possible.	Never.	That is most particularly guarded against, and seldom ever occurs.
By public contract with a druggist in Cork.	By a druggist.	From Leslie & Co., Dublin, by order of the medical attendants.
<table><tr><td></td><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>- £.278 7 5½</td><td>£.278 7 5½</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>- - 262 2 6</td><td>252 16 8</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>- - 241 14 2</td><td>234 7 7½</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.—Salaries, medicine and contingencies.		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831	- £.278 7 5½	£.278 7 5½	1832	- - 262 2 6	252 16 8	1833	- - 241 14 2	234 7 7½	The amount of Receipt for three years - £.844 6 2 The expenditure is larger, say 854 l. 1 s. , the difference being paid out of a balance in treasurer's hands, and comprised under the heads of Medicine, Medical Attendants, Nurses for Fever Hospital, Food, &c.	<table><tr><td colspan="6">DISPENSARY.</td></tr><tr><td></td><td></td><td>Receipt.</td><td></td><td>Expenditure.</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>1830</td><td>-</td><td>£.93 14 7</td><td></td><td>£.93 8 3½</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>-</td><td>93 14 0</td><td></td><td>100 3 2½</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>-</td><td>100 19 10</td><td></td><td>84 8 5½</td><td></td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.—Salaries, Medicine, Provisions, Repairs, &c.	DISPENSARY.								Receipt.		Expenditure.		1830	-	£.93 14 7		£.93 8 3½		1831	-	93 14 0		100 3 2½		1832	-	100 19 10		84 8 5½
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831	- £.278 7 5½	£.278 7 5½
1832	- - 262 2 6	252 16 8
1833	- - 241 14 2	234 7 7½
DISPENSARY.
		Receipt.		Expenditure.
1830	-	£.93 14 7		£.93 8 3½
1831	-	93 14 0		100 3 2½
1832	-	100 19 10		84 8 5½
By voluntary subscription, and presentment on the county.	By private subscriptions, donations, and by grand jury presentments.	By presentment, and voluntary contribution presented for in the county of Cork alone.
None.	We cannot.	Certainly not. If a further small sum were placed in the hands of the committee, the benefits of the hospital could be extended, and some trifling relief afforded to convalescents.

MUNSTER—CORK.

Mallow Fever Hospital.	Middleton Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Mitchelstown Fever Hospital & Dispensary.
Medical Attendants.	J. Barry, Esq., M. D.	Eugene O'Neil, Esq., M. D.
Fever Hospital; established in the year 1832.	The Middleton House of Recovery, or Fever Hospital, an infirmary and dispensary; the first for the reception of fever patients, the second for all surgical cases; and the last for the dispensation of medicine and advice to the poor. established eleven years ago, and built at the sole expense of the Earl of Kingston.	The Mitchelstown Dispensary and Fever Hospital are under my care; the object of the former is to give medical advice and medicine gratuitously to the sick poor of the town and neighbourhood, of the latter to receive all pauper fever patients, occasionally those labouring under dysentery, small-pox and measles, and of labourers attacked with cholera; we have also a ward for surgical cases; both were
Parish of Mallow.	Six parishes; they are.	Eight parishes in my district, viz. five in the county Cork, two in the county Limerick, and one in the county Tipperary.
Fever Hospital and Dispensary at Buttevant; dispensaries at the following places, viz. Ballyclough, Glauntane, Castletown-Roche and Doneraile.	There is a dispensary at Cloyne, one at Castlemartyr and at Glanmire, which are within ten miles.	Kildorrery, Kilworth, Glanworth, Fermoy, in the county Cork, Ballyporeen, in the county Tipperary, and Ballylander, in the county Limerick.
Extern patients, upon application at the physician's house, receive advice and medicine from the funds of the County Infirmary, which is situated in the town of Mallow. attending the dispensary four days in the week. My assistant and compounder of medicine gets from the under nurse 14 s. per month. They have apartments more as matron and upper nurse; and	I believe there are a few beds attached to the dispensary at Cloyne and Castlemartyr, for the accommodation of fever patients only, which are within 10 miles, but I cannot say what salary the medical attendant gets.	There is no other dispensary, hospital or infirmary immediately in my district. The dispensary and fever hospital I attend are attached. My salary is 40 l. a year for attending the fever hospital and infirmary every day; 60 l. for the committee of management 20 l. a year; his wife 20 l. attached to the hospital gratis, and coals and candles.
The Mallow Fever Hospital is attended by Drs. Linihan & Justice, for which they receive no remuneration; the latter attends the Glauntane Dispensary, four miles distant, three days in the week, and on the intermediate ones, if called on, for which he receives 100 l. per annum.	I attend but one, and for my daily attendance on the fever hospital, infirmary and dispensary, I get a salary of 80 l. a year, together with coals and candles; my residence is close to the hospital.	I attend no other but that of Mitchelstown Dispensary and Fever Hospital.
We do in all cases of fever.	I do, to all patients recommended by subscribers.	I do when practicable.
A registry of patients' names, date of admission into hospital and termination of disease is kept.	I keep an accurate register of all cases received into hospital, together with the result.	A regular register of the number of applicants, the mode of treatment and the termination of every individual case, is kept.
<table><tr><th>Year.</th><th>Admitted.</th><th>Cured.</th><th>Died.</th></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>214</td><td>205</td><td>9</td></tr><tr><td>1833*</td><td>52</td><td>44</td><td>3</td></tr></table> * For five months.	Year.	Admitted.	Cured.	Died.	1832	214	205	9	1833*	52	44	3	<table><tr><th>Admitted into Hospital.</th><th>Admitted into Infirmary.</th><th>Relieved at Dispensary.</th></tr><tr><td>482</td><td>64</td><td>55 daily.</td></tr></table> All these were extern patients, and classed under the heads of acute and chronic complaints. Among the former, fevers and inflammatory diseases: the latter, all local and subordinate cases.	Admitted into Hospital.	Admitted into Infirmary.	Relieved at Dispensary.	482	64	55 daily.	<table><tr><th></th><th>Extern.</th><th>Intern.</th><th>Died.</th></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>6,618</td><td>90</td><td>6</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>9,312</td><td>43</td><td>1</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>8,767</td><td>45</td><td>3</td></tr><tr><td>Cholera Cases 1832</td><td>43</td><td>20</td><td>20</td></tr></table>		Extern.	Intern.	Died.	1831	6,618	90	6	1832	9,312	43	1	1833	8,767	45	3	Cholera Cases 1832	43	20	20
Year.	Admitted.	Cured.	Died.
1832	214	205	9
1833*	52	44	3
Admitted into Hospital.	Admitted into Infirmary.	Relieved at Dispensary.
482	64	55 daily.
	Extern.	Intern.	Died.
1831	6,618	90	6
1832	9,312	43	1
1833	8,767	45	3
Cholera Cases 1832	43	20	20
Never.	It very frequently occurs, and I cannot prevent it, as I am required to attend all who bring a ticket from a subscriber.	It never occurs.
By the apothecaries of the town, a fortnight each in rotation.	The medicines are supplied by a druggist, and paid for out of the general fund.	The druggist is Mr. Harrington, of Cork. I furnish a list of the medicines required to the acting committee, and they forward it to the druggist. All our accounts are settled monthly, and the hospital daily inspected by a subscriber.
<table><tr><th></th><th>Receipt.</th></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>£. 132 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>151 6 3</td></tr></table>		Receipt.	1832	£. 132 0 0	1833	151 6 3	<table><tr><th></th><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><td>1830</td><td>£. 270 11 6</td><td>£. 277 16 7</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>326 0 0</td><td>326 4 0</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>275 0 0</td><td>284 16 0</td></tr></table>		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1830	£. 270 11 6	£. 277 16 7	1831	326 0 0	326 4 0	1832	275 0 0	284 16 0	Our receipts for the last three years were nearly the same; the subscriptions were from 110 l. to 120 l.; the county presentments came to the same amount, and our expenditure generally, including every thing, did not much exceed 240 l.; the bill of medicine yearly amounts to between 40 l. and 50 l.
	Receipt.
1832	£. 132 0 0
1833	151 6 3
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1830	£. 270 11 6	£. 277 16 7
1831	326 0 0	326 4 0
1832	275 0 0	284 16 0
By voluntary contributions, and grand jury grant.	By private subscription and grand jury grant, in this county only.	They are supported by voluntary subscription, and county presentments, solely off this county.
By attaching a dispensary, which would give the sick poor the benefit of medical attendance at their own houses; for which there is no provision at present in this large and populous town.	Many are recommended to the advantages of the charity who are well able to pay for medicine and advice; I would, therefore, suggest that the clergy, or others equally disinterested, should have the power of recommending patients.	It does not appear to me that the funds at the present could be disposed of to more advantage for the benefit of the sick and suffering poor.

MUNSTER—CORK—KERRY.

Newmarket Fever Hospital & Dispensary.	Youghal Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Killarney Fever Hospital and Dispensary.
P. R. Fivy, Esq., Surgeon.	Committee and Medical Attendant.
Newmarket Dispensary and Fever Hospital, situated in the town of Newmarket, for the benefit of the sick poor of the neighbourhood, established in the year 1814.	The Youghal Charitable Infirmary. This is both an hospital and dispensary. Medicine is dispensed daily, and out-patients are daily visited at their own houses. There is also a fever hospital. Infirmary established February 1784; Fever Hospital established 2d August 1808.	Killarney Dispensary, with six wards for the reception of fever patients, and two small rooms for surgical cases, established in the year 1812.
The parishes of Clonfert, Kilmeen, and part of Coolavotha, all in the same county.	One, that of St. Mary's, Youghal.	Three parishes, all in the same county.
There are two dispensaries within 10 miles, namely, Kanturk and Freemount; at the same time, the Newmarket district extends a distance of 12 miles in an opposite direction.	The only dispensary within 10 miles is one at Killeagh, county Cork, five miles distant; one at Castlemartyr, county Cork, eight miles; and one at Clashmore, county Waterford, five miles.	There is no dispensary, infirmary or public hospital nearer than 16 miles, Irish measure.
There is no other dispensary or hospital within this district. The salary of the medical attendant to the Newmarket Dispensary and Fever Hospital is 80 £. per annum.	There is. The physicians and surgeon who attend to this establishment do so gratuitously. There is also an apothecary employed; his salary is 80 £. per annum; he is required to reside in the dispensary, rent-free, and has an allowance of coals and candles.	There is no dispensary, hospital or infirmary within the district, but the above-named.
I do not attend more than one dispensary, infirmary or hospital, which is situated at a distance of a quarter of a mile from my residence. Attendance, three days a week.	I attend the infirmary and fever hospital, institutions hitherto connected, and within a few yards of each other.	No.
It is expected I should attend the note of a subscriber, in all cases whenever medical or surgical aid is required.	I do; although my attendance is gratuitous.	We consider it our duty in all cases to give our personal attendance, whenever medical or surgical aid is required.
Books for the purpose of registry are kept at the hospital, where a correct report of those seeking medical aid is kept.	Yes.	A register is kept in the hospital of all cases admitted, as well as of all externs applying for relief.
I regret being unable to supply an account of the number of persons relieved within the last three years, as I have only been attached to the Newmarket Dispensary a period of 17 months; during that time 3,440 sick poor partook of the benefits of the charity.		The average number of patients annually afflicted with fever and other diseases, admitted into the hospital, amounts to between 250 and 300; the externs to between 4,000 and 5,000. The prevailing diseases are fever, for the most part typhus, affections of the lungs, stomach and bowels, &c.
The subscribers of this institution, generally speaking, are averse to recommend for medical attendance persons not properly considered paupers.	Regulations made by the committee have, we believe, prevented an abuse of it in this respect; yet it is possible they may have been evaded in some few instances.	Very rarely.
Medicines are ordered by the committee of the dispensary, and supplied by a druggist.	The medicines are supplied principally by a wholesale house, Messrs. P. & C. Leslie, Bride-street, Dublin, and any articles that are run out are supplied by Mr. Harrington, Cork.	The medicines are supplied and paid for out of the general fund, and compounded by the apothecary of the institution.
<table><tr><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - £. 144 16 6½</td><td>£. 141 3 6</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - - 168 1 6½</td><td>134 12 10½</td></tr><tr><td>1833 - - 136 16 11</td><td>162 3 6</td></tr></table>	Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831 - £. 144 16 6½	£. 141 3 6	1832 - - 168 1 6½	134 12 10½	1833 - - 136 16 11	162 3 6	<table><tr><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - - - £. 224 7 2</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - - - 231 1 9½</td></tr><tr><td>1833 - - - 228 10 8</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.—Coals, Candles, Salary, Medicine, Calico, Paper, Straw, Bedding, Furniture, Repairs, &c.	Expenditure.	1831 - - - £. 224 7 2	1832 - - - 231 1 9½	1833 - - - 228 10 8	<table><tr><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1830 (Presentment) £. 219 15 7</td><td>466 9 10½</td></tr><tr><td>1831 — - 181 18 1</td><td>455 2 10½</td></tr><tr><td>1832 — - 179 18 2</td><td>513 16 10½</td></tr></table> The amount of subscriptions not given.	Receipt.	Expenditure.	1830 (Presentment) £. 219 15 7	466 9 10½	1831 — - 181 18 1	455 2 10½	1832 — - 179 18 2	513 16 10½
Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831 - £. 144 16 6½	£. 141 3 6
1832 - - 168 1 6½	134 12 10½
1833 - - 136 16 11	162 3 6
Expenditure.
1831 - - - £. 224 7 2
1832 - - - 231 1 9½
1833 - - - 228 10 8
Receipt.	Expenditure.
1830 (Presentment) £. 219 15 7	466 9 10½
1831 — - 181 18 1	455 2 10½
1832 — - 179 18 2	513 16 10½
The dispensary and fever hospital are supported by voluntary contribution, aided by grand jury presentment obtained from the county Cork.	By private subscriptions, donations, and presentment by grand jury of the county.	By subscription and voluntary contribution, and presentments obtained from the grand jury of county Kerry only.
The committee of the Newmarket Dispensary are particularly desirous to obtain additional monies from the grand jury, by which they would be enabled to afford proper sustenance, &c. to the sick poor confined in the hospital; hitherto the amount granted was not deemed sufficient for that purpose, being little more than adequate to pay for medicines, &c.	We cannot.	I think the distribution of the present funds could not be rendered more efficient. The population is very great and principally of the lowest paupers, without any employment or support. To make the establishment more beneficial the funds should be greatly increased.

MUNSTER—KERRY—LIMERICK.

Tralee Fever Hospital.	Adare Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Limerick Fever and Lock Hospitals.
Jeremiah Leyne, Esq., M.D.	Wm. Griffin, Esq., M.D.	John Grey, Esq., M.D.
Fever Hospital; established in 1814.	The Adare Fever Hospital and Dispensary; established about two years and a half. It is under the care of a resident apothecary. I am consulting physician to the institution, and attend in all severe cases.	The Limerick Fever and Lock Hospitals, being an union under distinct houses, separated by a small field and garden.
The admission into the hospital is not limited to the residents of particular parishes, patients being admitted from the county at large.	The district includes almost all the country around, within four miles of Adare.	There are four or five in the city and suburbs.
One at Castleisland, one at Ardfert, and one at Milltown.	The Croom, Rathkeale, Ballingarry, Kilpeacon, Clarina, Askeaton and Limerick.	There are eleven within a circle of ten miles.
One Dispensary in Tralee not attached to any hospital or infirmary. Attended gratuitously by the physicians of the town twice a week. The apothecary to it is paid 14 l. a year for compounding the medicines.	There is no dispensary nearer than four miles, and one only so near as five miles. There are none within my district.	There are none attached to an hospital or infirmary.
No. The Fever Hospital is distant from my residence more than a quarter of a mile. I am paid 80 l. a year for attending it. I visit the hospital every day, and am frequently obliged to visit it twice or three times a day, according to the severity of the cases.	I attend three of the medical charities in Limerick, in connexion with other medical gentlemen. I am consulting physician to the Adare Dispensary only, for which I am paid 42 l. per annum. I attend regularly one day in each week, prescribe for all who apply, and visit those who are dangerously ill.	I am not at present attached to any other hospital. The salary I derive from this is 40 l. per annum, and am required to attend daily. I have a colleague at a like salary, who is also required to give daily attendance.
I consider it my duty to attend personally every day.	I attend on all occasions when sent for by the medical resident. The latter is also paid 42 l. a year, and gets a house, attendance, &c. He dispenses medicines three times a week, and visits all patients who cannot attend the dispensary.	I do.
A register is kept of the names of the patients, their residence, age, the date of their admission and the result.	There is a regular register kept. The applications are always attended to, in conformity with the regulations of the committee.	There is.
During the period named, 920 patients have been treated in the hospital, all of whom laboured under fever. The number of fever patients was considerably lessened in 1832, during the prevalence of cholera.	<table><tr><td></td><td>Pa- tients.</td><td>Fever Cases.</td><td>Rheu- matism.</td><td>Dys- pepsia.</td><td>Affections of Lungs.</td><td>Dropsy.</td></tr><tr><td>1830*</td><td>1,089</td><td>60</td><td>22</td><td>82</td><td>71</td><td>3</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>1,807</td><td>60</td><td>32</td><td>106</td><td>200</td><td>4</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>2,264</td><td>77</td><td>40</td><td>150</td><td>260</td><td>5</td></tr></table> * Half year to July 1. During the last year and a half, 53 fever cases have been received into hospital, and 72 cholera cases.		Pa- tients.	Fever Cases.	Rheu- matism.	Dys- pepsia.	Affections of Lungs.	Dropsy.	1830*	1,089	60	22	82	71	3	1831	1,807	60	32	106	200	4	1832	2,264	77	40	150	260	5	<table><tr><td></td><td>Admitted.</td><td>Cured.</td><td>Died.</td><td>Remaining.</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>1,207</td><td>1,133</td><td>66</td><td>77</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>1,218</td><td>1,170</td><td>57</td><td>65</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>1,041</td><td>1,009</td><td>45</td><td>52</td></tr></table>		Admitted.	Cured.	Died.	Remaining.	1831	1,207	1,133	66	77	1832	1,218	1,170	57	65	1833	1,041	1,009	45	52
	Pa- tients.	Fever Cases.	Rheu- matism.	Dys- pepsia.	Affections of Lungs.	Dropsy.
1830*	1,089	60	22	82	71	3
1831	1,807	60	32	106	200	4
1832	2,264	77	40	150	260	5
	Admitted.	Cured.	Died.	Remaining.
1831	1,207	1,133	66	77
1832	1,218	1,170	57	65
1833	1,041	1,009	45	52
All applicants in fever are admitted. The object of the hospital being not only to relieve the sick, but also to check the spreading of fever, by separating the sick from the healthy.	Very seldom. It is a regulation of the dispensary, that any man farming ten acres of ground or upwards cannot be considered entitled to relief; but may get medical advice at the dispensary gratis, on paying for the medicines.	No. We, however, admit apprentices to manufacturers or shopkeepers, upon paying 1 l. admission fees, which is applied to their support and for medicine while they remain.
They are procured from a druggist in Cork; and an apothecary is paid 21 l. a year for compounding them.	They are supplied by Mr. Frazer, chemist and druggist, in Limerick, on my order.	They are supplied by Mr. Bennett Kelly, druggist, of Limerick.
<table><tr><td colspan="3">Receipt.</td></tr><tr><td>£.</td><td>s.</td><td>d.</td></tr><tr><td>1830, (Presentment)</td><td>300</td><td>0 0</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - - - - -</td><td>500</td><td>0 0</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - - - - -</td><td>300</td><td>0 0</td></tr></table>	Receipt.			£.	s.	d.	1830, (Presentment)	300	0 0	1831 - - - - -	500	0 0	1832 - - - - -	300	0 0	No exact return can be given, as the treasurer is from home. The expenditure is kept within the income, which for this year, 1833, amounted to 214l. 16s., including the presentment. <table><tr><td rowspan="2">Receipt.</td><td rowspan="2">{</td><td rowspan="2"></td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td><td>1833.</td></tr><tr><td>£.</td><td>£.</td><td>£.</td></tr><tr><td></td><td></td><td>Balance - - - - -</td><td>727 10 0</td><td>318 18 3</td><td>177 12 0</td></tr><tr><td></td><td></td><td>Parliamentary grant - - - - -</td><td>132 15 11</td><td>89 1 10</td><td>-</td></tr><tr><td></td><td></td><td>Presentment - - - - -</td><td>692 6 2</td><td>792 6 2</td><td>846 3 1</td></tr><tr><td></td><td></td><td>Subscriptions - - - - -</td><td>84 0 0</td><td>84 0 0</td><td>78 4 6</td></tr><tr><td></td><td></td><td>Donations - - - - -</td><td>59 0 0</td><td>37 2 6</td><td>-</td></tr><tr><td></td><td></td><td>Interest on bequests, &c. - - - - -</td><td>36 8 2</td><td>23 2 8</td><td>50 14 1</td></tr><tr><td></td><td></td><td>Admission for patients - - - - -</td><td>10 1 0</td><td>17 0 0</td><td>13 1 0</td></tr><tr><td></td><td></td><td></td><td>1,742 1 3</td><td>1,361 11 5</td><td>1,165 14 8</td></tr><tr><td></td><td></td><td></td><td>£.</td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td rowspan="2">Expenditure.</td><td rowspan="2">{</td><td rowspan="2"></td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td><td>1833.</td></tr><tr><td>£.</td><td>£.</td><td>£.</td></tr><tr><td></td><td></td><td>Salaries - - - - -</td><td>346 2 0</td><td>348 4 0</td><td>348 4 0</td></tr><tr><td></td><td></td><td>Medicines - - - - -</td><td>87 15 1</td><td>77 13 0</td><td>87 4 5</td></tr><tr><td></td><td></td><td>Provisions - - - - -</td><td>505 12 3</td><td>522 6 5</td><td>483 7 8</td></tr><tr><td></td><td></td><td>Furniture - - - - -</td><td>59 10 11</td><td>59 11 1</td><td>50 6 8</td></tr><tr><td></td><td></td><td>Building - - - - -</td><td>231 1 6</td><td>-</td><td>-</td></tr><tr><td></td><td></td><td>Fuel, Soap, &c. - - - - -</td><td>193 1 2</td><td>175 13 5</td><td>214 8 2</td></tr><tr><td></td><td></td><td></td><td>1,423 3 0</td><td>1,183 8 0</td><td>1,183 10 11</td></tr><tr><td></td><td></td><td></td><td>£.</td><td></td><td></td></tr></table>	Receipt.	{		1831.	1832.	1833.	£.	£.	£.			Balance - - - - -	727 10 0	318 18 3	177 12 0			Parliamentary grant - - - - -	132 15 11	89 1 10	-			Presentment - - - - -	692 6 2	792 6 2	846 3 1			Subscriptions - - - - -	84 0 0	84 0 0	78 4 6			Donations - - - - -	59 0 0	37 2 6	-			Interest on bequests, &c. - - - - -	36 8 2	23 2 8	50 14 1			Admission for patients - - - - -	10 1 0	17 0 0	13 1 0				1,742 1 3	1,361 11 5	1,165 14 8				£.			Expenditure.	{		1831.	1832.	1833.	£.	£.	£.			Salaries - - - - -	346 2 0	348 4 0	348 4 0			Medicines - - - - -	87 15 1	77 13 0	87 4 5			Provisions - - - - -	505 12 3	522 6 5	483 7 8			Furniture - - - - -	59 10 11	59 11 1	50 6 8			Building - - - - -	231 1 6	-	-			Fuel, Soap, &c. - - - - -	193 1 2	175 13 5	214 8 2				1,423 3 0	1,183 8 0	1,183 10 11				£.			By private subscriptions, a grant from Government under the Infirmary Act, and a share of money allocated by a rider on the Limerick Newtown Bill, to three institutions, this Hospital, the House of Industry and Gaol; and there is power vested in the grand juries of both county and city, to give aid.
Receipt.
£.	s.	d.
1830, (Presentment)	300	0 0
1831 - - - - -	500	0 0
1832 - - - - -	300	0 0
Receipt.	{		1831.	1832.	1833.
			£.	£.	£.
		Balance - - - - -	727 10 0	318 18 3	177 12 0
		Parliamentary grant - - - - -	132 15 11	89 1 10	-
		Presentment - - - - -	692 6 2	792 6 2	846 3 1
		Subscriptions - - - - -	84 0 0	84 0 0	78 4 6
		Donations - - - - -	59 0 0	37 2 6	-
		Interest on bequests, &c. - - - - -	36 8 2	23 2 8	50 14 1
		Admission for patients - - - - -	10 1 0	17 0 0	13 1 0
			1,742 1 3	1,361 11 5	1,165 14 8
			£.
Expenditure.	{		1831.	1832.	1833.
			£.	£.	£.
		Salaries - - - - -	346 2 0	348 4 0	348 4 0
		Medicines - - - - -	87 15 1	77 13 0	87 4 5
		Provisions - - - - -	505 12 3	522 6 5	483 7 8
		Furniture - - - - -	59 10 11	59 11 1	50 6 8
		Building - - - - -	231 1 6	-	-
		Fuel, Soap, &c. - - - - -	193 1 2	175 13 5	214 8 2
			1,423 3 0	1,183 8 0	1,183 10 11
			£.
By presentments granted by Kerry grand jury.	By presentments from one county only, and by subscriptions. The Earl of Dunraven, who built the hospital, dispensary and apothecary's house, at his sole expense, gives also a large subscription towards its support.	By private subscriptions, a grant from Government under the Infirmary Act, and a share of money allocated by a rider on the Limerick Newtown Bill, to three institutions, this Hospital, the House of Industry and Gaol; and there is power vested in the grand juries of both county and city, to give aid.
I think that the funds for the support of the fever hospital cannot be better distributed than as they are at present managed, to the great benefit of the public, and advantage to the sick in hospital.	I cannot suggest any.	I cannot. Further, I do not think that there is at this moment an asylum for the poor in his Majesty's dominions where more benefits are conferred on them for a similar sum.

MUNSTER—LIMERICK—TIPPERARY.

Newcastle Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Rathkeale Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Borris O'Kane Fever Hospital.
John Pierce, Esq., M. D.	Charles Patterson, Esq., M. D.	J. J. Stoney, Esq., Surgeon.
Newcastle Fever Hospital and Dispensary; the object of the dispensary is to give the poor of the district, who are unable to pay, medicine and advice gratis; the hospital is for accommodating the same class when ill of fever.	The Rathkeale Fever Hospital, established A. D. 1831; and the Rathkeale Dispensary, re-established A. D. 1824; I am sole physician to the hospital, and joint physician, with Dr. Fitzgerald, to the dispensary.	Fever Hospital of Borris O'Kane, now building; intended also by the subscribers thereto to contain a few wards for accidents or for general diseases occurring in persons of extreme poverty.
Ten; all in the same county.	Five parishes; all in the county of Limerick.	The entire barony of Lower Ormond is the district of the fever hospital; it contains 19 parishes.
Rathkeale; eight miles nearer Limerick.	The Newcastle Fever Hospital and Dispensary; the Adare Fever Hospital and Dispensary; the Askeaton, Ballingarry and Shanagolden Dispensaries.	Shinrone Dispensary and Fever Hospital, Clogh-gordon Dispensary and Fever Hospital, (which are in King's County), Nenagh Fever Hospital and Dispensary, and Lorrach Dispensary, county Tipperary.
Yes; as mentioned above. The hospital is a large, new, commodious, well-ventilated and well-circumstanced building; our dispensary is under the same roof, but no communication between the dispensary apartments and fever wards.	The Rathkeale Fever Hospital and the Rathkeale Dispensary are connected; they are under the management of one committee, and subscribers to either have the privilege of recommending patients to both.	There is a dispensary attached to Borris O'Kane Fever Hospital, and one at Lorrach, without a fever hospital.
I do not; I reside convenient to the hospital; the salary for attending hospital and dispensary is 100 l. per annum; the hospital is attended daily, or three or four times a day, if necessary; the dispensary patients three days in the week.	I only attend the Rathkeale Hospital and Dispensary, both situated in the town of Rathkeale, where I reside; I attend the hospital twice a day, and such dispensary patients as are specially directed to my care. Dr. Fitzgerald attends the dispensary three days in each week. Patients are attended to at all times, when necessary.	Our salary is 65 l. a year to each.
Yes; I generally visit those requiring it in person, but sometimes I send the apothecary, and my visiting subsequently depends on his report.	In all cases we do give our personal attendance.
Yes.	A register is kept of the name, age, disease, &c. of all patients admitted to the hospital or dispensary; and also of their medical treatment.
1830 - - - - 2,300 1831 - - - - 2,275 1832 - - - - 1,418 The apparent decrease in 1832 is owing to the facility, on account of cholera, given to every one to get relief without tickets; every disease that appears is treated, and these are too general to enumerate.	340 patients have been received into the hospital, of whom only fourteen died. The number of dispensary patients relieved in the last three years is 5,600. The number of prescriptions for these patients is about 17,000.
Very seldom; our tickets mention, after the patient's name, "who is unable to pay for medicine or advice."	A great number participate, who could, at least, afford to pay an apothecary for his advice and medicine. The domestic servants of subscribers also participate.
By Boileau & George, Bride-street, Dublin, and by W. B. Kelly, Limerick, by a requisition from our apothecary, inspected and approved by me.	The medicines are purchased from a druggist in Limerick by the committee.
Receipt for last three years - £. 714 4 9 Expenditure, same period - - 730 3 6	HOSPITAL. <table> <tr> <th></th><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr> <tr> <td>1831 -</td><td>£. 268 6 0</td><td>£. 256 0 0</td></tr> <tr> <td>1832 -</td><td>266 0 6</td><td>158 19 1</td></tr> <tr> <td>1833 -</td><td>330 0 0</td><td>Not yet ascertained.</td></tr> </table> DISPENSARY. <table> <tr> <th></th><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr> <tr> <td>1831 -</td><td>£. 126 19 0</td><td>£. 165 9 0½</td></tr> <tr> <td>1832 -</td><td>74 7 0</td><td>93 9 3½</td></tr> <tr> <td>1833 -</td><td>71 0 0</td><td>Not yet ascertained.</td></tr> </table>		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831 -	£. 268 6 0	£. 256 0 0	1832 -	266 0 6	158 19 1	1833 -	330 0 0	Not yet ascertained.		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831 -	£. 126 19 0	£. 165 9 0½	1832 -	74 7 0	93 9 3½	1833 -	71 0 0	Not yet ascertained.	For the last year (1833) 143 l. ; is in course of expenditure on the building.
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831 -	£. 268 6 0	£. 256 0 0
1832 -	266 0 6	158 19 1
1833 -	330 0 0	Not yet ascertained.
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831 -	£. 126 19 0	£. 165 9 0½
1832 -	74 7 0	93 9 3½
1833 -	71 0 0	Not yet ascertained.
By private subscription, and presentment from county Limerick solely.	Both dispensary and hospital by private subscriptions, and by county presentment. The presentment is always equal to the dispensary, and double the hospital subscriptions.	By voluntary subscriptions and presentment from county Tipperary only.
Yes; I consider it would be a great desideratum to apportion some of the funds to the support of patients labouring under other disease than fever; such cases, for example, as would be admissible into a county infirmary. Here we are such a distance from Limerick, where the County Infirmary is, that where a serious case occurs, we are obliged to get up a private subscription for the support of the patient during his illness, otherwise the accident, already serious, would be rendered doubly so, by a journey of 26 miles; and limbs that I have saved by doing so, if the additional injury of so long a journey was inflicted, would put it beyond the power of human skill to Limerick prior to the operation, the result must have been different.	I would suggest that the fever hospitals should be thrown open for the reception of all poor patients, no matter what the disease, requiring hospital treatment. The great expense of an hospital arises from its permanent establishment of physician, apothecary, nurses, &c. &c. The support of a double or treble number of patients would be attended with a very trifling increase in the expenditure. Thus the expenditure of the Rathkeale Hospital for the year 1832 made a gross sum of 159 l. , of which only 35 l. were for the support of 114 patients, including food, drink, wine, ale, washing, straw, &c.; so that 342 patients would only have made the expenditure 229 l.

MUNSTER—TIPPERARY.

Cahir Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Carrick-on-Suir Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Clogheen Fever Hospital and Dispensary.
Treasurer and Medical Attendant.
Cahir Dispensary, established in the year 1813, and Fever Hospital in the year 1815; the former to provide medical attendance and medicines for the poor of a very extensive district; the latter for the reception of infectious fevers, where patients are provided with medical aid and subsistence.	The Carrick-on-Suir Fever Hospital and Dispensary, established in the year 1803. The object of the hospital is for the admission and treatment of such poor patients as labour under contagious fever; that of the dispensary is to afford advice and medicine to such other diseases as are not admissible into the hospital.	Clogheen Fever Hospital; established January 1819.
Eighteen parishes, all in the same county.	Nineteen; they are situated in the counties of Tipperary, Waterford and Kilkenny.	Shamaghan, Tullahorton, Tubrid, Whitechurch, Ballybacon; all in county Tipperary.
Cashel Infirmary, Clonmel Dispensary and Fever Hospital, Clogheen Dispensary and Fever Hospital, Newcastle Dispensary, and Poulnamucka Dispensary.	The Kilmaganny Fever Hospital and Dispensary, and the Whitechurch Dispensary, in the county Kilkenny; the Kilsheelan and Grange-mockler Dispensaries, in the county Tipperary; and the Kilmacthomas and Portland Dispensaries, in the county Waterford.	A dispensary and fever hospital at Cahir, nine miles distant; a dispensary at Ballyporeen, five miles distant.
Cahir Dispensary and Fever Hospital, under the control of one committee. There are two medical attendants, a surgeon and an apothecary; the surgeon receiving 70 l. per annum for attending the dispensary; the apothecary receiving 30 l. for attending the former, and 20 l. the latter.	There is a dispensary attached to this hospital; I am paid 90 l. a year for attending the hospital and dispensary, and the apothecary 30 l. per year. There is no other hospital or infirmary within my district.	The dispensary and fever hospital here are connected; for attending both I receive 92 l. 6 s. 1 d. per annum.
I attend but the Cahir Dispensary and Fever Hospital, which I do daily; the former in the town, and the latter about three-quarters of a mile from town.	I attend the Carrick-on-Suir Hospital and Dispensary only; I am obliged to attend daily, and to visit such patients in the town, and for one mile round, who are not able to present themselves at the dispensary. They are in the same building, and within three minutes' walk of my residence.	No.
All cases do not require my personal attendance, but I consider it my duty to visit every case, when requested by the applicant to do so; also very many more, if from the account given by the person who brings the recommendation (the person seeking aid), should labour under any acute disease requiring prompt assistance.	I always consider it my duty, and act on it.	Yes.
A register is kept of all persons recommended to the dispensary and hospital, in very many instances with most beneficial effect.	A register is kept.	Yes.
Recommended to the dispensary in the last three years, comprising all diseases incident to this climate, 4,921, and repetitions of them, 14,616; infectious fevers admitted into hospital, 234 cases; recoveries, 226; deaths, 8.	<table><thead><tr><th colspan="3">HOSPITAL.</th><th colspan="2">DISPENSARY.</th></tr><tr><th>Admitted.</th><th>Cured.</th><th>Died.</th><th>Applications.</th><th>Visited at their Houses.</th></tr></thead><tbody><tr><td>1830 - 407</td><td>393</td><td>14</td><td>8,268</td><td>468</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - 311</td><td>302</td><td>9</td><td>9,828</td><td>780</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - 293</td><td>287</td><td>6</td><td>12,844</td><td>692</td></tr></tbody></table>	HOSPITAL.			DISPENSARY.		Admitted.	Cured.	Died.	Applications.	Visited at their Houses.	1830 - 407	393	14	8,268	468	1831 - 311	302	9	9,828	780	1832 - 293	287	6	12,844	692	<table><tbody><tr><td>1831</td><td>202</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>192</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>40</td></tr></tbody></table> During the year 1832 and since the influenza prevailed very much; the spasmodic cholera commenced on the 26th of December 1832; since which time we have had 56 cases.	1831	202	1832	192	1833	40
HOSPITAL.			DISPENSARY.
Admitted.	Cured.	Died.	Applications.	Visited at their Houses.
1830 - 407	393	14	8,268	468
1831 - 311	302	9	9,828	780
1832 - 293	287	6	12,844	692
1831	202
1832	192
1833	40
It often occurs that persons receive benefit from the charity, who could not be considered objects of charity. This fraud is generally committed by persons obtaining recommendations in their own name,	Very often, by subscribers incautiously giving tickets.	It does.
Medicines are directed from the druggist's, by the surgeon, and paid for by directions of the committee.	The apothecary returns to me a list of such medicines as may be wanting; this I report to the managing committee, and with their directions the medicines are got from Messrs. Leslie & Co., Dublin; they are paid for by the treasurer, on an order from the chairman of the committee.	The medicines are ordered by the committee of the dispensary, on my giving a list of those requisite, and are got from Thomas S. Grubb, druggist, Clonmel.
<table><thead><tr><th colspan="2">HOSPITAL.</th></tr><tr><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr></thead><tbody><tr><td>1830 - £. 207 9 0</td><td>£. 239 17 4</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - 257 10 6</td><td>254 14 6</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - 248 9 0</td><td>237 16 8½</td></tr></tbody></table> <table><thead><tr><th colspan="2">DISPENSARY.</th></tr><tr><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr></thead><tbody><tr><td>1830 - £. 65 3 8</td><td>£. 95 2 4</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - 83 1 0</td><td>88 4 4</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - 84 0 0</td><td>105 4 4</td></tr></tbody></table>	HOSPITAL.		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1830 - £. 207 9 0	£. 239 17 4	1831 - 257 10 6	254 14 6	1832 - 248 9 0	237 16 8½	DISPENSARY.		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1830 - £. 65 3 8	£. 95 2 4	1831 - 83 1 0	88 4 4	1832 - 84 0 0	105 4 4	<table><thead><tr><th colspan="3">Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><th>1830.</th><th>1831.</th><th>1832.</th></tr></thead><tbody><tr><td>Provisions - £. 361 15 4½</td><td>282 15 6</td><td>227 2 6</td></tr><tr><td>Salaries, Medicine, Repairs, &c. - 230 12 8</td><td>207 8 4</td><td>329 5 2</td></tr></tbody></table>	Expenditure.			1830.	1831.	1832.	Provisions - £. 361 15 4½	282 15 6	227 2 6	Salaries, Medicine, Repairs, &c. - 230 12 8	207 8 4	329 5 2	<table><thead><tr><th colspan="2">Receipt.</th></tr><tr><th>1831</th><th>1832</th></tr></thead><tbody><tr><td>- - - £. 219 12 0</td><td>- - - 205 1 0</td></tr><tr><td>1833 - - - 205 10 0</td><td></td></tr></tbody></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.—Salary, Beds, Bedding, Furniture, Nurse-tenders, &c. &c.	Receipt.		1831	1832	- - - £. 219 12 0	- - - 205 1 0	1833 - - - 205 10 0
HOSPITAL.
Receipt.	Expenditure.
1830 - £. 207 9 0	£. 239 17 4
1831 - 257 10 6	254 14 6
1832 - 248 9 0	237 16 8½
DISPENSARY.
Receipt.	Expenditure.
1830 - £. 65 3 8	£. 95 2 4
1831 - 83 1 0	88 4 4
1832 - 84 0 0	105 4 4
Expenditure.
1830.	1831.	1832.
Provisions - £. 361 15 4½	282 15 6	227 2 6
Salaries, Medicine, Repairs, &c. - 230 12 8	207 8 4	329 5 2
Receipt.
1831	1832
- - - £. 219 12 0	- - - 205 1 0
1833 - - - 205 10 0
By private subscriptions, and presentments from the county of Tipperary only.	By subscription and presentment; the presentments obtained from the county Tipperary only.	By subscription and presentment.
It is my opinion that every town should have a place of reception for accidents, or poor persons labouring under acute diseases, requiring the prompt and constant attendance of the surgeon. Few dispensaries have funds to carry this plan into effect.	The Fever Hospital and Dispensary Acts prevent the managing committees from affording relief to any but infectious fevers and dispensary cases; and as this very populous and wretched town, with an extensive poor district, is at such a distance from the county infirmaries of Tipperary and Kilkenny, and there being no infirmary in the county Waterford, numerous bad medical and surgical cases occur in my district, which cannot be admitted into the fever hospital; considerable loss of life and misery are the consequences. I would therefore suggest that the law might be so altered as to permit the managing committee to appropriate a portion of the funds for such medical and surgical cases as would occur, and which cannot be done justice to in their own wretched cabins. This I would extend to every such hospital as this within ten miles of a county infirmary.	I think that if the funds afforded it, each fever hospital should have two wards, containing at least three beds each, for bad surgical cases. This being a mountainous neighbourhood, the poor are very liable to severe accidents; and the manufacture of flour in this town and neighbourhood being carried on very extensively, those engaged about the machinery are very liable to injuries.

MUNSTER—TIPPERARY.

CloghJordan Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Clonmel Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Nenagh Fever Hospital.
Committee and Medical Attendant.	Committee and Medical Attendants.	Committee and Medical Attendants.
The CloghJordan Dispensary and CloghJordan Fever Hospital; separate establishments, superintended by the same medical attendant, Dr. Drought. The object of the Dispensary is to afford advice and medicine (gratis) to the poor of the surrounding district. The object of the Fever Hospital is to prevent the spreading of contagious disease. Dispensary established in 1813, Fever Hospital in 1829.	Clonmel Fever Hospital and Dispensary. The dispensary established about 1786 for dispensing medicine and medical advice gratuitously to the poor. Fever hospital, about 1808, for reception of fever cases. A surgery attached in 1829, for accidental cases requiring surgical aid.	Nenagh Fever Hospital; new building finished 21st January 1829.
Seven; viz. Modreeny, Ballingarry, Eglis, Ballymacky, Congar, Barna, Templeharry. The last is in the extremity of King's County; the others all in Tipperary. Modreeny, Templeharry and Ballingarry, are principally attended to.	Parts of five parishes, Clonmel, Kilgrant, Ruthwyan, Kiltegan and Abby. A populous suburb of Clonmel in the county of Waterford, and a mile in that county from Clonmel is included in this district.	Twenty-two parishes; all in Tipperary.
A dispensary and fever hospital at Shinrone, in Nenagh and Birr. A dispensary at Ballymacky, Tumavara, Moneyglass and two in Borris O'Kane.	Dispensaries at Kilshulim about five miles; Fethard, seven; Poulnamucka, six; Newcastle, eight; dispensary and fever hospital at Cahir, eight.	Nenagh, Silvermines, five Irish miles; Toomavara, five; Ballymacky, five; Borris O'Kane, eight; CloghJordan, seven. Also a Fever Hospital there.
The CloghJordan Dispensary and Fever Hospital are separate establishments, although for the most part supported by the same subscribers. The medical gentleman receives 80 l. per annum for attending both establishments; 5 l. is given for rent of dispensary. There is no other perquisite.	The dispensary and fever hospital, including the surgery, are attached to the same establishment. No separate allowance is given for district or specific duties to the medical gentleman. Doctor's salary, 100 l. per annum. No other allowance. Apothecary's salary, 60 l. per annum, with the use of apartments for his constant residence on the premises.	None.
I attend the dispensary and fever hospital of CloghJordan only. The first is attached to the house I reside in. The hospital a quarter of a mile distant. Salary, 80 l. Both institutions are attended daily.	The medical gentleman attend only this establishment. Daily attendance is required to the dispensary, fever hospital and surgery; also personal attendance at the patients' houses, and the doctor is subject to be called on at all hours.	Three medical gentlemen attend this hospital, and take the duty monthly in rotation. One attends a dispensary at Silvermines; (he can answer for himself.) The salary is 20 l. each, and attendance daily.
Certainly, in all cases and at all times.	It is considered the duty of the medical gentlemen in all cases to give personal attendance.	We do.
There is a regular register kept at the dispensary, of all the cases where applications for medical or surgical aid has been made on subscribers' tickets. A similar register for the fever hospital, stating the result of treatment, &c. Both are open to the public inspection of the subscribers.	A registry is kept of all cases of application for aid, and how these have been disposed of; but not of the results, except cases in fever hospital and surgery.	Yes.
6,073 patients have been relieved within the last three years, being an average of 2,024 for each year. Sixty-three bad cases of fever were treated in the hospital during the same period.	<table><tr><th colspan="3">Hospital.</th><th rowspan="2">Dispensary.</th></tr><tr><th>Admitted.</th><th>Discharged.</th><th>Died.</th></tr><tr><td>1830 - 376</td><td>345</td><td>14</td><td>6,606</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - 502</td><td>479</td><td>29</td><td>6,884</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - 233</td><td>207</td><td>9</td><td>4,869</td></tr></table> Though a registry is kept of the patients to the dispensary, their complaints and prescriptions for their relief, the classification of diseases and results of medical practice are not particularized to enable this query to be answered. It is nearly impracticable to register them accurately.	Hospital.			Dispensary.	Admitted.	Discharged.	Died.	1830 - 376	345	14	6,606	1831 - 502	479	29	6,884	1832 - 233	207	9	4,869	<table><tr><td>1831 -</td><td>158</td></tr><tr><td>1832 -</td><td>155</td></tr><tr><td>1833 -</td><td>275</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>588</td></tr></table>	1831 -	158	1832 -	155	1833 -	275		588
Hospital.			Dispensary.
Admitted.	Discharged.	Died.
1830 - 376	345	14	6,606
1831 - 502	479	29	6,884
1832 - 233	207	9	4,869
1831 -	158
1832 -	155
1833 -	275
	588
Seldom, I believe.	Particular care is taken to prevent persons participating in the benefit of this charity, who are in circumstances not to require gratuitous assistance. Few cases are known to occur.	Never.
By Messrs. Boileau & George, druggists, 88, Bride-street, Dublin, by direction of the superintendent, and per order of our treasurer, the Rev. William T. Homan. Yearly expense for medicine about, on an average, 37 l.	Medicines are purchased from the wholesale druggists at wholesale prices. The apothecary furnishes a list of medicine wanted, under direction of the doctor, which, being checked by one of the committee, is ordered.	The committee purchase for cash from an eminent Dublin druggist, and on arrival they are inspected by the medical officers.
<table><tr><th colspan="2">EXPENDITURE.</th></tr><tr><th>Hospital.</th><th>Dispensary.</th></tr><tr><td>1830 - £. 54 1 6</td><td>£. 126 6 10</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - 78 12 5</td><td>85 19 8</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - 41 1 2</td><td>101 16 9</td></tr></table> The average cost of medicine, 38l. 10s.	EXPENDITURE.		Hospital.	Dispensary.	1830 - £. 54 1 6	£. 126 6 10	1831 - 78 12 5	85 19 8	1832 - 41 1 2	101 16 9	<table><tr><th colspan="3">Receipt.</th></tr><tr><th>1830.</th><th>1831.</th><th>1832.</th></tr><tr><td>Balance - £. 851 4 1</td><td>671 9 7½</td><td>355 5 4</td></tr><tr><td>Presentment - 197 17 0</td><td>188 2 6</td><td>319 8 6</td></tr><tr><td>Subscriptions, &c. 200 6 6</td><td>191 17 0</td><td>209 5 6</td></tr><tr><td>Medicines sold - 40 0 0</td><td>40 0 0</td><td>40 0 0</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table><tr><th>1830.</th><th>1831.</th><th>1832.</th></tr><tr><td>Salaries £. 215 12 5</td><td>219 14 10½</td><td>213 2 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine 118 12 7</td><td>156 3 7½</td><td>150 13 5</td></tr><tr><td>Provisions, &c. } 274 6 2½</td><td>360 5 3½</td><td>239 15 9</td></tr></table>	Receipt.			1830.	1831.	1832.	Balance - £. 851 4 1	671 9 7½	355 5 4	Presentment - 197 17 0	188 2 6	319 8 6	Subscriptions, &c. 200 6 6	191 17 0	209 5 6	Medicines sold - 40 0 0	40 0 0	40 0 0	1830.	1831.	1832.	Salaries £. 215 12 5	219 14 10½	213 2 0	Medicine 118 12 7	156 3 7½	150 13 5	Provisions, &c. } 274 6 2½	360 5 3½	239 15 9	<table><tr><th colspan="2">Receipt.</th><th rowspan="2">Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><th>1831.</th><th>1832.</th></tr><tr><td>1831 - £. 333 7 6½</td><td>£. 257 15 3</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - 420 3 9</td><td>329 13 11½</td></tr><tr><td>1833 - 537 0 9</td><td>695 1 11½</td></tr></table> Built a second house and offices this last year; which cost 373l. 6s. 7d. GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.—Salaries, provisions, medicines, &c. <table><tr><td>1830 -</td><td>1831 -</td><td>1832 -</td></tr><tr><td>£. 60 2 -</td><td>60 2 -</td><td>60 2 -</td></tr><tr><td>1831 -</td><td>1832 -</td><td>1833 -</td></tr><tr><td>£. 60 2 -</td><td>60 2 -</td><td>60 2 -</td></tr></table>	Receipt.		Expenditure.	1831.	1832.	1831 - £. 333 7 6½	£. 257 15 3	1832 - 420 3 9	329 13 11½	1833 - 537 0 9	695 1 11½	1830 -	1831 -	1832 -	£. 60 2 -	60 2 -	60 2 -	1831 -	1832 -	1833 -	£. 60 2 -	60 2 -	60 2 -
EXPENDITURE.
Hospital.	Dispensary.
1830 - £. 54 1 6	£. 126 6 10
1831 - 78 12 5	85 19 8
1832 - 41 1 2	101 16 9
Receipt.
1830.	1831.	1832.
Balance - £. 851 4 1	671 9 7½	355 5 4
Presentment - 197 17 0	188 2 6	319 8 6
Subscriptions, &c. 200 6 6	191 17 0	209 5 6
Medicines sold - 40 0 0	40 0 0	40 0 0
1830.	1831.	1832.
Salaries £. 215 12 5	219 14 10½	213 2 0
Medicine 118 12 7	156 3 7½	150 13 5
Provisions, &c. } 274 6 2½	360 5 3½	239 15 9
Receipt.		Expenditure.
1831.	1832.
1831 - £. 333 7 6½	£. 257 15 3
1832 - 420 3 9	329 13 11½
1833 - 537 0 9	695 1 11½
1830 -	1831 -	1832 -
£. 60 2 -	60 2 -	60 2 -
1831 -	1832 -	1833 -
£. 60 2 -	60 2 -	60 2 -
Supported by voluntary subscriptions, and by presentments; the latter obtained at the Tipperary assizes (Clonmel) only.	By subscriptions, donations and presentments from county Tipperary. No presentment has been sought or obtained from any other county.	By voluntary subscriptions, and a presentment on the county of double the amount subscribed, together with occasional fines from petty sessions.
It would indeed be difficult, if not impossible, to suggest any alteration in the distribution of the present funds supporting these charitable institutions, by which they could be rendered more efficient for the real relief of the poor, conducted as they are on the principles of the best regulated economy, as well as by the most benevolent exertions to find out objects of distress, and promptly to relieve them. Cases of sickness are considered by the deacons as the strongest claims to relief.	The funds of this charity being well and judiciously applied, not any improvement appears to suggest itself. Were other funds obtained, beneficial effects might arise from a partial supply of food, clothing and fuel; but their distribution would probably lead to abuse, and be very difficult to manage.	We are not aware that any alteration for the better could be suggested.

MUNSTER—TIPPERARY.

Roscrea Fever Hospital.	Templemore Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Tipperary Fever Hospital and Cappaghwhite Dispensary.
Committee and Medical Attendant.	Edward Kingsley, Esq., Surgeon.
I am the medical superintendent of the Roscrea Fever Hospital; it was opened May 1825, for the reception of the sick poor labouring under fever, which is its specific object.	The Templemore Fever Hospital and Dispensary united, established in the year 1820. The Dispensary has been established since 1815.	The Tipperary Fever Hospital, established 1827, for fever cases exclusively. The Cappaghwhite Dispensary, established A.D. 1824.
See Dispensary Report in answer to this question.	Four parishes in my district, all in the same county.	The district extends widely; none are refused advice who require it.
Answered.	There is a dispensary and fever hospital at Roscrea, a dispensary at Templetoohy, and one at Borris O'Leigh.	The Cashel or County Infirmary, ten miles distant; the Cashel Fever Hospital; the Dundrum Dispensary.
Answered.	There is no hospital or infirmary in my district, but there is a dispensary at Templetoohy, four miles, and one at Borris O'Leigh, five miles from my district. I believe the emoluments derived from each about 60 l .	The Tipperary Dispensary is attended and supported independent of the fever hospital; apothecary is paid 40 l . per annum; surgeons and physicians prescribe gratuitously.
I attend the Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	I attend but the Templemore Dispensary and Fever Hospital; I receive a salary of 90 l . Irish, for compounding medicine and attendance; I am required to attend three times a week the dispensary, and the fever Hospital every day.	The Cappaghwhite Dispensary, distant seven miles, is solely under my care; I attend twice a week, and the fever hospital, Tipperary, for three months; for the former I receive 35 l . yearly; for the latter, 25 l .
	I consider it my duty to attend personally to every case reported.	I do.
We keep a register, stating the number of patients admitted, by whom recommended, residence of patients, nature of fever and how disposed of.	There is a registry kept of all applications for aid, and the person requiring aid immediately put into hospital.	About 20 new cases are weekly recommended to the Cappaghwhite Dispensary with variable results; medicine ceasing to control disease unassisted by proper nurse-tending, or exerting pernicious effects from cold or unsuitable diet.
<table><tr><td>Admitted.</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>1830 - - - 115</td><td>Cured - - - 298</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - - - 129</td><td>Died - - - 19</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - - - 73</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>317</td><td>317</td></tr></table>	Admitted.		1830 - - - 115	Cured - - - 298	1831 - - - 129	Died - - - 19	1832 - - - 73		317	317	Number of patients admitted, 318. <table><tr><td>Cured - - - 276</td></tr><tr><td>Died - - - 19</td></tr><tr><td>Remaining on the books 23</td></tr></table>	Cured - - - 276	Died - - - 19	Remaining on the books 23	About 250 patients were admitted to the fever hospital, almost exclusively fever cases.
Admitted.
1830 - - - 115	Cured - - - 298
1831 - - - 129	Died - - - 19
1832 - - - 73
317	317
Cured - - - 276
Died - - - 19
Remaining on the books 23
None apply for admission but those whose families are unable to keep them at home; there have been, however, a few exceptions of respectable persons being removed from hotels and private houses, but who paid all expenses incurred; good was also in this way done, by preventing the extension of infectious fever in the families a part of which they were.	I am convinced I am sometimes imposed on, but I use every exertion in my power to prevent it.	Very seldom.
The medicines are supplied by Messrs. Leslie, Bride-street, and are compounded by our own apothecary.	The committee order the medicines, which are got from Boileau & George, Bride-street, Dublin.	Supplied by the druggist, by order of the treasurer and surgeon, with the sanction of committee.
It is quite impossible to state with accuracy the bonâ fide expenditure of the fever hospital, in consequence of its funds being applied to supply the deficiency of the income of the dispensary, which is always quite inadequate to its support. <table><tr><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1830 - £. 306 0 0</td><td>£. 280 2 11</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - - 363 3 0</td><td>299 6 0</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - - 314 3 6</td><td>289 0 7</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.—Bread, milk, oatmeal, meat, wine, tea, sugar, physician's and apothecary's salaries, nurse-tenders' and servants' wages, turf, candles, soap, blankets, sheets, &c. &c.	Receipt.	Expenditure.	1830 - £. 306 0 0	£. 280 2 11	1831 - - 363 3 0	299 6 0	1832 - - 314 3 6	289 0 7	<table><tr><td colspan="3">Receipt.</td></tr><tr><td>1830.</td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td></tr><tr><td>Balance - £. 20 8 0</td><td>32 1 4</td><td>172 10 11</td></tr><tr><td>Subscription 77 8 0</td><td>120 11 6</td><td>72 4 0</td></tr><tr><td>Presentment 120 14 0</td><td>208 6 6</td><td>114 6 0</td></tr></table> <table><tr><td colspan="2">Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1830 - - -</td><td>£. 196 13 3</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - - -</td><td>188 8 5</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - - -</td><td>231 0 10½</td></tr></table>	Receipt.			1830.	1831.	1832.	Balance - £. 20 8 0	32 1 4	172 10 11	Subscription 77 8 0	120 11 6	72 4 0	Presentment 120 14 0	208 6 6	114 6 0	Expenditure.		1830 - - -	£. 196 13 3	1831 - - -	188 8 5	1832 - - -	231 0 10½	<table><tr><td colspan="2">HOSPITAL.</td></tr><tr><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1830 - £. 227 18 6</td><td>£. 222 3 10</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - 438 2 6</td><td>254 16 7</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - 287 14 0</td><td>320 5 6</td></tr></table> <table><tr><td colspan="2">DISPENSARY.</td></tr><tr><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1830 - £. 59 0 0</td><td>£. 58 8 7½</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - 48 0 0</td><td>70 0 7</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - 35 15 0</td><td>61 6 7</td></tr></table>	HOSPITAL.		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1830 - £. 227 18 6	£. 222 3 10	1831 - 438 2 6	254 16 7	1832 - 287 14 0	320 5 6	DISPENSARY.		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1830 - £. 59 0 0	£. 58 8 7½	1831 - 48 0 0	70 0 7	1832 - 35 15 0	61 6 7
Receipt.	Expenditure.
1830 - £. 306 0 0	£. 280 2 11
1831 - - 363 3 0	299 6 0
1832 - - 314 3 6	289 0 7
Receipt.
1830.	1831.	1832.
Balance - £. 20 8 0	32 1 4	172 10 11
Subscription 77 8 0	120 11 6	72 4 0
Presentment 120 14 0	208 6 6	114 6 0
Expenditure.
1830 - - -	£. 196 13 3
1831 - - -	188 8 5
1832 - - -	231 0 10½
HOSPITAL.
Receipt.	Expenditure.
1830 - £. 227 18 6	£. 222 3 10
1831 - 438 2 6	254 16 7
1832 - 287 14 0	320 5 6
DISPENSARY.
Receipt.	Expenditure.
1830 - £. 59 0 0	£. 58 8 7½
1831 - 48 0 0	70 0 7
1832 - 35 15 0	61 6 7
Supported by voluntary subscriptions and donations, and by a presentment paid by the county, amounting to double the sum received according to the 58 Geo. 3. c. 47. s. 7.	Supported by subscriptions, donations and presentments obtained from the same county.	By subscriptions and county presentment.
We hope, after some time, by strict economy, to be able to enclose the fever hospital with a wall; it must (till so desirable an object is effected) be considered incomplete, as the ingress of visitors, who do much mischief in a variety of ways, cannot now be prevented. We already have a balance in hand towards so necessary and indispensable a matter.	I know of no alteration in the funds to render the establishment more efficient; I would beg to premise, that if a few surgical wards were added to our fever hospital to receive a class of patients that require immediate surgical aid, it would be of infinite service, and which cannot be removed to the county hospital, being sixteen miles from my district; the funds are scarcely sufficient to support the establishment at present.	By uniting the funds of the Tipperary Fever Hospital and Dispensary, a general hospital might be supported for the reception of all severe medical and surgical cases, and all contagious diseases, presenting at the same time all the advantages of daily dispensary attendance. I should humbly suggest such a plan for more general adoption.

MUNSTER—WATERFORD.

Dungarvan Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Lismore Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Waterford Fever Hospital.
Arthur Quin, Esq., Surgeon.	Committee and Medical Attendant.	Committee and Medical Attendant.
The Dungarvan Fever Hospital, for the reception of fever patients. The Dungarvan Dispensary, for the relief of the poor, for all other diseases, and for rendering medical and surgical aid; established in 1817.	Lismore Fever House and Dispensary, established in the year 1815.	The fever hospital in this city was founded in 1799, for the city and county of Waterford.
Five parishes, all in this county.	Part of one parish, including the town of Lismore.
There is but one dispensary, at Cappoquin, nine miles from this town.	Tallow Fever Hospital and Dispensary, Ballyduff Dispensary and Cappoquin Dispensary.	The Leper Hospital, the House of Industry, both in this city; the Dispensaries of Portlaw, Tramore, Kilmeaden and Dunmore, are within 10 miles of this city.
There are none but the one above mentioned.	No other dispensary, hospital or infirmary within our district.	There is a general dispensary in this city unconnected with any hospital or infirmary in our district. The apothecary alone receives a salary annually of 70 l .
I attend the fever hospital and dispensary, situated near this town; the former I visit every day, and when necessary several times a day. The dispensary I attend two days in the week, as appointed, but I generally attend every day. The hospital is near the town, and the dispensary in it. The salary I receive 59 l . for both, annually.	The medical officers of the Lismore Fever House and Dispensary do not attend any other. The medical officers attend every day at the fever house, and two days a week at the dispensary, and visit all patients at their own houses, when they are unable to come to the dispensary.
I do.	Yes.
A register is kept of all fever or dispensary cases.	Yes.	There is a register of cases kept at the fever hospital; a statement of the results is annually published.
<table><tr><td></td><td>From last Year.</td><td>Admitted</td><td>Cured.</td><td>Died.</td><td>Remaining.</td></tr><tr><td>Hospital - { 1831</td><td>8</td><td>48</td><td>48</td><td>6</td><td>2</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>2</td><td>191</td><td>171</td><td>6</td><td>16</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>16</td><td>165</td><td>159</td><td>8</td><td>4</td></tr><tr><td>Dispensary - { 1831</td><td>20</td><td>568</td><td>565</td><td>8</td><td>15</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>15</td><td>718</td><td>703</td><td>11</td><td>19</td></tr></table> In 1832, the dispensary was closed for want of funds; notwithstanding, I gave my gratuitous attendance on the poor regularly.		From last Year.	Admitted	Cured.	Died.	Remaining.	Hospital - { 1831	8	48	48	6	2	1832	2	191	171	6	16	1833	16	165	159	8	4	Dispensary - { 1831	20	568	565	8	15	1832	15	718	703	11	19	<table><tr><td></td><td>Hospital.</td><td>Dispensary.</td></tr><tr><td>1830 - -</td><td>99</td><td>1,181</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - -</td><td>94</td><td>2,703</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - -</td><td>78</td><td>1,102</td></tr></table> The prevalent diseases are catarrhs, pulmonary, bowel and rheumatic complaints.		Hospital.	Dispensary.	1830 - -	99	1,181	1831 - -	94	2,703	1832 - -	78	1,102	<table><tr><td></td><td>Admitted.</td><td>Dismissed.</td><td>Died.</td></tr><tr><td>1830 -</td><td>223</td><td>196</td><td>18</td></tr><tr><td>1831 -</td><td>275</td><td>243</td><td>22</td></tr><tr><td>1832 -</td><td>222</td><td>198</td><td>12</td></tr></table> Total number of persons admitted, from the opening of the fever hospital in the year 1799 to the 1st of March 1833, 25,908. The only diseases treated in this hospital have been contagious fevers.		Admitted.	Dismissed.	Died.	1830 -	223	196	18	1831 -	275	243	22	1832 -	222	198	12
	From last Year.	Admitted	Cured.	Died.	Remaining.
Hospital - { 1831	8	48	48	6	2
1832	2	191	171	6	16
1833	16	165	159	8	4
Dispensary - { 1831	20	568	565	8	15
1832	15	718	703	11	19
	Hospital.	Dispensary.
1830 - -	99	1,181
1831 - -	94	2,703
1832 - -	78	1,102
	Admitted.	Dismissed.	Died.
1830 -	223	196	18
1831 -	275	243	22
1832 -	222	198	12
It has occurred that such persons have applied for the benefit of the charity, but, when discovered, have been invariably refused.	This is guarded against; a rare case may occur.	It never occurs that persons participate in the benefits of the fever hospital, who are in circumstances not to require such gratuitous assistance.
I visit the patients, and prescribe for them, and the medicines supplied by an apothecary appointed by the committee of managers.	Supplied by Boileau & George, of Dublin, wholesale druggists, on application from the medical officer; small quantities have been purchased occasionally in Cork.	The medicines are purchased by the Committee.
<table><tr><td></td><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1831 -</td><td>£.195 0 0</td><td>£.173 5 6</td></tr><tr><td>1832 -</td><td>223 186 5 6</td><td>268 19 9</td></tr><tr><td>1833 -</td><td>160 13 0</td><td>168 19 8</td></tr></table>		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831 -	£.195 0 0	£.173 5 6	1832 -	223 186 5 6	268 19 9	1833 -	160 13 0	168 19 8	<table><tr><td></td><td>1830.</td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td></tr><tr><td>RECEIPT.</td><td>£. s. d.</td><td>£. s. d.</td><td>£. s. d.</td></tr><tr><td>Subscriptions, &c. -</td><td>106 4 6</td><td>170 6 6</td><td>146 16 0</td></tr><tr><td>Presentments - - -</td><td>105 3 6</td><td>162 14 6</td><td>142 3 6</td></tr><tr><td>EXPENDITURE.</td><td>211 8 0</td><td>333 1 0</td><td>288 19 6</td></tr><tr><td>Hospital:</td><td></td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Provisions - - - -</td><td>32 8 9</td><td>29 3 6</td><td>21 7 8</td></tr><tr><td>Attendants - - - -</td><td>34 8 6</td><td>39 11 7½</td><td>40 16 5½</td></tr><tr><td>Repairs - - - -</td><td>5 17 9</td><td>28 1 1</td><td>19 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Dispensary:</td><td></td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Physician - - - -</td><td>108 18 6</td><td>108 18 6</td><td>108 18 6</td></tr><tr><td>Apothecary - - - -</td><td>22 2 6</td><td>22 2 6</td><td>22 2 6</td></tr><tr><td>Female Attendant -</td><td>2 15 4</td><td>2 15 4</td><td>2 15 4</td></tr><tr><td>Medicines - - - -</td><td>65 19 2</td><td>30 1 9</td><td>10 0 10</td></tr><tr><td>Sundries - - - -</td><td>2 6 6</td><td>-</td><td>2 2 0</td></tr><tr><td>£.</td><td>202 2 0</td><td>163 18 1</td><td>145 19 2</td></tr></table>		1830.	1831.	1832.	RECEIPT.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	Subscriptions, &c. -	106 4 6	170 6 6	146 16 0	Presentments - - -	105 3 6	162 14 6	142 3 6	EXPENDITURE.	211 8 0	333 1 0	288 19 6	Hospital:				Provisions - - - -	32 8 9	29 3 6	21 7 8	Attendants - - - -	34 8 6	39 11 7½	40 16 5½	Repairs - - - -	5 17 9	28 1 1	19 0 0	Dispensary:				Physician - - - -	108 18 6	108 18 6	108 18 6	Apothecary - - - -	22 2 6	22 2 6	22 2 6	Female Attendant -	2 15 4	2 15 4	2 15 4	Medicines - - - -	65 19 2	30 1 9	10 0 10	Sundries - - - -	2 6 6	-	2 2 0	£.	202 2 0	163 18 1	145 19 2	<table><tr><td></td><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1830 -</td><td>£.1,041 2 8</td><td>£.540 2 6</td></tr><tr><td>1831 -</td><td>743 14 10</td><td>585 18 0</td></tr><tr><td>1832 -</td><td>725 16 11</td><td>551 10 9</td></tr></table>		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1830 -	£.1,041 2 8	£.540 2 6	1831 -	743 14 10	585 18 0	1832 -	725 16 11	551 10 9
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831 -	£.195 0 0	£.173 5 6
1832 -	223 186 5 6	268 19 9
1833 -	160 13 0	168 19 8
	1830.	1831.	1832.
RECEIPT.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.
Subscriptions, &c. -	106 4 6	170 6 6	146 16 0
Presentments - - -	105 3 6	162 14 6	142 3 6
EXPENDITURE.	211 8 0	333 1 0	288 19 6
Hospital:
Provisions - - - -	32 8 9	29 3 6	21 7 8
Attendants - - - -	34 8 6	39 11 7½	40 16 5½
Repairs - - - -	5 17 9	28 1 1	19 0 0
Dispensary:
Physician - - - -	108 18 6	108 18 6	108 18 6
Apothecary - - - -	22 2 6	22 2 6	22 2 6
Female Attendant -	2 15 4	2 15 4	2 15 4
Medicines - - - -	65 19 2	30 1 9	10 0 10
Sundries - - - -	2 6 6	-	2 2 0
£.	202 2 0	163 18 1	145 19 2
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1830 -	£.1,041 2 8	£.540 2 6
1831 -	743 14 10	585 18 0
1832 -	725 16 11	551 10 9
By subscriptions, and presentments at the summer assizes only for this county.	By voluntary subscriptions, and grand jury presentments from county of Waterford only.	It is supported by voluntary subscriptions, and grand jury presentments of the city and county of Waterford grand juries only.
I cannot suggest any alteration in the distribution of the funds which would render it more efficient for the relief of the poor. The two establishments are conducted under a committee, and the greatest economy observed. The funds are barely sufficient to carry them on; and in consequence of the great expense which occurred in 1832, when cholera was prevalent here, the dispensary has been closed, and my salary reduced to 50 l , which I proposed in consideration of the want of funds.	Cannot suggest any alteration in the distribution of the funds of these establishments. When distress or disease have required other funds, they have been obtained by subscriptions for the particular existing wants.	No; by the 58 Geo. 3, the funds of the fever hospital must be exclusively applied to the relief of infectious disorders. In consequence of the non-existence of a fever hospital in the central part of the county of Kilkenny, patients are frequently sent to this hospital from the adjoining part of the county Kilkenny.

ULSTER—ANTRIM.

Belfast Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Belfast Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Belfast Fever Hospital and Dispensary.
Joseph W. Bryson, Esq., M. D.	S. Burney, Esq., Medical Attendant.	R. Coffey, Esq., M. D.
Belfast Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Belfast Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Belfast Fever Hospital and Dispensary.
One, the parish of Belfast.
A dispensary is attached to the hospital, as above designated; no emolument is derived from it by the medical attendants. The apothecary receives a salary of 50 l. per annum.		One small dispensary; no salaries. The subject of paying medical officers for attendance on the poor, has divided the subscribers nearly equally. At a large meeting specially convened, the question of payment was negatived by a majority of four, in an assembly of upwards of seventy, held a few months ago.
I attend only the above hospital; five minutes' walk from my residence; receive no salary, and consider it my duty to attend daily.		I attend the surgical patients of the hospital daily without any salary.
As one of the surgeons to the above hospital, I consider it my duty to attend personally all cases admitted into the surgical wards during my week, which is once a month, there being four attending surgeons.	In my own district I do, and if the medical attendant could not be had in another district, I have gone also.	To the surgical patients in the hospital only.
		Yes, of the patients admitted under my care.
Cases occasionally occur, where persons who are able to pay, receive medicine gratuitously from the dispensary.	Frequently, and I think medical practitioners should be more cautious in inquiring into the circumstances of those for whom they order medicine from the hospital; and a great many subscribers in my opinion, from mistaken motives of humanity, would give a certificate to any person who would ask it. I think, however, the charity has been less imposed on in this respect, since the daily prescribing for extern patients at the hospital has ceased, as though a person may in time become pretty well acquainted with the really poor in his own district, it is quite impossible for any one to be acquainted with the poor of the whole town.	Often, it is almost a daily occurrence; this I have observed particularly when acting as a dispensary surgeon, which office I held for upwards of seven years, and resigned in consequence of subscribers demanding my time and attention on cases where I well knew ample means existed to pay for both.
Medicines are supplied from the hospital funds, and ordered by the committee.		By the committee.
By subscription and presentment of the grand jury of county Antrim.
I am satisfied that if small salaries were given to a few medical officers, to attend the sick poor, that many lives would be preserved and much misery alleviated.	I cannot, unless by impressing on the subscribers and the medical men, the impropriety of recommending or prescribing for any but the really necessitous; I also think the hospital is not sufficiently large to accommodate the number of sick poor who stand in need of admission. My own opinion is, that a proper system of Poor Laws would go far to remove the mass of human misery which is so general in this kingdom, and I think if introduced, the really charitable would pay less than they do at present, while the unfeeling resident at home, and the absentee, who neither sees nor cares for our wretchedness, would thus be compelled to contribute.	Granting moderate salaries to the medical attendants, especially to those who attend the sick poor in their own miserable abodes; gratuitous attendance in my opinion can never be properly effective, being generally rendered only when it suits the perfect convenience of those patients who reward the practitioner for his services.

ULSTER—ANTRIM.

Belfast Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Belfast Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Belfast Fever Hospital and Dispensary.
William Duncan, Esq., M. D.	Henry Forade, Esq., M. D.	Robert M^cCluney, Esq., Surgeon.
Belfast Fever Hospital and Dispensary; also Belfast General Dispensary, established in October 1827.	I am consulting surgeon to the Belfast Fever Hospital, and one of the attending physicians to the infirmary of the Belfast Poor-house; cannot state the time it was established.	The Belfast Dispensary and Hospital.
One parish, Belfast or Shankhill, in said county.	Belfast or Shankhill, both in the same county.	Only one, the parish of Shankhill or Belfast, in the county of Antrim.
Lying-in hospital and dispensaries as above; also county Antrim Infirmary and Fever Hospital; Lisburn, and dispensaries at Ballymacarret, Holywood, Bangor, Newtownbreda, Castlereagh, Whitehouse, Carrickfergus, Hillsborough.	One in Ballymacarret, Newtownbreda, Holywood, Bangor, Lisburn, Hillsborough, Whitehouse and Carrickfergus.	The County Infirmary is held in Lisburn, distant from Belfast nearly seven miles, where there is likewise a dispensary; dispensaries are also established at Ballymacarret, one mile; Newtownbreda, three miles; Holywood, four miles; Whiteabbey, four miles; Carrickfergus, eight miles; Cumber, seven miles; Newtown Ards, eight miles.
None attached to any other hospital; but there is the General Dispensary and a Lying-in Dispensary. No salary or emolument derived from either by the medical attendants.	There is a dispensary attached to the fever hospital, by which the infirmary of the poor-house is supplied with medicine; the gentleman in charge of this dispensary receives a salary; there is another dispensary which is attended gratuitously, and obtains a grant from the county.	The dispensary and hospital are united, and conducted by the same committee. The only medical officer who receives an annual salary of 50 l. with board, is the resident apothecary.
Two, as above; viz. fever hospital and general dispensary. No salary paid me by either. Attendance daily.	I attend the infirmary of the poor-house, and am consulting surgeon of the Belfast Hospital, for which I receive no remuneration. I attend the infirmary three times a week, and oftener when called on, and attend at the Belfast Hospital when required; both are in the same town.	I only attend at the hospital when called upon as the senior consulting surgeon, to which I have been attached for upwards of thirty years. No salary is paid to any of the medical attendants except the resident apothecary.
No, except in the hospital; the attendants of the dispensary attached to it undertaking to attend the poor at their own houses; however, in urgent cases I never refuse to do so.	I consider it my duty, and the duty of every medical person to give his attendance when required, if not otherwise engaged.	I do, and always have done so.
The apothecary keeps the register.	I keep no register.	There is a regular registry kept of all the in-patients, with their result; and also the number of dispensary patients supplied with medicine and advice at their own houses.
	Not keeping a register, cannot give the information required.
Not that I am aware of.	I believe there are.	I think there are persons who receive both advice and medicine from this establishment, who are in circumstances not requiring such gratuitous assistance.
Until lately ordered from Glasgow; at present by the druggists in the town.	By druggists.	They are purchased from the wholesale druggist, and prepared by the resident apothecary.
By private subscriptions, donations, charity sermons, &c., and presentments from county Antrim only.	By subscriptions, donations and bequests, charity sermons, weekly collections at the principal houses of worship, and by the water tax.	By annual subscriptions, donations, bequests, charity sermons, and presentments from the grand jury of the county of Antrim.
The members of the committee divide themselves into several sub-committees, for the management of the funds, and I am not sufficiently acquainted with the details to enable me to recommend any alteration.	In my opinion no salary should be given to the medical attendants of the hospital; but the attendants of districts should be recompensed for their labour.	I am really at a loss to suggest any alteration, knowing as I do the economy practised by the committee. It might be worth while to consider the propriety of levying by grand jury assessment, or local taxation, the funds requisite for the support of the hospital or dispensary of the district where situated, and not depend upon the casualty of private subscription.

ULSTER—ANTRIM.

Belfast Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Belfast Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Belfast Fever Hospital and Dispensary.
Alexander Kindell, Esq., Surgeon.	William Mateer, Esq., M. D.	David Moore, Esq., Surgeon.
There is no hospital or infirmary under my care; the sick of the district I am in charge of get medicines from the dispensary attached to the fever hospital.	—	Belfast Fever Hospital. The fever hospital and dispensary was established about 1795; the present is a general one, established in 1816.
One parish, county Antrim.	—	The town is divided into dispensary districts, all situated in same county.
Having been only a few months in Belfast, cannot answer this question.	—	The county infirmary is at Lisburn, seven miles from Belfast. There is also a dispensary near Smithfield, in Belfast; others at Carrickfergus, Whitehouse, Ballymacarret, Newtownbreda, Holywood and Bangor.
There is no dispensary, hospital or infirmary within the district I have charge of.	— the medicines prescribed by the physicians, and surgeons to the extern patients. He also acts as house surgeon, and dispenses the medicine to the patients in the hospital, keeps a register of the patients, and performs various other duties in the establishment. His salary is 50 l. per annum, with board, lodging and washing. No other medical attendant either of the hospital or of a district has any salary or emolument whatever.	There is a dispensary attached to the fever hospital. An apothecary resides in the hospital, and dispenses the medicine to the patients in the hospital, keeps a register of the patients, and performs various other duties in the establishment. His salary is 50 l. per annum, with board, lodging and washing. No other medical attendant either of the hospital or of a district has any salary or emolument whatever.
I attend no hospital, dispensary or infirmary.	—	I only attend the Belfast Hospital, and generally visit once, and sometimes twice, a day. No salary or other emolument.
I would consider it the duty of every medical man who takes the charge of a district, to see those cases that are not able to come to him at their own house.	—	I consider it my duty to attend when surgical aid is required.
All who come to my house, I prescribe for; those not able to come I see at their own houses, in the district under my charge. great proportion of these cases are pulmonary and catarrhal affections. The number of applications by the poor at my residence for advice amounts to 3,045. The number of patients visited in their own houses, during the same period, is 450. The cause of such a great number of applicants to one individual arises from the circumstance, that at one period, owing to the withdrawal of the other medical officers, almost the entire business of the charity had devolved upon me.	A register of all the cases, where application has been made for medical advice and assistance has been kept for the last six months only. In such registry the number of cases is alone specified. A	A register is kept of all cases admitted into the hospital; an account is also kept of the number of dispensary patients who have received medicine or attendance.
Being only two months in charge of a district, cannot answer this question.	—	<table><thead><tr><th></th><th></th><th>Fever.</th><th>Other Diseases.</th><th>Surgical.</th></tr></thead><tbody><tr><td rowspan="3">1831</td><td>{ Admitted - -</td><td>574</td><td>183</td><td>329</td></tr><tr><td>{ Cured - - -</td><td>495</td><td>146</td><td>306</td></tr><tr><td>{ Died - - -</td><td>45</td><td>50</td><td>19</td></tr><tr><td rowspan="3">1832</td><td>{ Admitted - -</td><td>1,034</td><td>106</td><td>262</td></tr><tr><td>{ Cured - - -</td><td>944</td><td>70</td><td>250</td></tr><tr><td>{ Died - - -</td><td>79</td><td>43</td><td>22</td></tr><tr><td rowspan="3">1833</td><td>{ Admitted - -</td><td>536</td><td>123</td><td>271</td></tr><tr><td>{ Cured - - -</td><td>506</td><td>78</td><td>233</td></tr><tr><td>{ Died - - -</td><td>53</td><td>34</td><td>28</td></tr></tbody></table> All kinds of medical and surgical cases, during three years, about 9,000 or 10,000. Dispensary patients (externs) receive medicine and advice, gratis, annually.			Fever.	Other Diseases.	Surgical.	1831	{ Admitted - -	574	183	329	{ Cured - - -	495	146	306	{ Died - - -	45	50	19	1832	{ Admitted - -	1,034	106	262	{ Cured - - -	944	70	250	{ Died - - -	79	43	22	1833	{ Admitted - -	536	123	271	{ Cured - - -	506	78	233	{ Died - - -	53	34	28
		Fever.	Other Diseases.	Surgical.
1831	{ Admitted - -	574	183	329
	{ Cured - - -	495	146	306
	{ Died - - -	45	50	19
1832	{ Admitted - -	1,034	106	262
	{ Cured - - -	944	70	250
	{ Died - - -	79	43	22
1833	{ Admitted - -	536	123	271
	{ Cured - - -	506	78	233
	{ Died - - -	53	34	28
Many have come to me that bought their own medicines, that would not be able to give a fee, and with moderate care in the medical men, those cases can be easily selected.	Many persons apply and receive gratuitous advice and medicine, who are in circumstances to procure both.	It sometimes occurs that persons apply for gratuitous aid, who are able to purchase medicine.
Cannot say.	—	The medicine is purchased from wholesale druggists, out of the funds.
Cannot answer this.	—	—
All supported by subscriptions, and a grant from the grand jury of the county Antrim, I believe.	—	By public subscription, and by a presentment to the same amount from the grand jury of the county Antrim only; also by legacies and donations.
This I cannot answer, having never been in medical charge of civil establishment, and the very short time since my return from military service.	—	I am of opinion that a portion of the funds might be usefully applied to the payment of one or two medical men, who would be responsible for their attendance on the poor; they would then be attended more promptly and regularly than by trusting to gratuitous aid.

ULSTER—ANTRIM.

Belfast Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Belfast Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Belfast Fever Hospital and Dispensary.
Daniel Murray, Esq., Surgeon.	S. S. Thomson, Esq., M.D.	William Quin, Esq., Surgeon.
One of the districts of Belfast. The attendance in the district is gratuitous.	The Belfast Dispensary and Fever Hospital. The dispensary was established about 1792 or 1793; the fever hospital was attached thereto in 1797. I was appointed one of the attending physicians to these institutions in 1801, and acted as such for many years. I am now a consulting physician.	Belfast Hospital and Dispensary, of which I am one of the surgeons. The hospital was established about the year 1792.
—	The parish of Shankhill or Belfast alone is included; this is all in the county of Antrim.	There are several parishes, but I have no means of ascertaining their number or names accurately.
—	Whitehouse Dispensary, three miles from Belfast, in the county Antrim; the County Antrim Infirmary at Lisburn, with a dispensary attached; Fever Hospital at Lisburn, in the county Down, one mile from Belfast; Ballymacarret Dispensary, three miles; Newtownbreda Dispensary, four miles; and Holywood.	The Dispensaries of Ballymacarret, Newtownbreda, Holywood, Whitehouse, and the County Infirmary at Lisburn.
There is a dispensary attached to the fever hospital. Chapel-lane Dispensary; it has no hospital attached to it. No salaries paid.	There is another dispensary in the town of Belfast, which is on a smaller scale; it is called the cine and advice, but, I think, are not visited in their own houses by the medical gentlemen attached to it.	There is a dispensary in Chapel-lane, also supported by subscriptions and grand jury presentments, the duties of which are performed gratuitously. At this establishment the poor receive medicine.
—	I am not connected with any dispensary or hospital but as stated. I have never been paid any salary for my services.	I do not attend any other hospital, and have never received any salary for my services.
I consider it my duty to attend to all cases, whether medical or surgical, to which I may be called, if within my district.	My present connexion with the dispensary and hospital is rather honorary than active. I give advice to the poor, as far as the occupations of private practice permit.	I do, to such cases as are admitted into the surgical wards of the hospital.
—	A regular registry is kept at the dispensary.	There is.
—	—	—
—	I am persuaded this does occur. bers, and medical men being frequently unable to judge of the means of the parties.	Many such cases occur in the dispensary department from the indiscriminate manner in which recommendations are sometimes given by subscribers, and medical men being frequently unable to judge of the means of the parties.
By the managing committee. the prescriptions of the physicians and surgeons. The apothecary resides at the dispensary and is paid a yearly salary,	The medicines are laid in by the committee, being purchased from wholesale druggists. They are dispensed by an apothecary, in conformity to the prescriptions of the physicians and surgeons. The apothecary resides at the dispensary and is paid a yearly salary, his time being entirely devoted to the institution.	They have been purchased in Glasgow, chiefly under the direction of the Dispensary Committee, but are now procured from the druggists in Belfast.
—	—	—
—	By voluntary subscriptions, and presentments on the county of Antrim.	By subscriptions, bequests, &c., and grand jury presentments.
—	I am satisfied that moderate salaries should be paid to a competent number of attending physicians and surgeons, so as to secure a due attendance on the poor; such seems to be the intention of the Dispensary Act in granting county money. The gratuitous attendance attaches no responsibility, and experience has shown it to be inadequate. system has totally failed in securing them that attention which their wants require	Having too frequently witnessed the difficulty the poor experienced in procuring the attendance of medical men (even in the most urgent cases) in their own houses, I would suggest the appointment of a few physicians and surgeons, to whom moderate salaries should be given, as the present gratuitous and the cause of humanity imperatively demands.

ULSTER—ANTRIM—CAVAN—DONEGAL.

Lisburn Fever Hospital.	Cavan Fever Hospital.	Ramelton Fever Hospital and Dispensary.
Committee and Medical Attendant.	Hugh Macdonald, Esq., M. D.	J. Hunter, Esq., Surgeon.
The Lisburn Fever Hospital, built in 1832; opened to receive patients in January 1833.	I attend the Cavan Fever Hospital; there is but one in the county; it was established about ten years ago.	The Ramelton Fever Hospital and Dispensary; the dispensary established in the year 1813, and the hospital in 1829.
The county Antrim; part of the parish; but it is in contemplation to extend its usefulness to several other parishes on Lord Hertford's estate.	The whole county is included.	The parish of Tullyaughuish, in the same county, including part of Conwill parish.
The Belfast Fever Hospital, seven miles distant; the Hillsborough Dispensary, on Lord Downshire's estate, three miles.	There are a vast number of dispensaries dispersed over the county, and they are a great burden to the county; and I am convinced that they render no benefit to the public commensurate with the burden they impose.	The Letterkenny Dispensary, seven miles distant; the Kilmacrennen, five miles distant; and the Fanet and Rathmullan Dispensaries, the first ten miles, and the latter five miles distant.
There is a dispensary attached to the County Infirmary, at the opposite end of the town to where the hospital is built; the emoluments are small; there is merely advice and medicine given to those who can attend. No patients visited at their own houses.	There is no dispensary attached to any hospital or infirmary in the whole county.	None but the Ramelton Dispensary. My salary is 50 l. a year.
In reference to this question, there is no regular appointment of a medical attendant upon the Fever Hospital; so far the attendance is gratuitous, and voluntary on the part of those who have visited the patients.	I attend but the fever hospital above specified, and no dispensary.	My attendance is confined to the Ramelton Dispensary, which is open on Wednesdays and Saturdays, and attendance given at all times when ordered by a governor.
—	I give regular medical attendance every day.	Certainly.
The applications for admission were generally attended to, frequently with the best results. No register, as yet, kept regularly.	There is such a register regularly kept.	I have always kept an account of the patients, also by whom they are recommended, and the medicines prescribed every time they return in the course of the year, for the satisfaction of the governors.
The diseases were all fever, and since the commencement of the new fever hospital upwards of 30 cases have been admitted, and only two deaths.	The number of persons admitted for the last three years about 900, the average being about 300 per annum; none are admitted but cases of fever, and the average of deaths is about one in 15.	<table><tr><td></td><td>Recommended.</td><td>Inoculated.</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>1,300</td><td>280</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>1,455</td><td>755</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>1,203</td><td>299</td></tr></table>		Recommended.	Inoculated.	1831	1,300	280	1832	1,455	755	1833	1,203	299
	Recommended.	Inoculated.
1831	1,300	280
1832	1,455	755
1833	1,203	299
There have not been any cases of persons applying except those in great necessity.	Seldom or never; the people in general are not anxious to enter fever hospitals with those who are in the lowest circumstances; but I know it to be otherwise in dispensaries, where much imposition is practised.	None are recommended who I believe are well able to pay.
The medicines have been chiefly supplied by Surgeon Wethered, who has attended the greater number of cases so far gratuitously, both in the hospital and at their own houses previous to removal.	By a respectable apothecary, who also acts as assistant and surgeon to the institution.	The medicines ordered and paid for by the treasurer, Mr. Watt.
Little more than the amount specified in answer No. 12 has been received or expended.	The expenditure is about 350 l. per annum.	<table><tr><td></td><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>£. 83 7 0</td><td>£. 83 7 0</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>92 15 4½</td><td>92 15 4½</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>92 16 0</td><td>92 16 0</td></tr></table> <table><tr><td colspan="4">GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td><td>1833.</td></tr><tr><td>Salary</td><td>£. 50 0 0</td><td>50 0 0</td><td>50 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine</td><td>19 9 1½</td><td>20 12 2½</td><td>22 6 0</td></tr><tr><td>Contingent</td><td>13 17 10½</td><td>20 3 2</td><td>20 1 0</td></tr></table>		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831	£. 83 7 0	£. 83 7 0	1832	92 15 4½	92 15 4½	1833	92 16 0	92 16 0	GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.					1831.	1832.	1833.	Salary	£. 50 0 0	50 0 0	50 0 0	Medicine	19 9 1½	20 12 2½	22 6 0	Contingent	13 17 10½	20 3 2	20 1 0
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831	£. 83 7 0	£. 83 7 0
1832	92 15 4½	92 15 4½
1833	92 16 0	92 16 0
GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.
	1831.	1832.	1833.
Salary	£. 50 0 0	50 0 0	50 0 0
Medicine	19 9 1½	20 12 2½	22 6 0
Contingent	13 17 10½	20 3 2	20 1 0
It has been heretofore supported by subscription; latterly the sum of fifty pounds sterling was assessed at the winter Court-leet 1832, on the town of Lisburn, and townland of Lisum, county Antrim.	It is supported by voluntary subscription, and by presentments of the county Cavan only; the grand jury having the power of presenting double the sum subscribed.	Supported by private subscription, and by presentment, as specified in the county of Donegal.
If funds were available to pay medical men for visiting the poor at their own houses immediately on the first attack of illness, besides the funds for the support of the hospital, there is little doubt but the spreading of disease would in a great measure be prevented, and in some instances lives saved.	I think the funds as well managed as possible.	None; our funds are limited; we give our nurse at the hospital 4 d. per day, and 5 d. when there is a patient in the house; this with the expenses attending otherwise, is paid by fines at petty sessions and I believe partly from what is marked contingencies.

ULSTER—DOWN—TYRONE.

Downpatrick Fever Hospital.	Newry Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Strabane Fever Hospital and Dispensary.
George Buchanan, Esq., M.D.	Committee and Medical Attendant.	A. Lenney, Esq., M.D.
The Downpatrick Fever Hospital, for the treatment of patients affected with fever, cholera, or other contagious epidemic; established in the present year, and not yet occupied with patients till its outfit be completed.	Newry Fever Hospital and Dispensary, being one institution.	The Strabane Fever Hospital and Dispensary; the dispensary established in 1812, and the hospital in 1816.
Every parish in the county of Down is entitled to the relief afforded by this institution.	The district to which I attend extends into two parishes, but is chiefly situated in one.	Three parishes; viz. Urney, Comus and Lock, and all in the same county.
None other except the county Down Infirmary, and the Castlewellan Dispensary.	There are six other dispensaries; viz. Warrenpoint, Meigh, Rathfryland, Poyntzpass, Forkhill and Newtonhamilton; but no infirmaries or public hospitals within ten miles.	There is the Lifford Infirmary and Dispensary, the Dunnamana, Ardstraw, Donaghmore, St. Johnstown and Raphoe Dispensaries.
The County Infirmary has a Dispensary attached to it, open every Wednesday and Saturday for the relief of the poor generally. The attendance on which is considered part of the duty of the surgeon and of the apothecary of the infirmary, and for which neither receive any additional remuneration.	There is no dispensary attached to any hospital or infirmary within this district, the salary for attending which is 50 l. per annum.	The fever hospital is attached to the dispensary, and has no additional allowance; nor is there any other in the district.
I attend the County Infirmary daily, for which I receive annually, as salary, 89 l. 1 s. 10 d. The apothecary of the infirmary receives for his daily attendance 23 l. 1 s. 6 d. annually. The Fever Hospital, which is within two minutes' walk of my residence, I and two other medical gentlemen have undertaken to attend daily, without salary. The apothecary of the fever hospital, who is resident, receives an annual salary of 20 l.	None but the Newry Dispensary and Fever Hospital is attended by me.	I only attend one hospital and one dispensary.
I consider it my duty to give my own personal attendance to every case in either the County Infirmary or Fever Hospital. Although my duty does not require me to attend to cases out of those establishments, yet it has been my constant practice to visit and prescribe for all cases of fever or other illness amongst the poor of my immediate neighbourhood, whenever solicited to do so.	The medical officer, in all cases, considers it his duty to give his own personal attendance.	Certainly.
In our fever hospital, a register will be kept of all cases seeking relief, how disposed of, and with what result.	A registry is kept of all the cases, when application has been made for aid.	There is a register kept, and every case accurately noted down.
The fever hospital being only just now completed, no patients have as yet been admitted. The only diseases for which medical relief is contemplated, will be cases of fever, cholera or other epidemic.	There were during the last three years 4,323 persons so relieved. The diseases consisted for the most part of fevers, inflammatory affections, stomacic and bowel complaints, cutaneous affections, &c.	1831 - - - - - 3,119 1832 - - - - - 3,067
No answer can as yet be given to this Query.	Persons are rarely recommended to this institution who do not require gratuitous assistance.	Occasionally, but very seldom, and not lately.
No medicine has as yet been laid in; but it is contemplated to have the necessary stock procured from the county infirmary.	The medicines are supplied by Messrs. Jeffries & Co., Dublin.	Ordered from a druggist, by the governors.
No answer can as yet be given, as the fever hospital is not yet occupied by patients.	<table> <tr> <th></th><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr> <tr> <th></th><th>£. s. d.</th><th>£. s. d.</th></tr> <tr> <td>1830 - - -</td><td>160 12 4</td><td>143 0 1</td></tr> <tr> <td>1831 - - -</td><td>331 6 6</td><td>298 13 10</td></tr> <tr> <td>1832 - - -</td><td>263 2 2½</td><td>256 18 0</td></tr> </table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.—Medicines, Hospital Necessaries, Salaries and House-rent. <table> <tr> <th></th><th>1831.</th><th>1832.</th></tr> <tr> <th></th><th>£. s. d.</th><th>£. s. d.</th></tr> <tr> <td>Salaries - - -</td><td>108 6 2</td><td>54 3 0½</td></tr> <tr> <td>Medicine - - -</td><td>33 17 5</td><td>—</td></tr> <tr> <td>Contingencies - -</td><td>28 10 4</td><td>13 16 9</td></tr> </table>		Receipt.	Expenditure.		£. s. d.	£. s. d.	1830 - - -	160 12 4	143 0 1	1831 - - -	331 6 6	298 13 10	1832 - - -	263 2 2½	256 18 0		1831.	1832.		£. s. d.	£. s. d.	Salaries - - -	108 6 2	54 3 0½	Medicine - - -	33 17 5	—	Contingencies - -	28 10 4	13 16 9	<table> <tr> <th></th><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr> <tr> <th></th><th>£. s. d.</th><th>£. s. d.</th></tr> <tr> <td>1831 - - -</td><td>183 12 1</td><td>170 14 0</td></tr> <tr> <td>1832 - - -</td><td>93 3 4</td><td>67 19 9½</td></tr> </table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. <table> <tr> <th></th><th>1831.</th><th>1832.</th></tr> <tr> <th></th><th>£. s. d.</th><th>£. s. d.</th></tr> <tr> <td>Salaries - - -</td><td>108 6 2</td><td>54 3 0½</td></tr> <tr> <td>Medicine - - -</td><td>33 17 5</td><td>—</td></tr> <tr> <td>Contingencies - -</td><td>28 10 4</td><td>13 16 9</td></tr> </table>		Receipt.	Expenditure.		£. s. d.	£. s. d.	1831 - - -	183 12 1	170 14 0	1832 - - -	93 3 4	67 19 9½		1831.	1832.		£. s. d.	£. s. d.	Salaries - - -	108 6 2	54 3 0½	Medicine - - -	33 17 5	—	Contingencies - -	28 10 4	13 16 9
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
	£. s. d.	£. s. d.
1830 - - -	160 12 4	143 0 1
1831 - - -	331 6 6	298 13 10
1832 - - -	263 2 2½	256 18 0
	1831.	1832.
	£. s. d.	£. s. d.
Salaries - - -	108 6 2	54 3 0½
Medicine - - -	33 17 5	—
Contingencies - -	28 10 4	13 16 9
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
	£. s. d.	£. s. d.
1831 - - -	183 12 1	170 14 0
1832 - - -	93 3 4	67 19 9½
	1831.	1832.
	£. s. d.	£. s. d.
Salaries - - -	108 6 2	54 3 0½
Medicine - - -	33 17 5	—
Contingencies - -	28 10 4	13 16 9
Supported by presentment on the county of Down, and by annual subscriptions from charitable individuals.	Newry being situated in the counties of Down and Armagh, the presentments from those correspond to the sums subscribed in their respective parts of the town.	It is supported by presentment and subscription, and from one county, county Tyrone.
I know of no alteration in the distribution of the funds of our fever hospital, which would be likely to render that institution more efficient in relieving the poor.	The distribution of the funds of the establishment of which we have the charge, seems to be regulated, with regard to the poor, in the most advantageous manner.	I do not know of any change that could be made in the distribution of the funds, that would do so much general good.

CONNAUGHT—GALWAY—LEITRIM—MAYO.

County Galway Infirmary.	County Leitrim Infirmary and Carrick-on-Shannon Dispensary.	County Mayo Infirmary.
Andrew J. Veitch, Esq., M.D.	William Hutchinson, Esq., Surgeon.	George Howse, Esq., M.D.
The County of Galway Infirmary. I understand that the present building was occupied by patients first in the year 1802. There was a County Infirmary before that time, but I do not know how long.	County of Leitrim Infirmary and Carrick-on-Shannon Dispensary. The former established about 33 years; the latter, 10.	The County of Mayo Infirmary, which was erected about forty years ago, in the town of Castlebar and county of Mayo.
They are sixty in number, all in the same county.	Patients are sent to this infirmary from all parts of the county, as well as the near part of Roscommon. No distinction is made in this country as to county or parish of patients. Governors can recommend from any place.	All the parishes in the county are included.
One fever hospital and one dispensary in the town of Galway, and two dispensaries in the county within ten miles.	In the county of Leitrim at Mohill, nine miles distant; Drunane, four miles; Drummod, ten miles; Kiltubrid, six miles. Dispensaries are established for extern patients only. In county Roscommon, Elphin, eight miles; Croghan, six miles; Frenchpark, ten miles; Boyle, eight miles; Keadue, six miles.	No dispensary at present exists.
No; but the County of Galway Infirmary gives relief to several hundred extern patients in the year; no salary or emolument for attending them.	There is not.	No regular dispensary; no salary.
Only one; the salary 89 l. 1 s. 9 d. ; required to attend every day.	I do not attend any other infirmary, hospital or dispensary.	In addition to the County Infirmary, I attend the gaol, hospital, bridewell and lunatic, which are about one quarter of a mile from my residence, and which I attend almost daily. No extra salary allowed for the two latter.
I do.	The duty of every county infirmary surgeon obliges him to attend his patients at all hours, day and night, when necessary. I also feel it my duty to visit externs who reside within a reasonable distance, when unable to appear at the dispensary.	I do consider it my duty.
There is a register to that effect.	A regular register is kept.	A register is kept of all the intern patients of the County Infirmary, together with the result, &c. Externs get medicine, trusses, bandages, &c. and children are vaccinated.
The number of persons that have received relief amount to 1,405. All cases, surgical and medical, are admitted, except idiopathic fever.	<table><tr><th colspan="5">INFIRMARY.</th></tr><tr><th>Remaining from 1829.</th><th>Admitted.</th><th>Discharged cured or incurable.</th><th>Died.</th><th>Under treatment.</th></tr><tr><td>1830</td><td>21</td><td>259</td><td>256</td><td>4</td><td>20</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>20</td><td>302</td><td>289</td><td>6</td><td>27</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>27</td><td>279</td><td>285</td><td>10</td><td>3</td></tr></table> <table><tr><th colspan="3">DISPENSARY.</th></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>5,682</td><td>1832 - 6,153 1833 - 4,356</td></tr></table> Patients visited at their own houses not included in the above. Fractures, simple and compound, wounds, burns and scalds, dislocations, cancers of the breast, lips and other parts, &c. The dispensary practice gives a great variety of medical and surgical cases, particularly amongst the children of the poor, and women in and after parturition.	INFIRMARY.					Remaining from 1829.	Admitted.	Discharged cured or incurable.	Died.	Under treatment.	1830	21	259	256	4	20	1831	20	302	289	6	27	1832	27	279	285	10	3	DISPENSARY.			1831	5,682	1832 - 6,153 1833 - 4,356	One thousand one hundred and twenty-five intern patients were relieved, in which are included all sorts of severe wounds and injuries, and most cases of acute and chronic diseases.
INFIRMARY.
Remaining from 1829.	Admitted.	Discharged cured or incurable.	Died.	Under treatment.
1830	21	259	256	4	20
1831	20	302	289	6	27
1832	27	279	285	10	3
DISPENSARY.
1831	5,682	1832 - 6,153 1833 - 4,356
No.	It does sometimes, but so seldom as not to require any particular comment.	Some few cases may occasionally occur.
By a druggist in Dublin, who is paid out of the general fund.	They are bought from a druggist in Dublin, and prepared or compounded in the surgery of the institution, for the use of the patients, by a licentiate apothecary.	They are purchased from Messrs. Boileau & George, of Dublin, druggists.
<table><tr><th colspan="2">Receipt.</th><th colspan="2">Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><th></th><th>£. s. d.</th><th></th><th>£. s. d.</th></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>707 16 5</td><td>1831</td><td>661 15 4</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>731 16 3</td><td>1832</td><td>711 19 11</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>747 1 3</td><td>1833</td><td>713 18 0</td></tr></table> <table><tr><th colspan="6">GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.</th></tr><tr><th colspan="2">1831.</th><th colspan="2">1832.</th><th colspan="2">1833.</th></tr><tr><th>£.</th><th>s. d.</th><th>£.</th><th>s. d.</th><th>£.</th><th>s. d.</th></tr><tr><td>Provisions</td><td>320 11 7</td><td>313 5 7</td><td>308 5 7</td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Salaries</td><td>202 17 11</td><td>227 16 5</td><td>215 17 8</td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Medicine</td><td>26 11 4</td><td>43 6 3</td><td>49 15 7</td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Firing, &c.</td><td>37 8 7</td><td>57 7 0</td><td>47 2 10</td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Building, &c.</td><td>26 5 9</td><td>39 1 8</td><td>48 0 3</td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Repairs</td><td>30 1 7</td><td>11 19 11</td><td>17 3 6</td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Contingencies</td><td>17 18 5</td><td>19 3 1</td><td>27 12 6</td><td></td><td></td></tr></table> The salaries include those of the surgeon, apothecary, register, chaplain, housekeeper, three nurses, barber, porter and purveyor.	Receipt.		Expenditure.			£. s. d.		£. s. d.	1831	707 16 5	1831	661 15 4	1832	731 16 3	1832	711 19 11	1833	747 1 3	1833	713 18 0	GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.						1831.		1832.		1833.		£.	s. d.	£.	s. d.	£.	s. d.	Provisions	320 11 7	313 5 7	308 5 7			Salaries	202 17 11	227 16 5	215 17 8			Medicine	26 11 4	43 6 3	49 15 7			Firing, &c.	37 8 7	57 7 0	47 2 10			Building, &c.	26 5 9	39 1 8	48 0 3			Repairs	30 1 7	11 19 11	17 3 6			Contingencies	17 18 5	19 3 1	27 12 6			Not having any private funds, the county gives the allowance directed by law, viz. 600 l. late currency; disbursed under the following heads:—Provisions, fuel, furniture, medicines, instruments, repairs, rent, salaries, contingencies, &c.	<table><tr><th colspan="2">Receipt.</th><th colspan="2">Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><th></th><th>£. s. d.</th><th></th><th>£. s. d.</th></tr><tr><td>1830</td><td>982 16 4</td><td>1830</td><td>794 12 3</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>931 10 6</td><td>1831</td><td>951 15 3</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>692 6 6</td><td>1832</td><td>768 4 2</td></tr></table>	Receipt.		Expenditure.			£. s. d.		£. s. d.	1830	982 16 4	1830	794 12 3	1831	931 10 6	1831	951 15 3	1832	692 6 6	1832	768 4 2
Receipt.		Expenditure.
	£. s. d.		£. s. d.
1831	707 16 5	1831	661 15 4
1832	731 16 3	1832	711 19 11
1833	747 1 3	1833	713 18 0
GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.
1831.		1832.		1833.
£.	s. d.	£.	s. d.	£.	s. d.
Provisions	320 11 7	313 5 7	308 5 7
Salaries	202 17 11	227 16 5	215 17 8
Medicine	26 11 4	43 6 3	49 15 7
Firing, &c.	37 8 7	57 7 0	47 2 10
Building, &c.	26 5 9	39 1 8	48 0 3
Repairs	30 1 7	11 19 11	17 3 6
Contingencies	17 18 5	19 3 1	27 12 6
Receipt.		Expenditure.
	£. s. d.		£. s. d.
1830	982 16 4	1830	794 12 3
1831	931 10 6	1831	951 15 3
1832	692 6 6	1832	768 4 2
By the interest, amounting to 22 l. 4 s. 6 d. , of a fund created by the subscription of the governors, and a presentment off the county of Galway only.	By presentments from the grand jury of this county only, and yearly small subscriptions for the support of the dispensary.	Chiefly by county presentments, and only from one county.
I do not conceive the small sum granted yearly can be better laid out than it is at present; but the number of applications for admission far exceed the number that can be admitted from want of sufficient funds.	It is the opinion of the committee under whose superintendence I have endeavoured to answer the above queries, that the funds committed to their charge could not be more beneficially disbursed than they are; in which opinion, as their medical officer, I fully agree.	I think the funds are well applied; but think a well-regulated dispensary attached to the infirmary would greatly extend the benefit of the institution.

CONNAUGHT—ROSCOMMON.				LEINSTER—CARLOW—DROGHEDA.
County Roscommon Infirmary.				County Carlow Infirmary.		Drogheda Infirmary and Dispensary.
The Treasurer.				Thomas J. Rawson, Esq., M.D.		Robert Pentland, Esq., Surgeon.
The County Infirmary of Roscommon, open for the reception of accidents and all diseases, except infectious fevers and incurable disease; established in the year 1767, 31st March.				There is but one infirmary in the county, called the Carlow Infirmary.		The Infirmary for the county of the town of Drogheda, to which is attached a dispensary.
The infirmary is open to the entire county.				It includes the whole county.		There are properly three parishes concerned in the district, but the establishment is connected with and shares its benefits with parishes in the counties of Meath and Louth.
There are five dispensaries within ten miles of Roscommon; Lecarrow, Ballygar, Lanesborough, Tusk and Strokestown.				The dispensaries of Tullow, Myshall, Newtown, Carlow, Leighlinbridge, Bagnalstown, Baltinglass, Ballickmoylin, Castledermot; the last three are not in the county.		There are several dispensaries; viz. at Termonfeckon, Dunleer, Slane, Duleek, Black Lion, Bellewstown, Collon, Julianstown, Belbriggan, and Stamullen; but no infirmary within ten miles of Drogheda.
There is a dispensary attached to the infirmary; salary, 15 l. per annum, with 100 l. for the county infirmary; total, 115 l. yearly.				There is no dispensary immediately attached to the infirmary, but the infirmary surgeon is one of the dispensary physicians, without any emolument.		There is no other medical establishment within the county of the town of Drogheda.
The surgeon attends only the infirmary and the dispensary attached thereto.				The surgeon attends the infirmary every day; the salary 100 l. Irish; he attends the Carlow Dispensary also every day without any salary.		I am not connected with any others than the Infirmary and Dispensary of Drogheda; my salary for the infirmary is 100 l. (late currency); and for the dispensary 70 l. (late currency); the attendance at the infirmary is daily, or at all hours, in case of accidents; the dispensary is open three days in each week.
The surgeon feels himself only bound to attend patients at the hospital, but he often visits the sick poor at their dwellings in the town and immediate neighbourhood.				I do.		I am liable to be called upon at all hours to attend to the duties of the infirmary; the dispensary is open at stated days and hours.
There is a register kept.				There is a registry kept of all cases admitted into the infirmary, with the result of each.		A regular register is kept of all applications for relief, the names of applicants, their diseases, and by whom recommended, with other observations.
The general diseases treated have been accidents.				There were 505 cases admitted in the last three years, principally surgical: fractures, scalds, burns, ulcers, diseases of the eye, urinary organs, tumors, strangulated hernia, aneurisms, &c.		<table><tr><th colspan="2">Infirmary.</th><th colspan="2">Dispensary.</th></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>- - - 89</td><td>1831</td><td>- - - 4,743</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>- - - 83</td><td>1832</td><td>- - - 4,306</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>- - - 76</td><td>1833</td><td>- - - 3,000</td></tr></table>		Infirmary.		Dispensary.		1831	- - - 89	1831	- - - 4,743	1832	- - - 83	1832	- - - 4,306	1833	- - - 76	1833	- - - 3,000
Infirmary.		Dispensary.
1831	- - - 89	1831	- - - 4,743
1832	- - - 83	1832	- - - 4,306
1833	- - - 76	1833	- - - 3,000
Many, I believe, do who do not require gratuitous aid, but it is difficult to make distinctions or to reject on this ground when recommended by a governor.				Not to my knowledge.		This must often occur, particularly in surgical diseases, where perhaps operations are necessary, or in cases of sudden accidents.
The medicines are purchased from Messrs. Boileau & George, out of the funds of the hospital.				By druggists.		By the Apothecaries' Hall, Dublin.
<table><tr><th>RECEIPT:</th><th>1830.</th><th>1831.</th><th>1832.</th></tr><tr><td>Balance - - -</td><td>£.1 3 8½</td><td>-</td><td>-</td></tr><tr><td>Vested Balance - -</td><td>86 16 0</td><td>106 2 1</td><td>-</td></tr><tr><td>Parliamentary Grants</td><td>89 1 10</td><td>89 1 10</td><td>89 1 10</td></tr><tr><td>Presentments - -</td><td>600 0 0</td><td>553 16 11</td><td>553 16 11</td></tr><tr><td>Donations and Subscriptions - - -</td><td>52 7 0</td><td>65 2 0</td><td>86 1 1</td></tr><tr><td>Petty Session Fines</td><td>63 14 5</td><td>42 0 9</td><td>120 6 1</td></tr><tr><td>Rent, &c. - - -</td><td>93 13 8</td><td>97 13 8</td><td>97 0 4</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>£. 986 16 7½</td><td>953 17 3</td><td>946 6 3</td></tr></table> <table><tr><th>EXPENDITURE:—</th><th>1830</th><th>1831</th><th>1832</th></tr><tr><td>- - -</td><td>-</td><td>£.1,011 6 5</td><td>-</td></tr><tr><td>- - -</td><td>-</td><td>985 11 4</td><td>-</td></tr><tr><td>- - -</td><td>-</td><td>838 11 3</td><td>-</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE:—Provisions, Salaries, Medicine, Repairs, Furniture, &c.				RECEIPT:	1830.	1831.	1832.	Balance - - -	£.1 3 8½	-	-	Vested Balance - -	86 16 0	106 2 1	-	Parliamentary Grants	89 1 10	89 1 10	89 1 10	Presentments - -	600 0 0	553 16 11	553 16 11	Donations and Subscriptions - - -	52 7 0	65 2 0	86 1 1	Petty Session Fines	63 14 5	42 0 9	120 6 1	Rent, &c. - - -	93 13 8	97 13 8	97 0 4		£. 986 16 7½	953 17 3	946 6 3	EXPENDITURE:—	1830	1831	1832	- - -	-	£.1,011 6 5	-	- - -	-	985 11 4	-	- - -	-	838 11 3	-	<table><tr><th colspan="3">Receipt.</th><th colspan="3">Expenditure.</th></tr><tr><th>1831.</th><th>1832.</th><th>1833.</th><th>1831.</th><th>1832.</th><th>1833.</th></tr><tr><td>Balance £.394 16 10½</td><td>383 18 3¼</td><td>34 6 4</td><td>1831</td><td>-</td><td>£.438 1 4¾</td></tr><tr><td>Receipts 427 2 9½</td><td>381 7 6½</td><td>321 15 3½</td><td>1832</td><td>-</td><td>730 19 5¾*</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>£. 821 19 8</td><td>765 5 9¾</td><td>1833</td><td>-</td><td>385 1 2½</td></tr><tr><td></td><td></td><td>356 1 7½</td><td colspan="3">* Out of this sum 342l. 11s. was lodged in Government securities.</td></tr></table>		Receipt.			Expenditure.			1831.	1832.	1833.	1831.	1832.	1833.	Balance £.394 16 10½	383 18 3¼	34 6 4	1831	-	£.438 1 4¾	Receipts 427 2 9½	381 7 6½	321 15 3½	1832	-	730 19 5¾*		£. 821 19 8	765 5 9¾	1833	-	385 1 2½			356 1 7½	* Out of this sum 342 l. 11 s. was lodged in Government securities.
RECEIPT:	1830.	1831.	1832.
Balance - - -	£.1 3 8½	-	-
Vested Balance - -	86 16 0	106 2 1	-
Parliamentary Grants	89 1 10	89 1 10	89 1 10
Presentments - -	600 0 0	553 16 11	553 16 11
Donations and Subscriptions - - -	52 7 0	65 2 0	86 1 1
Petty Session Fines	63 14 5	42 0 9	120 6 1
Rent, &c. - - -	93 13 8	97 13 8	97 0 4
	£. 986 16 7½	953 17 3	946 6 3
EXPENDITURE:—	1830	1831	1832
- - -	-	£.1,011 6 5	-
- - -	-	985 11 4	-
- - -	-	838 11 3	-
Receipt.			Expenditure.
1831.	1832.	1833.	1831.	1832.	1833.
Balance £.394 16 10½	383 18 3¼	34 6 4	1831	-	£.438 1 4¾
Receipts 427 2 9½	381 7 6½	321 15 3½	1832	-	730 19 5¾*
	£. 821 19 8	765 5 9¾	1833	-	385 1 2½
		356 1 7½	* Out of this sum 342 l. 11 s. was lodged in Government securities.
By presentments from the County Roscommon, a grant from Government, an annuity of 92 l. 6 s. 2 d. from the late Mrs. Walcot, and by annual and life subscriptions.				By presentments and subscriptions, the presentments from the county Carlow only.		By presentment from the grand jury of the county of the town; by Government grant, corporation allowance, private subscriptions, and interest of money at loan.
The funds of this institution, although distributed with the greatest economy, are not more than equal to the expenditure of the hospital, which has been of late increased by several beds added for intern patients, and no alteration in that respect can be suggested; but we want a fever hospital very much, and an asylum for aged and infirm objects, to whom we cannot extend any relief from the hospital.				I do not know of any.		I can only suggest, that for our present limited establishment there is a want of sufficient funds for its support; I would recommend a considerable addition, to enable cases of fever to be received, and also an addition of beds for chronic cases.

LEINSTER—DUBLIN CITY—DUBLIN—KILDARE.

City of Dublin Infirmary, (Jervis Street.)	County Dublin Infirmary and Dispensary.	County Kildare Infirmary.
Committee and Medical Attendants.	Committee and Medical Attendants.	Committee and Medical Attendant.
Charitable Infirmary, Jervis-street, established 1721; but one dispensary since the formation.	Meath Hospital and County Dublin Infirmary; there is a dispensary attached to it; the hospital was established in the year 1767, and derived its name from being situated in the Earl of Meath's liberty, and in 1777 was by Act of Parliament made the County Dublin Infirmary.	County Kildare Infirmary.
The parish of St. Mary's, in Dublin, for the relief of the City and County of Dublin.	Its district includes all the parishes in the city as well as the county Dublin.	All the parishes in the County Kildare are included in the district.
Does not know.	Exclusive of the several hospitals and dispensaries in the city, there are about eight dispensaries within ten miles.	Kilcullen, Newbridge, Rathangan, and Monastereven Dispensaries, but no hospitals or infirmaries, except a fever hospital at Kilcullen.
There are seven surgeons and two physicians, who serve without fee or reward; there is a dispensary attached to this hospital.	There is a dispensary attached to the hospital for the relief of extern patients, and there is no salary derived by any of the medical gentlemen.	No dispensary attached to any hospital or infirmary within the district.
The medical attendants of this hospital are attached to many other charities in this city.	Some of the medical gentlemen attend other institutions, but not in connexion with this establishment.	Attend the County Kildare Infirmary only.
The physicians and surgeons do.	Certainly.	I consider it my duty to attend to all cases, medical and surgical, recommended by governors or subscribers, and according to Act of Parliament to all cases of accident.
Yes.	There is a registry kept.	A regular register is kept of all cases where application has been made, and patients admitted according to priority of application from governors, &c.
<table><thead><tr><th>Infirmary.</th><th>Dispensary.</th></tr></thead><tbody><tr><td>1831 - - 516</td><td>1831 - - 44,391</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - - 625</td><td>1832 - - 38,254</td></tr><tr><td>1833 - - 757</td><td>1833 - - 39,917</td></tr></tbody></table> The cases treated are generally accidents and acute medical diseases.	Infirmary.	Dispensary.	1831 - - 516	1831 - - 44,391	1832 - - 625	1832 - - 38,254	1833 - - 757	1833 - - 39,917	<table><thead><tr><th></th><th>Admitted.</th><th>Discharged.</th><th>Died.</th></tr></thead><tbody><tr><td>1831. Infirmary Patients</td><td>734</td><td>691</td><td>45</td></tr><tr><td>Government Patients</td><td>641</td><td>575</td><td>63</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>1,375</td><td>1,266</td><td>108</td></tr><tr><td>1832. Infirmary Patients</td><td>886</td><td>848</td><td>40</td></tr><tr><td>Government Patients</td><td>697</td><td>638</td><td>60</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>1,583</td><td>1,486</td><td>100</td></tr><tr><td>1833. Infirmary Patients</td><td>910</td><td>861</td><td>49</td></tr><tr><td>Government Patients</td><td>659</td><td>609</td><td>82</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>1,569</td><td>1,470</td><td>131</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>4,527</td><td>4,222</td><td>339</td></tr></tbody></table>		Admitted.	Discharged.	Died.	1831. Infirmary Patients	734	691	45	Government Patients	641	575	63		1,375	1,266	108	1832. Infirmary Patients	886	848	40	Government Patients	697	638	60		1,583	1,486	100	1833. Infirmary Patients	910	861	49	Government Patients	659	609	82		1,569	1,470	131		4,527	4,222	339	<table><thead><tr><th>Admitted.</th><th>Cured.</th><th>Relieved.</th><th>Died.</th></tr></thead><tbody><tr><td>860</td><td>540</td><td>300</td><td>20</td></tr><tr><td colspan="4">6,726 Externs.</td></tr></tbody></table>	Admitted.	Cured.	Relieved.	Died.	860	540	300	20	6,726 Externs.
Infirmary.	Dispensary.
1831 - - 516	1831 - - 44,391
1832 - - 625	1832 - - 38,254
1833 - - 757	1833 - - 39,917
	Admitted.	Discharged.	Died.
1831. Infirmary Patients	734	691	45
Government Patients	641	575	63
	1,375	1,266	108
1832. Infirmary Patients	886	848	40
Government Patients	697	638	60
	1,583	1,486	100
1833. Infirmary Patients	910	861	49
Government Patients	659	609	82
	1,569	1,470	131
	4,527	4,222	339
Admitted.	Cured.	Relieved.	Died.
860	540	300	20
6,726 Externs.
No.	I am not aware of any.	Not with my knowledge.
By a druggist, conformable to a contract, by public advertisements.	By a monthly order from the standing committee, and from a respectable wholesale druggist, Messrs. Boileau & George.	Ordered by the surgeon, and paid for by the treasurer of the infirmary to the druggist.
<table><thead><tr><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr></thead><tbody><tr><td>1831 - £. 964 12 3½</td><td>£. 1,014 11 9½</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - 1,055 13 6½</td><td>1,011 11 1</td></tr><tr><td>1833 - 1,180 16 4½</td><td>1,259 5 1½</td></tr></tbody></table>	Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831 - £. 964 12 3½	£. 1,014 11 9½	1832 - 1,055 13 6½	1,011 11 1	1833 - 1,180 16 4½	1,259 5 1½	<table><thead><tr><th>Receipt:</th><th>1831.</th><th>1832.</th><th>1833.</th></tr></thead><tbody><tr><td>Treasury Grant</td><td>£. 720 8 11</td><td>813 10 5</td><td>712 11 8</td></tr><tr><td>Parliamentary ditto</td><td>89 1 10</td><td>88 19 10</td><td>89 1 10</td></tr><tr><td>County Presentment</td><td>553 16 10</td><td>553 16 10</td><td>553 16 10</td></tr><tr><td>Subscriptions</td><td>255 11 6</td><td>246 3 11</td><td>246 17 2</td></tr><tr><td>Donations, &c.</td><td>322 7 2</td><td>280 6 1</td><td>148 4 5</td></tr><tr><td>Interest on Government Stock</td><td>177 10 3</td><td>197 14 7</td><td>220 18 3</td></tr><tr><td>Fines</td><td>- - -</td><td>- - -</td><td>35 15 0</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>£. 2,118 16 6</td><td>2,180 11 8</td><td>2,007 10 2</td></tr><tr><td>Expenditure:—1831</td><td>- - -</td><td>£. 2,075 6 5</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>- - -</td><td>2,070 6 10</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>- - -</td><td>2,040 14 6½</td><td></td></tr><tr><td colspan="4">GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.—Clothing, Printing, Provisions, Medicines, Insurance, Furniture and Repairs, Coals, Salaries and Wages, Rent of Old Hospital and Contingencies.</td></tr></tbody></table>	Receipt:	1831.	1832.	1833.	Treasury Grant	£. 720 8 11	813 10 5	712 11 8	Parliamentary ditto	89 1 10	88 19 10	89 1 10	County Presentment	553 16 10	553 16 10	553 16 10	Subscriptions	255 11 6	246 3 11	246 17 2	Donations, &c.	322 7 2	280 6 1	148 4 5	Interest on Government Stock	177 10 3	197 14 7	220 18 3	Fines	- - -	- - -	35 15 0		£. 2,118 16 6	2,180 11 8	2,007 10 2	Expenditure:—1831	- - -	£. 2,075 6 5		1832	- - -	2,070 6 10		1833	- - -	2,040 14 6½		GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.—Clothing, Printing, Provisions, Medicines, Insurance, Furniture and Repairs, Coals, Salaries and Wages, Rent of Old Hospital and Contingencies.				<table><thead><tr><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr></thead><tbody><tr><td>1830 - £. 666 11 10</td><td>£. 708 18 0½</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - 856 19 1½</td><td>747 13 3½</td></tr><tr><td>1833 - 789 8 1</td><td>654 6 9½</td></tr></tbody></table>	Receipt.	Expenditure.	1830 - £. 666 11 10	£. 708 18 0½	1831 - 856 19 1½	747 13 3½	1833 - 789 8 1	654 6 9½
Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831 - £. 964 12 3½	£. 1,014 11 9½
1832 - 1,055 13 6½	1,011 11 1
1833 - 1,180 16 4½	1,259 5 1½
Receipt:	1831.	1832.	1833.
Treasury Grant	£. 720 8 11	813 10 5	712 11 8
Parliamentary ditto	89 1 10	88 19 10	89 1 10
County Presentment	553 16 10	553 16 10	553 16 10
Subscriptions	255 11 6	246 3 11	246 17 2
Donations, &c.	322 7 2	280 6 1	148 4 5
Interest on Government Stock	177 10 3	197 14 7	220 18 3
Fines	- - -	- - -	35 15 0
	£. 2,118 16 6	2,180 11 8	2,007 10 2
Expenditure:—1831	- - -	£. 2,075 6 5
1832	- - -	2,070 6 10
1833	- - -	2,040 14 6½
GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.—Clothing, Printing, Provisions, Medicines, Insurance, Furniture and Repairs, Coals, Salaries and Wages, Rent of Old Hospital and Contingencies.
Receipt.	Expenditure.
1830 - £. 666 11 10	£. 708 18 0½
1831 - 856 19 1½	747 13 3½
1833 - 789 8 1	654 6 9½
Grand Jury presentments, Parliamentary allowance, subscriptions, bequests, donations, Government and Bank Stocks and rents.	It is supported by presentments from the grand jury of the county of Dublin only; by subscriptions and donations; a Parliamentary grant, fines levied by magistrates at the petty sessions held in the County Dublin, and the interest on 6,762 l. 18 s. 4 d. Government 3½ per cent. Stock.	By donations, annual subscriptions and by presentments from the County Kildare solely.
No.	None that the committee are aware of.	We cannot suggest any alteration in the distribution of the funds, which would render the establishment more efficient.

LEINSTER—KING'S COUNTY—LONGFORD—LOUTH.

King's County Infirmary.	County Longford Infirmary.	County Louth Infirmary.
George Peirce, Esq., Surgeon.	George Peacocke, Esq., Surgeon.	E. G. Brunker, Esq., M.D.
The King's County Infirmary, established A.D. 1788.	The Longford County Infirmary at Longford.	County of Louth Infirmary, established in the year 1752.
All the county.	About twenty parishes all in the county, except a part of a few extending into adjoining county.	The district extends over the whole county of Louth, and into a small part of the county of Armagh.
There are six dispensaries within ten miles of our hospital; viz. Clara, five miles; Philipstown, seven; Frankford, nearly ten; Tyrrellspass (county Westmeath), seven miles; Clonaslee (Queen's County), eight miles; besides several others, varying from twelve to twenty miles, also Geashill, six miles, (in this county.)	Dispensary at Kenagh, eight miles distant; also at Edgworthstown, seven miles distant; there are two more dispensaries within the county, ten and twelve miles distant from the County Infirmary at Longford.	There are dispensaries at the following places, within ten miles; viz. Castle-Bellingham, Louth, Ballymascanlon, Forkhill.
All poor persons applying at the infirmary on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays are prescribed for, and supplied with medicine.	Yes, to the County Infirmary; no salary or emolument derived by the surgeon for attendance upon same dispensary.	There is a dispensary attached to the County Infirmary, for which there is no salary. The whole duty is done by myself, with the exception of an apothecary who compounds the medicines prescribed.
None but the King's County Infirmary.	No, only the County Infirmary, where attendance is given every day and twice a week to outpatients recommended to the dispensary, from 10 till 3 o'clock each dispensary day; viz. Mondays and Fridays.	I have to attend the infirmary every day, and the dispensary for extern patients twice a week; salary, 89 l. 1 s. 10 d.
In every case requiring my attendance, I am sent notice from the hospital instantly.	Yes, at the infirmary.	It is my duty to attend all accidents and urgent cases when brought to the infirmary.
A correct registry is kept, tickets filed, and the manner in which each application is disposed noted by the committee.	A registry is kept of all patients admitted into the infirmary; all applications being attended to, and received according to the accommodation in the infirmary at the period of application, and the priority of said applications cateris paribus , the urgency and nature of the condition of the patient; cases of sudden accident attended to at all hours.	A register of all applicants for relief is kept; accommodation in the infirmary is afforded to as many as it is capable of containing; the rest are supplied with medicine and advice. The hospital is very small, not containing more than 17 beds; if there were funds and accommodation, I am certain 30 beds would be constantly filled.
<table><tr><td></td><td>Intern. Patients.</td><td>Extern. Patients.</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - - -</td><td>388</td><td>6,470</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - - -</td><td>443</td><td>8,372</td></tr><tr><td>1833 - - -</td><td>403</td><td>6,788</td></tr></table> Medical and surgical cases are treated in hospital.		Intern. Patients.	Extern. Patients.	1831 - - -	388	6,470	1832 - - -	443	8,372	1833 - - -	403	6,788	<table><tr><td>1830, admitted - - -</td><td>198</td></tr><tr><td>1831, " - - -</td><td>205</td></tr><tr><td>1832, " - - -</td><td>220</td></tr></table> Of these, 185 were cases of sudden accident, consisting of fractures and wounds of various kinds; the remainder is made up of cases of diseases of the eyes, catarrhs, rheumatism, ague, diseases, such as tumors, requiring surgical operation for their cure and removal, affecting some cases of the venereal in its constitutional form, &c. &c.	1830, admitted - - -	198	1831, " - - -	205	1832, " - - -	220	<table><tr><td></td><td>Intern Patients.</td><td>Extern Patients.</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - - -</td><td>120</td><td>891</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - - -</td><td>172</td><td>1,012</td></tr><tr><td>1833 - - -</td><td>182</td><td>754</td></tr></table> N.B. The register of extern patients is the number of individuals actually relieved.		Intern Patients.	Extern Patients.	1831 - - -	120	891	1832 - - -	172	1,012	1833 - - -	182	754
	Intern. Patients.	Extern. Patients.
1831 - - -	388	6,470
1832 - - -	443	8,372
1833 - - -	403	6,788
1830, admitted - - -	198
1831, " - - -	205
1832, " - - -	220
	Intern Patients.	Extern Patients.
1831 - - -	120	891
1832 - - -	172	1,012
1833 - - -	182	754
It may, and does sometimes occur, but not often.	Sometimes such persons are recommended to the benefits of the charity.	None are relieved except accidents, without a recommendation from a governor of the infirmary, who is supposed to have a personal knowledge of the fitness of the applicant to be relieved by the charity.
By contract, the last three years by Messrs. Boileau & George, Bride-street, Dublin.	By a Dublin druggist, at the expense of the governor of the institution.	By Messrs. Boileau & George, druggists, Dublin.
<table><tr><td></td><td>Receipt.</td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td></td><td>1830.</td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td></tr><tr><td>Government Grant</td><td>£. 89 1 9½</td><td>89 1 9½</td><td>89 1 9½</td></tr><tr><td>Presentment -</td><td>553 10 10</td><td>553 10 10</td><td>553 10 10</td></tr><tr><td>Subscriptions -</td><td>60 18 0</td><td>3 3 0</td><td>9 9 0</td></tr><tr><td>Petty Session Fines</td><td>98 14 0½</td><td>51 12 0½</td><td>40 5 0</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>£. 802 4 8</td><td>697 7 8</td><td>692 6 7½</td></tr></table> <table><tr><td></td><td>Expenditure.</td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>1830 - - -</td><td>£. 800 13 10½</td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>1831 - - -</td><td>681 19 2½</td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>1832 - - -</td><td>751 1 8½</td><td></td><td></td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.—Salaries, Medicine, Provisions, Furniture and Repairs, Firing and Sundries.		Receipt.				1830.	1831.	1832.	Government Grant	£. 89 1 9½	89 1 9½	89 1 9½	Presentment -	553 10 10	553 10 10	553 10 10	Subscriptions -	60 18 0	3 3 0	9 9 0	Petty Session Fines	98 14 0½	51 12 0½	40 5 0		£. 802 4 8	697 7 8	692 6 7½		Expenditure.			1830 - - -	£. 800 13 10½			1831 - - -	681 19 2½			1832 - - -	751 1 8½			In the absence of the treasurer and secretary, it is not in my power to answer this Query; but from a public document, I can state that the receipts for year ending January 1833, 865l. 3s. 2½d. Expenditure for said year, 555l. 4s. 11d.	<table><tr><td></td><td>Receipt.</td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td></td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td><td>1833.</td></tr><tr><td>Government Grant -</td><td>£. 89 1 10</td><td>89 1 10</td><td>89 1 10</td></tr><tr><td>Presentment -</td><td>461 10 9</td><td>461 10 9</td><td>461 10 9</td></tr><tr><td>Subscriptions and Donations -</td><td>195 6 0</td><td>89 7 0</td><td>76 14 0</td></tr><tr><td>Petty Session Fines -</td><td>71 11 0</td><td>49 6 9</td><td>59 8 6</td></tr><tr><td>Interest on Funds -</td><td>77 0 3</td><td>85 6 3</td><td>194 13 5</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>£. 894 9 10</td><td>774 11 7</td><td>881 8 6</td></tr></table> <table><tr><td></td><td>Expenditure.</td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>1831 - - -</td><td>£. 487 10 1</td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>1832 - - -</td><td>462 4 9</td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>1833 - - -</td><td>452 4 3</td><td></td><td></td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.—Salaries, Provisions, Medicines, Coals, Furniture, Repairs, and Contingencies.		Receipt.				1831.	1832.	1833.	Government Grant -	£. 89 1 10	89 1 10	89 1 10	Presentment -	461 10 9	461 10 9	461 10 9	Subscriptions and Donations -	195 6 0	89 7 0	76 14 0	Petty Session Fines -	71 11 0	49 6 9	59 8 6	Interest on Funds -	77 0 3	85 6 3	194 13 5		£. 894 9 10	774 11 7	881 8 6		Expenditure.			1831 - - -	£. 487 10 1			1832 - - -	462 4 9			1833 - - -	452 4 3
	Receipt.
	1830.	1831.	1832.
Government Grant	£. 89 1 9½	89 1 9½	89 1 9½
Presentment -	553 10 10	553 10 10	553 10 10
Subscriptions -	60 18 0	3 3 0	9 9 0
Petty Session Fines	98 14 0½	51 12 0½	40 5 0
	£. 802 4 8	697 7 8	692 6 7½
	Expenditure.
1830 - - -	£. 800 13 10½
1831 - - -	681 19 2½
1832 - - -	751 1 8½
	Receipt.
	1831.	1832.	1833.
Government Grant -	£. 89 1 10	89 1 10	89 1 10
Presentment -	461 10 9	461 10 9	461 10 9
Subscriptions and Donations -	195 6 0	89 7 0	76 14 0
Petty Session Fines -	71 11 0	49 6 9	59 8 6
Interest on Funds -	77 0 3	85 6 3	194 13 5
	£. 894 9 10	774 11 7	881 8 6
	Expenditure.
1831 - - -	£. 487 10 1
1832 - - -	462 4 9
1833 - - -	452 4 3
By Government grant, grand jury presentment of the King's County, subscriptions and fines levied at petty sessions in the King's County.	By county presentments, annual subscriptions, bequests and donations, presentments off county Longford alone.	Supported principally by presentments made by the grand jury of the county Louth, Government grant; there are also some annual subscribers, funds belonging to the body of governors, and fines from magistrates at petty sessions.
As far as the intention of a county infirmary is concerned, I conceive ours a well-conducted establishment; our committee attend regularly every Monday, and pass the weekly accounts.	From my experience, I am of opinion that in all establishments in Ireland for affording medical relief to the poor, proper food and lodging should be connected as frequently as possible with the administering of medicines, such as is practised in the	The funds of the hospital have been husbanded with the greatest care. The hospital has not been large enough to give accommodation to half the applicants. In no place is a larger and more convenient building required; the present one being the first used as an infirmary in Ireland.

different hospitals and county infirmaries, as I consider the manner in which medicine is given to the poor at the dispensaries, owing to the poverty, habits and peculiarities of character and manners of the Irish peasantry, such an expense is but seldom attended with the beneficial result looked for, and often detrimental.

LEINSTER—MEATH—QUEEN'S—WESTMEATH.

County Meath Infirmary.	Queen's County Infirmary.	County Westmeath Infirmary.
L. Byron, Esq., M.D.	John Jacob, Esq., M.D.	—
The Meath Hospital, or County of Meath Infirmary, was established in the year 1754.	Queen's County Infirmary.	County Westmeath Infirmary; between fifty and sixty years.
The hospital answers for the entire county.	The district for which the infirmary has been established embraces the entire county. All sick poor living in the county are entitled to the bene-	The institution is for the relief and benefit of the entire county.
fits to be derived from it, both as intern and extern patients. Some of the governors of the institution have at different periods endeavoured to limit the district from which extern patients should be admitted to the benefits of advice and medicine at the infirmary, to the vicinity of the town, and the ordinary extent of country commonly embraced within dispensary districts. Such alteration has however been invariably disapproved of by a large majority of the governors.
Two fever hospitals and six dispensaries.	Fourteen dispensaries were presented for at the assizes for 1833; of these, the following are within ten miles of the infirmary: Ballybrittas, distant seven miles; Portarlinton, eight miles; Mountmellick, five miles; Mountrath, six miles; Offerlane, ten miles; Abbeyleix, seven miles; and Stradbally, four miles and a half.	Killucan, Kinnegad, Tyrrellspass, Ballincargy, Castlepollard, Castletowndelvin, Turin, Ballinalack, and Castlepollard Fever Hospital.
This is the only hospital or infirmary in the county that has a dispensary attached.	There is no second infirmary in this county; there is but one fever hospital, a very small establishment, attached to the Abbeyleix Dispensary, which I believe seldom contains patients.	There are, on an average, 3,500 extern patients relieved, and supplied with medicine and advice annually, for which the surgeon receives no additional salary or emolument.
I attend no hospital or infirmary but this one, and the dispensary attached to it, for which I am paid 184 l. 12 s. annually. There are two days in the week for dispensing medicine, but accidents and important cases are attended to at all times.	I attend the Queen's County Infirmary daily; number of intern patients, from 35 to 50. I prescribe for extern patients, for which, and my attendance on the county gaol, I receive 184 l. per annum. I am physician to the Maryborough District Lunatic Asylum, where I attend almost daily, for which I receive 100 l. per annum. Both the infirmary and lunatic asylum are situated within a quarter of a mile of my residence.	I attend but one county infirmary, which I am obliged to visit repeatedly in the course of each day, and frequently at night.
All cases, both medical and surgical, have my personal attendance. The hospital being almost exclusively surgical, its doors are open at all hours, both day and night, for the reception of cases.	It is my duty to give my own personal attendance to all cases in any of the three institutions named above. It is not my duty to attend to patients at their own houses, but I do so when called on. The poor of Maryborough, and its immediate vicinity, are as well attended to at their own houses as in any district to which a regular dispensary is attached.	Certainly.
A regular registry is kept of all cases, both intern and extern. All the urgent cases were taken into hospital, and the remainder treated as dispensary patients.	No separate register is kept of such cases as are visited at their own houses; a registry is kept of the patients admitted into the infirmary, as well as those receiving medicine and advice as extern patients.	There is a registry kept of all the cases admitted into the infirmary, as well as the extern patients, who get advice and medicine, bandages, &c.
<table><tr><td></td><td>Interns.</td><td>Externs.</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>1833.</td><td>1833.</td></tr><tr><td>On the books</td><td>- 20</td><td>- 3,747</td></tr><tr><td>Admitted</td><td>- 214</td><td>- 2,716</td></tr><tr><td>Cured</td><td>- 140</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Relieved</td><td>- 39</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Died</td><td>- 11</td><td></td></tr></table>		Interns.	Externs.		1833.	1833.	On the books	- 20	- 3,747	Admitted	- 214	- 2,716	Cured	- 140		Relieved	- 39		Died	- 11		<table><tr><td></td><td>Interns.</td><td>Externs.</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>- 693</td><td>- 8,410</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>- 730</td><td>- 8,217</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>- 643</td><td>- 8,261</td></tr></table> Diseases present themselves in endless variety; those resulting from over-exertion, a debilitated condition of the constitution, and privation from the necessities of life, particularly as regards food and clothing, being most prevalent.		Interns.	Externs.	1831	- 693	- 8,410	1832	- 730	- 8,217	1833	- 643	- 8,261	By the end of this year there will be above 1,000 intern patients, and 10,160 extern patients, relieved at the infirmary. Diseases, generally inflammatory, with many cases of liver disease, dropsy, and rheumatism.
	Interns.	Externs.
	1833.	1833.
On the books	- 20	- 3,747
Admitted	- 214	- 2,716
Cured	- 140
Relieved	- 39
Died	- 11
	Interns.	Externs.
1831	- 693	- 8,410
1832	- 730	- 8,217
1833	- 643	- 8,261
Yes, owing to the carelessness of governors and subscribers giving tickets of admission to individuals who should not receive such gratuitous assistance.	Frequent, and occasionally very gross impositions are practised upon the charity, which can only be prevented by a due degree of circumspection on the part of the governors, as to the persons whom they may recommend. I do not, however, think that this infirmary suffers on the whole from this cause, more than other similar institutions with which I am acquainted.	Such persons are sometimes recommended for relief; when it is discovered they are remonstrated with, with the view of preventing a recurrence of it.
I give an order for medicine, when required, and it is supplied by Messrs. Boileau & George, Bridestreet, Dublin.	The medicines are procured from Boileau & George, of Dublin, and compounded at the infirmary.	They are purchased by the governors from a druggist in Dublin.
<table><tr><td></td><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1830</td><td>- £. 682 12 0½</td><td>£. 659 12 7½</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>- 747 8 2½</td><td>722 1 0½</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>- 775 18 2</td><td>697 6 11½</td></tr></table>		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1830	- £. 682 12 0½	£. 659 12 7½	1831	- 747 8 2½	722 1 0½	1832	- 775 18 2	697 6 11½	<table><tr><td></td><td>Receipt.</td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td><td>1833.</td></tr><tr><td>Balance</td><td>- £. 382 19 1</td><td>352 9 3</td><td>364 19 2</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Government Grant</td><td>- 89 1 9</td><td>89 1 9</td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Presentment</td><td>- 553 16 11</td><td>553 16 11</td><td>553 16 11</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Subscriptions & Donations</td><td>- 267 7 9½</td><td>302 1 9</td><td>280 10 3</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Petty Session Fines</td><td>- 127 7 5½</td><td>99 18 4</td><td>102 8 9</td><td></td></tr><tr><td></td><td>£. 1,420 13 0</td><td>1,397 8 0</td><td>1,304 15 1</td><td></td></tr><tr><td></td><td>Expenditure.</td><td></td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>-</td><td>£. 1,068 4 7</td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>-</td><td>1,032 8 10</td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>-</td><td>1,096 15 10</td><td></td><td></td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.—Provisions, Medicines, Salaries and Wages, Furniture and Repairs, Fuel, Soap and Candles, Clothing, Rent and Taxes, Stationary, Stamps, and Contingencies.		Receipt.	1831.	1832.	1833.	Balance	- £. 382 19 1	352 9 3	364 19 2		Government Grant	- 89 1 9	89 1 9			Presentment	- 553 16 11	553 16 11	553 16 11		Subscriptions & Donations	- 267 7 9½	302 1 9	280 10 3		Petty Session Fines	- 127 7 5½	99 18 4	102 8 9			£. 1,420 13 0	1,397 8 0	1,304 15 1			Expenditure.				1831	-	£. 1,068 4 7			1832	-	1,032 8 10			1833	-	1,096 15 10			<table><tr><td></td><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1830</td><td>- £. 618 8 4</td><td>£. 524 17 7</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>- 115 10 0</td><td>1,000 7 10</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>- 984 7 2</td><td>871 5 2½</td></tr></table> There was some building and repairs the last two years.		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1830	- £. 618 8 4	£. 524 17 7	1831	- 115 10 0	1,000 7 10	1832	- 984 7 2	871 5 2½
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1830	- £. 682 12 0½	£. 659 12 7½
1831	- 747 8 2½	722 1 0½
1832	- 775 18 2	697 6 11½
	Receipt.	1831.	1832.	1833.
Balance	- £. 382 19 1	352 9 3	364 19 2
Government Grant	- 89 1 9	89 1 9
Presentment	- 553 16 11	553 16 11	553 16 11
Subscriptions & Donations	- 267 7 9½	302 1 9	280 10 3
Petty Session Fines	- 127 7 5½	99 18 4	102 8 9
	£. 1,420 13 0	1,397 8 0	1,304 15 1
	Expenditure.
1831	-	£. 1,068 4 7
1832	-	1,032 8 10
1833	-	1,096 15 10
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1830	- £. 618 8 4	£. 524 17 7
1831	- 115 10 0	1,000 7 10
1832	- 984 7 2	871 5 2½
By presentment from this county only; by subscriptions and donations.	It is supported principally by presentments, also by voluntary contributions, and by fines imposed by magistrates, &c. for certain offences.	By presentments, subscriptions, donations and fines.
I do not think that any hospital can be better regulated than this is, in regard to the distribution of the funds. The only want is, there are not funds enough. If about thirty patients could be accommodated (and there is room enough), I believe that all urgent cases suited to the hospital could be admitted, and the most perfect satisfaction given. At present I am sometimes obliged to refuse admission to those who ought to be received.	I cannot suggest any improvement in the distribution of the funds from which the infirmary is supported. The most rigid economy is observed in every department, as the means at the disposal of the committee are utterly inadequate to the support of the institution, in the full and efficient operation of which it is capable. By the printed reports sent to the commissioners, it will appear that a large number of fit objects are annually refused admission into our infirmary, solely in consequence of insufficiency of funds for their support. The institution is at this moment involved in debt, and the committee have been reluctantly obliged to reduce the number of patients, which have been occasionally as high as 50 to 28. It would be very desirable if it were made imperative on grand juries to present for the full amount which might be necessary to keep these institutions in the fullest operation that the wants of the district might render necessary.	I cannot.

LEINSTER—WEXFORD—WICKLOW.

County Wexford Infirmary.	County Wicklow Infirmary, No. 1.	County Wicklow Infirmary, No. 2. (at Baltinglass.)
J. R. Crane, Esq., M.D.	William Hamilton, Esq., M.D.	N. W. Heath, Esq., Licen. Surgeon.
The County of Wexford Infirmary; established in the year 1769.	Wicklow County Infirmary, No. 1, there being a second County Infirmary, at Baltinglass, which is distant 28 miles.	Second County Wicklow Infirmary. I also attend the Stratford-on-Slaney Fever Hospital. They have been many years established. See Reply to Query No. 1, on the subject of the Stratford-on-Slaney Fever Hospital.
It is the infirmary for the county sick poor.	Wicklow Infirmary receives patients from every part of the county, except the neighbourhood of the second County Infirmary.	Six; in the county of Wicklow, and a small portion of Kildare.
There is a large Fever Hospital in Wexford, a Fever Hospital and Dispensary at Enniscorthy, ten miles; the same at Oulart, ten miles; a Dispensary at Broadway, seven miles; at Bridgetown, eight miles; at Taghmon, seven miles; at Castlebridge, two and a half miles; at Kyle, four miles; at Screene, three and a half miles.	There is a dispensary and fever hospital at Newtown, within eight miles; and a dispensary at Rathdrum, also distant eight miles.	There are three dispensaries in the barony of Talbotstown, in the county of Wicklow, besides those attached to the infirmary and fever hospital; viz. at Blessington, Dunlavin and Kiltegan. There are also dispensaries at Hacketstown, Balitore and Castledermot.
There is a dispensary attached to the infirmary, at which the sick poor receive advice and medicine twice a week. I have no additional salary for this duty.	There is a dispensary attached to Wicklow County Infirmary, but no emolument is derived from it by the medical attendant.	There is a dispensary attached to the infirmary, where the poor get advice and medicine; and all sudden accidents are admitted at the infirmary, without any recommendation from a governor.
I attend and perform all the medical and surgical duties of the County Infirmary, Gaol and Lunatic Asylum, all within half a mile of my house, and requiring very close attendance. I visit the infirmary twice a day, the gaol once in general. I have no salary but from the infirmary, amounting to 183 l. 6 s. 8 d. , which is the salary of all county infirmary surgeons.	I attend the Wicklow Infirmary and Dispensary attached to it only: the former daily, the latter three times a week; and for attending the infirmary I receive 89 l. 1 s. 8 d. per annum.	I attend the Second County Infirmary and the Fever Hospital in Stratford-on-Slaney; the distance from one to the other is four British miles, and I reside between them. The salary of the infirmary is 100 l. Irish, out of which is paid 20 l. rent for infirmary and house, in which a matron resides - - - - - £. 73 16 11 For Fever Hospital and Dispensaries - - - 55 7 8 TOTAL SALARIES - - - £. 129 4 7
I do certainly, at the infirmary, gaol or lunatic asylum, not elsewhere.	Receiving no emolument for attending the dispensary, I do not conceive it my duty, nor is it expected that I should do so; but humanity compels me, and the other medical men here, to give daily attendance on the poor.	Yes; and to visit when a recommendation on a ticket, according to rule, is sent from a governor. The rules require two days' attendance at Baltinglass, and two at Stratford, in the week; but advice and medicine are daily given to all poor who apply. The infirmary and fever hospital are visited daily.
An exact register of the cases of intern patients, and of the number of externs, is kept by me, since my appointment in February last. The same was done by my predecessor, Dr. Archer.	A register of the Interns, how disposed of, &c. is kept. Of the Externs, a list merely setting forth their numbers.	There is a reglster kept of all cases admitted to the infirmary and fever hospital, and the number of extern cases who receive advice and medicine.
Interns, 1832. Admitted, 312; Cured, 210; Relieved, 41; Died, 16; Incurable, 7; Dismissed, 4; Remaining, 34. Externs, 1,984*. * The exact result it is impossible to know. All diseases, except those of a contagious nature, are admitted.	Interns. 1830 -- 128 1831 -- 114 1832 -- 142. Externs. 1830, 2,000 1831-32, about the same number. The majority of dispensary patients labour under dyspepsia, bowel and cutaneous complaints. Interns are accidents, ulcers and a variety of acute and chronic diseases. N.B. No extern patient's name is twice registered in the same year.	1831 - - - - - 1,240 1832 - - - - - 1,055 1833 - - - - - 1,388 A great number of these cases were different modifications of dyspepsia, and diseases of the chylopoetic viscera. The rest, the common affections generally attending our species; then accidents, sores, &c. &c.
It does not.	Sometimes it does occur, but rarely.	Not often. The district is poor; the village of Stratford-on-Slaney miserably so, and Baltinglass not much better.
The medicines are supplied by a druggist in Dublin.	By Boileau & George, druggists, in Dublin, and are compounded by the apothecary of the hospital.	By an apothecary, Mr. Johnson, Baltinglass.
<table><tr><td rowspan="2">Receipt.</td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td></tr><tr><td>Balance - - - £. 346 0 4$\frac{1}{2}$</td><td>£. 341 0 3$\frac{1}{2}$</td></tr><tr><td>Parliamentary Grant - - -</td><td>89 1 9</td><td>89 1 9</td></tr><tr><td>Presentment - - -</td><td>600 0 0</td><td>600 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Subscriptions - - -</td><td>160 0 6</td><td>214 16 0</td></tr><tr><td>Proceeds of Ball - - -</td><td>41 12 6</td><td>23 5 7</td></tr><tr><td>Petty Session Fines - - -</td><td>19 10 0</td><td>14 2 9</td></tr><tr><td>Interest on Bequests - - -</td><td>27 8 3</td><td>27 8 3</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>£. 1,283 5 4$\frac{1}{2}$</td><td>1,309 14 7$\frac{1}{2}$</td></tr></table> <table><tr><td rowspan="2">Expenditure.</td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td></tr><tr><td>Salaries - - - £. 194 1 9</td><td>£. 196 7 9</td></tr><tr><td>Medicines - - -</td><td>97 0 7</td><td>180 7 10</td></tr><tr><td>Provisions, Coals, &c. - - -</td><td>554 7 0$\frac{1}{2}$</td><td>597 7 2</td></tr><tr><td>Furniture - - -</td><td>73 0 1$\frac{1}{2}$</td><td>107 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Sundries - - -</td><td>24 3 7</td><td>9 0 8</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>£. 942 13 1</td><td>1,090 3 5</td></tr></table>	Receipt.	1831.	1832.	Balance - - - £. 346 0 4 $\frac{1}{2}$	£. 341 0 3 $\frac{1}{2}$	Parliamentary Grant - - -	89 1 9	89 1 9	Presentment - - -	600 0 0	600 0 0	Subscriptions - - -	160 0 6	214 16 0	Proceeds of Ball - - -	41 12 6	23 5 7	Petty Session Fines - - -	19 10 0	14 2 9	Interest on Bequests - - -	27 8 3	27 8 3		£. 1,283 5 4 $\frac{1}{2}$	1,309 14 7 $\frac{1}{2}$	Expenditure.	1831.	1832.	Salaries - - - £. 194 1 9	£. 196 7 9	Medicines - - -	97 0 7	180 7 10	Provisions, Coals, &c. - - -	554 7 0 $\frac{1}{2}$	597 7 2	Furniture - - -	73 0 1 $\frac{1}{2}$	107 0 0	Sundries - - -	24 3 7	9 0 8		£. 942 13 1	1,090 3 5	<table><tr><td rowspan="2">Receipt.</td><td rowspan="2">Expenditure.</td><td colspan="3">GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.</td></tr><tr><td>1830.</td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>£. 520 18 9</td><td>£. 520 18 9</td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>- 661 16 1</td><td>661 16 1</td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>- 700 13 5$\frac{1}{2}$</td><td>700 13 5$\frac{1}{2}$</td><td></td><td></td></tr></table> It is to be noticed, that half the county presentment for each year, is paid to the treasurer of the Baltinglass Infirmary, and is included in the receipts specified above. <table><tr><td>Provisions - - -</td><td>£. 72 6 10</td><td>£. 68 8 11$\frac{1}{2}$</td><td>£. 61 5 5</td></tr><tr><td>Medicines and Wine - - -</td><td>22 3 5</td><td>34 3 3</td><td>42 1 7</td></tr><tr><td>Rent, Salaries and Insurance - - -</td><td>109 10 10$\frac{1}{2}$</td><td>109 10 10</td><td>109 4 10</td></tr><tr><td>Half a year's Arrears - - -</td><td>- - -</td><td>46 3 0</td><td>- - -</td></tr><tr><td>Fuel, Repairs and Sundries - - -</td><td>42 11 9$\frac{1}{2}$</td><td>37 7 11$\frac{1}{2}$</td><td>59 14 6</td></tr></table>	Receipt.	Expenditure.	GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.			1830.	1831.	1832.	1831	£. 520 18 9	£. 520 18 9			1832	- 661 16 1	661 16 1			1833	- 700 13 5 $\frac{1}{2}$	700 13 5 $\frac{1}{2}$			Provisions - - -	£. 72 6 10	£. 68 8 11 $\frac{1}{2}$	£. 61 5 5	Medicines and Wine - - -	22 3 5	34 3 3	42 1 7	Rent, Salaries and Insurance - - -	109 10 10 $\frac{1}{2}$	109 10 10	109 4 10	Half a year's Arrears - - -	- - -	46 3 0	- - -	Fuel, Repairs and Sundries - - -	42 11 9 $\frac{1}{2}$	37 7 11 $\frac{1}{2}$	59 14 6	<table><tr><td rowspan="2">Receipt.</td><td rowspan="2">Expenditure.</td><td colspan="3">GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.</td></tr><tr><td>1830.</td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td></tr><tr><td>1830</td><td>- £. 319 8 3$\frac{1}{2}$</td><td>£. 246 12 11</td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>- - 327 8 0</td><td>295 14 0</td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>- - 322 19 10</td><td>272 6 4</td><td></td><td></td></tr></table>	Receipt.	Expenditure.	GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.			1830.	1831.	1832.	1830	- £. 319 8 3 $\frac{1}{2}$	£. 246 12 11			1831	- - 327 8 0	295 14 0			1832	- - 322 19 10	272 6 4
Receipt.		1831.	1832.
	Balance - - - £. 346 0 4 $\frac{1}{2}$	£. 341 0 3 $\frac{1}{2}$
Parliamentary Grant - - -	89 1 9	89 1 9
Presentment - - -	600 0 0	600 0 0
Subscriptions - - -	160 0 6	214 16 0
Proceeds of Ball - - -	41 12 6	23 5 7
Petty Session Fines - - -	19 10 0	14 2 9
Interest on Bequests - - -	27 8 3	27 8 3
	£. 1,283 5 4 $\frac{1}{2}$	1,309 14 7 $\frac{1}{2}$
Expenditure.	1831.	1832.
	Salaries - - - £. 194 1 9	£. 196 7 9
Medicines - - -	97 0 7	180 7 10
Provisions, Coals, &c. - - -	554 7 0 $\frac{1}{2}$	597 7 2
Furniture - - -	73 0 1 $\frac{1}{2}$	107 0 0
Sundries - - -	24 3 7	9 0 8
	£. 942 13 1	1,090 3 5
Receipt.	Expenditure.	GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.
		1830.	1831.	1832.
1831	£. 520 18 9	£. 520 18 9
1832	- 661 16 1	661 16 1
1833	- 700 13 5 $\frac{1}{2}$	700 13 5 $\frac{1}{2}$
Provisions - - -	£. 72 6 10	£. 68 8 11 $\frac{1}{2}$	£. 61 5 5
Medicines and Wine - - -	22 3 5	34 3 3	42 1 7
Rent, Salaries and Insurance - - -	109 10 10 $\frac{1}{2}$	109 10 10	109 4 10
Half a year's Arrears - - -	- - -	46 3 0	- - -
Fuel, Repairs and Sundries - - -	42 11 9 $\frac{1}{2}$	37 7 11 $\frac{1}{2}$	59 14 6
Receipt.	Expenditure.	GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.
		1830.	1831.	1832.
1830	- £. 319 8 3 $\frac{1}{2}$	£. 246 12 11
1831	- - 327 8 0	295 14 0
1832	- - 322 19 10	272 6 4
It is supported by grand jury presentments, by donations and subscriptions.	By presentments obtained from the county of Wicklow alone, by interest on Government Stock, by donations, subscriptions, fines from petty sessions, and Parliamentary grant of 89 l. 1 s. 10 d. annually.	By subscriptions and presentments from the grand jury of Wicklow only. The jury present 552 l. 10 s. 11 d. annually, to be divided between the infirmary at Wicklow and that in Baltinglass; viz. 276 l. 5 s. 5 $\frac{1}{2}$ d. to each.
Very considerable improvements have been made, and are making, in the distribution of the funds, and the general management of the infirmary. In proof of which, I beg leave to enclose a copy of a resolution passed at the general quarterly meeting of the governors, held last August. The Wexford Infirmary has been lately visited by Mr. Porter, a member of the Court of Censors of the Royal College of Surgeons in Ireland, and reported by him to be the best conducted County Infirmary which he hadseen in Ireland.	The funds are not more than sufficient to meet the present expenditure; but a nourishment dispensary attached to the hospital for extern patients would be most useful, and is highly desirable.	I believe the funds are carefully and judiciously applied.

MUNSTER—CLARE—CITY OF CORK.

County Clare Infirmary.	North Infirmary.	South Infirmary.
George W. O'Brien, Esq., M. D.	Treasurer and Medical Attendants.	John Woodroffe, Esq., M.D.
The County of Clare Infirmary; established about 40 years.	North Charitable Infirmary.	The South Infirmary.
The whole county.	A great number; every sick pauper applying at the North Infirmary is relieved, without considering from what part of the country he comes; nearly one half of the intern patients are from the county of Cork, which does not contribute in any way to the support of the charity.	The hospital is open for the reception of patients from all cities, counties, and indeed countries.
The fever hospital at Ennis; the dispensaries at Clare, Newmarket-on-Fergus, Quinn, Tulla, Crusheen, Corofin, Ballynacally.	Several dispensaries; the South Infirmary and Fever Hospital.	In the city of Cork there is another infirmary, on the plan of the South Infirmary (the North Infirmary), a fever hospital, a dispensary, a Lying-in Hospital and a Foundling Hospital.
There is one attached to the infirmary. The salary of surgeon to the infirmary is, 184 l. per annum.	A dispensary for out-patients is attached to the infirmary. Two physicians, at 20 l. late currency per year each, and one surgeon, at the same salary; the second surgeon attends gratis.	There is no dispensary attached to the infirmary, but the physicians and surgeons have never yet received any salary or recompense whatever for their daily attendance upon it or the infirmary.
I do not. My attendance to the patients in the infirmary is every day. The extern patients are attended three times a week.	The medical gentlemen of this infirmary do not attend any other hospital.	The physicians and surgeons of the South Infirmary attend daily, are not connected with any other institutions, and receive no salary whatever for their services.
I do, when the patients present themselves at the hospital.	On all necessary occasions.	The medical officers do consider it their duty to give their personal attendance in all cases requiring such.
There is.	A regular registry of all patients, both intern and extern, with the result of each case, kept in the hospital.	A register of all cases is regularly kept.
<table><tr><td></td><td>Interns.</td><td>Externs.</td></tr><tr><td>1830</td><td>548</td><td>5,943</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>591</td><td>6,477</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>543</td><td>4,883</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>1,658</td><td>17,303</td></tr></table>		Interns.	Externs.	1830	548	5,943	1831	591	6,477	1832	543	4,883		1,658	17,303	<table><tr><td>Interns.</td><td>Externs.</td></tr><tr><td>553</td><td>28,026</td></tr></table> During six months of this period the North Infirmary was occupied as a cholera hospital.	Interns.	Externs.	553	28,026	The diseases treated include all medical and surgical cases, with the exception of contagious fever and cholera; the number relieved for the last two years amounts to— <table><tr><td></td><td>Interns.</td><td>Externs.</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>261</td><td>9,814</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>336</td><td>10,009</td></tr></table>		Interns.	Externs.	1831	261	9,814	1832	336	10,009
	Interns.	Externs.
1830	548	5,943
1831	591	6,477
1832	543	4,883
	1,658	17,303
Interns.	Externs.
553	28,026
	Interns.	Externs.
1831	261	9,814
1832	336	10,009
It does sometimes unavoidably, though not very often.	No instance of the kind has been known ever to occur.	I think not.
Messrs. P. A. & C. Leslie, Bride-street, Dublin.	At wholesale prices, by William Gosnell & Son, druggists.	By contract yearly.
<table><tr><td></td><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1830</td><td>£. 904 10 0$\frac{3}{4}$</td><td>£. 699 10 4$\frac{3}{4}$</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>935 3 2$\frac{3}{4}$</td><td>724 19 4$\frac{3}{4}$</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>862 5 2$\frac{3}{4}$</td><td>688 18 4$\frac{1}{2}$</td></tr></table>		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1830	£. 904 10 0 $\frac{3}{4}$	£. 699 10 4 $\frac{3}{4}$	1831	935 3 2 $\frac{3}{4}$	724 19 4 $\frac{3}{4}$	1832	862 5 2 $\frac{3}{4}$	688 18 4 $\frac{1}{2}$	<table><tr><td></td><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1830</td><td>£. 534 13 5$\frac{1}{2}$</td><td>£. 695 3 2$\frac{1}{2}$</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>529 4 5$\frac{1}{2}$</td><td>674 11 8$\frac{3}{4}$</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>1,045 9 3</td><td>483 14 8</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. Provisions, medicines, wine and groceries, soap, candles, coal and lard, furniture and repairs, incidents, law expenses, &c., salaries and wages.		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1830	£. 534 13 5 $\frac{1}{2}$	£. 695 3 2 $\frac{1}{2}$	1831	529 4 5 $\frac{1}{2}$	674 11 8 $\frac{3}{4}$	1832	1,045 9 3	483 14 8	<table><tr><td></td><td>1832.</td></tr><tr><td>Balance</td><td>£. 83 18 7$\frac{1}{2}$</td></tr><tr><td>Parliamentary Grant</td><td>44 16 3</td></tr><tr><td>Presentment</td><td>230 15 4</td></tr><tr><td>Subscriptions</td><td>233 17 4$\frac{1}{2}$</td></tr><tr><td>Bequests</td><td>517 5 11</td></tr><tr><td>Medicine sold</td><td>100 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Rents received</td><td>33 4 8</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>£. 1,243 18 2</td></tr><tr><td>Provisions</td><td>£. 211 5 3</td></tr><tr><td>Medicines, Groceries, &c.</td><td>242 11 10$\frac{1}{2}$</td></tr><tr><td>Salaries and Wages</td><td>146 7 6</td></tr><tr><td>Coal, Soap, &c.</td><td>92 4 9$\frac{1}{2}$</td></tr><tr><td>Books, Printing, &c.</td><td>9 4 2</td></tr><tr><td>Rent, repairs, &c.</td><td>36 12 5</td></tr><tr><td>Furniture, Coffins, &c.</td><td>54 8 0$\frac{1}{2}$</td></tr></table>		1832.	Balance	£. 83 18 7 $\frac{1}{2}$	Parliamentary Grant	44 16 3	Presentment	230 15 4	Subscriptions	233 17 4 $\frac{1}{2}$	Bequests	517 5 11	Medicine sold	100 0 0	Rents received	33 4 8		£. 1,243 18 2	Provisions	£. 211 5 3	Medicines, Groceries, &c.	242 11 10 $\frac{1}{2}$	Salaries and Wages	146 7 6	Coal, Soap, &c.	92 4 9 $\frac{1}{2}$	Books, Printing, &c.	9 4 2	Rent, repairs, &c.	36 12 5	Furniture, Coffins, &c.	54 8 0 $\frac{1}{2}$
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1830	£. 904 10 0 $\frac{3}{4}$	£. 699 10 4 $\frac{3}{4}$
1831	935 3 2 $\frac{3}{4}$	724 19 4 $\frac{3}{4}$
1832	862 5 2 $\frac{3}{4}$	688 18 4 $\frac{1}{2}$
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1830	£. 534 13 5 $\frac{1}{2}$	£. 695 3 2 $\frac{1}{2}$
1831	529 4 5 $\frac{1}{2}$	674 11 8 $\frac{3}{4}$
1832	1,045 9 3	483 14 8
	1832.
Balance	£. 83 18 7 $\frac{1}{2}$
Parliamentary Grant	44 16 3
Presentment	230 15 4
Subscriptions	233 17 4 $\frac{1}{2}$
Bequests	517 5 11
Medicine sold	100 0 0
Rents received	33 4 8
	£. 1,243 18 2
Provisions	£. 211 5 3
Medicines, Groceries, &c.	242 11 10 $\frac{1}{2}$
Salaries and Wages	146 7 6
Coal, Soap, &c.	92 4 9 $\frac{1}{2}$
Books, Printing, &c.	9 4 2
Rent, repairs, &c.	36 12 5
Furniture, Coffins, &c.	54 8 0 $\frac{1}{2}$
By a Government grant, by presentment from the county grand jury, by private subscriptions, and by fines inflicted at petty sessions.	Grand jury presentments from the city grand jury, subscriptions, donations, and a Parliamentary grant of 50 l. late currency yearly.	It receives 230 l. presented by the city grand jury, and 44 l. 16 s. 3 d. from the Treasury yearly; its other funds arise from voluntary contributions.
The only improvement which I can suggest, is to have a few additional beds in the hospital for the reception of lying-in patients; it would not be much expense to the establishment, and would save the lives of many poor people.	The North Infirmary is at present being rebuilt, so as to afford accommodation for 100 patients; the present revenue of the charity will be totally inadequate to maintain any thing like this number of beds, whilst the demands of the sick poor are constantly on the increase. In a large community like the city of Cork, there cannot be a more efficient means of arresting the progress of pauperism, than providing proper and adequate hospital accommodation for the poor; because the assistance afforded by a dispensary cannot relieve the poor from the heavy expenditure attendant upon sickness; the necessity of not leaving an indispensable establishment, such as the North Infirmary, dependent upon the fluctuating and precarious support of voluntary contributions, but to provide from the public revenues, so as to enable the governors to maintain it upon a scale of the most extended and real usefulness.	The funds are admirably applied, but totally unequal to meet the wants of the diseased poor; in fact there is not the means of supporting one tenth of the number applying for and who ought to receive hospital accommodation.

MUNSTER—CORK—KERRY—LIMERICK.

County Cork Infirmary.	County Kerry Infirmary.	City of Limerick Infirmary and Barrington's Hospital.
St. John Galway, Esq., M. D.		Medical Attendants.
The County Infirmary at Mallow.	The County Infirmary, also the hospital attached to the gaol for prisoners.	Barrington's Hospital and City of Limerick Infirmary, established in the year 1831.
	All in the same county.	All those of the City and Liberties, four miles in circumference, containing a population of over 70,000.
Glauntane, Ballyclough, Castletown-Roche, Doneraile, Buttevant, Kildorrery, Whitechurch, Glanworth, Kanturk, Donoughmore, all within 10 miles, or much less, of this place.	There are five dispensaries and one fever hospital within ten miles.	There are no other public dispensaries in the City or Liberties.
The extern patients treated at this infirmary partake, in some measure, of the character of dispensary patients. There is a fever hospital on a small scale, and without an expensive staff, in the town, besides dispensaries.	Medicine is provided for external patients at the County Infirmary, by the surgeon of the infirmary.	One city dispensary contiguous to, but not at present attached to the hospital, at which dispensary the poor receive medicine, and occasionally advice. No salary to medical attendants. There are no other public dispensaries.
I attend no other charitable institution.	I attend but one hospital with the gaol, which is near a mile distant from my residence. The infirmary is daily visited, often twice in the day; the gaol twice in the week, and oftener if necessary. The salary is limited by Act of Parliament.	Some of the City Infirmary medical attendants attend other public institutions within the city.
Yes, I am bound to personal attendance.	I do in all cases consider it my duty.	At all times, particularly in accidents or serious cases, on their admission into hospital.
An accurate register is kept of all cases treated in or through this establishment, but we have no record of the applicants whom, for want of room or funds, we are obliged to refuse admission to.	A regular register is kept of all cases under treatment, and letters recommendatory regularly filed.	In every instance.
<table><tr><td>Interns.</td><td>Externs.</td></tr><tr><td>1830 - 326</td><td>2,370</td></tr><tr><td>1831 - 316</td><td>2,240</td></tr><tr><td>1832 - 291</td><td>2,321</td></tr></table>	Interns.	Externs.	1830 - 326	2,370	1831 - 316	2,240	1832 - 291	2,321	The number of internal patients vary on the average from 250 to 300 every year. The external patients average from 1,900 to 2,000 every year. Surgical diseases of all denominations, and some acute diseases.	377 Interns; 4,945 Externs. Cholera patients, [1832,] 1,537. Medical and surgical diseases, not infectious, including all severe accidents, dropsies, rheumatism, hepatic and visceral derangements, chest affections, ophthalmia, erysipelas, &c.
Interns.	Externs.
1830 - 326	2,370
1831 - 316	2,240
1832 - 291	2,321
The practice of a job will sometimes be attempted with success, but certainly such instances must be regarded as exceptions that strengthen a rule.	It very seldom occurs, and if detected, are obliged to pay for medicine.	This would be contrary to the bye-laws of the hospital.
The medicines are purchased from a wholesale dealer, and compounded in the house by an apothecary, at a fixed salary.	The medicine is supplied by a druggist, from the general fund for support of the hospital, and is compounded by an apothecary at the hospital.	By a druggist, on the order of the committee, certified by the medical attendants.
<table><tr><td colspan="2">Receipt.</td><td colspan="2">Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1830 - £. 541 15 8½</td><td></td><td>£. 554 12 0½</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>1831 - 652 3 10½</td><td></td><td>600 14 7</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>1832 - 568 3 6½</td><td></td><td>554 19 8½</td><td></td></tr><tr><td colspan="4">GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.</td></tr><tr><td colspan="2">1830.</td><td colspan="2">1831.</td></tr><tr><td>Provisions - £. 169 11 11</td><td>176 15 9½</td><td>167 19 6</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Medicines - 162 16 8</td><td>165 17 4</td><td>159 11 10</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Fuel, Soap and Candles - 28 13 0</td><td>35 18 5½</td><td>23 16 6</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Furniture and Repairs - 43 14 5</td><td>22 18 4</td><td>8 14 2</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Contingencies - 14 10 2</td><td>4 6 6½</td><td>4 4 9½</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Salaries and Wages 135 5 10½</td><td>145 5 10½</td><td>145 5 10½</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Building and Repairs - - - -</td><td>44 15 3</td><td>33 18 11½</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Surgical Instruments - -</td><td>4 17 0</td><td>1 8 1½</td><td></td></tr></table>	Receipt.		Expenditure.		1830 - £. 541 15 8½		£. 554 12 0½		1831 - 652 3 10½		600 14 7		1832 - 568 3 6½		554 19 8½		GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.				1830.		1831.		Provisions - £. 169 11 11	176 15 9½	167 19 6		Medicines - 162 16 8	165 17 4	159 11 10		Fuel, Soap and Candles - 28 13 0	35 18 5½	23 16 6		Furniture and Repairs - 43 14 5	22 18 4	8 14 2		Contingencies - 14 10 2	4 6 6½	4 4 9½		Salaries and Wages 135 5 10½	145 5 10½	145 5 10½		Building and Repairs - - - -	44 15 3	33 18 11½		Surgical Instruments - -	4 17 0	1 8 1½		The yearly receipt is about 500 l. granted by presentment; the expenditure amounts to the same; comprising, support of patients, food, medicine and other necessities, wages of servants and rent of the building.	Receipt, £. 899 14 11½ Expenditure, 879 19 11½ GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE. General Hospital Furniture - £. 218 16 1 Additions and Alterations, &c. 74 8 9 Surgical Instruments - 95 17 9 Medicines - 58 0 0 Provisions, Coals and Candles - 124 18 5½ Salaries and Wages - 269 3 0 Incidentals - 38 15 10 Balance in Bank - 19 15 0 TOTAL - £. 899 14 11½
Receipt.		Expenditure.
1830 - £. 541 15 8½		£. 554 12 0½
1831 - 652 3 10½		600 14 7
1832 - 568 3 6½		554 19 8½
GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.
1830.		1831.
Provisions - £. 169 11 11	176 15 9½	167 19 6
Medicines - 162 16 8	165 17 4	159 11 10
Fuel, Soap and Candles - 28 13 0	35 18 5½	23 16 6
Furniture and Repairs - 43 14 5	22 18 4	8 14 2
Contingencies - 14 10 2	4 6 6½	4 4 9½
Salaries and Wages 135 5 10½	145 5 10½	145 5 10½
Building and Repairs - - - -	44 15 3	33 18 11½
Surgical Instruments - -	4 17 0	1 8 1½
Supported by presentments and voluntary contributions. The presentments do not amount to the sum grand juries are vested with the power of providing. No motive has been assigned for withholding the supply. The funds are unequal to half the demands of the poor, and I am sure that no imputation has been, or can be, thrown on the management.	By presentments from one county.	By fines imposed by summary convictions before magistrates at petty sessions; by Government grant of 100 l. late currency. No grand jury presentment has as yet been looked for, as the governors heretofore have had funds enough by the aforesaid incomes, with voluntary subscriptions and donations, to support its present limited and small number of beds, viz. 35.
I have nothing to do with the economy of this infirmary, but I can assert that the money management approaches very nearly to perfection, and is deserving of imitation.	I cannot suggest any; the funds are very limited and most judiciously expended.	Most certainly; the funds to all charitable institutions ought in the first instance to be advanced, under proper restrictions, by the Treasury and Government. The accounts and expenditure, after having undergone inspection, and being certified by Government officers, and audited, ought then be made compulsory, and grand juries to present said sum to be repaid to the Treasury, as in the case of the Lunatic Asylum, &c.

MUNSTER—LIMERICK—TIPPERARY.						ULSTER—ANTRIM.
County Limerick Infirmary.			County Tipperary Infirmary.			County Antrim Infirmary.
Mr. J. Sands, Apothecary.			Charles Vaughan, Esq., M.D.			Wm. Stewart, Esq., M.D.
County of Limerick Infirmary.			The County of Tipperary Infirmary.			The County of Antrim Infirmary; established in the year 1766, for admission of patients, and the distribution of medicine, and giving advice to externs.
			The district includes the whole county.			The whole county send interns. Externs come from eight or nine parishes in this county; but many from the adjoining counties of Down and Armagh.
City Dispensary, Barrington's Fever and Lying-in Hospitals, and about twelve dispensaries.			There are dispensaries at Fethard, Cahir, Thurles, Tipperary, Lyttleton, Poulnamucka and Dundrum.			In Belfast there is a fever hospital and dispensary attached; as also a second dispensary, established at first for diseases of the eye, and children. The only medical officer paid is the house apothecary to the former; salary, 60 l. a year, and rooms.
None.			A very extensive dispensary is attached to the infirmary.			See preceding Answer.
			I do not. Lisburn, as also the cholera one when open. I receive the Treasury allowance of 100 l. late currency, with deductions, as also the grand jury presentment of 92 l. 6 s. 2 d. annually. We attend daily at the hospital, and on Fridays and Saturdays for externs. The fever and cholera hospitals, when required, and no salary except those specified. I allow Dr. Thompson 50 l. a year.			I do not attend any but the hospital. My assistant, Dr. Thompson, attends the fever hospital in
			It is my duty to attend to the patients in the infirmary at all times; it is also my duty to prescribe for the extern patients twice a week, and I visit the poor in the town of Cashel whenever called upon.			Not imperative, except at the hospital; but we visit occasionally in the town of Lisburn.
			There is.			A daily entrance of patients, date, disease, governors' recommendation for interns or externs. The result constantly noted of cures, deaths, &c.
<table><tr><td></td><td>Remaining.</td><td>Admitted.</td><td>Cured.</td><td>Dismissed.</td><td>Died.</td></tr><tr><td>1830</td><td>51</td><td>466</td><td>483</td><td>67</td><td>16</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>51</td><td>427</td><td>413</td><td>45</td><td>16</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>46</td><td>502</td><td>344</td><td>131</td><td>17</td></tr></table>				Remaining.	Admitted.	Cured.	Dismissed.	Died.	1830	51	466	483	67	16	1831	51	427	413	45	16	1832	46	502	344	131	17	There were admitted into the infirmary 780 patients, of whom 23 died; the remainder were discharged cured, with the exception of a few incurables or irregulars. The number of externs during this period amounted to 19,019.			Within the last three years, 4,654 patients have been treated at the hospital, 722 of whom were interns. There are no diseases peculiar to the county. We are perfectly exempt from calculous cases in the bladder. All cases requiring operation are taken into the house.
	Remaining.	Admitted.	Cured.	Dismissed.	Died.
1830	51	466	483	67	16
1831	51	427	413	45	16
1832	46	502	344	131	17
Very frequently; the regulations of the hospital, however, tend to prevent this abuse as much as possible.			They do, occasionally.			Many, as externs, and some interns, from accidents, rendering admission necessary; but they occasionally give some remuneration.
Apothecaries' Hall, and sometimes from the Medical Hall, in Limerick.			The medicines are ordered by the surgeon, provided by Messrs. Boileau & George, druggists, in Dublin, and the invoices are laid before the governors and examined by them.			By a druggist, and compounded by a house apothecary, who has a salary of 30 l. late currency annually.
<table><tr><td></td><td colspan="2">Receipt.</td><td colspan="2">Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>£. 788 16 8</td><td>£. 1,016 0 0½</td><td>1831</td><td>£. 861 2 1</td><td>£. 774 7 8</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>- 1,099 14 9</td><td>927 10 6½</td><td>1832</td><td>- 908 16 1½</td><td>807 17 9½</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>- 972 2 0</td><td>1,086 15 2</td><td>1833</td><td>- 975 0 0</td><td>852 17 10</td></tr></table>				Receipt.		Expenditure.		1831	£. 788 16 8	£. 1,016 0 0½	1831	£. 861 2 1	£. 774 7 8	1832	- 1,099 14 9	927 10 6½	1832	- 908 16 1½	807 17 9½	1833	- 972 2 0	1,086 15 2	1833	- 975 0 0	852 17 10	<table><tr><td></td><td colspan="2">Receipt.</td><td colspan="2">Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>£. 861 2 1</td><td>£. 774 7 8</td><td>1830</td><td>£. 815 8 1</td><td>731 2 3½</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>- 908 16 1½</td><td>807 17 9½</td><td>1831</td><td>- 652 1 5</td><td>700 15 11½</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>- 975 0 0</td><td>852 17 10</td><td>1832</td><td>- 445 8 6</td><td>555 12 0½</td></tr></table>				Receipt.		Expenditure.		1831	£. 861 2 1	£. 774 7 8	1830	£. 815 8 1	731 2 3½	1832	- 908 16 1½	807 17 9½	1831	- 652 1 5	700 15 11½	1833	- 975 0 0	852 17 10	1832	- 445 8 6	555 12 0½	GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.—Provisions, medicines, salaries, furniture, &c.
	Receipt.		Expenditure.
1831	£. 788 16 8	£. 1,016 0 0½	1831	£. 861 2 1	£. 774 7 8
1832	- 1,099 14 9	927 10 6½	1832	- 908 16 1½	807 17 9½
1833	- 972 2 0	1,086 15 2	1833	- 975 0 0	852 17 10
	Receipt.		Expenditure.
1831	£. 861 2 1	£. 774 7 8	1830	£. 815 8 1	731 2 3½
1832	- 908 16 1½	807 17 9½	1831	- 652 1 5	700 15 11½
1833	- 975 0 0	852 17 10	1832	- 445 8 6	555 12 0½
<table><tr><td></td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td><td>1833.</td></tr><tr><td>Provisions</td><td>£. 225 19 3</td><td>356 7 0½</td><td>353 4 5</td></tr><tr><td>Medicines</td><td>- 207 11 3</td><td>51 12 7</td><td>152 2 3½</td></tr><tr><td>Salaries and Wages</td><td>341 8 7</td><td>344 16 4½</td><td>344 16 4</td></tr><tr><td>Contingencies</td><td>- 83 12 2½</td><td>25 14 6</td><td>62 3 1</td></tr><tr><td>Rent and Taxes</td><td>- 28 1 5</td><td>22 16 5</td><td>38 3 3½</td></tr><tr><td>Furniture and Repairs</td><td>- 52 9 1</td><td>42 2 6½</td><td>46 9 1</td></tr><tr><td>Soap, Candles and Fuel</td><td>- 76 18 3</td><td>84 1 1</td><td>89 16 8</td></tr></table>				1831.	1832.	1833.	Provisions	£. 225 19 3	356 7 0½	353 4 5	Medicines	- 207 11 3	51 12 7	152 2 3½	Salaries and Wages	341 8 7	344 16 4½	344 16 4	Contingencies	- 83 12 2½	25 14 6	62 3 1	Rent and Taxes	- 28 1 5	22 16 5	38 3 3½	Furniture and Repairs	- 52 9 1	42 2 6½	46 9 1	Soap, Candles and Fuel	- 76 18 3	84 1 1	89 16 8	It is supported by subscriptions, by presentment on the county Tipperary, and by Parliamentary grant.			By presentments from the county of Antrim and subscription of governors, and occasional fines from petty sessions. Lord Hertford gives 50 l. late currency annually.
	1831.	1832.	1833.
Provisions	£. 225 19 3	356 7 0½	353 4 5
Medicines	- 207 11 3	51 12 7	152 2 3½
Salaries and Wages	341 8 7	344 16 4½	344 16 4
Contingencies	- 83 12 2½	25 14 6	62 3 1
Rent and Taxes	- 28 1 5	22 16 5	38 3 3½
Furniture and Repairs	- 52 9 1	42 2 6½	46 9 1
Soap, Candles and Fuel	- 76 18 3	84 1 1	89 16 8
No.			The funds are managed with the strictest economy, and relief afforded to as many as possible.			The lessening the extern, and increasing the intern establishments, where better food, lodgings, &c. are procured.

ULSTER—ARMAGH—DONEGAL—DOWN.

County Armagh Infirmary.	County Donegal Infirmary.	County Down Infirmary and Dispensary.
A. Robinson, Esq., Surgeon.	A. Gillespey, Esq., Surgeon.	George Buchanan, Esq., M. D.
The Armagh County Infirmary.	Donegal Infirmary, for the reception of poor patients labouring under medical and surgical diseases.	The county of Down Infirmary, with its dispensary attached, established in the year 1774, for the treatment of every description of medical and surgical disease, except fever, cholera or other contagious epidemic.
The district extends over the whole county of Armagh, including, of course, all the parishes in that county; strictly speaking, none other than residents in the county are entitled to relief at it.	All the parishes in said county.	Every parish in the county of Down is entitled to the relief afforded by this institution.
	Clonleigh, Strabane, Ardstraw, Castlederg, Raphoe, Donaghmore, Donaghedy and Taughboyne Dispensaries.	None, except the Downpatrick Fever Hospital and Castlewellan Dispensary.
There are dispensaries, but no other infirmary in the district; adjoining the city of Armagh there is a fever hospital, built and supported by His Grace the Lord Primate; and a cholera hospital at Middleton; there is a fever hospital, built and supported by the Primate and the other trustees of Bishop Sterne's charity.	None. Castlewellan, Newtownbreda, Hollywood, Bangor, all situated in the county of Down, have each dispensaries for their particular surrounding districts; the salaries of the medical attendants fluctuating according to the duties required to be performed by each of them. The county infirmary has a dispensary attached to it, for the relief of the poor generally, from every part of the county, the attendance upon which is considered part of the duty of the surgeon and of the apothecary of the infirmary, and for which neither receive any additional remuneration.	Newry, Warrenpoint, Rathfryland, Banbridge,
The person in charge of the Armagh County Infirmary is also the medical officer of the county gaol, situated in the city of Armagh; his salary, as surgeon of the infirmary, is 139 l. 1 s. 10 d. , and as physician to the gaol, 92 l. 6 s. 2 d.	The county infirmary alone, in which the surgeon is constantly resident. attendance, 23 l. 1 s. 6 d. annually. The fever hospital, which is within two minutes' walk of my residence, I and two other medical gentlemen have undertaken to attend daily without salary. The apothecary of the fever hospital, who is resident in it, receives an annual salary of 20 l.	I attend the county infirmary daily, for which I receive annually, as salary, 89 l. 1 s. 10 d. ; the apothecary of the infirmary receives for his daily
In all cases in the infirmary or gaol, but in none other.	To intern patients only, since the establishment of a dispensary in the parish in which the infirmary is situated. blishments, yet it has been my constant practice to visit and prescribe for all cases of fever or other illness amongst the poor of my immediate neighbourhood.	I consider it my duty to give my own personal attendance to every case in either the county infirmary or fever hospital. Although my duty does not require me to attend to cases out of those establishments, yet it has been my constant practice to visit and prescribe for all cases of fever or other illness amongst the poor of my immediate neighbourhood.
Such register is kept.	A register is kept of the name, age and disease of every patient, the date of admission and discharge, with the result.	A regular registry is kept of all patients admitted into the infirmary, with the result of their several cases; also a registry of all out-door patients receiving advice and medicine, but the result of those cases not known.
<table><tr><td></td><td>Interns.</td><td>Externs.</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>388</td><td>2,748</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>438</td><td>2,366</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>482</td><td>2,526</td></tr></table>		Interns.	Externs.	1831	388	2,748	1832	438	2,366	1833	482	2,526	<table><tr><td>Admitted.</td><td>Cured</td><td>Relieved</td><td>Discharged.</td><td>Died.</td><td>Remaining.</td></tr><tr><td>340</td><td>182</td><td>68</td><td>18</td><td>29</td><td>43</td></tr></table> Chiefly chronic and scrofulous.	Admitted.	Cured	Relieved	Discharged.	Died.	Remaining.	340	182	68	18	29	43	<table><tr><td></td><td>Interns.</td><td>Externs.</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>173</td><td>1,456</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>163</td><td>1,153</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>156</td><td>1,152</td></tr></table> The enumeration of their diseases would embrace almost every ailment to which the poor of this county are liable.		Interns.	Externs.	1831	173	1,456	1832	163	1,153	1833	156	1,152
	Interns.	Externs.
1831	388	2,748
1832	438	2,366
1833	482	2,526
Admitted.	Cured	Relieved	Discharged.	Died.	Remaining.
340	182	68	18	29	43
	Interns.	Externs.
1831	173	1,456
1832	163	1,153
1833	156	1,152
The general statement of the diseases treated would be such as the Commissioners can find in any comprehensive works on medicine and surgery; the catalogue will be a long one.
Frequently.	None ever apply for admission that are not real objects of the charity; of course, none are admitted.	It is probable that some persons do receive assistance gratuitously who could afford to pay for it; but, generally speaking, care is taken by the governors that those whom they recommend for relief are persons of limited means, and unable to pay for medical assistance.
The medicines are supplied by Messrs. Boileau & George, druggists, on the order of the surgeon.	They are supplied from a druggist, and compounded by an apothecary.	The medicines are supplied by Messrs. Boileau, Dublin, wholesale druggists, according to a list from time to time forwarded to them, their account being paid by the governors out of their general fund.
<table><tr><td colspan="4">RECEIPT.</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td><td>1833.</td></tr><tr><td>Interest on £. 1,000</td><td>£77 10 10</td><td>£69 15 8</td><td>£69 15 8</td></tr><tr><td>Parliamentary Grant</td><td>89 1 10</td><td>89 1 10</td><td>89 1 10</td></tr><tr><td>County Presentment</td><td>400 0 0</td><td>450 0 0</td><td>500 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Subscriptions, &c.</td><td>223 11 2</td><td>280 5 2</td><td>258 5 2</td></tr><tr><td>Petty Session Fines</td><td>92 15 6</td><td>73 0 4</td><td>91 0 6</td></tr><tr><td>Trusses sold, &c.</td><td>4 0 6</td><td>3 0 8</td><td>5 16 0</td></tr><tr><td>Balance agst. Institution</td><td>170 2 4</td><td>72 17 5</td><td>34 1 11</td></tr><tr><td>£.</td><td>1,057 2 2</td><td>1,038 1 1</td><td>1,048 1 1</td></tr><tr><td colspan="4">GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.</td></tr><tr><td>Due last Settlement</td><td>39 17 4</td><td>170 2 4</td><td>72 17 5</td></tr><tr><td>Provisions</td><td>347 9 7</td><td>315 7 2</td><td>322 9 5</td></tr><tr><td>Medicines, &c.</td><td>79 13 10</td><td>104 6 10</td><td>117 16 0</td></tr><tr><td>Fuel, Soap, &c.</td><td>72 16 9</td><td>77 16 1</td><td>80 6 3</td></tr><tr><td>Furniture and Repairs</td><td>60 18 4</td><td>17 4 2</td><td>8 9 7</td></tr><tr><td>Rent and Taxes</td><td>16 9 7</td><td>11 9 0</td><td>20 10 10</td></tr><tr><td>Repairs on Building</td><td>118 2 4</td><td>36 8 6</td><td>28 18 8</td></tr><tr><td>Salaries</td><td>262 6 2</td><td>254 8 8</td><td>273 17 2</td></tr><tr><td>Contingencies</td><td>59 8 1</td><td>50 18 2</td><td>122 15 7</td></tr><tr><td>£.</td><td>1,057 2 2</td><td>1,038 1 1</td><td>1,048 1 1</td></tr></table>	RECEIPT.					1831.	1832.	1833.	Interest on £. 1,000	£77 10 10	£69 15 8	£69 15 8	Parliamentary Grant	89 1 10	89 1 10	89 1 10	County Presentment	400 0 0	450 0 0	500 0 0	Subscriptions, &c.	223 11 2	280 5 2	258 5 2	Petty Session Fines	92 15 6	73 0 4	91 0 6	Trusses sold, &c.	4 0 6	3 0 8	5 16 0	Balance agst. Institution	170 2 4	72 17 5	34 1 11	£.	1,057 2 2	1,038 1 1	1,048 1 1	GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.				Due last Settlement	39 17 4	170 2 4	72 17 5	Provisions	347 9 7	315 7 2	322 9 5	Medicines, &c.	79 13 10	104 6 10	117 16 0	Fuel, Soap, &c.	72 16 9	77 16 1	80 6 3	Furniture and Repairs	60 18 4	17 4 2	8 9 7	Rent and Taxes	16 9 7	11 9 0	20 10 10	Repairs on Building	118 2 4	36 8 6	28 18 8	Salaries	262 6 2	254 8 8	273 17 2	Contingencies	59 8 1	50 18 2	122 15 7	£.	1,057 2 2	1,038 1 1	1,048 1 1	<table><tr><td colspan="2">Receipt.</td><td colspan="2">Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>£. 827 11 8</td><td>£. 938 1 1</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>1,045 2 11</td><td>819 6 11</td><td></td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>843 9 2</td><td>673 5 5</td><td></td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.—Provisions, furniture, repairs, firing, medicine, salaries, incidents, &c.	Receipt.		Expenditure.		1831	£. 827 11 8	£. 938 1 1		1832	1,045 2 11	819 6 11		1833	843 9 2	673 5 5		<table><tr><td colspan="4">RECEIPT.</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td><td>1833.</td></tr><tr><td>Balance in hand</td><td>£. 696 7 0</td><td>148 7 1</td><td>—</td></tr><tr><td>Parliamentary Grant</td><td>89 1 9</td><td>89 1 9</td><td>89 1 9</td></tr><tr><td>County Presentment</td><td>461 10 9</td><td>961 1 8</td><td>961 0 7</td></tr><tr><td>Interest on £. 2,000, &c.</td><td>92 6 2</td><td>138 9 9</td><td>1,859 1 4</td></tr><tr><td>Subscriptions</td><td>1,409 7 2</td><td>727 5 0</td><td>180 5 0</td></tr><tr><td>Petty Session Fines</td><td>33 15 0</td><td>35 16 5</td><td>86 12 3</td></tr><tr><td>Balance due</td><td>—</td><td>59 2 11</td><td>59 16 1</td></tr><tr><td>£.</td><td>2,782 7 11</td><td>2,159 4 8</td><td>3,235 17 1</td></tr><tr><td colspan="4">GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.</td></tr><tr><td>Balance due Treasurer</td><td>—</td><td>—</td><td>59 2 11</td></tr><tr><td>Necessaries</td><td>400 1 11</td><td>374 17 6</td><td>328 5 8</td></tr><tr><td>Salaries*</td><td>155 1 10</td><td>155 1 10</td><td>155 1 10</td></tr><tr><td>Lodged in Bank for erecting new Infirmary and Fever Hospital</td><td>2,078 17 0</td><td>1,629 5 3</td><td>2,693 6 7</td></tr><tr><td>Balance</td><td>148 7 1</td><td>—</td><td>—</td></tr><tr><td>£.</td><td>2,782 7 11</td><td>2,159 4 8</td><td>3,235 17 1</td></tr></table> * For surgeon, apothecary, registrar, housekeeper, porter, and three women servants.	RECEIPT.					1831.	1832.	1833.	Balance in hand	£. 696 7 0	148 7 1	—	Parliamentary Grant	89 1 9	89 1 9	89 1 9	County Presentment	461 10 9	961 1 8	961 0 7	Interest on £. 2,000, &c.	92 6 2	138 9 9	1,859 1 4	Subscriptions	1,409 7 2	727 5 0	180 5 0	Petty Session Fines	33 15 0	35 16 5	86 12 3	Balance due	—	59 2 11	59 16 1	£.	2,782 7 11	2,159 4 8	3,235 17 1	GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.				Balance due Treasurer	—	—	59 2 11	Necessaries	400 1 11	374 17 6	328 5 8	Salaries*	155 1 10	155 1 10	155 1 10	Lodged in Bank for erecting new Infirmary and Fever Hospital	2,078 17 0	1,629 5 3	2,693 6 7	Balance	148 7 1	—	—	£.	2,782 7 11	2,159 4 8	3,235 17 1
RECEIPT.
	1831.	1832.	1833.
Interest on £. 1,000	£77 10 10	£69 15 8	£69 15 8
Parliamentary Grant	89 1 10	89 1 10	89 1 10
County Presentment	400 0 0	450 0 0	500 0 0
Subscriptions, &c.	223 11 2	280 5 2	258 5 2
Petty Session Fines	92 15 6	73 0 4	91 0 6
Trusses sold, &c.	4 0 6	3 0 8	5 16 0
Balance agst. Institution	170 2 4	72 17 5	34 1 11
£.	1,057 2 2	1,038 1 1	1,048 1 1
GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.
Due last Settlement	39 17 4	170 2 4	72 17 5
Provisions	347 9 7	315 7 2	322 9 5
Medicines, &c.	79 13 10	104 6 10	117 16 0
Fuel, Soap, &c.	72 16 9	77 16 1	80 6 3
Furniture and Repairs	60 18 4	17 4 2	8 9 7
Rent and Taxes	16 9 7	11 9 0	20 10 10
Repairs on Building	118 2 4	36 8 6	28 18 8
Salaries	262 6 2	254 8 8	273 17 2
Contingencies	59 8 1	50 18 2	122 15 7
£.	1,057 2 2	1,038 1 1	1,048 1 1
Receipt.		Expenditure.
1831	£. 827 11 8	£. 938 1 1
1832	1,045 2 11	819 6 11
1833	843 9 2	673 5 5
RECEIPT.
	1831.	1832.	1833.
Balance in hand	£. 696 7 0	148 7 1	—
Parliamentary Grant	89 1 9	89 1 9	89 1 9
County Presentment	461 10 9	961 1 8	961 0 7
Interest on £. 2,000, &c.	92 6 2	138 9 9	1,859 1 4
Subscriptions	1,409 7 2	727 5 0	180 5 0
Petty Session Fines	33 15 0	35 16 5	86 12 3
Balance due	—	59 2 11	59 16 1
£.	2,782 7 11	2,159 4 8	3,235 17 1
GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.
Balance due Treasurer	—	—	59 2 11
Necessaries	400 1 11	374 17 6	328 5 8
Salaries*	155 1 10	155 1 10	155 1 10
Lodged in Bank for erecting new Infirmary and Fever Hospital	2,078 17 0	1,629 5 3	2,693 6 7
Balance	148 7 1	—	—
£.	2,782 7 11	2,159 4 8	3,235 17 1
It is supported by presentment on the county of Armagh alone, and by private subscriptions; it also derives occasional support from fines and forfeitures, and 92 l. 6 s. 2 d. from Bishop Sterne's charity.	Partly by grand jury presentment, and the interest of money in the funds arising from the fines imposed on townlands for illicit distillation, and by a few private subscriptions.	Supported by presentment on the county of Down alone, by annual and life subscriptions from charitable individuals, by fines levied at petty sessions, and the sums arising from forfeited recognizances.
I know of none.		The only description of destitute poor, who occasionally require medical assistance, being subject to fits of epilepsy, and for whose relief no legislative enactment at present in this county appears to exist, is the class of idiots. The funds of a county infirmary might, I consider, be made to embrace also their relief, by affording them an asylum; but as our funds are only at present barely adequate to the probable demand upon them, I do not conceive that our present funds could be applied in any more efficient way than they are for the relief of the poor.

ULSTER—FERMANAGH—LONDONDERRY—MONAGHAN.

County Fermanagh Infirmary.	County Londonderry Infirmary.	County Monaghan Infirmary.
G. A. Nixon, Esq., Medical Attendant.	Committee and Medical Attendant.	S. M'Dowell, Esq., M. D.
County Fermanagh Infirmary, to which there is a dispensary attached for those recommended by governor or subscribers.	City and County of Londonderry Infirmary.	I have the county Monaghan Infirmary under my care, but no dispensary; object, to relieve the diseases of the poor of the county; established in 1808.
All parishes in the county, and even from an adjoining county, if recommended by a governor.	The district includes the entire county.	All the parishes in the county.
Maguire's Bridge, Lisnaskea, Churchhill, Brookeborough and Holywell; the two latter are, I think, more than 10 miles from Enniskillen, but am not sure.	There is no hospital or infirmary within 10 miles. The dispensaries within that distance are the following: City of Derry, Muff, Fahan, St. Johnstown, Newtowncunningham, Glendermott, Donaghady, Faughan Vale, Lower Cumber, and Upper Cumber.	Dispensaries within 10 miles of me are, one at Glasslough, one at Castletown, one at Clonis, one at Balynode, and one at Ballybay.
Not any in the county; there is no district marked out.	There is no other hospital or infirmary, in the district, except the county infirmary, and there is no dispensary attached to it.	There is no dispensary attached to the County Monaghan Infirmary which I attend; but I attend the out-patients of the infirmary two days in the week, for which I get no salary.
None, except the gaol hospital.	No other medical establishment under my charge, except the District Lunatic Asylum. Both institutions are within a quarter of a mile of my residence, and within a few hundred yards of each other. I attend the Infirmary daily, and the Asylum twice in the week, at least, and as much oftener as necessary. Salary for County Infirmary, 89 l. 1 s. 2 d. ; for Asylum, 100 l.	I attend but one (the County Monaghan Infirmary), distant not more than a quarter of a mile; yearly salary, 92 l. 6 s. 1 d. I am required to attend every day in the week.
To all cases in hospital, and to those who come for medicine and advice, on dispensary days at the hospital.	In every instance.	I do consider it my duty, in all cases, to give my personal attendance whenever medical and surgical aid is required.
There is a register of those admitted, and how disposed of. The names and medicines given are the only notes taken of extern patients.	Such register is kept.	There is a register kept, how those applications have been disposed of, and with what result.
<table><tr><td></td><td>Re- maining.</td><td>Ad- mitted.</td><td>Cured.</td><td>Re- lieved.</td><td>Dis- missed.</td><td>Died.</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>29</td><td>223</td><td>170</td><td>32</td><td>15</td><td>6</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>29</td><td>209</td><td>154</td><td>28</td><td>33</td><td>4</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>19</td><td>264</td><td>214</td><td>23</td><td>13</td><td>8</td></tr><tr><td>Dispensary</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>1831 - - -</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>3,053</td></tr><tr><td></td><td></td><td></td><td>1832 - - -</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>2,963</td></tr><tr><td></td><td></td><td></td><td>1833 - - -</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>2,582</td></tr></table>		Re- maining.	Ad- mitted.	Cured.	Re- lieved.	Dis- missed.	Died.	1831	29	223	170	32	15	6	1832	29	209	154	28	33	4	1833	19	264	214	23	13	8	Dispensary	-	-	1831 - - -	-	-	3,053				1832 - - -	-	-	2,963				1833 - - -	-	-	2,582		4,993. The diseases, in general, are fractures, ulcers, and affections of the stomach, liver and intestines; scrofula also prevails much.
	Re- maining.	Ad- mitted.	Cured.	Re- lieved.	Dis- missed.	Died.
1831	29	223	170	32	15	6
1832	29	209	154	28	33	4
1833	19	264	214	23	13	8
Dispensary	-	-	1831 - - -	-	-	3,053
			1832 - - -	-	-	2,963
			1833 - - -	-	-	2,582
Very seldom.	Never, except by the practice of fraud, and that very rarely.	It is, in general, the very poorest classes.
By contract from Mr. Collum, apothecary in Enniskillen.	By a wholesale druggist.	Mr. James Sheppard, apothecary, in the town of Monaghan.
<table><tr><td></td><td colspan="3">RECEIPT.</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td><td>1833.</td></tr><tr><td>Parliamentary Grant</td><td>£. 89 10 9¹/₂</td><td>89 10 9¹/₂</td><td>39 10 9¹/₂</td></tr><tr><td>County Presentment</td><td>800 0 0</td><td>400 0 0</td><td>400 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Subscriptions</td><td>42 0 0</td><td>420 0 0</td><td>42 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Interest</td><td>16 12 3¹/₂</td><td>16 12 3¹/₂</td><td>16 12 3¹/₂</td></tr><tr><td>Petty Session Fines</td><td>11 8 0</td><td>8 17 6</td><td>25 10 0</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>£. 939 11 1</td><td>935 0 7</td><td>573 13 1</td></tr><tr><td></td><td colspan="3">GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td><td>1833.</td></tr><tr><td>Provisions</td><td>234 3 10</td><td>184 11 7</td><td>227 1 4¹/₂</td></tr><tr><td>Medicines</td><td>75 10 0</td><td>61 14 1</td><td>60 11 10¹/₂</td></tr><tr><td>Salaries</td><td>175 12 3¹/₂</td><td>175 12 3¹/₂</td><td>175 12 3¹/₂</td></tr><tr><td>Fuel, Soap, &c.</td><td>143 6 7</td><td>118 15 0</td><td>113 9 2</td></tr><tr><td>Rent</td><td>8 15 11¹/₂</td><td>8 15 11¹/₂</td><td>8 15 11¹/₂</td></tr><tr><td>Contingence</td><td>178 19 9¹/₂</td><td>106 18 8</td><td>96 8 0</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>£. 816 8 5¹/₂</td><td>656 9 6¹/₂</td><td>684 18 8</td></tr></table>		RECEIPT.				1831.	1832.	1833.	Parliamentary Grant	£. 89 10 9 ¹ / ₂	89 10 9 ¹ / ₂	39 10 9 ¹ / ₂	County Presentment	800 0 0	400 0 0	400 0 0	Subscriptions	42 0 0	420 0 0	42 0 0	Interest	16 12 3 ¹ / ₂	16 12 3 ¹ / ₂	16 12 3 ¹ / ₂	Petty Session Fines	11 8 0	8 17 6	25 10 0		£. 939 11 1	935 0 7	573 13 1		GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.				1831.	1832.	1833.	Provisions	234 3 10	184 11 7	227 1 4 ¹ / ₂	Medicines	75 10 0	61 14 1	60 11 10 ¹ / ₂	Salaries	175 12 3 ¹ / ₂	175 12 3 ¹ / ₂	175 12 3 ¹ / ₂	Fuel, Soap, &c.	143 6 7	118 15 0	113 9 2	Rent	8 15 11 ¹ / ₂	8 15 11 ¹ / ₂	8 15 11 ¹ / ₂	Contingence	178 19 9 ¹ / ₂	106 18 8	96 8 0		£. 816 8 5 ¹ / ₂	656 9 6 ¹ / ₂	684 18 8	<table><tr><td></td><td colspan="3">RECEIPT.</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td><td>1833.</td></tr><tr><td>Balance</td><td>£. 18 0 4¹/₂</td><td>-</td><td>-</td></tr><tr><td>Parliamentary Grant</td><td>92 6 2</td><td>92 6 2</td><td>92 6 2</td></tr><tr><td>County Presentment</td><td>988 10 10¹/₂</td><td>964 11 9</td><td>1,286 10 9</td></tr><tr><td>Subscriptions</td><td>288 16 0</td><td>223 15 0</td><td>188 10 8</td></tr><tr><td>Rent</td><td>92 6 1¹/₂</td><td>92 6 1</td><td>-</td></tr><tr><td>Petty Session Fines, &c.</td><td>57 12 3</td><td>17 1 8</td><td>82 13 3</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>£. 1,537 11 9¹/₂</td><td>1,390 0 8</td><td>1,650 1 0</td></tr><tr><td></td><td colspan="3">GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td><td>1833.</td></tr><tr><td>Balance due</td><td>-</td><td>9 17 9</td><td>386 15 5¹/₂</td></tr><tr><td>Provisions</td><td>633 14 8</td><td>583 2 1</td><td>403 11 9</td></tr><tr><td>Medicines, &c.</td><td>90 5 11¹/₂</td><td>176 6 10¹/₂</td><td>148 10 6¹/₂</td></tr><tr><td>Salaries and Wages</td><td>288 0 9</td><td>263 5 10¹/₂</td><td>266 17 9</td></tr><tr><td>Fuel, Soap, &c.</td><td>97 6 2¹/₂</td><td>174 14 11</td><td>103 5 3</td></tr><tr><td>Repairs, Furniture</td><td>323 19 3¹/₂</td><td>388 17 5</td><td>129 17 6¹/₂</td></tr><tr><td>Sundries</td><td>71 13 9¹/₂</td><td>99 12 1¹/₂</td><td>190 2 4¹/₂</td></tr><tr><td>Contingencies</td><td>42 9 2¹/₂</td><td>80 15 7</td><td>62 19 11¹/₂</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>£. 1,547 9 10¹/₂</td><td>1,776 12 1¹/₂</td><td>1,594 0 4¹/₂</td></tr></table>		RECEIPT.				1831.	1832.	1833.	Balance	£. 18 0 4 ¹ / ₂	-	-	Parliamentary Grant	92 6 2	92 6 2	92 6 2	County Presentment	988 10 10 ¹ / ₂	964 11 9	1,286 10 9	Subscriptions	288 16 0	223 15 0	188 10 8	Rent	92 6 1 ¹ / ₂	92 6 1	-	Petty Session Fines, &c.	57 12 3	17 1 8	82 13 3		£. 1,537 11 9 ¹ / ₂	1,390 0 8	1,650 1 0		GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.				1831.	1832.	1833.	Balance due	-	9 17 9	386 15 5 ¹ / ₂	Provisions	633 14 8	583 2 1	403 11 9	Medicines, &c.	90 5 11 ¹ / ₂	176 6 10 ¹ / ₂	148 10 6 ¹ / ₂	Salaries and Wages	288 0 9	263 5 10 ¹ / ₂	266 17 9	Fuel, Soap, &c.	97 6 2 ¹ / ₂	174 14 11	103 5 3	Repairs, Furniture	323 19 3 ¹ / ₂	388 17 5	129 17 6 ¹ / ₂	Sundries	71 13 9 ¹ / ₂	99 12 1 ¹ / ₂	190 2 4 ¹ / ₂	Contingencies	42 9 2 ¹ / ₂	80 15 7	62 19 11 ¹ / ₂		£. 1,547 9 10 ¹ / ₂	1,776 12 1 ¹ / ₂	1,594 0 4 ¹ / ₂	<table><tr><td></td><td colspan="2">Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>-</td><td>£. 710 19 11¹/₂</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>-</td><td>714 1 2</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>-</td><td>603 6 7¹/₂</td></tr></table>		Expenditure.			1831.	1832.	1831	-	£. 710 19 11 ¹ / ₂	1832	-	714 1 2	1833	-	603 6 7 ¹ / ₂
	RECEIPT.
	1831.	1832.	1833.
Parliamentary Grant	£. 89 10 9 ¹ / ₂	89 10 9 ¹ / ₂	39 10 9 ¹ / ₂
County Presentment	800 0 0	400 0 0	400 0 0
Subscriptions	42 0 0	420 0 0	42 0 0
Interest	16 12 3 ¹ / ₂	16 12 3 ¹ / ₂	16 12 3 ¹ / ₂
Petty Session Fines	11 8 0	8 17 6	25 10 0
	£. 939 11 1	935 0 7	573 13 1
	GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.
	1831.	1832.	1833.
Provisions	234 3 10	184 11 7	227 1 4 ¹ / ₂
Medicines	75 10 0	61 14 1	60 11 10 ¹ / ₂
Salaries	175 12 3 ¹ / ₂	175 12 3 ¹ / ₂	175 12 3 ¹ / ₂
Fuel, Soap, &c.	143 6 7	118 15 0	113 9 2
Rent	8 15 11 ¹ / ₂	8 15 11 ¹ / ₂	8 15 11 ¹ / ₂
Contingence	178 19 9 ¹ / ₂	106 18 8	96 8 0
	£. 816 8 5 ¹ / ₂	656 9 6 ¹ / ₂	684 18 8
	RECEIPT.
	1831.	1832.	1833.
Balance	£. 18 0 4 ¹ / ₂	-	-
Parliamentary Grant	92 6 2	92 6 2	92 6 2
County Presentment	988 10 10 ¹ / ₂	964 11 9	1,286 10 9
Subscriptions	288 16 0	223 15 0	188 10 8
Rent	92 6 1 ¹ / ₂	92 6 1	-
Petty Session Fines, &c.	57 12 3	17 1 8	82 13 3
	£. 1,537 11 9 ¹ / ₂	1,390 0 8	1,650 1 0
	GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.
	1831.	1832.	1833.
Balance due	-	9 17 9	386 15 5 ¹ / ₂
Provisions	633 14 8	583 2 1	403 11 9
Medicines, &c.	90 5 11 ¹ / ₂	176 6 10 ¹ / ₂	148 10 6 ¹ / ₂
Salaries and Wages	288 0 9	263 5 10 ¹ / ₂	266 17 9
Fuel, Soap, &c.	97 6 2 ¹ / ₂	174 14 11	103 5 3
Repairs, Furniture	323 19 3 ¹ / ₂	388 17 5	129 17 6 ¹ / ₂
Sundries	71 13 9 ¹ / ₂	99 12 1 ¹ / ₂	190 2 4 ¹ / ₂
Contingencies	42 9 2 ¹ / ₂	80 15 7	62 19 11 ¹ / ₂
	£. 1,547 9 10 ¹ / ₂	1,776 12 1 ¹ / ₂	1,594 0 4 ¹ / ₂
	Expenditure.
	1831.	1832.
1831	-	£. 710 19 11 ¹ / ₂
1832	-	714 1 2
1833	-	603 6 7 ¹ / ₂
By presentments off the county Fermanagh alone; by interest on a bond of the corporation of Enniskillen, for 300 l. ; subscriptions paid by governors on their admission; and fines levied by magistrates.	By county presentments, private subscriptions, and, of late, by fines imposed by magistrates at petty sessions. The presentments are solely from the County of Londonderry.	By presentments from the county Monaghan, a Government donation, and private bequests.
I cannot, except to fill up the remaining wards with beds, &c., as our funds only allow 30 intern patients.	I do not think the funds of this institution could be more advantageously distributed; they are managed with great economy; and if grand juries were authorized to increase the county presentment, the utility of the establishment would be more than proportionably augmented.	I do not think that the funds of the county infirmary can be better disposed of for the good of the poor than they are at present.

ULSTER—TYRONE.	MUNSTER—LIMERICK.	ULSTER—ANTRIM.
County Tyrone Infirmary and Omagh Dispensary.	Limerick Lying-in Hospital.	Belfast Lying-in Hospital.
Thomas Maxwell, Esq., Surgeon.	William Griffin, Esq., M.D.	Robert Stephenson, Esq., M.D.
Tyrone Infirmary, for interns. Omagh Dispensary, established July 1st, 1831; externs.	The Limerick Lying-in Hospital, the one to which these queries refer, I attend gratuitously, along with three other medical gentlemen; we all attend other institutions in the city.	Belfast Lying-in Hospital, instituted in 1794, is situated at the upper end of Donegal-street, and a commodious building was erected there in 1830, for the reception and treatment of puerperal women; but not unmarried.
The three neighbouring parishes are included in the dispensary; they all are in one county. The whole county is included in the infirmary.	Patients are received not only from the city and county of Limerick, but from the neighbouring counties of Clare and Tipperary.
Fintona, Dromore, Drumquin, Newtownstewart, Termounrock, and Gortin Dispensaries.		Chapel-lane Dispensary in Belfast; Whitehouse Dispensary in Cadmoney; Ballymacarret Dispensary; Newtownbreda Dispensary; Hollywood Dispensary; Lisburn Infirmary; Crumlin Dispensary.
The Omagh Dispensary is attached to the Tyrone Infirmary; salary for dispensary, 50 l. sterling; for infirmary, 120 l. Irish. The accounts of the two institutions are quite distinct.		The general dispensary is attached to the fever hospital, with an apothecary at a salary of 50 l. , board and lodging; and a dispensary in Chapel-lane, without any particular medical officer.
One infirmary and one dispensary; they are joined, and on which I reside. Constant attendance.		No more than the Lying-in Hospital, and the attendance of course is required at uncertain intervals.
At all times.		Certainly, in the charity which I superintend.
Yes.	There is a very particular registry kept of the admissions, recommendations, deliveries and results.	The register is kept by the resident matron.
Infirmary { 1831 - 229 } The general complaints were, scro- 1832 - 257 } fula, lues venerea, 1833 - 234 } ulcers, fractures, &c. &c. Dispensary { 1832 - 1,038 } Fevers, dyspepsia, 1833 - 1,217 } measles, pectoral 1834, ½ y ^r , 531 } complaints, &c. &c.	<table> <tr> <th></th><th>Admitted.</th><th>Died.</th></tr> <tr> <td>1831 - - -</td><td>350</td><td>4</td></tr> <tr> <td>1832 - - -</td><td>348</td><td>3</td></tr> <tr> <td>1833 - - -</td><td>329</td><td>1</td></tr> <tr> <td>Total - - -</td><td>1,027</td><td>8</td></tr> </table>		Admitted.	Died.	1831 - - -	350	4	1832 - - -	348	3	1833 - - -	329	1	Total - - -	1,027	8	<table> <tr> <th></th><th>Admitted.</th><th>Children born.</th></tr> <tr> <td>1830 - - -</td><td>106</td><td>107</td></tr> <tr> <td>1831 - - -</td><td>124</td><td>127</td></tr> <tr> <td>1832 - - -</td><td>101</td><td>103</td></tr> </table> One death, 7th June.		Admitted.	Children born.	1830 - - -	106	107	1831 - - -	124	127	1832 - - -	101	103
	Admitted.	Died.
1831 - - -	350	4
1832 - - -	348	3
1833 - - -	329	1
Total - - -	1,027	8
	Admitted.	Children born.
1830 - - -	106	107
1831 - - -	124	127
1832 - - -	101	103
Very seldom.	Never.	Not within my knowledge.
By order on druggists in Dublin.	By Mr. Bouchier, an apothecary, resident in the city.	By the general dispensary attached to the fever hospital, Belfast.
The general expenditure for the infirmary, for the last three years, has amounted to about 800 l. annually; the receipt about the same; but I cannot state the exact sum, as the treasurer is in England. The expenditure of dispensary about 90 l. , and the receipt about the same annually.	<table> <tr> <th></th><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr> <tr> <td>1831 - £.252 4 0</td><td></td><td>£.268 7 7</td></tr> <tr> <td>1832 - 244 14 11</td><td></td><td>234 3 11</td></tr> <tr> <td>1833 - 167 4 11</td><td></td><td>168 11 4</td></tr> </table>		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831 - £.252 4 0		£.268 7 7	1832 - 244 14 11		234 3 11	1833 - 167 4 11		168 11 4	<table> <tr> <th></th><th>Receipt.</th><th>Expenditure.</th></tr> <tr> <td>1830 - £.436 10 6</td><td></td><td>£.129 16 4</td></tr> <tr> <td>1831 - 132 6 6</td><td></td><td>114 10 7</td></tr> <tr> <td>1832 - 123 3 6</td><td></td><td>137 2 3</td></tr> </table>		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1830 - £.436 10 6		£.129 16 4	1831 - 132 6 6		114 10 7	1832 - 123 3 6		137 2 3
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831 - £.252 4 0		£.268 7 7
1832 - 244 14 11		234 3 11
1833 - 167 4 11		168 11 4
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1830 - £.436 10 6		£.129 16 4
1831 - 132 6 6		114 10 7
1832 - 123 3 6		137 2 3
By private subscriptions, and presentments from only one county.	By subscriptions, donations and offerings at charity sermons.	By voluntary annual subscriptions, legacies and donations.
No, I cannot.	The funds of the hospital are most economically and indeed admirably managed; there are very many necessary comforts wanting to the inmates, from a deficiency in the funds.	The Commissioners will perceive that the expenditure has not exceeded the receipt; and from the surplus accumulated in the course of years, the directors were enabled to erect a building for the accommodation of lying-in women, which was I am not aware of any alteration that might prove beneficial, except perhaps more extended assistance provided for extern paupers and unmarried females in a state of indigence.

considered advantageous, as they should then be free from annual rent. I am not aware of any alteration that might prove beneficial, except perhaps more extended assistance provided for extern paupers and unmarried females in a state of indigence.

MUNSTER—CORK—LIMERICK.

Foundling Hospital.	City of Cork House of Industry.	Limerick House of Industry.
Henry B. Evanson, Esq., M. D.	Edward R. Townsend, Esq., M. D.	Treasurer and Medical Attendant.
The Workhouse or Foundling Hospital of the city of Cork, established in 1735.	The Hospital of the House of Industry. Wards had been appropriated for the reception of the sick, for many years, in the House of Industry; and about seven years since, in order to separate the sick from the healthy inmates of the institution, an hospital was built.	The House of Industry, containing apartments for the destitute of all ages, the infirm and aged poor, and an asylum or hospital for incurable lunatics, idiots and epileptics.
Its provision extends to the city and liberties, i. e. to the seven general parishes of the city, and to sections of about 12 adjoining parishes that project within the boundary of the liberties.	All paupers applying and requiring either support or medical aid, are admitted without any distinction of county.	All the parishes in the county of Limerick, and all the parishes of the city and liberties of Limerick.
There is one general dispensary for the city, one on the Glanmire-road, at Blackrock, and at Douglas, severally. Within the given limits there are several which I cannot enumerate. The public hospitals of Cork are, the Fever Hospital, the two Infirmaries, and a very limited Lying-in Hospital.	The medical institutions in this city are, the North and South Infirmaries, the Dispensary and Lying-in Hospital; within ten miles are the Douglas, Black Rock, Carrigaline, Carrignavar, Passagewest, Glanmire-road, Glanmire, Blarney and Inniscarra Dispensaries.	No means of answering this question further than that various dispensaries exist in different parts of the county of Limerick.
There are virtually dispensaries attached to the North and the South Infirmaries, as they are attended by a large number of extern patients; the physicians of the former receive 20 guineas each, and one of the surgeons I believe, 20 or 30 guineas annually; the other, and the physicians and surgeons of the South Infirmary, are not paid.	There are several medical institutions in the city of Cork. The salary of the physician to the house of industry is 75 £. per annum. There is likewise a surgeon, who acts as apothecary to the institution; his salary is 31 £. 10 s.	The City of Limerick Dispensary and City Infirmary provided for, and conducted under the provisions of the Dispensary and Infirmary Acts.
I hold no public situation but that of physician to the Foundling Hospital. I visit daily, oftener if necessary; my salary is 50 guineas.	I attend no other medical institution, and visit daily the house of industry. Salary stated as above.	I attend the City Dispensary; no salary. Infirmary; no salary. Fever and Lock Hospitals, 10 £. yearly. I attend daily at each, or as often as required, and also this house of industry and asylum for idiots, which pays me a salary of 20 £. per annum.
Certainly.	Yes, I consider it my duty to attend all cases requiring medical aid. The surgeon attends all surgical cases.	I do.
	Yes.	In every instance.
		There are in this establishment 374 persons, including 70 incurable lunatics, idiots and epileptics; there are almost daily cases of disease; attending where age, infirmity and incurable old people reside, which require my attention.
No.	No.	No.
By an apothecary in the city, Mr. Gosnell. For the last six years, the cost has been not quite 40 £. annually, including his attendance.	By druggists, according to contract, for which there is an annual competition.	By a druggist.
<table><tr><th colspan="3">RECEIPT.</th><th colspan="3">EXPENDITURE.</th></tr><tr><th>1830.</th><th>1831.</th><th>1832.</th><th>1830.</th><th>1831.</th><th>1832.</th></tr><tr><th>£. s. d.</th><th>£. s. d.</th><th>£. s. d.</th><th>£. s. d.</th><th>£. s. d.</th><th>£. s. d.</th></tr><tr><td>Balance -</td><td>1,583 5 3</td><td>111 1 0</td><td>486 14 1</td><td>Salaries -</td><td>707 3 0</td></tr><tr><td>Coal Tax -</td><td>4,424 19 2</td><td>5,217 1 9</td><td>6,092 16 8</td><td>Provisions -</td><td>1,283 12 4</td></tr><tr><td>Legacies -</td><td>22 3 1</td><td>55 7 8</td><td>-</td><td>Clothing -</td><td>723 6 1½</td></tr><tr><td>Church Collections</td><td>46 2 7</td><td>122 6 0</td><td>240 2 2</td><td>Nursing -</td><td>2,559 10 6</td></tr><tr><td>Funded Stock sold</td><td>-</td><td>999 17 6</td><td>-</td><td>Furniture, Repairs, Advertisements, &c. -</td><td>832 17 2</td></tr><tr><td>Fines -</td><td>-</td><td>165 15 0</td><td>-</td><td></td><td>*1,335 10 8</td></tr><tr><td>Stock in store -</td><td>30 0 0½</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td></td><td>1,571 13 0</td></tr><tr><td>Refunded Payments -</td><td>-</td><td>6 0 0</td><td>-</td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td></td><td>£. 6,106 10 1½</td><td>6,677 8 11</td><td>6,819 12 11</td><td></td><td>£. 6,106 10 1½</td></tr></table>	RECEIPT.			EXPENDITURE.			1830.	1831.	1832.	1830.	1831.	1832.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	Balance -	1,583 5 3	111 1 0	486 14 1	Salaries -	707 3 0	Coal Tax -	4,424 19 2	5,217 1 9	6,092 16 8	Provisions -	1,283 12 4	Legacies -	22 3 1	55 7 8	-	Clothing -	723 6 1½	Church Collections	46 2 7	122 6 0	240 2 2	Nursing -	2,559 10 6	Funded Stock sold	-	999 17 6	-	Furniture, Repairs, Advertisements, &c. -	832 17 2	Fines -	-	165 15 0	-		*1,335 10 8	Stock in store -	30 0 0½	-	-		1,571 13 0	Refunded Payments -	-	6 0 0	-				£. 6,106 10 1½	6,677 8 11	6,819 12 11		£. 6,106 10 1½	<table><tr><th colspan="3">RECEIPT.</th><th colspan="3">EXPENDITURE.</th></tr><tr><th>1831.</th><th>1832.</th><th>1833.</th><th>1831.</th><th>1832.</th><th>1833.</th></tr><tr><th>£.</th><th>£.</th><th>£.</th><th>£.</th><th>£.</th><th>£.</th></tr><tr><td>Balance -</td><td>-</td><td>18 9 10</td><td>152 9 8</td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Subscriptions -</td><td>58 15 2</td><td>46 17 0</td><td>35 6 0</td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Donations -</td><td>42 8 2</td><td>11 6 6</td><td>51 10 0</td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Presentments -</td><td>1,184 12 4</td><td>1,392 6 2</td><td>992 6 2</td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Interest on Bequest</td><td>60 0 0</td><td>37 0 3</td><td>-</td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Fines -</td><td>61 1 11½</td><td>108 11 6½</td><td>1 15 7</td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Miscellaneous -</td><td>54 1 2</td><td>43 12 3</td><td>49 7 10½</td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td></td><td>£. 1,460 18 9½</td><td>1,658 3 6½</td><td>1,289 15 3½</td><td></td><td></td></tr></table>	RECEIPT.			EXPENDITURE.			1831.	1832.	1833.	1831.	1832.	1833.	£.	£.	£.	£.	£.	£.	Balance -	-	18 9 10	152 9 8			Subscriptions -	58 15 2	46 17 0	35 6 0			Donations -	42 8 2	11 6 6	51 10 0			Presentments -	1,184 12 4	1,392 6 2	992 6 2			Interest on Bequest	60 0 0	37 0 3	-			Fines -	61 1 11½	108 11 6½	1 15 7			Miscellaneous -	54 1 2	43 12 3	49 7 10½				£. 1,460 18 9½	1,658 3 6½	1,289 15 3½
RECEIPT.			EXPENDITURE.
1830.	1831.	1832.	1830.	1831.	1832.
£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.	£. s. d.
Balance -	1,583 5 3	111 1 0	486 14 1	Salaries -	707 3 0
Coal Tax -	4,424 19 2	5,217 1 9	6,092 16 8	Provisions -	1,283 12 4
Legacies -	22 3 1	55 7 8	-	Clothing -	723 6 1½
Church Collections	46 2 7	122 6 0	240 2 2	Nursing -	2,559 10 6
Funded Stock sold	-	999 17 6	-	Furniture, Repairs, Advertisements, &c. -	832 17 2
Fines -	-	165 15 0	-		*1,335 10 8
Stock in store -	30 0 0½	-	-		1,571 13 0
Refunded Payments -	-	6 0 0	-
	£. 6,106 10 1½	6,677 8 11	6,819 12 11		£. 6,106 10 1½
RECEIPT.			EXPENDITURE.
1831.	1832.	1833.	1831.	1832.	1833.
£.	£.	£.	£.	£.	£.
Balance -	-	18 9 10	152 9 8
Subscriptions -	58 15 2	46 17 0	35 6 0
Donations -	42 8 2	11 6 6	51 10 0
Presentments -	1,184 12 4	1,392 6 2	992 6 2
Interest on Bequest	60 0 0	37 0 3	-
Fines -	61 1 11½	108 11 6½	1 15 7
Miscellaneous -	54 1 2	43 12 3	49 7 10½
	£. 1,460 18 9½	1,658 3 6½	1,289 15 3½
* Defending a suit instituted to deprive the hospital of a large portion of property, is included in this sum; amount, £. 619.
Principally by a tax of 11 d. per ton on all coals discharged within the port of Cork; not levied, however, on native coal, and partly by the proceeds of its chapel, &c. &c.	By presentments raised on the county and city of Cork, annual charity sermons, and voluntary contributions.	By grand jury presentments from the grand juries of the county of Limerick, and also from the grand juries of the city of Limerick.
I do not think the funds could be better applied. The establishment is on a peculiar foundation. There is no direct admission, and none but actually deserted children can be received.	No.	To oblige grand juries to present liberally for this institution, which could be made fully capable to answer as an asylum for all the indigent and helpless, aged, &c. were its accommodation enlarged, and ample funds provided by some certain enactment.

MUNSTER—TIPPERARY—WATERFORD—LIMERICK.

County Tipperary House of Industry [at Clonmel.]	Waterford House of Industry.	Limerick Dispensary for Diseases of the Eye.
Committee and Medical Attendant.	The Committee.	William Griffin, Esq., M.D.
The county of Tipperary House of Industry at Clonmel, which is divided into two parts, one for the support of aged and infirm persons, male and female, of good character, unable to maintain themselves, and for the detention and correction of vagrants of both sexes also, and for the cure of such prostitutes as are diseased. The other part for the safe keeping and cure of lunatics and idiots.	House of Industry of the county and county of the city of Waterford, established in 1772, under Act of Parliament, 11th & 12th Geo. III. c. 30, for support and maintenance of infirm poor, male and female, lunatics, idiots, and confinement and punishment of vagrants and prostitutes.	The Limerick Eye Dispensary was established about eight years ago, by the late Dr. Enright; it was suspended for a short time after his death, and re-established in 1829 by myself.
The district comprises the entire county.	All in the county and county of the city of Waterford.
A fever hospital in this town, a surgical hospital and dispensary, also a dispensary at Newcastle, seven miles distant; one at Kilshalan, five miles; one at Poulnamucka, five miles and a half; and one at Fethard, seven miles.	The city of Waterford Dispensary, Fever Hospital, Leper Hospital, Holy Ghost Hospital; all within the county of the city of Waterford. There is no hospital for the county of Waterford.
There is an hospital in the institution exclusively intended for its inmates. The salary of the surgeon is 80 l. per annum; there is no other medical attendant.	In city of Waterford there is a general dispensary, and several in the county. The medical attendants of the House of Industry act gratuitously; we are not prepared to answer respecting other institutions.
No; the medical officer attends no public hospital or dispensary, but he is surgeon to the county gaol and attends the hospital of that institution; his duties in both situations require that he should visit each at least once a day, and oftener if necessary; he resides in Clonmel, and within half a mile of the	The physicians of the House of Industry do not attend upon any other dispensary, infirmary or hospital, and derive no emoluments for their attendance thereupon, which is daily when necessary.
He does, and invariably acts on that feeling, unless he is obliged to absent himself from illness or any other pressing cause, when he provides another medical gentleman to visit for him.	The physicians do consider it their duty in all cases to give their personal attendance to the House of Industry when required.	The patients are prescribed for and attended to twice in the week, and oftener when their cases require it; they come from all parts of the city and county, and from the neighbouring counties of Clare and Tipperary for ten or fifteen miles around. When patients the Limerick County Infirmary, unless they belong to other
There is a regular registry kept of every case put into hospital, and how they have been disposed of, but of the minor cases of illness which occur in the institution, and which are not considered fit for hospital, he only keeps a list with the dates of their illness, as they are always under observation.	A register is kept of all persons admitted into the House of Industry; great numbers of the most destitute apply for admission who cannot be received for want of accommodation.	There is a regular registry kept of the cases and patients.
<table><tr><td>Admitted.</td><td>Discharged.</td><td>Died.</td><td>Remaining.</td><td>Prescribed for, though not admitted.</td></tr><tr><td>513</td><td>476</td><td>37</td><td>15</td><td>1,683</td></tr></table> The diseases treated were principally venereal, cholera and organic affections of the lungs and viscera; of these 37 deaths, nine died of cholera in the hospital of the institution, and to this number of 37 is to be added 14 who were transferred to the public cholera hospital and died there.	Admitted.	Discharged.	Died.	Remaining.	Prescribed for, though not admitted.	513	476	37	15	1,683	more. Since the prevalence of cholera last year, the attendance from the country has been less regular; they now perhaps usually average 30 or 40; diseases of the eyes from very many causes are exceedingly prevalent in this country, and the number of blind from neglect, and sometimes from ill treatment, exceeds any thing one could possibly imagine. There are seldom less than ten heads of families in the city alone out of work in consequence of diseased eyes which, multiplied by six, the usual average of families in Ireland, make 60 persons constantly out of bread.	The number attending on the appointed days usually amounted to 50 or 60, sometimes to many Admitted.	Discharged.	Died.	Remaining.	Prescribed for, though not admitted.
513	476	37	15	1,683
We are not aware that any do.	Certainly not with the knowledge of the Board or Committee.	The applicants at the Eye Dispensary are usually those affected with severe or chronic attacks only; the lighter cases are for the most part attended as externs at the hospital or dispensary.
From the public dispensary of Clonmel, the apothecary of which is also apothecary to the House of Industry.	By contract with the apothecary to the institution.
<table><tr><td></td><td>Receipt.</td><td>Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>- £.1,749 8 3</td><td>£.1,766 10 8</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>- 1,728 3 0</td><td>2,063 0 4</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>- 1,729 5 0</td><td>1,162 13 10</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.—Salaries, Medicine, Rent, Clothing, &c.		Receipt.	Expenditure.	1831	- £.1,749 8 3	£.1,766 10 8	1832	- 1,728 3 0	2,063 0 4	1833	- 1,729 5 0	1,162 13 10	<table><tr><td>Receipt:</td><td>1830.</td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td></tr><tr><td>Balance in Treasurer's hands</td><td>-</td><td>75 5 1</td><td>113 2 0</td></tr><tr><td>Presentments</td><td>- £.2,300 0 0</td><td>2,400 0 0</td><td>2,300 0 0</td></tr><tr><td>Subscriptions</td><td>- 307 9 11</td><td>289 5 5</td><td>287 13 11</td></tr><tr><td>Donations</td><td>- 60 8 10</td><td>14 8 8</td><td>35 7 8</td></tr><tr><td>Earnings of persons at work</td><td>- 60 14 2½</td><td>55 11 6</td><td>58 7 4½</td></tr><tr><td>Miscellaneous</td><td>- 30 7 0</td><td>24 4 0</td><td>24 19 7½</td></tr><tr><td>Profit on Cattle</td><td>- 103 4 10</td><td>120 9 8</td><td>119 3 10</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>£.2,862 4 9½</td><td>2,979 14 4</td><td>2,938 14 5</td></tr><tr><td>Expenditure:</td><td>1830</td><td>-</td><td>£.2,786 19 8½</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>1831</td><td>-</td><td>2,866 12 3</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>1832</td><td>-</td><td>2,102 11 5</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE.—Balance paid Treasurer, Salaries, Food, Necessaries, Cost of Store Pigs, Contingencies.	Receipt:	1830.	1831.	1832.	Balance in Treasurer's hands	-	75 5 1	113 2 0	Presentments	- £.2,300 0 0	2,400 0 0	2,300 0 0	Subscriptions	- 307 9 11	289 5 5	287 13 11	Donations	- 60 8 10	14 8 8	35 7 8	Earnings of persons at work	- 60 14 2½	55 11 6	58 7 4½	Miscellaneous	- 30 7 0	24 4 0	24 19 7½	Profit on Cattle	- 103 4 10	120 9 8	119 3 10		£.2,862 4 9½	2,979 14 4	2,938 14 5	Expenditure:	1830	-	£.2,786 19 8½		1831	-	2,866 12 3		1832	-	2,102 11 5	The expenditure has been 30 l. per annum house-rent, and about 5 l. for medicines.
	Receipt.	Expenditure.
1831	- £.1,749 8 3	£.1,766 10 8
1832	- 1,728 3 0	2,063 0 4
1833	- 1,729 5 0	1,162 13 10
Receipt:	1830.	1831.	1832.
Balance in Treasurer's hands	-	75 5 1	113 2 0
Presentments	- £.2,300 0 0	2,400 0 0	2,300 0 0
Subscriptions	- 307 9 11	289 5 5	287 13 11
Donations	- 60 8 10	14 8 8	35 7 8
Earnings of persons at work	- 60 14 2½	55 11 6	58 7 4½
Miscellaneous	- 30 7 0	24 4 0	24 19 7½
Profit on Cattle	- 103 4 10	120 9 8	119 3 10
	£.2,862 4 9½	2,979 14 4	2,938 14 5
Expenditure:	1830	-	£.2,786 19 8½
	1831	-	2,866 12 3
	1832	-	2,102 11 5
£.500 is granted half-yearly for House of Industry, and 350 l. half-yearly for the Lunatic Asylum attached thereto by the county, to which a regular sum is added, subsistence of inmates in Lunatic Asylum, manure sold, and profit on hogs sold.	By presentments from the county and county of the city of Waterford, subscriptions and donations.	I do not believe my predecessor received any subscriptions towards its support; I received during the four years I have been attending to it, one donation of 25 l. from the Duke of Northumberland, and one subscription from the Earl and Countess of Dunraven.
Not of this institution, which we conceive to be well managed, unless perhaps more employment could be had for its inmates, but which is a difficult matter to accomplish.	The committee cannot suggest any alteration in the distribution of the funds of this establishment that would render it more efficient for the relief of the poor therein, the average expense of each inmate being under 8 l. sterling per annum; but they are of opinion that if such establishments, under similar management, were more general, it would be productive of much good. To make this more efficient, its funds as well as its accommodation should be greatly enlarged.

LEINSTER—DUBLIN—KILDARE.

Sick Poor Institution, Meath-Street.	Maynooth Dispensary.
The Committee.	William Fergusson, Esq., M.D.
Sick Poor Institution, Meath-street, Dublin; established 1794.	I have been in constant attendance at the Maynooth Dispensary for the last twenty years; I am also physician to the Celbridge Fever Hospital and the Lucan Dispensary.
St. Catherine's, St. James's, St. Luke's, St. Andrew's, St. Nicholas Without, and the Deanery of St. Patrick's; all within the county of the city of Dublin.	Three parishes, all contained in a circuit of about nine miles, on the borders of the counties Kildare and Dublin.
	Newcastle, Clondalkin, Dunboyne, Chapelizod, Castleknock, &c. &c.
Several, with which this institution has no connexion.	There is also a dispensary attached to the fever hospital, to which a resident apothecary is fixed, whose salary (together with emoluments), amounts to , while the physician for attending both receives 80 l. per annum.
There are six physicians and one surgeon attached to this institution, none of whom (with one exception) attend any other. The residences of the officers are in the city, at various distances. Formerly salaries were paid to the medical attendants, but in consequence of want of funds, these salaries were withdrawn for last fourteen years. All the medical officers attend six days in the week, and on Sunday in urgent cases.	I attend Maynooth, Celbridge, and Lucan Dispensaries three days every week, and at all times when called on by the resident apothecaries; Maynooth is three miles and a half; Celbridge, two; and Lucan one mile from my residence.
Certainly, in all cases.	Either my own or that of the apothecary.
There is.	There is a registry kept, and shown to the committee every year, of all the applicants, and the result.
<table><tr><td></td><td></td><td></td><td></td><td>Relieved.</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>11,275</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>11,825</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>12,109</td></tr></table> bowels, &c.; puerperal complaints, measles, small-pox and hooping-cough, paralytic and syphilitic disorders, delirium tremens from drink, mania, &c. &c.					Relieved.	1831	-	-	-	11,275	1832	-	-	-	11,825	1833	-	-	-	12,109	In Maynooth, on an average, annually about 5,000, out of a population of 1,500 paupers in the village, besides the outlets. The diseases have been chiefly fevers and ague, dysentery, diarrhoea, dyspepsia, consumption, scrofula, rheumatism, rupture of blood-vessels, from the stomach, lungs and Relieved.
1831	-	-	-	11,275
1832	-	-	-	11,825
1833	-	-	-	12,109
We believe not.	There have been many such applicants, but always rejected, by order of the grand jury.
Supplied by the committee, out of the funds of the institution, and dispensed by a qualified resident apothecary.	Supplied by the first druggists in Dublin, and compounded by myself.
<table><tr><td colspan="4">Receipt.</td></tr><tr><td></td><td>1831.</td><td>1832.</td><td>1833.</td></tr><tr><td>Subscriptions £.</td><td>186 18 1</td><td>172 15 7</td><td>179 12 1</td></tr><tr><td>Donations</td><td>- 5 0 0</td><td>5 0 0</td><td>—</td></tr><tr><td>City Grand Jury</td><td>177 15 1</td><td>183 5 1</td><td>171 2 7</td></tr><tr><td>Int. on 3½ per cent.</td><td></td><td></td><td></td></tr><tr><td>Gov. Stock</td><td>- 6 11 9</td><td>6 11 8</td><td>6 11 8</td></tr><tr><td colspan="4">Expenditure.</td></tr><tr><td>1831</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>£.322 11 11</td></tr><tr><td>1832</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>409 14 2</td></tr><tr><td>1833</td><td>-</td><td>-</td><td>408 2 7½</td></tr></table> GENERAL HEADS OF EXPENDITURE:—Salaries to Apothecary, Register and Porter; Medicines, Stationary, Coals and Candles, Repairs, Incidents, Rent and Insurance, Furniture, Utensils, Nourishment Dispensary, Physicians and Surgeon (a donation.)	Receipt.					1831.	1832.	1833.	Subscriptions £ .	186 18 1	172 15 7	179 12 1	Donations	- 5 0 0	5 0 0	—	City Grand Jury	177 15 1	183 5 1	171 2 7	Int. on 3½ per cent.				Gov. Stock	- 6 11 9	6 11 8	6 11 8	Expenditure.				1831	-	-	£ .322 11 11	1832	-	-	409 14 2	1833	-	-	408 2 7½	The annual amount of the whole expenditure is about 88 l. , allowing 63 l. for physician's salary, and about 25 l. for medicines and other necessities, &c. &c.
Receipt.
	1831.	1832.	1833.
Subscriptions £ .	186 18 1	172 15 7	179 12 1
Donations	- 5 0 0	5 0 0	—
City Grand Jury	177 15 1	183 5 1	171 2 7
Int. on 3½ per cent.
Gov. Stock	- 6 11 9	6 11 8	6 11 8
Expenditure.
1831	-	-	£ .322 11 11
1832	-	-	409 14 2
1833	-	-	408 2 7½
Originally by voluntary subscriptions alone, but since Michaelmas 1826 partly by grand jury presentment, and partly by voluntary subscriptions.	They are supported by private subscription, and by an annual county presentment.
The committee, having the entire control over the funds of the institution, would be culpable in perceiving a more advantageous mode of applying their funds, and not availing themselves of it; but they have no hesitation in saying that a much larger income than that engaged by this institution, could be dispensed in its district to very necessitous persons, in the shape of nourishment, by means of the Nourishment Dispensary, united with this institution in relieving sick poor.	As the strictest economy has been observed, both by the committee and the grand jury (unless the funds were very much increased by subscription and presentment), I do not see how the establishment could be made more efficient.

595

SUPPLEMENT

TO

APPENDIX (B.)

CONTAINING

ANSWERS on the NATURE and CAUSES of DISEASE, from the OFFICERS, &c. of MEDICAL INSTITUTIONS.

Glasnamaddy Dispensary.	Medical Officer.
Medical Officer, Esq., Medical Assistant.	Medical Officer.
The intermittent fever (or ague) is very prevalent, owing, I should think, to unwholesome climate and food.	Typical fevers are more prevalent, owing to damp and bad bedding and bad food.
Very many have been the instances of want of proper sustenance or unwholesome food, causing disease.	I have many instances of want of proper sustenance or unwholesome food, causing disease.
I think the constant use of vegetable food, upon which they are accustomed to live, is very detrimental to the animal frame, and decidedly promotive of disease.	I have many instances of want of proper sustenance or unwholesome food, causing disease.
I do not think the poor in my district are much addicted to the use of ardent spirits.	Ardent spirits are not much used in my district.
Wetted in the extreme are the habits of the poor in my district, and very conducive to disease.	Wetted in the extreme are the habits of the poor in my district, and very conducive to disease.

Annadown Dispensary.
Willm Kelly, Esq., Surgeon.
Fevers are generally of the low or typhoid character among the poorer classes, which I attribute to bad and insufficient supplies of food and wretched clothing.
Yes, many instances; and in such, medicine can do little without wholesome food.
The poor so universally subsist on potatoes alone, and frequently on very insufficient supplies of even these, that I should rather ascribe disease to the want of food than to any particular description.
It does not, and is declining still more: for our Roman Catholic parish priest, Mr. Loftus, asserts, that he has not heard of a single instance of inebriety during the Christmas holidays just elapsed.
The poor are found in a very destitute state as to all these necessities, except perhaps ventilation, of which, in sooth, they have too much.

Killane Dispensary.	Medical Officer.
Medical Officer, Esq., Surgeon.	Medical Officer.
They have not assumed any particular type since my residence here; but in 1831 a very malignant and fatal one prevailed, deducible from the previous year of dearth.	They have not assumed any particular type since my residence here; but in 1831 a very malignant and fatal one prevailed, deducible from the previous year of dearth.
I have witnessed some diseases induced by such causes, where proper nutriment would have been extremely beneficial.	I have witnessed some diseases induced by such causes, where proper nutriment would have been extremely beneficial.
I have; the moist potatoes grown in a peat soil are very productive of stomach complaints and dysentery.	I have; the moist potatoes grown in a peat soil are very productive of stomach complaints and dysentery.
It is rather so, I believe; and may be attributed to the low price of corn, which fosters illicit distillation.	It is rather so, I believe; and may be attributed to the low price of corn, which fosters illicit distillation.
They are reduced to the lowest ebb of misery as regards all these; and as to comfort such a thing is unknown.	They are reduced to the lowest ebb of misery as regards all these; and as to comfort such a thing is unknown.

Clifden Dispensary.
Martin A. Evans, Esq., M.D. Surgeon.
They have not assumed any particular type since my residence here; but in 1831 a very malignant and fatal one prevailed, deducible from the previous year of dearth.
I have witnessed some diseases induced by such causes, where proper nutriment would have been extremely beneficial.
I have; the moist potatoes grown in a peat soil are very productive of stomach complaints and dysentery.
It is rather so, I believe; and may be attributed to the low price of corn, which fosters illicit distillation.
They are reduced to the lowest ebb of misery as regards all these; and as to comfort such a thing is unknown.

CONNAUGHT—GALWAY.

Dunmore Dispensary.	Eyreecourt Dispensary.	Glanamadda Dispensary.
J. Prendergast, Esq., M.D., M.R.C.S.L.	—	Michael Kelly, Esq., Medical Attendant.
Fevers have assumed a malignant type, in consequence of the want of ventilation and cleanliness.	Typhus fevers are more prevalent, owing to damp and bad bedding and bad living.	The intermittent fever (or ague) is very prevalent, owing, I should think, to unwholesome climate and food.
I have innumerable; particularly cases of indigestion and diseases of the skin, where proper sustenance would do more than medicine in establishing their cure.	I have some.	Very many have been the instances of want of proper sustenance or unwholesome food causing disease.
I have found the badly boiled potatoes and crude cabbages, together with the salt, and sometimes half putrid herrings.	I have never found proper nourishment amongst them; their only food is potatoes.	I think the constant use of vegetable food, upon which they are necessitated to live, is very detrimental to the animal frame, and decidedly promotive of disease.
It does; and I conceive it is on the increase, although they do not push it to absolute drunkenness as much as hitherto.	Not to any great extent; and I think it is rather on the decline.	I do not think the poor in my district are much addicted to the use of ardent spirits.
Wretched as to clothing; their food in nine cases out of ten the dry potato, for they are obliged to sell their eggs in order to buy salt and soap. Bedding consists of straw or sedge, with a miserable blanket, and when the straw is scarce and dear, they lie on the bare and damp floor. Furniture, a box, stool and pot, scarcely ever a bedstead. No ventilation in their bed-chambers, as the single pane of glass through which a little light is afforded is always fixed in mortar.	In general very bad.	Wretched in the extreme are the habitations of the poor in my district, and very conducive to disease.

CONNAUGHT—GALWAY.

Glanamadda Dispensary.	Headford Dispensary.	Killane Dispensary.
Michael Kelly, Esq., Medical Attendant.	A. Hackett, Esq., Surgeon.	F. Harrison, Esq., Surgeon.
My opinion is, that the want of clothes and proper food is the principal cause of the sickness prevailing among the poor in this district.	None more than usual.	They have typhoid type, which I attribute to bad food, want of ventilation and cleanliness.
It would be impossible to describe in this small compass the wretched condition in which I found all that I attended; suffice it to say, that they, in many cases, had scarcely milk to make whey, and as to their covering, from the state of it, I should not be surprised if that alone caused their death. I have been often whole nights witnessing this state of wretchedness.	Vegetable food has been promotive of many dyspeptic complaints, where animal food would be of more use than medicine.	I have in very many instances.
It surprises me the poor can exist on the potato without any other sort of food, as they are obliged to do at present.	None more than what has been given above.	Bad potatoes, which is the only food in use among the poorer class.
The poor man who goes to market to sell what one would suppose ought to be given to his wife and children, sometimes takes a glass of spirits on an empty stomach (being the only meal he makes that day), is affected by it, and of course is sickened by it.	They have always been addicted to ardent spirits; but the excessive use thereof has increased rapidly and largely in the last few years.	The excessive use of ardent spirits does not appear to me to prevail much in this district.
See Answer to No. 2.	The poor much better provided, and more comfortable in this district than in many parts of this province; but still, in consequence of the great population, and the minute divisions of land, evils which are continually on the increase, by the tenants continuing to subdivide those already too small holdings, there is not that comfort among the small holders of land that one would wish.	The population is wholly agricultural, and very numerous; their clothing tolerable; food very bad, and deficient in quantity, in bad seasons; bedding in general bad; furniture, little or none; ventilation extremely bad.

CONNAUGHT—GALWAY.

Killian Dispensary.	Kiltolla Dispensary.	Loughrea Dispensary.
John F. Butler, Esq., M.D.	Wm. Daniell, Esq., M.D.	Thos. Shadwell, Esq., M.D.
Fevers in general assume the typhoid type, which I attribute to poverty, want of cleanliness, ventilation, and neglect to follow the advice given.	None in this district but the ordinary typhus fever.	Though much diminished in frequency, they assume the low typhoid type, from their impoverished food and debilitating habits, and want of employment.
I have experienced many instances.	I have not, but have seen recoveries frequently protracted by want of proper nourishment.	Many.
I have; the continued use of vegetable food, I am of opinion, is promotive of disease.	The only food potatoes.	Bad and unwholesome vegetable food; fish not fresh has produced dysenteries and diarrhoea.
I believe the use of ardent spirits prevails very much in my district, but cannot say whether it is on the increase or otherwise.	It prevails to a great extent; on the increase, in consequence of illicit distillation being much on the increase last year.	Yes, particularly among females.
I have generally found them in a most wretched state of want as to each of the particular items in this query.	Generally very indifferent.	Very bad in every respect.

CONNAUGHT—GALWAY.

Miltown Dispensary.	Monivea Dispensary.	Oranmore & Ballinacourty Dispensary.
James Blake, Esq., Medical Attendant.	Digby French, Esq., Surgeon.	Geo. Heathcote, Esq., M.D.
Since the opening of the Dispensary, I have seen no particular epidemic, catarrh excepted.	There has been no fever of a particular type for the last three years in my district, and since the appearance of cholera, there has been very few cases of fever.	Since my residence here, I have met with no fevers, nor any epidemic, except the cholera, which has singled out a few individuals in a most extraordinary manner; I speak chiefly of the villages, not of the town of Oranmore.
Yes, hundreds; perhaps four-fifths of my cases are immediate or remote gastrointestinal irritations, induced by the unvaried consumption of the potato, which is too frequently eaten in a par-boiled state, and without even the adjunct of butter-milk.	Where the poor have to commence digging the potatoes too early (in cases of want), they often suffer from the badness of the food.	During the time I attended the dispensary, every day I found it more useful and necessary to give rice or oatmeal, with some cordial or nourishing demulcent, than other medicine.
See preceding query.	Refer to preceding answer.	The want of some additional food, such as milk or broth, with their potatoes, together with the general use of ardent spirits in much greater quantity than necessary or beneficial, are the chief causes of their diseases; potatoes, however, themselves are by no means injurious.
The abuse of ardent spirits is confined to occasional debauches, which, though far between, seem to gain in power what they lose in time. We have few habitual drunkards.	I consider the use of ardent spirits rather on the decrease. injurious to sound health, is very generally prevalent; the want of animal food in hard-working men causes a depression of the feelings, which they seek to elevate by occasional use of ardent spirits, and this occasion occurs too frequently.	The excessive use perhaps does not prevail in these villages, but the too frequent use of so powerful a stimulant so as to be
Clothes limited to one suit, occasionally very bad; bedding, generally loose straw, covered with a blanket alone; furniture, scarcely any, and ventilation very imperfect.	1st. The clothes of their own coarse manufacture; 2d. Potatoes is the food generally used; 3d. Furniture suitable to the house; 4th. Bedding is generally straw, and the covering scantily supplied among the poor; 5th. Ventilation sufficient; 6th. Necessary comforts mostly wanting in cases of illness.	In this part of the country, comprising Ballinacourty, Guranne and Ballinacloyby villages, and the neighbourhood of Oranmore, nothing can be more wretched than the generality of their cabins, clothes, bedding and furniture; their food, potatoes alone; very few have milk.

CONNAUGHT—GALWAY—LEITRIM.

Outerarde Dispensary.	Portumna Dispensary.	Ballinamore & Kiltubrid Dispensaries.
—	John Heron, Esq. M. D.	W^m W. Irvine, Esq., Surgeon. John Lawder, Esq. Treasurer & Secretary.
Yes, generally the typhoid type, which I attribute to their necessities and want of means to be cleanly.	Fevers or epidemics have not assumed a particular type.	The fevers prevalent amongst the poor are the simple, continued and intermittent, occasioned generally by exposure to cold.
I have frequently known disease to have been induced by the species of food they make use of, and the various privations they undergo; but probably my district (part of which is in Connemara) is about as poor and destitute as any part of the empire, and I do think wholesome food might be beneficially substituted for medicine in very many cases, which was satisfactorily proved during the prevalence of typhus in 1817 and 1822.	I have experienced some.	In several instances I have known disease induced by improper food and covering, and when aliment could with great advantage be substituted for medicine.
I have found that species of potato called lumper cultivated in boggy soil, or newly reclaimed ground, and rape ground, to promote disease.	The food of the poorer class in my district almost exclusively consists of potatoes; I cannot say that their diseases in any degree depend upon their use.
I do not think it does prevail in excess in my district; I cannot positively assert whether it is on the increase or decrease, but I believe there is as great a facility to the intemperate use of ardent drink in my district as any in this province; and I decidedly am of opinion, that if it were not for the moderate use of it, in some instances the poor would languish and die of absolute debility, whereas this moderate stimulus gives energy and support to their mind, and invigorates their bodies.	Comparatively speaking, I think the use of ardent spirits does not prevail in this district; I rather think the use of it is on the decline.	I have been told that it does prevail to a great extent, and that the use of ardent spirits is on the increase.
In most instances, half naked; their food dry potatoes, three times, but in very many cases one scanty meal of even that same in the day, and if they have a little salt to use with them, they then are comparatively satisfied; their bedding is sometimes a clean truss of straw, but much oftener almost intolerably filthy and fetid; their furniture is generally a stool, a noggin, and a metal pot; ventilation, none, as they prefer the smoke which issues from their turf fire (the only comfort which they possess in abundance) to keep them warm, as a substitute for clothing; and in some instances, particularly in Commos, a village on the coast opposite the island of Arran, their children were totally naked, and at night they were towed away in a sack, with the male and female parents lying on either side of them, in order to keep them warm; in fact, it would be tedious, and in some cases appalling, to describe the miseries of the real or extreme poor.	Generally speaking, much in need of those several things.	I generally find the poor destitute of every comfort; imperfectly clad; food of the plainest and coarsest description, and scarcely having any furniture; their dwellings always imperfectly ventilated; this is occasioned, frequently, by their own indolence.

CONNAUGHT—LEITRIM.

Dromod and Cloone Dispensaries.	Drumahair Dispensary.	Manor Hamilton Dispensary.
Thomas William Burke, Esq., Surgeon. J. Nisbett, jun. Esq. Secretary.	—	J. Durdas, Esq. Surgeon. The Chairman of Committee.
They have; always to be attributed to the want of the general necessities of life, sometimes aggravated by the use of ardent spirits.	Yes, to the inclement season and bad diet.	They have not.
Very many, probably the one-fourth.	Yes, very frequently.	Seldom; wholesome food is the best preventative against many of the diseases incidental to poverty.
No; potatoes and milk are the general food, which, indeed, in some cases are highly destructive.	Yes, potatoes.	Vegetables.
Heretofore it has, but is latterly on the decrease.	Cannot say it does.	No, rather on the decrease.
Generally speaking, of the worst description.	In a most deplorable state.	The clothes of the poor are, generally speaking, of the same description in every district; food, potatoes and milk; bedding, straw; furniture, but little; ventilation bad; yet I must remark there are not many residents in this district destitute, the wants of the aged and infirm being supplied by the voluntary liberality of their neighbours.

CONNAUGHT—LEITRIM—MAYO—ROSCOMMON.

Mohill and Drumsna Dispensary.	Erris Dispensary.	Ballyleague Dispensary.
	Mathew Bourns, Esq. Surgeon & Accouch.	B. G. O'Connor, Esq. Surgeon.
In general of a mild kind.	I have attended persons in fever here under such various types, as to be non-descript in any nosological work I yet saw, attributable, in my opinion, to the peculiar manner of living.	I have not perceived any particular change.
Very many.	Scorbutic affections have been brought on by unwholesome diet; and that such food is productive, at least promotive, of other diseases, I have experienced but too many instances where wholesome food might have been beneficially substituted for medicine.	More than half the diseases are brought on by want of wholesome food and cleanliness, with the continual use of the worst potato root.
Potatoes cause the worst kind of indigestion.	Salt fish, with a bad description of potato, called lumpers.	The constant use of potatoes called lumpers; because it can be raised without manure, the poor not having any.
It does; I think it is not on the increase.	The consumption of ardent spirits here is very great: I cannot say whether it is on the increase, it is certainly not on the decrease. It is sold (illicit) at 2s. 6d. the gallon.	In a very shameful degree; and is on the increase, from the undisturbed state of illicit distillation.
Very bad.	Generally the people here are most miserable; there are some few, however, very well supplied in necessary comforts; but when I mention those few, I must except ventilation; there is no thought of it.	In filth, dirt, nakedness; no ventilation under and over; water in cabins, like manure heaps, among the very poor.

CONNAUGHT—ROSCOMMON.

Boyle Dispensary.	Castlerea Dispensary.	Croghan Dispensary.
The Committee.	Luke Kelly, Esq. M.D.	The Committee. Thomas Robertson, Esq. M.D.
No unusual appearance of such; and those without any peculiarity.	Fevers generally assume the form of low typhus, which appears to me to be attributable to their wretched condition.	No appearance at present of such.
Not more so than is usual in other countries.	Many cases are presented to me for advice, which are mainly attributable to want of proper sustenance; and very many which require wholesome nourishment rather than medicine.	There are cases in which I would occasionally order a change of diet, but the low circumstances of the people prevent it.
None.	I am convinced that the constant and exclusive use of potatoes among the poor of this district, is promotive of disease.	None, but the constant use of potatoes.
The use of ardent spirits always prevalent; but not more now than heretofore.	The excessive use of ardent spirits does prevail to a deplorable extent; and I know that the practice is on the increase, from the facilities offered by the numbers of small licensed whiskey shops, the extensive system of illicit distillation too, and the want of employment of the poor labouring class.	It does; but it is not more on the increase now than heretofore.
A considerable number in great destitution.	It is difficult to convey in a report, which must be short, an adequate description of the poor of this district; they are reduced to the lowest state of misery and want; they are wretchedly clad, their food of the worst kind, being only potatoes of a bad quality, with salt and water. They do not perhaps taste meat once a year; their bedding, straw, with one, or at most two blankets and a sheet for the use of a family of five or six persons; scarcely any furniture; their houses low, dirty and badly ventilated.	A considerable number in great distress.

CONNAUGHT—ROSCOMMON.

Elphin Dispensary.	Tarmonbarry and Kilglass Dispensary.	French Park Dispensary.
Henry Lynch, Esq. M. R. C. S. Michael Dillon, Esq. M. D.	Terence Shanly, Esq. Medical Attendant.	Alexander O'Ferrall, Esq. M. D.
The privations and habits of the poor generally give to epidemics a typhoid character, and in seasons of great dearth such diseases frequently assume a malignant type.	Fevers or epidemics have not assumed any particular type in my neighbourhood.	Within these few years, fevers and epidemic diseases (of the poor) have appeared in a type and form much more severe and varied than formerly. This I impute to the increasing poverty and distress of the poor, their want of wholesome food, with their adoption of that stimulus which whiskey supplies.
We met very many such instances: in some extreme cases nourishment and flannel have been supplied from the funds of this Institution.	I know many instances where actual disease has been brought on from want of wholesome food and warm clothing; and I am of opinion that these articles could be beneficially substituted in many cases for medicine.	I have known cases of sickness caused by the want of good food, consequently a supply of the latter would do more service than medicine of any kind.
A merely vegetable diet, with other privations, necessarily induce, in the more feeble constitutions indigestion, with its train of consequent diseases.	The food used by the poorer class in summer and autumn are potatoes, eggs, cabbage and milk; occasionally in winter and spring, potatoes, onions and salt herrings, the greater part of which I consider productive of disease.	The want of animal and nutritious food, and the constant use of a meager and vegetable diet, I consider to be highly promotive of those diseases the poor are subject to.
This vice does unfortunately prevail; but we do not consider it on the increase. The immediate consequences are generally broken heads.	The excessive use of ardent spirits prevails very much in my neighbourhood among the poor when they can get it, and I believe it is rather on the increase; I am certain it is the cause of much crime and much disease.	The use of ardent spirits (though not on the increase) is still very prevalent among the peasantry.
The lowest class sleep on straw or chaff, often laid on the floor, with deficient and filthy covering; their food potatoes, and in many places they suffer from scarcity of fuel; but all classes of the poor are too regardless of cleanliness and ventilation.	The poor in my district are badly clad; food, bedding, furniture, ventilation and necessary comforts in general very bad.	I have generally found the bedding, clothes, furniture, food (with few exceptions), &c. of the worst description, with a want of cleanliness and ventilation.

CONNAUGHT—ROSCOMMON.

Keadue Dispensary.	Lecarrow Dispensary.	Loughglynn Dispensary.
George Munns, Esq. Surgeon.	Treasurer and Medical Attendant.	Edward Kelly, Esq. Medical Attendant.
I cannot say that I have noticed it in my district.	No.	Fevers have not generally put on any particular type more malignant than they have assumed among the poor for the last 40 years in this country, except in the years 1817 & 1822, when typhus prevailed to an alarming extent; the cases of fever were more numerous in 1822, the deaths more in 1817.
I have no doubt but there are instances of this description.	No doubt many of the diseases of the peasantry are caused by the unwholesome nature of their diet, and in many instances nourishment would be the best medicine.	Very many cases of illness have been brought on by want of proper and wholesome food in my district, and several of them relieved by the aid they received in diet and clothing from the agent to the estate of Lord Dillon.
I do consider the great consumption of potatoes by the poor in this district productive of dyspeptic affections.	The constant use of bad potatoes is promotive of disease.	I am satisfied that the constant use of potatoes, often of an indifferent kind, among the poor, is promotive of disease.
The excessive use of ardent spirits prevails, and I feel confident it is not on the decrease.	To a most lamentable extent, illicit stills and whiskey abounding everywhere, and even in the licensed public-houses (though sworn not to do so), they sell the illicit whiskeys, which being very cheap, is drunk as Englishmen would a draught of ale.	The excessive use of ardent spirits prevails to a lamentable degree, and I fear it is on the increase, particularly the use of illicit spirits; illicit distillation has been very general, and will be so, when grain is so very cheap; the only effectual way, in my opinion, to check it, is to lower the duty on licensed spirits.
In a general way destitute of all these necessities; the ventilation very bad; the houses in general very bad in a mountainous district, inhabited by colliers.	Generally in an indescribably wretched condition in every respect. in great want and misery; their food and clothing as bad as can be; their houses or cabins miserably bad and dirty, and their night-covering wretched in the extreme; perhaps one indifferent blanket and sheet to cover a family of six, a cold winter's night on a straw bed; fresh meat they scarcely ever taste; and many, very many of them seldom have milk or butter, and are therefore obliged to live on potatoes and salt; their furniture scarcely deserves the name, being only a very few indifferent articles of the poorest kind.	It is not easy, in a report of this kind, which must be limited, to convey the distress of the poor in my district; they are generally

CONNAUGHT—ROSCOMMON—SLIGO.

Tulsk Dispensary.	Ballymote Dispensary.	Castleconnor and Killglass Dispensary.
H. O. Ferrall, Esq., M. D.	Joseph Longheed, Esq., M. R. C. S.	W. Whittaker, Esq., M. D.
Fevers and epidemics have assumed a more aggravated form (cholera particularly) among the poor these few years since. This I attribute to their bad diet, with constant exposure to wet and cold, without a sufficient protection of clothes, &c.	They have not.	They frequently assume a typhoid character, from bad nutriment and impure ventilation.
The majority of the diseases of the poor are caused by the want of wholesome and nutritious food, and the use of a constant vegetable and poor diet.	I have found many cases of dyspepsia, &c. arising from bad food, and where good diet, lodging and clothing would have prevented disease.	I have frequently seen such cases.
—	The constant use of potatoes is promotive of disease.	—
Dram drinking, which, from the facility of getting the potteen spirits, contributes not a little to the infirmity and misery of the lower orders. At the same time, I do not perceive this habit on the increase.	The poor, if they had the means, would use ardent spirits to an excess. It is not on the decrease.	This practice, in my opinion, prevails extensively; from its being the habitual beverage of the peasantry in this district, it is impossible to state whether its consumption is on the increase or otherwise.
I generally have found the poor wanting many of the necessaries, and having few of the comforts of life.	The poor are absolutely only covered with rags; the food only potatoes; bedding, a little straw on the ground, and scarcely any covering; and nothing to make them comfortable. As to furniture, they have none that can be called so.	Miserably defective generally under all those heads.

CONNAUGHT—SLIGO.

Collooney Dispensary.	Drumcliff Dispensary.	Dromore West Dispensary.
—	J. Powell, Esq. Surgeon.	Travers Homan, Esq., M. D.
I have met some cases of fever that have assumed a malignant type, from want of cleanliness, due ventilation, and proper nourishment.	They have, from uncleanness, damp, and very imperfect ventilation.	They have, from damp, filth and bad ventilation.
I have.	I have seen several cases that I conceive were brought on by bad food, such as very indifferent salt fish, &c. &c., and convalescence much retarded by want of wholesome nourishment.	Not many; but I have seen numerous instances of convalescence being much retarded by want of proper nourishment, it being then far preferable to medicine.
No, I cannot say that I have; for their only food, except in a few instances, is potatoes.	General diet, potatoes; very little milk; and frequently indifferent salt fish.	Their general diet is potatoes.
I cannot say it is used to excess generally; neither that its use is on the increase.	I think it much on the decline, which I attribute to illicit distillation being much suppressed in this district.	It appears rather on the decline, more from the want of means to procure it, than any moral improvement.
Generally very badly provided with the necessary comforts of life.	In general very bad in all respects.	In general very badly provided.

CONNAUGHT—SLIGO.

Riverstown Dispensary.	Sligo Dispensary.	Saint John's Dispensary (Sligo).
Thomas Burrows, Esq., M. D.	Medical Officer and Committee.	James Kenny, Esq., M. D. Thomas Armstrong, Esq., M. D.
All fevers and epidemics assume a worse type and generally have their origin among the poor; the cause of this seems to be their extreme poverty and filthy mode of living, which will ever exist as long as superstition and ignorance rule their minds and habits.	Typhus fever has frequently prevailed very extensively here, especially in years of scarcity, when food was dear and of bad quality.	Fevers have assumed a particular type these few years past, so as to render the pulmonary system the principal seat of disease, owing in a great measure to the inclemency of the seasons, exposure to wet and cold, bad clothing, bad food, &c. &c.
Many diseases are brought on by want of proper food; in many instances the effects of medicine would be aided by proper or wholesome food.	Instances of this kind are very frequent, indeed of constant occurrence.	The potato and salt herring where it can be procured, salt dissolved in water taken with the potato, are productive of cutaneous and other diseases, which fresh and nutritive food would manifestly obviate.
Coarse vegetables, particularly potatoes, used invariably with sour milk or salt fish.	The poor live generally on potatoes, and when their crop has failed, or been of bad quality, disease almost always has accompanied its use.	See the preceding answer.
There is no district in the kingdom in which illicit distillation is carried to greater extent than that of Riverstown; such temptation existing, the use is excessive; from the low price of grain and the inefficiency of the excise laws, both use and quantity is much increased.	The excessive use of ardent spirits prevails too generally, and has been the prolific source of much evil as long as we can recollect, never more so than at present.	Much on the decrease, for obvious reasons, viz. for want of means, not from any influence of the Temperance Society.
Clothes of the worst, and sometimes naked; food the coarsest, and even that very scanty; bedding and furniture bad and filthy; ventilation none, except what the door admits. Of all human beings, there are none more void of comfort.	Generally as bad as possible, and indicative of the greatest poverty.	Generally in the most wretched state; destitute of food, clothing, bedding, furniture, fuel, &c.; a pig, when they fortunately have one, on one side, and a whole family lying on damp straw on the other.

CONNAUGHT—SLIGO.

LEINSTER—CARLOW.

Tubbercurry Dispensary.	Borris Dispensary.	Carlow Dispensary.
Wm. Powell, Esq., M. D., L. R. C. S. E.	Medical Officer and Committee.	James Porter, Esq., Surgeon.
The fevers of this country in general are of a mixed kind, being inflammatory in the commencement, but towards their conclusion the typhoid symptoms preponderate. The cases of fever I have seen here among the poor early assumed a typhoid character; sufficient cause may be found in the want of proper sustenance, cleanliness and ventilation.	There have been no cases of fever since my appointment, but pulmonary affections and bowel complaints have been to a degree epidemic.	They have not.
Cases of this description have sometimes come under my observation; but when advice was sought for, the mere restoration of proper sustenance would of itself be unable to combat the functional derangement, which a want of it produced, without the intervention of the healing art.	I have scarcely ever been able to trace disease during my time to actual want.	I am not aware of any.
A constant use of vegetable diet, especially of a bad description of potato that is much cultivated by the poor, owing to its being productive, appear to me to cause many diseases, especially as it tends to derange the healthy action of the digestive organs; nor is it to be wondered at, as physiologists have come to the conclusion that the most appropriate food for man consists in diet partly animal and vegetable.	The potatoes in this district are, generally speaking, wet, which accounts in some degree for the number of dyspeptic complaints.	Potatoes are their general diet.
The consumption of ardent spirits prevails to a great extent, but can state nothing by way of comparison.	It does prevail, but is certainly on the decrease in the town, from the establishment of a Temperance Society.	The excessive use of ardent spirits prevails, but I do not think it is on the increase.
Often extremely wretched, their clothes, food, bedding and furniture being of the worst and coarsest description, and frequently deficient in quantity; as to proper ventilation, it appears to be commonly neglected.	The most part of my district, extending seven miles, is, generally speaking, much better supplied with the necessaries of life than most other places.	In many cases very destitute.

LEINSTER—CARLOW.

Clonegal Dispensary.	Hacketstown Dispensary.	Myshall Dispensary.
Wm. Durdin, Esq. M. D.	Henry W. Morton, Esq.	R. Boyce, Esq. M. D.
Fevers have not been lately prevalent; about six years ago we had an epidemic typhus, which attacked 384 persons, of whom six died, being one death in 64 cases, which was a small proportion, one in 17 being the usual number among the poor, and one in six among the rich; the type was very mild, probably owing to the vegetable diet the people are accustomed to.	Typhus fever has made its appearance this season, the country being marshy, and many bogs in the vicinity, the season being wet.	I have remarked that fevers and epidemics assume a particular type, and that caused by poverty.
I have not observed many cases where actual disease has been brought on by want of proper sustenance; in some cases of dyspepsia, change of diet has been beneficial.	I have met many cases where bad food, with scarcity thereof, had been the remote cause of disease.	I have witnessed actual diseases brought on by want, when food would be preferable to medicine.
The food in use in this district appears to be very wholesome, the people being robust, healthy and active, and living, in general, to an advanced age.	The constant use of potatoes, with bad milk, cabbages, &c. &c. often cause flatulent diseases, dropsy, &c.	Bad potatoes and bad oatmeal.
Ardent spirits are used by some to excess, but not generally so; but I fear the use of them is on the increase.	On the decrease, as the paupers are not able to buy it.	I conceive the use of ardent spirits is on the decrease.
Clothes, tolerably good; food, mostly potatoes and milk, sometimes herrings and potatoes, and in winter, when milk is scarce, gruel and potatoes; meat about four times a year; a wooden bedstead, straw bed, with sheet and blankets, a table, stool and dresser; ventilation indifferent, owing to the dearness of glass.	Clothing, food, furniture, bedding, &c. &c., very bad.	In many instances I found them wanting clothes, bedding and sustenance.

LEINSTER—CARLOW—DUBLIN.

Tullow Dispensary.	Balbriggan & Stamullan Dispensaries.	Boosterstown Dispensary.
—	Medical Attendant and Committee.	Medical Attendant and Governors.
Typhus fever prevails, owing to bad food and a humid atmosphere.	Attended with more irritation of the stomach and bowels than formerly; I presume, cholera tendency.	I have not observed fevers among the poorer classes assume any particular type.
I have seen many instances where people have perished from diseases brought on by a want of wholesome food; a person fell under my notice lately, who, on recovering from fever, for want of proper sustenance, lost a part of both lower extremities; this poor man has a wife and four young children.	Many live on one meal, who must be more prone to disease than others better fed; with such nourishment, if it does not supersede medicine, it is the best auxiliary.	Very many instances.
I have generally found the constant use of potato and flatulent vegetables to produce confirmed dyspepsia.	Wet potatoes and stale fish cause very obstinate bowel derangements.	No.
The use of ardent spirits has been for some time very much on the decrease.	Prevails to a great degree, and it is to be feared rather increasing.	Yes; but I think that such practice is on the decrease.
Their raiment, food, fuel and lodging are of the worst possible description; their clothes ragged; their food, even in time of illness, consists of potatoes, sometimes gruel and milk supplied by some charitable neighbour; the bedding of straw or rushes, their day clothes often the only night-covering, so that during sickness their state is most deplorable; scarcely any furniture, and a very bad supply of fuel; but there is not now much prejudice against ventilating the apartments of the sick.	In very many instances utter destitution; ventilation and cleanliness badly attended to.	Without any exception, I find very great deficiency in all these items, and in many cases total destitution.

LEINSTER—DUBLIN.

Castleknock Dispensary.	Chapelizod Dispensary.	Clondalkin Dispensary.
	Medical Attendant and Committee.	Medical Attendant and Committee.
About four or five years ago, ague prevailed among the lower classes; since that, chiefly the typhoid fever.	The diseases are such as usually occur, as will be seen by printed Report.	They have; some to the influence of the atmosphere, some to want of cleanliness, and others to contagion, brought and kept up by itinerants from Dublin.
Yes.	Not many instances, as we send the very bad cases to hospital in Dublin, where they are well taken care of. There is also much charity given in these parishes.	I have met very few cases where disease has been induced by want of food; but every day, cases where light nourishment is necessary to convalescents, and which has been mostly supplied either by their landlord or employer, when under their protection, or by the charitable and humane neighbour.
Potatoes.	I have not.	I have not.
Not particularly; neither declining nor increasing.	To a great degree, amongst men and lads; and is certainly on the increase.	It does, to a frightful extent, and, according to their means, on the increase.
Extremely bad.	Generally speaking, most wretched. are in constant employment, are comfortable; but by far the greater number are destitute of all of them; and even tradesmen, earning a pound per week, and in constant employment, are equally destitute with the labourers, owing to habitual drunkenness. I have observed sober men, or of good character, to be seldom out of employment.	Those who are good managers, and do not spend their money on spirits, and who

LEINSTER—DUBLIN.

Dublin General Dispensary.	Dublin South-eastern General Dispensary.	Dundrum Dispensary.
Charles M'Carthy, Esq. M. D.	John Thwaites, Esq. M. D.	William Burke, Esq. M. D.
The fevers and other epidemics are not different from those that prevail in other parts of Ireland. and 4: eruptive fevers have been very malignant latterly, and exhibited, in many instances, symptoms bordering on cholera, which last disease has nearly quite disappeared from our district.	The fever most prevalent among the poor is that denominated gastric fever, in the majority of cases dependent on the causes mentioned in the replies to Nos. 3	Fevers have not assumed any particular type latterly: typhus seldom appears; symptomatic fever is that which generally occurs.
Such cases are of frequent occurrence.	The want of free ventilation, conjoined with the consequent accumulation of filth and unwholesome effluvia, more than any particular deficiency in the character of the food employed, has contributed to aggravate the distress of the poor of the district.	I have no doubt but that proper sustenance, wholesome food, sufficient clothing, comfortable beds, bedding and houses, would greatly diminish the occurrence of disease.
Yes, particularly the excessive use of cheap bad tea, and of other unwholesome food, precariously obtained.	We have reason to believe that the use of potatoes, fish of bad quality, salt herrings and bad tea, without nutritious food, have been productive of disease among the poor.	Potatoes and tea, with bread or cake, home-made, form their principal sustenance. Habit so accustoms their constitutions to this description of food, that I cannot say disease is promoted by it.
Yes, but it is not probably on the increase.	The excessive use of ardent spirits prevails to a very great extent among the poor of the district, and is more productive of disease than any other single cause. It has been decidedly on the increase latterly, which we believe is in a great measure owing to the public-houses being open on Sundays, a day when the labouring classes are disengaged, and succeeding to that on which they receive their wages.	I believe the consumption of ardent spirits in the district is very considerable; and I should suppose, from the increase of whiskey-shops, is on the increase. These shops present a destructive temptation to the poor.
In these respects there are various gradations; but the destitution of the majority is extreme. In a great many instances the use of drugs is not only useless, but would be injurious, from the want of clothes, bed, or a warm drink of any kind.	Generally speaking, the great body of the poor have been found very deficient in all the respects mentioned. The want of food clothes and bedding has been frequently found so great, as to have rendered needful the establishment of a nourishment and clothing Society (separate in funds and committee) in co-operation with the Dispensary, for information respecting the usefulness of which, see Reports.	The houses of the poor are generally very wretched in every particular specified.

LEINSTER—DUBLIN.

Lucan Dispensary.	Malahide Dispensary.	Newcastle Dispensary.
The Committee and Medical Attendant.	Hans Lloyd, Esq. M. D.	Mr. Charles Madden, Apothecary.
Fevers for some time back, particularly since the late awful visitation of cholera, have been rather infrequent in this neighbourhood; and since the influenza, with the exception of measles, we have had nothing of an epidemical character.	All epidemic diseases have, in my district been much milder and of more open form than in the neighbourhood.	Not more than usual.
I cannot say I have.	In very few instances.	I have.
Not particularly; however, amongst the very poorer classes, whose subsistence is principally, if not wholly, derived from the use of potatoes, I have observed persons under such privations to frequently apply with morbid affections of the stomach, not, however of a very serious nature.	Potatoes, when bad, in scarce years, have produced disposition to fever, with bowel complaints.	I have not.
It prevails to an excessive degree in this district, and is decidedly on the increase.	From seventeen years' experience, I perceive the old people have indulged, and the young, following their example in the excessive use of spirits, when money and employment are plenty.	It does not; rather on the decrease.
In all these respects in the worst possible state.	Improving considerably for the last ten years in this district.	Most commonly in a wretched state.

LEINSTER—DUBLIN.

Raheny Dispensary.	Rathdown Dispensary.	Rathfarnham Dispensary.
G. A. Owen, Esq. M. D.	H. Plant, Esq. M. D.
With the exception of cholera, there has been no remarkable epidemic.	No, they have not.	I have only found, in the case of the cholera and influenza, that all the diseases during their prevalence put on this type. I cannot tell to what cause to attribute them, except from the state of the atmosphere, as in my district I could not trace them to contagion.
Disease is often induced and always aggravated by bad food.	I have not known a single instance; but I am frequently called upon to visit the sick, and at a time when food of a particular description would be more suitable than medicine.	In several cases.
Generally speaking, I have not.	Spirits and tea.	I think in general the potato food injurious to them; often when they get animal food, they use it to gluttony, and bring on bowel complaints.
The use of spirits is universal, and productive, in every sense of the word, of the very worst and most injurious consequences.	It cannot possibly be worse.	It frequently does; I do not think it on the increase, or otherwise.
Very frequently without any thing deserving the name of food or clothing.	The greater number of them, moderately comfortable as to clothes, food, bedding, &c. but ventilation very bad, and the cabins sunk, that is, the floor much lower than the adjoining road.	I have generally found them in the most deplorable state; in so much so, that I often feared to apply the necessary remedies, as the medicine would be injurious, from the cold, damp and want of necessary covering.

LEINSTER—DUBLIN.

Rush Dispensary.	Santry District Dispensary.	Skerries Dispensary.
W. H. Franklin, Esq. M. D.	Samuel Cusack, Esq. M. D.	William Thornhill, Esq. M. D.
Cholera was very fatal in 1832, since when the town has been moderately healthy.	None particularly.	No.
This obtains in six cases out of ten.	Yes.	In some cases.
A want of sufficient food is more frequently the cause than the quality of what they have.	Badly cooked potatoes, and bad tea, without milk.	No.
The people here are poor and industrious, and ardent spirits are not used to excess.	It does very much.	No.
Nearly destitute.	Wretched in every respect, generally, with some exceptions, most of the wretchedness arising out of an absence of a taste for comforts, and in many instances from intemperance.	In rather an indifferent state.

LEINSTER—DUBLIN.

Stillorgan and Newtown Park Dispensary.	Swords Dispensary.	Tallaght Dispensary.
H. C. Field, Esq. M. D.	M. O'Grady, Esq. M. D.	R. P. Burkitt, Esq. M. D.
Yes; they generally assume the typhoid character, which I attribute to the use of ardent spirits, and food possessed of but little nutriment.	Fevers of all types have made their appearance in this district from time to time, since I came to reside in it, but since the cholera (malignant) made its appearance, we have had no epidemic fevers; indeed, diseases appear to have changed their character since the introduction of the above disease.	They have not assumed a particular type.
I have not, except in the last severe influenza, when I have found nutriment frequently more advisable than medicine.	Frequently.	Want of proper food is a most fertile source of disease. In the treatment of disease a most material feature is the establishment of a rule of diet, and if food alone be necessary, medicine is, of course, not recommended.
Not often in my district.	Tea improperly prepared, tobacco, bad potatoes and salt fish, a constant cause of indigestion, from which the lower orders of this district suffer severely.	I have not.
The use of ardent spirits does not prevail to a great extent in my district, nor do I think it on the increase.	It does, to a very great extent; I believe on the increase.	It does, but I do not think it on the increase.
I generally find them in a very bad state.	Generally speaking better off in these respects than in other country districts, except in the village of Swords, where there is a large pauper population brought together by the inducements of having their children educated free of expense, after a residence of three years, and a house and garden upon an extensive common, if they have the industry to erect a hut, free also of rent or taxes.	In general badly clad. Food of a coarse sort; sometimes deficient in quantity, and often ill-suited to their diseases. The bedding generally consists of a blanket and bad quilt, with a coat or cloak in addition upon straw, often on the ground. Furniture totally deficient. The door and chimney are the only ventilators where the cabin walls are without crack or crevice. Generally deficient of necessary comforts.

LEINSTER—KILDARE.

Athy Dispensary.	Carberry Dispensary.	Castledermott Dispensary.
William Clayton, Esq. Surgeon, R. N.	J. Grattan, Esq. Medical Officer.	Samuel Richard Carter, Esq. Med ^l Super.
Typhus fever and dysentery are the most frequent diseases, and last year cholera prevailed very extensively. I cannot assign any satisfactory cause.	Intermittents have been frequent, also typhus fevers, rheumatic and dyspeptic complaints, feverish and epidemic catarrhs, have also prevailed.	The epidemics of this district have not been marked by any particular type; neither can they be attributed to any extraordinary cause; want of cleanliness and comfort constitute the ordinary causes, and as soon as these wants are obviated, disease declines.
I cannot call to mind an instance where disease was actually brought on by want of proper sustenance, but I think that typhus fever and dysentery prevail in proportion to the poverty of the people.	I have met many hungry cases, none of downright privation, their neighbours preventing that extreme, nor have I ever met a death from inanition.	I have not, with the exception of complaints of the stomach, produced by the constant use of vegetable food, and rendered obstinate through the inability to procure a change of diet.
I think that those who subsist most on potatoes are most subject to diseases of the digestive organs, as well as most difficult of cure. The assistance afforded by the "Poor Relief Association of Athy" contributed greatly to the recovery and restoration to health of such persons as required food as well as medicine. The funds of this institution (which are very limited) are at my disposal for such objects as require their aid.	Scanty or injured potato crops prove a source of disease, from debility, fever, dyspeptic and bowel affections.	In consequence of perpetual and unvaried use of potatoes, and (in the summer season) "corn kale" constituting the principal articles of the poor man's dietary, diseases of the stomach and bowels are most prevalent.
There are many persons in this neighbourhood who use ardent spirits to excess. I think the practice is much on the increase.	It is, no doubt, excessive, and on the increase, I have reason to think, all through the district.	The excessive use of whisky is not prevalent, and is rather on the decrease.
In a state of much destitution in the town, but not so much so in the country.	Generally worse than indifferent; bad cabins; bed as often on the floor as raised from it; bedding scanty as well as bed-clothes; generally tolerably well as to fuel, which is all they can call comfort.	I have invariably found the poor in my district in a wretched state, as to bed-clothes, furniture and ventilation, more particularly the two last, bed-clothing being supplied to a very considerable amount every winter by the benevolence of the Vicar of the parish of Castledermott, The Rev. Archibald R. Hamilton.

LEINSTER—KILDARE

Clane Dispensary.	Donadea Dispensary.	Johnstown Bridge Dispensary.
The Committee and Medical Attendant.	The Committee and Medical Attendant.	P. O'Brien, Esq. Surgeon.
Ague, principally to be met with on the edges of bog, assumed the tertian type.	They have not presented any thing unusual or remarkable.	Typhus fevers, intermittents and dysentery are mostly prevalent in this district; they are produced by want of warm clothing, particularly bed-clothes, poverty of diet, want of ventilation, and being surrounded by bogs and flooded rivers, capable of improvement.
Actual disease I have not; however, I am convinced that warm clothing, wholesome food, comfortable bedding, in a clean well ventilated cottage, constant and regular employment, would prevent half the disease they are now subject to.	I have met some cases of this description.	The quality of their food predisposes them to disease, but I am not aware of any case in this district produced by actual want. In all cases of convalescence, wholesome food is substituted for medicine, by the charity of individuals under my advice; where that is not the case, I supply it myself.
I consider bad potatoes, sour buttermilk, salted herrings, on which they exist, for the most part promotive of disease.	The diet of the poor, for the most part, are potatoes, and in some seasons very bad, to which may be attributed dyspeptic diseases and other complaints.	The food of the poor in this district being as stated above, I find diarrhoea, dysentery and cholera often succeeded by typhus fever, prevalent for four or five weeks, from the middle of July to the end of August, from the use of new potatoes, and badly dressed vegetables.
The excessive use of ardent spirits is not now so prevalent as formerly.	The use of spirits I believe to be rather on the decrease.	It does not, and I do not conceive the practice to be on the increase.
Generally speaking, in the most miserable condition.	In the most miserable condition.	I have found them in want of warm clothing, particularly the females, their food consisting of potatoes, and any vegetables they can procure; bed-clothes are much wanting; in many instances there are none, and their houses without ventilation.

LEINSTER—KILDARE.

Kilcock Dispensary.	Monasterevan Dispensary.	Newbridge Dispensary.
Samuel Richard Carter, Esq. Med. Super.	A. Graham, Esq. Medical-Officer.	William Clayton, Esq. Surgeon, R.N.
I have not observed the fevers or epidemics of this district assume any particular type among the poorer classes.	They have not.	There has been but little fever and cholera, the only epidemic since I have had the care.
I do not recollect an instance where actual disease was brought on by want of proper sustenance; I have no doubt, however, that the want of proper sustenance is in numerous instances a predisposing cause of disease, and that many sink into the grave for want of proper sustenance when visited by sickness.	I have not.	Several.
Although the food of the poor is of the worst description, I cannot take upon myself to say, from my actual observation, that it has been in any instance promotive of disease.	I cannot say I have.	The constant use of potatoes alone makes dyspepsia very general.
The more pressing wants of the poor generally do not permit them to indulge much in the use of ardent spirits. That a disposition to inebriety among that class of persons exists, I have no doubt, from the many examples that have fallen under my ment in their moral habits, I cannot say ;	Not in this district, at least amongst those who come under the denomination of dispensary patients; their poverty debars them from the use of it.	There is much ardent spirit used, but I believe less than I have known in other parts of the kingdom.
In almost every instance in a very wretched state.	Except fuel, the poor are destitute nearly of every comfort. Their food potatoes, often without milk; their clothing, bedding and furniture very deficient, and their cabins badly ventilated.	In very many instances destitute of all.

LEINSTER—KILDARE.—KILKENNY.

Robertstown Dispensary.	Ballyragget Dispensary.	Callan Dispensary.
W. Godfrey Dyas, Esq. M.D.	John Bradley, Esq. Surgeon.	Mr. Abraham W. Cronyn, Med^l Attend^t.
I am of opinion that the poor in this country are not only more predisposed to be attacked by the prevailing epidemic of the season, but are also more subject to have such disease (whatever it may be) accompanied by symptoms of a more dangerous character than that attendant on symptoms of the disease in persons better circumstanced in life. This I attribute to improper diet, want of cleanliness, fatigue and irregular habits.	Fevers generally assume a typhoid type, which I think chiefly (but not entirely) attributable to the filth in and about the cabins of the poor, and to imperfect ventilation.	Fevers increase, I think, for want of cleanliness, perhaps not having clothing to change, and want of ventilation.
I think that half the patients who apply for relief are the subjects of chronic gastritis, a disease for the most part induced in them by the combined influence of ardent spirits drunk without being previously diluted, and a diet almost altogether vegetable.	I have seen many cases in which disease has been brought on by want of proper sustenance; and innumerable cases in which appropriate food might be substituted for medicine, or at least in which medicine could effect little without suitable diet.	I have found very few.
See Answer to Question 2.	Potatoes constitute the main article of food among the poor, which when good in quality I cannot regard as promotive of disease. I have not found any food in use among the poor directly or peculiarly promotive of disease.	I have not.
It does not, and I do not conceive the practice to be on the increase.	It does; I think it stationary.	It does very much.
The poor in my district are not very wretched, not so much so indeed as the external appearance both of themselves and of their cabins might lead a stranger to suppose. I do not think there are many amongst them in absolute want.	In all these respects I have found the poor generally in a very wretched state, particularly in regard to bedding and ventilation.	I find the necessary comforts very much wanting; but clothing, I should think, is the chief want.

LEINSTER—KILKENNY.

Castle Comer Dispensary.	Durrow Dispensary.	Freshford Dispensary.
George Hartford, Esq. M. D.	Robert Drought, Esq. M. D.	James Cullenan, Esq. M. D.
I cannot say they have, with the exception of pthisis, or consumption, which, I may say, is the plague of this district, owing to the foul air and coal-dust inhaled in the coal-pits; the other diseases are as elsewhere.	They have not, in my opinion, changed their type or character; but in this wet weather fevers are and have been very generally accompanied by unusually severe catarrhal affections.	I think not; I have found it much the same for the last 15 or 16 years, but I think fever has rather increased latterly, which I attribute to poverty, and their not being able to procure food, bedding or clothing, and a consequent want of cleanliness.
I have seen cases where nourishing food would be most useful; but I have seen no case of disease produced by the food in use in this district, viz. the potato, &c. &c.	I have met cases, in my opinion, caused by that calamity, where wholesome food might have been beneficially substituted for medicine.	I have found this to be the case in many instances; but I have met with many cases where wholesome food might have been beneficially substituted for medicine.
Answered above.	In years when potatoes are scarce, wild kale and other unwholesome vegetables are substituted as food, and used in such quantities as to promote disease.	Potatoes are the principal food of the poor, and I have found them more subject to particular diseases when the potatoes are new.
It does to a great degree; and owing to the increased number of small whisky houses, there must be greater facilities to obtain it, and more ardent spirits, &c. &c. must be drunk to support them.	It does, and more especially since the white-feet system commenced, previous to which, I think, the excessive use of ardent spirits was not on the increase.	Not generally, and I do not think it is on the increase.
In the very worst state. Scarcely any clothes or bedding; a little hay or rushes, with a blanket, forms the general family bed of most of the colliery people; though the head of the family may be earning 12s. or 18s. per week, most of it goes in whisky.	Generally in a wretched state as to clothing, food, bedding, furniture and necessary comforts, and do not know the benefit of ventilation.	In a most wretched state in every respect.

LEINSTER—KILKENNY.

Gowran Dispensary.	Graigie Dispensary.	Innistigue Dispensary.
James Newell, Esq. Surgeon.	Edward Fitzpatrick, Esq. Surgeon.	Miles Sterling, Esq. L. C. S. D.
Fever and epidemics have often assumed a particular and malignant type among the poorer classes. The causes would often be difficult to ascertain, and an attempt at doing so would be involved in a tedious theory.	Fever often assumes a bad type, from the want of proper ventilation.	Fevers sometimes assume a typhoid character, which is to be attributed to want of cleanliness and sufficient ventilation; occasionally to unwholesome food.
I have experienced some instances where disease has been brought on by want of proper sustenance, and where proper nourishment at an early period might have prevented the disease.	I have in a great many instances.	I have rarely observed that disease has been brought on by want of proper sustenance, but I have frequently met with cases where nutritious food would have greatly accelerated recovery.
The almost constant use of potatoes without any thing else, and occasionally sour milk, deprived of its most nutritious quality. Salt fish, &c. &c. I have often found the cause of disease.	Bad potatoes, herrings and badly cooked vegetables.	It is my opinion that the continual use of the potato is productive of functional disease of the stomach, particularly in females.
The excessive use of ardent spirits does not much prevail here, and I believe the practice is on the decrease.	Not particularly. I think it is on the decrease.	It does, to some extent. I conceive the practice is rather decreasing; but it is difficult to give an accurate answer to this Query.
In several instances I have found the clothes, food and bedding miserable; the furniture very bad; ventilation very bad, many cabins having no windows. I have, however, met many instances of comparative comfort. In the greater portion of this district the poor are employed by a resident gentry and respectable farmers; both are charitable.	In a very bad state; no furniture. Bed generally straw; house badly ventilated.	With the exception of the poor of the town (of whom many are supported by annuities from the landed proprietor, who also liberally distributes blankets in the winter to the most necessitous, and, in cases of sickness, contributes to their comforts), I have in general found them very badly clothed, living on potatoes and milk; their bedding straw, with very insufficient covering; scarcely any furniture in their houses, which are filthy, and very imperfectly ventilated.

LEINSTER—KILKENNY.

Johnstown Dispensary.	Kilkenny Dispensary.	Kilmacow Dispensary.
Patrick Ryan, Esq., M.D.	N. Alcock, Esq., Medical Attendant.	Treasurer and Medical Attendant.
Fevers do assume a particular type; I never knew the cause explained, and I believe it is inexplicable.	I am not aware that they have.	Whenever fevers were epidemic here, they were generally of a low type, and often very malignant, owing, I should suppose, to unwholesome food, and the excessive use of ardent spirits.
I have not seen many such cases.	Very many. It is remarkable that in busy seasons, such as harvest, &c. how applications for medicine diminish.	I think intemperance and impoverished food often cause disease, and in my opinion, the contrary would, in many cases, obviate the necessity of medicine.
Yes; the potato causes various diseases of the stomach.	Potatoes are their general food, and when good and plenty, do not appear at all injurious.	The principal food, potatoes, salt-fish and cabbage.
Yes, the use of ardent spirits prevails; I cannot say whether it is on the decline or otherwise.	It does, very much, and I would say is on the increase.	The people here are very much addicted to beer, and ardent spirits to excess. I cannot say that the practice is on the increase.
I find them generally in a bad state.	Generally speaking, the poor are destitute of what may be considered necessary comforts.	In most cases bad in the extreme.

LEINSTER—KILKENNY.

Knocktopher Dispensary.	Thomastown Dispensary.	Urlingford Dispensary.
Richard S. Peile, Esq., L.R.C.S.D.	Samuel A. Duke, Esq., Medical Attendant.	William Greene, Esq., Surgeon.
They have; I cannot satisfactorily account for the cause.	Fevers and other epidemics occasionally prevail here, the great and primary cause poverty.	I cannot say they have.
I have, in many cases, particularly when fever or other diseases are prevailing in the district.	In many instances I have been obliged to solicit subscriptions from the neighbouring gentry (and seldom in vain), to procure all the necessaries stated above, before I can with safety administer any remedy.	I cannot say that I know any instance where actual disease has been brought on by want of sustenance; but many diseases have been retarded in the cure, or rendered totally incurable for want of proper food.
Bad potatoes, or any damaged food in common use.	Certainly; the poor people here are often subject to great distress, and are generally obliged to collect weeds and other improper food during the summer months, and which I think must contribute greatly to the promotion of disease.	I have not.
I consider it does; it seems stationary.	The use of ardent spirits is not so prevalent here as in other places; but certainly on the increase.	It does prevail here; but I do not consider it on the increase.
The poor of this district are in general in a wretched state as to food, clothing, &c.	Generally in the greatest possible destitution as to clothes, food, bedding and all other necessary comforts.	The clothes in general of a bad description; food, the potato; bedding, straw, with bad covering, mostly the clothes worn in the day-time; no furniture, and no ventilation, save by the door-way.

LEINSTER—KING'S COUNTY.

Banagher Dispensary.	Edenderry Dispensary.	Farbane Dispensary.
J. Bird, Esq., M.D.	J. Grattan, Esq., M.D.	C. D. Fry, Esq., M.D.
Particularly free from fever; suffered severely from spasmodic cholera last year.	Generally of the intermittent or typhoid type; often gastric fever produced, as per No. 8.	The poor, when labouring under fever, have generally appeared in a more debilitated state than the upper class, which appears to me attributable to the richness of diet made use of by the latter.
In almost every instance wholesome food would materially contribute to the recovery of the patient; but from the state of destitution of most of the poor, they find it impossible to procure proper nutriment.	The kindness and good feeling of their more fortunate neighbours seldom allow them to be actually hungry, nor can I say I have really met such a case.	A few.
No.	The potato crop, when scanty or of indifferent quality, is likely to give rise to fevers, dyspepsia and other diseases of debility.	Not any.
No; rather on the decrease.	It is certainly excessive, and, I lament to say, yearly increasing; one failure or runaway generally producing two new dram-shops in its place.	Very much, and rather on the increase.
In many instances great want of necessary comforts; bedding, bad straw; blankets wanting, and not the slightest attempt at ventilation. wall, badly glazed; the bedding, straw or hay, and sometimes fern; little covering, in addition to the apparel worn through the day; the bed as often at least on the ground as raised by a bedstead.	As to comforts, they are hardly to be found. The cabins consist generally of one, sometimes of two apartments, badly lighted, and ventilated only by the door and chimney; sometimes a hole through the mud	Clothes generally bad; potatoes the almost sole article of food, of which they possess a tolerably plentiful supply; bedding and furniture miserable; free air quite enough, and rarely enjoying any comfort, save fire, of which a most abundant supply may easily be obtained. I have, however, seen other districts in which the poor appeared more wretched.

LEINSTER—KING'S COUNTY.

Frankford and Ballyboy Dispensary.	Geashill Dispensary.	Kennitty Dispensary.
The Committee.	Committee and Medical Attendant.	Treasurer and Medical Attendant.
Nothing unusual.	Fevers or epidemics have not assumed any particular type: any season I have witnessed them assuming a more malignant nature than common, I have attributed it to the severity of the weather, which always existed under such circumstances.	Low fevers are prevalent, but confined to the poorer classes. See answers to 3 and 4.
Frequently.	I have experienced several.	I have very many.
Bad potatoes, bad herrings and bad milk are productive of such, and are the general food of the poor.	The use of ardent spirits decidedly disadvantageous, and producing particular diseases; also, I am disposed to think, that when either the potato or oatmeal are the sole subsistence, they tend to disease.	Yes, a bad description of potato.
The use of ardent spirits prevail, but not now more prevalent, perhaps not so much so.	The excessive use of ardent spirits does prevail, and I conceive drunkenness on the increase; but latterly, I think, there is more beer and less spirits used in this district.	It does prevail, and I conceive it is on the increase.
Generally destitute, in point of food, clothing, bedding and furniture; increased by want of cleanliness and ventilation.	The labouring class in this neighbourhood are very deficient in comforts, or even necessities: the petty farmers are tolerably supplied.	Generally very bad; particularly so, as to food, bedding and ventilation.

LEINSTER—KING'S COUNTY.

Moneygall Dispensary.	Phillipstown Dispensary.	Shinrone Dispensary.
C. Bourne, Esq., Surgeon.	—	Committee and Medical Attendant.
The district in general healthy, not having been visited by cholera; it at present affords a few cases of slight common cholera and bowel complaints.	Want of wholesome food, clothing and bedding are causes of much sickness and suffering amongst the poor of this district in the winter season.	They have not. We have had only 14 cases of cholera.
Few, if any, with the general exception that during actual sickness a change of diet becomes necessary.	Potatoes the chief food in use, and to the constant use of them is attributable the severe forms of disease of stomach and bowels so much complained of by the poor of this district. be easily procured on my application to that effect to any of the gentry of the neighbourhood.	I have seldom seen actual disease produced here by want of proper sustenance; but an improvement in the food of invalids is frequently more conducive to their recovery than any medicine, and can indeed
No.	—	—
The general rule of getting drunk on market and fair days and Sundays is only checked by the poverty of the parties; the consideration of the family seldom forms a bar; if on the decline, it is scarcely observable.	The poorer class of persons above alluded to seldom drink spirits. Tradesmen residing in and near towns and villages in this neighbourhood are very much addicted to the use of ardent spirits.	It does not; beer is more generally used.
Day clothes bad; night clothes in general very little more than the day clothes; bedding, straw or hay, kept long in use, consequently non-elastic, stinking, &c. Food, dry potatoes; furniture scarce deserving the name; ventilation such as can be afforded by one door to a family with pigs, &c.;	In many parts of the district the poor are almost without clothing; their beds straw, on the ground, and in many instances a very scanty supply of it; little or no bed-clothes. Their food a dry potato the year through. comforts are not thought of.	In a tolerably good state in this neighbourhood.

LEINSTER—LONGFORD.

Ballymahon Dispensary.	Edgworthstown Dispensary.	Granard Dispensary.
Committee and Medical Attendant.	T. Clarke, Esq., Surgeon, R.N.	Mark Daly, Esq., M.D.
Fevers often assume the typhoid type, from the habit being predisposed from want, exposure to atmospheric changes, &c.	No; but they spread very much in the family, owing to the smallness of their houses.	Want of proper nourishment.
Instances have occurred where actual disease has been brought on by want of proper sustenance.	In very many instances.	Yes.
The food, which chiefly consists of potatoes, and which they unfortunately prefer half boiled, generates disease.	Potatoes and butter-milk, sometimes a salt herring, are their principal food; flesh meat about four times a year.	Potato diet
It does, and varies inversely as the price of corn, on account of illicit distillation.	Illicit ardent spirits are much used in the district; not on the increase, but about stationary.	It does, and there have been instances where the poor have substituted whisky for milk with their potatoes.
As it is generally the very lower order of the poor that are relieved and visited by the surgeon, it is but natural to expect that, generally speaking, poverty exists in most of their dwellings, and ventilation is universally required.	For the most part in the greatest state of want and destitution.	Very destitute.

LEINSTER—LOUTH.

Ardee Dispensary.	Ballymascanlan Dispensary.	Carlingford Dispensary.
Alexander Muntketrick, Esq., M. D.	J. Walker, Esq., Surgeon.	The Chairman and Medical Attendant.
Yes, certainly, and I think attributable to the combined influence of filth and damp, improper and scanty food, deficiency of clothes and fuel.	Fevers are generally of a mild nature, which in some degree is owing to moderation in diet, &c.	No particular type.
In very many instances.	I have not known disease brought on by want of food; in many cases food, by my directions, has been substituted for medicine.	A great many.
The almost exclusively potato diet of the poor is very conducive of the diseases called dyspeptic.	I have not.	Their only food potatoes, which are decidedly injurious where disease exists.
The use of ardent spirits is very considerable, but the habits of the people do not seem changed as to the indulgence.	It does not.	It does, and is on the increase.
Very bad; in these particulars they are wretchedly deficient.	Very middling, and in some instances I have known subscriptions made to procure blankets, bedding, &c.	Very deficient in all those, and many in absolute want.

LEINSTER—LOUTH.

Castlebellingham Dispensary.	Collon Dispensary.	Dunleer Dispensary.
John Gimble, Esq., M. D.	Richard L. Pincking, Esq., M. D.	John Ball, Esq., Medical Attendant.
The want of cleanliness, ventilation and suitable nourishment, are friendly to the progress of epidemic and contagious disease. My district has not suffered much from such diseases.	They have not.	In a variety of cases fevers and epidemics have assumed a malignant type, which I attribute to filth, bad clothing and want of proper nourishment.
I have frequently been called on to give attendance where wholesome food would be of much more benefit than medicine.	When dearth of provision has prevailed, soup-kitchens have from time to time been established, to meet the exigencies of the poor.	I have experienced many instances where actual disease has been brought on by want of proper sustenance, and where wholesome food would have altogether precluded the necessity of medicine.
The description of food used by the poor is a great cause of the frequency of stomach and bowel complaints, more particularly among the young and old of that class.	Potatoes and milk is the general food among the poor, and I believe they do not promote disease.	Never, unless in times of scarcity; but the want of good food has always aggravated such disease as presented itself, and caused its extension.
The use of ardent spirits still prevails, but has been on the decrease for some years past.	It does, and is very much on the increase; there have been three new spirit shops opened within the last month, but which Lord Ferrard has given orders should be closed.	It does very much, and it appears to me that the practice is considerably on the increase latterly.
The poor are generally fed on potatoes; their cabins are filthy, their beds uncomfortable, and ventilation is not attended to; their clothing very bad.	Among those who require the benefit of this charity, I have found them in general, as other paupers in the kingdom, in want of every comfort.	In a deplorable state as to clothes; food principally potatoes; the bed-clothing chiefly comprising that worn by day; ventilation interrupted; and as to furniture, it does not deserve the name.

LEINSTER—LOUTH—MEATH.

Louth Dispensary.	Termonfeckin Dispensary.	Agher Dispensary.
Committee and Medical Attendant.	Thomas Gernon, Esq., M.D.	Committee and Medical Attendant.
Not lately.	They have not assumed any particular type.	Fevers or epidemics have not assumed any particular type in this district.
None where actual disease has been brought on; diseases have been prolonged and renewed for want of proper nourishment when patients are in a convalescent state.	I have experienced disease very often brought on by want of sustenance, and many instances where wholesome food might be beneficially substituted for medicine.	I have found a few old and destitute persons where disease was brought on by want of proper food, and wholesome sustenance might have been beneficially substituted for medicines.
Not within the last three years.	I have; potato and salt fish.	I have not found any particular kind of food in this district promotive of disease.
The use of ardent spirits has prevailed to a great extent in this district for the last 18 months.	The excessive use of ardent spirits does prevail, and is, I think, on the increase.	The excessive use of ardent spirits prevails in this district, and is on the increase.
In all very badly provided.	I have found the poor very badly off as to clothes, bedding, furniture and ventilation, and almost destitute of the necessary comforts.	I have found old persons in want, but not the labouring poor.

LEINSTER—MEATH.

Athboy Dispensary.	Balliver Dispensary.	Clonard Dispensary.
James Adams, Esq., M.D.	James Adams, Esq., M.D.	The Treasurer.
During the last two years they have been particularly free from fever; when it did exist as an epidemic, the cause might be attributed to their want of the common necessities of life.	—	Generally low typhus, brought on by bad feeding and damp bedding, &c. and the filth of their dwellings.
I have frequently.	—	Constantly.
Yes; when provisions are dear in summer, the poor make use of wild mustard, which produces bowel complaints.	—	Yes; the constant living on potatoes produces dyspepsia and other disorders.
It does, to an alarming extent; I consider it to be on the increase, and unless some restraint is placed on it, all efforts to benefit the poor are likely to prove unavailing.	—	To a great extent; much on the increase.
Their food consists chiefly of potatoes, and they are destitute of almost every comfort, having bad beds, clothing, &c.	—	The medical attendant informs me no thing can be more wretched.

LEINSTER—MEATH.

Crossakeel Dispensary.	Duleek and Black Lion Dispensaries.	Dunboyne Dispensary.
Henry Davidge, Esq., M.D.	Edward Fogarty, Esq., M.D.	James Goodshaw, Esq., M.D.
Fevers are occasioned with the poor by the want of necessary comforts, and become general by the intercourse of each other.	Fever has not been prevalent for the last three years in any part of the district, except the Cloughan, where it assumed a low typhoid character; probably from dirt, crowding, the miserable potato, and the extravagance noticed in Query 4.	Fevers are not now frequent, nor do I think, since the invasion of cholera, that epidemics of any character prevail to such an extent amongst the lower classes as before it.
I have in very many cases found disease brought on from want of food and clothing; but when ill, attribute their recovery to medical aid, and food after. would be less subject to disease, if they had a better diet	If any instances of this kind have occurred, they do not strike my memory at present. We have had no actual famine since my residence commenced here; but, generally speaking, I do suppose the poor, and particularly infectious disease, than the miserable potato.	Acute disease is seldom produced by deficiency in the quantity or depravity in the quality of food consumed by the lower classes; but the exclusive potato diet of the over-worked pauper in health, frequently predisposes to affections of the stomach and bowels, and in his convalescence from accidental illness, induced by cold, &c., it frequently retards his perfect recovery.
I am of opinion, the constant use of potatoes, particularly at a season when both scarce and bad, unaccompanied with any other diet, to be in a great degree the cause of illness.	Same answer as to Query 2.
I think the use of spirits on the decline, with the exception of this season, there being so much illicit whisky obtained cheap.	The excess does prevail in the district, particularly in Duleek. I think it is stationary; and I may remark here, that the poor are very extravagant in proportion to their means, and spend much of their earnings on tea, tobacco and whisky. These must be had, if there is not a rag for the back or a shoe for the foot.	I do not perceive it. In my district I do not see any thing like the drunkenness that was practised some five or six years ago.
I have found the poor deficient in all these comforts, with few exceptions.	With a very few exceptions, in a state of very great destitution and misery, with regard to all those things, particularly in the villages of Duleek and the Cloughan. The people in the country parts of this district are not so badly off.	In a deplorably destitute condition.

LEINSTER—MEATH.

Julianstown and Bellewstown Dispensaries.	Kells Dispensary.	Kilmainhamwood Dispensary.
T. Lynch, Esq., Surgeon.	B. M'Dermott, Esq., M.D.	Treasurer and Medical Attendant.
I found inflammatory fevers neglected in the beginning, to assume a putrid type, particularly in summer and harvest.	Epidemics, particularly cholera, &c. &c.: typhus fevers assume a particular type, owing to want and filth.	I do not think it does assume any particular type.
I have not found any complaints arising from unwholesome food, except a few cases, from strong animal food being used by delicate people.	Frequently. The general spread of typhus fever and cholera is owing to the poor being obliged to wander about for sustenance before they are well able or fit to travel.	I have met many instances.
I have found none, except a few young people who made use of unripe fruit.	Yes, in dear seasons; the use of borage, or any other vegetable they can procure, promotes diseases among the poor.	I cannot say I have.
I met but two cases very similar to cholera, arising from ardent spirits.	The excessive use of ardent spirits prevails, and appears to increase.	I think it is on the increase, and the money expended on it would add much to the support and comfort of their families.
The poor of this district are all employed by their landlords or farmers, which leaves them more comfortable than those in other districts.	In miserable rags in general; food scanty; cabins, dripping rain; bedding of straw, often not fit for swine, which straw they beg from the neighbouring farmers.	In general very bad, and in many instances wretched, with bad covering.

LEINSTER—MEATH.

Moynalty Dispensary.	Oldcastle Dispensary.	Raddinstown Dispensary.
William Dyas, Esq., Surgeon.	Robert Peebles, Esq., Surgeon.	J. P. Homes, Esq., Surgeon.
Generally typhus, without any one particular cause, and frequently attributable to the want of the common and necessary comforts of life.	Typhus fever frequently occurs and spreads through whole families, from the want of an hospital to which those who are first attacked might be removed. Fevers in the commencement of an inflammatory nature terminate from want in typhus, which spreads through the whole family, rendered more susceptible of this disease by starvation, caused by the sickness of one, perhaps the sole support of the household. I have seen seven of one family lying in two beds.	No.
I have experienced some cases which have been brought on by want of proper sustenance, and where food was more necessary than medicine.	They have a sufficiency of potatoes; but none of the food requisite for invalids. I am not aware of having given any medicine for which food could have been beneficially substituted. Potatoes are their only food.	Cannot say I have.
I have not; they generally live on potatoes.	—	Certainly not.
It does prevail, and is very much on the increase, from the great number of licensed and unlicensed houses in the county.	The excessive use of ardent spirits prevails to an awful extent, and is rather increasing than otherwise.	On the decrease.
Miserably bad in all cases.	Of the labouring classes in general the clothes are tattered; their food potatoes and salt, and sometimes milk; their bedding loose straw, a sheet and blanket; their furniture two or three stools, one or two pots, a large box, and sometimes one bedstead; their cabins smoky, and without a window.	Some comfortable, some not.

LEINSTER—MEATH.

Ratoath Dispensary.	Slane Dispensary.	Stamullan Dispensary.
Laurence O'Reilly, Esq., M. D.	J. S. Egan, Esq., M. D.	W. S. M'Evoy, Esq. Surgeon.
During the last five years there has been no peculiar epidemic.	Their convalescence is protracted from the want of proper food.	I consider stomach and bowels more irritable than usual, and attribute it to cholera predisposition.
I cannot state a particular case of the first, but of the second many have occurred.	During the period of convalescence I have chiefly found the want of proper food to retard it.	Not in this part of the district.
The use of salt fish and poor tea is very general in this district.	Stomach complaints, indigestion, &c. are common among females, which I attribute to potatoes.	Bad potatoes must prove injurious; but they are better off than in Balbriggan, a large reduced manufacturing town.
The poor are not much addicted to excess in that respect.	It is impossible to conceive the quantity of spirits that is consumed by the labourers, and drunkenness is daily increasing.	Not to any great excess; only two licensed public-houses in the district.
The houses are generally close and dirty; the bedding almost always scanty and filthy.	Their only food is the potato; in every other respect in the most destitute state.	In this district they are tolerably comfortable comparatively speaking, yet in nearly all, ventilation and cleanliness little thought of; when destitute, are most wretched, requiring every thing.

LEINSTER—MEATH—QUEEN'S COUNTY.

Summerhill Dispensary.	Trim Dispensary.	Ballybrittas Dispensary.
Committee and Medical Attendant.	Henry Clifford, Esq., M. D.	S. Davis, Esq., M. D.
Fevers or epidemics have not assumed any particular type in this district.	I do not think they have assumed any particular type.	I have known some cases of fever assume a particular type, and to be rendered more dangerous for want of comfortable bedding and free ventilation.
I have found a few cases in old and destitute persons, where I think disease was brought on by want of proper sustenance, and where wholesome food might have been beneficially substituted for medicines.	I have not.	I have known many instances.
I have not found any particular kind of food in this district promotive of disease.	I have not; I consider potatoes a wholesome food.	Potatoes I have found inimical to health, particularly when changing from old to new.
The excessive use of ardent spirits prevails, and is on the increase.	It does, and I think is on the increase; many serious attacks of illness can be traced to this practice.	To a very great degree.
I have found old persons that were unable to work, such as widows and old men, frequently in great want, but I do not consider the general working poor of this district in want.	In a state of great wretchedness, and in want of almost every comfort.	In a very wretched state indeed, in the greater number of cases, more particularly as to bedding, clothes and food; as to ventilation, the door, in many instances, answers the triple purpose of chimney, window and entrance.

LEINSTER—QUEEN'S COUNTY.

Balinakill Dispensary.	Borris-in-Ossory Dispensary.	Kilmanmon Dispensary.
Committee and Medical Attendant.	Chairman and Medical Attendant.	J. J. Dunne, Esq., M. D.
The fevers and epidemics prevalent here, generally assume a very low type, in consequence of the wretched state of destitution in which the poor are placed, without either nourishment or comfort.	Not in my district.	Fevers are very frequent here, in consequence of the miserable habitations of the poor, the damp caused by the mountain flood, which is frequent here.
I have, and in many instances have known the mere substitution of bread, in place of their usual bad diet, sufficient in itself to remove very distressing complaints.	I have.	It is morally impossible for me to answer this query. Those who are blessed with the good things of this world have, and are subject to inflammatory and other diseases as well as the poor.
Dry potatoes being the food generally in use amongst the poor, certainly, in my opinion, predisposes them to dyspeptic diseases; on the appearance of cholera in this district, the first case was found to have originated from the use of carrion beef.	Frequently bad potatoes.	Want of food necessarily will cause disease and death; the poor in my district are most miserable.
Though the excessive use of ardent spirits (owing to its low price) still prevails in this district, yet I am disposed to think, from all I can learn, that its consumption is rather on the decline. Indeed, it is lamentable His Majesty's Government do not see the absolute necessity there exists for their consulting the moral and physical improvement of the people, by removing the tax on malt and placing it on spirits, and thereby substitute a wholesome strengthening beverage in the room of the present inflammatory crime-exciting liquor, to the evil effects of which may be traced almost every one of the horrible excesses which have of late years disgraced this country.	No.	It does not with regard to the poor, with others it is on the increase.
The poor within the district of my attendance are in a most wretched condition; their dwellings damp, and, though originally constructed with little regard to ventilation, yet, in most cases, from want of roof covering, the poor inmates are exposed to all the inclemency of the weather; their clothing, food and bedding of a miserable description with rarely even an approach towards comfort.	As to clothes, almost naked; food, the worst description; bedding, bad straw; furniture, scarcely any; ventilation, none; necessary comforts, few.	In the most abject state of nudity, filth and nastiness that can be conceived.

LEINSTER—QUEEN'S COUNTY.

Mountmelick Dispensary.	Mountrath Dispensary.	Newtown Dispensary.
Treasurer and Medical Attendant.	James Smith, Esq., Surgeon.	Samuel Edge, Esq., Surgeon.
The epidemics are generally of a low type, seldom requiring the use of the lancet. This is owing to the bad diet and want of ventilation, and the necessary comforts among the dispensary class of inhabitants.	When epidemics prevail, I have always found the want of proper food to favour its increase, as well as to retard recovery in all diseases where much debility has been produced. The instances are too many.	We have never been rid of affections of the bowels since 1832, when we were visited by Asiatic cholera, and an inflammatory state of them forms a leading feature in all fever cases since.
Such cases frequently occur.	See No. 1. district by the labouring colliers principally, for grants to purchase food, &c. for many, who were otherwise destitute, during convalescence from malignant diseases. This relief, from the nature of the fund, is necessarily inadequate.	I believe the bad quality of the food used by the poor of this district, subjects them to a variety of diseases, and I have been obliged to apply to a charity fund, which is supported in this
The diet consisting principally, if not entirely, of potatoes of indifferent quality, accounts for the immense number of cases of stomach diseases that apply for assistance at the dispensary.	Not often.	A bad description of white potatoes.
Compared with other parts of Ireland, whiskey is not generally drank in excess, but certainly more so than formerly.	Since this county became disturbed, the use of ardent spirits is very much on the increase.	The excessive use of ardent spirits does prevail in this district, but it seems not to be increasing.
The men generally are tolerably clothed, the women and children wretchedly. Food, bad potatoes, among the dispensary class, without milk; bedding, most miserable, generally straw, with one blanket for two or three; ventilation neglected, or rather the air is carefully excluded in winter.	Clothes improved; food, the potato; bedding wretched; furniture miserable; ventilation and cleanliness but little attended to.	Extremely wretched in every particular.

LEINSTER—QUEEN'S COUNTY.

Portarlinton Dispensary.	Rathdowney Dispensary.	Stradbally Dispensary.
Committee and Medical Attendant.	John F. Harte, Esq., Surgeon.	—
Epidemics have not assumed any particular type in this district of late years.	Fever from the dampness of the season.	They have, from the sudden changes of heat to cold, and wet to dry.
Very frequently.	In many instances.	I have in a great number of cases.
The use of ardent spirits certainly is a cause of disease; at seasons of the year when salt herrings are much used, they appear to us to cause diseases of the skin; the sole use of oatmeal, or potatoes, also seem to be causes of certain stomach diseases.	Frequently bad potatoes.	In my district the major part of the poor live on potatoes, which are often bad, which is a frequent cause of bowel attacks.
It does prevail, and we think rather on the increase.	It has prevailed for some time, but I do not consider it on the increase.	It does, and in my opinion very much on the increase.
In this immediate neighbourhood much more comfortable than most parts of the kingdom we have visited.	All very bad.	In most cases bad.

LEINSTER—WESTMEATH.

Athlone Dispensary.	Ballinacarig Dispensary.	Ballinalack Dispensary.
Treasurer and Medical Attendant.	Committee and Medical Attendant.	Treasurer and Medical Attendant.
The fevers which prevail are the intermittent and low typhus. I attribute their causes to lying on straw, placed on damp floors, with little or no covering; the crowded state of their cabins, and the filthy manner in which they live.	No particular type beyond the usual symptoms.	I find fevers in my district assume no particular type; they are either simple, continued or inflammatory.
Frequently.	Many of the bowel complaints induced amongst the poor by poverty of food; dyspeptic complaints induced and aggravated by the continual use of potatoes alone.	I have no doubt but if the poor were better fed and clothed, their dwellings made more comfortable, that many diseases I am called to attend would not exist.
The chief food is potatoes, which in general are of a bad quality, which I consider conducive to debility, such as low fever, bowel complaints, &c.	I have known such bowel complaints to be induced by eating boiled watercress, rape, &c.	I am of opinion that the continued use of potatoes, without any other food, is very injurious to children, to old, weak and languishing constitutions, particularly in the convalescent state of fevers and other diseases.
The use of ardent spirits prevails to a great extent, and I consider it as much in use now as when I first had an opportunity of judging.	Prevails as usual in some instances; but I do not consider such practice to be on the increase.	It does, to a great extent, and I rather think it is on the increase.
In every respect in a most wretched state of destitution.	In the majority of instances I have found the poor in a very destitute state.	The people are ill clad and ill fed; worn out and insufficient bed clothes; scarce any furniture, and no attention paid to cleanliness or ventilation.

LEINSTER—WESTMEATH.

Castletown Delyin and Turin Branch Dispensary.	Clonmellon Dispensary.	Drumcree Dispensary.
Treasurer and Medical Attendant.	Henry Davidge, Esq.	Treasurer and Medical Attendant.
They have assumed the typhoid type among the poorer classes, from the filthy state of their houses, bad clothing and bad food.	At present we have no fever or other epidemic; but are seldom without it. I think the want of comforts and food the cause in a great degree.	Fevers and epidemics have, at several times, attacked the poorer classes first, and in course of time the general community; in this country, with a violence now unknown in England.
In many instances fevers and bowel complaints have been brought on by a bad vegetable diet, where wholesome food would act as an auxiliary, but not as a substitute for medicine.	I have met with many cases that were incurred for want of necessaries of life; but from timely and proper treatment recovered. I do attribute their recovery to the medicine and food after, when able to make use of it.	I have.
Bad potatoes and wild rape in times of distress promote disease.	I am of opinion that potatoes constantly used (perhaps bad) and not even a sufficiency, without any other kitchen, the cause of a great deal of disease. troubled with all the miseries of indigestion or stomach complaints, and eruptive diseases; this refers, however, to the aged, feeble and destitute.	The food amongst the very poor consists chiefly of potatoes; the cup and lumper potatoe: these they eat without being sufficiently boiled, with salt or butter-milk, seldom with animal food, hence they are
The use of ardent spirits does prevail, and is on the increase, from the number of unlicensed houses selling such throughout the district.	I consider the use of spirits on the decline. sive use of ardent spirits, seldom in enlarging their stock of comforts or in improving the quality of their diet.	In times of abundance, and when there is much employment, the poor accustomed to few indulgences, when those are supplied expend the remainder of their casual or accidental gains generally in the excessive use of ardent spirits, seldom in enlarging their stock of comforts or in improving the quality of their diet.
Very badly clothed, bad food, scarcely any bedding or furniture; badly ventilated; no comforts whatever, except what little nourishment the charity sometimes supplied by way of wine, broth or flannel.	In general I find the poor deficient in clothes, food, bedding and all other comforts. is generally sufficiently abundant to protect against cold; but such as are unable to procure employment, especially if old, suffer much from want of sufficient clothing, but chiefly from want of bedding and night clothing. The poor who fall under my care do not, unless in years of great scarcity, suffer from want of food. It chiefly consists of potatoes and stir-about, seldom meat. The houses are but indifferently ventilated; but in that respect they are improving; their stock of furniture and necessary comforts scanty, constantly borrowing those things, one from the other.	Where the people have permanent employment, or have even to the extent of three or four acres of land, their clothing

LEINSTER—WESTMEATH.

Glasson Dispensary.	Kilbeggan Dispensary.	Kinnegad Dispensary.
The Treasurer.	S. A. Duggan, Esq., Surgeon.	The Treasurer.
Fever has been epidemic sometimes, as at present. Contagion and want of caution. In one period only of scarcity which I remember want seemed to be the cause.	The diseases alluded to have invariably assumed the low or typhoid type. An inflammatory attack of fever is of very rare occurrence.	The fevers which prevail are the inter-mittent and low typhus. I attribute their causes to lying on straw, placed on damp floors, with little or no covering; the crowded state of their cabins, and the filthy manner in which they live.
In a few cases of stomach complaints, where vegetable diet does not suit.	I have but too many instances.	—
No, except as above; I consider the poor well fed when they have milk with their potatoes and oatmeal, and they think so themselves.	When they live on the potatoe only it is productive of worms and diseases of the stomach and bowels.	The chief food is potatoes, which in general are of a bad quality, which I consider conducive to debility, such as low fever, bowel complaints, &c.
We have some who are never drunk, many who are often drunk, and a few who are always drunk. The poor continue to spend plenty of money in the whisky houses (I call the poor the major part of the people, poor farmers and labourers; there are but few mendicants); the practice is on the increase.	It is very much on the decrease, from the want of means to procure it.	The use of ardent spirits prevails to a great extent, and I consider it as much in use now as when I first had an opportunity of judging.
Clothes generally ragged, except on Sundays and holidays, funerals and merry-makings; food, potatoes and water, sometimes milk, sometimes oatmeal; bedding and furniture bad and dirty; ventilation always forbidden in an Irish cabin; comforts not thought of.	In a very wretched state indeed.	In every respect in a most wretched state of destitution.

LEINSTER—WESTMEATH.

Moate Dispensary.	Street Dispensary.	Tyrrellspass Dispensary.
John M. Mathews, Esq., M. D.	Treasurer and Medical Attendant.	G. W. Berry, Esq., Surgeon.
There has been no epidemic here since 1818, except cholera, which occurred amongst the poor alone, and those whose constitutions were previously much exhausted by extreme indigence, frequently by absolute want.	They have not.	Our neighbourhood and entire district for the last three years has been almost exempt from fevers of type; we have had a few ordinary fevers, measles (intermittent very few, if any), influenza (the epidemic) some, and no pestilential cholera, with the exception of a single case (a passenger).
I have experienced some instances, but not many, where disease has been induced by want, and all whom I have seen at their residences would have been benefited more by food than medicine, especially after my first visit.	Yes, in some instances.	I have experienced many such cases, but not nearly so many as I did experience some years ago in another and poorer district.
Yes, potatoes.	Vegetables badly dressed, particularly potatoes.	Confinement to the use of potatoes alone, particularly if of an inferior kind, are productive of stomach diseases; I have found it so even in this district.
The practice is on the decline in licensed public-houses, but prevails much throughout the district, owing to the great increase of illicit distillation.	Yes, owing to illicit distillation.	As a habit it does not much prevail with our cabin tenants; our pensioners are almost all drunkards; our cabin tenants indulge in its use more or less, at wakes, fairs and markets.
I have found the poor, strictly so termed, in a most wretched state in every respect; clothes and food bad, bedding and furniture worse; ventilation they are practically unacquainted with; in fact, some use all their ingenuity to retain the smoke of the peat fire.	Generally very middling.	Our immediate neighbourhood (excepting the bog residences) are, compared with the major parts of Ireland, rather more comfortable in these matters.

LEINSTER—WEXFORD.

Bannow and Kilkivan Dispensary.	Bridgetown Dispensary.	Broadway Dispensary.
John Carroll, Esq., Surgeon.	Edward Peirce, Esq., Medical Attendant.	Thomas Lindsey, Esq., M. D.
They have not.	No particular type.	They assume an intermittent type, owing to the proximity to the sea and to two very extensive lakes.
In no instance can I say that disease has been brought on by want of sustenance.	Very few, if any.	Very seldom.
I consider the constant use of potatoes and salt fish promotive of disease.	No.	No.
I do not think the excessive use of ardent spirits prevails in this district, nor is it on the increase.	Excessive use does not prevail; at the same time public-houses are increasing.	It does prevail, and I believe it is on the increase.
With the exception of ventilation, in a good state.	Every thing in a very bad state.	The lower orders are less squalid and wretched than almost any other part of the kingdom; they attend a great deal to ventilation and cleanliness, and their food is not unwholesome.

LEINSTER—WEXFORD.

Camolin Dispensary.	Clongeen and Newbawn Dispensary.	Coolgreney and Limerick Dispensary.
Thomas Irvine, Esq., Surgeon.	John Carroll, Esq., Surgeon.	D. Wright, Esq.
I cannot say that fever has prevailed here as an epidemic these last six years, but then it was of the worst kind, in some cases, many of which I was obliged to attend in huts made up by the road side, but still fever always prevails in some shape or other at different times.	They have not.	Only malignant cholera.
Most cases of fever are brought on by want of the common necessities of life, and by supplying these many diseases, to which the poor are subject, might be prevented; we give nourishment to the poor recovering from illness, in a small way, from the dispensary.	In no instance can I recollect that disease has been brought on by want of sustenance.	Very few instances where disease was caused by want of sustenance; though many where it has been beneficially substituted for medicine.
There is in this part of the county a very bad description of potatoes used solely by the poorer classes, which, in my opinion, are particularly unwholesome.	I consider the constant use of potatoes and salt fish, promotive of disease.	Dyspepsia and bowel complaints are the result of living wholly on potatoes and buttermilk.
The excessive use of ardent spirits prevails greatly in this district and neighbourhood, and seems to be on the increase.	I do not think the excessive use of ardent spirits prevails in this district, nor is it on the increase.	No; I think the abuse of ardent spirits is less than formerly.
As bad as they well can be, and would be still worse if it were not for a charitable blanket fund established here, by which the poor are supplied, as well as with oatmeal, Linsey flannel and coal at half price, if they are able to pay so much, if not, gratis.	With the exception of ventilation, in a good state.	In this district there is an occasional case of destitution met with; but on the whole the poor are not badly off.

LEINSTER—WEXFORD.

Ferns Dispensary.	Fethard Dispensary.	Killena Dispensary.
F. Macartney, Esq., M.D.	Secretary and Medical Attendant.	B. Porter, Esq., Surgeon.
No.	The general character of fevers is typhus, which I attribute to the wet nature of the soil.	No.
Many instances.	I cannot say that I have witnessed many such cases.	No.
I know of no food in use among the poorer classes but potatoes.	In some few cases I have found the constant use of inferior wet potatoes promotive of disease.	No.
Yes, and I consider it to be on the increase.	The first part of the query I am happy to be able to answer in the negative, and I conceive the use of ardent spirits is still on the decline.	No; I think it on the decrease.
Deficient in clothes and food; bedding and furniture of the meanest and worst description; houses ill ventilated, and the inhabitants devoid of almost every necessary comfort.	Generally comfortable in these respects.	In my many visits to the poor I have found them very deficient of clothes, food, bedding, furniture, &c.

LEINSTER—WEXFORD and WICKLOW.

Screen, Castle Ellis and Ardcolin Dispensary.	Taghmon and Horetown Dispensary.	Blessinton Dispensary.
J. M. Tatlock, Esq., M.D.	John Widdup, Esq., Surgeon.	George Robinson, Esq., M.D.
They have assumed no particular type in this neighbourhood.	Typhus fever at present prevails in a few families; its cause, contagion, has been communicated from other places by strolling mendicants who were lodged in the houses where it now prevails.	Fevers of all kinds assume a very mild type in this country.
I have treated a number of cases where disease was brought on for want of proper sustenance, and were it not for a charitable fund, raised in this neighbourhood, which is at my disposal, many a life would be lost for want of nourishment.	Very few instances of this kind occurred, and even in them want of proper sustenance was not the sole cause of disease; it operated, however, as auxiliary to other causes; some cases of disease have occurred, wherein convalescence has been retarded considerably by want of nutritious diet.	A great majority of the poor stand much more in need of wholesome and nutritious food than of medicine.
The staple food is herrings, potatoes, and occasionally a small quantity of milk.	None.	When salt fish is much in use here it is generally followed by cutaneous disease; also, in the autumn, stomach affections are frequent, from potatoes being so much used.
It does not, and I consider its use very much on the decline.	The use of ardent spirits does prevail to a great degree indeed in the district, and is I am sure on the increase.	I do not think the people of this country much addicted to the use of ardent spirits.
In general the greatest misery prevails from want of the common necessities of life.	Many of the poor, I should venture to say one-fourth of those visited were deficient in those necessary comforts; none, however, absolutely destitute.	Clothes, bedding, furniture and ventilation are, generally speaking, of a very inferior order. The food is of the common description, potatoes and milk generally speaking.

LEINSTER—WICKLOW.

Carnew Dispensary.	Dunlavin Dispensary.	Rathdrum Dispensary.
Thomas De Renzy, Esq., M.D.	John Hatch, Esq., M.D.	Charles Clarke, Esq., Surgeon.
Fevers are generally very mild in this district. I attribute such to the inculcation of a cool regimen, and avoidance of all stimulating liquors, which, during 25 years and upwards, I have, and I think successfully, impressed on the minds of all ranks.	They have frequently; from not applying for medical aid in proper time, and the use of whiskey or wine, which is a sovereign remedy for all diseases among the poorer classes.	I cannot say that they have.
I have not seen many instances where actual disease has been brought on by want of proper food, but many where predisposition to disease by insufficient food, I mean as to quality, and very many where good food would do more than medicine.	Many instances.	I have met a few instances.
I am convinced the too constant use of potatoes, rather the sole use of them as food, is productive of stomach disease, and I have long been of opinion, causes the poor to seem of a greater age than they actually are.	None, save at the season of the year when they change from the old potatoes to the new ones, they are for some time affected with bowel complaints.	I have not.
I think not; and certainly on the decrease.	I think it does with the labouring class, and particularly early in the morning. I believe it is not on the decrease.	Very much indeed; and I regret to say that I consider it on the increase.
In the worst possible. Clothes, consisting of a few dirty rags; food, potatoes only; bedding, straw, often times fresh rushes; scarcely any thing that ought to be dignified with the name of furniture, and comforts, none. There are many exceptions to the answer to this query, but I state the fact generally. Males are scarcely ever properly separated from the females in families.	For the most part the poor in my district are in a most deplorable state for the want of clothes, food, bedding and, particularly, ventilation.	Generally in a very comfortless state.

LEINSTER—WICKLOW.

MUNSTER—CLARE.

Tinnahely Dispensary.	Ballinacally Dispensary.	Corofin Dispensary.
Francis Henry Morton, Esq., Surgeon.	—	N. H. Blood, Esq., Surgeon.
There has not been much fever in my district for the last three years, and I had but three cases of malignant cholera morbus.	I should refer to the doctor.	From want of nourishment they assume a very malignant type.
I have no doubt but wholesome food would be of great benefit in the recovery of the poor.	To my own knowledge, and from conversations with Dr. Gray of Kildisart and other medical men, numerous instances occur where wholesome food is often more requisite than medicine.	Yes.
The constant use of potatoes, particularly in the Summer and Autumn, often occasion bowel complaints.	Yes, potatoes and salt herrings. The farmers, whom the poor principally obtain labour from, being so harrassed from high rents and heavy taxes, are not able to provide them with better.	The constant use of potatoes.
The use of ardent spirits I believe to be on the increase.	A good deal generally, and not much on the increase.	Yes; and it is on the increase.
There is very little of any kind of comfort to be found in the cabins of the poor; their food is generally potatoes, with a little buttermilk when it can be obtained; they are generally in want of blankets to cover them.	I should refer to Dr. Finucane to be able to explain it fully, though I am confident in general all items are miserably bad.	Generally so bad that I am not able to describe.

MUNSTER—CLARE.

Clare Dispensary.	Crusheen Dispensary.	Doonas Dispensary.
Michael Healy, Esq., M. D.	John Silver, Esq., M. D.	Thomas Deasy, Esq., M. D.
Disease in general in my district has assumed what medical men call the typhoid type, being marked by sinking of the vital power early in the disease; this is, no doubt, attributable to bad and defective nourishment, clothing, and ventilation.	Fevers and epidemics most frequently assume the typhoid type, which is attributable to the irregularity of their habits, atmospheric vicissitudes, and bad food and clothing.	Fevers are to be met with amongst the poor throughout the year; and they generally assume the typhus form or class, which I attribute to the want of proper food, raiment, ventilated dwellings and cleanliness in and about their residences.
I have met numberless cases of disease brought on by the use of bad and rotten potatoes, and where the substitution of good and wholesome food would be most beneficial; without which substitution the medical attendant will find all his efforts to cure the disease unsuccessful.	I have met with many instances where disease has been generated by the absence of domestic comfort, and in which wholesome food would be more advantageous than medicine, however judiciously administered.	I consider the majority of diseases of the poor, which come under my inspection, to be the consequence of want of proper sustenance, clothes and dwellings.
I have stated that the use of bad potatoes has been productive of disease, it has been particularly so during the bad weather we have had for the last three months.	The potato particularly so.	Yes; I am of opinion that potatoes, which form the sole food of the poor, together with insufficient clothing, are the origin of numbers of very distressing forms of disease to be found afflicting them.
The excessive use of spirit does prevail in my district. I am sorry I cannot say it is on the decrease.	The excessive use of ardent spirits has prevailed from time immemorial in this district; and is rather on the increase than otherwise.	The use of ardent spirits is greatly on the increase, every house, whether licensed or not, sells it, and of such an adulterated nature as must tend greatly to injure those who take it, the poverty of a greater part of the poor must be attributed to this cause, as most of their earnings are consumed in this way; and invariably when they drink they fight, and lives are very often lost. The number of public houses are wonderfully increased since passing the new Bill; limiting the number would have been more judicious. The people, particularly on fair and market days, Sundays and holidays, are in a constant state of drunkenness.
In the great majority of cases, the poor whom I have visited in their cabins are in the most pitiable state of destitution, frequently an old quilt or blanket being the only article of bed clothing which a large family has to cover them at night; their furniture is most wretched; their cabins very filthy, and very ill ventilated; their food, potatoes, frequently without milk or any adjunct whatever.	It is not possible, in this limited space, to give a correct and full detail of the wretchedness and poverty of the lower orders in this district.	Generally in the most wretched state of distress, destitute of warm clothes, bedding, furniture, inhaling the most pestilential air, generated by the exhalations of a number of poor gathered together in a miserable unventilated hovel, where its inmates, healthy and diseased, are obliged to crowd themselves into their only bed, if a little straw (as sometimes is to be seen), covered with a blanket, can be called so; living principally on potatoes and salt.

MUNSTER—CLARE.

Ennistymon Dispensary.	Kildysart Dispensary.	Kilfenora Dispensary.
Treasurer and Medical Attendants.	Committee and Medical Attendant.	Committee and Medical Attendant.
Fevers in this part of the country are generally of the typhoid class, owing to the want of cleanliness and bad clothing.	No.	There has not been much fever in the county since my coming to live here, and what has been was mostly of the typhoid type; and I have generally met it in badly ventilated cabins, where the inhabitants used poor and unwholesome diet.
Every day instances are before us where, for want of proper sustenance, disease has been brought on, and many cases where such sustenance would be of more benefit than medicines, no matter to what advantage they may be administered.	Not more than five.	I cannot say I have experienced many such cases.
Potatoes is the general food of the lower and middle classes in this country, and often promote disease to the digestive organs.	At a particular season of the year, the doctor finds that when the poor are obliged to eat potatoes only, they are subject to dyspepsia.	I cannot specify any.
The excessive use of ardent spirits does prevail, and is more frequently the cause of disease than the food; nevertheless, it is on the decrease.	Ardent spirits are extensively used, but the practice is rather on the decrease.	I am not aware that it prevails to any great excess; nor do I conceive, from what I can learn, that it is at all on the increase, rather the contrary.
The clothing, food, bedding and furniture are so bad, that we cannot find words sufficiently strong to describe them.	Generally very bad.	Many in a state of the most extreme poverty, and destitute almost of the common necessities of life; some sufficiently comfortable and well off.

MUNSTER—CLARE.

Kilkee and Carigaholt Dispensary.	Killaloe Dispensary.	Kilrush Dispensary.
James Fraser, Esq., M.D.	George Purdon, Esq., Surgeon.	Committee and Medical Attendant.
Fever is at present quite prevalent, and is brought on by dirt, bad ventilation, unwholesome food and excessive labour.	Fevers have lately assumed a typhoid character, and within the last six weeks cholera has again appeared, which I think may be attributable to the deleterious effects of a season unusually damp, aggravated by want of firing, clothing, &c.	I always find fever and other epidemics mostly confined among the poorer classes, which I attribute to the cause enumerated below.
I am fully convinced many diseases are brought on by bad unwholesome food, and when the prescribed medicine lost its effects on the disease under treatment; from the want of wholesome nutritious food.	Instances occur often where wholesome food might obviate disease.	I attribute a great deal of these diseases to their privations, the bad quality of their food, being for the most part confined to the worst kind of potatoes, and ill saved coarse fish, with a little milk.
The only and principal food here are potatoes, which, by being badly cooked, produce indigestion; sometimes they get fish, which brings on bowel complaints.	The diet of the poor affords in this county but little variety, being for the most part potatoes and milk for those that can afford it, a diet that agrees, except with aged and infirm and dyspeptic.	It is evident, if they had good food they would not be subject to most of those diseases.
Whenever they can get whiskey they drink it; but I think the practice of late is increasing.	The use of ardent spirits is very prevalent in town and hamlets adjoining; but I do think that system on the decline.	I think the use of ardent spirits is on the decrease; but the boatmen of this district are greatly addicted to it, and a good many of them are subject to liver complaints and dropsy.
In the most wretched state as to clothes; the food consists of dry potatoes, and sometimes hems; bad bedding; scarcely any furniture; very wretched ventilation; and during acute illness and fever no drink but cold water.	Although the state of the poor assumes some degree of comfort in the country parts of this district, in the town they continue in a wretchedly destitute state, and indeed in both town and country personal discomfort, in point of bedding, clothing, &c., is very obvious.	In a wretched state of privation as to clothes, food, bedding, furniture, ventilation and necessary comforts.

MUNSTER—CLARE.

Milltown Dispensary.	Newmarket Dispensary.	Quin Dispensary.
Treasurer and Medical Attendant.	James Frazer, Esq., Surgeon.	Joseph Blood, Esq., Surgeon.
Where there is a want of proper sustenance, fevers have assumed the typhoid type.	I have not observed any peculiarity in fever or epidemics in this district.	Fevers or epidemics have not assumed any particular type among the poorer classes.
There have been many cases where disease has been brought on for want of proper sustenance, and wholesome food might have been beneficially substituted for medicine.	It frequently happens, that medicine is altogether useless, or even pernicious, from the want of proper diet and clothing.	I have not experienced many instances where disease has been brought on by want of proper sustenance. Wholesome food will assist the medicines.
There have been many cases of indigestion brought on by the use of potatoes.	I am disposed to think that the frequent disarrangement of the digestive organs is to be attributed to the only diet which the poor have (potatoes).	I have found no particular description of food among the lower class promotive of disease.
I cannot say whether it does or not, nor can I say whether it is on the increase or otherwise.	The people are much addicted to the use of spirits. I am inclined to think that the practice is rather on the decrease.	Excessive use of ardent spirits does not prevail in my district. Their use does not appear to me to have varied.
In some cases the food, bedding, furniture, ventilation, &c., have been comfortable, in others the contrary.	Generally speaking the poor are destitute beyond conception; their bed clothes are scanty, ragged and filthy; their houses destitute of every thing like comfort, excessively dirty, damp and without ventilation.	I have found the poor generally destitute of the necessary comforts; clothes, food, bedding and furniture are bad.

MUNSTER—CLARE.

Six-mile Bridge Dispensary.	Tomgrany Dispensary.	Tulla Dispensary.
Treasurer and Medical Attendant.	P. H. Norris, Esq., Medical Attendant.	James Fraser, Jun., Esq., M. D.
They do prevail, but not of a very bad type.	I have no particular change in the features of these diseases.	Fevers usually assume the typhoid type; to be attributed to poverty of the sufferers.
I have found disease produced for want of proper food, and I believe wholesome food might have been beneficially substituted for medicine.	Yes. Instances of this kind in my district are numerous. I have, from experience, found dyspepsia and dropsy to have originated from bad diet. I have known various instances where nutritious diet might have been more beneficial to the patient than medicine. The condition of the poor in this particular is really grievous.	I have.
I have found bad food do so.	The diet of the poor in my district being almost exclusively limited to potatoes, and as, generally speaking, that vegetable seems to agree with the majority of them, I cannot take upon myself to call it unwholesome, yet I must say, that amongst the females of delicate habits, I have traced chronic disease to the want of better nutriment.	Potatoes are their only food, and are productive of disease affecting the stomach and bowels, such as dyspepsia, diarrhoea, &c.
The use of spirits does much prevail, and I think it is much on the increase.	I think from my experience, that it is on the decrease in my district.	It does not.
I have found them badly clothed, food worse, bedding and furniture wretched, but plenty of ventilation; as to their comforts, I found they had none.	The poor are miserably off for clothes, particularly since the rise on wool; food bad, merely potatoes; bedding wretched; furniture ditto; ventilation bad. I never find a person's hut in my district properly ventilated; this arises from the miserable bedding; every effort is used to exclude the winter blast, whilst, in summer, there is no change made to admit better air. This, accompanied with want of cleanliness, has often given rise to typhus fever, &c.	In many instances nothing could exceed the wretchedness of the poor in all those respects.

MUNSTER—CORK.

Aghada Dispensary.	Bantry Dispensary.	Black Rock Dispensary.
Committee and Medical Attendant.	Committee and Medical Attendant.	Committee and Medical Attendant.
The typhus gravior has been the most prevalent; we had a catharrus epidemicus very general, accompanied with typhoid symptoms, and a species of cholic (not cholera) very general amongst the poorer classes.	Diseases lately are more inflammatory, imputable to the state of the weather.	No particular type peculiar to this district appeared among the fevers or other epidemics of the past year.
Yes, very many, and where medicine can be of no possible avail without wholesome nutriment.	I have experienced many instances so circumstanced. of proper food, but some cases of illness have been aggravated by the use of improper, or prolonged from want of the timely aid of proper sustenance; the occasional relief of the charitable has, however, prevented such occurrences in many others.	The period of my attendance in this district has not been long enough to offer many instances of actual disease brought on by want
Yes, the horse potato being, I may say, the only food used by the poor of this district; towards the end of the season they become soft, gluey, and unfit for use, producing diarrhoea, dysentery, and the worst form of cholic. Corn-kale, nettles and unripe wheat boiled in salt and water, have been equally productive of the above named diseases.	I have, from the sole use of potatoes, especially from bad and unripe ones, which induced gastric complaints.	Bad potatoes and other coarse food, have caused several cases of indigestion, diarrhoea, dysentery, &c.
No; the people are, generally speaking, very temperate, but there is a notion unfortunately very prevalent amongst them, that in all cases of disease whisky is a sovereign remedy, the consequences of which are often fatal.	The use prevails very generally, but is not on the increase. public-houses preventing any approach to provident habits, a principal cause of that want of necessary comforts observed in the cabins of many of the poor. Their use seems to vary with the means afforded for obtaining it.	The excessive use of ardent spirits is but too generally a prevailing evil in this district, and its too easy attainment at the numerous
In the most frightful state of destitution, their usual bedding being straw, their covering a filthy blanket and the tattered clothes of the wretched individual; furniture, perhaps a stool and table; ventilation of the worst description, the only apertures to their hovels in the majority of cases being the door and chimney; their food of the worst description, being the horse potato, nettles, corn-kale, and in many cases I have known them not to be able to obtain either, being in an absolute state of starvation.	In a very miserable and destitute state. able labourers, occasionally a little meat and vegetables; their clothes, bedding and furniture tolerably comfortable. But there are numerous instances of distress, with their usual attendants, want of cleanliness and ventilation, clothes scanty, furniture little or none, bedding dirty musty straw, on the earthen floor.	The food consists principally of potatoes, milk and fish; amongst the more comfortable

MUNSTER—CORK.

Ballinspittle Dispensary.	Ballyclough Dispensary.	Ballinaboy Dispensary.
Committee and Medical Attendant.	William James M'Cormick, Esq., M.D.	William Keily, Esq., M.D.
Fevers, when prevalent, are generally of a typhoid character, owing to bad and scanty food, and the want of proper and wholesome sustenance.	Fevers have not assumed any particular type; in general low.	Fevers are generally inflammatory in my district; in most cases they are to be ascribed to exposure to cold.
Some acute diseases have been rendered chronic by the want of proper sustenance during convalescence, and relapses have often occurred by the patients being obliged to return to their usual unwholesome potato diet.	I have experienced many cases where want of proper food and warmth occasioned disease.	I think I can safely ascribe death in two cases, to long continued privation of sufficient food. The cases in which good food might be beneficially substituted for much medicine, which is now used, are numerous.
About the months of August and September bad and unripe potatoes are particularly promotive of diseases of the stomach and bowels.	I have found bad potatoes produce disease.	Half boiled potatoes are a fertile source of stomach complaints and general debility.
The use of ardent spirits extends to a great degree, on account of the sale of them in unlicensed houses, which have become very numerous of late, owing to the supineness of the proper authorities.	The use of ardent spirits does prevail, and is on the increase, as I suppose, from the increase of venders.	The excessive use of ardent spirits does not prevail in my district; the people are remarkably sober.
Clothes poor and tattered in most instances; food in almost every instance consisted of potatoes without milk, meat or fish; ventilation very bad, and generally the necessary comforts of life are completely unknown to the sick poor.	I have found the poor generally very wretched, especially as to fuel.	There are very many families in a state of actual destitution; even the farmers here seem to live very miserably.

MUNSTER—CORK.

Ballyneen Dispensary.	Blarney Dispensary.	Carrigaline Dispensary.
J. H. Jagoe, Esq., M.D.	Treasurer and Medical Attendant.	Committee and Medical Attendant.
During these last three years most diseases verged very much towards catarrhal and gastric fevers; for this I cannot exactly account; but am of opinion they may be traced to atmospheric influence rather than to any other cause.	When a dispensary was first established in this district, intermittent and remittent fevers existed to an alarming extent; but within these last two years these diseases have entirely disappeared.	For the last year and half fevers and epidemics have assumed a gastric type, which I think may be attributed to the same cause as cholera.
Very often; and to remedy the want of proper sustenance, that is to procure such from the immediate gentry for the sick poor, has been also what I had to do towards their recovery.	I cannot say I have.	There have been instances in which the use of proper food might have prevented the necessity for medicine; but no case of disease caused by actual want of food.
Yes; in most instances, amongst the poor, the diet is chiefly potato (of this there is even not enough), and I conceive such diet predisposes to several of the diseases which I meet with amongst them.	I think the constant or daily use of potatoes does tend to promote diarrhoea and other affections of the bowels.	Bad potatoes and bad fish are (as food) the principal promotives of disease.
The use of ardent spirits, I think, is very much on the decline; in this neighbourhood it was never so prevalent (since I became acquainted with the country) as in other parts.	I do, and consider it is on the increase, and to a very alarming extent.	The excessive use does not prevail, and is on the decline.
Their cabins or houses are of the most wretched description, and as to food, clothes, bedding, &c., I have invariably found them without such.	In my opinion the condition of the peasantry is much ameliorated within the last 12 years.	There are many instances of families in this district in want of every necessary comfort.

MUNSTER—CORK.

Castlemartyr Dispensary.	Castletown Roche Dispensary.	Charleville and Bruree Dispensaries.
W. G. Eames, Esq., Surgeon.	B. C. Cooke, Esq., Medical Attendant.	John Bernard, Esq., M.D.
No.	I have not remarked fever to assume any particular type from what it has been. Epidemics vary according to season or weather. on potatoes, a perishable and uncertain crop, the superabundance of which in one year will not keep for the wants of the next.	Fevers are in general of a mild inflammatory character; but this country has been always the victim of periodical visitations of typhus fever, and will probably long continue subject to them if the peasantry live
I have.	I have experienced instances where disease has been brought on by want of clothing and proper sustenance, and where wholesome food would contribute to relieve them. too weak to digest his food, and unprepared by gradual excitements, he suddenly gets from injudicious charity a glass of whisky, which by soliciting blood to the part creates an acute dropsy.	Fevers and dysenteries, as well as dropsies, appear to prevail, and appear to arise from living on bad potatoes and milk, on a scanty supply of them, and often from want of any food. The peasant's stomach is thus
Potatoes form the principal food of the poorer class, and when bad are extremely promotive of disease.	Sometimes they may have bad potatoes or milk. favourable as it is to moral habits, possesses more than an average proportion of wholesomeness as a poor diet, providing the supply was sufficient and the quality good; but this state of things never prevails.	As the poor in all countries cannot live on a regulated diet, so I should say the general use of potatoes and milk in Ireland, unfavourable as it is to moral habits, possesses more than an average proportion of wholesomeness as a poor diet, providing the supply was sufficient and the quality good; but this state of things never prevails.
It does not generally; the practice appears to be on the decrease.	It does; its increase or decrease depends on their means of procuring it.	It does; but it appears neither to increase or lessen, nor probably will it ever lessen, except a duty be imposed on it which would make it a luxury above the daily consumption of the poor.
In the worst possible with respect to bedding and ventilation, and generally speaking a deficiency of clothes, furniture and necessary comforts.	Generally speaking, bad clothes, food, potatoes and milk; bad bedding, bad furniture, bad ventilation, and many families in want of the necessary comforts. there are always fissures and broken windows in their houses.	The poor are generally very badly clothed. Their food for the most part consists of potatoes, sometimes combined with sour milk. They sleep on their floors, often without straw; their cabins are well ventilated, as

MUNSTER—CORK.

Clonakilty Dispensary.	Cloyne Local Dispensary.	Douglas Dispensary (City of Cork.)
William Ffolliott, Esq., M.D.	Treasurer and Medical Attendant.	Julius B. Evans, Esq.
Most cases of fever generally end in typhus, which I attribute to the wretchedness and destitution of the poor.	Fevers and epidemics generally assume a more malignant type among the poorer classes, from want of proper nourishment, clothing and other domestic comforts.	Except the cholera and influenza, there has not been, within my time, any particular epidemic.
Frequently.	I have experienced many instances where actual disease has been brought on by want of proper sustenance and covering, and where wholesome food and clothing may have been substituted for medicine with advantage.	I am satisfied that the want of proper sustenance induces disease in many of the poor.
Potatoes being the general food of the poor, predisposes to bowel complaints. the poor, which I attribute to their being obliged to have recourse to new potatoes before they are sufficiently ripe or fit for use, the old stock being exhausted or injured by keeping.	I have found at the period of a change from old to new potatoes, that a deranged state of stomach and bowels prevails among the poor, which I attribute to their being obliged to have recourse to new potatoes before they are sufficiently ripe or fit for use, the old stock being exhausted or injured by keeping.	Potatoes are the only food they use, and these, when bad, produce disease.
Prevails very much, and is decidedly on the increase.	I do not conceive that the excessive use of ardent spirits prevails in this district, except among the lower class of mechanics or tradespeople, and among that class I think it rather on the decrease.	From the increased number of public-houses, I should fear it was on the increase.
In all cases wretched and miserable.	The poor or working class are generally destitute of every comfort; their clothing wretched; their food potatoes, chiefly of an inferior sort, without milk, they being rarely able to procure meat; their cabins ill ventilated, with little furniture. In the town and immediate neighbourhood the poor are better off, having the benefit of a sick and indigent housekeepers' society, a charitable loan fund and an annual distribution of coals.	Extremely wretched, generally speaking, in all these particulars.

MUNSTER—CORK.

Cork General Dispensary.	Crookstown Dispensary.	Donoughmore Dispensary.
Committee and Medical Attendants.	Secretary and Medical Attendant.	T. Godfrey, Esq., M.D.
The types are inflammatory and typhoid; the first originating in insufficient clothing and fuel and abuse of ardent spirits; the second owing to bad food and a scarcity of good water.	They have frequently, owing, as I conceive, to their great poverty and dirty habits.	Yes, from want of an hospital to put patients so infected into.
In numerous instances.	Many and frequently.	Yes.
Bad potatoes, bad fish and bad meat.	Potatoes are their food, and many diseases require another kind of food, which the poor creatures are neither able to procure for charity nor have the means to purchase.	Yes.
Yes, and such is on the increase.	It does prevail to a great extent, and I do not consider that it is decreasing.	No, I do not think it is on the increase.
Nothing could be worse than the state of the poor, as to clothes, food, bedding, furniture and ventilation.	In most instances in the most wretched state imaginable.	Sometimes very wretched.

MUNSTER—CORK.

Dunmanway Dispensary.	Freemount Dispensary.	Glandore Dispensary.
John B. Bennett, Esq.	Thomas Ahern, Esq., M.D.	—
Fevers generally are typhoid, and epidemics attended with much debility, produced most probably by the complication of evils attendant on poverty, as unwholesome food, insufficient clothing, bad ventilation, mental depression, &c.	Fevers and epidemics have generally assumed a malignant type among the poorer classes, attributable to want of bedding, ventilation, food, &c.	The fevers that I have seen for the last three years are very simple.
Very many indeed. Frequently nutritious diet is all that the patient requires, and still more frequently medical treatment is totally inefficient, because the necessary sustenance cannot be procured.	I have experienced many instances where disease has been brought on by want of proper sustenance, which may be averted in the manner mentioned.	I have seen many persons die without actual disease, but from inanition, brought on by a want of food.
Sometimes; for example, in August, when wholesome food is generally scarce and expensive, many are attacked by dysentery, common cholera and various similar affections, from the use of unripe potatoes and sour milk.	The poor of my district live entirely on potatoes, which often promote diseases.	The abuse rather than the use of a potato diet is promotive of dyspeptic complaints, which prevail very generally among the poor.
It still prevails; but in my opinion is gradually giving place to the use of malt liquors.	Amongst the poor of my district, the excessive use of ardent spirits does not prevail, and as far as I can learn it is on the decrease amongst all classes.	I think that the use of ardent spirits is on the decline in my district, and I think that if public houses were less numerous the evil of drunkenness would be much diminished.
Except in the comparatively few instances where benevolent individuals have ameliorated the condition of the poor in their immediate neighbourhoods, I have found very general want of comfort in all the particulars here enumerated. Many appalling instances of wretchedness have come under my observation.	I have found the sick poor whom I visited at their houses in extreme want as to all necessary comforts, such as clothing, food, bedding, furniture, ventilation, &c.	The food of the poor is bad in quality and insufficient in quantity; their clothes a parcel of rags, their habitations ill ventilated huts, and they have not the common necessities, not to speak of the comforts, of life.

MUNSTER—CORK.

Glanmire Dispensary.	Glanmire Road Dispensary, (City of Cork).	Glauntane Dispensary.
Committee and Medical Attendant.	Committee and Medical Attendant.	Thomas Justice, Esq., M.D.
I have not observed any thing remarkable in the epidemics about here more than is usually met with; peculiarities will occur in particular cases.	During the prevalence of influenza last spring it passed in many instances into fever of a typhoid character, attributable principally to neglect and poverty.	This district has been generally exempt from such, particularly from cholera.
I have repeatedly found disease induced by despondency, and that despondency brought on by poverty; good food is a good preventive against disease, but I do not consider it a substitute for medicine, though a right good auxiliary.	I have not.	In very few instances; but many where proper diet would have rendered the medicine prove efficacious, and the cure more speedily accomplished and more permanent.
I have not observed any particular kind.	I have not.	Stomach complaints more prevalent than among the higher classes.
Not in a general point of view; nor do I think it on the increase.	I do not think the excessive use of ardent spirits prevails in my district, nor do I conceive that such practice is on the increase.	This district is perhaps peculiarly situated, though extensive and populous. No town or village within it which would afford opportunity to the pernicious practice of the use of ardent spirits.
All those depend on the state of employment and the disposition of the individuals; and I may add, that I think them on the decrease.	Generally speaking, very destitute.	Much wretchedness in general among the poorest class.

MUNSTER—CORK.

Glanworth Dispensary.	Glenville Dispensary.	Inniscarra Dispensary.
Medical Attendant.	Charles Murphy, Esq., M.D.	—
The fevers are principally typhoid, arising from poverty; intermittent does not prevail.	Chiefly inflammatory, attributable in a great degree to the want of proper clothing, and wretched state of their habitations.	Fevers generally assume a typhoid character, owing usually to want of proper diet or drink, or the medicine not given with regularity.
Many such instances have been experienced.	Yes.	Yes, in many instances.
The use of potatoes alone as food, especially when dug too early, or when wet after a bad season.	Potatoes are the only food of the poorer classes.	Potatoes used before they are ripe, producing dyspepsia, and the use of a yellow weed, called corn-kale, when provisions are scarce
The excessive use of ardent spirits is very prevalent, and it is conceived rather on the increase.	No.	It prevails in a great degree; in most cases of cholera this has been the immediate cause. I cannot say whether it is on the increase or otherwise.
In a bad state in every respect.	In the worst possible.	In most cases deficient in every respect, chiefly in respect of cleanliness.

MUNSTER—CORK.

Innishannon Dispensary.	Kanturk Dispensary.	Kildorrery Dispensary.
Richard Corbett, Esq., M. D.	Gerard P. Barry, Esq., M. D.	Medical Attendant.
My district has (until just now, for the last nine years, been tolerably free from epidemic. At this moment low fever prevails, and in general the type of fever is of that character, which I attribute to their uncomfortable, wretched hovels, bad clothing and want of proper nurse tending; I have at this moment five human beings lying in the same bed in fever.	Fevers are more tedious than in the more opulent classes; I attribute their prevalence to bad clothing and unwholesome food, as well as the spread of contagion, owing to the immense numbers huddled together.	Typhus fever, pleurisy, dropsies, and latterly cholera.
I have numberless instances, but more frequently instances where convalescence was retarded by want of nutrition and clothing, and very often relapses of their diseases, rendering them still more miserable.	From want of fuel, the only food of the poor, potatoes and cabbage, are badly cooked; being then very unwholesome, very distressing complaints of the stomach are induced, which after a time become incurable, medicine giving only very temporary relief, the cause of the disease continuing.	Various instances have occurred.
It strikes me that the want of comfortable sleeping places and warm night clothing, after the daily labour, more frequently produces disease than their food, which almost altogether consists of dry potatoes with salt herrings.	It does not, it is declining from poverty of the people.	Potatoes the general food, deleterious, particularly in a bad season.
I know of very few drunkards in my district, nor do I think that ardent spirits is much used; porter is drank to a very great extent.	Their habitations afford the appearance of the most squalid misery; in addition to the privations proposed in the query, they suffer intensely from want of fuel; the tattered garments they wear by day being their only covering by night, and filthy bundles of rotten straw the only bed for five or six persons of different sexes.	It does very generally prevail and seems much on the increase.
My experience of 11 years as superintendent of the institution has given me opportunities of witnessing the utmost distress amongst the patients whom I have attended, in fact there is scarcely one of their houses which is not deficient of every thing necessary for their treatment in disease.		In most cases very destitute of comfort.

MUNSTER—CORK.

Kilmoe Dispensary.	Killeagh and Mount Uniacke Dispensary.	Kilworth Dispensary.
Charles Armstrong, Esq.	—	—
Fevers have been of a common type, with the exception of one case of typhus. The influenza assumed its general prevalence, and one case of Asiatic cholera occurred.	Since the establishment of the Dispensary we have had no diseases of an epidemic character.	We have not had fever or any epidemic here for a long time. The cholera (now raging in this town) has banished all other diseases of a general nature.
I experienced some.	I have met with many cases where disease has been produced by bad diet, and which have proved fatal for want of proper sustenance.	I am of opinion that wholesome food and warm clothes would, if liberally supplied, in a short time render a dispensary almost unnecessary.
The very many dyspeptic cases appear to arise from living almost exclusively on potatoes, which seldom are more than half boiled.	I have found that the potato, which is the main support of the population in my district, is productive of disease in some peculiar habits.	Bad potatoes, or a defective crop of them, and bad fish are frequently promotive of disease in this town and district.
Ardent spirits appear to be generally drank; indulgence in them does not appear to be on the decrease.	I think that the use of ardent spirits is not so great in this district as in many other parts of Ireland; I should rather think that it was on the decrease.	It certainly does, especially amongst mechanics. The habits of the people are not yet improved in this respect.
Generally very deficient.	The poor of my district are badly clothed, badly fed, possess nothing that could be called furniture, and as to ventilation, are totally unacquainted with it; on the whole their hovels are wretched in the extreme.	Nothing can exceed the destitution of the people of this town and country of these essentials to health.

MUNSTER—CORK.

Kinnalea Dispensary.	Kinnataloon Dispensary.	Macroon Dispensary.
Thomas Daunt, Esq., Medical Officer.	Committee and Medical Attendant.	W. Furlong, Esq., M.D.
I think not.	They are generally milder amongst these than the better off classes, as farmers; except in bad subjects and persons who have been intemperate.	I have not found any particular deviation from the usual form of disease, except that I think we have not generally so much fever since the appearance of cholera, as we had before, and that it possesses a more purely typhoid type.
None, or very few.	In years of scarcity such has been the case, as in the year 1827. Where animal food is necessary for the sick, their wants are usually supplied by the neighbouring gentry upon my certificate.	I have frequently, in the twenty years I have been the physician to the Macroon Dispensary, observed the ill effects of want of good food, and where food was more necessary than medicine.
None.	In the above year, various weeds and mushrooms; the last certainly so.	Potatoes form their general diet, and would not be so productive of disease could the poor be prevailed on to dress them well, or sufficiently.
To my knowledge it does not; but a deal of porter is drank on Sundays, the price of which would add much to their comfort, if they did not do so.	I understand it does; but not so much as formerly.	It does prevail, but I believe not more than in other places. I do not think it on the increase.
Some of them very poor, and their houses very dirty; clothing sometimes bad, and diet simple but wholesome.	Generally very bad.	In general they are wretchedly supplied.

MUNSTER—CORK.

Magourney Dispensary.	Millstreet Dispensary.	Ovens Dispensary.
Thomas Godfrey, Esq., M.D.	Thomas Cudmore, Esq., Medical Attendant.	Committee and Medical Attendant.
From the scanty supply of fuel, in winter the window or hole in the wall is stuffed with straw, and every crevice is stopped to keep out the cold. On this account, a case of fever occurring at this season in a poor family frequently runs through the entire. In summer, on the case being pronounced fever, the infected person is put out by the ditch side, under a temporary covering of wattles and loose straw or weeds, and the disease is not so apt to be communicated to the rest of the family as in the inclement season.	Not since 1822, when a scarcity of food prevailed to a great extent.	In spring and autumn typhus and intermittent fevers are prevalent.
Very many.	I have frequently.	Many such instances do occur.
Yes, almost all the labouring classes are more or less affected with dyspepsia, from living on an entirely vegetable diet.	None in years of plenty; but in years of scarcity, the use of greens of various sorts prevails.	The constant and unvaried use of vegetable food is promotive of diseases of the digestive organs.
It does not; the labourer has not the means; and the small farmer rarely drinks to excess, except at a fair, wedding, or on some such occasion. We have nothing (at least in this district) like the habitual and frequent drunkenness that is so prevalent among the lower orders in cities and towns.	Not particularly.	No; such practice is neither on the increase or otherwise.
Generally wanting the common necessities of life; many of them without a dry corner for their bed, and obliged to cover themselves at night with the scanty and often wet clothes they have been working in during the day, for want of bed clothes. Their cabin badly ventilated, from want of fuel and bed clothes to protect them from cold; and the pig, their inmate, the price of which goes to purchase a scanty covering, the produce of the labourer going to pay for the wretched abode and a badly manured potato garden.	I found the poor generally in want of clothes, food, bedding, ventilation, &c. &c.	Generally well clothed; as to food, bedding and necessary comforts, very ill supplied. No ventilation; the cottages being, in many instances, without either chimney or window.

MUNSTER—CORK.

Passage and Monkstown Dispensary.	Rathcormac and Castleyons Dispensary.	Rosscarberry Dispensary.
Medical Attendant.	Committee and Medical Attendant.	Thomas Fitzgibbon, Esq., Surgeon.
Generally of an inflammatory type from the nature of their avocations on the water.	Fevers and other epidemics are generally of a mild type, save and except the cholera, which has been very malignant.	No particular type; you have all the varieties of fever. Typhus fever not the most prevalent.
I have in a great number of cases.	Many diseases come before me induced by a combination of bad diet, clothing and the miserable state of the dwelling of the poor; but I could not trace many of them to the use of the potato, which is almost exclusively the diet of the poor here.	Most certainly; the constant use of vegetable food, the potato without change, is productive of many descriptions of stomach complaints, frequently ending in death; and here occasional change of food to a more nutritious kind, say flesh-meat, might be beneficially substituted for medicine.
The potatoes, their chief sustenance in this district, are of a very bad description, being wet, and containing little nutriment.	Answered above.	Answered by the above query.
It does, and I consider it on the increase.	In the small towns a great deal of excess in the use of spirits is committed. In the country parts of the district it is not near so much; but I fear it is on the increase in both.	From inquiries made in the proper quarters it would appear that the use of ardent spirits is on the decrease in this neighbourhood, and in the same ratio that of malt liquor on the increase. They, however, gladly make use of the former on all occasions when it can be procured.
Mostly suffering under great privations, in want and wretchedness. small portion of sour milk with the potato. Beds of straw in very small quantities not renewed more than once in the year, and with very wretched covering.	The objects for dispensary practice were generally found in a wretched state in all those comforts. The food dry potatoes in winter, and in summer they may have a small portion of sour milk with the potato. Beds of straw in very small quantities not renewed more than once in the year, and with very wretched covering.	Generally speaking, of the most wretched description; formerly promiscuously huddled together at night, with but perhaps a blanket for all, eked out by their day-clothing, huts wretched, scarce ventilation; food, but the potato and salt fish in spare quantity; few can have milk, and that only in summer; clothing, rags.

MUNSTER—CORK.

Skull Dispensary.	Skibbereen Dispensary.	Timoleague Dispensary.
—	A. M'Carthy, Esq., M.D.	—
Yes, from bad food and filthy cabins.	I think where there is abundance of food and abundance of employment, the health is very good; when this is not the case, the prevalence of epidemics is remarkable and much increased.	Those diseases have not assumed any particular type in this district.
I have in innumerable instances.	The abundance of good and wholesome food has a marked effect on the general health of this district. When it is abundant and cheap there is health; when scarce, disease is sure to follow.	We do not consider the potato (the ordinary food of the county) to be calculated to create disease; however, when produced, more wholesome food may be beneficially substituted for medicine.
Yes, in this district cutaneous disease is very prevalent from the use of shell-fish, and a want of milk or any description of nutritious food.	The use of potatoes has a marked effect in producing diseases of the stomach.	Potatoes of bad quality, fish badly cured or used in too great quantities.
It does prevail to a very great extent, and certainly not on the decrease.	It is used very much. I do think the use of ardent spirits very injurious both to the health and morals of the poor; it does not appear to me that its use is on the increase.	It does to a great extent, and is much on the increase.
In general, extremely wretched.	The general state of the sick poor in this district is very wretched, being in great want of bedding, furniture and good houses.	Generally well provided with potatoes and fish, sometimes milk; tolerably well clothed, but badly provided with bedding, furniture, ventilation and other comforts.

MUNSTER—KERRY.

Ballylongford Dispensary.	Cahirseveen Dispensary.	Castleisland Dispensary.
John Poyntz, Esq., M. D.	James Barry, Esq., M. D.	Philip O'Leary, Esq., M. D.
Of cholera I will say nothing; all classes of all habits and temperaments were alike prostrated before it. Fever, never absent from us, has in many instances assumed a low and malignant type attributable to, sometimes, intemperance, but mostly to destitution.	Fevers and epidemics frequently assume a typhoid type from the bad ventilation of their cabins, most of which have neither window nor chimney, also from the want of sufficient clothing at night, and poor sustenance.	Fevers and epidemics of every kind are much less frequent now than formerly, with the exception of cholera, which has raged here since the 26th of December till the 20th of January with the utmost violence.
Yes, I have observed many instances in which disease has been produced and aggravated by want of wholesome diet, in very many cases where proper diet could do every thing, medicine nothing.	Very frequently.	I am persuaded unwholesome food has been often the cause of disease, and although wholesome food may not, without the aid of medicine, remove the disease, it would decidedly add to the efficiency of the medical treatment.
Potatoes, with sometimes salt herring, form their general diet. There is a kind of white potato now very generally cultivated, it is soft, waterish and relaxing, and gives rise to indigestion, pyrosis and cutaneous eruptions.	Bad potatoes, and badly cured salt fish, such as scad, mackarel, &c.	I have found certain descriptions of potato every year, particularly in autumn, and in years of scarcity, green vegetables, such as cabbages, nettles, turnip tops, &c. productive of the most fatal epidemics.
It does, and if a proper estimate can be formed from the increase of public houses, it is on the increase.	It prevails to an excessive degree, and whilst spirit continues so cheap I think its use will always prevail to excess in this country.	In my opinion the use of ardent spirits is considerably on the decline in this district.
I cannot adequately express my feelings for the privations of the poor of this country in respect to clothes, food, bedding, furniture, &c. &c. &c.	In a most wretched state as to clothes, food, bedding, furniture, ventilation, &c.	The most extreme destitution pervades the whole pauper population in all these points, and some not deemed paupers, are suffering severely in these particulars.

MUNSTER—KERRY.

Clanmaurice Dispensary.	Dingle Dispensary.	Kenmare Dispensary.
John O'Flaherty, Esq.	Committee and Medical Attendant.	Timotheus M'Carthy, Esq. M. D.
The fevers have most frequently, from the causes alluded to in No. 5, appeared in the congestive form of typhus, according to the classification of Armstrong.	I have not observed any.	We have had no epidemic here for the last three years with the exception of the cholera.
I have; a species of white potato known by the name of lumper, which gives a tendency to dropsical and dysentrical affections; this potato is their only food; milk, flesh, meat and fish are known to them only by sight or name.	Indigestion and bowel complaints are frequent among the poor from the almost exclusive use of potatoes and the want of warm clothing; as their poverty renders a better diet unattainable, the substitution of the flour and feculla of the potato for the vegetable itself, according to the suggestions of Sir James Sinclair, would be of great advantage to the sick and convalescent, and especially to the children, who are very liable to dysentery.	I have known numerous instances where disease has not only been produced but kept up by want of proper sustenance and where wholesome food, if it did not act as a substitute would at least be a necessary adjunct to medicine.
	This is answered under the last head.	The general food of the poor in this district is the potato; when the potato is of a bad description it is most prolific of gastric and bowel attacks, indeed it is to the use of bad potatoes I attribute the greater number of bowel attacks.
No, even were they disposed to indulge, they could not unless they obtained means by highway robbery or other illegal ways.	There are some drunken tradesmen in this town, as indeed in every other, but drinking to excess is rather unusual amongst the country people and becoming more so. There were, sometime ago, 32 publicans in Dingle, there are now only 28, and I have the authority of an intelligent gauger that the	The use of ardent spirits does not prevail to any extent in this district, and it is rather on the decrease.
In the vast majority of instances their condition in all these respects was most wofully wretched.	Generally very deficient in all those particulars.	In all those articles of comfort I have found the poor miserably deficient with the exception of ventilation; their hovels are very imperfectly protected from the weather and during their sojourn on the bed of illness, the difficulty is how to keep out the cold and chilling blast.

MUNSTER—KERRY.

Listowel Dispensary.	Milltown Dispensary.	Tarbert Dispensary.
—	Mr. G. Salmon, Apothecary.	William Kennedy, Esq., M. D.
Fevers generally assume either a typhoid or phrenitic character; typhoid from the chronic dyspeptic disorder their bad diet subjects them to, and phrenitic from their often having recourse to ardent spirits in the chilling stages of the disease.	They have principally, for want of those things mentioned in Query 5. tion, and from concentration of miasma, they sometimes assume a malignant type, and become more fatal. Epidemics have occasionally prevailed; the measles were frequent during the years 1830 and 1831, and were unusually severe, in some cases ending fatal. Cholera appeared in 1832 and 1833; there were then eight fatal cases; and, now it has re-appeared, six fatal cases. No funds or hospital; but depending solely on the dispensary for assistance, which will exhaust our funds. The influenza was epidemic, and in many cases was attended with consecutive fever, which was tedious and difficult to cure, requiring the greatest attention.	The fevers generally prevailing in my district are of the low description, commonly called typhus mitia, from want of ventilation.
I have, and can state that the want of suitable diet and clothing, especially in their convalescence, protracts the diseases of the poor, subjects them to relapses, and disposes to those chronic disorders and disabilities so prevalent amongst them; evils which hospitals only can prevent.	Very many.	I have not experienced diseases brought on by want of proper sustenance or food; but nutritious food would, in many instances, be extremely beneficial, and assist in rendering effective the medical treatment.
I have.	Their general diet is potatoes, and for want of milk they use salt fish, which, I think, does not agree with them.	The constant use of potatoes amongst the poorer class, I consider apt to produce dyspepsia and cutaneous diseases, &c.
It does as usual.	This prevails generally every where, but in this neighbourhood is not on the increase.	A few may occasionally indulge in the excessive use of ardent spirits; but I do not consider that it generally prevails in my district, and certainly the practice is not on the increase.
In general quite destitute of those and all other necessary comforts.	Generally speaking, in want of all those things.	In general, I find the patients badly provided with clothes, food, furniture, and ventilation. Some few are better provided with the necessary comforts of life.

MUNSTER—KERRY—LIMERICK.

Tralee Dispensary.	Ballingarry Dispensary.	Ballinlander Dispensary.
The Medical Attendants.	Robert Odell, Esq.	James O'Brien, Esq., Surgeon.
All diseases assume a very bad type from the undermentioned causes.	None in my experience worthy of notice, except cholera, which cannot be attributed to any local cause.	Fever has not assumed any particularly bad type, but there have been a great number of cases; cholera generally proves fatal in this district.
Most of their diseases are caused by want of proper and wholesome food, &c.	Some diseases are undoubtedly caused by want of proper nourishment; and occasionally cases are met with where nourishment is more necessary than medicine.	Where disease does prevail, I know many sink under it for want of proper sustenance; but wholesome food, I conceive, in many instances to be more necessary than medicine.
Bad potatoes, bad fish, milk, &c.	I have not. I think I have remarked, that where the diet was composed of potatoes only, diseases of the stomach are very frequent.	Unripe potatoes and salt herrings are often the causes of unpleasant, and in some instances dangerous bowel diseases.
Not more here than in any other part of the country.	It does; my experience does not enable me to say whether the practice is on the increase or otherwise.	Not among the poor; the farmers in this district scarcely drink any malt liquor, but whisky; on inquiry, I do not find it on the increase.
In the worst possible state as to all.	In some instances the patients are very poor, and in want of the common necessities of life.	I have found the poor in my district miserably deficient of every thing except food, which has not been scarce these two years past.

MUNSTER—LIMERICK.

Bruff Dispensary.	Cahirconlish Dispensary.	Castleconnell Dispensary.
Committee and Medical Attendant.	—	Elliott O'Donnell, Esq., M. D.
They have; for want of wholesome and nutritious diet and comfortable bedding, the absence of cleanliness and proper ventilation in their wretched hovels.	I do not think fevers have assumed a particular type among the poorer classes of this neighbourhood.	Fevers and the different epidemics often assume a very malignant type in my neighbourhood, which I think is occasioned by poverty and bad diet, and the moist and boggy situation of the houses in which the poor reside exerting its pernicious influence.
I have; and find that medicine is frequently not efficacious for want of a corresponding regimen.	Wholesome food, warm clothing and bedding most certainly would have prevented many of the diseases with which the poor have been afflicted.	I have in numerous instances.
Yes, an invariable use of potato diet begets affections of the stomach, a common complaint with the poorer classes.	The poor here live on potatoes the year round.	I consider their diet, consisting chiefly of potatoes and salt fish, to be very prejudicial to health.
It does, particularly at public meetings, such as fairs, markets, &c.; there are many habitual drunkards. I do not perceive any marked increase or diminution of the practice.	The poor here seldom have the means of procuring spirits. I think there is less of drunkenness of late than hitherto.	The use of ardent spirits is so general, especially at every fair, market and public meeting, that it is impossible to form an opinion; there are 26 licensed public-houses in this Union besides many unlicensed.
In a state of great destitution generally, and deficient of all comforts included in this quere.	The clothes, food and bedding of the poor are indeed wretchedly bad.	In all those particulars I have generally found the poor of the two districts to which I am attached very destitute.

MUNSTER—LIMERICK.

Clarina Dispensary.	Croom Dispensary.	Glin Dispensary.
Michael Brodie, Esq., M. D.	Dionysius O'Flaherty, Esq., M. D.	—
Fever has not been epidemic in this district for several years; it occasionally prevails of the simple continued form or type, not typhus, is then rather confined to particular localities, and becomes contagious; it arises from cold, wet, variation of temperature, noxious exhalations, &c.	Fevers frequently assume the typhoid type in consequence of the poor people being previously weakened by poor diet, often long fasting and hard labour.	They have assumed a low bad type, which I have attributed to the want of proper food and clothing, and bad state of the beds of the poor.
I have, but not in the immediate neighbourhood of any of the resident gentry.	Many.	I have experienced many instances.
Their common food, potatoes, is very frequently the cause of dyspepsia, &c., among them; and salt herrings, which are in common use in the small villages, are promotive of cutaneous diseases.	The many who live exclusively on the potato are much subject to indigestion and other disorders of the stomach. Others, better off, who have the luxury of salt herrings, suffer much from cutaneous diseases.	I have found the potato a fruitful source of disease of the digestive organs.
I do not consider the excessive use of ardent spirits to be on the increase, or indeed very prevalent in this district.	I do consider the use of ardent spirits is on the decline.	The excessive use of spirits does not prevail in this district, nor do I consider the practice on the increase.
Many very badly circumstanced in this respect, but I think generally not so bad as in other districts, the latter attributable to the residence of several gentry.	Miserably destitute.	In general very bad, and in a great many instances in a most deplorable condition.

MUNSTER—LIMERICK.

Limerick General Dispensary.	Limerick Dispensary.	Kilfinan Dispensary.
William Griffin, Esq., M.D.	Mr. George Ryan, Apothecary.	John Grove White, Esq., M.D.
	I perceive no material alteration as to the type of disease.	This district is at present, and has been for some time, free from any epidemic; there are at present a few cases of fever, not assuming any particular type.
	The want of proper food often causes disease, where wholesome nourishment would do away with any necessity for medicine in many cases.	I conceive that some diseases, such as dropsy, bowel complaints and affections of the stomach, are frequently produced by the use of improper food, which might not occur if the food was nutritious and digestible.
	Yes; bad potatoes, fish, sour milk and offal, which is the general food with the poorer classes of tradesmen and labourers.	I find that many of them are obliged to live on potatoes alone, which certainly produce stomach and bowel complaints.
	It unfortunately does to a great extent, and I fear is not decreasing.	I have always found the use of ardent spirits prevail in this neighbourhood, and I consider there is no decrease in it.
	As regards clothes, nearly naked. Food of the worst kind, and very scanty. Bedding too wretched to bear description. Furniture, generally none. Ventilation, that which proceeds from pigs, dunghills, and filthy alleys.	I have found them very deficient in clothes; scantily supplied with food, bedding and furniture, and all other necessary comforts.

MUNSTER—LIMERICK.

Kilpeacon Dispensary.	Knockany Dispensary.	Murroe Dispensary.
Committee and Medical Attendant.	Secretary and Medical Attendant.
Fevers and epidemics most generally assume a worse type among the poorer classes, attributable, in my opinion, to an impoverished diet, uncleanly habits, bad ventilation, a want of sufficient covering, together with a natural predisposition.	Yes; fevers and epidemics assume very malignant types, for want of cleanliness and proper ventilation.	In the year 1831, dysentery was prevalent, the causes of which I looked upon to be want of clothing and the severity of the winter.
I have experienced many such instances.	I have; and find medicine inefficacious in many instances, for want of a corresponding regimen.	I have frequently.
An inferior description of potato, with salt herrings; and in the summer season, when potatoes are scarce, I have known wild vegetable matter to be used at those periods, and to be the principal promoter of bowel and other complaints.	I have. The constant use of potato diet predisposes the poorer classes to stomach complaints.	The only food among the poor class are potatoes, and in this class I find disease most prevalent.
I am not aware, from my own knowledge, but I am informed it is on the increase.	It does prevail to a considerable extent among the lower orders; particularly at their public meetings. There are many habitual drunkards. I do not perceive any marked increase or otherwise in the practice.	I conceive it does, and that it is on the increase.
Generally speaking, most wretched.	In a state of great destitution generally, and deficient of every comfort mentioned in this query.	In general I found them deficient in those articles, particularly bed-clothes, bad food and want of ventilation.

MUNSTER—LIMERICK.

Palace Kenry Dispensary.	Shanagolden Dispensary.	Thomond Gate Dispensary. (City of Limerick.)
Daniel Griffin, Esq., M. D.	Joseph Kennedy, Esq., M. D.	M. C. Gore, Esq., Surgeon.
The type of fever is more severe and dangerous at sometimes than at others. I have not been able to see any particular rule that it follows, or to attribute the change in the type when it occurs to any change in the circumstances of the people.	Fevers, when epidemic, are generally of the typhoid species; the inflammatory kind observable soon assumes the specific character of typhus, which is entirely owing to the debilitating causes which predispose to this disease among the poorer classes, as described in Question 5. Other epidemics, such as measles and small-pox, seem to derive their origin from some latent atmospheric influence. Catarrhal affections also spring from the same general cause when cold and moist weather prevails. Want of proper clothing exposes the poor people to this complaint, tending to serious results in delicate constitutions.	Fevers and epidemics have assumed a severe type in my neighbourhood among the poor, in consequence of debilitated constitutions from the want of proper food, clothing and ordinary necessities.
This is very much the case among those of the poor who are but half fed and poorly clad. Their circumstances, besides that their habitations are of the most wretched kind, render them greatly more susceptible of dangerous inflammatory affections (the result of colds) and of fever than they would otherwise be. Their recovery, when they do recover, is made extremely	Many instances of this kind occur. The want of wholesome food in several cases generates diseases of the digestive organs and enfeebles their action. Medicine can be no substitute, although temporary relief may result from a judicious and experienced use of it when necessary.	I have witnessed much of this, as choleric affections of the stomach and bowels, dyspepsia, tumorous diseases and general debility, with excitability of constitution. To wholesome food medicine is almost invariably necessary as an adjunct.
I have seen sometimes dangerous mortifications of the limbs, which I attributed to the use of a certain species of weed which I found that they used to eat with potatoes; but such results, however, were extremely rare.	I have observed that the constant use of potato nutriment, chiefly when this root is of a bad kind, so as to appear when boiled almost pellucid from the inherent vegetable juice (as in the white species growing in certain soils without proper manure) to be the fertile source of dyspepsia or bad digestion, choleric, dysentery, worms of children and adults, &c. among the labouring poor who inhabit miserable cabins. Those who hold farms, small or large, are comfortable; can vary their aliment in some degree, and have always milk in abundance; they are	Potatoes I think (so much used, particularly without mastication and mixture with the saliva of the mouth, as is much the case,) are fruitful sources of many diseases.
Drunkenness prevails to an excessive degree in this village, and from my experience of past years I think it is very much on the increase.	The excessive use of ardent spirits does not generally prevail in this district; the farmers sometimes indulge in the use of them. There are very few habitual dram-drinkers, as in large towns and cities. I do not think that spirituous potation is on the increase.	Ardent spirits are much used, even to excess, amongst the poor when they can procure them. The Limerick Temperance Society has done much good, the use of ardent spirits being on the decline since its establishment.
In a very wretched state as to bedding, furniture, ventilation and cleanliness. The principal source of filth is the almost universal practice among the peasantry of forming pits of manure at each side of their doors. It is desirable, but very difficult to correct this, a good supply of manure being necessary to them, as most of these hold a quarter or half an acre of potato ground. Much of this manure is formed from the waste of the house, and it is therefore not easy to get them to fix on a spot which, though better for the preservation of health, would be less convenient to them.	Their clothes, food and bedding are of the most wretched description; the daily clothes often are their only covering at night. The bad food they use is at the latter part of the season but scantily supplied when the family is large; as to furniture and comfort, neither exists. They are often crammed into one small damp room without a window, where there is but one bed, in which as many as possible stow; the rest lie on straw spread on the floor. Where there can be no proper ventilation, animal effluvia must there predominate, destructive to health and predisposing	Clothes scanty and generally very filthy. Food, potatoes and milk, potatoes and herrings, or potatoes and salt, many large families not having more than one meal a day of either. Bedding generally straw or hay; furniture generally wretched; ventilation almost invariably bad, in consequence of the filth of the external localities and internal economy. I may truly say, that a total want of necessary comforts exists amongst the poorer class of people.

MUNSTER—TIPPERARY.

Ballymackey Dispensary.	Ballynenty Dispensary.	Ballyporeen Dispensary.
Committee and Medical Attendant.	Committee and Medical Attendant.	Committee and Medical Attendant.
No difference in the type.	No.	A great many cases of intermittent fever, which I attribute to the marshy situation of the district, and bad, watery, poor diet.
I have.	I have not. I sometimes find it necessary to give an order on the treasurer for milk, when I find a patient cannot afford to buy it.	Very many.
Potatoes are the only food amongst the poor, generally speaking, in this district; and when they are bad or scarce, are productive of disease.	I have not.	Bad potatoes.
Public-houses have increased.	It does to a great extent.	It does not, and I think the practice on the decrease.
Generally speaking, most wretched.	Pretty good, with a few exceptions.	In general very miserable.

MUNSTER—TIPPERARY.

Borris O'Kane Dispensary.	Borrisoleigh Dispensary.	Clogheen Dispensary.
James J. Stoney, Esq., Surgeon.	Committee and Medical Attendant.	—
I cannot say that fevers have; but we have had cholera, which is a form of epidemic new in this country.	Fever has not here assumed any particular type, influenced by the condition of the poor; they are in general milder, and the recoveries more numerous in proportion than the better classes, but also more general, owing to the nuisances they endure, and the numbers that are crowded together, often in one bed.	The fevers are all of a low typhoid type, and will not bear description. Bad food, occasional excesses in the use of spirituous liquors, and the prevalence of influenza.
Hundreds of instances of both examples; thence arises the necessity for local hospitals on a cheap plan. I have known infants die of disease caused by improper food.	I do believe that in extremes of heat and cold, overpowered with labour, many of them contract diseases that might be averted or removed if they had proper food and comfortable bedding.	In those years when food was dear I found that disease was spread for want of proper sustenance.
Potatoes may be productive of disease, but only in those subjects whose necessities oblige them to live wholly on this root; however, when eaten with a due admixture of other food they are most wholesome.	The constant use of bad potatoes frequently produces dyspepsia, flatulence and affections of the stomach and bowels.	Potatoes, when of inferior quality, or if used too early in the season.
It does, and the practice is on the increase. The remedy is obvious, viz., to increase the duty on spirits and lessen that on beer. The greater consumption of the latter article would compensate both the agriculturist and the revenue.	There are some habitual drunkards, but I do not consider it at all on the increase.	It does, but I do not think the practice is either increasing or diminishing.
Deplorably deficient in each and every particular. It is an agricultural district, where distress has been peculiarly felt of late years, and want of employment, except at seed time and harvest.	Clothing very indifferent; food potatoes, with sometimes a herring or sour milk; bedding straw, mostly on the ground; furniture very scarce, and total want of all comforts.	In general the poor are miserably off for all these comforts, particularly along the foot of the mountains, and in the back lanes of this town.

MUNSTER—TIPPERARY.

Drangan Dispensary.	Dundrum Dispensary.	Grangemoekler Dispensary.
P. O'Halloran, Esq., M.D.	—	S. J. Meagher, Esq., M.D.
See Answer to Newcastle.	There have not been any fevers or epidemics amongst the poorer classes for the last three years.	Except a few instances of cholera and small-pox, fever or any epidemic seems in general favourable.
See ditto.	I have met many, and have no doubt but wholesome food would prevent a variety of cases which I have to attend to.	Though it might not actually induce disease, is often very detrimental when disease is present.
See ditto.	The food of the poor is almost confined to potatoes, the quantity and quality of which materially affects their health. The white potato, which is now very generally used, contains little nutriment, and is calculated to promote disease.	Their food very often consists of an inferior description of potato adapted to the soil (a barren and mountainous country) but not of a nutritious or wholesome nature.
Immediately in the village the tradesmen are all drunkards; but in the district round, the people cannot afford to pay for drink.	The excessive use of ardent spirits does not prevail amongst the poor, or the higher or middling class; it is used principally by small farmers and servants, and even with them is considerably on the decrease.	I have not seen many instances of this kind, but a few have come under my observation. The people in general seem to be rather temperate.
The only difference between the poor in the neighbourhood of Drangan and those of Newcastle is, that their houses are generally more wretched and even less clean.	The state of the poor is very bad in all the particulars of this query, especially in that part which is not in the neighbourhood of Dundrum, where great attention is paid to their comforts by Lord Hawarden. The general state of the poor in any part of the district is not, however, any thing like that of the poor of Cashel, where I reside, which is wretched beyond description.	Generally very badly provided with clothing, and their food sometimes of the worst description.

MUNSTER—TIPPERARY.

Killenaule Dispensary.	Kilsheelan Dispensary.	Lorrah Dispensary.
Mr. Charles Fitzpatrick, Apothecary.	Charles Sloane, Esq., Surgeon.	—
Fevers do assume particular types almost every year, at different seasons of the year. The causes, I think, are unexplained, and I fear inexplicable.	There has not been any epidemic in my district since I have had charge of it.	Cannot say that they have.
I cannot say that I saw disease actually brought on by want of food, but every day I see cases where disease is aggravated, and medical assistance unavailing from the want of proper food, when wholesome food with medical aid would soon restore to health.	I have known many instances of disease to be brought on by poverty, and many where wholesome food and warm clothing were alone necessary; the neighbouring gentry supply both on my recommendation.	In a few cases.
The food mentioned above is certainly promotive of disease.	Pain of the stomach, with flatulence, is very prevalent, and I believe it to be brought on by the constant use of potatoes.	Potatoes late in the season when bad.
Yes, the use of ardent spirits is very prevalent, especially among the labourers employed in the colliery here and the several tradespeople in the town. I believe the practice is on the increase.	In one part of my district, comprising a population of about eight hundred, the use of ardent spirits prevails. I do not think it on the increase or decrease.	The use of ardent spirits prevails to a great extent, and is increasing from the increased number of public-houses.
In all respects very bad; their houses and furniture exceedingly so. Their food potatoes and sour milk, when the latter is to be had, as in summer; in winter, potatoes alone, with sometimes salt-herrings.	In general I find those whom I visit in a wretched state of destitution in respect to those things.	Generally comfortable, but there are some cases of great distress.

MUNSTER—TIPPERARY.

Littleton Dispensary.	Mullinahone Dispensary.	Nenagh Dispensary.
Committee and Medical Attendant.	Committee and Medical Attendant.	Committee and Medical Attendant.
They have not.	Fevers and epidemics have assumed to my knowledge a particular type among the poorer classes, but this I am inclined to attribute as much to the nature of epidemics themselves as to other causes, moral or physical.	Fever sometimes assumes a low typhus type, generally resulting from their mode of life.
I have not; but have met cases where wholesome food, along with the medicine ordered, would have accelerated recovery.	I have experienced but very few instances where want of proper sustenance has been the cause of actual disease, or where food might be beneficially substituted for medicine.	Yes.
I have not.	As the experience of many years, I can state as an axiom, that I have not found the use of any particular food among the poorer classes promotive of disease; such food being of sound quality.	Bad potatoes, which they are frequently obliged to use.
Certainly; and is on the increase.	To a very limited extent; nor do I think it on the increase in this district.	Yes, and very much on the increase.
Generally in a very bad state.	I have found them in general, when visited at their own houses, very defective in the comforts of clothes, food, bedding, furniture, ventilation and other necessities.	Generally found them destitute of clothes, bedding, furniture, ventilation and food, except a bad kind.

MUNSTER—TIPPERARY.

Newcastle Dispensary.	Newport Dispensary.	Poulnucka Dispensary.
P. O. Halloran, Esq., M.D.	Committee and Medical Attendant.	Patrick Fitzgibbon, Esq., Surgeon.
The fevers amongst them are generally slow, and they are a long time recovering before they regain their usual strength. I think from the bad accommodation and food this may be caused.	As to fever, its character is generally the same here as I have witnessed elsewhere.	They have not.
I have experienced many instances of disease being protracted from want of proper food. Cannot say it was actually brought on by the food.	I have unfortunately witnessed it too often.	Yes.
In the months of June, July and August when the old potatoes are decaying, and before the new crop is sufficiently ripe, affections of the digestive organs are produced by the food.	We can specify none.	I have found the constant use of vegetable, without any animal food, to be very injurious.
Not so generally as in towns amongst the tradesmen, but on fair or market days they return home mostly in a state of intoxication.	The excessive use of ardent spirits prevails in this district, and I conceive its practice is daily increasing.	Not to any great extent; nor do I think it is on the increase.
The food of the poor in the district I am acquainted consists of potatoes alone, with, in the summer season, butter-milk or skimmed milk. Bed clothes are generally scanty and worn, and often the day-clothes put on the beds consists of one or two metal pots, for boiling potatoes. An indifferent coarse table, a few equally coarse chairs or stools, a few shelves for some vessels, wooden or tin, perhaps not all worth more than one pound or twenty-five shillings. The houses are badly ventilated, the door being generally the only means of admitting air or light. Many of those cabins built of mud and covered with thatch are without any chimneys, and of course the vitiated air from respiration and from the burning of fuel, having no mode of escape but through the doorway, must be injurious to the health of the inmates. I am often obliged to rush out for some time from the suffocating air of those cabins, and return in again to examine those ill. Their clothes consist of the cheapest materials and seldom either sufficiently warm or clean. The bedding consists of straw or hay spread on the floor or laid on boards elevated a little from the floor.	Generally in a state of wretchedness.	I have generally found them greatly in want of those necessary comforts.

MUNSTER—TIPPERARY.

Roesgreen Dispensary.	Roscrea Dispensary.	Silvermines Dispensary.
Patrick Heffernan, Esq., M.D.	Committee and Medical Attendant.	Committee and Medical Attendant.
There has not been any epidemic disease amongst the poor of this district, since I have become professionally connected with it.	Fevers and epidemics have always a tendency to assume (from the ill fed state of the poor) a typhoid and putrid character.	Want of ventilation and cleanliness, together with crowded apartments, are the chief cause of fevers and epidemics, assuming (as they do) a particular type amongst the poorer classes.
Disease has been induced and supported in many instances by want of proper sustenance and other necessities, which would in those cases be most beneficially substituted for medicine.	There is no doubt that the intestinal fevers of children are induced by scanty, bad, vegetable food; this disease creeps on progressively from them to those who are older, and so on, till the adults of the family are seized. It is in this way that infectious fevers mostly originate, combined with "malaria," emanating from the cesspools at every cabin door, where animal and vegetable substances are in a state of putrid fermentation. The sexual diseases of females (memorrhæa, leucorrhæa, &c.) proceed from unwholesome food.	I have little doubt but the constant use of potatoes (particularly when the season is unfavourable for their growth) predisposes to dropsies and scrofulous affections.
I have no doubt but that the use of potatoes which alone is the food of the poor of this country, is promotive of disease. The plenty or scarcity, as well as the good or bad quality of this article of food is attended with the most serious consequences to the poor generally.	I consider the potato called "lumper," a fertile cause of stomach diseases; it is of a waxy, soapy nature, and is very hard of digestion, and on this account, is held in estimation by the poor, as it remains longer in the stomach than a better kind of potatoe; it is the most productive, and therefore constitutes their principal food, though not fit to fatten pigs on when badly cultivated, as is generally the case.	Bad potatoes.
The excessive use of ardent spirits does not prevail in my district. Its use is partial, and not amongst the very poor: it is on the decrease considerably.	The excessive use of whiskey prevails to a very great and increasing extent, every where I know of; you cannot buy any thing at market, nor hire a person to do the most trifling work, &c. &c. but the conclusion of the bargain must be a glass of whiskey; patients coming to the dispensary, even young females, will ask, may I take liquor? in fact, the lower orders are in a constant state of inebriety whenever they can get whiskey.	They are much disposed to use it, but are unable to procure it for want of money; such as can afford it use it freely.
The state of the poor in my district is wretched beyond description as to clothes, bedding, food, furniture and necessary comforts. It is still worse with the poor in Cashel where I reside: quite incredible.	Were I to write volumes on this subject I could not convey an adequate idea of the degraded state of the poor; they are not so well off as the beasts of the field; we witness in their wretched cabins, starvation, filth, nakedness, rags, crowded unventilated apartments, recklessness, despondency and despair.	Mostly very wretched. Ventilation not attended to.

MUNSTER—TIPPERARY.

Templetochy Dispensary.	Thurles Dispensary.	Tipperary Dispensary.
Bryan Mullally, Esq., M. D.	Committee and Medical Attendant.	Treasurer and Medical Attendant.
Epidemics in general seem to assume the low type among the poorer classes in this district; such is a natural consequence of their extreme poverty.	Fevers have not here assumed any particular type, influenced by the condition of the poor; they are in general milder, and the recoveries more numerous, in proportion, than among the better classes, but also more general, owing to the miseries they endure and the numbers that are	Since the establishment of the Fever Hospital, fever has certainly become less frequent and less malignant amongst the poor of this district.
I daily witness instances where disease has been brought on by want of proper sustenance, and I have no doubt that the necessity for using medicine would be much diminished if the poor were supplied with better food.	I do believe that in extremes either of heat or wet and cold, overpowered with hardship, many of them contract diseases that might be averted or speedily removed if they had proper sustenance or food.	It is the opinion of all the medical men in Tipperary, that the bowel affections, so numerous and severe here, are aggravated by the constant use of the potato, which is the only food of the poorer classes.
I cannot say that I have. I may, however, observe, that potatoes, on which they altogether subsist, would seem very materially to promote dyspepsia, a frequent disease among the poor in this district.	The constant use of bad potatoes produces with them dyspepsia, flatulence and affections of the stomach and bowels, all of which form a greater portion of the diseases of the country than is generally imagined, as it often happens that they try to work while under medical treatment for them.	The above answer replies also to this question.
The poor of this district are much devoted to the use of ardent spirits, and I think such practice to be daily on the increase.	The middle order in this district are remarkably temperate. Many of the lower orders that are able to procure spirits are addicted to its use; but the poor, with the exception of a few habitual drunkards, seldom drink, and I do not think it is on the increase.	It always prevailed, and does still prevail to a great extent.
In my attendance on the poor I have observed the greatest want of clothes, bedding, furniture, and such necessary comforts. The food in general is of the worst sort, and very often scantily supplied. The wretchedness of their crowded hovels is much increased by their want of cleanliness or attention to ventilation.	Clothing very indifferent; food the worst quality of potato, with seldom any thing with it but salt, and rarely sour milk; bedding, straw on the ground-floor; furniture, almost none, properly so called, and total absence in general of all comforts. Ventilation is not always wanted, probably from their houses having a front and back door, a chimney place often too wide, and window without glass.	In the most destitute state. In want of almost every comfort specified in the query.

MUNSTER—TIPPERARY and WATERFORD.

Toomavara Dispensary.	Ballyduff Dispensary.	Bonmahon Dispensary.
C. Bourns, Esq., Surgeon.	Committee and Medical Attendant.	Thomas Dillon Baker, Esq. Surgeon.
This district is in general healthy; it has, however, been visited with cholera, and at present has many cases of the common cholera and bowel complaints, induced by the wet, close weather.	They mostly assume a low, debilitated type, attributable to their general bad diet and drinking habits.
Few, if any; yet the usual food must be changed during illness.	I have seen numerous instances where disease has been the effect of want of nutriment; but such disease, arising from whatever cause, requires medicine until subdued, more than food, though proper food would have prevented its appearing in the first instance.	Frequently.
No.	Yes; bad potatoes, salt fish and ardent spirits.	Wet potatoes and adulterated spirits.
It appears to be the general rule not to leave the towns, markets or fairs sober, Sundays more especially; the great number of public-houses, all open on Sundays, much facilitate the habit.	It does; its increase and decrease altogether depend on the ability or inability of the unfortunate people to purchase it.	The use of ardent spirits is most prevalent. At present a temporary decrease from want of means to procure it.
Speaking of the labouring classes, clothes scanty, food dry potatoes, those even scarce in summer. In general, bedding most miserable, dirty and deficient; the clothes; furniture, a pot, an apology for a table, a stool and two sticks fastened in the wall as a bedstead. Ventilation studiously avoided; comforts not even thought of.	In a most miserable state.	Generally in a miserable state.

MUNSTER—WATERFORD.

Cappoquin Dispensary.	Clashmore Dispensary.	Dunmore and Passage Dispensaries.
David Barry, Esq., Surgeon.	William O'Brien, Esq., Surgeon.	William Holland Gore, Esq., Surgeon.
Fever has been much on the decrease of late, and its severity or mortality greatly lessened. For the year ending in November 1831, there were fifty-nine fever cases and ten deaths; in 1832, forty two cases and six deaths; and in 1833 there were but fourteen cases and three deaths.	The type of fever I generally find to prevail here is what is called mild typhus; I look upon it to be caused by the poor and innutritious nature of their food, assisted by the malaria constantly arising from, in and about their cabins. I look upon dropsies, which are common amongst the poor here, to be produced by the same causes.	The typhoid type has usually characterized the fever cases which have come under my observation. I am not aware of any particular cause.
I reply in the affirmative; but food never can be a substitute for medicine where medical or surgical aid is requisite. It is in the convalescence that food and care are signally useful; I may add, indispensable.	I have experienced many instances where diseases, such as dropsies and slow wasting fevers, have been brought on by a want of proper sustenance; and where, I have no doubt, food of a nutritious and wholesome quality might be substituted with decided advantage for medicine.	I cannot say I have met with any instance of disease brought on by want of proper sustenance, but I have known many where it has been materially aggravated and considerably prolonged by this cause. The use of dry potatoes amongst persons residing in marshy situations must increase the predisposition to intermittent fever or ague.
In years of scarcity of potatoes the poor have had recourse to cabbages, and other crude vegetable diet; this, from improper cooking, &c., has often brought on dysentery, and other violent diseases of stomach and bowels, which frequently proved fatal.	I conceive the species of potato called the lumpers that the poor people use in this district to be highly promotive of disease; it is the worst, and least nutritious species of that root I ever saw.	Answered above.
To the abuse of ardent spirits I ascribe much of the misery of the peasantry of this neighbourhood; and if the evil is not on the increase, I must attribute it to want of means amongst the labouring classes, not to any moral improvement.	I do not think the excessive use of ardent spirits prevails here; it may be a virtue of necessity; for cheap as whiskey is, I believe it to be too expensive a luxury for the poor in this district. Except at fairs, or when funerals come to this village, I seldom witness intoxication.	The people of this barony are, by no means remarkable for the excessive use of ardent spirits, and I believe less so now than formerly.
Many wretched, beyond what human nature is supposed capable of enduring. In ninety-nine cases out of one hundred the bed consists of a little straw, and the covering the same that is worn by day; the food consists of potatoes with salt, generally, milk being a luxury seldom within the reach of the poor; never during the winter and spring months; furniture out of the question, and ventilation they know not the use of.	The state of the poor in this district with respect to clothes, bedding and furniture is wretched indeed; in fact they do not deserve the name. Their unvarying food is the wretched lumpers potato. They are enemies to ventilation; and as to necessary comforts, it appears to me to be a struggle with them to support life.	The state of the poor varies considerably in different parts of the barony, but, generally speaking, denotes extreme indigence, great want of cleanliness, and a total absence of any thing like comfort.

MUNSTER—WATERFORD.

ULSTER—ANTRIM.

Kilmacthomas Dispensary.	Kilmeaden and Drumcannon Dispensaries.	Ahoghill Dispensary.
J. P. Coghlan, Esq., M.D.	George A. Waters, Esq., M.D.	Secretaries and Medical Attendant.
There has been no epidemic here in my time; that is, for the last twelve months, save cholera.	Epidemics have varied in their intensity, attributable to some peculiar disposition of the atmosphere. Whenever we can induce the poor, labouring under fever, to be removed to the Waterford Hospital, they are sent in; but in general they prefer to remain in their hovels. The deaths from fever have been very few in my district.	They have not. They have not been very common. A few cases have occurred since the establishment of this charity in which the whole family have suffered in succession. In one very severe case it was brought into the family from a distance.
When there are so many causes, such as want of clothes, bedding, ventilation, food, and I may add, want of cleanliness, it is difficult to attribute disease to any one of them; but that diseases are generated and kept up by all conjoined, and that they could be more efficiently treated by the removal of the causes, of course there can be no doubt.	Many. In general the diseases of the poor arise from their wretched mode of life, and from the scantiness and deteriorated quality of their food.	As far as I have been able to judge, medicine has always been necessary. There is no doubt that wholesome food would have been a very necessary accompaniment.
I cannot answer positively; perhaps salt herrings and a bad species of white potato may be mentioned.	There is a description of potato much in use by the poor of my districts called lumpers; it is a watery potato, containing little farina; its productiveness, and answering well in poor ground, requiring little manure, induce the peasantry to give it a preference; in my opinion it is the worst variety of the solanum tuberosum. This poor diet must place the consumer in a state liable to contract contagious, organic and epidemic complaints.	I cannot say that I have. The poor, from the quality of the food, have suffered from different diseases, according to the nature of the constitution.
Not, I think, to a remarkable degree; but I fear it is owing more to a want of means than of inclination.	I have remarked that the use of ardent spirits is very much on the increase.	It does in some degree, but I cannot say that it is on the increase.
Generally in a most wretched state with regard to every thing mentioned.	Excessively wretched in every respect.	In a very bad state; partly from poverty, partly from the habits of the people.

ULSTER—ANTRIM.

Antrim Dispensary.	Ballycastle Dispensary.	Ballymoney Dispensary.
Edward Bryson, Esq., Surgeon.	William Nevill, Esq., M. D.	Alexander Moore, Esq., M. D.
When fevers or epidemics have assumed a malignant character, which has frequently been the case here, I think such an occurrence may generally be traced to an increase in the sufferings of the poor for the time from severe seasons, bad crops, &c. Sometimes it seems to be produced by the peculiar states of the atmosphere.	Fever has not prevailed much within the last year a half; the type was common; continued fever approaching to the typhoid, more or less, in some cases. No fatal case in a dispensary patient. Cholera raged for about two months.	None that I am aware of.
I have met with numberless cases where disease has been brought on by the want of proper food and clothing, and instances often occur where patients do well without medicine when supplied with the above necessities.	The food of the poor of this district is almost exclusively potatoes and oatmeal; frequently their supply of the latter is scanty. With those in health this food agrees very well, but in sickness, the inability to procure more nourishing and digestible diet is severely felt, and there are many persons labouring under dyspepsia who could enjoy tolerable health if they could procure diet suitable to their weakened stomachs.	In some cases wholesome food would have been highly necessary, and was usually supplied by the neighbouring gentry or farmers.
When the potato is of an indifferent or bad quality, fever, diarrhoea, &c., are sure to extend themselves among the poorer classes, whose chief food this vegetable is.	Answered above.	None.
The use of ardent spirits prevails to a great extent in this district, and I fear that the practice is rather on the increase than otherwise.	The consumption of ardent spirits is excessive. The town is crowded with licensed whiskey shops.	Persons here are generally temperate.
I have found them in all states, from a comparative degree of comfort down to absolute destitution. In general they suffer from the want of most, if not all, of the necessities enumerated in this query, but more from the want of clothing than from any other privations.	Many of them very destitute.	With a few exceptions, pretty comfortable.

ULSTER—ANTRIM.

Belfast General Dispensary.	Bushmills Dispensary.	Carrickfergus Dispensary.
W. Duncan, Esq., M. D. Thomas H. Purdon, Esq., M. D.	—	George Forsyth, Esq., M. D.
Our fever is the common continued fever of the country, assuming more or less of the typhoid type. Shortly previous to, and since the invasion of Indian cholera, we have observed dysentery less frequent, and diarrhoea, with or without vomiting, much more so.	This part of the country has been very little troubled with epidemics. There have been a few cases of typhus fever of a very mild type; in my opinion, it has been kept up by paying unnecessary visits.	Fevers are generally either inflammatory or typhoid; seldom malignant. Cholera has never visited Carrickfergus.
No.	There are many instances where proper nourishment would have done away with the use of medicine.	In few instances could the diseases be said to arise from want of sustenance.
Judging from the prevalence of dyspepsia, we conceive it must often be improper.	The use of slops of tea badly made, without sugar or cream; excessive use of tobacco, and not taking care of the alvine evacuations often promote disease.	The food of the poor in this place consists chiefly of oatmeal and potatoes, which cannot be considered promotive of disease.
Although perhaps the general consumption of ardent spirits be increased, we should say, that cases of excessive drunkenness occur now more rarely.	The use of ardent spirits prevails more or less among the working classes, so as to prevent, in many cases, the good effects of medicine; upon the whole it is on the decrease.	Whiskey is drunk generally by all the poor that can get it, which is the great cause of the poverty, disease and wretchedness of our people. This cursed practice is not on the increase, neither can it be said to be declining much.
We should say, fully as well, if not better off, in these respects than in other large towns where we have had occasion to visit the poor at their own houses.	There are many cases of extreme poverty, want of bedding, clothes and other necessities essential to health. Houses are generally ill ventilated.	Many of the poor are in the greatest want of clothes, particularly for their beds. Some of their houses are miserable; few of them are without food.

ULSTER—ANTRIM.

Connor Dispensary.	Crumlin Dispensary.	Larne Dispensary.
Committee and Medical Attendant.	—	Thomas Kirkpatrick, Esq., M.D.
Fevers generally assume the typhoid type, owing to its more frequently attacking the weak, dissipated and badly nourished.	Have not assumed any particular type.	It will be seen, by the accompanying reports, that fever has not prevailed to any extent during the period they refer to, nor has it at any time since I obtained charge of the dispensary in the year 1828. I have therefore had no opportunity of making any particular observations regarding it. I have not remarked other epidemics assume any particular type.
Severe affections of the stomach and bowels are frequently produced by making use of half-boiled vegetables and potatoes. These diseases seldom terminate fatally, but often assume an alarming appearance.	None.	I do not recollect any instance where actual disease was brought on by want of sustenance, but I witness the almost daily occurrence of cases where wholesome food might be beneficially substituted for medicine.
None, when properly prepared.	None.	I have most certainly experienced the kinds of food in general use (see answer to query 5.) among the poor to be productive of disease of the alimentary canal and through that again of the nervous system.
It exists to a considerable extent, but is happily on the decrease.	The excessive use of ardent spirits does not prevail in this district, and is on the decrease.	The use of ardent spirits is but too general in this district; an excessive use is not, I am inclined to think, so prevalent as in many other districts. I conceive that the latter practice has of late decreased, which may be partly attributed to the establishment of temperance societies in this country.
Clothes, bedding and furniture very indifferent, and generally dirty. Food generally insufficient; abundance, but seldom suitable for invalids. Ventilation very bad.	Not so badly off in each of these respects in this immediate district as some others I have had an opportunity of witnessing.	I have found very many of the poor indeed in a most wretched state. Their clothes afford but insufficient protection against the inclemency of the weather. Their food consists principally, if not altogether, of oatmeal, potatoes and milk; the two latter, however, prove their chief support, when milk cannot be procured, onions or salt, and occasionally a salt herring is the substitute. The bedding is unattainable. I have witnessed disease, nay, death, produced by the wetness of the wretched hovel. It is true, they participate in the relief afforded by a benevolent community, who have for some years past, supported a Clothing Society and a Mendicity Association.

ULSTER—ANTRIM.

Portrush Dispensary.	Randalstown Dispensary.	Whitehouse Dispensary.
John Hamilton, Esq., Medical Attendant.	Horace Neeson, Esq., Surgeon.	—
They have not lately	Typhus has amongst the lower class, for the want of clothing, fuel and the means of providing the necessary quantity of wholesome food.	Nothing particular.
I have.	I have.	I cannot say that I have, but I have often seen instances where there was great difficulty in obtaining suitable comforts for the sick.
No.	I have not.	No.
It does; but I think it is rather on the decline.	Very much on the decrease.	There are many drunkards in this district. I fear the practice you mention, though not decidedly on the increase is far from diminishing.
I have found all of them, with few exceptions, in the most wretched state of poverty.	Very scanty; little or no ventilation.	With a few occasional exceptions, the poor that I have been called on to attend have appeared "pretty well off" in these particulars.

ULSTER—ARMAGH.

Crossmaglen Dispensary.	Forkhill Dispensary.	Keady Dispensary.
G. Harvey, Esq., Surgeon.	Samuel Walker, Esq., Surgeon.	R. H. Montgomery, Esq., M.D.
Fevers generally assume the typhoid form, which I attribute to the want of proper food, ventilation, cleanliness, &c.	Fevers are generally of a mild type in this district, caused, probably, by moderation in way of life.	No.
I have experienced many instances where disease has been brought on by the want of proper sustenance, and where wholesome food could be substituted for medicine.	I have not noticed any instance of disease arising from want of proper sustenance. I have, however, known cases where wholesome food might have been substituted for medicine.	No.
A great number of the poor who come to this dispensary afflicted with dyspepsia, I attribute to the over use of potatoes without the mixture of any animal food.	The general food of this district consists of potatoes and meal, which in some cases causes derangement of bowels.	No.
The use of ardent spirits does prevail to a considerable extent, but certainly is not on the increase.	It does not at present; since the cessation of illicit distillation, the baneful practice is on the decline.	It does. From my short residence I have not had time to form a decided opinion.
I have found the poor in many instances destitute of almost every thing which is necessary to health.	The houses, furniture, ventilation and necessary comforts are better here than in other districts. There are, however, some painful exceptions.	Very indifferent.

ULSTER—ARMAGH.

Lurgan Dispensary.	Markethill Dispensary.	Meigh and Jonesborough Dispensary.
Robert S. Hannay, Esq., M.D.	Committee and Medical Attendant.	W. Huston, Esq., Surgeon.
Fever often combined with dysentery, owing to drunkenness and bad food and cold lodging.—Cholera was confined mostly to the poor.	Epidemic fever has almost always assumed the typhoid type, owing to the disease generally occurring in those whose systems have been reduced by intemperance, and the want of the necessary comforts of life.	I cannot say that either fevers or epidemics have assumed any particular type.
Yes; and I have frequently obtained from charitable persons, food, clothing and money where they were required.	Innumerable cases occur in which the predisposing causes of disease are plainly attributable to want of proper nourishment, and many in which wholesome food is more necessary than medicine.	I have seen many instances where disease was brought on by want of proper food.
In the months of April and May last a supply of bad potatoes seemed to produce diarrhoea and dysentery.	To the great quantity and often vitiated quality of the vegetable matter on which our poor chiefly subsist, I attribute the immense number of dyspeptic cases which are constantly occurring.	I have always found bad food, particularly vegetable, bring on indigestion, itch, &c. &c.
Yes; I cannot say whether it be on the increase. The dispensary committee consider it on the decrease.	The lower orders are lamentably addicted to the use of distilled spirits; however, I have reason to hope that the practice is declining in this neighbourhood.	The excessive use of ardent spirits does prevail in my district, and I am sure it has been on the increase for the last two years, in consequence of the illicit distillation (I am told) being carried on extensively some miles from this.
Generally sleeping on pallets of straw upon the ground in damp cabins or cellars, without furniture, with little clothes, and the windows filled with straw or rags to keep out the wind and rain.	The absolute poor are comparatively well off here owing to the unbounded charity of a few resident gentlemen, but I often discover great wretchedness and poverty under a fair outside.	All very bad; I think they could scarcely be worse.

ULSTER—ARMAGH.

Mullaglass & Camlough Dispensaries.	Newtownhamilton Dispensary.	Pointzpass Dispensary.
C. W. Riggs, Esq. Medical Attendant.
Such as they are usually observed to do, and that from the want of cleanliness, with the other causes specified.	Fevers and epidemics have prevailed, and assumed a particular type among the poor, owing to the uncomfortable, unclean bedding, and, perhaps, their constant use of vegetables, and afterwards using ardent spirits.	They have not.
With the exception of some cases of dysentery, skin and stomach affections, disease could rarely be ascribed to unwholesome food alone. But the cases in which wholesome food and warm clothing would have expedited recovery, or even saved life, occurred frequently.	I have known diseases brought on by scanty bad food; but wholesome diet was generally procured by the subscribers (indeed, I can say invariably) in such cases.	I have experienced many such instances.
No; but insufficient clothing has appeared a chief cause of fevers and other acute and dangerous diseases.	I have.	The vegetable diet on which they live, sooner or later, is almost certain to produce indigestion and all the unpleasant consequences which follow it.
Not generally; I consider the practice decreasing.	It does prevail; I scarcely think it could increase, as it is among the lower class so prevalent, when they can procure it.	It does not; it is obviously on the decrease.
I could not convey in this answer the state of destitution in which the greater number of the poorer classes are found; the bed, consisting of a litter of straw, often with a single blanket; no other food than potatoes; no provision for ventilation; scarcely any furniture, and generally little or no fuel.	I have found the poor in a very wretched state indeed, and frequently got them pecuniary aid, clothes and other things necessary, from the gentry and established clergy of the neighbourhood.	In almost every instance the clothes were in rags; food, exclusively potatoes; bedding, straw or chaff; furniture, two or three stools and a table; ventilation, except on the estate of Col. Close, is procured by means of a wisp of straw.

ULSTER—ARMAGH—CAVAN.

Tynan Dispensary.	Arvagh Dispensary.	Balieborough Dispensary.
—	Robert Wiley, Esq., Surgeon.	Committee and Medical Attendant.
We have not had much fever in this district for some time; when it does appear, I am of opinion that it is generally brought on by unwholesome food, cold and ill-ventilated houses; one part of our district has suffered much of late from malignant cholera.	I believe they have not that I can say.	No; unless a visitation of cholera in March last.
I have, during the last 14 years, seen innumerable instances of disease produced by cold, hunger and fatigue, where the timely administration of wholesome food and warm covering might have entirely superseded the use of medicines.	I have, in some instances, experienced where wholesome food might be substituted for medicine.	In a great many instances.
It is my decided opinion, that always living wholly on vegetable food, such as potatoes, is the principal cause of indigestion so common amongst the Irish poor, particularly the aged and infirm.	I believe the poor of this country, in general, contract many diseases from living on the worst description of potatoes, without milk, butter or flesh.	The great mass of the population live on potatoes, which must be promotive of stomach and other diseases when used constantly.
Large quantities of ardent spirits are still used by the poor, but not so much as formerly, for these reasons, viz., the increasing poverty of the people, and the establishment of temperance societies.	I think it does; I believe it to be on the increase.	It does; but it is difficult to say whether it is increasing or not. There are fifty-six public houses in the parish of Balieborough.
In visiting the houses of the poor, I frequently find them badly clothed, ill fed, their bedding and furniture scanty, and their cabins without any mode of ventilation, and themselves destitute of every earthly comfort.	Most of all in a poor state for clothes, food, bedding, ventilation, &c.	As wretched as possible.

ULSTER—CAVAN.

Ballinagh Dispensary.	Ballyconnell Dispensary.	Ballyjamesduff Dispensary.
J. Byrn, Esq., M. D.	Treasurer and Medical Attendant.	James Kennedy, Esq., Surgeon.
No.	Not since the year 1824 have we had any very violent epidemic; but there is a great deal of low fever from time to time, arising from want of warm clothing, and perhaps in some cases for want of wholesome food, especially if the potato crop fails.	Not particularly for the last three years, except cholera, which visited us last April; a disease about which medical men of the greatest experience are not decided.
Yes; and I have seen many cases where the use of wholesome food would have obviated the necessity for medicine.	Several such cases have come under my observation.	Several instances.
Potato food constantly and unvariedly used, productive of many stomach diseases.	The only food is the potato; which, though generally a wholesome root, when only used, in some cases produces flatulency and indigestion, and in most cases of disease is improper food.	Potatoes being the only food many can procure, there are diseases which such food increases.
No.	It prevails still extensively; and the increase of intelligence has checked it in some degree; the amazing number of public houses must operate in a fearful degree to keep it up.	It does; but in my opinion it is on the decrease.
Very badly off as to the subject of each query.	Generally very badly off as to comforts, and wanting most of those things.	In many instances very miserable.

ULSTER—CAVAN.

Ballymachugh Dispensary.	Belturbet Dispensary.	Cavan and Stradone Dispensary.
Mark W. Daly, Esq., M. D.	Treasurer and Medical Attendant.	Bernard Coyne, Esq., M. D.
To the poverty of diet.	Fevers of the typhoid kind are numerous; inflammatory fevers are also very frequent; they arise from the want of proper clothing, bad food, change of season, and very often can be traced to want of cleanliness.	Dr. Armstrong's inflammatory typhus fever, that is, where inflammation of some particular organ occurs, with typhoid fever, is now more prevalent, and the lungs or liver are generally the parts influenced. This I attribute to indiscretion in living and want of flannels.
Yes.	Many instances of such have occurred. It very often occurs, that I cannot with safety exhibit the necessary medicines, in consequence of the total want of proper clothing and nourishment.	Very many, certainly.
Yes; the constant use of potatoes.	Potatoes, used exclusively, tends to promote disease; in the winter season, the extreme poor live entirely on them, not being able to procure milk.	I find very frequently that the vegetable food (potatoes chiefly) is extremely hurtful to many who are wholly unable, from their limited means, nay, total want of means, to alter their food, even to the less hurtful vegetable meal.
To a very great excess.	Ardent spirits are freely drank, and of course must tend to excite disease. The practice is on the increase.	The excessive use of ardent spirits at all times prevailed; and I am sincerely sorry to say it is considerably on the increase.
In the greatest poverty.	Generally speaking, destitute of every necessary comfort. exertion on the part of the inmates to be more cleanly, but it would appear, amongst the lower order, they have an innate predilection for filth. The clothes, food and bedding most wretched generally.	I never found any thing bordering on comfort in any house; but I must say much more could be done by even slight

ULSTER—CAVAN.

Cootehill Dispensary.	Crossdoney Dispensary.	Killeshandra Dispensary.
M. Welsh, Esq., Medical Attendant.	J. Sheridan, Esq., Medical Attendant.	Alexander Finlay, Esq., Surgeon.
There have been, latterly, rather less fevers; but within the last ten days, many cases of cholera, principally among the poor.	I do not think they were confined to any particular type.	I have observed that simple fevers among the poor are very apt to put on a typhoid character, and this I attribute most frequently to a complete inattention to cleanliness and ventilation.
I have often, during the last fifteen years, found many diseases brought on by the very unwholesome food, which is, principally, nothing but potatoes.	Not many, considering the numbers, but I have certainly met with some such cases.	I cannot remember having met with any such cases, where I could attribute the existence of disease to unwholesome diet solely, but in many constitutions predisposed to peculiar diseases, the use of such diet has frequently elicited, and afterwards kept up, disease.
I have always thought the potato diet of this country conducive to disease.	No.	The almost exclusive use of potatoes has in many peculiar cases been promotive of disease.
It does not prevail to any extent here, and I conceive the practice is very much on the decline.	It does not prevail to excess, and, in my opinion, is not on the increase.	I do not think the poor in this district are much addicted to the use of ardent spirits, I should be inclined to say such practice is not by any means on the increase.
In general their food not good, clothes and bedding, furniture and ventilation, and other comforts but very middling with the very poor; but I believe the other class of poor not very bad.	Some tolerably comfortable, but the majority of them not so; and this, in most instances, evidently caused by indolence on their own part.	In general the clothing of the poor in this district is very scanty and bad, their food unwholesome, and their comforts as to bedding, furniture, &c., but small and of bad description.

ULSTER—CAVAN.

Mounthugent Dispensary.	Mullaugh Dispensary.	Swanlinbar Dispensary.
Charles Halpin, Esq., Surgeon.	—	William Maxwell Wade, Esq., Surgeon.
Chiefly low typhoid fever. Cold, wet and miserable food.	Some seasons of the year fever rages more; I attribute it to want, and the constant intercourse with each other is the cause of its spreading throughout the country. repeatedly visited houses wherefrom six to eight individuals have been suffering from disease; and when in a convalescent state, patients have not the means of procuring proper nourishment.	Fevers have assumed the very worst character; 1st, from patients' friends not applying for relief in time; 2dly, from want of care, there being no hospital within 22 miles to remove the afflicted to, and thereby prevent the spread of the disease, which in many instances has been most dreadful. I have
They have no choice of food generally speaking; they must live on potatoes and spring water, or die, for few of the poor in my district can furnish as much salt "as would stand prologue to an egg and butter."	I have met with some cases where illness was occasioned by the want of food and raiment, whose health was restored by timely medical aid, without which they could not have recovered.	Yes.
Answered above.	I am of opinion the constant use of potatoes (perhaps bad), without any other food, in a great degree, is the cause of disease.	Yes; potatoes, as inducing dyspepsia.
It does, to an extraordinary extent.	Some years back spirits were more used than at present; I think they are considerably on the decrease.	The people in this part of the country are not particularly addicted to the use of whiskey; I am happy to say that the consumption of it is on the decline.
Most miserable; I am often obliged to apply to the neighbouring gentry not only for clothing and blankets and food, but also for straw to put under them as beds.	I generally find the poor deficient in food, clothing and bedding; in fact, of every comfort. bad buttermilk, bedding in many cases consisting of either straw or hay laid on the ground, or a few sticks supported on stones to raise it from the damp floor; bed clothes among the very poor are scarcely known, at least any covering of that sort I have seen, hardly deserves the name; they generally lie in the same clothes worn during the day; half a dozen articles of furniture; they are averse to ventilation; very little comfort of any sort.	I have in many instances found the patients that I visited with scarcely any clothes, and those worn threadbare and filthy. Food, consisting principally of potatoes, and sometimes a little oatmeal, with

ULSTER—CAVAN—DONEGAL.

Virginia Dispensary.	Ballyshannon Dispensary.	Carndonagh Dispensary.
John M. Atkins, Esq., M.D.	Treasurer and Medical Attendant.	Alexander Wilson, Esq., M.R.C.S.L.
Their fevers are of the typhoid and asthenic form. To want of the necessary nutriment; to want of clothes and ventilation; and to filth.	Not for some years.	We experienced a good many contagious diseases during the year 1832, but they have subsided since that period. The cause must be attributed to real poverty.
Very frequently.	Disease has been brought on for want of proper food; but when it did occur, medicine was required.	Have found very many instances, for want of proper nutritious food.
I have. Many of them live solely on a scanty supply of potatoes and cabbages, with a little salt; never tasting animal food, and very seldom butter-milk.	Bad; salt fish.	Have found, in very many instances, where unwholesome food has been very detrimental to health.
It does not.	It is not on the increase.	Does not prevail to a great extent; and am of opinion that it is on the decrease.
Destitute, for the most part, of clothes, food, bedding, furniture, ventilation and almost every comfort except firing, there being good supply of turbary in this district.	Very bad.	In a wretched bad state as to clothes, food, bedding and furniture, when called upon to attend them.

ULSTER—DONEGAL.

Clondahorkey and Raymunterdoney Dispensary.	Clonderadagh and Killygarvan Dispensary.	Clonleigh Dispensary.
William Maxwell, Esq., M.D.	W. F. Grueber, Esq., Surgeon.	Wm. John Greer, Esq., M.D.
Fevers have assumed a bad type among the poorer classes, in consequence of a prejudice they have against the removal of linen, &c. and a general want of cleanliness otherwise.	Some months before the dispensary was established, dysentery prevailed to an alarming extent in many of the villages of this district; but I have only seen seven cases of it, and none of them severe. There have been only two cases of typhus fever.	There have not for the last three years, with the exception of the catarrhal fever of summer last.
I have met frequently many cases.	I have not seen any particular disease brought on by want of proper sustenance; but in many of the stomach complaints a change of food might have been substituted for medicine with advantage. Potatoes are almost the only article of food in use; and to this may be attributed the great number of stomach complaints.	In many cases where I have attended, I am certain diseases have originated from the want of the common necessities of life, viz., food, fuel and shelter.
I have found vegetable food promotive of disease amongst the poor.	Answered above.	Since the exportation of corn has increased to so great an extent in this district, potatoes are the principal food of the poor, which leads me to account for the increase of stomach diseases.
The use of ardent spirits exists; but I consider it on the decrease.	I have not observed that the people indulge particularly in the use of spirits.	I am not aware that ardent spirits are used to an excessive degree among the poor.
For the most part in a very wretched condition, and want of ordinary comforts. Food bad, furniture and bedding defective; ventilation too much.	The people are in general better supplied with clothing, &c. than I have seen them in other parts of the country; but have not the least idea of the comfort and utility of cleanliness, ventilation, &c.	The poor of the lowest class are in a most wretched state, generally speaking; the whole family having but one bed, and that of the worst description.

ULSTER—DONEGAL.

Culdaff Dispensary.	Donegal Dispensary.	Donaughmore Dispensary.
John Brown, Esq., Surgeon.	Michael Mulreany, Esq., Surgeon.	James Holmes, Esq., Surgeon.
We have latterly had very few cases of epidemical diseases; where formerly they did exist, it was chiefly owing to bad diet, and occasionally to absolute want.	Fevers have not prevailed to any extent here, but the district was visited by cholera 12 months ago; about 20 died, chiefly of the lower orders.	Fevers have not been general for the past year; influenza prevailed in the summer of 1833, but has since abated.
I have no doubt but that medicines might have been dispensed with occasionally, could wholesome food have been procured.	A great many diseases are attributable to want, and in all such cases I look upon medicines as a dangerous remedy until want be first relieved.	Chronic diseases are very prevalent, occasioned by low diet and bad clothing.
The excessive use of potatoes and salt herrings have often contributed to produce disease.	The food in use with the poor possesses so very little nutrition, that to support life it must be taken in large quantities at each meal, whereby the stomach is overloaded and the tone of the digestive organs much impaired.	Potatoes are the general food of the poor of this neighbourhood, which, when too frequently used, cause dyspepsia.
It does not at present, and has been latterly rather on the decline.	The excessive use of ardent spirits does not prevail in this district.	The use of ardent spirits is rather on the decrease.
The state of the clothes, bedding, &c., has been latterly much improved, since the establishment of the ladies' loan shops, but ventilation is lamentably deficient, from the enormous price of glass.	In almost all cases they are destitute of sufficient bedding and clothes, but their houses are thoroughly ventilated, from a want of doors and windows to preclude the storm.	They are generally deficient in clothes, furniture and necessary comforts; potatoes, their principal support, are abundant.

ULSTER—DONEGAL.

Drumholm Dispensary.	Fahan Dispensary.	Glencolumbkille Dispensary.
Wm. Thompson, Esq., Medical Attendant.	Committee and Medical Attendant.	Committee and Medical Attendant.
I do not consider that fevers or epidemics have assumed any particular type among the poorer classes here. case of fever or other epidemical disease; a most unusual circumstance, though we have been saturated by rain for a protracted period, the bad effects of which will no doubt soon be witnessed. Contagion induces most of our fevers.	Fevers assume the typhus type in all classes, whether poor or otherwise. In the three extensive parishes under our care, we have not at the present period a	I cannot say I discovered any epidemic since my arrival here; I had one case of malignant cholera last year, which proved fatal in a few hours; antecedent or subsequent to which not a single case appeared.
I have experienced in many instances, where disease has been brought on from the want of proper sustenance, and where proper food would have been of the greatest assistance to medicine.	I cannot say that actual disease was induced by want of proper sustenance; but I am certain that oatmeal often would be preferable to medicine, while a spoonful of wine would exceed all other remedies in the last stage of typhus. Often have we expended 2 l. on wine when fevers prevailed to an alarming extent. We cannot do so now.	In many instances I have no doubt disease has originated in the deficiency of wholesome and nutritious food and raiment.
The poor in my district have no variety of food; potatoes and salt, and occasionally salt-fish, form their chief fare, which promote scrofula and dyspepsia, with all their wretched train of symptoms.	The observations (5) decidedly induce stomach affections and cutaneous disorders. Itch very commonly prevails; yet with all these disadvantages in diet they are strangers to some of the most horrid diseases, as stone in the bladder, diabetes. In nearly 15 years I never met with a case of the former, and only one of the latter.	Chief food in this country among the inhabitants generally consists of potatoes, and sometimes in summer a little fish.
The use of spirits does not prevail to any great extent; the consumption, however, has increased within the last five years.	It does not; the practice is on the decrease; distillation is extinct; affidavit men more numerous; a disposition to drink malt liquor. Formerly very little of this most wholesome beverage was consumed, now it comes to our village in large quantities.	Not to that extent latterly as in former years; consequently I would affirm decreasing.
I have found the poor at their own houses very deficient in every thing connected with this query. the more comfortable the individual. Those who pay 5 l. rent have the common necessities of life, as beds, bedding, &c., but with these last ventilation is imperfect; no opening or sliding windows. The last is the cottier, and in five out of six he is miserable; ill fed, badly clothed; his diet, potatoes and salt and herrings; now and again buttermilk; and in summer, as potatoes become scarce, oatmeal; this indeed to him is a luxury. If he possess a cow, he is happy.	This must be answered by throwing the population into three classes. Those who pay 10 l. per annum rent are in comfortable circumstances; the higher the rent,	In general most wretchedly miserable, including all the comforts specified in this query.

ULSTER—DONEGAL.

Killybegs Dispensary.	Kilmacronan Dispensary.	Moville Dispensary.
—	John Hunter, Esq., Surgeon.	John Irvine, Esq., Surgeon. R.N.
No, with the exception of diarrhœa, which has occasionally assumed an epidemic form, caused, I am inclined to think, by wet seasons, and sometimes unwholesome food.	Fevers, or epidemics, assume a particular type among the poorer class from want of proper care, ventilation, cleanliness, and in some cases, by the use of spirits and bad food.	Mild typhus fever frequently prevails as an epidemic, and becomes contagious from poverty on the one hand, and want of cleanliness on the other.
Several; wholesome, nutritious food would be a good adjuvant to medicine.	I know that diseases are frequently produced here by want of proper sustenance, bad clothing, and although a change of regimen is useful, medicine is in almost all such cases necessary.	Very seldom indeed.
Dried fish, ill saved, and potatoes, are mostly promotive of disease in this district.	The food generally low, and may promote some of the complaints prevalent among them.	The food used by the poor I consider contributes to promote stomach complaints, and occasionally a tendency to dropsy.
Much is still consumed, but I think not so much as formerly.	Less than usual, and the practice not on the increase.	It does not; I think the excessive use of ardent spirits is on the decrease.
In what I consider poor, but with which they appear content, being that to which they have always been accustomed.	In a miserable state in general for clothes, food, bedding, furniture, ventilation, and necessary comforts, owing more to natural habits than from absolute want of means.	I have found the poor, on visiting them at their own houses, exceedingly destitute of clothes, bedding and many necessary comforts; but in general they are tolerably well supplied with plain food.

ULSTER—DONEGAL.

Pettigo Dispensary.	Raphoe Dispensary.	St. Johnstown and Newtowncunningham Dispensaries.
Committee and Medical Attendant.	—	—
The epidemics here have not assumed any particular character.	They have not.	Yes, generally typhoid, arising, I am of opinion, from the extent of marshy ground, the want of cleanliness, and a more generous diet.
I am not aware that the food which the poor of this parish subsist on is promotive of any disease.	Such instances do not often occur; wholesome food might frequently be beneficially supplied with, but could seldom be substituted for, medicine.	Better food than that generally used would, in many instances, prove more useful than medicine.
Potatoes and milk are their principal food.	A strictly vegetable diet, consisting altogether of potatoes, is promotive of disease.	Salted fish (especially herring) constituting a large proportion of their diet, contribute much to the diseases of the stomach and skin.
Dram drinking is rather on the decrease in this parish.	The excessive use of ardent spirits does not prevail in this district, and I believe such practice to be on the decrease.	Not to any great extent at present, it being rather on the decrease.
The poor in this parish are very indifferently circumstanced as to clothing and every other comfort.	Frequently in a very destitute state.	Generally in a state requiring relief.

ULSTER—DONEGAL—DOWN.

Stranorlar and Glenfirm Dispensary.	Templecroan and Lettermacward Dispensary.	Ballymacarret Dispensary.
Committee and Medical Attendant.	W. L. Gilliland, Esq., M.D.	John Scott, Esq., M.D.
Fevers have not assumed any particular type.	There has not been any epidemic disease in this district of late.	Epidemics, in my opinion, have not assumed a particular type among the poor.
Actual disease has sometimes been brought on by want of proper food, associated with inattention to their alvine functions. In these cases, good food, with medical assistance, would be very beneficially administered.	In many cases the constant use of one kind of food, and that often of a very inferior description, has certainly been the apparent cause of disease; and in many of these and other cases a judicious regimen of nutritious diet would, if not effect a cure, at least assist very materially.	I have frequently felt the want of wholesome food as an auxiliary to medicine, and in many instances it might be substituted for it.
Potatoes and salt fish, viz., herrings.	In some districts the excessive use of salted fish undoubtedly produces various diseases, particularly diseases of the skin, and promotes scrophula, which prevails very much.	The pork parings so much in use among the poor I believe to be the frequent cause of common cholera, dysentery and diarrhoea.
The use of ardent spirits prevails to a great degree; and I think it on the increase.	There certainly is an excessive abuse of ardent spirits; but there is a difference of opinion whether it is on the increase.	This evil prevails to the same alarming extent in this as in all other districts of our country, and will continue to be the fruitful source of beggary, disease and crime, so long as it is permitted to be used and sold as a common beverage.
As to food, clothes, &c., I have in all cases found the poor deficient.	I have generally found them in a most wretched state for clothes (particularly bed-clothes); food, except potatoes, they have none; scarcely any furniture; but their houses generally well ventilated, and great abundance of fuel.	Many of the poor are very badly off as to clothing, bedding, furniture and every other comfort. Food of the very worst description. Ventilation is generally good.

ULSTER—DOWN.

Banbridge Dispensary.	Bangor Dispensary.	Castlewellan Dispensary.
Treasurer and Medical Attendant.	Treasurer and Medical Attendant.	James Hunter, Esq., M.D.
The fevers in this district among the poor are mostly of the typhoid type; this is greatly attributable to the climate and their employments, which are chiefly in the manufacture of linen.	This district is exempt in a remarkable degree from fever.	I have not observed that epidemic diseases have been more fatal among the poorer than the richer classes, but certainly more liable to spread, from slovenly habits and intercourse.
It very rarely, indeed, occurs that in this district disease originates from want of sustenance; many of the diseases of the poor are relieved by nutritious and wholesome food more than by medicine.	Not many.	I have seen very many such instances.
The food in general use are potatoes, oatmeal, milk and butter.	No. A mendicity society in this parish pays great attention to the poor.	The exclusive, or almost exclusive use of potatoes without a due proportion of animal food, certainly produces dyspepsia and its numerous sequelæ.
Ardent spirits are much used; I fear the practice is on the increase.	The use of ardent spirits is on the decrease.	The abuse of ardent spirits prevails; and and from the great increase of licensed houses for tempting the lower orders to this vice, I fear it is on the increase.
Much attention is paid to the condition of the poor, who are as well taken care of, and therefore as (if not more) comfortable than in other parts of Ireland.	In general pretty good.	Many cases of great destitution and poverty are daily witnessed, clothes, proper food and bedding being generally deficient, and in the more mountainous districts great wretchedness in the cabins of the poor.

ULSTER—DOWN.

Dromore Dispensary.	Hillsborough Dispensary.	Hollywood Dispensary.
Committee and Medical Attendant.	J. N. Moorhead, Esq., M. D.	R. O. M'Kittrick, Esq., Surgeon.
They do not assume any particular type, but continue longer and more inveterate from want of proper subsistence.	In part of the adjoining parish of Blaris, in the line of the Canal Logan Navigation, a low continued fever very generally prevails; the cabins are low and small, with windows unfit for ventilation. not more than five persons who were on the ration list of the Mendicity Society suffered from it.	Fevers take place more frequently, and are more prone to assume the typhoid type among the poor than the rich, which is generally attributed to the deficiency of comforts, and from whole families of from six to ten, and sometimes more, being obliged to sleep in one small apartment. Epidemic cholera had the same type in poor and rich, and it may be remarked
In many cases.	I am of opinion, I have observed several cases where actual disease was brought on by exposure to cold and wet; by want of proper clothes, not sustenance; I think food or medicine cannot be fairly substituted for each other.	The former has very rarely occurred and not lately; and I very often prescribe wholesome food, sometimes in conjunction with and sometimes without medicines.
We are not aware of any particular kind of food, promotive of disease, in general use amongst the poor.	Generally speaking, I have not in this district; potatoes and oatmeal are those generally used by the poor in this place, and when good are not promotive of disease.	I am not aware of any.
We are not of opinion that the excessive use of ardent spirits is on the increase in this district; but regret that the vice still considerably prevails.	There is no doubt but it prevails too much, and I think it is on the increase, both from my own observation and from hearing the licenses are considerably increased in number here latterly.	Comparatively speaking, it does not, and is on the decrease.
In general very bad.	Generally in a bad state; sometimes without any bedding save straw, and even that bad and worn out; but industrious poor, who do not take spirits, tobacco and tea, are otherwise.

ULSTER—DOWN.

Knockbreda Dispensary.	Rathfryland Dispensary.	Warrenpoint & Rosstrevor Dispensary.
Mr. George M'Clure, Medical Attendant.	Samuel Swan, Esq., Surgeon.
The bowel complaints of last year had decidedly a cholera tendency; and all feverish affections assume the typhoid type, owing to the low and damp situation of Ballymacarret in particular, and to the want of proper nourishment and clothing.	During the last three years, I have found many attacks of typhus fever and other epidemics, but could not attribute them to any known causes.	Fevers and epidemics when introduced into my district have generally assumed a low typhoid character, which I attribute to the want of ventilation, proper food and other necessities. Intermittent fever has been constantly a subject of treatment at this
The majority of the cases have been caused by the want of proper sustenance of wholesome food and good clothing.	I have experienced some few instances where disease has been brought on by want of proper sustenance, and many where wholesome food might have been beneficially substituted for medicine.	I am not aware of any case in which disease has been brought on by actual want of food; but I have seen very many indeed in which a well-regulated nourishing diet would have proved much more efficacious than any medicine I could prescribe.
I cannot say I have, with the exception of a species of flummery obtained at the starch works, which has a tendency to bring on diarrhoea.	No.	The food of the lower classes here consists almost solely of potatoes, and when this vegetable is of an inferior or unwholesome sort (as happened last season), it will, when thus constantly used, almost infallibly produce stomach complaints of a more or less aggravated description.
I consider the use of ardent spirits on the decline.	It does prevail; I do not think it increasing.	It does to a great degree, and, so far as I can judge, is on the increase decidedly.
Extremely bad in almost all cases.	Generally in a very wretched state as to clothes, food, bedding, furniture, and particularly ventilation; the latter of which I always prevail on them to remedy as much as possible.	The persons recommended as dispensary patients at their own houses are generally destitute of all comforts of life, and completely ignorant of the necessity of ventilation or cleanliness in their dwellings.

ULSTER—FERMANAGH.

Brookborough and Magherastephana Dispensary.	Churchhill Dispensary.	Holy Well Dispensary.
John West, Esq., Surgeon.	James Wilkin, Esq., Medical Attendant.	John Fogarty, Esq., M. D.
There has been no epidemic of late; the general form of fever here is typhoid, and is sometimes to be traced to contagion.	We have had no epidemics.	They have not.
Very few cases that I have attended for the last three years could be attributed to want of food.	Not any.	Many such cases.
I have not; potatoes being their principal food, are very wholesome.	No.	I have not.
It does not prevail to any excess here, and is I think on the decline.	Not so much as it did formerly.	It does prevail, and is on the increase.
In many cases, clothes a bundle of rags; bedding as bad; no furniture; food potatoes, and latterly in plenty.	In general very wretched in every respect.	In general in a very poor state.

ULSTER—FERMANAGH.

Kesh Dispensary.	Maguiresbridge and Lisnaskea Dispensary.	Rosslea Dispensary.
W. Johnston, Esq., Surgeon.	Thomas M'Neece, Esq., Surgeon, R. N.	Committee and Medical Attendant.
Not generally, except when inflammatory fevers are neglected, and then assume the typhus appearance.	Nervous fevers, attended with catarrhal affections, prevalent at present, and increased in consequence of the humidity of the atmosphere.	I cannot say fevers or epidemics have assumed any particular type.
No; but I have met with several cases where recoveries have been delayed by want of proper sustenance or wholesome food.	Several instances (in my opinion) brought on, of stomach and bowel complaints, for want of proper sustenance.	I cannot say I have experienced many instances where disease has been brought on for want of proper sustenance; but cases have occurred among the poor where wholesome food might very beneficially be substituted for medicine.
Continued use of ill dressed vegetables produces dyspepsia.	The constant use of potatoes as food has been productive of disease.	I cannot say I have.
I am not aware of a general excessive use of ardent spirits; it has been on the decrease since the use of beer.	It does, to a considerable extent; but not so much as hitherto.	The excessive use of ardent spirits does not prevail in our district, and I conceive such practice is on the decrease.
Very bad.	In all these particulars deficient.	When called on to attend the poor at their own houses, I have found them almost destitute of every necessary comfort, wanting clothes, sometimes food, bedding, furniture and ventilation.

ULSTER—LONDONDERRY.

Aghadoey Dispensary.	Bellaghy Dispensary.	Dungiven Dispensary.
George Fullerton, Esq., M. D.	John Farrell, Esq., M. D.	William Moore, Esq., Surgeon.
No.	Fevers occasionally assume a typhoid type, but generally do well; our mortality is small, scarcely three per cent. under circumstances apparently very unfavourable to restoration of health. I have seen three fever patients in one bed, and two in another in a small room, only ventilated by my daily removing the sods of earth from the holes which were intended for windows.	Fever, although prevailing to a considerable extent in winter, has not for many years been epidemic, and is of no particular type; its causes, every one is aware, are damp, low-living and uncleanness.
The average would not be greater than is found in the middle or higher grades of society.	Yes; I have seen some cases where proper food and wine would have averted the fatal termination.	I have no hesitation in stating, that three-fourths of the diseases under which the poor suffer are caused by want of proper sustenance and clothing, which latter would in very many cases be infinitely more useful to the wretched sufferers than medicine.
I would mention onions and salted herring which the poor eat much in this parish.	I am inclined to attribute the prevalence of dyspeptic affections to bad food, and more especially to the general use of the potatoes called "cups," which are difficult of digestion.	Their chief food being potatoes, if they are of a bad quality, of course they suffer very much.
I have no reason to think that the abuse of ardent spirits prevails in this parish; nor do I think it is on the increase.	Ardent spirits are very freely used, but not more I think than in other districts. I have resided here only 18 months, consequently cannot speak positively on this point.	Ardent spirits are not used here to any extent, but the disgusting and pernicious use of tobacco is generally prevalent, and is a very great drawback on the little means of the poor.
In these respects I have found much variety, some having comfortable abodes and others miserable.	Frequently most wretchedly poor and deficient as to clothes, food, furniture and ventilation especially; the windows, in many instances, formed of sods; fuel is unfortunately generally attainable, bog being plenty.	I have found them very uncomfortable in every respect.

ULSTER—LONDONDERRY.

Garvagh Dispensary.	Glendermott Dispensary.	Londonderry Dispensary.
Mathew Robinson, Esq., Surgeon.	John Semple, Esq., Surgeon.	Alexander Skipton, Esq., M. D.
They have not.	I cannot state that fevers or epidemics have assumed any particular type since 1817, except from the usual changes of the season.	They have not.
I cannot at this instant recal to my recollection any particular case of the kind; but the impression on my mind is, that much disease within my immediate practice might and would have been prevented if proper and nutritious food had been within their reach; and I am quite assured that the	I cannot say that I have seen many cases where actual disease has been brought on by want of sustenance; but suitable food might be very often and beneficially substituted for medicine. cook would be the best doctor in many cases.	I have not experienced many such; there are several charitable institutions in the city which provide for the wants of the very poorest.
Potatoes or potatoes and salted herrings is the usual food. In very few instances do they have meat.	I cannot state that I have found any particular kind of food in use among the poor promotive of disease.	I have not.
I do not think it does; if it existed to any extent, I would have no doubt it would injure and impair health.	I do not think that the use of ardent spirits prevails to excess in our district, nor do I think that it is on the increase.	It does not; there are some few instances of confirmed drunkards. I think the use of ardent spirits to excess is on the decrease in this district.
In almost every case and instance most miserable.	I have often found the poor in the greatest want of clothes, suitable food, bedding, furniture and other necessary comforts, when visiting them at their own houses.	In general in a tolerably comfortable state, but occasionally, though very seldom, in a very wretched situation.

ULSTER—LONDONDERRY.

Lower and Upper Cumber Dispensary.	Maghera Dispensary.	Magherafelt Dispensary.
John Semple, Esq., Surgeon.	James H. H. Esq., M.D.	Robert Evans, Esq., M.D.
I have not observed that fevers or other epidemics have assumed any particular type since 1817, except from the usual changes of the season.	Pneumonic and typhus; bad clothing and housing, together with deficiency of sustenance.	Fevers with us have often become contagious, and still do where poverty prevails; want of cleanliness, change of bed and body clothes and despondency may contribute to it.
I cannot say that I have seen many cases where actual disease has been brought on by want of sustenance; but suitable food might be very often and beneficially substituted for medicine.	Yes.	Dyspeptic diseases and diseases of the skin common among the poor, from defective nutriment and clean skin. Nutritious diet, of course, would assist medicine in their cure or relief, as well as bodily cleanliness. No disease from actual want of food at present.
I cannot state that I have found any particular kind of food in use among the poor promotive of disease.	I cannot say that I have.	Their general food being of the poorest kind, must tend to generate many diseases.
I do not think that the use of ardent spirits prevails to excess in our district, nor do I think it is on the increase.	Yes; but on the decrease.	I cannot say there exists any excessive use of ardent spirits in this place, though it occasionally occurs at fairs and markets, nor do I think it is on the increase.
I have often found the poor in great want of clothes, suitable food, bedding, furniture, and other necessary comforts, when visiting them, at their own houses.	Generally in a state of extreme destitution.	Clothes miserably bad with the poor; food commonly potatoes alone, even when suffering from sickness; bedding miserably bad; furniture equally so; ventilation generally too much, windows and doors not excluding the cold; necessary comforts very few.

ULSTER—LONDONDERRY—MONAGHAN.

Muff Dispensary.	Worshipful Drapers' Dispensary and Ballinascreen Dispensary.	Ballybay Dispensary.
James Burnside, Esq., Surgeon.	John Savage, Esq., Surgeon.	D. Williamson, Esq., Medical Attendant.
No, they have not.	Fevers are generally of the common continued type; but from want of ventilation and neglect of cleanliness, they assume a typhoid form.	Fevers, some of the typhoid character, and inflammatory affections of the chest, were humours and severe, and many aggravated cases of diarrhoea occurred, owing to the dampness of the seasons, the deficiency of clothing, but above all the meagre diet and intemperate habits of the poor.
I have not.	I am not aware of many instances of disease being induced by want of proper food; but I have no doubt fever and other diseases have spread and increased in virulence from these causes.	Many instances where wholesome food and warm clothing might have prevented disease.
I have not.	Potatoes and salt their principal food, consequently dyspepsia prevails amongst them.	Dry potatoes, save a little salt, is their daily food morning, noon and night, which is a great cause of many diseases.
It is not on the increase, nor is there any excess.	It does not, and I think it much less in use since private distillation has been checked amongst us.	It does prevail to a very great degree.
Very bad indeed.	The poor badly clothed, worse fed; bedding and furniture scanty; as to the ventilation, they are indifferent; comforts very few.	Almost naked, lying on straw; no covering but the clothes they wear all day. No furniture.

ULSTER—MONAGHAN.

Castleshane Dispensary.	Clones Dispensary.	Farney Dispensary.
A. M. M'Moran, Esq., M. D.	James Hurst, Esq., M. D.	R. H. Montgomery, Esq., M. D.
I am not old enough (as a physician) to remember the fever of 1817; but I have remarked that almost every year the poor are afflicted with fevers of a peculiar kind, sometimes of an inflammatory character, owing to wet or too severe work in spring; at other times the true typhus. I cannot account for the latter, as I have found it with the very poor, I have also found it in comfortable farm-houses; in marshy and in healthy grounds, in the cold and warm, in the wet and dry seasons, with the active and industrious, with the lazy and the indolent, and, strange to say, the fatality has been nearly the same under each of these circumstances.	They have not assumed any particular type.	No.
From answer to query 5 it is evident that very many cases of disease are brought on by the want of proper food, clothing, &c., this is so evident that I need not say more.	This must be answered in the affirmative; many diseases among them being brought on by hard labour, poor food and bad clothing, and convalescence retarded or altogether prevented by the same causes.	I have.
Potatoes and salt, or potatoes and butter-milk, constitute the diet (generally speaking) of the poor, consequently we have many cases of indigestion, which is a general term for many abdominal complaints; medicine cannot cure, it can only alleviate those cases; many other diseases might be traced to the same source.	The potato diet exclusively may be considered a cause of the numerous cases of dyspepsia and dropsy.	Whiskey and potatoes.
Not more in my district than throughout the country generally. Many illicit stills have been worked which afford very bad whiskey, always drugged with either blue-stone, white or green vitriol, (copperas) or arsenic to make it appear stronger. I know that many diseases (viz. inflammation of stomach, dropsy, jaundice, &c.) have been brought on by this, where I conceive that the same quantity of permitted whiskey would not have produced the same effects; however, I think there is much less intemperance than formerly.	To a great extent, but cannot say as to its increase.	It does. As to its increase or decrease I have not resided sufficiently long to give an opinion.
In very many cases the poor are in a wretched state as to clothes, food and all the necessities, not to say comforts of life. Clothes bad, and if wet, frequently no fire to dry them; and in this wet state must be worn until they are dried by the sun and air. Bedding, some straw, more frequently on the ground than on a bedstead. Furniture, a few stools, pots, &c. Ventilation, what comes through the door and goes up the chimney.	In a state of absolute wretchedness, having neither proper clothes, food, furniture, ventilation or necessary comforts, such as we should wish to see with a hard-working peasantry.	In all the circumstances mentioned the poor in the majority of instances are in a most wretched state.

ULSTER—MONAGHAN.

Glasslough and Emyvale Dispensary.	Rockcorry Dispensary.	Scotstown Dispensary.
James Hoy, Esq., Surgeon.	The Committee.	William Temple, Esq., M. D.
I do not consider fevers or epidemics have assumed any particular type among the poor from former years.	I have not observed in this district any particular deviation from the character that that disease generally assumes.	They have not.
I have found many instances where disease has been brought on by unwholesome food, and where nutritious food, with other comforts, might have superseded the necessity of medicine.	This has appeared to me to be the case in many instances.	Very seldom.
I have found the use of the potato, particularly in the months of August and September, promotive of disease, diarrhoea particularly.	On this point I have made no particular observation, further than that the exclusive use of potatoes has been productive of flatulent affections, dropsies, and other diseases consequent on debility.	I have not.
I consider the use of ardent spirits does prevail, and that such practice is on the increase.	Intemperance in the use of ardent spirits prevails to a considerable extent in this district, and, as far as I can observe, that depraved habit is on the increase.	It does not prevail, nor do I think it on the increase.
In visiting the poor I have found at least two-thirds of them in a state of misery and distress, and more than one-third are strangers to the necessary comforts of life, unless supplied by some charitable person.	Generally in a very destitute state in all those particulars.	In general rather comfortable.

ULSTER—TYRONE.

Ardstraw Dispensary.	Augher and Clogher Dispensary.	Benburb Dispensary.
James Hamilton, Esq., Surgeon, B. N.	Richard Twigg, Esq., M. D.	M. N. Corry, Esq., M. D.
I cannot say they have.	Fevers among the lower classes generally assume a low form, owing to the wretchedness of their food and want of comforts.	Fevers and epidemics have prevailed among the poor, which may be attributed principally to want of cleanliness.
I have several; many cases have occurred where charity compelled me to give them proper food, or the means to procure it, at my own expense.	In a great number of instances, especially after fever, recovery is greatly retarded from the want of proper sustenance, and stomach complaints often established.	Not any.
I meet with many cases of obstinate stomach complaints, which I attribute in a great degree to improper food.	The potato is excellent food, as long as the powers of the stomach are unimpaired; but this organ cannot continue in a healthy state, if the food be altogether unvaried, particularly after disease.	The potato, if bad, may ultimately cause disease.
It does not to that extent as formerly, and I am of opinion it is on the decline.	It does in a great degree.	No; we have taken pains to prevent the use of ardent spirits by the formation of Temperance societies.
Generally speaking, in a very wretched condition.	In a very bad state, particularly as to food.	In general very indifferent.

ULSTER—TYRONE.

Caledon Dispensary.	Castlederg and Killiter Dispensary.	Cookstown Dispensary.
J. Crozier, Esq., M. D.	John Hamilton, Esq., Surgeon.	Governor and Medical Attendant.
Generally inflammatory fever, ending in typhus, for want of proper food, houses badly ventilated, damp, and scarcely any fuel.	No.	Nothing peculiar; cutaneous and pulmonary complaints prevail much, for which see the answer to query 5.
In extending my visits further into the country, I generally found the poor in want of every necessary comfort, wholesome food might be very often substituted for medicine.	In many instances actual disease has been brought on by want of proper sustenance, and wholesome food would materially assist the medicine prescribed.	No; but many instances of individuals getting tickets for begging purposes.
In my opinion, the constant use of potatoes amongst the poor brings on dyspeptic complaints.	I consider that the poorer classes being obliged to live almost entirely on the potato is promotive of disease, from the large quantity required to afford sufficient nutriment.	Nothing decidedly.
In my opinion, not on the increase in this neighbourhood.	To a considerable extent; but is not, I think, on the increase.	Considerable abuse of ardent spirits, but probably on the decrease; certainly but a trifling use of good ale.
In the neighbourhood of this town there is a mendicity fund, which supplies the poor with clothing, also a small weekly allowance, principally through the kindness of the Earl and Countess of Caledon.	Clothes bad, food and bedding wretched, ventilation very bad, and necessary comforts almost none.	Various states; the chief deficiency being in fuel, ventilation, dry apartments and cleanly economical habits.

ULSTER—TYRONE.

Dromore Dispensary.	Drumquin Dispensary.	Dunamanna Dispensary.
Joseph Marshall, Esq., Surgeon.	John Maxwell, Esq.	William Baird, Esq., Surgeon.
The class of fever most prevalent in this neighbourhood is continued fever, which may be attributed to damp, bad clothing and the changeableness of the climate; as yet no cases of cholera have occurred in this parish.	Fevers or epidemics have not assumed any particular type among the poor.	Fevers often become contagious among the poor, for want of proper attention to cleanliness.
I have experienced a few, that may be attributed to the want of proper sustenance.	I have seen some cases which appear to have been brought on by improper food, and where wholesome food would have been of service.	In many instances, the want of wholesome food and comfortable clothing has been the cause of disease within my district.
I think the constant use of potatoes, as an article of food by the poor of this place, promotive of some diseases, such as dyspepsia, &c.	The constant use of potatoes among the poor seems to produce disease occasionally.	Potatoes, which is the most common food among the poor, often cause dyspepsia.
It still prevails in a great degree, but not so much as formerly.	The use of ardent spirits prevails in this district; but is decidedly on the decrease.	Heretofore it has prevailed to a great extent; but it is my opinion at present that it is on the decrease.
I have found them, in general, in a destitute state in these respects.	The state of the poor with respect to clothes, food, &c., is, generally speaking, bad, and in some cases extremely so.	In various ways, as to food and raiment, but generally bad. No ventilation in general, except from the door or chimney.

ULSTER—TYRONE.

Dungannon Dispensary.	Fintona Dispensary.	Gortin Dispensary.
James Hamilton, Esq., Surgeon.	Treasurer and Medical Attendant.	Alexander Laughlin, Esq., Surgeon, R.N.
Fevers and other epidemics are more contagious among the poor classes, from bad food, uncleanness, no ventilation in their houses, and want of other necessary comforts which the better classes have.	Typhus fever prevailed in this parish during a good part of the winter among the poor, but at present I have not a case on my list.	Fevers, at first purely inflammatory, frequently assume a typhoid type for want of cleanliness and proper ventilation. Epidemics, for the same reason, are always characterized by great inveteracy.
I have observed many complaints arising from want, where wholesome food was more necessary than medicine.	I have known disease to originate in many instances from cold, by want of clothing and bedding, &c.	Yes; I have seen many cases of cutaneous and dropsical affections, where proper sustenance at the commencement might be beneficially substituted for medicine.
The constant use of potatoes and other vegetables renders them very liable to dyspeptic complaints, and other affections of the stomach and bowels.	They have no change of diet; potatoes are what they principally live on, and what they have always been accustomed to.	The constant use of oatmeal and potatoes is often promotive of the above affections and stomach complaints.
Not to a great extent, and such practice appears on the decrease.	We consider the excessive use of ardent spirits does not prevail in our district, and we believe it to be considerably on the decrease.	Generally speaking, it does not; and I think the practice is not on the increase.
With respect to clothes, &c., I think the lower classes in as destitute a state as possible.	In general, very badly off for bedding and every other necessary comfort.	Wretchedly deficient in each particular; and as to their houses, in the majority of cases, they are not even water proof.

ULSTER—TYRONE.		CONNAUGHT—GALWAY.
Stewartstown Dispensary.	Termon Dispensary.	Galway Fever Hospital.
Wm. Brown Whittell, Esq., Surgeon.	Thomas Rutherford, Esq., Surgeon.	The Mayor and Medical Attendant.
None.	I cannot say that they have.	—
Very frequently.	Many diseases are to be attributed to want of proper food, and wholesome food might often be substituted for medicine.	—
Potatoes are almost the only food of the poor, which in some cases produce stomach complaints, and always increase those complaints where they do exist.	There is no food in particular promotive of disease.	—
Ardent spirits are still used to excess; but we consider not to so great a degree since the establishment of a Temperance society in this neighbourhood.	The excessive use is not prevalent, and the practice on the decrease.	—
In a very bad state as to all these things.	I have generally found them ill clothed; their food, &c., of a poor description; proper ventilation they never think of having, and their domestic comforts altogether are scanty.	—
CONNAUGHT—SLIGO.		LEINSTER—CARLOW.
Sligo Fever Hospital.	Carlow Fever Hospital.	Tullow Fever Hospital.
Henry Irwin, Esq., M. D.	M. W. Stone, Esq., M. D.	Robert Burnett, Esq., Surgeon.
When fever prevails it generally assumes the typhoid type, and this may be attributed to their bad and deficient diet.	The fevers which usually attack the people of this country are of typhoid type. I think poverty, filth, bad ventilation and a peculiar property of the atmosphere, generative of contagious fever, are the chief external causes.	Among the poorer classes fever often assumes a very mild form, particularly when early relief is administered; on the contrary, it generally becomes typhoid, complicated with dysentery, cholera and various organic diseases, induced by neglect and the causes below mentioned.
During epidemics, when the food is generally of an inferior quality.	I consider that I have met with a great many.	The type of fever is much influenced by the diet to which individuals are necessitated when in their own homes. The simple change to a clean ward, regular cooling diet, and ventilation materially aids in the recovery from fever.
The potato forms the principal article of food, and in wet seasons it is a bad article of diet.	Bad potatoes and wild vegetables in seasons of scarcity.	—
Except when illicit distillation is common, it is not used generally to excess.	It did, to excess; but does not now; since the establishment of Temperance societies it has been on the decline.	I consider the habitual use of ardent spirits on the decrease in my district, being excessive only on fair days.
Generally in want of every comfort.	Most wretched in the greater number of instances.	In those houses where fever breaks out it may be generally traced to, and the infection kept up, by the points stated in the queries, being in the most neglected and wretched state; in many instances, however, fever is traced to widely different causes.

LEINSTER—KILDARE.

Celbridge Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Kilcullen Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Naas Fever Hospital and Dispensary.
Mr. Charles Madden, Apothecary.	Committee and Medical Attendant.	Treasurer and Medical Attendant.
Not more than usual.	Synocha, typhus mitior et gravior; cold, damp and want of bedding.	Fever has been less prevalent since the appearance of cholera and influenza, assuming chiefly the putrid type. I attribute this to the state of destitution of the sufferers, and consequent want of cleanliness, added (in some cases) to the use of ardent spirits.
I have.	Several, and more than I am aware of.	Many, very many.
I have not.	Potatoes, and sour buttermilk, when they can get it.	I am inclined to attribute much of the squalid appearance of the poor, to the misapplication of their little funds in the use of tea, to the exclusion of wholesome and cheaper diet.
To a certain extent. I do not think it on the increase.	On the decrease; cannot afford to purchase it.	It does, and I consider it daily on the increase.
In many cases miserable.	In general wretched in the extreme. of the cabins, situated in filthy narrow lanes (this being a constant thoroughfare for paupers on their way to and from the southern counties and the metropolis), renders the air in these situations peculiarly impure.	The poor suffer much from a deficiency in all the necessary comforts mentioned in this query, but more particularly clothes, bedding and fuel; the extremely crowded state

LEINSTER—KILKENNY.

Freshford Fever Hospital.	Kilmaganny Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Stoneyford and Kells Fever Hospital and Dispensary.
James Cullenan, Esq., M.D.	Richard S. Peile, Esq., Surgeon.	Thomas Bradley, Esq., Medical Attendant.
I think not; I have found them much the same for the last 15 or 16 years, but I think fever has rather increased latterly, which I attribute to poverty and their not being able to procure food, clothing or bedding, and a consequent want of cleanliness.	They have latterly; I cannot account for the cause.	No.
I have found this to be the case in many instances, and I have met with many cases where wholesome food might have been beneficially substituted for medicine.	I consider that many diseases are brought on by bad food, and find that the ventilation of an hospital with proper diet always facilitates the cure of disease.	I have.
Potatoes are the principal food of the poor, and I have found them more subject to particular diseases where the potatoes are new.	Potatoes when of a bad quality, or malted wheat, of which however, they use very little.	No.
Not generally, and I do not think it is on the increase.	In many places it does; I cannot perceive an increase or diminution for the five years I have resided here.	It prevails to a very great extent, and is decidedly on the increase.
The hospital was kept for the reception of cholera patients for six months of the last year, and therefore admitted no fever patients for that period. In a most wretched state in every respect.	Clothes, food, bedding, furniture, and ventilation in particular, very bad; their comforts are few at home.	I have found throughout the district, for the most part, a decided deficiency in the articles specified in the query, more particularly in the village in which the dispensary is situated.

LEINSTER—KING'S COUNTY—MEATH.

Parsonstown Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	County Meath Fever Hospital at Kells.	County Meath Fever Hospital at Navan.
John Waters, Esq., M.D.	Henry Pentland, Esq., M.D.	Peter Gilroy, Esq., M.D.
We have not had any epidemic (cholera excepted) among us for the last three years. Since the appearance of cholera, in March 1832, fever has almost disappeared.	The majority of the fevers I have met with were of a typhoid character, which I attribute to poverty and want of clothing.	Fevers here commonly assume a typhoid type, which may be attributed to the use of poor and unwholesome food, want of clothing, damp and cold, &c.
A great many; particularly since the appearance of cholera in this country, arising as far as I could learn, more from deficiency in quantity than quality of food, their chief article of diet being potatoes.	I have witnessed numerous cases where it would be impossible to tell whether poverty or disease was the most urgent.	I have frequently seen actual disease brought on by want of proper nourishment, but more frequently by cold and damp, and too many persons living in the same uncomfortable apartment.
—	I cannot say I have, as the potato is the only food among the poorer class.	Stomach affections are common among the poor, in consequence of their living solely on potatoes, not sufficiently boiled.
Not to any excess.	It prevails certainly, and I fear is on the increase.	The excessive use of ardent spirits does prevail, and seems rather to increase.
Generally speaking the poor are very badly clothed and fed, and in almost every instance without proper bedding, furniture or ventilation.	Generally speaking, very bad.	I have uniformly found the poor destitute almost of every comfort; their houses filthy, without ventilation, and frequently using for bed clothes those they wear in the day.

LEINSTER—QUEEN'S COUNTY—WESTMEATH—WEXFORD.

Abbeyleix Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Castlepollard Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Arthurstown Fever Hospital and Dispensary.
William Boxwell, Esq., M.D.	M. Kenny, Esq., M.D.	R. Long, Esq., M.D.
All fevers and epidemics assume the low typhoid type, owing to their manner of living.	Fever and epidemics have at several times attacked the poorer classes first, and subsequently the community at large, with a violence unknown in England.	There has been no fever or epidemic disease prevailing here lately.
Very many instances where typhus fever has originated from starvation and filth, and in many where a little oatmeal would be of much more service than physic.	I have, in very many instances.	I dare say disease has been aggravated in many instances by improper or insufficient food, and feel confident that wholesome food would be in all cases a desirable addition to medical aid.
They eat nothing but potatoes; when of good quality they are wholesome, but when wet produce fever and diarrhoea. In seasons of scarcity they eat the weed called prasagh.	The food in use amongst the very poor is the cup and lumper potato, sometimes stir-about. The potatoes they eat without being sufficiently boiled, with salt or buttermilk, seldom with animal food; hence they are troubled with all the miseries of indigestion or stomach complaints, and eruptive complaints.	Their food is principally potatoes.
Very much; and appears to be on the increase.	I do not think that it does. In proportion as the people have employment, and any thing to spare, beyond mere animal existence, so does the use of ardent spirits increase.	We believe habits of intoxication are become more frequent, and must certainly consider them productive of disease.
In a most wretched state; seldom with more than one blanket for an entire family, straw bed on the ground, and without any comfort but potatoes and water, very few can procure milk.	Where the people have certain employment, or land to the extent of three or four acres, their clothing is sufficient to protect against cold, but such as are dependent on casual employment, especially if old, suffer much from want of sufficient clothing, but chiefly of bedding and night clothing. The poor who fall under my care do not, unless in years of great scarcity, suffer from want of food. Their furniture and stock of comforts scanty; their houses ill-ventilated.	Very bad.

LEINSTER—WEXFORD.

Castleborough Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Enniscorthy Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Gorey Fever Hospital and Dispensary.
The Treasurer.	The Medical Attendants.	James Hamilton, Esq., M.D.
	No.	Our fevers are generally of what is called the typhoid type and gastric, induced by the seasons, and very much by the state of employment of the poor.
The district is generally well supplied with potatoes.	Many cases of this kind are met with.	In no cases have I particularly observed this, beyond the experience that 40 years' practice has given me, of connecting bad or unwholesome or scanty potato crops with bowel affections and fevers.
Oatmeal in the spring has a tendency to promote cutaneous disorders.	Dyspeptic complaints are very prevalent among the poorer classes, from the use of potatoes not sufficiently boiled.	—
A good deal drank at fairs, holidays, &c.; not so much as formerly; it is the parent of crime and distress.	Very much, and is on the increase.	The use of ardent spirits, I think, rather on the decline.
Except under-tenants, all in good circumstances; bedsteads, blankets, &c. &c.	Generally in great distress, and their houses badly ventilated.	Very generally bad; but greatly improved of late by the provisions of our cholera board, in providing better beds and bedding, and improving the cleanliness of their dwellings.

LEINSTER—WEXFORD.

New Ross Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Newtown Barry Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Oulart Fever Hospital and Dispensary.
Committee and Medical Attendant.	John Young, Esq., Surgeon.	Richard Read, Esq., M.D.
They have not.	There has no fever or epidemic of a particular type prevailed in this district.	There has not been much fever in this county for the last six years; the cases that have occurred were generally mild typhus; the causes in general were exposure to cold or improper diet.
We have.	The constant use of vegetable diet I consider induces a very prevalent stomach affection called dyspepsia.	In a great many cases; for instance, there were two persons brought into the hospital within the last three months, in a dying state, who were found lying in the ditches.
In general not.	Yes, the use of potatoes, as last mentioned.	The only food of the poor is potatoes; these at certain periods of the year (while germinating, and before they are ripe) are very unwholesome, and productive of disease, particularly as they are eaten half boiled and without salt.
It does, and appears rapidly on the increase.	I consider the use of ardent spirits is on the decrease in this part of the country, except where illicit distillation is going on.	I do not think that there is, at least in the country parts. I do not see so many persons inebriated as formerly.
In the worst state as to clothes, food, bedding, furniture, ventilation and necessary comforts.	The poor of this neighbourhood are tolerably comfortable, having constant employment.	The poor here are, for the most part, in a very miserable state; they suffer privations of every kind in fuel and clothing; their bed is a bundle of straw; some of them have a blanket to cover them, others for want of it lie in their clothes; their food is potatoes; sometimes they get a herring, and at other times buttermilk with them, but in general water. The ventilation of their huts is most defective; in short they are quite ignorant of what the word "comfort" means.

LEINSTER—WEXFORD—WICKLOW.

Wexford Fever Hospital.	Arklow Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Bray Fever Hospital, Cholera Hospital and Dispensary.
The Committee.	D. Wright, Esq., M.D.	N. Heffernan, Esq., M.D.
No; with respect to the first part of this query, except in the case of cholera; with reference to the second division of the query, fevers and other epidemics have been materially promoted by the excessive use of ardent spirits.	Not of late years, with the exception of cholera, which has visited this town three several times.	They have not.
Many instances occur of diseases induced by want of nutritious food and warm clothing.	I have, and constantly find cases wherein medical treatment and my attendance would be useless had I not the power of ordering suitable food.	Not many instances where actual disease was produced by want of proper food; but I have met with instances where wholesome food might have been beneficially substituted for medicine.
No.	Those who live entirely on potatoes and buttermilk are highly dyspeptic; and I have often seen dysentery prevail, in seasons of scarcity, from bad potatoes and semi-putrid fish.	Bad potatoes.
Yes; and the practice is on the increase.	No; although the fishermen indulge in it occasionally, I think the habit is decreasing.	It does prevail, but is not on the increase.
The condition of the poor is comparatively good, but there are many cases of utter destitution.	In Arklow numbers are miserable in all these particulars; but in the country parts the poor are not near so destitute.	Generally speaking wretchedly off in all these respects.

LEINSTER—WICKLOW.

Enniskerry Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Newtown Mount Kennedy Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Stratford-on-Slaney Fever Hospital and Dispensary.
John Gason, Esq., M.D.	James Mitchell, Esq., M.D.	N. W. Heath, Esq., Surgeon.
Fevers of the typhoid type have been more prevalent than any others in this part of the country, which, I am of opinion, is attributable to the scarcity or bad quality of their provisions.	The general type of fevers and epidemics in this district is inflammatory. The low typhus diseases are less common. The chief cause may be that the poor, although suffering frequently from scarcity of fuel and clothing, are seldom in want of food. To this may be added the dryness of the soil, the frequent exposure to winds, from our position between the mountains and the sea, and the mildness of the climate generally.	They have, we see, less cephalic and more abdominal symptoms in the fevers which they are affected by.
I am of opinion that convalescence after acute diseases is, in many cases, retarded by the want of proper food, and I have no doubt but that the frequency of dyspepsia, flatulency and indigestion is promoted by the use of the cold watery vegetable diet which forms the exclusive sustenance of at least three-fifths of the inhabitants of Ireland from one end of the year to the other.	Potatoes are the general food of the poor, and I meet with many cases of disease for which this species of diet is improper, and which are exasperated by its use. To such cases a change of diet is often more advantageous than medicine. If, however, the deficiency of nourishment approaching to it, I must repeat that such cases are not frequent in this district.	Yes.
	I have not, except in seasons when the potatoes are generally wet.	Yes; see reply to Query 5.
I do not consider that the use of ardent spirits prevails much in this parish, and am disposed to think that the practice is rather on the decline.	I have reason to believe that the practice of drinking ardent spirits prevails and is rapidly increasing. The licensed spirit shops are already more than can be required for the reasonable accommodation of the public; but, in addition to these, drinking is much encouraged by the private sale of spirits in houses without licence; the number of which I am informed is very great.	It does when and where it can be procured; the poor, so badly fed, naturally take spirits when they have an opportunity, as it gives temporary relief to the flatulence caused by an almost exclusive vegetable diet, and is the only exhilarating beverage they are acquainted with.
In many cases very indifferent, but generally speaking of a better description than in many parts of Ireland.	The poor of this district, especially in the parish of Delgany, are in general decently clothed. In bedding and furniture they are rather more deficient. For the food or other comforts necessary for the sick, they have frequently to resort to charitable assistance; they are most frequent among the fishermen and their families from the precarious nature of their employment; and when known are promptly relieved by the neighbouring gentry. With respect to ventilation, the windows of cabins seldom afford it; but the door being almost always open during the day, and the bed-room, where there is one, being partitioned only by a low wall which does not reach to the roof, ventilation is not deficient, especially if we consider the want of warm covering at night.	Their clothing in general is tolerable, their food potatoes, seldom milk or butter or meal; furniture to correspond; they have enough of ventilation; it is easy to infer their comforts from this statement.

MUNSTER—CITY OF CORK—COUNTY OF CORK.

City of Cork Fever Hospital.	Bandon Fever Hospital & Dispensary.	Buttevant Fever Hospital and Dispensary.
J. S. Beamish, Esq., M. D. William Pickells, Esq., M. D.	William Belcher, Esq., M. D.	Committee and Medical Attendant.
We are not aware of any material difference of type in this respect among the poorer classes.	Within the last three years fevers and other epidemics (with the exception of the fatal cholera) have been much less prevalent than formerly.	Fevers or other epidemics have not assumed any particular type in this district.
We have always, in the course of our experience, found extreme poverty to be among the principal predisposing or exciting causes of epidemic disease.	I have met many cases of disease, particularly bowel complaints, which were brought on, in a great measure, by want of proper sustenance and where wholesome food might have been beneficially substituted.	I have experienced many instances of actual disease having been brought on by a want of proper sustenance, and I have no doubt on my mind, after careful observation, that many lives could have been saved during the prevalence of the late epidemic cholera, if more attention had been paid to the feeding and clothing of the healthy poor; for in my district, where, I am sorry to say, I had ample opportunities of making observations on that head, the victims were almost confined to the badly fed and clothed, or the dram drinker.
The use, or abuse of a fish diet among the poorer classes appears, in numerous instances which have come within our observation, to have been promotive of Indian cholera.	The only description of food used by our paupers are potatoes, milk and fish: sometimes when they are bad (which they often are) they are common causes of disease, particularly bowel complaints.	As the poor here are confined to one kind of diet, namely, the potato, unless on Christmas-day, I have had no opportunity of making observations on this head.
Yes; and we regret to add that the practice appears to be considerably on the increase than otherwise.	The use of ardent spirits in this town, I think, is less than it was a few years ago, when the manufactures were more briskly carried on, and also from our population being much thinned by emigration.	The excessive use of ardent spirits is not very prevalent in this neighbourhood, and I am of opinion that this practice is rather on the decline.
The medical men of this Hospital not being, strictly speaking, called on to attend the poor in their own houses, we cannot authoritatively reply to this question; but the generality of patients, on admission, are found to be almost totally destitute of clothing.	When called on, in my professional capacity, to attend them in their own houses, I have most generally found them in a most miserable state, destitute of almost every thing necessary to support life, not to mention comfort, but the most common necessities of life.	Generally speaking, the clothing, bedding, furniture, ventilation and necessary comforts of the poor in this district are very deficient, I may say they are solely confined to potatoes for food during the winter season, but in the summer, when milk is plentiful, they manage to give their families a daily allowance of skimmed milk with their potatoes.

MUNSTER—CORK.

Cove Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Fermoy Fever Hospital & Dispensary.	Kinsale Fever Hospital & Dispensary.
Committee and Medical Attendants.	Chas. Murphy, Esq., M. D. Thos. F. Downing, Esq., M. D.	Committee and Medical Attendants.
None.	Cholera and influenza are the prevailing epidemics; fevers assume a low or typhoid type, owing to the extreme poverty of the lower orders.	The type of fever is generally inflammatory, but merging into typhus fever for want of early application for relief.
Dysenteries are frequently induced by potatoes, bad and wet in quality, and typhus fevers by a deficient crop of them, constituting, as they do, their principal food, often their only sustenance.	We have no doubt but disease has often been brought by the want of wholesome food.	Many.
Answered as above.	The general food in use among the poor are potatoes, which when bad (which is frequently the case) promote dysentery and other bowel complaints.	The change from old to new potatoes and occasionally bad fish producing dysentery.
The habit of intemperance amongst these classes seems to diminish, and a better feeling as to being seen drunk in the streets.	The general use of ardent spirits prevails to a great extent, and is lamentably on the increase.	It does prevail; certainly not diminishing.
Bedding, clothes, &c., generally found in a state of destitution; persons lying on straw on a clay floor, in a confined stagnant atmosphere, the air excluded, from the want of fuel, except when the want of windows and broken roof admitted the elements; food deficient in quantity and bad in quality.	Destitute of necessary comforts in all these particulars.	Nearly a total absence of all these.

MUNSTER—CORK.

Mallow Fever Hospital.	Midleton Fever Hospital & Dispensary.	Mitchelstown Fever Hospital and Dispensary.
Medical Attendants.	J. Barry, Esq., M. D.	Eugene O'Neil, Esq., M. D.
Not for some years past.	The fever which prevails most in this district, is common inflammatory fever, which I attribute principally to bad food, clothing, and the wretchedness of their dwellings.	They have not had fever in my district these two or three years, and it is not so frequent or so fatal.
Frequently.	I have in numberless instances.	Very many instances.
The lower classes particularly subject to diseases of the stomach and bowels from the exclusive use of potatoes.	Yes, and I would say in particular, bad fish and potatoes in the early part of the year. only shelter a tree or hedge, a practice which must necessarily be promotive of disease, added to the heated state he is in from severe work, and the cold and indigestible nature of his food, brought by his wife or child from a distance.	There is a very cruel practice prevalent in the South of Ireland, which obliges the unfortunate labourer to eat his potatoes seated on the cold, and very often wet ground, his
Very much, rather on the decrease, arising more from poverty than any moral feeling.	It does, and I would say it is very much on the increase.	It is not very prevalent, nor is it on the increase.
A great deal of wretchedness in every respect amongst the lower classes, especially as to their food and clothing.	With very few exceptions, in every respect very, very bad.	In the greatest possible state of destitution with respect to clothes, bedding, furniture and ventilation; their only support for half the year, potatoes and a little sour milk, the other half potatoes and salt, and for the most part not enough of that esculent root.

MUNSTER—CORK—KERRY.

Newmarket Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Youghal Fever Hospital & Dispensary.	Killarney Fever Hospital & Dispensary.
P. R. Fivy, Esq., Surgeon.	Committee and Medical Attendant.
Fevers are not particularly prevalent in this neighbourhood of late, the cases admitted into the hospital are for the most part simple continued fever, and where any particular type appears among the poorer classes, it is too often caused by want of cleanliness, ventilation, and insufficiency of clothing.	The last epidemic fever here assumed a particular type. Bad food and want of food.	Fever is generally that of typhus, which we attribute to the many wants and privations of the poor, and the state of their miserable dwellings.
I am quite sure every medical man of any experience among the poorer classes, must have traced the origin of some particular diseases to want of wholesome food, and proper ventilation; for some years past I have made this subject a matter of deep research, and, from every thing I have learned, I am convinced in very many instances, wholesome food may be beneficially substituted for medicine.	I have never met with a case of disease where food was a substitute for medicine.	Instances daily present themselves of disease arising from the want of proper sustenance, and where wholesome food might have been beneficially substituted for medicine.
The poor of this neighbourhood have scarcely any other food than the potato, which in my mind is a vegetable productive of many stomach complaints.	Bad farinaceous food of every description, bad tea, bad animal food.	In the spring and early parts of the summer, potatoes become sour and bad, and no doubt produce, in many cases, great disorder of the stomach and bowels.
I am entirely of opinion that the excessive use of ardent spirits prevailing in this district, is in a great measure owing to that peculiar constitution of the stomach caused by fermentation of vegetable matter, which the poor believe is only to be corrected by the use of spirits.	It does, and it is much on the increase.	The excessive use of ardent spirits prevails very much, it appears rather to decrease, owing chiefly to the increasing poverty of the people.
In too many instances the poor of this neighbourhood are reduced to abject wretchedness, being miserably clad, indifferently supplied with food and bedding, and in many cases without the common necessities of life.	Generally in a bad state, which I think in a great measure owing to their improvidence.	We have found them in the most wretched state, wanting bedding, clothes and food, in fact, every thing.

MUNSTER—KERRY—LIMERICK.

Tralee Fever Hospital.	Adare Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Limerick Fever and Lock Hospital.
Jeremiah Leyne, Esq., M. D.	William Griffin, Esq., M. D.	John Gean, Esq., M. D.
Fevers are much more frequent here among the poorer classes, but I have not observed the type to be more malignant. Indeed, it is more fatal among the rich, compared to the number of cases.	Fever has been less prevalent of late, and has not assumed any unusual type.	They have, which is chiefly attributable to the deteriorated state of their constitutions from bad food, and the wretchedness of their habitations and bedding, this has given a peculiarly putrid tendency to fevers.
Disease often occurs amongst the poor from the bad quality of their food, and from a deficiency of food. It is probable that many of the cases requiring medicines would not occur if they had proper and wholesome food.	Where the landlords are non-resident, the people are invariably poor, and sometimes miserable. In the cities, at least in the city of Limerick, more than half the lower class are wretched, and one sometimes meets with instances of appalling distress.	I have experienced very many.
In this town the poor have scarcely any variety of food.	The diet of the poor (potatoes and milk) I believe to be very wholesome; their diseases depend, not on the nature of their food, but on the want of it, or on other causes, as cold, wet, nakedness, and very often on the use of ardent spirits.	The generality of their food is of that description; salt herrings are chiefly taken with potatoes, and but too frequently, bad carrion beef and pork.
The use of ardent spirits is not particularly excessive. I think drunkenness is less frequent than it was a few years ago.	Decidedly.	It does prevail; but, upon the whole, I think it is not as frequently to be observed, as some time since.
In a very distressed state, having scarcely any bed clothes; often obliged to use their day clothes as a bed covering—lying on dirty straw; a very scanty supply of potatoes and sour milk; no ventilation in their houses; in fact, without any comforts.	There is a very great and general want of all these in some districts. The residence of the Earl of Dunraven in Adare, and his great annual outlay in buildings and other works, and Lady Dunraven's establishments for female industry in spinning and needle-work, have contributed much to improve the condition, and add to the comforts of the people about it; there is no actual distress there.	In a most wretched state.

MUNSTER—LIMERICK—TIPPERARY.

Newcastle Fever Hospital & Dispensary.	Rathkeale Fever Hospital & Dispensary.	Borris O'Kane Fever Hospital.
John Pierce, Esq., M. D.	Charles Patterson, Esq., M. D.	J. J. Stoney, Esq., Surgeon.
No.	This year fever has been in almost all cases complicated, with inflammation of the lungs, which I attribute to the want of clothes and bedding among the poor, conjoined with the wetness and inclemency of the year.
No; dyspepsia is more prevalent here than in any part of Ireland I am acquainted with, owing, in a great degree, to the prejudice they have against sufficiently boiling their potatoes, thinking they are more nutritious half-cooked.	The want of proper clothes and food is the great source of disease in dispensary practice; and the cause why very few dispensary patients labouring under chronic disease are benefited by medicine.
Yes, as mentioned in No. 2.	The poor, here, have no variety of food; stomach and bowel complaints arise from their exclusive vegetable diet, even among those who have a sufficiency of potatoes.
It does; the villages abound with more tippling-houses, and there is no statute in Ireland analagous to that of England, 4 James I., which enables magistrates to fine drunkards, whereby an early check might be put to any intended riot, the provision of the late Act enabling the publican to sell on Sunday must tend to increase the evil, that being an idle day, and affording too favourable an opportunity for the labourer to spend his wages in the public-house. The permission for justices and chief constables to visit publicans after eleven o'clock at night must prove inoperative; in most cases, the hour of rest in country towns being long before that time.	The use of ardent spirits prevails very much among farmers and tradesmen.
I think the labouring poor of this district are comparatively well off; we have, of course, beggars of the lowest grade.	The great majority of dispensary patients are in the utmost state of destitution; a great many have no bedding, nor even straw to lie on; their clothes are very bad, in several instances nothing but filthy rags. They frequently tell me that they have been for days without food—without any other drink than water.

MUNSTER.—TIPPERARY.

Cahir Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Carrick-on-Suir Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Clogheen Fever Hospital and Dispensary.
Treasurer and Medical Attendant.
Fevers or epidemics have not assumed any particular type in my district.	The fevers that prevail most here are the simple continued, the intermittent, and occasionally the typhus; other diseases prevail to as great an extent, such as dysenteries, diarrhoea, pectoral diseases, dropsy, &c.; want of clothing, ventilation and cleanliness, debility and intemperance, with a low marshy country, are most likely the predisposing causes.	The fevers are all of a low typhoid type and will not bear depletion. Bad food, occasional excesses in the use of spirituous liquors and prevalence of influenza.
I have in very many instances observed fever to originate among the wretched poor, whose only support was two or three scanty meals of potatoes in the day; where, if more nutritious diet was made use of, disease in my opinion would be resisted.	Frequently. I have often admitted patients into hospital, who in their own wretched abodes could not be expected to survive a few hours, and it would be astonishing to witness the alteration that immediately took place on their removal to a clean bed, a well ventilated room and good diet. I have very often substituted diet for medicine with happy results.	In those years when food is dear, I found that disease was spread for want of proper sustenance.
The potato is the food used among the poorer classes with little or no change, except the addition of milk or salt.	I cannot say that I have. They generally subsist on potatoes; when they are bad or scarce, disease prevails.	Potatoes when of an inferior quality, or when used too early in the season.
Ardent spirits are used very much in my district, and are more on the increase than otherwise.	Yes; but I do not think it on the increase.	It does; but I do not think the practice is either increasing or diminishing.
Almost in every instance the cottage of the poor is in a state of filth and wretchedness, wanting every necessary to afford comfort, few of them sufficiently ventilated, some not at all, in order to promote warmth, as a substitute for the want of bedding, clothing, &c.	In the most wretched state; it would be impossible to describe their misery.	In general, the poor are miserably off for all those comforts, particularly along the foot of the mountains and in the back lanes of this town.

MUNSTER.—TIPPERARY.

CloghJordan Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Clonmel Fever Hospital & Dispensary.	Nenagh Fever Hospital.
Committee and Medical Attendant.	Committee and Medical Attendant.	Committee and Medical Attendants.
I have remarked, that in a year when there was any particular blight or general failure of crops, occasioning a scarcity or deterioration of provisions, that typhoid fevers were more prevalent among the poor.	It is not perceived that they have.	Generally typhus; to the use of bad potatoes.
There are, undoubtedly, some instances where dyspeptic and other diseases have been aggravated by want of proper sustenance, and where a better supply of wholesome food would prove a valuable assistance to medical remedies. N. B. I have observed an increase in the use of wheaten bread amongst the poor, of late years.	Some instances occur where disease appears to be brought on by a want of proper food, clothing and lodging, and a supply of these might have been beneficially substituted for medicine; but in proportion to the number, not many.	We have.
I think not; except in dyspeptic cases, where bread might beneficially be substituted for potatoes, &c. I do not find that potatoes and milk and oaten victuals are promotive of disease	Potato is the food in general use and is not considered likely to promote disease, unless when of bad quality.	Bad potatoes.
Not in comparison with other districts. I conceive such practice is rather on the increase in this neighbourhood.	The excessive use of ardent spirits prevails in this district and appears to be on the increase in a most deplorable degree.	Yes, and on the increase.
There is a charitable institution called the Deacons' Fund; twelve persons give their gratuitous inspection, and meet monthly to compare and inquire into the character and state of all objects which apply, and in consequence, I believe, in most cases I found the peasantry tolerably well circumstanced with regard to most of the above-mentioned necessities in this district, and extreme cases of wretchedness are not so frequent as in other districts, being almost sure to be relieved when known.	Many of the poor are in a miserable, wretched state as to clothes, food, bedding, ventilation and furniture, with but few necessary comforts. There are several pretty well off in these respects, and some industrious persons of good habits appear comfortably supplied.	The most wretched state imaginable.

MUNSTER—TIPPERARY.

Roscrea Fever Hospital.	Templemore Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Tipperary Fever Hospital and Cappaghwhite Dispensary.
Committee and Medical Attendant.	Edward Kingsley, Esq., Surgeon.	The Medical Attendant.
	Fever or epidemics have assumed no particular change for some time; fevers are invariably brought on the poorer classes by their being badly fed, badly clothed and badly lodged.	The gastric type is the most prevalent; to be ascribed to the habits of the people.
	I have experienced many instances where actual disease has been brought on by bad food, and a scarcity of it, which would be prevented if wholesome food had been substituted in sufficient quantity.	The common necessities of life are scarce and miserable; scrophula is often the result of want of proper sustenance; and I am convinced that hospital diet often effects more than medicine possibly can.
	I have found the poorer classes living on potatoes, greens, &c. &c. to be attacked with dispeptiæ, diarrhœa, indigestion, &c.	Vegetable food alone, and the use of salt herrings, disorder the stomach and bowels and cause diseases of the skin.
	The use of ardent spirits does prevail to a frightful extent; and I think on the increase.	Yes, public houses are increasing, and men and women drink to a frightful extent; illicit distillation affords opportunity, and temptation.
	In every instance I have found them in the greatest misery, standing in need of every comfort.	The clothes worn by day are frequently the only bed-covering; few have more than one blanket.

MUNSTER—WATERFORD.

Dungarvan Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Lismore Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Waterford Fever Hospital.
Arthur Quin, Esq., Surgeon.	Committee and Medical Attendant.	Committee and Medical Attendant.
I do not consider fevers have assumed any particular type, different from what appears here every year; but from the poverty of the poor many cases of a malignant character are met here.	Type of disease milder.	The epidemic fever prevalent in this district generally, has assumed the typhoid type: it is difficult to attribute it to any particular cause.
I have experienced a great many instances.	Not many instances for some years past, but in former periods, when the potato crop has failed, either in quality or sufficiency, this has been the case; wholesome food in those cases would have prevented much disease. Potatoes are the usual food of the poor, and are perfectly wholesome when of good quality and in sufficient supply.	Very many.
There is an extensive fishery here; the poor people live chiefly on fish and potatoes, and when they cannot get fish their principal food is potatoes, and often of a bad description, and promotive of disease.	Badly cured fish, in many instances.	The Committee do not feel competent to answer the question.
It does; and I should rather think it on the increase, from the number of houses licensed for the sale of spirits.	Does exist, and is increasing.	The habit of drinking ardent spirits prevails to a great extent in this city. The latter part of this question can be answered correctly only by a reference to the office of excise in this city.
In the majority of houses I found the inhabitants in the greatest state of wretchedness, and in many instances destitute of every thing necessary to support life.	Generally much in want of necessary comforts in illness. Ventilation generally bad; clothing, bedding, &c. tolerable only in some instances.	None.

ULSTER—ANTRIM.

Belfast Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Belfast Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Belfast Fever Hospital and Dispensary.
Joseph W. Bryson, Esq., M.D.	S. M' Burney, Esq., Surgeon.	R. Coffey, Esq., M.D.
Fevers and epidemics generally assume the typhoid type among the poorer classes, which is owing to the abuse of ardent spirits, the want of proper food, and depression of mind, occasioned frequently by want of employment.	Chiefly typhus, which I think is partly owing to the weakened state of body, induced by bad food, deficient clothing and filthy and badly ventilated apartments.	Yes; typhoid; want of proper food and clothes.
Frequently.	I have met with many such in my own districts.	Frequently.
Too much vegetable without the necessary stimulus of animal food.	For breakfast they generally contrive to have tea; often without milk, or butter, or sugar; and the rest of their food I believe to be potatoes and starch flummery, made from the washings of the starch.	Salt ham parings, and other articles equally indigestible.
The excessive use of ardent spirits prevails much among the poor, and is on the increase.	Yes; but I rather think it is on the decline, which I attribute more to the want of means to purchase than to any improvement in the morals of the people.	Less than formerly.
Occasionally comfortable; but more frequently miserable.	Very wretched indeed. In a great many cases they have neither bed nor bedding, and sometimes not even straw to lie on; and their only covering is the rags they wear through the day.	Generally in want of all.

ULSTER—ANTRIM.

Belfast Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Belfast Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Belfast Fever Hospital and Dispensary.
William Duncan, Esq., M.D.	Henry Forcade, Esq., M.D.	Robert M'Cluney, Esq., Surgeon.
The common continued fever of the country assumes more or less of the typhoid type. Since the Indian cholera appeared, and shortly before, I think dysentery has been less frequent, and diarrhoea, with or without vomiting, more so.	Fevers among the poorer classes generally put on the typhoid type, which I consider to be owing to the want of proper nourishment, and to the filthiness of their habitations.	Typhus fever is the most general complaint among the poorer class, which I attribute greatly to the use of ardent spirits, bad clothing, damp and ill-ventilated hovels, want of cleanliness and deficiency of wholesome food.
No.	I am confident that actual disease has been brought on by want of proper sustenance; had they received wholesome food, medicine would not have been required. good derived by dispensary patients, from our House of Industry, and Destitute Sick Society, both which supply food, fuel and straw, with other necessities to the out-sick or out-patient.	I have not observed any disease brought on by want of proper sustenance; but I have seen many where, it appeared to me, wholesome food would have been beneficially substituted for medicine; and in this I think I am warranted, from the
No.	I consider starch sowins, obtained by the washing of the casks, and the residue of the starch, to be unwholesome, and tending to bring on disease.	I cannot say that I have.
Spirits appear to be more generally used; but I think cases of excessive drunkenness are less frequent.	Not having a district, I cannot state positively; but I believe it is on the decrease, the poor not having the means to obtain ardent spirits.	I am sorry to say that the excessive use of ardent spirits prevails in this district, and I rather think it is not on the decline.
I should say, as well off in these respects as I have found them in other large towns.	Generally in a very bad state.	In general, the lower class of poor are found deficiently clothed and wretchedly ill off for want of sufficient bedding, firing or furniture; and from their poverty are so crowded together in their miserable habitations, as to deprive them of the salutary effects of ventilation.

ULSTER—ANTRIM.

Belfast Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Belfast Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Belfast Fever Hospital and Dispensary.
Alexander Kendell, Esq., Surgeon.	William Mateer, Esq., M.D.	David Moore, Esq., Surgeon.
The few cases of fever that have come under my notice arose from exposure, assisted by want of proper clothing.		They generally assume a typhoid type. It is the type that mostly occurs in large towns where poverty prevails.
This will never occur in plentiful seasons, for whoever will take the trouble of looking back to the epidemics that have visited Ireland for the last century and half, will invariably find famine either proceeding or accompanying the epidemic fever of this country.	I have experienced many instances where actual disease has been brought on by want of proper sustenance, and by its general accompaniments, bad clothing and bad ventilation. A disease caused by such circumstances can hardly, if ever, be relieved without the use of medicine, although proper food and ventilation, with good clothing, may form powerful "adjuvantia" to medicine in bringing about the re-establishment of health.	It does not appear that disease is often brought on by want of proper sustenance; it is probable, however, that diseases of debility, such as dropsy, are occasionally induced among weakly people, by poor food, and damp, bad accommodations. Those who were poorly fed, ill clothed, and badly lodged, were particularly susceptible of cholera.
By no means.	This query is pertinent to a subject which has lately occupied my attention. I believe that the extensive use of salt in food is a fruitful source of disease. It is also my opinion, that to the same cause may be attributed, in a great measure, the prevailing taste for ardent spirits which is so common among the poor, and which shows itself to be on the increase. The fact appears, from extensive observation, to be undoubted, and can, as I imagine, be accounted for on physiological principles.	I have not found any particular description of food promote disease.
From all inquiries I have made, the use of ardent spirits is by no means lessened.		The use of ardent spirits does prevail to a considerable extent, but I believe it is not on the increase. It appears to be stationary.
In general, their houses not clean; no attention to ventilation; clothes indifferent; many without bed or bedding, either sleeping on the floor or on straw, with very little bed clothes; food not to be complained of; general comfort little attended to.		Clothing generally bad; food tolerable, but sometimes of a poor description; bedding and furniture in most instances exceedingly bad, and consist of few articles. Their houses are generally badly ventilated.

ULSTER—ANTRIM.

Belfast Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Belfast Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Belfast Fever Hospital and Dispensary.
Daniel Murray, Esq., Surgeon.	S. S. Thomson, Esq., M.D.	William Quin, Esq., Surgeon.
Generally typhoid among the poor, in consequence of low diet.	I have not observed any peculiarities worthy of special notice. So far as I can judge, the epidemic visitations we have had have been milder than in many other places, both in extent and severity. This I am disposed to attribute to the care taken of our poor, and their better condition.	I have nothing particular to observe to this, but I think there has been less fever this winter, and of a milder character than any former season I recollect.
I have witnessed a few such cases.	I have often seen disease produced and aggravated among the poor, both by the scarcity and bad quality of their food. An increase of typhus fever always accompanies seasons of dearth here.	I have seen many instances where disease has been aggravated, and recovery retarded, by want of proper food.
The parings of salt hams.	Nothing particular; the quality of food used by our poor here is, I believe, better than in many other parts of Ireland.	I have not.
The excessive use of spirits continues, I think, to the same extent as formerly.	Ardent spirits are too much in use. It is said that the influence of the Temperance societies is felt in somewhat checking this vice.	Much as usual.
Generally in wretched state as to clothing, food and furniture; particularly in want of clothing in winter.		Never having had charge of a district, I refer to the replies of the dispensary district attendants.

ULSTER—ANTRIM—CAVAN—DONEGAL.

Lisburn Fever Hospital.	Cavan Fever Hospital.	Ramelton Fever Hospital and Dispensary.
Committee and Medical Attendant.	Hugh Macdonald, Esq., M.D.	J. Hunter, Esq., Surgeon.
We had only a few cases of cholera here. The type of fever for some time has been rather mild (typhus mitior), occasionally (frequently, where neglected) terminating in typhus gravior.	I do not think they have.	Typhus fever, I think, has assumed a milder type of late, whether from the disease having exhausted itself or the people's food being better I cannot say; but I am disposed to think the latter.
Cases of this kind are of rare occurrence in this neighbourhood at present.	I have no doubt but bad food, bad clothing and want of fuel bring on fevers, and it is among the class of persons so circumstanced that fever most prevails, particularly in winter.	About the year 1817 great numbers died of actual disease, brought on by want of food; but of late years the food has been cheap and the quality good, and the people endeavour to get food while they want other comforts.
This mode of living solely upon potatoes, often of a bad description, and other badly boiled vegetables, are in many instances promotive of disease.	There is no food known among the class of persons above mentioned but potatoes, and bad as their food is, I consider insufficient clothing by day and by night a greater source of disease, particularly of fevers.	The poor live almost entirely on potatoes, which, when of a good quality, are very light and nourishing; I think their diseases arise more from bad clothing and damp houses than from the quality of the food.
The excessive use of ardent spirits has prevailed considerably here; but it is rather presumed to be on the decrease.	The use of ardent spirits does exist to a deplorable and ruinous extent, and most undoubtedly is on the increase, and is the greatest moral evil that exists, and is the real cause of almost all the poverty and distress that afflict the great body of those who sustain themselves by daily labour.	Excessive drinking prevails most amongst the lower classes; but I think it on the decline in this neighbourhood.
During the continuance of the board of health here, the condition of the poor was greatly improved, from the activity and vigilance pursued. The Marquis of Hertford, established a soup kitchen, gave bedding and bedsteads, improved ventilation by opening windows, and whitewashed their houses; since the dissolution of the Board, all these increased comforts have necessarily not been so well attended to.	In general most wretched and miserable amongst the very lowest and poorest.	The houses damp and badly ventilated; clothes, bedding, furniture and other comforts in general very bad.

ULSTER—DOWN—TYRONE.

Downpatrick Fever Hospital.	Newry Fever Hospital and Dispensary.	Strabane Fever Hospital & Dispensary.
George Buchanan, Esq., M.D.	Secretary and Medical Attendant.	A. Lenney, Esq., M.D.
Fevers have very constantly assumed a typhoid character and other epidemics a malignant type, arising from the general poverty and want of comforts of the poorer classes, and their too frequent practice of drinking largely of ardent spirits, debilitating their constitutions.	Fevers and epidemics usually amongst the poorer classes assume a typhoid type, which appears attributable to their numerous wants.	Fever is not so prevalent this year as last, nor of so bad a type.
I have no doubt that many of the diseases of the poor arise from improper and insufficient diet, and that consequently many of their ailments would have been prevented by more wholesome food, and I have instances daily under my observation in the county infirmary where generous diet alone, with the comforts of a warm room and bed, have been sufficient to remove disease.	The instances appear numerous where disease has been induced from want of proper sustenance, and where wholesome food might have been beneficially substituted for medicine.	I have known cases where wholesome food might have been beneficially substituted for medicine.
I conceive that potatoes, without a proper admixture of other food, have been productive of many diseases of the digestive organs; also a too free use of oatmeal and salted food has given rise to many obstinate eruptive diseases.	The principal diet of the poor here, potatoes and salt herrings, seems frequently to produce a morbid state of the system, and particularly cutaneous affections.	Not any in particular; potatoes and salt with milk is their usual diet, and when they can get enough by no means unwholesome.
The excessive use of ardent spirits does prevail in my neighbourhood, and rather increasing, perhaps owing to the practice of allowing the free sale of spirits in public-houses during the greater part of the Sabbath.	The use of ardent spirits prevails in this district to a considerable extent; but its excessive use does not appear increasing.	It is not on the increase, nor do I think that there is a less consumption of ardent spirits than formerly.
Their clothes of a very insufficient description to guard them against the inclemency of winter; their food of the plainest description, namely, potatoes, oatmeal, salt herrings, buttermilk, with sometimes the poorest kind, frequently one bed sufficing for a whole family; their furniture hardly deserving that name, and ventilation wholly neglected or studiously prevented.	Many of the poor of this district have been found to be very deficient in clothes, food, bedding and necessary comforts.	They are more comfortable this year than last; but the majority of them are badly off for ventilation and cleanliness.

CONNAUGHT—GALWAY—LEITRIM—MAYO.

County Galway Infirmary.	County Leitrim Infirmary and Carrick-on-Shannon Dispensary.	County Mayo Infirmary.
Andrew J. Veitch, Esq., M.D.	William Hutchinson, Esq., Surgeon.	George Howse, Esq., M.D.
At present there is a fever of a bad typhoid character, and generally it assumes that type which I attribute to the wretchedness of the poor in every respect.	Fevers in this part of the country are mostly protracted to a length of time I have seldom witnessed any where else; scarcely ever terminating till between the thirtieth and fortieth day, yet the proportion of deaths is not greater than when they are of shorter duration. I cannot assign any cause. The cholera proceeded here the same as in other places.	Fevers are generally long continued, and of a typhoid character, and this, I think, should be attributed to their habits, &c.; but I do not think the cases generally are inclined to be fatal.
A very considerable number.	I have no doubt that a power of giving the poor a change of diet, different from their ordinary food (viz. the potato), would, in many instances, remove the very general dyspeptic complaints, which I have good reason to think follow from a long continuance of that sort of subsistence, without the aid of medicines.	I have experienced some cases.
Bad potatoes, bad fish, and frequently not a sufficient quantity of wholesome food.	I have not met any so destitute, as not to be able to procure a sufficiency of potatoes, but I believe they are seldom able to get any thing else.	Potatoes are, with very few exceptions, the only food used; when good, they appear to agree well; but when bad, they must promote disease, as I have frequently observed.
It does; I do consider it on the increase.	The use of ardent spirits is very general, and I have no doubt that it is on the increase.	In some districts in this county I believe it to exist to an excessive degree, and I am inclined to think it rather on the increase in my neighbourhood.
In a very wretched state, both as regards clothes, food, necessary comforts, &c. &c.	I am sorry to be obliged to say, that they are very badly off, in respect to every article mentioned.	I may say, generally a deficiency of the different articles enumerated; in most cases a good supply of turf is their chief comfort.

CONNAUGHT—ROSCOMMON.

LEINSTER—CARLOW—DROGHEDA.

County Roscommon Infirmary.	County Carlow Infirmary.	Drogheda Infirmary and Dispensary.
The Treasurer.	Thomas J. Rawson, Esq., M.D.	Robert Pentland, Esq., Surgeon.
I have not received an answer to this quere from the surgeon; I do not think these diseases have assumed any particular type here.	I have not remarked any thing particular with regard to fever.	The fevers have not assumed any specific epidemic type this season; rheumatic and bilious fevers have prevailed.
When the season is unfavourable for the potato-crop, disease is more general and severe, and after the violence of disease may be arrested, delicacy of constitution and relapses are prevalent, for want of proper food.	I have not.	I have seen many cases where actual disease has been the consequence of want; this can be readily accounted for in this district, where the poor are so completely in want of employment.
Dyspepsia, and chronic disease of liver, dropsy, disease of the skin, are in a great measure promoted by the continued use of potato only.	I have not.	The only food here amongst the poor is dried fish and potatoes, with or without milk of any sort, but generally with buttermilk.
It does prevail, and I believe it is on the increase, because the number of public-houses (one of the greatest evils in Ireland), is increasing in this town and county.	I cannot say.	I do not think that whiskey is so commonly used amongst the very poor as heretofore.
The surgeon reports, the clothing of the poor in general is scanty, and of the worst description; food, potatoes only; bedding, straw and blanket; in many cases without a sheet; scarcely any ventilation, in order to confine the temperature, fuel being scarce.	In general very bad.	Destitute of almost every comfort in the generality of cases.

LEINSTER—DUBLIN CITY—DUBLIN—KILDARE.

City of Dublin Infirmary (Jervis-street.)	County Dublin Infirmary & Dispensary.	County Kildare Infirmary.
Committee and Medical Attendants.	Committee and Medical Attendants.	Committee and Medical Attendant.
Persons coming to this hospital having met with accidents, usually are attacked with low nervous fever in consequence of their previous intemperance and bad diet.	Fevers and epidemics have occasionally assumed particular types; but it would be difficult to assign the precise modifying cause.	Have not assumed any particular type among the poorer classes.
Instances frequently occur.	We have many.	Such cases have sometimes occurred to me; but I believe in general the diseases of the poor are occasioned by want of wholesome food.
In the city there are not many opportunities of observing, so as to give a general answer.	The food of the poorer classes generally is productive of disease.	Have not found any.
Yes, to the former part; but cannot say as to the latter.	The use of ardent spirits does prevail to a considerable extent; but we can form no opinion as to whether it is on the increase or otherwise.	The excessive use of ardent spirits does not prevail in this district.
The medical attendants do not usually visit patients applying at this hospital at their own houses.	In the utmost wretchedness.	Generally in a wretched state as to all these particulars.

LEINSTER—KING'S COUNTY—LONGFORD—LOUTH.

King's County Infirmary.	County Longford Infirmary.	County Louth Infirmary.
George Peirce, Esq., Surgeon.	George Peacocke, Esq., Surgeon.	E. G. Brunner, Esq., M.D.
Fevers have, amongst the poorer classes, frequently assumed the typhoid type, owing to the want of proper nutriment.	I cannot say that I have observed so particularly.	Fevers and epidemics generally assume the low or typhoid type among the poor, which is attributable to their bad food and clothing, want of ventilation and cleanliness.
In many cases this occurs; recoveries are also often protracted by want of proper nutriment.	I have no doubt that in many instances such has been the case.	In the course of my practice I have met with many such cases.
Their general food is potatoes, sometimes with sour milk; dyspeptic diseases prevail very much, which I attribute to the quality of food.	Yes, potatoes, particularly unwholesome and productive of dyspeptic complaints and stomach derangements.	In general, potatoes are the almost exclusive food of the poor.
It certainly does prevail to a great extent, but not more generally than in other districts.	Yes; the very low price of grain of late leads to the practice of illicit distillation, which naturally tends to the more extensive consumption of ardent spirits amongst the lower classes, in consequence of its cheapness and abundance.	To a great extent, and I conceive is increasing.
In many parts of the county most wretched indeed.	Among the lowest classes of the peasantry their state is very bad, indicative of great poverty; but I think, speaking generally, there is an improvement of late in the condition of the lower orders.	Generally speaking, the cabins and persons of those applying for relief are without any kind of comfort; many have no other covering at night than the clothes they wear during the day; their cabins are mostly without any furniture, and ventilation is never thought of.

LEINSTER—MEATH—QUEEN'S COUNTY—WESTMEATH.

County Meath Infirmary.	Queen's County Infirmary.	County Westmeath Infirmary.
LA Byron, Esq., M. D.	John Jacob, Esq., M. D.
Fevers, commonly called typhus, dysenteries and diarrhoeas are the prevailing disorders among the poorer classes in my neighbourhood. I believe the causes are mainly attributable to habits of intemperance, and bad food and lodging.	Epidemic fevers are of frequent occurrence; their character is, generally speaking, typhoid, which is probably attributable to the wants and privations to which the peasantry are exposed.	They have not; perhaps the fever is more generally of the typhus kind, which may be attributed to the use of spirits.
Many instances have fallen under my observation, where, I believe, disease and death were occasioned by want of proper and wholesome food. I have sometimes admitted patients at the infirmary, when their only complaint was poverty and want of good food; having got this, they were sent away in a day or two, well and able to work.	I have experienced numerous instances in which actual disease has been induced by want of proper sustenance. A large majority of those who seek advice as outpatients at our infirmary, labour under distressing dyspeptic affections, ultimately degenerating into organic diseases of the stomach, induced, in my opinion, by a potato-diet; milk is, in a great measure, confined to the more comfortable of the peasantry; animal food is almost unknown as an article of diet to the poorer classes; the more comfortable rear geese for their own use, but many who do so are obliged to sell them to procure more indispensable requisites. Tradespeople in towns can occasionally procure butchers' meat, but they cannot be regarded as belonging to the class of peasantry to whom I understand these queries particularly apply. Amongst the patients admitted into our infirmary, we find that a large proportion require invigorating food and strengthening medicine, as cases characterized by exhaustion and debility are by far the most numerous.	Some such cases are to be met, but not often; when their provisions are bad, diseases are more frequent.
The poor in this neighbourhood are fed chiefly on potatoes; when those are deficient, or bad in quality, which sometimes happens, disorders are common.	Answered above.	The constant use of potatoes sometimes promotes disease.
The excessive use of ardent spirits prevails to such an extent, I believe it could hardly increase; there are few of the poor who do not indulge in the use of this pernicious stimulant; this, I think, chiefly attributable to the increased number of whiskey shops.	The abuse of ardent spirits prevails to a considerable extent, and is productive of the most frightful consequences. A large proportion of the crimes, which have stained the character of this county, have been perpetrated by persons acting under its baneful influence; assaults, riots and homicides, in many instances, originate from the excitement produced by perhaps a single glass of whiskey. A large number of those who attend markets, fairs, funerals or other assemblages of the people, get drunk and create riots, and too frequently fatal affrays. It extinguishes, for the time, all sense of decency, morality and religion. Few amongst the peasantry are what I would consider habitual drunkards. I fear that the people are not becoming by any means more temperate.	The use of ardent spirits exists to a great extent, and is decidedly on the increase, and has been for some time.
The poor in this town and neighbourhood are extremely destitute of the necessary comforts of life.	The destitution of the labouring population can only be fully estimated by those who have witnessed it. The appearance of the peasantry out of doors, particularly on Sundays or holydays, fair or market days, contrast strongly with their real condition; on these occasions they seem comparatively comfortable, well clad and happy, apparently forgetful of their miseries and privations. A visit to the bed of sickness, in their wretched cabins, presents a distressing reverse of the picture; the melancholy realities of their situation can be seen only there; the houses damp and uncomfortable, the floor wet, the air charged with smoke and noisome exhalation, the small aperture closed with a wooden shutter, and called a window, being insufficient for the free admission of light, or for the purposes of ventilation. In a word, a large proportion of the peasantry are in the worst possible condition, as to clothes, food, bedding, furniture, ventilation and necessary comforts. [Continued at the bottom of the page.]	Ventilation generally bad, furniture and bedding generally comfortable; sometimes very indifferent; clothes generally good, with few exceptions; food principally potatoes, their supply of which varies with the season, but generally have enough.

LEINSTER—WEXFORD—WICKLOW.

County Wexford Infirmary.	County Wicklow Infirmary, No. 1.	County Wicklow Infirmary, No. 2, (at Baltinglass.)
J. R. Crane, Esq., M. D.	William Hamilton, Esq., M. D.	N. W. Heath, Esq., Licen. Surgeon.
	Fevers have not been epidemic here for some years; bowel complaints have been very frequent, and of an obstinate character, aggravated, no doubt, by the want of proper food, clothing, firing, &c.	Yes, there are less cephalic, and more abdominal symptoms than formerly, attending the fevers which I have seen during the last year and a half.
	By far the greater number of diseases among the poor, are caused by want of proper sustenance; and numerous cases occur where food, not medicine, is the requisite.	See Answer to No. 5.
	As potatoes, and occasionally herrings, comprise all the variety in the food of the poor here, there is no room for comparison, but their constant use are prolific in disease.	See Answer to No. 5.
	The use of ardent spirits is very general, but the excessive use of it appears to be confined to tradesmen and sailors. We cannot form an opinion as to its increase.	Yes, when and where it can be procured; they view it in the light of an indulgence, the only one they have; it comforts them for the time, it stimulates their relaxed stomachs. I think we cannot attribute this horrid custom (speaking abstractedly) to depravity, but to their other deprivations.
I am not bound to attend the poor at their houses, but I often do, and am happy to be able to say, that I consider the poor of Wexford and its neighbourhood more comfortable, better fed, clothed and housed, and more moral than the same class in most of the other parts of Ireland. I think there is a considerable improvement amongst the poor in all the above-mentioned particulars, within the last eighteen years.	From ample experience, I can say nothing can be more wretched than the state of the poor here; they are almost in every instance destitute of the comforts, and very generally of a sufficiency of the commonest necessities of life. This is their state, even in health, but in disease their state is deplorable in the extreme.	Clothing not very bad, though inadequate; food generally potatoes; fuel very scarce; milk, butter or meal would be to them comforts, but generally speaking they are not to be procured by the poor here; the furniture corresponds.

[Continued from above].—The invalid, stretched upon a scanty bed of straw, insufficiently covered with filthy clothes, his coarse food but ill calculated to tempt a sickly appetite, happy if he enjoy the barest and most indispensable necessities; the idea of comfort never presenting itself to his imagination. The destitute condition of poor lying-in women is peculiarly heart-rending. Some provision for their attendance by properly qualified midwives is imperatively called for.

MUNSTER—CLARE—CITY of CORK.

MUNSTER—CLARE—CITY of CORK.

County Clare Infirmary.	North Infirmary, City of Cork.	South Infirmary, City of Cork.
George W. O'Brien, Esq., M.D.	Treasurer and Medical Attendants.	John Woodroffe, Esq., M.D.
The epidemics have often assumed a low malignant type, caused by deficiency of nourishment and clothing.	All epidemics attack the poor with the greatest severity, and the cause appears to be their extreme destitution.	The medical officers of this institution do not attend fever cases; they are received into the House of Recovery.
I have; a great many.	Frequent cases occur to us where disease has been brought on by want of proper sustenance, and where wholesome food might have been beneficially substituted for medicine.	Instances of the kind occur constantly.
I have; the use of potatoes, as the sole food, produces a great many diseases.	When the potato crop fails, severe diseases of the digestive organs are the consequence.	The constant use of potatoes, as so universal an article of diet, produces dyspepsia, pyrosis and diarrhoea.
It does very much, and I believe is greatly on the increase.	It is impossible for us to express the frightful extent to which the extensive abuse of spirits prevails, and unquestionably it is on the increase.	The abuse of ardent spirits is great, and daily increasing in the city of Cork; and it is to be lamented that the Government have thought proper to encourage distillation, in preference to the manufacture of malt liquors.
Very bad and uncomfortable in every respect.	The physicians and surgeons of the North Infirmary do not attend the houses of the poor.	The poor are not attended at their own houses by the medical officers of the South Infirmary.

MUNSTER—CORK—KERRY—LIMERICK.

County Cork Infirmary.	County Kerry Infirmary.	City of Limerick Infirmary and Barrington's Hospital.
St. John Galwey, Esq., M.D.	—	Medical Attendants.
Our epidemics are fevers, catarrhs and dysentery, I believe; of these typhus fever alone has assumed an altered type; it has been unusually mild for two or three years; no cause has been assigned for this.	Fevers occasionally have assumed a bad type; contagion, bad clothing, cold, wet, bad bedding and bed clothes and bad food, all debilitating causes.	Not for several years, cholera excepted.
Yes; but I am sure potatoes, if sufficiently cooked, eaten with salt and taken in moderation, instead of the usual repletion, are very salutary, as much so as oatmeal or even wheaten bread, but when the potato begins to germinate, it is apt to engender bowel affections, and I believe, to create or aggravate skin diseases.	Many instances where disease might be prevented by wholesome food.	Instances of this description are unfortunately so frequent that it frequently happens the medical attendant finds the dispensing of a shilling in charity, to buy provisions, will be of more value than his professional advice; such cases daily come under inspection.
Experience enables me to say, that quality or quantity of food has less influence on the health of the people than the abuse of ardent spirits.	The general food, and indeed, the only food of the poor, the potato, is, at particular periods, productive of disease. stomach and bowels; in some instances, where the poor are able, by any means, to get salt herrings, diseases of the skin are very numerous.	The inferior description of potatoes which the poor are compelled to subsist on, without even the addition of milk or salt, contributes greatly to promote disorders of the
I conceive the use of whiskey is less excessive this year than heretofore. The love of ardent spirits however, prevails to a degree so hardened, that drunkenness from whiskey may be taken as a measure of the people's means. On this head, so prolific of misery and vice, I feel I may give a little more than a simple answer to the queries. The ratio in the consumption of spirituous to malt liquors has increased, and is increasing; this, I believe, is mainly caused by a disproportionate duty on malt, and want of vigour in suppressing illicit traffic. Houses without license sell whiskey only. The off-scourings of the earth meet and plot all manner of mischief.	The quantity consumed in general is, I believe, greater than formerly, but the quantity individually consumed is less; there is not so much drunkenness observable as formerly.	In all cities there are to be found a large class of dram drinkers; but such practice here is not evidently greater now than before.
Generally the poor are in a state of destitution in all the particulars referred to.	Bad enough.	In a most miserable and dirty state, in every instance.

MUNSTER—LIMERICK—TIPPERARY.

ULSTER—ANTRIM.

County Limerick Infirmary.	County Tipperary Infirmary.	County Antrim Infirmary.
Mr. J. Sands, Apothecary.	Charles Vaughan, Esq., M. D.	William Stewart, Esq., M. D.
	Fevers and epidemics generally assume a low typhoid character, which is owing to the bad food, filthy habits and other circumstances, which tend to depress their constitutional vigour.	Very little fever for some years. When we have it commences with inflammatory symptoms, terminating in mild typhus, and is, in fact, the synochus of Cullen. We have had the epidemic influenza and but few cases of cholera.
	Instances do frequently occur, where want of proper food, combined with filth, scanty clothing, &c. not only causes the occurrence of the disease, but prolongs and aggravates disorders, which, under other circumstances, would easily become manageable.	I cannot state that any disease arises positively from want of sustenance, but all are aggravated from it, and medicine cannot produce its usual beneficial effects that result in patients admitted into the hospital.
	Almost universally, potatoes, of a bad description, are their chief article of diet, consequently dyspepsia and indigestion are very prevalent.	Potatoes and oatmeal, generally speaking, form the food of the poorer class; but I cannot attribute any disease to their use.
Yes, and on the increase.	In towns and villages the poor drink a great deal of spirits; the peasantry living at a distance from places of public resort drink when their business leads them to the neighbouring towns to fairs and markets. The practice is not diminishing.	It does very much, and I rather believe it is such as has been for years past.
	In this part of the country the poor possess no comforts, and suffer under all the privations mentioned.	When called upon to attend the poor, I generally find them very badly provided with all the articles mentioned in this query. Ventilation seldom attended to.

ULSTER—ARMAGH—DONEGAL—DOWN.

County Armagh Infirmary.	County Donegal Infirmary.	County Down Infirmary and Dispensary.
A. Robinson, Esq., Surgeon.	A. Gillespy, Esq., M. D.	George Buchanan, Esq., M. D.
The fevers that have been most observed here have latterly been of the catarrhal description, which seems to be attributable to the wretched clothing of the poor, and their want of fire and other necessaries.	The county surgeon has no opportunity of knowing this from experience, but has reason to know from the dispensary surgeon that there have been few fevers or epidemics in this neighbourhood; even the cholera, though raging in Strabane, on the other side of the water, never appeared in Lifford, in which the infirmary is situated.	Fevers have very constantly assumed a typhoid character, and other epidemics a malignant type, arising from the general poverty and want of comforts of the lower classes, and their too-frequent practice of drinking largely of ardent spirits, inducing very constantly great debility of constitution.
Many such instances have occurred.	The county surgeon has no opportunity of officially knowing this matter. their ailments would have been avoided by more wholesome food; and I have instances daily under my observation in the County Infirmary where generous diet, with the comforts of a warm room and bed, have alone removed disease.	I have no doubt that many of the diseases of the poor arise from improper or insufficient diet, and that, consequently many of
No.	Answered above.	Potatoes, without a proper admixture of other food, I conceive to have been productive of many diseases of the digestive functions; also too free an use of oatmeal and salted food, has given rise to obstinate eruptive diseases.
It does very much, and is only prevented from increasing by want of means to procure that destructive poison.	The county surgeon is decidedly of opinion that the practice is on the decrease, but for want of means only.	The excessive use of ardent spirits does prevail in my neighbourhood, a practice I believe rather increasing, perhaps owing to the circumstance that public-houses for the sale of spirits are allowed to remain open the greater part of the sabbath day; a great temptation to the drunkard.
In many cases, very wretched indeed.	The county surgeon is never called on to visit external patients. description, namely, potatoes, oatmeal, salt herrings, buttermilk, with sometimes the worst description of tea; their bedding of the poorest kind, frequently one bed sufficing for a whole family; their furniture hardly deserving that name, and ventilation wholly neglected, or else studiously prevented.	Their clothes of a very insufficient description to guard them against the inclemency of winter; their food of the plainest

ULSTER—FERMANAGH—LONDONDERRY—MONAGHAN.

County Fermanagh Infirmary.	County Londonderry Infirmary.	County Monaghan Infirmary.
G. A. Nixon, Esq., M. D.	Committee and Physician.	S. M'Dowell, Esq., M. D.
No, except the cholera, which is here at present.	Fevers or epidemics have not assumed any particular type.	It is my opinion, as cholera has increased fevers have decreased and are less frequent; poverty producing debility, predisposes individuals to cholera.
The diseases are brought on more by hard labour and other exertion than by the want of proper food. Good diet is much wanting after most of their diseases.	Not many, the very poor being attended to by a voluntary charitable institution for the relief of poor and indigent room-keepers.	I believe many diseases of the poor are brought on by want of nutritious food, want of clothing and fuel.
Not in this part of the country.	No; in seasons of scarcity deficient quantity rather than bad quality of the food is the chief cause of illness.	Potatoes are the food used mostly by the poor; if they could procure milk I would think them wholesome.
Not more than in any other part of this country, nor as much, I think; I am inclined to think on the decrease.	The poor have become more temperate of late years in this district.	I think the use of ardent spirits nearly the same as it was 20 years ago.
Better in my neighbourhood than in other parts of the country; but generally not very good.	In all these respects too frequently badly off.	In great poverty, wanting every comfort to soothe their sufferings.

ULSTER—TYRONE.	MUNSTER—LIMERICK.	ULSTER—ANTRIM.
County Tyrone Infirmary and Omagh Dispensary.	Limerick Lying-in Hospital.	Belfast Lying-in Hospital.
Thomas Maxwell, Esq., Surgeon.	William Griffin, Esq., M. D.	Robert Stephenson, Esq., M. D.
They have frequently assumed the typhoid type. To poverty.	—	The prevailing type of fever is synochus.
A great many.	—	Occasionally, during the period when I had charge of the General Dispensary and Fever Hospital.
Potatoes are the general food, and if they do not cause, cannot be considered beneficial to, scrophulous and dyspeptic complaints, which are very prevalent.	—	—
Yes; rather on the decrease.	—	It is rather prevalent among mechanics; but among paupers they are scarcely more used than should be expected from those who are obliged to resort to them as a temporary substitute for the want of the more permanent comforts of life.
Generally in a very bad state.	The patients admitted into hospital are generally miserably provided with clothes, &c., for the infants.	Their food is potatoes; their bed straw and their covering in it frequently their own rags.

MUNSTER—CORK—LIMERICK.

Foundling Hospital, City of Cork.	City of Cork House of Industry.	Limerick House of Industry.
Henry B. Evanson, Esq., M. D.	Edward R. Townsend, Esq., M. D.	Treasurer and Medical Attendant.
On this consult the physicians of the Fever Hospital.	Except the epidemic cholera and influenza, there has been no particular epidemic for the last year.	Cholera is again becoming very prevalent. I cannot attribute it to any cause.
The Dispensary physicians and those medical men who practise chiefly among the poor are most competent to answer these three (2, 3 and 5) queries.	As the patients received into the House of Industry Hospital have generally been inmates of the House of Industry, I have consequently seen but few cases of disease occurring from the causes stated in the query.	I have.
		Bad potatoes and sour milk, but not in this establishment.
When I have myself met destitution in the house of a working tradesman, I have commonly found it produced by drunkenness, which is the cause of much pauperism in Cork, where it is a prevailing vice. The proneness of the lower classes to intoxication is manifested on all occasions.	As no particular district is attached to the House of Industry I cannot reply to the query.	I do not consider that excessive use of it prevails, but I consider it on the increase.
	I am never required to visit any patient out of the Institution.	In many cases in a miserable condition.

MUNSTER—TIPPERARY—WATERFORD—LIMERICK.

County Tipperary House of Industry (at Clonmel.)	Waterford House of Industry.	Limerick Dispensary for Diseases of the Eye.
The Committee and Surgeon.	The Committee.	William Griffin, Esq., M. D.
When famine has prevailed fever became particularly contagious and typhoid, we consider, owing to want of food and other comforts, and cleanly habits, which are then diminished, as many of the poor sell or pawn their clothes, &c. Perhaps owing to other causes, as atmospheric distemperature and drunkenness.	Typhus fever has occasionally prevailed, particularly at periods when food is scarce or bad.
In this Institution we have not, as the inmates have food and clothing of a sufficiently good quality.	The physicians report that many such stances occur.
Not applicable to this Institution.
We do not think it decreasing, at least, but perhaps increasing. We are of opinion, that in this town and neighbourhood such increase is not altogether owing to the greater disposition of the lower orders to drink ardent spirits, but that it is partly owing to there being too many public houses of a low description, in which every facility and temptation are held out to drunkenness and immorality: We consider a check on these houses would diminish drunkenness considerably.	It does to a very great extent, and appears much on the increase.
Not applicable to this Institution.	The physicians state that the poorer classes in this city are in a general way in a wretched state, deficient in clothes, bedding, food and every thing relating to comfort, and in which the committee fully concur.

LEINSTER—DUBLIN—KILDARE.

Sick Poor Institution, Meath-Street, Dublin.	Maynooth Dispensary.
The Committee.	William Fergusson, Esq., M.D.
Within the last seven years we do not conceive they have.	During the last five years, fever has been gradually on the decline; perhaps in some measure attributable to the central situation of the Fever Hospital, which ensures a quick separation of the sick from the healthy, and prevents the con- tagion spreading, and of which the three surrounding dispensaries have the benefit, they being nearly equidistant from it.
Many.	Not in my district.
Their food in general is so miserable it would be difficult to specify any.	Not in my district.
It does; and is on the increase.	It prevails to an excessive degree, and is increasing every year, particularly du- ring the appearance of cholera, against which they flatter themselves that it is a sovereign antidote.
With few exceptions, destitute and wretched in the extreme.	In the worst possible condition, being devoid of any comfort, save that afforded in the shape of clothes, shoes and blankets, &c., every Christmas, out of the private pocket of a charitable individual.

Selection of reports and papers of the House of Commons

Bd.: 47,2

London 1836

2 Brit. 92 m-47,2

urn:nbn:de:bvb:12-bsb10213676-8